Mt 23.30–38. This is the closest New Testament parallel in 5 Ezra, and it suggests Christian authorship. See also Lk 11.49–51; 13.34–35. 31: Isa 1.11–15. The rejection of circumcision also reveals the Christian identity of the author. 32: Jer 7.25; 25.4. 33: Job 21.18; Ps 1.4; Jer 13.24. 1.35–40: Description and vision of the coming people. Emphasis is placed on the untutored goodness of the people that will come. 35: A people that will come, that is, the Gentile Christians. Signs, cf. Num 14.11. 36–37: Heb 2.3–4; 1 Pet 1.8–12. With bodily eyes, Jn 20.29. 38: God addresses Ezra as father, a term of respect. The people coming from the east suggests a return from exile (see Bar 4.36–37; 5.5). 39–40: The three patriarchs, and the twelve minor prophets arranged in the order of the Septuagint (see Mt 8.11–12; Lk 13.28–29).

2.1–9: Further pronunciation of judgment. The “mother” of the old people is consigned to destruction. 1: Jer 7.25–26; Ezra 9.10–11; Dan 9.10. 2: The mother who bore them, Jerusalem (Isa 49.21; 54.1). 2–4: This section, like 1.38, draws on the last chapters of the book of Baruch (Bar 4.8–23). 5: This time it is God who is invoked as from their tombs, because I recognize my name dead from their places, and bring them out Lord Almighty.”

you, says the Lord.

strengthen their feet, because I have chosen them up with gladness, as does a dove; says the Lord.

and created good; for I am the Living One, heaven and earth to witness: I set aside evil prepared for you; be on the watch!

pray that your days may be few, that they may have no off spring.

on them and bring their mother to ruin, so that they would not keep my covenant.

children, because they would not keep my covenant, so that you may bring confusion on them and bring their mother to ruin, so that they may have no offspring. 7 Let them be scattered among the nations; let their names be blotted out from the earth, because they have despised my covenant.

8 “Woe to you, Assyria, who conceal the unrighteous within you! O wicked nation, remember what I did to Sodom and Gomorrah, whose land lies in lumps of pitch and heaps of ashes. That is what I will do to those who have not listened to me, says the Lord Almighty.”

Thus says the Lord to Ezra: “Tell my people that I will give them the kingdom of Jerusalem, which I was going to give to Israel. Moreover, I will take back to myself their glory, and will give to these others the everlasting habitations, which I had prepared for Israel. 12 The tree of life shall give them fragrant perfume, and they shall neither toil nor become weary. 13 Go and you will receive; pray that your days may be few, that they may be shortened. The kingdom is already prepared for you; be on the watch! 14 Call, O call heaven and earth to witness: I set aside evil and created good; for I am the Living One, says the Lord.

“Mother, embrace your children; bring them up with gladness, as does a dove; strengthen their feet, because I have chosen you, says the Lord. And I will raise up the dead from their places, and bring them out from their tombs, because I recognize my name in them. 17 Do not fear, mother of children, for I have chosen you, says the Lord. 18 I will send you help, my servants Isaiah and Jeremiah. According to their counsel I have consecrated and prepared for you twelve trees loaded with various fruits, and the same number of springs flowing with milk and honey, and seven mighty mountains on which roses and lilies grow; by these I will fill your children with joy.

20 “Guard the rights of the widow, secure justice for the ward, give to the needy, defend the orphan, clothe the naked, care for the injured and the weak, do not ridicule the lame, protect the maimed, and let the blind have a vision of my splendor. 22 Protect the old and the young within your walls. When you find any who are dead, commit them to the grave and mark it, and I will give you the first place in my resurrection.Pause and be quiet, my people, because your rest will come.

25 “Good nurse, nourish your children; strengthen their feet. 26 Not one of the servants whom I have given you will perish, for I will require them from among your number. Do not be anxious, for when the day of tribulation and anguish comes, others father, in conjunction with Jerusalem as mother (cf. 1.38). 6: Bring their mother to ruin, a reference to the fall of Jerusalem in 70 or 135 ce (cf. Mt 22.1–14). 7: Let them be scattered, as punishment, see Lev 26.33; Deut 4.27; Ps 44.11; Jer 9.16. The endurance of names is a form of immortality (see Sir 41.11–13). 8–9: Woe against Assyria. The exact significance of this reference is uncertain; some scholars view Assyria as a reference to Rome. Here Assyria is cursed for concealing the Jews (cf. Zeph 2.13–3.5). Sodom and Gomorrah, Gen 19.

2.10–41: Prophetic exhortation of the new people. 10–14: Blessing and instruction; listing of eschatological delights. 10: My people, the newly chosen Christians. See Mt 21.43. 11: Everlasting habitations, dwelling places in the world to come; see Lk 16.9; Jn 14.2–3; 2 Cor 5.1,4; Rev 21.3. 12: Tree of life, Gen 2.9; 2.17–19,22; Rev 2.7; 22.2,14; 1 Enoch 24.4–25.7. 13: Mt 7.7–8; 13.20,33–37; 14.34–38; 24.22; 25.34; Mk 13.37; Jn 16.24. 14: Heaven and earth, Deut 4.26; Isa 1.2. Living One, Rev 1.18.

2.15–32: Exhortation of the mother. In distinction to 2.2–6, it is now the church, not Jerusalem, that is addressed as mother. 15: Dove, Song 2.13–14. Chosen, Isa 44.1–2; 49.7; 16: Resurrection is promised; see Isa 26.19; Ezek 37.12; Rev 3.12; 14.1; 22.4. 18–19: 1 Enoch 24–25; 31–32; 48; Hermas Sim. 9. 18: Twelve trees, Rev 22.2. 19: Springs . . . mountains, 1 Enoch 18.6; 24.2–3; 32.1; 48.1. 20–23: A recital of the traditional “works of mercy” of the church (see Isa 58.6–10; Tob 1.17–19; Mt 25.35–45; Hermas Mand. 8.10). 22: The old and the young, Joel 2.16. 23: Concern for proper burial, cf. Ezek 39.15; Sir 38.16. 24: Rest, an eschatological reward; cf. Dan 12.13; Heb 3.18–19.

APOCRYPHNA | 1679
shall weep and be sorrowful, but you shall rejoice and have abundance. 28 The nations shall envy you, but they shall not be able to do anything against you, says the Lord. 29 My power will protect you, so that your children may not see hell.

30 “Rejoice, O mother, with your children, because I will deliver you, says the Lord. 31 Remember your children that sleep, because I will bring them out of the hiding places of the earth, and will show mercy to them; for I am merciful, says the Lord Almighty. 32 Embrace your children until I come, and proclaim mercy to them; because my springs run over, and my grace will not fail.”

33 I, Ezra, received a command from the Lord on Mount Horeb to go to Israel. When I came to them they rejected me and refused the Lord’s commandment. 34 Therefore I say to you, O nations that hear and understand, “Wait for your shepherd; he will give you everlasting rest, because he who will come at the end of the age is close at hand. 35 Be ready for the rewards of the kingdom, because perpetual light will shine on you forevermore.

36 Flee from the shadow of this age, receive the joy of your glory; I publicly call on my savior to witness. 37 Receive what the Lord has entrusted to you and be joyful, giving thanks to him who has called you to the celestial kingdoms. 38 Rise, stand erect and see the number of those who have been sealed at the feast of the Lord. 39 Those who have departed from the shadow of this age have received glorious garments from the Lord. 40 Take again your full number, O Zion, and close the list of your people who are clothed in white, who have fulfilled the law of the Lord. 41 The number of your children, whom you desired, is now complete; implore the Lord’s authority that your people, who have been called from the beginning, may be made holy.”

42 I, Ezra, saw on Mount Zion a great multitude that I could not number, and they all were praising the Lord with songs. 43 In their midst was a young man of great stature, taller than any of the others, and on the head of each of them he placed a crown, but he was more exalted than they. And I was held spellbound. 44 Then I asked an angel, “Who are these, my lord?” 45 He answered and said to me, “These are they who have put off mortal clothing and have put on the immortals, and have confessed the name of God. Now they are being crowned, and receive palms.” 46 Then I said to the angel, “Who is that young man who is placing crowns on them and putting palms in their hands?” 47 He answered and said to me, “He is the Son of God, whom they confessed in the world.” So I began to praise those who had stood valiantly for the name of the Lord. 48 Then the angel said to me, “Go, tell my people how great and how many are the wonders of the Lord God that you have seen.”

3 In the thirtieth year after the destruction of the city, I was in Babylon—I, Salathiel, who am also called Ezra. I was troubled as I lay on my bed, and my thoughts welled up in my heart, because I saw the desolation of Zion and the wealth of those who lived in Babylon. My spirit was greatly agitated, and I began to speak anxious words to the Most High, and said, O sovereign Lord, did you not speak at the beginning when you planted the earth—and that without help—and commanded the dust and it gave you Adam, a lifeless body? Yet he was the creation of your hands, and you breathed into him the breath of life, and he was made alive in your presence. And you led him into the garden that your right hand had planted before the earth appeared. And you laid upon him one commandment of yours; but he transgressed it, and immediately you appointed death for him and for his descendants. From him there sprang nations and tribes, peoples and clans without number. And every nation walked after its own will; they did ungodly things in your sight and rejected your commands, and you did not hinder them. But again, in its time you brought the flood upon the inhabitants of the world and destroyed them. And the same fate befell all of them: just as death came upon Adam, so the flood upon them. But you left one of them, Noah with his household, and all the righteous who have descended from him.

---

When those who lived on earth began to multiply, they produced children and peoples and many nations, and again they began to be more ungodly than were their ancestors. And when they were committing iniquity in your sight, you chose for yourself one of them, whose name was Abraham; you loved him, and to him alone you revealed the end of the times, secretly by night. You made an everlasting covenant with him, and promised him that you would never forsake his descendants; and you gave him Isaac, and to Isaac you gave Jacob and Esau. You set apart Jacob for yourself, but Esau you rejected; and Jacob became a great multitude. And when you led his descendants out of Egypt, you brought them to Mount Sinai. You bent down the heavens and shook the earth, and moved the world, and caused the depths to tremble, and troubled the times. Your glory passed through the four gates of fire and earthquake and wind and ice, to give Chapters 3–14 comprise a separate literary composition also known as 4 Ezra (see Introduction).

3.1–5.20: The first vision. 3.1–3: Introduction. 1: The thirtieth year after the destruction of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar in 586 BCE (2 Kings 25.1–21) would be 556. The date specified may imply that the author was writing about 100 CE (i.e., thirty years after the fall of Jerusalem in 70 CE). The historical Ezra lived almost a century after the claimed setting of the book. Babylon, the historical Ezra was born in Babylon, then led a group of exiled Jews returning to Jerusalem about 458 BCE; see Ezra 7.7n. Salathiel is the Greek form of “Shealtiel” (Ezra 3.2; 5.2; Neh 12.1), appropriately meaning in Hebrew, “I asked God.” The identification of Salathiel with Ezra has never been adequately explained. On my bed, cf. Dan 7.1. 2: Zion, Jerusalem. 3: My spirit was greatly agitated, the author immediately signals Ezra’s emotional sensitivity.

3.4–36: Addressing God, the author raises perplexing questions. What is the origin of sin with its consequent misery? How can Israel’s continuing affliction be reconciled with God’s justice? Each of the first four visions opens with a long, reflective prayer of Ezra addressed to God (see 5.23–30; 6.38–59; 9.29–37). Here Ezra presents a historical review of God’s interactions with humanity and with Israel. 4–5: The creation of Adam, based on Gen 2.7, draws on the concept of creation by divine speech in Gen 1. 6–8: Adam’s disobedience (see Gen 2.16–17; 3.1–13) gives rise to sin and death for all humans. 7: The words immediately you appointed death imply that Adam was not originally intended to be mortal (see Gen 3.22; cf. Wis 1.13–14; 2.23–24). Death for him and his descendants, see also 3.21,26; 4.30; 7.116–118. Similar ideas are expressed by Paul in Rom 5.12–21; 1 Cor 15.21–22. 8: Gen 6.12. 9–11: The flood (Gen 6.11–8.22). 12–15: The choice of and covenant with Abraham (Gen 12.1; 17.5). 14: The end of the times is not the topic of Gen 15. See, however, The Apocalypse of Abraham, roughly contemporary with chs 3–14. By night, Gen 15.5,12,17. 15–16: Jacob and Esau, Gen 25.19–26. 17–19: The Exodus and the giving of the law. 18: Compare Ex 19.16–18; Ps 68.7–8. 19: Four gates, according to certain early Jewish cosmological models, meteorological phenomena passed from heaven to earth through gates in the heavenly firmament, here enumerated as four. See 1 Enoch 36.1,76; cf. Ps 78.23; 1 Kings 19.11–12. Here God’s the law to the descendants of Jacob, and your commandment to the posterity of Israel.

20 “Yet you did not take away their evil heart from them, so that your law might produce fruit in them. 21 For the first Adam, burdened with an evil heart, transgressed and was overcome, as were also all who were descended from him. 22 Thus the disease became permanent; the law was in the hearts of the people along with the evil root; but what was good departed, and the evil remained. 23 So the times passed and the years were completed, and you raised up for yourself a servant, named David. 24 You commanded him to build a city for your name, and there to offer you oblations from what is yours. 25 This was done for many years; but the inhabitants of the city transgressed, 26 in everything doing just as Adam and all his descendants had done, for they also had the evil heart. 27 So you handed over your city to your enemies.

28 “Then I said in my heart, Are the deeds of those who inhabit Babylon any better? Is that why it has gained dominion over Zion? 29 For when I came here I saw ungodly deeds without number, and my soul has seen many sinners during these thirty years. 30 And my heart failed me, 31 because I have seen how you endure those who sin, and have spared those who act wickedly, and have destroyed your people, and protected your enemies, 32 and have not shown to anyone how your glory descends through these gates to give the law on Mount Sinai. 20–27: The tendency to sin is universal and permanent. 20: You did not take away, here, as in 3.8 (you did not hinder them), Ezra implies that God bears some responsibility for human sinfulness. Evil heart, possibly, in the Hebrew (now lost), the evil “yetser,” an inclination or tendency to sin (Gen 6.5; 2 Esd 4.30–31). The “yetser” can also be an inclination to good (Isa 26.3; 1 Chr 29.18). Fruit, see 8.6. 22: Contrast 9.34–37. Evil root, cf. 8.53. 23–27: David, see 1 Sam 16.1–13; 2 Sam 7.1–17; Ps 89.19–29. The city is Jerusalem. 27: Handed over your city, the Babylonian conquest of Jerusalem in 586 BCE (2 Kings 25.1–21). 28–36: Ezra questions whether the deeds of Babylon are any better than those of Israel. 28: Babylon, here, as regularly in the book, stands for Rome (compare Rev 14.8). 30–31: Here the author expresses the essence of the problem: God permits evildoers to continue in their wickedness, does not spare the suffering people of God, and does not let anyone understand why this should be so. 33–36: Ezra claims that God’s judgment regarding the present world order has been faulty. 34: Scale, see Job 31.6; Dan 5.27; 1 Enoch 4.1; 61.8. 36: Individuals among the Gentiles.

4.1–25: Dialogic dispute between Ezra and the angel Uriel. The message is that God’s ways are beyond human understanding. 1–12: Three riddles illustrate the limitations of human knowledge. 1: Angel, representing the viewpoint of God. The name Uriel in Hebrew means “God is my fire” (or “my light”). According to 1 Enoch 20.2, Uriel is a watcher over both the world and Tartaros, the lowest part of hell (cf. 2 Pet 2.4, textual note e). 5: The angel’s method of instructing Ezra regularly employs analogies drawn from nature;
And he said to me, “Go, weigh for me the weight of fire, or measure for me a blast of wind, or call back for me the day that is past.”

6 I answered and said, “Who of those that have been born can do that, that you should ask me about such things?”

7 And he said to me, “If I had asked you, ‘How many dwellings are in the heart of the sea, or how many streams are at the source of the deep, or how many streams are above the firmament, or which are the exits of Hades, or which are the entrances of paradise?’

8 perhaps you would have said to me, ‘I never went down into the deep, nor as yet into Hades, neither did I ever ascend into heaven.’

9 But now I have asked you only about fire and wind and the day—things that you have experienced and from which you cannot be separated, and you have given me no answer about them.”

10 He said to me, “You cannot understand the things with which you have grown up; how then can your mind comprehend the way of the Most High? And how can one who is already worn out by the corrupt world understand incorruption?”

11 When I heard this, I fell on my face and said to him, “It would have been better for us not to be here than to come here and live in ungodliness, and to suffer and not understand why.”

12 He answered me and said, “I went into a forest of trees of the plain, and they made a plan, for the forest also made a plan and said, ‘Come, let us go and make war against the sea, so that it may recede before us and so that we may make for ourselves more forests.’

13 In like manner the waves of the sea also made a plan and said, ‘Come, let us go up and subdue the forest of the plain so that there also we may gain more territory for ourselves.’

14 But the plan of the forest was in vain, for the fire came and consumed it; likewise also the plan of the waves of the sea was in vain, for the sand stood firm and blocked it. 15 If now you were a judge between them, which would you undertake to justify, and which to condemn?”

16 I answered and said, “Each made a foolish plan, for the land has been assigned to the forest, and the locale of the sea a place to carry its waves.”

17 He answered me and said, “You have judged rightly, but why have you not judged so in your own case? 18 For as the land has been assigned to the forest and the sea to its waves, so also those who inhabit the earth can understand only what is on the earth, and he who is above the heavens can understand what is above the height of the heavens.”

19 Then I answered and said, “I implore you, my lord, why have I been endowed with the power of understanding? 20 For I did not wish to inquire about the ways above, but about those things that we daily experience: why Israel has been given over to the Gentiles in disgrace; why the people whom you loved has been given over to godless tribes, and the law of our ancestors has been brought to destruction and the written covenants no longer exist. 21 We pass from the world like locusts, and our life is like a mist, and we are not worthy to obtain mercy. 22 But what will he do for his name that is invoked over us? It is about these things that I have asked.”

see 4.13–21, 28–32, 40–42, 48–50; 5.36–37, 46–55. 7: How many dwellings . . . ? In many apocalypses, these types of questions are in fact issues of proper concern. 8: See Deut 30.11–13. Hades, the underworld. 10–11: See Job 38–41; Jn 3.12. 12: For the seer, to live without understanding of life’s meaning is intolerable. 13–21: Parable of the conflict between the forest and the sea. 18–19: As a skilful teacher, the angel leads Ezra to answer his own question; see also 5.36–40, 46–47; 7.52–58. 21: Isa 55.8–9. 22–25: Ezra protests that he is inquiring only about the meaning of earthly, historical happenings, not about cosmic events. 24: Ps 109.23; Wis 2.4.

4.26–52: Dialogic prediction regarding the future. 26–32: The angel’s concern shifts to the end of the present, evil age and the distinction between this age and the next. This section marks the beginning of the 26 He answered me and said, “If you are alive, you will see, and if you live long, you will often marvel, because the age is hurrying swiftly to its end. 27 It will not be able to bring the things that have been promised to the righteous in their appointed times, because this age is full of sadness and infirmities. 28 For the evil about which you ask me has been sown, but the harvest of it has not yet come. 29 If therefore that which has been sown is not reaped, and if the place where the evil has been sown does not pass away, the field where the good has been sown will not come. 30 For a grain of evil seed was sown in Adam’s heart from the beginning, and how much ungodliness it has produced until now—and will produce until the time of threshing comes!

31 Consider now for yourself how much fruit of ungodliness a grain of evil seed has produced. 32 When heads of grain without number are sown, how great a threshing floor they will fill!”

33 Then I answered and said, “How long? When will these things be? Why are our years few and evil?” 34 He answered me and said, “Do not be in a greater hurry than the Most High. You, indeed, are in a hurry for yourself, but the Highest is in a hurry on behalf of many. 35 Did not the souls of the righteous in their chambers ask about these matters, saying, ‘How long are we to remain here? And when will the harvest of our reward come?’ ”

36 And the archangel Jeremiel answered and said, “When the number of those like yourselves is completed; for he has weighed the age in the balance, and measured the times by measure, and numbered the times by number; and he will not move or arouse them until that measure is fulfilled.”

38 Then I answered and said, “But, O sovereign Lord, all of us also are full of ungodliness. 39 It is perhaps on account of us that the time of threshing is delayed for the righteous—on account of the sins of those who inhabit the earth.”

40 He answered me and said, “Go and ask a pregnant woman whether, when her nine months have been completed, her womb can keep the fetus within her any longer.”

41 And I said, “No, lord, it cannot.”

He said to me, “In Hades the chambers of the souls are like the womb. 42 For just as a woman who is in labor makes haste to escape the pangs of birth, so also do these places hasten to give back those things that were committed to them from the beginning. 43 Then the things that you desire to see will be disclosed to you.”

44 I answered and said, “If I have found favor in your sight, and if it is possible, and if I am worthy, show me this also: whether more time is to come than has passed, or whether for us the greater part has gone by. 46 For I know what has gone by, but I do not know what is to come.”

47 And he said to me, “Stand at my right side, and I will show you the interpretation of a parable.”

48 So I stood and looked, and lo, a flaming furnace passed by before me, and when the angel’s esoteric eschatological teaching, the main focus of 4 Ezra. 28–32: Harvest, the time of judgment. Cf. Mt 3.12; 13.24–30. 29: Cf. the fourth vision, 9.26–10.59. 30: The grain of evil seed, or evil “yetser” (see 3.20n.) sown in Adam’s heart, introduced in 3.7–27, must ripen and be harvested before the coming, righteous age can appear. 33–52: Ezra’s questions concerning the time of the end. 33: How long?, the question is a prophetic and apocalyptic commonplace; see 4.35; 6.59; Isa 6.11; Dan 8.13; 12.6; Zech 11.2; Rev 6.10. Ezra’s concerns, like the angel’s, also move to the end of the age. 34: An exhortation to patience in the face of coming judgment. 35–37: This passage is similar to Rev 6.9–11. 35: Souls of the righteous in their chambers, according to Jewish thought of the time, the souls of the righteous dead are placed in “chambers,” or “treasuries,” to await the last judgment (see 2.31; 4.41; 7.32, 80,95,101; 1 Enoch 22; 2 Apoc. Bar. 21.23). 36: Archangel Jeremiel, see 1 Enoch 20.8, Apoc. Zeph. 6.11–17; 2 Bar. 53–74. In 1 Enoch 20.8 the angel, called Remiel, is “in charge of those who rise.” When the number . . . is completed, cf. 2.40–41; Rev 6.11. 36–37: Weighed . . . measured . . . numbered, God has determined the times and periods of history (see Sir 36.10). 40–43: The analogy of a woman who is in labor explains the inevitability of the end (cf. 5.46–55; 16.38–39; 1 Thess 5.3). 41: Hades, the underworld. Chambers, see v. 35n. 44–50: The see flame had gone by I looked, and lo, the smoke remained. And after this a cloud full of water passed before me and poured down a heavy and violent rain, and when the violent rainstorm had passed, drops still remained in the cloud.

50 He said to me, "Consider it for yourself; for just as the rain is more than the drops, and the fire is greater than the smoke, so the quantity that passed was far greater; but drops and smoke remained."

51 Then I prayed and said, "Do you think that I shall live until those days? Or who will be alive in those days?"

52 He answered me and said, "Concerning the signs about which you ask me, I can tell you in part; but I was not sent to tell you concerning your life, for I do not know.

5 "Now concerning the signs: lo, the days are coming when those who inhabit the earth shall be seized with great terror, and the way of truth shall be hidden, and the land shall be barren of faith. Unrighteousness shall be increased beyond what you yourself see, and beyond what you heard of formerly.

3 And the land that you now see ruling shall be a trackless waste, and people shall see it desolate. But if the Most High grants that you live, you shall see it thrown into confusion after the third period; and the sun shall suddenly begin to shine at night, and the moon during the day.

5 Blood shall drip from wood, and the stone shall utter its voice; the peoples shall be troubled, and the stars shall fall.

6 And one shall reign whom those who inhabit the earth do not expect, and the birds shall fly away together; and the Dead Sea shall cast up fish; and one whom the many do not know shall make his voice heard by night, and all shall hear his voice. There shall be chaos also in many places, fire shall often break out, the wild animals shall roam beyond their haunts, and menstruous women shall bring forth monsters. Salt waters shall be found in the sweet, and all friends shall conquer one another; then shall reason hide itself, and wisdom shall withdraw into its chamber, and it shall be sought by many but shall not be found, and unrighteousness and unrestraint shall increase on earth. One country shall ask its neighbor, 'Has righteousness, or anyone who does right, passed through you?' And it will answer, 'No.'

15 At that time people shall hope but not obtain; they shall labor, but their ways shall not prosper. These are the signs that I am permitted to tell you, and if you pray again, and weep as you do now, and fast for seven days, you shall hear yet greater things than these."

14 Then I woke up, and my body shuddered violently, and my soul was so troubled that it fainted. But the angel who had come and talked with me held me and strengthened me and set me on my feet.

asks what proportion of time remains; he is told by a parable that the end is near (see 5.50–55; 14.10–12). Flaming furnace . . . smoke, see also Gen 15.17; Zech 12.6.

5.1–13: Direct prediction of the future by the angel, who uses classical apocalyptic "signs" to describe the end of this age (cf. the "synoptic apocalypse" in Mt 24.4–31; Mk 13.5–27; Lk 21.8–28). Each of the first three visions contains similar lists of apocalyptic signs (see 6.11–29; 7.26–44; 8.63–9.13). 2: Mt 24.12, 3: Rome will be destroyed. 4–9: The natural order, mirroring the moral order, will be confused and overturned (cf. Joel 2.10; Mt 24.3–35; Mk 13.3–31; Lk 21.7–28). 4: The reference to the third period is cryptic (cf. 14.10–12). 5: The stone shall utter its voice, Hab 2.11; Lk 19.40. 7: Cf. Ezek 47.8–10. 8a: Syriac, “There shall be chasms also in many places” (cf. Zech 14.4). 8b: Menstruous women, cf. 6.21; Mt 24.19; Mk 13.17, 9–11: Wisdom, personified as in the wisdom literature, shall withdraw, another classic apocalyptic theme (cf. Isa 59.14–15; 2 Apoc. Bar. 48.36). 13: For the author, fasting, prayer, and mourning prepared one to receive a divine revelation; he refers to four such preparatory periods of seven days (5.20; 6.35; 9.23–25; 12.51).

5.14–20: Transition to the second vision. 14: Then I woke up, from the dream vision. My soul . . . fainted, cf.
16 Now on the second night Phaltiel, a chief of the people, came to me and said, “Where have you been? And why is your face sad?

17 Or do you not know that Israel has been entrusted to you in the land of their exile?

18 Rise therefore and eat some bread, and do not forsake us, like a shepherd who leaves the flock in the power of savage wolves.”

19 Then I said to him, “Go away from me and do not come near me for seven days; then you may come to me.”

He heard what I said and left me. 20 So I fasted seven days, mourning and weeping, as the angel Uriel had commanded me.

21 After seven days the thoughts of my heart were very grievous to me again. 22 Then my soul recovered the spirit of understanding, and I began once more to speak words in the presence of the Most High.

23 I said, “O sovereign Lord, from every forest of the earth and from all its trees you have chosen one vine, 24 and from all the lands of the world you have chosen for yourself one region, a and from all the flowers of the world you have chosen for your one lily, 25 and from all the depths of the sea you have filled for yourself one river, and from all the cities that have been built you have consecrated Zion for yourself, 26 and from all the birds that have been created you have named for yourself one dove, and from all the flocks that have been made you have provided for yourself one sheep, 27 and from all the multitude of peoples you have gotten for yourself one people; and to this people, whom you have loved, you have given the law that is approved by all.

28 And now, O Lord, why have you handed the one over to the many, and dishonored the one root beyond the others, and scattered your only one among the many? 29 And those who opposed your promises have trampled on those who believed your covenants. 30 If you really hate your people, they should be punished at your own hands.”

31 When I had spoken these words, the angel who had come to me on a previous night was sent to me. 32 He said to me, “Listen to me, and I will instruct you; pay attention to me, and I will tell you more.”

33 Then I said, “Speak, my lord.” And he said to me, “Are you greatly disturbed in mind over Israel? Or do you love him more than his Maker does?”

34 I said, “No, my lord, but because of my grief I have spoken; for every hour I suffer agonies of heart, while I strive to understand the way of the Most High and to search out some part of his judgment.”

35 He said to me, “You cannot.” And I said, “Why not, my lord? Why then was I born? Or why did not my mother's womb become my grave, so that I would not see the travail of Jacob and the exhaustion of the people of Israel?”

36 He said to me, “Count up for me those who have not yet come, and gather for me the scattered raindrops, and make the withered flowers bloom again for me; 37 open for me the closed chambers, and bring out for me the winds shut up in them, or show me the picture of a voice; and then I will explain to you the travail that you ask to understand.”

a Ethiop: Lat pit
b Syr Ethiop Arab: Lat prepared c Lat see
38 I said, “O sovereign Lord, who is able to know these things except him whose dwelling is not with mortals? 39 As for me, I am without wisdom, and how can I speak concerning the things that you have asked me?”
40 He said to me, “Just as you cannot do one of the things that were mentioned, so you cannot discover my judgment, or the goal of the love that I have promised to my people.”
41 I said, “Yet, O Lord, you have charge of those who are alive at the end, but what will those do who lived before me, or we, ourselves, or those who come after us?”
42 He said to me, “I shall liken my judgment to a circle; just as for those who are last there is no slowness, so for those who are first there is no haste.”
43 Then I answered and said, “Could you not have created at one time those who have been and those who are and those who will be, so that you might show your judgment the sooner?”
44 He replied to me and said, “The creation cannot move faster than the Creator, nor can the world hold at one time those who have been created in it.”
45 I said, “How have you said to your servant that you will certainly give life at one time to your creation? If therefore all creatures will live at one time and the creation will sustain them, it might even now be able to support all of them present at one time.”
46 He said to me, “Ask a woman’s womb, and say to it, ‘If you bear ten children, why one after another?’ Request it therefore to produce ten at one time.”
47 I said, “Of course it cannot, but only each in its own time.”
48 He said to me, “Even so I have given the womb of the earth to those who from time to time are sown in it. 49 For as an infant does not bring forth, and a woman who has become old does not bring forth any longer, so I have made the same rule for the world that I created.”
50 Then I inquired and said, “Since you have now given me the opportunity, let me speak before you. Is our mother, of whom you have told me, still young? Or is she now approaching old age?”
51 He replied to me, “Ask a woman who bears children, and she will tell you. 52 Say to her, ‘Why are those whom you have borne recently not like those whom you bore before, but smaller in stature?’ 53 And she herself will answer you, ‘Those born in the strength of youth are different from those born during the time of old age, when the womb is failing.’ 54 Therefore you also should consider that you and your contemporaries are smaller in stature than those who were before you, and those who come after you will be smaller than you, as born of a creation that already is aging and passing the strength of youth.”
56 I said, “I implore you, O Lord, if I have found favor in your sight, show your servant through whom you will visit your creation.”
6 He said to me, “At the beginning of the circle of the earth, before the portals of the world were in place, and before the

---

1 10.18–19; Jer 20.17. 36–40: As in the first vision (4.5), the angel poses unanswerable riddles from nature. 40: My . . . I, the angel speaks in God’s name.

5.41–6.10: Dialogic prediction concerning the future. 5.41–49: Ezra’s concern is for fair treatment of all at the judgment. 41: You have charge, Ezra immediately resumes his questioning about the details of the end. The problem of the faithful who die before the end time was also an issue in early Christianity (1 Thess 4.13–15). 45: How have you said . . . ? Ezra points out an apparent contradiction in the logic: All . . . will live at one time, namely at the resurrection. 48: The womb of the earth, see Job 1.21. 50–55: As in the first vision (4.44–46), Ezra asks about the timing of the end. 54: Ezra’s generation being smaller in stature shows that the end is near. Various traditions refer to an ancient race of giants (Gen 6.4; Num 13.33; Deut 3.11; 1 Enoch 6–11). 5.56–6.6: To Ezra’s question concerning an eschatological agent, the angel responds that God alone will act. 6.1: Portals of the assembled winds blew, and before the rumbles of thunder sounded, and before the flashes of lightning shone, and before the foundations of paradise were laid, and before the beautiful flowers were seen, and before the powers of movements were established, and before the innumerable hosts of angels were gathered together, and before the measures of the firmaments were established, and before the heights of the air were lifted up, and before the powers of movements were established, and before the footstool of Zion was established, and before the present years were reckoned and before the imaginations of those who now sin were estranged, and before those who stored up treasures of faith were sealed—then I planned these things, and they were made through me alone and not through another; just as the end shall come through me alone and not through another.”

⁷I answered and said, “What will be the dividing of the times? Or when will be the end of the first age and the beginning of the age that follows?”

⁸He said to me, “From Abraham to Isaac,b because from him were born Jacob and Esau, for Jacob’s hand held Esau’s heel from the beginning.⁹Now Esau is the end of this age, and Jacob is the beginning of the age that follows.¹⁰The beginning of a person is the hand, and the end of a person is the heel; seek for nothing else, Ezra, between the heel and the hand, Ezra!”

¹¹I answered and said, “O sovereign Lord, if I have found favor in your sight, ²²Show your servant the last of your signs of which you showed me a part on a previous night.”

¹³He answered and said to me, “Rise to your feet and you will hear a full, resounding voice. And if the place where you are standing is greatly shaken while the voice is speaking, do not be terrified; because the word concerns the end, and the foundations of the earth will understand that the speech concerns them. They will tremble and be shaken, for they know that their end must be changed.”

¹⁷When I heard this, I got to my feet and listened; a voice was speaking, and its sound was like the sound of mighty waters.¹⁸It said, “The days are coming when I draw near to visit the inhabitants of the earth, and when I require from the doers of iniquity the penalty of their iniquity, and when the humiliation of Zion is complete. ²⁰When the seal is placed upon the age that is about to pass away, then I will show these signs: the books shall be opened before the face of the firmament, and all shall see my judgment together. ²¹Children a year old shall speak with their voices, and pregnant women shall give birth to premature children at three and four months, and these shall live and leap about. ²²Sown places shall suddenly appear unsown, and full storehouses shall suddenly be found to be empty; the trumpet shall sound aloud, and when all hear it, they shall suddenly be terrified. ²⁴At that time friends shall make war on friends like enemies, the earth and those who inhabit it shall be terrified, and the springs of the fountains shall stand still, so that for three hours they shall not flow. ²⁵“It shall be that whoever remains after all that I have foretold to you shall be saved and shall see my salvation and the end of my world. 26 And they shall see those who were taken up, who from their birth have not tasted death; and the heart of the earth’s inhabitants shall be changed and converted to a different spirit. 27 For evil shall be blotted out, and deceit shall be quenched; 28 faithfulness shall flourish, and corruption shall be overcome, and the truth, which has been so long without fruit, shall be revealed.”

29 While he spoke to me, little by little the place where I was standing began to rock to and fro. 30 And he said to me, “I have come to show you these things this night.”

31 If therefore you will pray again and fast again for seven days, I will again declare to you greater things than these, 32 because your voice has surely been heard by the Most High; for the Mighty One has seen your uprightness and has also observed the purity that you have maintained from your youth. 33 Therefore he sent me to show you all these things, and to say to you: ‘Believe and do not be afraid!’

34 Do not be quick to think vain thoughts concerning the former times; then you will not act hastily in the last times.’”

35 Now after this I wept again and fasted seven days in the same way as before, in order to complete the three weeks that had been prescribed for me. 36 Then on the eighth night my heart was troubled within me again, and I began to speak in the presence of the Most High. 37 My spirit was greatly aroused, and my soul was in distress.

38 I said, “O Lord, you spoke at the beginning of creation, and said on the first day, ‘Let heaven and earth be made,’ and your word accomplished the work. 39 Then the spirit was blowing, and darkness and silence embraced everything; the sound of human voices was not yet there. 40 Then you commanded a ray of light to be brought out from your store-chambers, so that your works could be seen. 41 Again, on the second day, you created the spirit of the firmament, and commanded it to divide and separate the waters, so that one part might move upward and the other part remain beneath.

42 “On the third day you commanded the waters to be gathered together in a seventh part of the earth; six parts you dried up and kept so that some of them might be planted and cultivated and be of service before you. 43 For your word went forth, and at once the work was done. 44 Immediately fruit came forth in endless abundance and of varied appeal to the taste, and flowers of inimitable color, and odors of inexpressible fragrance. These were made on the third day.

45 “On the fourth day you commanded the brightness of the sun, the light of the moon, and the arrangement of the stars to come into being; 46 and you commanded them to serve humankind, about to be formed.

47 “On the fifth day you commanded the seventh part, where the water had been gathered together, to bring forth living creatures, birds, and fishes; and so it was done. 48 The dumb and lifeless water produced living creatures, as it was commanded, so that therefore the nations might declare your wondrous works.

4.16). 25: See my salvation, see 7.27; 9.8; 13.48,50; Ps 98.3; Isa 52.10; Lk 2.30. 26: Those who were taken up, such as Enoch (Gen 5.24; Sir 44.16) and Elijah (2 Kings 2.11–12); cf. 8.19; 14.9. 26–28: The transition from evil to truth.

6.30–34: The conclusion of the vision (compare 5.14–20). 34: The seer is cautioned against being presumptuous.

6.35–9.25: The third vision. 6.35–7.44: The first section of the third vision. 6.35–37: Introduction (cf. 3.1–3 and 5.21–22). 35: I ... fasted seven days, see 5.13n. The three weeks (cf. Dan 10.2–3), so far only two fasts of seven days have been mentioned (here and at 5.20). The author may be referring to this as Ezra’s third vision.

6.38–59: Addressing God, the seer recounts God’s work in six days of creation. If the world was created for Israel (v. 55), why has the nation not possessed its inheritance? This is similar in theme and content to the addresses in 3.4–36 and 5.23–30. 38–54: A summary of creation, roughly following Gen 1. 42: A seventh part ... six parts, although there is no exact parallel to this division in Genesis or other literature, explorers like Christopher 49 “Then you kept in existence two living creatures; the one you called Behemoth and the name of the other Leviathan. 50 And you separated one from the other, for the seventh part where the water had been gathered together could not hold them both. 51 And you gave Behemoth one of the parts that had been dried up on the third day, to live in it, where there are a thousand mountains; 52 but to Leviathan you gave the seventh part, the watery part; and you have kept them to be eaten by whom you wish, and when you wish.

53 “On the sixth day you commanded the earth to bring forth before you cattle, wild animals, and creeping things; and over these you placed Adam, as ruler over all the works that you had made; and from him we have all come, the people whom you have chosen. 54 All this I have spoken before you, O Lord, because you have said that it was for us that you created this world. 55 As for the other nations that have descended from Adam, you have said that they are nothing, and that they are like spittle, and you have compared their abundance to a drop from a bucket. 56 And now, O Lord, these nations, which are reputed to be as nothing, domineer over us and devour us. 57 But we your people, whom you have called your firstborn, only begotten, zealous for you, and most dear, have been given into their hands. 58 If the world has indeed been created for us, why do we not possess our world as an inheritance? How long will this be so?”

When I had finished speaking these words, the angel who had been sent to me on the former nights was sent to me again. 2 He said to me, “Rise, Ezra, and listen to the words that I have come to speak to you.” 3 I said, “Speak, my lord.” And he said to me, “There is a sea set in a wide expanse so that it is deep and vast, but it has an entrance set in a narrow place, so that it is like a river. 5 If there are those who wish to reach the sea, to look at it or to navigate it, how can they come to the broad part unless they pass through the narrow part? 6 Another example: There is a city built and set on a plain, and it is full of all good things; but the entrance to it is narrow and set in a precipitous place, so that there is fire on the right hand and deep water on the left. 8 There is only one path lying between them, that is, between the fire and the water, so that only one person can walk on the path. 9 If now the city is given to someone as an inheritance, how will the heir receive the inheritance unless by passing through the appointed danger?”

10 I said, “That is right, lord.” He said to me, “So also is Israel’s portion. 11 For I made the world for their sake, and when Adam transgressed my statutes, what had been made was judged. 12 And so the entrances of this world were made narrow and sorrowful and toilsome; they are few and evil, full of dangers and involved in great hardships. 13 But the entrances of the greater world are broad and safe, and yield the fruit of immortality. 14 Therefore unless the living pass through the difficult and futile experiences, they can never receive those things that have been reserved for them. 15 Now therefore why are you disturbed, seeing that you are to perish? Why are you moved, seeing that you are mortal? 16 Why have you not considered in your mind what is to come, rather than what is now present?”

Columbus took this verse as an indicator of the world’s layout. 49–52: The land creature Behemoth and the sea creature Leviathan are two primeval monsters frequently found in Israelite mythology (see Job 7:12; 26:12–13; Pss 74:12–15; 89:10–11; Isa 30:7; 51:9–10). Their eschatological function is to serve as food for the elect (2 Apoc. Bar. 29.4; 1 Enoch 60.7–10). 55: For us (Israel) that you created this world, a notion developed from such passages as Ex 4.22; Deut 10.15; 14.2. See 7.11. 56: A drop from a bucket, Isa 40.15 (note especially the Septuagint version).

71–25: Dispute between Ezra and the angel. It is necessary first to undergo the trials of this world before one can receive the rewards of the next. 1: The former nights, 4.1; 5.31. 3–9: The angel tells two parables, of a sea and a city, to illustrate his point. 3: Sea, the world to come. 4: Narrow place, see also Mt 7:13–14; Lk 13.24. 11: By implication, the world was created entirely good for Israel’s sake, and when Adam transgressed, that inheritance
17 Then I answered and said, “O sovereign Lord, you have ordained in your law that the righteous shall inherit these things, but that the ungodly shall perish. 18 The righteous, therefore, can endure difficult circumstances while hoping for easier ones; but those who have done wickedly have suffered the difficult circumstances and will never see the easier ones.” 19 He said to me, “You are not a better judge than the Lord, a or wiser than the Most High! 20 Let many perish who are now living, rather than that the law of God that is set before them be disregarded! 21 For the Lord b strictly commanded those who came into the world, when they came, what they should do to live, and what they should observe to avoid punishment. 22 Nevertheless they were not obedient, and spoke against him; they devised for themselves vain thoughts, and proposed to themselves wicked frauds; they even declared that the Most High does not exist, and they ignored his ways. 23 They scorned his law, and denied his covenants; they have been unfaithful to his statutes, and have not performed his works. 24 That is the reason, Ezra, that empty things are for the empty, and full things are for the full. 25 “For indeed the time will come, when the signs that I have foretold to you will come to pass, that the city that now is not seen shall be disclosed. 26 Everyone who has been delivered from the evils that I have foretold shall see my wonders. 27 For my son the Messiah c shall be revealed with those who are with him, and those who remain shall rejoice four hundred years. 28 After those years my son the Messiah shall die, and all who draw human breath. 29 Then the world shall be turned back to primeval silence for seven days, as it was at the first beginnings, so that no one shall be left. 30 After seven days the world that is not yet awake shall be roused, and that which is corruptible shall perish. 31 The earth shall give up those who are asleep in it, and the dust those who rest there in silence; and the chambers shall give up the souls that have been committed to them. 32 The Most High shall be revealed on the seat of judgment, and compassion shall pass away, and patience shall be withdrawn. 33 Only judgment shall remain, truth shall stand, and faithfulness shall grow strong. 34 Recompense shall follow, and the reward shall be manifested; righteous deeds shall awake, and unrighteous deeds shall not sleep. 35 The pit d of torment shall appear, a Other ancient authorities read God; Ethiop Georg the only One b Other ancient authorities read God c Arm: Lat Syr that the bride shall appear, even the city appearing d Syr Arab 1: Ethiop my Messiah; Arab 2 the Messiah; Arm the Messiah of God; Lat my son Jesus

e Arm all who have continued in faith and in patience
f Lat shall gather together
g The passage from verse 36 to verse 105, formerly missing, has been restored to the text
h Syr Ethiop: Lat place

was despoiled (see 3.7.21). 12–13: This world . . . evil is contrasted with the greater world to come. 17: Cf. Deut 8:1; Ps 37.9. 17–18: The seer exhibits a heartfelt, characteristic concern for the ungodly but is told that their punishment is deserved (vv. 19–25). 21: Commanded, Deut 30:15–19. 7.26–44: Direct prediction of the future by the angel, again using classical apocalyptic signs (cf. 5.1–13; 6.11–29). In this section the focus is on God’s judgment (cf. Mt 25:31–46). 26: The city, the heavenly Jerusalem; see 10.25–54. 28: My son the Messiah, a term used often in this book (see 13.32,37,52; 14.9). The precise connection between this term and Christian notions of Jesus “the Messiah” as “son of God” is uncertain, and in any event is indirect. Those who are with him, 13:52; 14.9. 29: My son the Messiah shall die, this idea is unparalleled in Jewish sources. 30: Primeval silence, as before creation. See 6.39. 32: Dan 12.2. Chambers, see 4.35n. Resurrection precedes the day of judgment. 33–34: On the day of judgment, only judgment shall remain; mercy is put aside (see 7.104–5). 36–105: These verses are lacking from the standard editions of the Latin Vulgate, and from the King James Version. They are present in the Syriac, Ethiopic, Arabic, and Armenian versions, and in seven Latin manuscripts. The section was probably deliberately cut out of an ancestor of most surviving Latin manuscripts for dogmatic reasons, because the passage contains an emphatic denial of the value of prayers for the dead (v. 105). 36–38: There exist only two possible destinations for those who are judged: a place of reward and a place and opposite it shall be the place of rest; and the furnace of hell shall be disclosed, and opposite it the paradise of delight. 37 Then the Most High will say to the nations that have been raised from the dead, 'Look now, and understand whom you have denied, whom you have not served, whose commandments you have despised. 38 Look on this side and on that; here are delight and rest, and there are fire and torments.' Thus he will speak to them on the day of judgment—39 a day that has no sun or moon or stars, or cloud or thunder or lightning, or wind or water or air, or darkness or evening or morning, or summer or spring or heat or winter or frost or cold, or hail or rain or dew, or noon or night, or dawn or shining or brightness or light, but only the splendor of the glory of the Most High, by which all shall see what has been destined. 40 It will last as though for a week of years. 41 This is my judgment and its prescribed order; and to you alone I have shown these things.

42 I answered and said, "O sovereign Lord, I said then and I say now: Blessed are those who are alive and keep your commandments! 43 But what of those for whom I prayed? For whom among the living is there that has not sinned, or who is there among mortals that has not transgressed your covenant? 44 And now I see that the world to come will bring delight to few, but torments to many. 45 For an evil heart has grown up in us, which has alienated us from God, and has brought us into corruption and the ways of death, and has shown us the paths of perdition and removed us far from life—and that not merely for a few but for almost all who have been created."

46 He answered me and said, “Listen to me, Ezra, and I will instruct you, and will admonish you once more. 47 For this reason the Most High has made not one world but two. 48 Inasmuch as you have said that the righteous are not many but few, while the ungodly abound, hear the explanation for this.

52 “If you have just a few precious stones, will you add to them lead and clay?” 53 I said, “Lord, how could that be?” 54 And he said to me, “Not only that, but ask the earth and she will tell you; refer to her, and she will declare it to you. 55 Say to her, ‘You produce gold and silver and bronze, and also iron and lead and clay; 56 but silver is more abundant than gold, and bronze than silver, and iron than bronze, and lead than iron, and clay than lead.’ 57 Judge therefore which things are precious and desirable, those that are abundant or those that are rare?” 58 I said, “O sovereign Lord, what is plentiful is of less worth, for what is more rare is more precious.” 59 He answered me and said, “Consider within yourself what you have thought, for the person who has what is hard to get rejoices more than the person who has what is plentiful. 60 So also will be the judgment that I have promised; for I will rejoice over the few who shall be saved, because it is they who have made my glory to prevail now, and through them my name has now been honored. 61 I will not grieve over the great number of those who perish; for it is they who are now like a mist, and are similar to a flame and..."
smoke—they are set on fire and burn hotly, and are extinguished.”

62 I replied and said, “O earth, what have you brought forth, if the mind is made out of the dust like the other created things?

63 For it would have been better if the dust itself had not been born, so that the mind might not have been made from it. 64 But now the mind grows with us, and therefore we are tormented, because we perish and we know it. 65 Let the human race lament, but let the wild animals of the field be glad; let all who have been born lament, but let the cattle and the flocks rejoice. 66 It is much better with them than with us; for they do not look for a judgment, and they do not know of any torment or salvation promised to them after death. 67 What does it profit us that we shall be preserved alive but cruelly tormented? 68 For all who have been born are entangled in iniquities, and are full of sins and burdened with transgressions. 69 And if after death we were not to come into judgment, perhaps it would have been better for us.”

70 He answered me and said, “When the Most High made the world and Adam and all who have come from him, he first prepared the judgment and the things that pertain to the judgment. 71 But now, understand from your own words—for you have said that the mind grows with us. 72 For this reason, therefore, those who live on earth shall be tormented, because though they had understanding, they committed iniquity; and though they received the commandments, they did not keep them; and though they obtained the law, they dealt unfaithfully with what they received. 73 What, then, will they have to say in the judgment, or how will they answer in the last times? 74 How long the Most High has been patient with those who inhabit the world!—and not for their sake, but because of the times that he has foreordained.”

75 I answered and said, “If I have found favor in your sight, O Lord, show this also to your servant: whether after death, as soon as everyone of us yields up the soul, we shall be kept in rest until those times come when you will renew the creation, or whether we shall be tormented at once?”

76 He answered me and said, “I will show you that also, but do not include yourself with those who have shown scorn and number yourself among those who are tormented.

77 For you have a treasure of works stored up with the Most High, but it will not be shown to you until the last times. 78 Now concerning death, the teaching is: When the decisive decree has gone out from the Most High that a person shall die, as the spirit leaves the body to return again to him who gave it, first of all it adores the glory of the Most High. 79 If it is one of those who have shown scorn and have not kept the way of the Most High, who have despised his law and hated those who fear God— 80 such spirits shall not enter into habitations, but shall immediately wander about in torments, always grieving and sad, in seven ways. 81 The first way, because they have scorned the law of the Most High. 82 The second way, because they cannot now make a good repentance so that they may live. 83 The third way, they shall see the reward laid up for those who have trusted the covenants of the Most High. 84 The fourth way, they shall consider the torment laid up for themselves in the last days. 85 The fifth way, they shall see how the habitations of the others are guarded by angels in profound quiet. 86 The sixth way, they shall see how some of them will cross similar arguments in 8.1–3. 62–69: Ezra’s heated lament (better if . . . had not been born) is typical of his reactions to the angel’s arguments (see 4.12; 5.35). 64–68: The human race, aware of their sins and their fate, are worse off than the blissfully ignorant wild animals. Knowledge has adverse effects; cf. Gen 3.7. 72: Humans who are sinful deserve their fate.

\footnote{Syr defiled with}

7.75–101: Dialogic prediction of the future. The state of souls after death and before the judgment. 76–77: Do not include yourself, the angel repeatedly asserts that Ezra is specially favored by God (see 6.32–33; 7.44; 8.19,47–54; 13.53–56; 14.9). 77: A treasure of works, 8.33,36. Cf. Mt 6.20; Mk 10.21; Lk 12.33. 79–99: The fates of two different types of souls, good and evil, are laid out in parallel fashion. 80–87: Seven kinds of torment for the wicked; cf. Lk 16.19–31. 80: Habitations, elsewhere called “chambers,” see 4.35n. 85: Guarded by angels, see v.
over\(^a\) into torments. \(^87\) The seventh way, which is worse\(^b\) than all the ways that have been mentioned, because they shall utterly waste away in confusion and be consumed with shame,\(^c\) and shall wither with fear at seeing the glory of the Most High in whose presence they sinned while they were alive, and in whose presence they are to be judged in the last times.

\(^{88}\) “Now this is the order of those who have kept the ways of the Most High, when they shall be separated from their mortal body.\(^d\) \(^9^0\) During the time that they lived in it,\(^e\) they laboriously served the Most High, and withstood danger every hour so that they might keep the law of the Lawgiver perfectly. \(^9^1\) Therefore this is the teaching concerning them: \(^9^2\) First of all, they shall see with great joy the glory of him who receives them, for they shall have rest in seven orders. \(^9^3\) The first order, because they have striven with great effort to overcome the evil thought that was formed with them, so that it might not lead them astray from life into death. \(^9^4\) The second order, because they see the perplexity in which the souls of the ungodly wander and the punishment that awaits them. \(^9^5\) The third order, they see the witness that he who formed them bears concerning them, that throughout their life they kept the law with which they were entrusted. \(^9^6\) The fourth order, they understand the rest that they now enjoy, being gathered into their chambers and guarded by angels in profound quiet, and the glory waiting for them in the last days. \(^9^7\) The fifth order, they rejoice that they have now escaped what is corruptible and shall inherit what is to come; and besides they see the straits and toil\(^e\) from which they have been delivered, and the spacious liberty that they are to receive and enjoy in immortality. \(^9^8\) The sixth order, when it is shown them how their face is to shine like the sun, and how they are to be made like the light of the stars, being incorruptible from then on. \(^9^9\) The seventh order, which is greater than all that have been mentioned, because they shall rejoice with boldness, and shall be confident without confusion, and shall be glad without fear, for they press forward to see the face of him whom they served in life and from whom they are to receive their reward when glorified. \(^f\) This is the order of the souls of the righteous, as henceforth is announced, and the previously mentioned are the ways of torment that those who would not give heed shall suffer hereafter.”

\(^{10^0}\) Then I answered and said, “Will time therefore be given to the souls, after they have been separated from the bodies, to see what you have described to me?” \(^10^1\) He said to me, “They shall have freedom for seven days, so that during these seven days they may see the things of which you have been told, and afterwards they shall be gathered in their habitations.”

\(^{10^2}\) I answered and said, “If I have found favor in your sight, show further to me, your servant, whether on the day of judgment the righteous will be able to intercede for the ungodly or to entreat the Most High for them—\(^10^3\) fathers for sons or sons for parents, brothers for brothers, relatives for their kindred, or friends for those who are most dear.”

\(^{10^4}\) He answered me and said, “Since you have found favor in my sight, I will show you this also. The day of judgment is decisive and displays to all the seal of truth. Just as now a father does not send his son, or a son his father, or a master his servant, or a friend his dearest friend, to be ill\(^g\) or sleep or eat or

---

\(^{85}\); \(^{87}\) Glory, see 6.14–16; 7.42n. \(^{88}–99\): Seven kinds of joyous rest for the righteous. Compare the teaching regarding death in Dan 12.2–3; Wis 3–5. \(^{92}\): The evil thought, the evil “yetser” (see 3.20n.). \(^{95}\): Chambers, see 4.35n. \(^{97}\): Sun . . . stars, v. 125; Dan 12.3; Mt 13.43; 2 Bar. 51. \(^{98}\): To see the face of God (Ex 33.20; 1 Jn 3.2; Rev 22.4). \(^{99}\)–101: The souls of the righteous are gathered in their habitations (see 4.35n.), while the souls of the unjust wander aimlessly.

7.102–115: Dispute between Ezra and the angel, mainly concerning the idea that there will be no interces-be healed in his place, so no one shall ever pray for another on that day, neither shall anyone lay a burden on another, for then all shall bear their own righteousness and unrighteousness.”

36 106 I answered and said, “How then do we find that first Abraham prayed for the people of Sodom, and Moses for our ancestors who sinned in the desert, and Joshua after him for Israel in the days of Achan, and Samuel in the days of Saul, and David for the plague, and Solomon for those at the dedication, and Elijah for those who received the rain, and for the one who was dead, that he might live, and Hezekiah for the people in the days of Sennacherib, and many others prayed for many?”

37 111 So if now, when corruption has increased and unrighteousness has multiplied, the righteous have prayed for the ungodly, why will it not be so then as well?”

42 112 He answered me and said, “This present world is not the end; the full glory does not remain in it; therefore those who were strong prayed for the weak. But the day of judgment will be the end of this age and the beginning of the immortal age to come, in which corruption has passed away, and indulgence has come to an end, unbelief has been cut off, and righteousness has increased and truth has appeared. Therefore no one will then be able to have mercy on someone who has been condemned in the judgment, or to harm someone who is victorious.”

46 116 I answered and said, “This is my first and last comment: it would have been better if the earth had not produced Adam, or else, when it had produced him, had restrained him from sinning. For what good is it to all that they live in sorrow now and expect punishment after death? O Adam, what have you done? For though it was you who sinned, the fall was not yours alone, but ours also who are your descendants. For what good is it to us, if an immortal time has been promised to us, but we have done deeds that bring death? And what good is it that an everlasting hope has been promised to us, but we have miserably failed? Or that safe and healthful habitations have been reserved for us, but we have lived wickedly? Or that the glory of the Most High will defend those who have led a pure life, but we have walked in the most wicked ways? Or that a paradise shall be revealed, whose fruit remains unspoiled and in which are abundance and healing, but we shall not enter it because we have lived in perverseness? Or that the faces of those who practiced self-control shall shine more than the stars, but our faces shall be blacker than darkness? For while we lived and committed iniquity we did not consider what we should suffer after death.”

57 127 He answered and said, “This is the significance of the contest that all who are born on earth shall wage: if they are defeated they shall suffer what you have said, but if they are victorious they shall receive what I have said. For this is the way of which Moses, while he was alive, spoke to the people;
ple, saying, ‘Choose life for yourself, so that you may live!’ But they did not believe him or the prophets after him, or even myself who have spoken to them. Therefore there shall not be a grief at their destruction, so much as joy over those to whom salvation is assured.”

I answered and said, “I know, O Lord, that the Most High is now called merciful, because he has mercy on those who have not yet come into the world; and gracious, because he is gracious to those who turn in repentance to his law; and patient, because he shows patience toward those who have sinned, since they are his own creatures; and bountiful, because he would rather give than take away, and abundant in compassion, because he makes his compassions abound more and more to those now living and to those who are gone to and to those yet to come— for if he did not make them abound, the world with those who inhabit it would not have life— and he is called the giver, because if he did not give out of his goodness so that those who have committed iniquities might be relieved of them, not one ten-thousandth of humankind could have life; and the judge, because if he did not pardon those who were created by his word and blot out the multitude of their sins, there would probably be left only very few of the innumerable multitude.”

He answered me and said, “The Most High made this world for the sake of many, but the world to come for the sake of only a few. But I tell you a parable, Ezra. Just as, when you ask the earth, it will tell you that it provides a large amount of clay from which earthenware is made, but only a little dust from which gold comes, so is the course of the present world. Many have been created, but only a few shall be saved.”

I answered and said, “Then drink your fill of understanding, O my soul, and drink wisdom, O my heart. For not of your own will did you come into the world, and against your will you depart, for you have been given only a short time to live. O Lord above us, grant to your servant that we may pray before you, and give us a seed for our heart and cultivation of our understanding so that fruit may be produced, by which every mortal who bears the likeness of a human being may be able to live. For you alone exist, and we are a work of your hands, as you have declared. And because you give life to the body that is now fashioned in the womb, and furnish it with members, what you have created is preserved amid fire and water, and for nine months the womb endures your creature that has been created in it. But that which keeps and that which is kept shall both be kept by your keeping. And when the womb gives up again what has been created in it, you have commanded that from the members themselves (that is, from the breasts) milk, the fruit of the breasts, should be supplied, so that what has been fashioned may be nourished for a time; and afterwards you will still guide it in your mercy. You have nurtured it in your righteousness, and instructed it in your law, and reproved it in your wisdom. You put it to death as your creation, and make it live as your work. If then you will suddenly and quickly destroy what with so great labor was fashioned by your command, to what purpose was it made? And now I will speak (Deut 30.19), the seer responds with a rabbinitic-like exegesis, or “midrash,” of Ex 34.6–7. He pleads that God is now called merciful . . . and gracious . . . and patient. Life, eternal life. The angel repeats the arguments and parable used in 7.52–61. 3: Cf. Mt 22.14.

8.4–9.25: The third section of the third vision. 8.4–19a: Monologue of Ezra: Why should God wonderfully fashion and sustain all humankind, only to destroy a great majority? Ezra seeks a seed . . . so that fruit may be produced that will counteract the effect of the evil seed . . . sown in Adam’s heart (4.30). You alone exist, a confession of God’s sovereignty, see Deut 4.35; 6.4; Isa 44.6; 45.11; 60.21. 8–14: The enigma of God’s creative activity

1696 | APOCRYPHA
out: About all humankind you know best; but I will speak about all your people, for whom I am grieved, 16 and about your inheritance, for whom I lament, and about Israel, for whom I am sad, and about the seed of Jacob, for whom I am troubled. 17 Therefore I will pray before you for myself and for them, for I see the failings of us who inhabit the earth; 18 and now also 9 I have heard of the swiftness of the judgment that is to come. 19 Therefore hear my voice and understand my words, and I will speak before you.”

The beginning of the words of Ezra’s prayer, 9 before he was taken up. He said: 20 “O Lord, you who inhabit eternity, c whose eyes are exalted d and whose upper chambers are in the air, 21 whose throne is beyond measure and whose glory is beyond comprehension, before whom the hosts of angels stand trembling 22 and at whose command they are changed to wind and fire, e whose word is sure and whose utterances are certain, whose command is strong and whose ordinance is terrible, 23 whose look dries up the depths and whose indignation makes the mountains melt away, and whose truth is established and whose utterances are certain, whose eyes are exalted ever—24 hear, O Lord, the prayer of your ser-ant, and give ear to the petition of your creature; attend to my words. 25 For as long as I live
I will speak, and as long as I have understanding I will answer. 26 O do not look on the sins of your people, but on those who serve you in truth. 27 Do not take note of the endeavors of those who act wickedly, but of the endeavors of those who have kept your covenants amid afflictions. 28 Do not think of those who have lived wickedly in your sight, but remember those who have willingly acknowledged that you are to be feared. 29 Do not will the destruction of those who have the ways of cattle, but regard those who have gloriously taught your law. 30 Do not be angry with those who are deemed worse than wild animals, but love those who have always put their trust in your glory. 31 For we and our ancestors have passed our lives in ways that bring death; 32 but it is because of us sinners that you are called merciful. 33 For if you have desired to have pity on us, who have no works of righteousness, then you will be called merciful. 34 For the righteous, who have many works laid up with you, shall receive their reward in consequence of their own deeds. 35 But what are mortals, that you are angry with them; or what is a corruptible race, that you are so bitter against it? 36 For in truth there is no one among those who have been born who has not acted wickedly; among those who have existed there is no one who has not done wrong. 36 For in this, O Lord, your righteousness and goodness will and providential care followed by destruction recalls Job 10.8–13. 15–16: The seer leaves the fate of humankind in God’s hands, and speaks particularly about Israel, God’s inheritance (Ps 28.9). 17: I will pray, in 8.19b–36.

8.19b–36: Ezra’s prayer, a beautiful and liturgically structured piece (invocation to God, whose attributes are recalled, vv. 20–22; petitions, interspersed with confession and intercessions, vv. 24–35; concluding ascription of praise, v. 36). This prayer also occurs separately, with the title “Confessio Esdrae,” in the section of canticles and hymns contained in many manuscripts of the Latin Vulgate Bible. This circumstance probably accounts for the presence (in v. 19b) of a superscription in the third person. 19b: The words before he was taken up point to the belief that Ezra, like Enoch and Elijah, was taken up to heaven without dying (see 6.26n.). 20:
Upper chambers, see Ps 104.3; Amos 9.6. 21: Hosts of angels are a traditional element in the description of the heavenly throne room; see 1 Kings 22.19; Isa 6.2–3; Dan 7.9–10; Rev 5.11–12; 7.11–12. 22: Wind and fire, Ps 104.4; Heb 1.7. 23: Dries up, Isa 50.2; 51.10. Mountains melt, Mic 1.4; Sir 16.18–19. 26–36: A strikingly developed series of rhetorical contrasts between sinners and the righteous introduces an appeal to the mercy of God, the quality highlighted in the influential liturgical formula found in Ex 34.6–7. See also 7.132–140n. 33–36: Ezra is concerned not for those who have many works laid up with God (see 7.77), but for those who have no store of good works (v. 36). 34: Cf. Ps 8.4.
be declared, when you are merciful to those who have no store of good works."

37 He answered me and said, “Some things you have spoken rightly, and it will turn out according to your words. 38 For indeed I will not concern myself about the fashioning of those who have sinned, or about their death, their judgment, or their destruction; 39 but I will rejoice over the creation of the righteous, over their pilgrimage also, and their salvation, and their receiving their reward. 40 As I have spoken, therefore, so it shall be.

41 “For just as the farmer sows many seeds in the ground and plants a multitude of seedlings, and yet not all that have been sown will come up in due season, and not all that were planted will take root; so also those who have been sown in the world will not all be saved.”

42 I answered and said, “If I have found favor in your sight, let me speak. 43 If the farmer’s seed does not come up, because it has not received your rain in due season, or if it has been ruined by too much rain, it perishes. 44 But people, who have been formed by your hands and are called your own image because they are made like you, and for whose sake you have formed all things—have you also made them like the farmer’s seed? 45 Surely not, O Lord above! But spare your people and have mercy on your inheritance, for you have mercy on your own creation.”

46 He answered me and said, “Things that are present are for those who live now, and things that are future are for those who will live hereafter. 47 For you come far short of being able to love my creation more than I love it. But you have often compared yourself to the unrighteous. Never do so! 48 But even in this respect you will be praiseworthy before the Most High, because you have humbled yourself, as it is becoming for you, and have not considered yourself to be among the righteous. You will receive the greatest glory, for many miseries will affect those who inhabit the world in the last times, because they have walked in great pride. 49 But think of your own case, and inquire concerning the glory of those who are like yourself, because it is for you that paradise is opened, the tree of life is planted, the age to come is prepared, plenty is provided, a city is built, rest is appointed, goodness is established and wisdom perfected beforehand. 50 The root of evil is sealed up from you, illness is banished from you, and death is hidden; Hades has fled and corruption has been forgotten; 51 sorrows have passed away, and in the end the treasure of immortality is made manifest. 52 Therefore do not ask any more questions about the great number of those who perish. 53 For when they had opportunity to choose, they despised the Most High, and were contemptuous of his law, and abandoned his ways. 54 Moreover, they have even trampled on his righteous ones, and said in their hearts that there is no God—though they knew well that they must die. 55 For just as the things that I have predicted await you, so the thirst and torment that are prepared await them. For the Most High did not intend that anyone should be destroyed; 56 but those who were created have themselves defiled the name of him who made them, and have been ungrateful to him

8.37–62a: Dispute between Ezra and the angel. 37–40: God’s reply to Ezra’s prayer is characteristic (see 7.60–61; 7.127–131). As after 7.132–140, Ezra’s plea for mercy goes unacknowledged. In stating that God will not concern himself with sinners but will rejoice over . . . the righteous, the angel playfully admits that Ezra has ironically spoken rightly about some things, namely, in Ezra’s plea (vv. 26–36) that God ignore the wicked and pay attention only to the righteous. 41–45: To God’s analogy of seeds (cf. Mt 13.3–9), Ezra protests that surely humans are more valuable than plants. 46–62a: The final divine reply: The seer is assured that his lot is with the blessed and is advised to think no more about sinners, who deserve their doom because they have despised the Most High (v. 56). 46: 7.14–18, 25. 47: See 5.33; 7.76–77n. 48–54: The angel praises Ezra’s character and offers a list of delights awaiting those who are like him (see 14.9). 52: Paradise, 7.123; tree of life, Gen 2.9; Rev 2.7; 22.2. City, the who prepared life for them now. 61 Therefore my judgment is now drawing near; 62 I have not shown this to all people, but only to you and a few like you.”

Then I answered and said, 63 “O Lord, you have already shown me a great number of the signs that you will do in the last times, but you have not shown me when you will do them.”

He answered me and said, “Measure carefully in your mind, and when you see that some of the predicted signs have occurred, 2 then you will know that it is the very time when the Most High is about to visit the world that he has made. 3 So when there shall appear in the world earthquakes, tumult of peoples, intrigues of nations, wavering of leaders, confusion of princes, 4 then you will know that it was of these that the Most High spoke from the days that were of old, from the beginning. 5 For just as with everything that has occurred in the world, the beginning is evident, 6 and the end manifest; 6 so also are the times of the Most High: the beginnings are manifest in wonders and mighty works, and the end in penalties b and in signs.

7 “It shall be that all who will be saved and will be able to escape on account of their works, or on account of the faith by which they have believed, 8 will survive the dangers that have been predicted, and will see my salvation in my land and within my borders, which I have sanctified for myself from the beginning. 9 Then those who have now abused my ways shall be amazed, and those who have rejected them with contempt shall live in torments. 10 For as many as did not acknowledge me in their lifetime, though they received my benefits, 11 and as many as scorned my law while they still had freedom, and did not understand but despised it 12 while an opportunity of repentance was still open to them, 13 these must in torment acknowledge it 14 after death. 15 Therefore, do not continue to be curious about how the ungodly will be punished; but inquire how the righteous will be saved, those to whom the age belongs and for whose sake the age was made.”

9 I answered and said, 15 “I said before, and I say now, and will say it again: there are more who perish than those who will be saved, 16 as a wave is greater than a drop of water.”

He answered me and said, “As is the field, so is the seed; and as are the flowers, so are the colors; and as is the work, so is the product; and as is the farmer, so is the threshing floor. 18 For there was a time in this age when I was preparing for those who now exist, before the world was made for them to live in, and no one opposed me then, for no one existed; 19 but now those who have been created in this world, which is supplied both with an unfailing table and an inexhaustible pasture, 8 have become corrupt in their ways. 20 So I considered my world, and saw that it was lost. I saw that my earth was in peril because of the devices of those who had come into it. 21 And I saw and spared some with great difficulty, and saved for myself one grape out of a cluster, and one plant out of a great forest. 22 So let the multitude perish that has been born in vain, but let my grape heavenly Jerusalem; see 7.26; 10.27,44,54. 53: Hades, the realm of the dead. 58: Cf. Pss 14.1; 53.1. 59: Torment, 7.80–87. 61: Drawing near, see 4.50; 5.55. 62: Only to you, see 7.44. A few like you, see 8.51; 14.9,46.

8.62b–9.22: Direct prediction of the future by the angel, now in response to Ezra’s request, and again using the key word signs (v. 63) (cf. 5.1–13; 6.11–29; 7.26–44). 8.63: When, see 4.33; Mk 13.4. 9.1–4: The author uses classical apocalyptic signs (see Mk 13.7–8,29). 7: Able to escape, cf. 13.23; Mk 13.14–16. The author counts both works and faith as valid criteria for salvation. 8: See my salvation, cf. Mk 13.13. Within my borders, 12.34; 13.48. 9: Torments, 7.79–87. 11: Scorned . . . despised, 7.22–24,37,72,79–81; 8.56–60. 13: 8.38–39,55. For whose sake, 6.59; 7.11. 14–22: The final explanation of why so few are saved: The many have become corrupt in their ways. Cf. Gen 6.5, where the corruption of humankind provokes the flood, which kills all but Noah and his family. 22: Let the multitude perish, God disclaims responsibility for the fates of the mass of humanity.

APOCRYPHA | 1699
and my plant be saved, because with much labor I have perfected them.

23 “Now, if you will let seven days more pass—do not, however, fast during them, \( ^{24} \) but go into a field of flowers where no house has been built, and eat only of the flowers of the field, and taste no meat and drink no wine, but eat only flowers—\( ^{25} \) and pray to the Most High continually, then I will come and talk with you.”

26 So I went, as he directed me, into the field that is called Ardat;\(^4\) there I sat among the flowers and ate of the plants of the field, and the nourishment they afforded satisfied me. \( ^{27} \) After seven days, while I lay on the grass, my heart was troubled again as it was before. \( ^{28} \) Then my mouth was opened, and I began to speak before the Most High, and said, \( ^{29} \) “O Lord, you showed yourself among us, to our ancestors in the wilderness when they came out from Egypt and when they came into the untrodden and unfruitful wilderness; \( ^{30} \) and you said, ‘Hear me, O Israel, and give heed to my words, O descendants of Jacob. \( ^{31} \) For I sow my law in you, and it shall bring forth fruit in you, and you shall be glorified through it forever.’ \( ^{32} \) But though our ancestors received the law, they did not keep it and did not observe the\(^b\) statutes; yet the fruit of the law did not perish—for it could not, because it was yours. \( ^{33} \) Yet those who received it perished, because they did not keep what had been sown in them. \( ^{34} \) Now this is the general rule that, when the ground has received seed, or the sea a ship, or any dish food or drink, and when it comes about that what was sown or what was launched or what was put in is destroyed, \( ^{35} \) they are destroyed, but the things that held them remain; yet with us it has not been so. \( ^{36} \) For we who have received the law and sinned will perish, as well as our hearts that received it; \( ^{37} \) the law, however, does not perish but survives in its glory.”

38 When I said these things in my heart, I looked around,\(^c\) and on my right I saw a woman; she was mourning and weeping with a loud voice, and was deeply grieved at heart; her clothes were torn, and there were ashes on her head. \( ^{39} \) Then I dismissed the thoughts with which I had been engaged, and turned to her \( ^{40} \) and said to her, “Why are you weeping, and why are you grieved at heart?”

41 She said to me, “Let me alone, my lord, so that I may weep for myself and continue to mourn, for I am greatly embittered in spirit and deeply distressed.”

42 I said to her, “What has happened to you? Tell me.”

43 And she said to me, “Your servant was barren and had no child, though I lived with my husband for thirty years. \( ^{44} \) Every hour and every day during those thirty years I prayed to the Most High, night and day. \( ^{45} \) And after thirty years God heard your servant, and looked upon my low estate, and considered my distress, and gave me a son. I rejoiced greatly over him, and my husband

---

\( ^{a} \) Syr Ethiop Arpad; Arm Ardab

\( ^{b} \) Lat my

\( ^{c} \) Syr Arab Arm: Lat I looked about me with my eyes and all my neighbors; and we gave great glory to the Mighty One. But when he grew up and I came to take a wife for him, I set a day for the marriage feast.

But it happened that when my son entered his wedding chamber, he fell down and died. So all of us put out our lamps, and all my neighbors attempted to console me; I remained quiet until the evening of the second day. But when all of them had stopped consoling me, encouraging me to be quiet, I got up in the night and fled, and I came to this field, as you see. And now I intend not to return to the town, but to stay here; I will neither eat nor drink, but will mourn and fast continually until I die.

When I was still engaged, and answered her in anger and said, “You most foolish of women, do you not see our mourning, and what has happened to us?” For Zion, the mother of all, is in deep grief and great distress. It is most appropriate to mourn now, because we are all mourning, and to be sorrowful, because we are all sorrowing; you are sorrowing for one son, but we, the whole world, for our mother.

Now ask the earth, who has borne me in sorrow; the lampstand has been put out, the ark of our covenant has been plundered, our holy things are enumerated in 1 Macc 4.49–51.

But when all of us put out our lamps, and all my neighbors attempted to console me; I remained quiet until the evening of the second day. But when all of them had stopped consoling me, encouraging me to be quiet, I got up in the night and fled, and I came to this field, as you see. And now I intend not to return to the town, but to stay here; I will neither eat nor drink, but will mourn and fast continually until I die.”

Then I broke off the reflections with which I was still engaged, and answered her in anger and said, “You most foolish of women, do you not see our mourning, and what has happened to us?” For Zion, the mother of all, is in deep grief and great distress. It is most appropriate to mourn now, because we are all mourning, and to be sorrowful, because we are all sorrowing; you are sorrowing for one son, but we, the whole world, for our mother.

Now ask the earth, and she will tell you that it is she who ought to mourn over so many who have come into being upon her. From the beginning all have been born of her, and others will come; and, lo, almost all go to perdition, and a multitude of them will come to doom. Who then ought to mourn the more, she who lost so great a multitude, or you who are grievchildren⁴ have suffered abuse, our priests have been burned to death, our Levites have gone into exile, our virgins have been defiled, and our wives have been ravished; our righteous men⁹ have been carried off, our little ones have been cast out, our young men have been enslaved and our strong men made powerless. 23 And, worst of all, the seal of Zion has been deprived of its glory, and given over into the hands of those that hate us. 24 Therefore shake off your great sadness and lay aside your many sorrows, so that the Mighty One may be merciful to you again, and the Most High may give you rest, a respite from your troubles.”

25 While I was talking to her, her face suddenly began to shine exceedingly; her countenance flashed like lightning, so that I was too frightened to approach her, and my heart was terrified. While⁶ I was wondering what this meant, 26 she suddenly uttered a loud and fearful cry, so that the earth shook at the sound. 27 When I looked up, the woman was no longer visible to me, but a city was being built,⁸ and a place of huge foundations showed itself. I was afraid, and cried with a loud voice and said, 28 “Where is the angel Uriel, who came to me at first? For it was he who brought me into this overpowering bewilderment; my end has become corruption, and my prayer a reproach.”

29 While I was speaking these words, the angel who had come to me at first came to me, and when he saw me lying there like a corpse, deprived of my understanding, he grasped my right hand and strengthened me and set me on my feet, and said to me, 30 “What is the matter with you? And why are you troubled? And why are your understanding and the thoughts of your mind troubled?”

32 I said, “It was because you abandoned me. I did as you directed, and went out into the field, and lo, what I have seen and can still see, I am unable to explain.”

33 He said to me, “Stand up like a man, and I will instruct you.”

34 I said, “Speak, my lord; only do not forsake me, so that I may not die before my time." 35 For I have seen what I did not know, and I hear what I do not understand—or is my mind deceived, and my soul dreaming? 37 Now therefore I beg you to give your servant an explanation of this bewildering vision.”

38 He answered me and said, “Listen to me, and I will teach you, and tell you about the things that you fear; for the Most High has revealed many secrets to you. 39 He has seen your righteous conduct, and that you have sorrowed continually for your people and mourned greatly over Zion. 40 This therefore is the meaning of the vision. 41 The woman who appeared to you a little while ago, whom you saw mourning and whom you began to console (you do not now see the form of a woman, but there appeared to you a city being built)⁹ and who 23: The seal . . . has been deprived of its glory, i.e., the city is under enemy control. 24: In Ezra’s final words to the woman, he has fully become a consoler to her, just as the angel earlier had been to him.

---

10.25–27a: A vision of the transformed Jerusalem. 25: Suddenly began to shine, the figure of the woman had only been a foil for the inner transformation of Ezra, who is now worthy to receive the vision. 27: A city was being built, Zech 2.1–5; Rev 21.9–21. Jerusalem, whose destruction was movingly described in vv. 21–23, is being transformed or rebuilt in a way open only to visionary experience.

10.27b–37: The appearance of the angel. 28: At first, 4.1. Although the angel (Uriel; 4.1) has had no part in this vision, it is he upon whom Ezra immediately calls for guidance. 30: Like a corpse, cf. Dan 8.18; 10.9; Rev 1.17. 32: And can still see, the vision is still before the seer’s eyes. The seer is unable to explain the vision, much as he had earlier been unable to come to terms with the angel’s more rational explanations. 33: Cf. Job 38.3; 40.7; see 5.15; 6.13,17,7.2. 34–37: Cf. 12.3b–9; 13.13b–15. 34: Do not forsake me, Ezra’s plea is ironic. See 5.18 and 12.41, where Ezra’s compatriots beg him not to “forsake” them.

10.38–54: Interpretation of the vision. 38–39: See 7.76–77n. 44: Zion, the transformed Jerusalem. 45: Three told you about the misfortune of her son—this is the interpretation: 44 The woman whom you saw is Zion, which you now behold as a city being built. 45 And as for her telling you that she was barren for thirty years, the reason is that there were three thousand years in the world before any offering was offered in it. 46 And after three thousand years Solomon built the city, and offered offerings; then it was that the barren woman bore a son. 47 And as for her telling you, 'My son died as he entered his wedding chamber,' and that misfortune had overtaken her, 48 this was the destruction that befell Jerusalem. 49 So you saw her likeness, how she mourned for her son, and you began to console her for what had happened. 50 For now the Most High, seeing that you are sincerely grieved and profoundly distressed for her, has shown you the brilliance of her glory, and the loveliness of her beauty. 51 Therefore I told you to remain in the field where no house had been built, 52 for I knew that the Most High would reveal these things to you. 53 Therefore I told you to go into the field where there was no foundation of any building, 54 because no work of human construction could endure in a place where the city of the Most High was to be revealed.

55 Therefore do not be afraid, and do not let your heart be terrified; but go in and see the splendor of the vastness of the building, as far as it is possible for your eyes to see it; 56 and afterward you will hear as much as your ears can hear. 57 For you are more blessed than many, and you have been called to be with the Most High as few have been.

But tomorrow night you shall remain here, 58 and the Most High will show you in those dream visions what the Most High will do to those who inhabit the earth in the last days.”

So I slept that night and the following one, as he had told me.

11 On the second night I had a dream: I saw rising from the sea an eagle that had twelve feathered wings and three heads. 2 I saw it spread its wings over the whole earth, and all the winds of heaven blew upon it, and the clouds were gathered around it. 3 I saw that out of its wings there grew opposing wings; but they became little, puny wings. 4 But its heads were at rest; the middle head was larger than the other heads, but it too was at rest with them. 5 Then I saw that the eagle flew with its wings, and it reigned over the earth and over those who inhabit it. 6 And I saw how all things under heaven were subjected to it, and no one spoke against it—not a single creature that was on the earth. 7 Then I saw the eagle rise upon its talons, and it uttered a cry to its wings, saying, 8 “Do not all watch at the same time; let each sleep in its thousand years, the time between the creation of the world and construction of the Temple. 46: A son, the historical Jerusalem. Solomon, although David established Jerusalem as an Israelite city, Solomon built the Temple (1 Kings 5–6). 48: The destruction, see 10.21–23 and note. In its context, this passage refers to the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BCE. 49: Zion, in the universal sense, mourned for the destruction of her physical manifestation, the earthly city. 49–50: Ezra’s vision is a direct reward for his sincere consolation of the mourning woman (see 10.41).

10.55–59: Conclusion and injunctions. 55–56: Go in and see, the city is conceived as still present to Ezra (see vv. 32, 42, 44). 59: The remainder of the book will consist of dream visions rather than argumentation.

11.1–12.51: The fifth vision (the eagle vision). 11.1–12.3a: Description of the vision. 11.1: The interpretation of the fifth vision that is set forth in the notes to 11.1–12.3a anticipates that given in the text of 2 Esdras itself in 12.10–36. From the sea, Dan 7.3; Rev 13.1. An eagle, symbol of the Roman Empire, used on the standards of Roman legions: Spread its wings, asserted its dominion. The winds, 13.2; Dan 7.2. At the time of 4 Ezra’s composition, the Romans ruled almost the whole inhabited earth. 3: Opposing wings, symbolizing usurpers who revolted... own place, and watch in its turn; 9 but let the heads be reserved for the last.”

10 I looked again and saw that the voice did not come from its heads, but from the middle of its body. 11 I counted its rival wings, and there were eight of them. 12 As I watched, one wing on the right side rose up, and it reigned over all the earth. 13 And after a time its reign came to an end, and it disappeared, so that even its place was no longer visible. Then the next wing rose up and reigned, and it continued to reign a long time. 14 While it was reigning its end came also, so that it disappeared like the first.

15 And a voice sounded, saying to it, 16 “Listen to me, you who have ruled the earth all this time; I announce this to you before you disappear. 17 After you no one shall rule as long as you have ruled, not even half as long.”

18 Then the third wing raised itself up, and held the rule as the earlier ones had done, and it also disappeared. 19 And so it went with all the wings; they wielded power one after another and then were never seen again. 20 I kept looking, and in due time the wings that followed also rose up on the right side, in order to rule. There were some of them that ruled, yet disappeared suddenly; 21 and others of them rose up, but did not hold the rule.

22 And after this I looked and saw that the twelve wings and the two little wings had disappeared, 23 and nothing remained on the eagle’s body except the three heads that were at rest and six little wings.

24 As I kept looking I saw that two little wings separated from the six and remained under the head that was on the right side; but four remained in their place. 25 Then I saw that these little wings planned to set themselves up and hold the rule. 26 As I kept looking, one was set up, but suddenly disappeared; a second also, and this disappeared more quickly than the first. 27 While I continued to look the two that remained were planning between themselves to reign together; 28 and while they were planning, one of the heads that were at rest (the one that was in the middle) suddenly awoke; it was greater than the other two heads. 29 And I saw how it allied the two heads with itself, 30 and how the head turned with those that were with it and devoured the two little wings that were planning to reign. 31 Moreover this head gained control of the whole earth, and with much oppression dominated its inhabitants; it had greater power over the world than all the wings that had gone before.

32 After this I looked again and saw the head in the middle suddenly disappear, just as the wings had done. 33 But the two heads remained, which also in like manner ruled over the earth and its inhabitants. 34 And while I looked, I saw the head on the right side devour the one on the left.

35 Then I heard a voice saying to me, “Look in front of you and consider what you see.” 36 When I looked, I saw what seemed to be a lion roused from the forest, roaring; and I heard how it uttered a human voice to the eagle, and spoke, saying, 37 “Listen and I will speak to you. The Most High says to you, 38 ‘Are you not the one that remains of the four beasts that I had made to reign in my world, so that the end of my times might come through them? 39 You, the fourth that has come, have conquered all the beasts that have gone before; and you have held sway over the world with great terror, and over all the earth with grievous oppression; and for so long you have lived on the earth with deceit.’ 40 You have judged the earth, but not with truth, 41 for you have oppressed the meek and injured the peaceable; you have hated those who tell the truth, and have loved liars; you have destroyed the homes of those who brought forth fruit, and have laid low the walls of those who did you no harm.

a Syr Arab 2 the little wings b Some Ethiop Mss read left c Syr: Lat underwings
d Syr Arab Arm: Lat Ethiop The fourth came, however, and conquered . . . and held sway . . . and for so long lived 43 Your insolence has come up before the Most High, and your pride to the Mighty One. 44 The Most High has looked at his times; now they have ended, and his ages have reached completion. 45 Therefore you, eagle, will surely disappear, you and your terrifying wings, your most evil little wings, your malicious heads, your most evil talons, and your whole worthless body, 46 so that the whole earth, freed from your violence, may be refreshed and relieved, and may hope for the judgment and mercy of him who made it.”

12 While the lion was saying these words to the eagle, I looked 2 and saw that the remaining head had disappeared. The two wings that had gone over to it rose up and set themselves up to reign, and their reign was brief and full of tumult. 3 When I looked again, they were already vanishing. The whole body of the eagle was burned, and the earth was exceedingly terrified.

Then I woke up in great perplexity of mind and great fear, and I said to my spirit, 4 “You have brought this upon me, because you search out the ways of the Most High. 5 I am still weary in mind and very weak in my spirit, and not even a little strength is left in me, because of the great fear with which I have been terrified tonight. 6 Therefore I will now entreat the Most High that he may strengthen me and show me, your servant, the interpretation and meaning of this terrifying vision so that you may fully comfort my soul. 7 For you have judged me worthy to be shown the end of the times and the last events of the times.”

10 He said to me, “This is the interpretation of this vision that you have seen: 11 The eagle that you saw coming up from the sea is the fourth kingdom that appeared in a vision to your brother Daniel. 12 But it was not explained to him as I now explain to you or have explained it. 13 The days are coming when a kingdom shall rise on earth, and it shall be more terrifying than all the kingdoms that have been before it. 14 And twelve kings shall reign in it, one after another. 15 But the second that is to reign shall hold sway for a longer time than any other one of the twelve. 16 This is the interpretation of the twelve wings that you saw.

17 “As for your hearing a voice that spoke, coming not from the eagle’s heads but from the midst of its body, this is the interpretation: 18 In the midst of the time of that kingdom great struggles shall arise, and it shall be in danger of falling; nevertheless it shall not fall then, but shall regain its former power. 19 As for your seeing eight little wings clinging to its wings, this is the interpretation: 20 Eight kings shall arise in it, whose times shall be short and their years swift; 21 two of them shall perish when the middle of its time draws near; and four shall be kept for the time when its end approaches, but two shall be kept until the end.

22 “As for your seeing three heads at rest, this is the interpretation: 23 In its last days the Most High will raise up three kings, and pressors by the Jews. 44: God’s judgment of the fourth beast is a sign that the ages have reached completion (see 11.39). 12.3a: This is the beginning of the end times.

12.3b–9: The seer’s response. Ezra, terrified, seeks an explanation of the vision (cf. 10.27–37; 13.13b–20).
12.10–36: The interpretation. 11: The fourth kingdom in Daniel’s vision (Dan 7.7) symbolized the Greek or Macedonian Empire; here, however, it is reinterpreted (cf. v. 12) to refer to the Roman Empire (see 11.11.; 11.39n.). 13: The days are coming, since the seer is represented as prophesying during the exile, the rise of the Roman Empire is depicted as a future event. 14: Kings, the Roman emperors. 15: The second king is Augustus (ruled 27 BCE–14 CE); cf. 11.17. 18: There is nothing in the vision that corresponds to what is said in this verse. The author may refer to the time of . . . great struggles for power that followed the death of Nero in 68 CE. 19: Little wings, 11.3,11. 20–21: These apparently represent imperial usurpers or pretenders; they cannot be identified precisely.
they shall renew many things in it, and shall rule the earth and its inhabitants more oppressively than all who were before them. Therefore they are called the heads of the eagle, because it is they who shall sum up his wickedness and perform his last actions. As for your seeing that the large head disappeared, one of the kings shall die in his bed, but in agonies. But as for the two who remained, the sword shall devour them. For the sword of one shall devour him who was with him; but he also shall fall by the sword in the last days.

As for your seeing two little wings passing over to the head which was on the right side, this is the interpretation: It is these whom the Most High has kept for the end; this was the reign which was brief and full of tumult, as you have seen.

And as for the lion whom you saw rousing up out of the forest and roaring and speaking to the eagle and reproving him for his unrighteousness, and as for all his words that you have heard, this is the Messiah whom the Most High has kept until the end of days, who will arise from the offspring of David, and will come and speak with them. He will denounce them for their ungodliness and for their wickedness, and will display before them their contemptuous dealings. For first he will bring them alive before his judgment seat, and when he has reproved them, then he will destroy them. But in mercy he will set free the remnant of my people, those who have been saved throughout my borders, and he will make them joyful until the end comes, the day of judgment, of which I spoke to you at the beginning. This is the dream that you saw, and this is its interpretation. And you alone were worthy to learn this secret of the Most High. Therefore write all these things that you have seen in a book, put it in a hidden place; and you shall teach them to the wise among your people, whose hearts you know are able to comprehend and keep these secrets. But as for you, wait here seven days more, so that you may be shown whatever it pleases the Most High to show you.” Then he left me.

When all the people heard that the seven days were past and I had not returned to the city, they all gathered together, from the least to the greatest, and came to me and spoke to me, saying, “How have we offended you, and what harm have we done you, that you have forsaken us and sit in this place? For of all the prophets you alone are left to us, like a cluster of grapes from the vintage, and like a lamp in a dark place, and like a haven for a ship saved from a storm. Are not the disasters that have befallen us much better it would have been for us if we also had been consumed in the burning of Zion. For we are no better than those who died there.” And they wept with a loud voice.

Then I answered them and said, “Take courage, O Israel; and do not be sorrowful, O house of Jacob; for the Most High has you in remembrance, and the Mighty One has not forgotten you in your struggle. As for me, I have neither forsaken you nor withdrawn

a Syr Ethiop Arm: Lat he b Lat them
c Arab 1: Lat underwings d Syr Ethiop: Lat lacks to e Lat his f Literally anointed one g Syr: Lat lacks of days... and speak
h Ethiop Arab 1 Arab 2 Arm: Lat Syr them

22: Three heads, the Flavian emperors (Vespasian, 69–79 CE; Titus, 79–81; and Domitian, 81–96). 23–25: 11.30–32. 26: The large head, Vespasian. Vespasian did die in his bed, perhaps a rarity for Roman emperors, but the attendant agonies are otherwise unattested. 30: As you have seen, vv. 2–3. 32: Messiah, 7.28–29n.; 1 Enoch 62.7. 33–34: See 2 Bar. 40. 33: Here, unlike earlier in the book (6.6; 7.28–44), the Messiah functions as eschatological judge. 34: Throughout my borders, 9.8; 13.48. He will make them joyful, 7.28. This verse envisions a second day of judgment after that described in v. 33.

12.40–51: The seer comforts those who were grieved because of his absence (cf. 5.16–19). 40: The seven days, 9.23,27. 42: Only here and in 11.1 in biblical and apocryphal literature is Ezra called a prophet. Cluster of grapes, see 9.21. 44–45: The people’s lament recalls Ezra’s earlier words (4.12; 5.35; 7.63). 46–47: Ezra’s reply in from you; but I have come to this place to pray on account of the desolation of Zion, and to seek mercy on account of the humiliation of our sanctuary. 49 Now go to your homes, every one of you, and after these days I will come to you.” 50 So the people went into the city, as I told them to do. 51 But I sat in the field seven days, as the angel had commanded me, and I ate only of the flowers of the field, and my food was of plants during those days.

13 After seven days I dreamed a dream in the night. 2 And lo, a wind arose from the sea and stirred up all its waves. 3 As I kept looking the wind made something like the figure of a man come up out of the heart of the sea. And I saw that this man flew with the clouds of heaven; and wherever he turned his face to look, everything under his region or place from which the mountain was carved, but I could not.

4 After this I looked and saw that an innumerable multitude of people were gathered together from the four winds of heaven to make war against the man who came up out of the sea. 5 And I looked and saw that he carved out for himself a great mountain, but I could not.

6 After this I looked and saw that all who had gathered together against him, to wage war with him, were filled with fear, and yet they dared to fight. 9 When he saw the onrush of the approaching multitude, he neither lifted his hand nor held a spear or any weapon of war; 10 but I saw only how he sent forth from his mouth something like a stream of fire, and from his lips a flaming breath, and from his tongue he shot forth a storm of sparks. 11 All these were mingled together, the stream of fire and the flaming breath and the great storm, and fell on the onrushing multitude that was prepared to fight, and burned up all of them, so that suddenly nothing was seen of the innumerable multitude but only the dust of ashes and the smell of smoke. When I saw it, I was amazed.

12 After this I saw the same man come down from the mountain and call to himself another multitude that was peaceable. 13 Then many people came to him, some of whom were joyful and some sorrowful; some of them were bound, and some were bringing others as offerings.

Then I woke up in great terror, and prayed to the Most High, and said, “From the beginning you have shown your servant these wonders, and have deemed me worthy to have my prayer heard by you; now show me the interpretation of this dream also. For as I consider it in my mind, alas for those who will be left in those days! And still more, alas for those who are not left! 17 For those who are not left will be sad because they understand the things that are reserved for the last days, but cannot attain them. 18 But alas for those also who are left, and for that very reason! For they shall see great dangers and much distress, as these dreams show. Yet it is better to come into these things, though...
incurring peril, than to pass from the world like a cloud, and not to see what will happen in the last days.”

He answered me and said, 21 “I will tell you the interpretation of the vision, and I will also explain to you the things that you have mentioned. 22 As for what you said about those who survive, and concerning those who do not survive, this is the interpretation: 23 The one who brings the peril at that time will protect those who fall into peril, who have works and faith toward the Almighty. 24 Understand therefore that those who are left are more blessed than those who have died.

25 “This is the interpretation of the vision: As for your seeing a man come up from the heart of the sea, this is he whom the Most High has been keeping for many ages, who will himself deliver his creation; and he will direct those who are left. 27 And as for your seeing wind and fire and a storm coming out of his mouth, and as for his not holding a spear or weapon of war, yet destroying the onrushing multitude that came to conquer him, this is the interpretation: 29 The days are coming when the Most High will deliver those who are on the earth. 30 And bewilderment of mind shall come over those who inhabit the earth. 31 They shall plan to make war against one another, city against city, place against place, people against people, and kingdom against kingdom. 32 When these things take place and the signs occur that I showed you before, then my Son will be revealed, whom you saw as a man coming up from the sea.

33 “Then, when all the nations hear his voice, all the nations shall leave their own lands and the warfare that they have against one another; and an innumerable multitude shall be gathered together, as you saw, wishing to come and conquer him. 35 But he shall stand on the top of Mount Zion. 36 And Zion shall come and be made manifest to all people, prepared and built, as you saw the mountain carved out without hands. 37 Then he, my Son, will reprove the assembled nations for their ungodliness (this was symbolized by the storm), 38 and will reproach them to their face with their evil thoughts and the torments with which they are to be tortured (which were symbolized by the flames), and will destroy them without effort by means of the law (which was symbolized by the fire).

39 “And as for your seeing him gather to himself another multitude that was peaceable, these are the nine tribes that were taken away from their own land into exile in the days of King Hoshea, whom Shalmaneser, king of the Assyrians, made captives; he took them across the river, and they were taken into another land. 41 But they formed this plan for themselves, that they would leave the multitude of the nations and go to a more distant region, where no human beings had ever lived, so that there at least they might keep their statutes that they had not kept in their own land. 43 And they went in by the narrow passages of the Euphrates river. 44 For at that time the Most High performed signs for them, and stopped the channels of the river until they had crossed over. 45 Through that region there was a long way to go, a journey of a year and a half; and that country is called Arzareth.

46 Then they lived there until the last times; and now, when they are about to come again, the Most High will stop the channels of the river again, so that they may be able to cross over. Therefore you saw the multitude.
gathered together in peace. 48 But those who are left of your people, who are found within my holy borders, shall be saved. 49 Therefore when he destroys the multitude of the nations that are gathered together, he will defend the people who remain. 50 And then he will show them very many wonders.”

51 I said, “O sovereign Lord, explain this to me: Why did I see the man coming up from the heart of the sea?”

52 He said to me, “Just as no one can explore or know what is in the depths of the sea, so no one on earth can see my Son or those who are with him, except in the time of his day. 53 This is the interpretation of the dream that you saw. And you alone have been enlightened about this, because you have forsaken your own ways and have applied yourself to mine, and have searched out my law; 54 for you have devoted your life to wisdom, and called understanding your mother. 55 Therefore I have shown you these things; for there is a reward laid up with the Most High. For it will be that after three more days I will tell you other things, and explain weighty and wondrous matters to you.”

57 Then I got up and walked in the field, giving great glory and praise to the Most High for the wonders that he does from time to time, and because he governs the times and whatever things come to pass in their seasons. And I stayed there three days.

14 On the third day, while I was sitting under an oak, suddenly a voice came out of a bush opposite me and said, “Ezra, Ezra!” And I answered, “Here I am, Lord,” and I rose to my feet. Then he said to me, “I revealed myself in a bush and spoke to Moses when my people were in bondage in Egypt; and I sent him and led my people out of Egypt; and I led him up on Mount Sinai, where I kept him with me many days. I told him many wondrous things, and showed him the secrets of the times and declared to him the end of the times. Then I commanded him, saying, “These words you shall publish openly, and these you shall keep secret.” And now I say to you: Lay up in your heart the signs that I have shown you, the dreams that you have seen, and the interpretations that you have heard; for you shall be taken up from among humankind, and henceforth you shall live with my Son and with those who are like you, until the times are ended.

The age has lost its youth, and the times begin to grow old. 11 For the age is divided into twelve parts, and nine of its parts have already passed, as well as half of the tenth part; so two of its parts remain, besides half of the tenth part. 12 Now therefore, set your house in order, and reprove your people; comfort the lowly among them, and instruct those that are wise. And now renounce the life that is corruptible, and put away from you mortal thoughts; cast away from you the burdens of humankind, and divest yourself now of your weak nature; lay to one side the thoughts that are most grievous to you, and hurry to escape from these times. 16 For evils worse than those that you have now seen a Syr: Lat lacks shall be saved b Syr: Ethiop except when his time and his day have come. Lat lacks his c Lat did d Syr Arab 1 Arab 2 he led e Syr Ethiop Arab Arm: Lat lacks declared to him f Cn: Lat Ethiop ten g Syr lacks verses 11, 12: Ethiop For the world is divided into ten parts, and has come to the tenth, and half of the tenth remains. Now …

h Lat lacks and wise

Deut 29.28). 47: Will stop . . . the river, cf. Isa 11.15–16. 48: Within my . . . borders, presumably the borders of Israel (cf. 9.8; 12.34). This answers the seer’s previous questions about the fate of Israel. 52: Those who are with him, perhaps “those who were taken up,” 6.26. Cf. 8.51; 14.9. 53–55: See 7.76–77m.

13.56–58: Conclusion and injunctions. Ezra’s giving great glory and praise to God shows the change in attitude that he has experienced since his earlier petulance.

14.1–48: The seventh vision (the legend of Ezra and the holy scriptures). 1–18: God speaks to Ezra. 1–2: A bush . . . “Here I am,” cf. Ex 3.4. 2: I rose, in contrast to previous occasions, when Ezra was asked to rise (6.13; 7.2; 10.33). 3: This chapter explicitly draws a parallel between Ezra and Moses. 4: Cf. Ex 34.28. 5–6: The biblical Moses was never instructed to keep some teachings secret. Further, see 12.37–38; 14.26.45–47. 5: Secrets . . . the end of the times, see 3.14n. 9: You shall be taken up, see 6.26n. My Son, the Messiah (7.28–29; 13.32,37.52). Those who are like you, 8.51; cf. 13.52. 10: 4.44–50n.; 5.50–55. 11: See 2 Bar. 53–70 for a similar division of world history into happen shall take place hereafter. 17 For the weaker the world becomes through old age, the more shall evils be increased upon its inhabitants. 18 Truth shall go farther away, and falsehood shall come near. For the eagle a that you saw in the vision is already hurrying to come.”

Then I answered and said, “Let me speak b in your presence, Lord. 20 For I will go, as you have commanded me, and I will reprove the people who are now living; but who will warn those who will be born hereafter? For the world lies in darkness, and its inhabitants are without light. 21 For your law has been burned, and so no one knows the things which have been done or will be done by you. 22 If then I have found favor with you, send the holy spirit into me, and I will write everything that has happened in the world from the beginning, the things that were written in your law, so that people may be able to find the path, and that those who want to live in the last days may do so.”

He answered me and said, “Go and gather the people, and tell them not to seek you for forty days. 24 But prepare for yourself many writing tablets, and take with you Sarea, Dabria, Selemia, Ethanus, and Asiel—these five, who are trained to write rapidly; 25 and you shall come here, and I will light in your heart the lamp of understanding, which shall not be put out until what you are about to write is finished. 26 And when you have finished, some things you shall make public, and some you shall deliver in secret to the wise; tomorrow at this hour you shall begin to write.”

Then I went as he commanded me, and I gathered all the people together, and said, 28 “Hear these words, O Israel. 29 At first our ancestors lived as aliens in Egypt, and they were liberated from there and received the law of life, which they did not keep, which you also have transgressed after them. 31 Then land was given to you for a possession in the land of Zion; but you and your ancestors committed iniquity and did not keep the ways that the Most High commanded you. 32 And since he is a righteous judge, in due time he took from you what he had given. 33 And now you are here, and your people c are farther in the interior. d 34 If you, then, will rule over your minds and discipline your hearts, you shall be kept alive, and after death you shall obtain mercy. 35 For after death the judgment will come, when we shall live again; and then the names of the righteous shall become manifest, and the deeds of the ungodly shall be disclosed. 36 But let no one come to me now, and let no one seek me for forty days.”

So I took the five men, as he commanded me, and we proceeded to the field, and remained there. 38 And on the next day a voice called me, saying, “Ezra, open your mouth and drink what I give you to drink.”

So I opened my mouth, and a full cup was offered to me; it was full of something like water, but its color was like fire. 40 I took it and drank; and when I had drunk it, my heart poured forth understanding, and wisdom increased in my breast, for my spirit retained its memory, 41 and my mouth was opened and was no longer closed. 42 Moreover, the Most High gave understanding to the five men, and 14.19–26: Ezra’s prayer for inspiration to restore the holy scriptures is granted. 20: Who will warn?, Ezra’s characteristic concern for his fellow Jews finally bears fruit in his desire to rewrite the scriptures. Without light, without the light of God’s law (cf. Ps 19.8b). 21: According to one tradition, the law had been burned by the Babylonians when they destroyed Jerusalem in 586 BCE (4.23). 22: The holy spirit will guide Ezra in rewriting the law. 23: Forty days, cf. Ex 24.18; 34.28; Deut 9.9,18. 26: Some things . . . make public, namely, the rewritten books of the Jewish scriptures. Some . . . deliver in secret, namely, some extracanonical books (see 12.37–38; 14.5–6,45–47).

14.37–48: The revelation of scriptures. 37: The five men, v. 24. The field, the same one in which Ezra has received the fourth through the seventh visions (see 9.24). 39: A full cup of inspiration, containing the fire of the spirit (v. 22). 42: Using characters that they did not know, in a new script for Hebrew, the Aramaic square by turns they wrote what was dictated, using characters that they did not know. They sat forty days; they wrote during the daytime, and ate their bread at night.

But as for me, I spoke in the daytime and was not silent at night. So during the forty days, ninety-four books were written. And when the forty days were ended, the Most High spoke to me, saying, "Make public the twenty-four books that you wrote first, and let the worthy and the unworthy read them; but keep the seventy that were written last, in order to give them to the wise among your people. For in them is the spring of understanding, the fountain of wisdom, and the river of knowledge." And I did so.

Speak in the ears of my people the words of the prophecy that I will put in your mouth, says the Lord, and cause them to be written on paper; for they are trustworthy and true. Do not fear the plots against you, and do not be troubled by the unbelief of those who oppose you. For all unbelievers shall die in their unbelief.

Beware, says the Lord, I am bringing evils upon the world, the sword and famine, death and destruction, because iniquity has spread throughout every land, and their harmful doings have reached their limit. Therefore, says the Lord, I will be silent no longer concerning their ungodly acts that they impiously commit, neither will I tolerate their wicked practices. Innocent and righteous blood cries out to me, and the souls of the righteous cry out continually. I will surely avenge them, says the Lord, and will receive to myself all the innocent blood from among them. See, my people are being led like a flock to the slaughter; I will not allow them to live any longer in the land of Egypt, but I will bring them out with a mighty hand and with an uplifted arm, and will strike Egypt with plagues, as before, and will destroy all its land.

Let Egypt mourn, and its foundations, because of the plague of chastisement and castigation that the Lord will bring upon it. Let the farmers that till the ground mourn, because their seed shall fail to grow and their trees shall be ruined by blight and hail and by a terrible tempest. Alas for the world and for those who live in it! For the sword and misery draw near them, and nation shall rise up to fight against nation, with swords in their hands. For there shall be unrest among people; growing strong against one another, they shall in their might have no respect for their king or the chief of their leaders. For a person will desire to go into a city, and shall not be able to do so. Because of their pride the cities shall be in confusion, the houses shall be destroyed, and people shall be afraid. People shall have no pity for their neighbors, but shall make an assault upon their houses with the sword, and plunder their goods, because of hunger for bread and because of great tribulation.

See how I am calling together all the kings of the earth to turn to me, says God, from the rising sun and from the south, from the east and from Lebanon; to turn and repay what they have given them. Just as they have done to my elect until this day, so I will do, and will repay into their bosom. Thus says the Lord God: My right hand will not spare the sinners, my sword will not cease from those who shed innocent blood on earth. And a fire went forth from his wrath, and consumed the foundations of the earth and the sinners, like burnt straw.

Alas for those who sin and do not observe my commandments, says the Lord; I will not spare them. Depart, you faithless children! Do not pollute my sanctuary. For God knows all who sin against him; there-clouds, full of wrath and tempest, shall rise and destroy all the earth and its inhabitants, and shall pour out upon every high and lofty place\(^a\) a terrible tempest, \(^4\) fire and hail and flying swords and floods of water, so that all the fields and all the streams shall be filled with the abundance of those waters. \(^42\) They shall destroy cities and walls, mountains and hills, trees of the forests, and grass of the meadows, and their grain. \(^43\) They shall go on steadily to Babylon and blot it out. \(^44\) They shall come to it and surround it; they shall pour out on it the tempest\(^b\) and all its fury;\(^c\) then the dust and smoke shall reach the sky, and all who are around it shall mourn for it. \(^45\) And those who survive shall serve those who have destroyed it.

\(^46\) And you, Asia, who share in the splendor of Babylon and the glory of her person—\(^47\) woe to you, miserable wretch! For you have made yourself like her; you have decked out your daughters for prostitution to please and glory in your lovers, who have always lusted after you. \(^48\) You have imitated that hateful one in all her deeds and devices.\(^d\) Therefore God\(^e\) says, \(^49\) I will send evils upon you: widowedhood, poverty, famine, sword, and pestilence, bringing ruin to your houses, bringing destruction and death. \(^50\) And the glory of your strength shall wither like a flower when the heat shall rise that is sent upon you. \(^51\) You shall be weakened like a wretched woman who is beaten and wounded, so that you cannot receive your mighty lovers. \(^52\) Would I have dealt with you so violently, says the Lord, \(^53\) if you had not killed my chosen people continually, exulting and clapping your hands and talking about their death when you were drunk?

\(^54\) Beautify your face! \(^55\) The reward of a prostitute is in your lap; therefore you shall receive your recompense. \(^56\) As you will do to my chosen people, says the Lord, so God will do to you, and will hand you over to adversities. \(^57\) Your children shall die of hunger, and you shall fall by the sword; your cities shall be wiped out, and all your people who are in the open country shall fall by the sword. \(^58\) Those who are in the mountains and highlands\(^f\) shall perish of hunger, and they shall eat their own flesh in hunger for bread and drink their own blood in thirst for water. \(^59\) Unhappy above all others, you shall come and suffer fresh miseries. \(^60\) As they pass by they shall crush the hateful\(^g\) city, and shall destroy a part of your land and abolish a portion of your glory, when they return from devastated Babylon. \(^61\) You shall be broken down by them like stubble,\(^h\) and they shall be like fire to you. \(^62\) They shall devour you and your cities, your land and your mountains; they shall burn with fire all your forests and your fruitful trees. \(^63\) They shall carry your children away captive, plunder your wealth, and mar the glory of your countenance.

16 Woe to you, Babylon and Asia! Woe to you, Egypt and Syria! \(^2\) Bind on sackcloth and cloth of goats’ hair, and wait for your children, and lament for them; for your destruction is at hand. \(^3\) The sword has been sent upon you, and who is there to drive it back? \(^4\) A fire has been sent upon you, and who is there to quench it? \(^5\) Calamities have been sent upon you, and who is there to drive

---

\(^a\) Or eminent person
\(^b\) Meaning of Lat uncertain
\(^c\) Other ancient authorities add until they destroy it to its foundations
\(^d\) Other ancient authorities read devices, and you have followed after that one about to gratify her magnates and leaders so that you may be made proud and be pleased by her fornications
\(^e\) Other ancient authorities read the Lord
\(^f\) Gk: Lat omits and highlands
\(^g\) Another reading is idle or unprofitable
\(^h\) Other ancient authorities read like dry straw
\(^i\) Other ancient authorities lack cloth of goats’ hair them away? Can one drive off a hungry lion in the forest, or quench a fire in the stubble once it has started to burn?

7 Can one turn back an arrow shot by a strong archer? The Lord God sends calamities, and who will drive them away? Fire will go forth from his wrath, and who is there to quench it? He will flash lightning, and who will not be afraid? He will thunder, and who will not be terrified? The Lord will threaten, and who will not be utterly shattered at his presence?

12 The earth and its foundations quake, the sea is churned up from the depths, and its waves and the fish with them shall be troubled at the presence of the Lord and the glory of his power. For his right hand that bends the bow is strong, and his arrows that he shoots are sharp and when they are shot to the ends of the world will not miss once. Calamities are sent forth and shall not return until they come over the earth. The fire is kindled, and shall not be put out until it consumes the foundations of the earth. Just as an arrow shot by a mighty archer does not return, so the calamities that are sent upon the earth shall not return.

17 Alas for me! Alas for me! Who will deliver me in those days? The beginning of sorrows, when there shall be much lamentation; the beginning of calamities, when all shall tremble. What shall they do, when the calamities come?

19 Famine and plague, tribulation and anguish are sent as scourges for the correction of humankind. Yet for all this they will not turn from their iniquities, or ever be mindful of the scourges. Indeed, provisions will be so cheap upon earth that people will imagine that peace is assured for them, and then calamities shall spring up on the earth—the sword, famine, and great confusion. For many of those who live on the earth shall perish by famine; and those who survive the famine shall die by the sword. And the dead shall be thrown out like dung, and there shall be no one to console them; for the earth shall be left desolate, and its cities shall be demolished. No one shall be left to cultivate the earth or to sow it. The trees shall bear fruit, but who will gather it? The grapes shall ripen, but who will tread them? For in all places there shall be great solitude; a person will long to see another human being, or even to hear a human voice. For ten shall be left out of a city; and two, out of the field, those who have hidden themselves in thick groves and clefts in the rocks. Just as in an olive orchard three or four olives may be left on every tree, or just as, when a vineyard is gathered, some clusters may be left by those who search carefully through the vineyard, so in those days three or four shall be left by those who search their houses with the sword.

22 The earth shall be left desolate, and its fields shall be plowed up, and its roads and all its paths shall bring forth thorns, because no sheep will go along them. Virgins shall mourn because they have no bridegrooms; women shall mourn because they have no husbands; their daughters shall mourn, because they have no help. Their bridegrooms shall be killed in war, and their husbands shall perish of famine.

23 Listen now to these things, and understand them, you who are servants of the Lord. This is the word of the Lord; receive it and do not disbelieve what the Lord says. The calamities draw near, and are not delayed. Just as a pregnant woman, in the ninth month when the time of her delivery draws near, has great pains around her womb for two or three hours beforehand, but when the child comes forth from the womb, there will not be a moment’s delay, so the calamities will not go along them.

---

a Other ancient authorities read fire when dry straw has been set on fire.
b Other ancient authorities read a cluster may remain exposed.
c Other ancient authorities read be for briers.
d Cn: Lat do not believe the gods of whom the Lord speaks.

---

delay in coming upon the earth, and the world will groan, and pains will seize it on every side.

40. Hear my words, O my people; prepare for battle, and in the midst of the calamities be like strangers on the earth. 41. Let the one who sells be like one who will flee; let the one who buys be like one who will lose; 42. let the one who does business be like one who will not make a profit; and let the one who builds a house be like one who will not live in it; 43. let the one who sows be like one who will not reap; so also the one who prunes the vines, like one who will not gather the grapes; 44. those who marry, like those who will have no children; and those who do not marry, like those who are widowed. 45. Because of this, those who labor, labor in vain; 46. for strangers shall gather their fruits, and plunder their goods, overthrow their houses, and take their children captive; for in captivity and famine they will produce their children. 47. Those who conduct business, do so only to have it plundered; the more they adorn their cities, their houses and possessions, and their persons, 48. the more angry I will be with them for their sins, and forget your iniquities, and the number of the stars. 49. He certainly knows everything that people do; he knows their imaginations and their thoughts and their hearts. 50. He said, “Let the earth be made,” and it was made, and “Let the heaven be made,” and it was made, and “Let the waters come forth and deliver you from all tribulation.”

51. Therefore do not be like her or her works. 52. For in a very short time iniquity will be removed from the earth, and righteousness will reign over us. 53. Sinners must not say that they have not sinned, 54. for God will burn coal of fire on the head of everyone who says, “I have not sinned before God and his glory.” 55. The Lord certainly knows everything that people do; he knows their imaginations and their thoughts and their hearts. 56. He said, “Let the earth be made,” and it was made, and “Let the heaven be made,” and it was made. 57. He searches the abyss and its treasures; he has measured the sea and its contents; 58. he has confined the sea in the midst of the waters; 59. and by his word he has suspended the earth over the water. 60. He has spread out the heaven like a dome and made it secure upon the waters; 61. he has put springs of water in the desert, and pools on the tops of the mountains, so as to send rivers from the heights to water the earth. 62. He formed human beings and put a heart in the midst of each body, and gave each person breath and life and understanding and the spirit of Almighty God, 63. who surely made all things and searches out hidden things in hidden places. 64. He knows your imaginations and what you think in your hearts! Woe to those who sin and want to hide their sins! 65. The Lord will strictly examine all their works, and will make a public spectacle of all of you. 66. You shall be put to shame when your sins come out before others, and your own iniquities shall stand as your accusers on that day. 67. What will you do? Or how will you hide your sins before the Lord and his glory? 68. The burning wrath of a great multitude is kindled over you; they shall drag some of you away and force you to eat what was sacrificed.

16.68–73: Prediction of persecutions. These descriptions have close parallels with third- and early fourth-
And those who consent to eat sacrificed to idols. 69 And those who consent to eat shall be held in derision and contempt, and shall be trampled under foot. 70 For in many places and in neighboring cities there shall be a great uprising against those who fear the Lord. 71 They shall be like maniacs, sparing no one, but plundering and destroying those who continue to fear the Lord. 72 For they shall destroy and plunder their goods, and drive them out of house and home. 73 Then the tested quality of my elect shall be manifest, like gold that is tested by fire.

Listen, my elect ones, says the Lord; the days of tribulation are at hand, but I will deliver you from them. 75 Do not fear or doubt, for God is your guide. 76 You who keep my commandments and precepts, says the Lord God, must not let your sins weigh you down, or your iniquities prevail over you. 77 Woe to those who are choked by their sins and overwhelmed by their iniquities! They are like a field choked with underbrush and its path overwhelmed with thorns, so that no one can pass through. 78 It is shut off and given up to be consumed by fire.

---

69 Meaning of Lat uncertain
70 Other ancient authorities read For people, because of their misfortunes, shall 71 Other ancient authorities read fear God
72 Other ancient authorities read the Lord
73 Other ancient authorities read seed

---

68: Eating food sacrificed to idols was forbidden for many Jewish and early Christian groups. See Ex 34.15; Acts 15.20,29; 1 Cor 8.1–13; 10.14–22; Rev 2.14,20; 4 Macc 5.2. 73: Cf. Zech 13.9; 1 Pet 1.7. 74: Cf. Dan 12.1.

16.74–78: Concluding instructions to the elect. 77–78: Cf. 2 Sam 23.6–7; Heb 6.8. 77: Cf. Prov 5.22.
The following book appears in an appendix to the Greek Bible.

4 MACCABEES

NAME

This book is linked with 1 and 2 Maccabees on the basis of its focus on the events also related in them, the conflict between Jewish factions that eventually precipitated the persecution by the Seleucid king Antiochus IV Epiphanes (reigned 175–164 BCE) and the Jewish revolt led by Judas Maccabaeus. In 4 Maccabees, however, the family of Judas Maccabaeus and its exploits are never mentioned. The focus is rather on the torture and death of the martyrs (see 2 Macc 7). The work was also known as On the Supremacy of Reason in the early church (Eusebius, Hist. eccl. 3.10.6; Jerome, De vir. ill. 13).

CANONICAL STATUS

No modern religious community regards the work as strictly canonical, although it is included in two important copies of the Bible from the fourth and fifth century Christian Church.

AUTHORSHIP

The anonymous author is a Torah-observant Jew who exhibits a greater mastery of Greek language, philosophy, literature, and rhetoric than any canonical author. The church fathers Eusebius and Jerome both attributed the work to Josephus, the first-century ce Jewish historian, though it does not suit his style, greater historical accuracy, and more indulgent attitude toward assimilation.

DATE AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT

Plausible arguments have been made for a date of composition anywhere between 20 and 130 CE, with a date later in that range more likely. Many earlier scholars thought that 4 Maccabees was written in Alexandria in Egypt, the generally assumed place of origin for Hellenistic Jewish literature. But the interest in these martyrs in Antioch (in northern Syria), and the fact that the literary epitaph in 17.9–10 reflects the wording of actual Jewish epitaphs in Cilicia (in southeast Turkey), point to an origin in the northeast Mediterranean basin. The author does not write in response to any known crisis affecting the Jewish community, but instead addresses the everyday challenge of maintaining pride in, and commitment to, the Jewish way of life in an often hostile environment.

LITERARY HISTORY

4 Maccabees is a thoroughly original composition rather than the product of editing various sources. The author has read 2 Macc 3–7, but completely recasts the story in keeping with his own interests and goals. The work appears to have been written, in Greek, for oral delivery on a particular occasion (1.10; 3.20), perhaps during a celebration of Hanukkah, which celebrates the reconsecration of the Temple in 164 BCE, or a festival connected with the giving of the Torah (e.g., the Feast of Weeks).

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS

The author presents the work as a philosophical demonstration of the popular maxim that reason is able to master the passions, with the added dimension that Torah observance provides the most effective training to achieve this goal. The work has two main parts: a more deductive development of the thesis (1.13–3.18), and a narrative demonstration of the thesis focused on the historical example of nine martyrs (3.19–17.6). The combination of logical argumentation and extended examples is found in other Greek and Roman ethical works. The author prepares the hearers for this two-part structure (1.1,7–8,12), and the two parts of the work are thoroughly integrated, as its outline shows:
INTERPRETATION

Fourth Maccabees is one of several texts from the Second Temple period interpreting the Jewish law and way of life in terms of Greco-Roman philosophy. Rather than using an allegorical approach, as did Philo of Alexandria, this author casts the Torah as a training program in the right exercise of reason and the cultivation of the cardinal virtues of justice, courage, self-control, and wisdom. It belongs thus to a larger literary movement promoting the Jewish way of life in close dialogue with the Greek cultural milieu.

As with other Jewish writings composed in Greek, it was not influential in the rabbinic Judaism that emerged in the wake of the disastrous revolts against Rome (66–70 and 132–35 CE). While early Christian authors recognized its philosophical dimensions, 4 Maccabees exercised its most enduring influence in the development of Christian martyrology during the second through fourth centuries.

GUIDE TO READING

The author gives several cues concerning how the work is to be read. He uses the language of “demonstration” (1.1; 3.19), suggesting that it can be read as an essay marshaling evidence for an ethical thesis: reason can rise above the passions and choose the path of virtue. He uses the language of praise or eulogy (1.10), suggesting that it can also be read as a celebration of the achievement of particular individuals, whose virtue is therefore to be imitated by all who strive for a praiseworthy remembrance. His exhortations to the audience (1.1, 18.1) and his interest in demonstrating that the Jewish law provides the surest path to ethical virtue add a third dimension, that of the “protreptic speech” that promotes a particular philosophy or way of life as worth following. Finally, the work can be read as resistance literature, both within the frame of the story of the martyrdoms and from the vantage point of an author who has mastered the dominant culture’s tools as resources for promoting a minority culture’s way of life.

David A. deSilva
The subject that I am about to discuss is most philosophical, that is, whether devout reason is sovereign over the emotions. So it is right for me to advise you to pay earnest attention to philosophy. For the subject is essential to everyone who is seeking knowledge, and in addition it includes the praise of the highest virtue—I mean, of course, rational judgment. If, then, it is evident that reason rules over those emotions that hinder self-control, namely, gluttony and lust, it is also clear that it masters the emotions that hinder one from justice, such as malice, and those that stand in the way of courage, namely anger, fear, and pain. Some might perhaps ask, “If reason rules the emotions, why is it not sovereign over forgetfulness and ignorance?” Their attempt at argument is ridiculous! For reason does not rule its own emotions, but those that are opposed to justice, courage, and self-control, and it is not for the purpose of destroying them, but so that one may not give way to them.

I could prove to you from many and various examples that reason is dominant over the emotions, but I can demonstrate it best from the noble bravery of those who died for the sake of virtue, Eleazar and the seven brothers and their mother. All of these, by despising sufferings that bring death, demonstrated that reason controls the emotions. On this anniversary it is fitting for me to praise for their virtues those who, with their mother, died for the sake of nobility and goodness, but I would also call them blessed for the honor in which they are held. All people, even their torturers, marveled at their courage and endurance, and they became the cause of the downfall of tyranny over their nation. By their endurance they conquered the tyrant, and thus their native land was purified through them. I shall shortly have an opportunity to speak of this; but, as my custom is, I shall begin by stating my main principle, and then I shall turn to their story, giving glory to the all-wise God.

Our inquiry, accordingly, is whether reason is sovereign over the emotions. We shall decide just what reason is and what emotion is, how many kinds of emotions there are, and whether reason rules over all these.

1.1–12: Introduction. 1: Reason . . . emotions, the Greek word translated “emotions” includes desires and drives, emotional responses, and physical sensations. Greco-Roman philosophical writers regularly promoted mastery of these experiences, or self-mastery, as the path to lead a consistently virtuous life. Devout reason, the mind shaped by training in and obedience to the Jewish Torah (2.21–23; 5.19–26; 18.1–2). The author will claim for Judaism the status of a philosophy (as do the first-century CE Jewish writers Josephus and Philo), and argue for its superiority for achieving the Greek ideal of virtue. 3–4: These topics are covered sequentially in 1.30–2.6a, 2.6b–3.18, and 5.1–17.6. 4: Anger is more properly an obstacle to justice, not to courage, and is so treated in 2.6b, 16–20. 5–6a: The first-century CE Roman writer Cicero (Fin. 5.1.3.36), as well as Philo (Migr. 206), made similar distinctions between voluntary and involuntary defects or passions, holding the individual morally responsible only for the former. 6b: The author, aware of this larger debate, aligns himself with philosophers promoting mastery and moderation of the emotions, drives, and sensations rather than with hard-line Stoics who sought to eliminate such experiences; see also 3.2–18. 7: Examples function here, as in Greek rhetoric generally, as a form of inductive proof. The extreme case of the martyrs will prove the general rule. 8: See 2 Macc 6.18–7.42. 10: Those who are most committed to the Jewish law thus achieve nobility and goodness, the highest Greek ideal. 11: The author avoids all mention of the Maccabean revolutionaries throughout the speech and locates the cause for Judea’s liberation squarely in the martyrs’ effective, nonviolent resistance to imperialism.

1.13–3.18: Development of the thesis. 1.13–30a: Definitions of terms. 13: The author is not, strictly speaking, concerned with whether, but rather what enables reason to achieve such mastery. 16–17: The author shares this definition of wisdom with Greco-Roman philosophers but reveals his particular allegiance to the Jewish “philosophy” by naming the Torah, the law, as the path to this wisdom (Sir 1.26; 19.20; Wis 6.17–20). Education (Gk “paideia”) was what distinguished the civilized Greeks from the barbarians; the author claims for Torah-
Now reason is the mind that with sound logic prefers the life of wisdom. Wisdom, next, is the knowledge of divine and human matters and the causes of these. This, in turn, is education in the law, by which we learn divine matters reverently and human affairs to our advantage. Now the kinds of wisdom are rational judgment, justice, courage, and self-control. Rational judgment is supreme over all of these, since by means of it reason rules over the emotions. The two most comprehensive types of the emotions are pleasure and pain; and each of these is by nature concerned with both body and soul.
The emotions of both pleasure and pain have many consequences. Thus desire precedes pleasure and delight follows it. Fear precedes pain and sorrow comes after. Anger, as a person will see by reflecting on this experience, is an emotion embracing pleasure and pain.
In pleasure there exists even a malevolent tendency, which is the most complex of all the emotions. In the soul it is boastfulness, covetousness, thirst for honor, rivalry, and malice;
in the body, indiscriminate eating, gluttony, and solitary gorgemizing.
Just as pleasure and pain are two plants growing from the body and the soul, so there are many offshoots of these plants, each of which the master cultivator, reason, weeds and prunes and ties up and waters and thoroughly irrigates, and so tames the jungle of habits and emotions. For reason is the guide of the virtues, but over the emotions it is sovereign.

Observe now, first of all, that rational judgment is sovereign over the emotions by virtue of the restraining power of self-control. Self-control, then, is dominance over the desires.
Some desires are mental, others are physical,
and reason obviously rules over both. Otherwise, how is it that when we are attracted to forbidden foods we abstain from the pleasure
to be had from them? Is it not because reason is able to rule over appetites? I for one think so. Therefore when we crave seafood and fowl and animals and all sorts of foods that are forbidden to us by the law, we abstain because of domination by reason. For the emotions of the appetites are restrained, checked by the temperate mind, and all the impulses of the body are bridled by reason.

And why is it amazing that the desires of the mind for the enjoyment of beauty are rendered powerless? It is for this reason, certainly, that the temperate Joseph is praised, because by mental effort he overcame sexual desire. For when he was young and in his prime for intercourse,

by his reason he nullified the frenzy of the passions. Not only is reason proved to rule over the frenzied urge of sexual desire, but also over every desire. Thus the law says,
“You shall not covet your neighbor’s wife or observance the status and fruits of such education. The four cardinal virtues of Platonic and Stoic ethics.

The elevation of rational judgment as supreme emerges from the focus on the contest between reason and the emotions. The author follows Aristotle’s twofold classification of the emotions based on pleasure and pain rather than the fourfold Stoic classification of desire, pain, pleasure, and fear; but see 1.22–23. The definition of anger as a mixture of pleasure and pain is particularly Aristotelian. The author employs common agricultural analogies for the cultivation of the soul. Habits, predispositions particularly associated with the stages of life like youth, adulthood, and old age. The author treats the mastery of these challenges specifically in 2.3; 7.13–14.

Evidence from the scriptures. The author offers the ability of Jews to observe the dietary restrictions of the Torah (here, Lev 11.4–23,41–42; Deut 14.4–21) as proof of the power of self-control over desire. The commandments, however, also provide the training necessary to develop self-control.

Contrast Paul’s claim that the commandment awakens sin, rather than proves that sin

The elevation of rational judgment as supreme emerges from the focus on the contest between reason and the emotions. The author follows Aristotle’s twofold classification of the emotions based on pleasure and pain Rh. 2.1–11) rather than the fourfold Stoic classification of desire, pain, pleasure, and fear; but see 1.22–23. The definition of anger as a mixture of pleasure and pain is particularly Aristotelian. The author employs common agricultural analogies for the cultivation of the soul. Habits, predispositions particularly associated with the stages of life like youth, adulthood, and old age. The author treats the mastery of these challenges specifically in 2.3; 7.13–14.

Evidence from the scriptures. The author offers the ability of Jews to observe the dietary restrictions of the Torah (here, Lev 11.4–23,41–42; Deut 14.4–21) as proof of the power of self-control over desire. The commandments, however, also provide the training necessary to develop self-control.

Contrast Paul’s claim that the commandment awakens sin, rather than proves that sin

can be mastered (Rom 7.7–24). Justice involves giving to each person his or her due, which includes giving

Observe now, first of all, that rational judgment is sovereign over the emotions by virtue of the restraining power of self-control. Self-
control, then, is dominance over the desires.
Some desires are mental, others are physical,
and reason obviously rules over both. Otherwise, how is it that when we are attracted to forbidden foods we abstain from the pleasure
to be had from them? Is it not because reason is able to rule over appetites? I for one think so. Therefore when we crave seafood and fowl and animals and all sorts of foods that are forbidden to us by the law, we abstain because of domination by reason. For the emotions
of the appetites are restrained, checked by the temperate mind, and all the impulses of the
body are bridled by reason.

And why is it amazing that the desires of the mind for the enjoyment of

beauty are rendered powerless? It is for this reason, certainly, that the temperate Joseph is praised, because by mental effort he overcame sexual desire. For when he was young and in his prime for intercourse,
by his reason he nullified the frenzy of the passions. Not only is reason proved to rule
over the frenzied urge of sexual desire, but also over every desire. Thus the law says,
“You shall not covet your neighbor’s wife or

Observe now, first of all, that rational judgment is sovereign over the emotions by virtue of the restraining power of self-control. Self-
control, then, is dominance over the desires.
Some desires are mental, others are physical,
and reason obviously rules over both. Otherwise, how is it that when we are attracted to forbidden foods we abstain from the pleasure
to be had from them? Is it not because reason is able to rule over appetites? I for one think so. Therefore when we crave seafood and fowl and animals and all sorts of foods that are forbidden to us by the law, we abstain because of domination by reason. For the emotions
of the appetites are restrained, checked by the temperate mind, and all the impulses of the
body are bridled by reason.

And why is it amazing that the desires of the mind for the enjoyment of

beauty are rendered powerless? It is for this reason, certainly, that the temperate Joseph is praised, because by mental effort he overcame sexual desire. For when he was young and in his prime for intercourse,
by his reason he nullified the frenzy of the passions. Not only is reason proved to rule
over the frenzied urge of sexual desire, but also over every desire. Thus the law says,
“You shall not covet your neighbor’s wife or

Observe now, first of all, that rational judgment is sovereign over the emotions by virtue of the restraining power of self-control. Self-
control, then, is dominance over the desires.
Some desires are mental, others are physical,
and reason obviously rules over both. Otherwise, how is it that when we are attracted to forbidden foods we abstain from the pleasure
to be had from them? Is it not because reason is able to rule over appetites? I for one think so. Therefore when we crave seafood and fowl and animals and all sorts of foods that are forbidden to us by the law, we abstain because of domination by reason. For the emotions
of the appetites are restrained, checked by the temperate mind, and all the impulses of the
body are bridled by reason.

And why is it amazing that the desires of the mind for the enjoyment of

beauty are rendered powerless? It is for this reason, certainly, that the temperate Joseph is praised, because by mental effort he overcame sexual desire. For when he was young and in his prime for intercourse,
by his reason he nullified the frenzy of the passions. Not only is reason proved to rule
over the frenzied urge of sexual desire, but also over every desire. Thus the law says,
“You shall not covet your neighbor’s wife or anything that is your neighbor’s." 6 In fact, since the law has told us not to covet, I could prove to you all the more that reason is able to control desires.

Just so it is with the emotions that hinder one from justice. 7 Otherwise how could it be that someone who is habitually a solitary gormandizer, a glutton, or even a drunkard can learn a better way, unless reason is clearly lord of the emotions? 8 Thus, as soon as one adopts a way of life in accordance with the law, even though a lover of money, one is forced to act contrary to natural ways and to lend without interest to the needy and to cancel the debt when the seventh year arrives. 9 If one is greedy, one is ruled by the law through reason so that one neither gleans the harvest nor gathers the last grapes from the vineyard.

In all other matters we can recognize that reason rules the emotions. 10 For the law prevails even over affection for parents, so that virtue is not abandoned for their sakes. 11 It is superior to love for one’s wife, so that one rebukes her when she breaks the law. 12 It takes precedence over love for children, so that one punishes them for misdeeds. 13 It is sovereign over the relationship of friends, so that one rebukes friends when they act wickedly. 14 Do not consider it paradoxical when reason, through the law, can prevail even over enmity. The fruit trees of the enemy are not cut down, but one preserves the property of enemies from marauders and helps raise up what has fallen.a 15 It is evident that reason rules evenb the more violent emotions: lust for power, vainglory, boasting, arrogance, and malice. 16 For the temperate mind repels all these malicious emotions, just as it repels anger—for it is sovereign over even this. 17 When Moses was angry with Dathan and Abiram, he did nothing against them in anger, but controlled his anger by reason. 18 For, as I have said, the temperate mind is able to get the better of the emotions, to correct some, and to render others powerless. 19 Why else did Jacob, our most wise father, censure the households of Simeon and Levi for their irrational slaughter of the entire tribe of the Shechemites, saying, “Cursed be their anger”? 20 For if reason could not control anger, he would not have spoken thus. 21 Now when God fashioned human beings, he planted in them emotions and inclinations, 22 but at the same time he enthroned the mind among the senses as a sacred governor over them all. 23 To the mind he gave the law; and one who lives subject to this will rule a kingdom that is temperate, just, good, and courageous.

God God’s due by honoring God’s right thus to regulate human relationships. 8–9: Lend without interest, Ex 22:25; Deut 23:19–20; the seventh year, Deut 15:1–2,9; neither gleans, so as to leave something for the poor, Ex 23:10–11; Lev 19:9–10. Specific commandments of the Torah provide ways to remedy specific vices. 10–13: Commitment to virtue must outweigh even positive emotions like love for one’s family and friends (cf. Deut 13.6–11). The author will return to this topic at length (13.19–14.1; 14.13–20; 15.4–23). 12: See Prov 13.24; 19:18; 23.13–14; 29.15,17. 14: Ex 23:4–5; Deut 20.19–20,24. Far from being a law that promotes hatred of foreigners (a frequent criticism; Diod. Sic. 34/35.1.1–4; Tacitus, Hist. 5.5; Josephus, Ag. Ap. 2.121), the Torah teaches kindness and humaneness toward one’s enemies. 17: When challenged by Dathan and Abiram, Moses acted justly by submitting the matter to God’s adjudication (Num 16.1–35). 19–20: Jacob’s deathbed censure of Simeon and Levi (Gen 49:7) for their refusal to reconcile with the inhabitants of Shechem after the seduction of their sister Dinah (see Gen 34.1–31) indicates that reason should be expected to master anger. Other Jewish authors praise Simeon and Levi for this act, suggesting that Jacob was at fault (Jdt 8.2–4; T. Levi 5–6). 21–23: The author regards inclinations and emotions to be part of God’s design of the human being, and therefore aligns with the schools that seek to master rather than eliminate them. Diligent observance of the Torah promises the enjoyment of the “kingship” familiar from Stoic discourse, the exercise of perfect rule over the passions and enjoyment of the fruits of virtuous self-governance. 2.24–3.2: See 1.5–6a n. 3.2–5; See 1.6b n. 6–18: The story of David’s thirst (2 Sam 23.13–17; 1 Chr 11.15–19) provides a proof from example of the position taken in 3.2. David regards the water as blood (v. 15) because the soldiers risked their lives. Although he still experiences thirst at the close (hence does not eliminate his craving), David does not allow it to lead him 24 How is it then, one might say, that if reason is master of the emotions, it does not control forgetfulness and ignorance?

1 But this argument is entirely ridiculous; for it is evident that reason rules not over its own emotions, but over those of the body. 2 No one of us can eradicate that kind of desire, but reason can provide a way for us not to be enslaved by desire. 3 No one of us can eradicate anger from the mind, but reason can help to deal with anger. 4 No one of us can eradicate malice, but reason can fight at our side so that we are not overcome by malice. 5 For reason does not uproot the emotions but is their antagonist.

6 Now this can be explained more clearly by the story of King David’s thirst. 7 David had been attacking the Philistines all day long, and together with the soldiers of his nation had killed many of them. 8 Then when evening fell, he came, sweating and quite exhausted, to the royal tent, around which the whole army of our ancestors had encamped. 9 Now all the rest were at supper, but the king was extremely thirsty, and though springs were plentiful there, he could not satisfy his thirst from them. 10 But a certain irrational desire for the water in the enemy’s territory tormented and inflamed him, undid and consumed him. 11 When his guards complained bitterly because of the king’s craving, two staunch young soldiers, respecting the king’s desire, armed themselves fully, and taking a pitcher climbed over the enemy’s ramparts. 12 Eluding the sentinels at the gates, they went searching throughout the enemy camp and found the spring, and from it boldly brought the king a drink. 13 But David, though he was burning with thirst, considered it an altogether fearful danger to his soul to drink what was regarded as equivalent to blood. 14 Therefore, opposing reason to desire, he poured out the drink as an offering to God. 15 For the temperate mind can conquer the drives of the emotions and quench the flames of frenzied desires; it can overthrow bodily agonies even when they are extreme, and by nobility of reason spurn all domination by the emotions.

19 The present occasion now invites us to a narrative demonstration of temperate reason. 20 At a time when our ancestors were enjoying profound peace because of their observance of the law and were prospering, so that even Seleucus Nicanor, king of Asia, had both appropriated money to them for the temple service and recognized their commonwealth—just at that time certain persons attempted a revolution against the public harmony and caused many and various disasters.

4 Now there was a certain Simon, a political opponent of the noble and good man, Onias, who then held the high priesthood for life. When despite all manner of slander he was unable to injure Onias in the eyes of the nation, he fled the country with the purpose of betraying it. 2 So he came to Apollonius, governor of Syria, Phoenicia, and Cilicia, and said, “I have come here because I am loyal to the king’s government, to report that in the Jerusalem treasuries there are deposited tens of thousands in private funds, which are not the property of the temple but belong to a Gk you

---

b Other ancient authorities read he hurried and c Or embarrassed because of d Gk he

1722 | APOCRYPHA
King Seleucus." 4 When Apollonius learned the details of these things, he praised Simon for his service to the king and went up to Seleucus to inform him of the rich treasure. 5 On receiving authority to deal with this matter, he proceeded quickly to our country accompanied by the accursed Simon and a very strong military force. 6 He said that he had come with the king's authority to seize the private funds in the treasury. 7 The people indignantly protested his words, considering it outrageous that those who had committed deposits to the sacred treasury should be deprived of them, and did all that they could to prevent it. 8 But, uttering threats, Apollonius went on to the temple. 9 While the priests together with women and children were imploring God in the temple to shield the holy place that was being treated so contumeliously, 10 and while Apollonius was going up with his armed forces to seize the money, angels on horseback with lightning flashing from their weapons appeared from heaven, instilling in them great fear and trembling. 11 Then Apollonius fell down half dead in the temple area that was open to all, stretched out his hands toward heaven, and with tears begged the Hebrews to pray for him and propitiate the wrath of the heavenly army. 12 For he said that he had committed a sin deserving of death, and that if he were spared he would praise the blessedness of the holy place before all people. 13 Moved by these words, the high priest Onias, although otherwise he had scruples about doing so, prayed for him so that King Seleucus would not suppose that Apollonius had been overcome by human treachery and not by divine justice. 14 So Apollonius, having been saved beyond all expectations, went away to report to the king what had happened to him. 15 When King Seleucus died, his son Antiochus Epiphanes succeeded to the throne, an arrogant and terrible man, 16 who removed Onias from the priesthood and appointed Onias's brother Jason as high priest. 17 Jason agreed that if the office were conferred on him he would pay the king three thousand six hundred sixty talents annually. 18 So the king appointed him high priest and ruler of the nation. 19 Jason 20 changed the nation's way of life and altered its form of government in complete violation of the law, so that not only was a gymnasium constructed at the very citadel of our native land, but also the temple service was abolished. 21 The divine justice was angered by these acts and caused Antiochus himself to make war on them. 22 For when he was warring against Ptolemy in Egypt, he heard that a rumor of his death had spread and that the people of Jerusalem

---

a Gk he
b Gk his
c Gk He
d Or high place
The tyrant Antiochus, sitting in state with his counselors on a certain high place, and with his armed soldiers standing around him, ordered the guards to seize each and every Hebrew and to compel them to eat pork and food sacrificed to idols. If any were not willing to eat defiling food, they were to be broken on the wheel and killed. When many persons had been rounded up, one man, Eleazar by name, leader of the flock, was brought before the king. He was a man of priestly family, learned in the law, advanced in age, and known to many in the tyrant’s court because of his philosophy.

When Antiochus saw him he said, “Before I begin to torture you, old man, I would advise you to save yourself by eating pork, for I respect your age and your gray hairs. Although you have had them for so long a time, it does not seem to me that you are a philosopher when you observe the religion of the Jews. When nature has granted it to us, why should you abhor eating the very excellent meat of this animal? It is senseless not to enjoy delicious things that are not shameful, and wrong to spurn the gifts of nature. It seems to me that you will do something even more senseless if, by holding a vain opinion concerning the truth, you continue to despise me to your own hurt. Will you not awaken from your foolish philosophy, dispel your futile reasonings, adopt a mind appropriate to your years, philosophize according to the truth of what is beneficial, and have compassion on your old age by honoring my humane advice? For consider this: if there is some power watching over this religion of yours, it will excuse you from any transgression that arises out of compulsion.”

When the tyrant urged him in this fashion to eat meat unlawfully, Eleazar asked to have a word. When he had received permission to speak, he began to address the people as follows: “We, O Antiochus, who have been persuaded to govern our lives by the divine law, think that there is no compulsion more powerful than our obedience to the law. Therefore we consider that we should not transgress it in any respect. Even if, as you suppose, our law were not truly divine and we had wrongly held it to be divine, not even so would it be right for us to invalidate our reputation for piety. Therefore do not suppose that it would be a petty sin if we were to eat defiling food; to transgress the law in though living by it were irrational, the law has shown sympathy toward us. Things the Creator of the world in giving us laws established by God, we know that in the nature of things we worship the only living God. The law teaches us piety, so that with proper reverence we worship the only living God.

---

5.1–6.30: The example of Eleazar. Antiochus is presented throughout the book as a stereotypical tyrant, inventing cruel torments, displaying arrogance, and suppressing time-honored, local laws. The scene of the tyrant confronting the sage is familiar in Greco-Roman philosophical texts, except that here an aged Jewish priest is cast in the role of the sage. 5–38: The “speech duel” between Antiochus and Eleazar gives the author an opportunity to state and refute the dominant culture’s case against Judaism. 7–8: Philosophers claimed that the universal law of nature trumps the imperfect, particularistic laws of any one people. The prohibition of pork (see Lev 11.7; Deut 14.8) was frequently targeted for ridicule as a barbaric peculiarity that flew in the face of nature. 9: Antiochus criticizes the avoidance of pork as unjust, as it shows ingratitude toward the gifts of nature, and a sign of ignorance concerning what is truly permissible and what is truly shameful. 13: Transgression of a law under compulsion was excusable according to Greek philosophers. 15: Eleazar addresses not only the tyrant, but also the audience, which includes the other Jewish captives. He seeks as much to encourage the latter as to answer the former. 19–21: Like the Stoics, Eleazar considers all sins to be of equal seriousness since all show...

Therefore we do not eat defiling food; for since we believe that the law was established by God, we know that in the nature of things the Creator of the world in giving us the law has shown sympathy toward us. He has permitted us to eat what will be most suitable for our lives, but he has forbidden us to eat meats that would be contrary to this. It would be tyrannical for you to compel us not only to transgress the law, but also to eat in such a way that you may deride us for eating defiling foods, which are most hateful to us. But you shall have no such occasion to laugh at me, nor will I transgress the sacred oaths of my ancestors concerning the keeping of the law, not even if you gouge out my eyes and burn my entrails. I am not so old and cowardly as not to be young in reason on behalf of piety. Therefore get your torture wheels ready and fan the fire more vehemently! I do not so pity my old age as to break the ancestral law by my own act. I will not play false to you, O law that trained me, nor will I renounce you, beloved self-control. I will not put you to shame, O king, for in either case the law is equally despised. You scoff at our philosophy as though living by it were irrational, but it teaches us self-control, so that we master all pleasures and desires, and it also trains us in courage, so that we endure any suffering willingly; it instructs us in justice, so that in all our dealings we act impartially, and it teaches us piety, so that with proper reverence we worship the only living God. The law teaches us piety, so that with proper reverence we worship the only living God.

When Eleazar in this manner had made eloquent response to the exhortations of the tyrant, the guards who were standing by dragged him violently to the instruments of torture. First they stripped the old man, though he remained adorned with the gracefulness of his piety. After they had tied his arms on each side they flogged him, while a herald who faced him cried out, “Obey the king’s commands!” But the courageous and noble man, like a true Eleazar, was unmoved, as though being tortured in a dream; yet while the old man’s eyes were raised to heaven, his flesh was being torn by scourges, his blood flowing, and his sides were being cut to pieces. Although he fell to the ground because his body could not endure the agonies, he kept his reason upright and unwavering. One of the cruel guards rushed at him and began to kick him in the side to make him get up again after he fell. But he bore the pains and scorned the punishment and endured the tortures. Like a noble athlete the old man, while being beaten, was victorious over his torturers; in fact, with his face bathed in sweat, and gasping heavily for breath, he amazed even his torturers by his courageous spirit.

equal affront to God, whether or not an outsider like Antiochus considers the particular issue weighty. 22–24: Eleazar counters Antiochus’s challenge to Judaism’s status as a worthy philosophy (5.7,11) with the functional proof that obedience to the Torah nurtures the cardinal virtues prized by Platonic and Stoic philosophers (piety replaces “rational judgment” here; see 1.18). 25–26: In the nature of things, lit., “according to nature.” Stoics sought to live in accordance with the divine order inherent in creation. Eleazar counters Antiochus’s criticism that the Torah contradicts nature (5.8–9) by affirming the Torah’s origin in the mind of the Creator of nature, thus providing an even more reliable guide to virtue. 29: Sacred oaths, Ex 24.3,7; Josh 24.18,21,24. 38: Eleazar exhibits the freedom of the sage prized by Stoic philosophy. 6.2: Eleazar’s honor was not diminished by the degrading treatment he received. 5: Like a true Eleazar, “Eleazar” means “God has helped,” hence, “like someone truly helped by God.” 7: Keeping reason upright is the goal of the sage, even as it is for Eleazar. 10: The victim becomes the victor by being able to endure, without capitulation, more than the torturers can inflict. Comparing Eleazar to a noble athlete reflects widespread philosophical usage of athletic imagery to transform passive 12 At that point, partly out of pity for his old age, partly out of sympathy from their acquaintance with him, partly out of admiration for his endurance, some of the king’s retinue came to him and said, “Eleazar, why are you so irrationally destroying yourself through these evil things? We will set before you some cooked meat; save yourself by pretending to eat pork.”

16 But Eleazar, as though more bitterly tormented by this counsel, cried out: “Never may we, the children of Abraham, think so basely that out of cowardice we feign a role unbecoming to us! For it would be irrational if having lived in accordance with truth up to old age and having maintained in accordance with law the reputation of such a life, we should now change our course and ourselves become a pattern of impiety to the young by setting them an example in the eating of defiling food. It would be shameful if we should survive for a little while and during that time be a laughingstock to all for our cowardice, and be despised by the tyrant as unmanly by not contending even to death for our divine law. Therefore, O children of Abraham, die nobly for your religion! And you, guards of the tyrant, why do you delay?”

24 When they saw that he was so courageous in the face of the afflictions, and that he had not been changed by their compassion, the guards brought him to the fire. There they burned him with maliciously contrived instruments, threw him down, and poured stinking liquids into his nostrils. When he was now burned to his very bones and about to expire, he lifted up his eyes to God and said, “You know, O God, that though I might have saved myself, I am dying in burning torments for the sake of the law. Be merciful to your people, and let our punishment suffice for them. Make my blood their purification, and take my life in exchange for theirs.” After he said this, the holy man died nobly in his tortures; even in the tortures of death he resisted, by virtue of reason, for the sake of the law. Admittedly, then, devout reason is sovereign over the emotions. For if the emotions had prevailed over reason, we would have testified to their domination. But now that reason has conquered the emotions, we properly attribute to it the power to govern. It is right for us to acknowledge the dominance of reason when it masters even external agonies. It would be ridiculous to deny it. I have proved not only that reason has mastered agonies, but also that it masters pleasures and in no respect yields to them.

7 For like a most skillful pilot, the reason of our father Eleazar steered the ship of religion over the sea of the emotions, and though buffeted by the stormings of the tyrant and overwhelmed by the mighty waves of tortures, in no way did he turn the rudder of religion until he sailed into the haven of immortal victory. No city besieged with many ingenious war machines has ever held out as did that most holy man. Although his sacred life was consumed by tortures and racks, he conquered the besiegers with the shield of his devout reason. For in setting his mind firm like a jutting cliff, our father Eleazar broke the maddening waves of the emotions. O priest, worthy of the priesthood, you neither defiled your sacred teeth

---

a Or O children of Abraham b Syr: Meaning of Gk uncertain

e 4 Maccabees 7

endurance into active resistance. This imagery recurs in 9.23; 11.20; 12.11,14; 13.13,15; 16.16; 17.11–16. 12–23: See 2 Macc 6.21–22. Eleazar’s rejection of the ruse recalls Socrates’ rejection of the escape planned by his friends. Neither consented to purchasing a few more years of life at the cost of preserving the virtue of that life unblemished (5.36; 6.18–21; Plato, Crito, 52A–54C). Eleazar cannot maintain his private integrity without also preserving his public witness and example. 28–29: The author combines the belief that a display of covenant obedience would bring an end to God’s wrath upon the disobedient nation (Deut 30.1–5) with the sacrificial practice of using a victim’s blood to atone for a life (Lev 17.11) to interpret the significance of the martyrdoms (cf. 17.21–22). This is an instructive parallel development to early Christian reflection on the death of Jesus as an act of atonement for the unrighteous. Greek drama also frequently features voluntary deaths as sacrifices that allow others to live or a nation to survive.

6.31–7.23: Reflection on Eleazar’s example. 6.31–35: See 3.19n. 7.1–5: The author uses a series of images familiar from popular ethical philosophy to praise Eleazar’s achievement of mastery over emotions and sensanor profaned your stomach, which had room only for reverence and purity, by eating defiling foods. 7 O man in harmony with the law and philosopher of divine life! 8 Such should be those who are administrators of the law, shielding it with their own blood and noble sweat in sufferings even to death. 9 You, father, strengthened our loyalty to the law through your glorious endurance, and you did not abandon the holiness that you praised, but by your deeds you made your words of divine philosophy credible. 10 O aged man, more powerful than tortures; O elder, fiercer than fire; O supreme king over the passions, Eleazar! 11 For just as our father Aaron, armed with the censer, ran through the multitude of the people and conquered the fiery angel, 12 so the descendant of Aaron, Eleazar, though being consumed by the fire, remained unmoved in his reason. 13 Most amazing, indeed, though he was an old man, his body no longer tense and firm, his muscles flabby, his sinews feeble, he became young again in spirit through reason; and by reason like that of Isaac he rendered the many-headed rack ineffective. 15 O man of blessed age and of venerable gray hair and of law-abiding life, whom the faithful seal of death has perfected!

16 If, therefore, because of piety an aged man despised tortures even to death, most certainly devout reason is governor of the emotions. 17 Some perhaps might say, “Not all have full command of their emotions, because not all have prudent reason.” 18 But as many as attend to religion with a whole heart, these alone are able to control the passions of the flesh, 19 since they believe that they, like our patriarchs Abraham and Isaac and Jacob, do not die to God, but live to God. 20 No contradiction therefore arises when some persons appear to be dominated by their emotions because of the weakness of their reason. 21 What person who lives as a philosopher by the whole rule of philosophy, and trusts in God, 22 and knows that it is blessed to endure any suffering for the sake of virtue, would not be able to overcome the emotions through godliness? 23 For only the wise and courageous are masters of their emotions.

8 For this is why even the very young, by following a philosophy in accordance with devout reason, have prevailed over the most painful instruments of torture. 2 For when the tyrant was conspicuously defeated in his first attempt, being unable to compel an aged man to eat defiling foods, then in violent rage he commanded that others of the Hebrew captives be brought, and that any who ate defiling food would be freed after eating, but if any were to refuse, they would be tortured even more cruelly.

3 When the tyrant had given these orders, seven brothers—handsome, modest, noble, and accomplished in every way—were brought before him along with their aged mother. 4 When the tyrant saw them, grouped about their mother as though a chorus, he was pleased with them. And struck by

6 Far from devaluing his body, Eleazar honors it in his choice of endurance over capitulation. 9: Consistency in word and speech is the test of the value of one’s philosophy, or way of life. 11–12: Aaron, see Num 16.41–50; Wis 18.20–25. Both priests courageously took a stand in a place of great danger for the sake of the nation in order to perform an act of expiation. 14: Isaac, see Gen 22.1–19. 15: The faithful seal of death . . . perfected, because Eleazar preserved his honor and virtue intact to the end, and they are now unassailable forever.

8.1–12.19: The example of the seven brothers. 8.2: Conspicuously defeated, Antiochus is aware that the martyrs’ effective resistance unto death publicly shames him. In violent rage, Antiochus fails to master his own emotions, giving them instead the upper hand. The Greco-Syrian king falls short of the Greek ideal so fully embodied by the non-Greek martyrs (see 9.10–11), and is indeed unfit to rule others (Plato, Gorg. 491D; Dio Chrys., Or. 62.1). 3–5: Embodying the Greek ideal of male beauty and skill, the brothers do not lack the potential for success in the Greek world. 4: Chorus, an image from the Greek stage, often speaking in unison and represent-their appearance and nobility, he smiled at them, and summoned them nearer and said, “Young men, with favorable feelings I admire each and every one of you, and greatly respect the beauty and the number of such brothers. Not only do I advise you not to display the same madness as that of the old man who has just been tortured, but I also exhort you to yield to me and enjoy my friendship. Just as I am able to punish those who disobey my orders, so I can be a benefactor to those who obey me. Trust me, then, and you will have positions of authority in my government if you will renounce the ancestral tradition of your national life. Enjoy your youth by adopting the Greek way of life and by changing your manner of living. But if by disobedience you rouse my anger, you will compel me to destroy each and every one of you with dreadful punishments through tortures. Therefore take pity on yourselves.
Even I, your enemy, have compassion for your youth and handsome appearance. Will you not consider this, that if you disobey, nothing remains for you but to die on the rack?”

When he had said these things, he ordered the instruments of torture to be brought forward so as to persuade them out of fear to eat the defiling food. When the guards had placed before them wheels and joint-dislocators, rack and hooks and catapults and caldrons, braziers and thumbscrews and iron claws and wedges and bellows, the tyrant resumed speaking:
“Be afraid, young fellows; whatever justice you revere will be merciful to you when you transgress under compulsion.”

But when they had heard the inducements and saw the dreadful devices, not only were they not afraid, but they also opposed the tyrant with their own philosophy, and by their right reasoning nullified his tyranny.
Let us consider, on the other hand, what arguments might have been used if some of them had been cowardly and unmanly.
Would they not have been the following?

“O wretches that we are and so senseless!
Since the king has summoned and exhorted us to accept kind treatment if we obey him, why do we take pleasure in vain resolves and venture upon a disobedience that brings death? O men and brothers, should we not fear the instruments of torture and consider the threats of torments, and give up this vain opinion and this arrogance that threatens to destroy us? Let us take pity on our youth and have compassion on our mother’s age;
and let us seriously consider that if we disobey we are dead! Also, divine justice will excuse us for fearing the king when we are under compulsion. Why do we banish ourselves from this most pleasant life and deprive ourselves of this delightful world? Let us not struggle against compulsion or take hollow pride in being put to the rack. Not even the law itself would arbitrarily put us to death for fearing the instruments of torture. Why does such contentiousness excite us and such a fatal stubbornness please us, when we can live in peace if we obey the king?”

But the youths, though about to be tortured, neither said any of these things nor even seriously considered them. For they were contemptuous of the emotions and sovereign over agonies, so that as soon as the tyrant had ceased counseling them to eat defiling food, all with one voice together, as from one mind, said:

“Why do you delay, O tyrant? For we are ready to die rather than transgress our ancestral commandments; we are obviously putting our forebears to shame unless we should practice ready obedience to the law and to Moses\textsuperscript{a} our counselor. 3 Tyrant and counselor of lawlessness, in your hatred for us do not pity us more than we pity ourselves. \textsuperscript{b} 4 For we consider this pity of yours, which insures our safety through transgression of the law, to be more grievous than death itself. 5 You are trying to terrify us by threatening us with death by torture, as though a short time ago you learned nothing from Eleazar. 6 And if the aged men of the Hebrews because of their religion lived piously\textsuperscript{c} while enduring torture, it would be even more fitting that we young men should die despising your coercive tortures, which our aged instructor also overcame. \textsuperscript{7} Therefore, tyrant, put us to the test; and if you take our lives because of our religion, do not suppose that you can injure us by torturing us. \textsuperscript{8} For we, through this severe suffering and endurance, shall have the prize of virtue and shall be with God, on whose account we suffer; \textsuperscript{9} but you, because of your bloodthirstiness toward us, will deservedly undergo from the divine justice eternal torment by fire.”

10 When they had said these things, the tyrant was not only indignant, as at those who are disobedient, but also infuriated, as at those who are ungrateful. \textsuperscript{11} Then at his command the guards brought forward the eldest, and having torn off his tunic, they bound his hands and arms with thongs on each side. \textsuperscript{12} When they had worn themselves out beating him with scourges, without accomplishing anything, they placed him upon the wheel. \textsuperscript{13} When the noble youth was stretched out around this, his limbs were dislocated, \textsuperscript{14} and with every member disjointed he denounced the tyrant, saying, \textsuperscript{15} “Most abominable tyrant, enemy of heavenly justice, savage of mind, you are mangling me in this manner, not because I am a murderer, or as one who acts impiously, but because I protect the divine law.” \textsuperscript{16} And when the guards said, “Agree to eat so that you may be released from the tortures,” \textsuperscript{17} he replied, “You abominable lackeys, your wheel is not so powerful as to strangle my reason. Cut my limbs, burn my flesh, and twist my joints; \textsuperscript{18} through all these tortures I will convince you that children of the Hebrews alone are invincible where virtue is concerned.” \textsuperscript{19} While he was saying these things, they spread fire under him, and while fanning the flames\textsuperscript{b} they tightened the wheel further. \textsuperscript{20} The wheel was completely smeared with blood, and the heap of coals was being quenched by the drippings of gore, and pieces of flesh were falling off the axles of the machine. \textsuperscript{21} Although the ligaments joining his bones were already severed, the courageous youth, worthy of Abraham, did not groan, \textsuperscript{22} but as though transformed by fire into immortality, he nobly endured the rackings. \textsuperscript{23} “Imitate me, brothers,” he said. “Do not leave your post in my struggle\textsuperscript{d} or renounce our courageous family ties. \textsuperscript{24} Fight the sacred and noble battle for religion. Thereby the just Providence of our ancestors may become merciful to our nation and take vengeance on the accursed tyrant.” \textsuperscript{25} When he had said this, the saintly youth broke the thread of life.

\textsuperscript{26} While all were marveling at his courageous spirit, the guards brought in the next eldest, and after fitting themselves with iron gauntlets having sharp hooks, they bound

\begin{itemize}
\item \textsuperscript{a} Other ancient authorities read knowledge
\item \textsuperscript{b} Meaning of Gk uncertain
\item \textsuperscript{c} Other ancient authorities read died
\item \textsuperscript{d} Other ancient authorities read post forever \end{itemize} him to the torture machine and catapult.

27 Before torturing him, they inquired if he "was willing to eat, and they heard his noble decision.

28 These leopard-like beasts tore out his sinews with the iron hands, flayed all his flesh up to his chin, and tore away his scalp. But he steadfastly endured this agony and said, 29 "How sweet is any kind of death for the religion of our ancestors!"

30 To the tyrant he said, "Do you not think, you most savage tyrant, that you are being tortured more than I, as you see the arrogant design of your tyranny being defeated by our endurance for the sake of religion?

31 I lighten my pain by the joys that come from virtue,

32 but you suffer torture by the threats that come from impiety. You will not escape, you most abominable tyrant, the judgments of the divine wrath."

10 When he too had endured a glorious death, the third was led in, and many repeatedly urged him to save himself by tasting the meat.

2 But he shouted, "Do you not know that the same father begot me as well as those who died, and the same mother bore me, and that I was brought up on the same teachings?

3 I do not renounce the noble kinship that binds me to my brothers."

5 Enraged by the man's boldness, they disjointed his hands and feet with their instruments, dismembering him by prying his limbs from their sockets, and breaking his fingers and arms and legs and elbows.

7 Since they were not able in any way to break his spirit,

8 they abandoned the instruments and scalped him with their fingernails in a Scythian fashion.

9 When he was about to die, he said, "We, most abominable tyrant, are suffering because of our godly training and virtue,

11 but you, because of your impiety and bloodthirstiness, will undergo unceasing torments."

12 When he too had died in a manner worthy of his brothers, they dragged in the fourth, saying,

13 "As for you, do not give way to the same insanity as your brothers, but obey the king and save yourself."

14 But he said to them, "You do not have a fire hot enough to make me play the coward.

15 No—by the blessed death of my brothers, by the eternal destruction of the tyrant, and by the everlasting life of the pious, I will not renounce our noble family ties.

16 Contrive tortures, tyrant, so that you may learn from them that I am a brother to those who have just now been tortured.

17 When he heard this, the bloodthirsty, murderous, and utterly abominable Antiochus gave orders to cut out his tongue.

18 But he said, "Even if you remove my organ of speech, God hears also those who are mute.

19 See, here is my tongue; cut it off, for in spite of this you will not make our reason speechless.

20 Gladly, for the sake of God, we let our bodily members be mutilated.

21 God will visit you swiftly, for you are cutting out a tongue that has been melodious with divine hymns."

11 When he too died, after being cruelly tortured, the fifth leaped up, saying,

2 "I will not refuse, tyrant, to be tortured for the sake of virtue.

3 I have come of my own accord, so that by murdering me you will incur punishment from the heavenly justice for even..." more crimes. 4 Hater of virtue, hater of humankind, for what act of ours are you destroying us in this way? 5 Is it because we revere the Creator of all things and live according to his virtuous law? 6 But these deeds deserve honors, not tortures.” 9 While he was saying these things, the guards bound him and dragged him to the catapult; 10 they tied him to it on his knees, and fitting iron clamps on them, they twisted his back like a scorpion, and all his members were disjointed. 11 In this condition, gasping for breath and in anguish of body, 12 he said, “Tyrant, they are splendid favors that you grant us against your will, because through these noble sufferings you give us an opportunity to show our endurance for the law.”

13 When he too had died, the sixth, a mere boy, was led in. When the tyrant inquired whether he was willing to eat and be released, he said, 14 “I am younger in age than my brothers, but I am their equal in mind. 15 Since to this end we were born and bred, we ought likewise to die for the same principles. 16 So if you intend to torture me for not eating defil-ing foods, go on torturing!” 17 When he had said this, they led him to the wheel. 18 He was carefully stretched tight upon it, his back was broken, and he was roasted from underneath.
19 To his back they applied sharp spits that had been heated in the fire, and pierced his ribs so that his entrails were burned through.
20 While being tortured he said, “O contest befitting holiness, in which so many of us brothers have been summoned to an arena of sufferings for religion, and in which we have not been defeated! 21 For religious knowledge, O tyrant, is invincible. 22 I also, equipped with nobility, will die with my brothers, 23 and I my-selves will bring a great avenger upon you, you inventor of tortures and enemy of those who are truly devout. 24 We six boys have paralyzed your tyranny. 25 Since you have not been able to persuade us to change our mind or to force us to eat defiling foods, is not this your downfall? 26 Your fire is cold to us, and the catapults painless, and your violence powerless. 27 For it is not the guards of the tyrant but those of the divine law that are set over us; therefore, unconquered, we hold fast to reason.”

12 When he too, thrown into the caldron, had died a blessed death, the seventh and youngest of all came forward. 2 Even though the tyrant had been vehemently reproached by the brothers, he felt strong compassion for this child when he saw that he was already in fetters. He summoned him to his back to obey and save himself.

fifth brother comes forward as a contender rather than a victim. 4: The charge of hatred of humanity, frequently leveled against the Jews by those who held the Jewish law to be xenophobic (see 2.14n.), is turned back upon those who would persecute the Jews on account of their different religion and way of life. 6: See 9.15n. 12: The ideal sage engages hardships as a means of demonstrating commitment to virtue. These are the only favors the pious Jews will accept from Antiochus (contrast 8.6–7). 20: Contest . . . arena, see 6.10n. Not been defeated, since their wills could not be corrupted. 24–25: Antiochus has failed in his primary goal of forcing assimilation. 26:
Fire is cold, in the sense of powerless or ineffective to subvert the Judeans’ will. The martyrs have not, however, extinguished the awareness of pain, as a Stoic might strive to do (11.11; 14.9–10). 12.2: Vehemently reproached, better, “frightfully abused.” With skillful irony, the author suggests that Antiochus is the one who has been beaten down here. 6: Although the author presents Antiochus as acting out of compassion here, persuading the last brother to surrender would also effectively cancel his previous seven defeats. 7: The use of the Hebrew
7 But when his mother had exhorted him in the Hebrew language, as we shall tell a little later, \(^8\) he said, “Let me loose, let me speak to the king and to all his friends that are with him.” \(^9\) Extremely pleased by the boy’s declaration, they freed him at once. \(^10\) Running to the nearest of the braziers, \(^11\) he said, “You profane tyrant, most impious of all the wicked, since you have received good things and also your kingdom from God, were you not ashamed to murder his servants and torture on the wheel those who practice religion? \(^12\) Because of this, justice has laid up for you intense and eternal fire and tortures, and these throughout all time\(^a\) will never let you go. \(^13\) As a man, were you not ashamed, you most savage beast, to cut out the tongues of men who have feelings like yours and are made of the same elements as you, and to maltreat and torture them in this way? \(^14\) Surely they by dying nobly fulfilled their service to God, but you will wail bitterly for having killed without cause the contestants for virtue.” \(^15\) Then because he too was about to die, he said, “I do not desert the excellent example\(^b\) of my brothers, \(^16\) and I call on the God of our ancestors to be merciful to our nation;\(^c\) but on you he will take vengeance both in this present life and when you are dead.” \(^19\) After he had uttered these imprecations, he flung himself into the braziers and so ended his life.\(^d\)

13 Since, then, the seven brothers despised sufferings even unto death, everyone must concede that devout reason is sovereign over the emotions. \(^2\) For if they had been slaves to their emotions and had eaten defiling food, we would say that they had been conquered by these emotions. \(^3\) But in fact it was not so. Instead, by reason, which is praised before God, they prevailed over their emotions. \(^4\) The supremacy of the mind over these cannot be overlooked, for the brothers\(^e\) mastered both emotions and pains. \(^5\) How then can one fail to confess the sovereignty of right reason over emotion in those who were not turned back by fiery agonies? \(^6\) For just as towers jutting out over harbors hold back the threatening waves and make it calm for those who sail into the inner basin, \(^7\) so the seven-towered right reason of the youths, by fortifying the harbor of religion, conquered the tempest of the emotions. \(^8\) For they constituted a holy chorus of religion and encouraged one another, saying, \(^9\) “Brothers, let us die like brothers for the sake of the law; let us imitate the three youths in Assyria who despised the same ordeal of the furnace. \(^10\) Let us not be cowardly in the demonstration of our piety.” \(^11\) While one said, “Courage, brother,” another said, “Bear up nobly,” \(^12\) and another reminded them, “Remember whence you came, and the father by whose hand Isaac would have submitted to being slain for the sake of religion.” \(^13\) Each of them and all of them together looking at one another, cheerful and undaunted, said, “Let us with all our hearts consecrate language here both hides the meaning of her speech from the king and is an act of resistance to Greek imperialism. When the speech is actually recounted a little later, however, the mother speaks to all her sons during Eleazar’s ordeal (16.15–25). \(^11\), \(^13\): The last brother charges Antiochus with injustice against the God who gave him his authority (cf. Dan 4:25), since he has used that power to harm God’s loyal clients rather than benefit them and serve God’s cause. He also condemns Antiochus for violating the universal bond of humanity that unites all people by brutally torturing fellow human beings. The charges that Jews do not give the gods their due and violate the universal bond of humanity are thus again turned back upon the dominant culture. \(^19\): The youngest brother seizes what little control he can by committing suicide; see 17.1n. Contrast 2 Macc 7.39–40.

13.1–14.10: Reflection on the seven brothers’ example. 13.1–5: See 3.19n. 8: The brothers’ harmony in their collective commitment to the Torah helps each individually to remain steadfast. Such harmony (see 8.4n.) was considered a valuable civic virtue, since it enhanced social reinforcement of the group’s norms. 9: Dan 3 (esp. 3.17–18). The three youths, together with Daniel himself (Dan 6), were prototypes of resistance against a tyrant’s coercive threats and laws for the sake of maintaining their piety; see also 16.21; 18.12–13. 12: Gen 22.1–19. The mother will also be compared to Abraham, with whom she shared a willingness to put obedience to God’s command above the life of her children (14.20; 15.28). 13: The brothers regard obedience to God to the point of death...
ourselves to God, who gave us our lives, and let us use our bodies as a bulwark for the law. Let us not fear him who thinks he is killing us, for great is the struggle of the soul and the danger of eternal torment lying before those who transgress the commandment of God. Therefore let us put on the full armor of self-control, which is divine reason. For if we so die, Abraham and Isaac and Jacob will welcome us, and all the fathers will praise us.” Those who were left behind said to each of the brothers who were being dragged away, “Do not put us to shame, brother, or betray the brothers who have died before us.”

You are not ignorant of the affection of family ties, which the divine and all-wise Providence has bequeathed through the fathers to their descendants and which was implanted in the mother’s womb. There each of the brothers spent the same length of time and was shaped during the same period of time; and growing from the same blood and through the same life, they were brought to the light of day. When they were born after an equal time of gestation, they drank milk from the same fountains. From such embraces brotherly-loving souls are nourished; and they grow stronger from this common nurture and daily companionship, and from both general education and our discipline in the law of God.

Therefore, when sympathy and brotherly affection had been so established, the brothers were the more sympathetic to one another. Since they had been educated by the same law and trained in the same virtues and brought up in right living, they loved one another all the more. A common zeal for nobility strengthened their goodwill toward one another, and their concord, because they could make their brotherly love more fervent with the aid of their religion. But although nature and companionship and virtuous habits had augmented the affection of family ties, those who were left endured for the sake of religion, while watching their brothers being maltreated and tortured to death.

Furthermore, they encouraged them to face the torture, so that they not only despised their agonies, but also mastered the emotions of brotherly love.

O reason, more royal than kings and freer than the free! O sacred and harmonious concord of the seven brothers on behalf of religion! None of the seven youths proved coward or shrank from death, but all of them, as though running the course toward immortality, hastened to death by torture. Just as the hands and feet are moved in harmony with the guidance of the mind, so those holy youths, as though moved by an immortal spirit of devotion, agreed to go to death for its sake. O most holy seven, brothers in harmony! For just as the seven days of creation move in choral dance around religion, so these youths, forming a chorus, encircled the sevenfold fear of tortures and dissolved it. Even now, we ourselves shudder as we hear of the suffering of these young men; they not only saw what was happening, not only heard the direct word of threat, but also bore the sufferings patiently, and in agonies of fire at that.

a Or souls
b Other ancient authorities read suffer c Or O minds

a fitting return of gratitude for the gift of life itself; see also 16.18–19. 14: Who thinks he is killing, see 9.7n.; cf. Mt 10.28. 19–26: Almost every detail in the author’s discussion of the love between siblings has a counterpart in Greco-Roman philosophical discussions of this topic, another indication of how immersed the author was in Greek culture and learning while remaining fully committed to the Jewish way of life. 13.27–14.1: Because of their training in the Torah, the brothers are able to strengthen rather than weaken each other’s resolve, enabling one another to walk in line with virtue, thus fulfilling the Aristotelian ideal of friendship. 14.2: The sage cannot be compelled to sacrifice virtue, bowing to any external pressure, and so remains free and exercises royal self-governance. 7: Seven was mystically associated with the harmony of God’s creation and created order (Philo, Opif. 90–128). 8: Chorus, see 8.4n. and 13.8n. 9: The author has justifiable confidence in his power of vivid description to make his audience squirm. He has used this rhetorical technique in order to heighten the audience’s appreciation of the sensations the martyrs withstood, so as to embolden them to remain steadfast in their commitment to the Jewish way of life in the face of far less daunting difficulties.
be more excruciatingly painful than this? For the power of fire is intense and swift, and it consumed their bodies quickly.

11 Do not consider it amazing that reason had full command over these men in their tortures, since the mind of woman despised even more diverse agonies. ¹² for the mother of the seven young men bore up under the rackings of each one of her children.

13 Observe how complex is a mother’s love for her children, which draws everything toward an emotion felt in her inmost parts. ¹⁴ Even unreasoning animals, as well as human beings, have a sympathy and parental love for their offspring. ¹⁵ For example, among birds, the ones that are tame protect their young by building on the housetops, ¹⁶ and the others, by building at the tops of mountains and the depths of chasms, in holes of trees, and on tree-tops, hatch the nestlings and ward off the intruder. ¹⁷ If they are not able to keep the intruder away, they do what they can to help their young by flying in circles around them in the anguish of love, warning them with their own calls. ¹⁸ And why is it necessary to demonstrate sympathy for children by the example of unreasoning animals, ¹⁹ since even bees at the time for making honeycombs defend themselves against intruders and, as though with an iron dart, sting those who approach their hive and defend it even to the death? ²⁰ But sympathy for her children did not sway the mother of the young men; she was of the same mind as Abraham.

15 O reason of the children, tyrant over the emotions! O religion, more desirable to the mother than her children! ² Two courses were open to this mother, that of religion, and that of preserving her seven sons for a time, as the tyrant had promised. ³ She loved religion more, the religion that preserves them for eternal life according to God’s promise. ⁴ In what manner might I express the emotions of parents who love their children? We impress upon the character of a small child a wondrous likeness both of mind and of form. Especially is this true of mothers, who because of their birth pangs have a deeper sympathy toward their offspring than do the fathers. ⁵ Considering that mothers are the weaker sex and give birth to many, they are more devoted to their children. ⁶ The mother of the seven boys, more than any other mother, loved her children. In seven pregnancies she had implanted in herself tender love toward them, ⁷ and because of the many pains she suffered with each of them she had sympathy for them; ⁸ yet because of the fear of God she disdained the temporary safety of her children. ⁹ Not only so, but also because of the nobility of her sons and their ready obedience to the law, she felt a greater tenderness toward them. ¹⁰ For they were righteous and self-controlled and brave and magnanimous, and loved their brothers and their mother, so that they obeyed her even to death in keeping the ordinances. ¹¹ Nevertheless, though so many factors influenced the mother to suffer with them out of love for her children, in the case of none of them were the various tortures strong enough to pervert her reason. ¹² But each child separately and all of them together the mother urged on to death for religion’s sake. ¹³ O sacred nature and affection of parental love, yearning of parents toward offspring, nurture and indomitable suffering by mothers! ¹⁴ This mother, who saw them tortured and burned one by one, because of religion

¹² Gk it ¹³ Gk according to God ¹⁴ Or For to the degree that mothers are weaker and the more children they bear, the more they are devoted to their children.

14.11–17.6: The example of the mother and reflection. The climactic example of the Torah’s ability to empower the mind for mastery of the emotions is the mother of the seven brothers. 14.11: Since the mind of woman, perhaps more accurately, “since even the mind of a woman.” Women were generally held to be more prone to yield to the emotions and sensations than men (Aristotle, Pol. 1.13; Philo, Leg. all. 2.44–50), with the result that a female’s mastery of such overwhelming experiences proves the efficacy of the Torah as a philosophical way of life beyond contradiction. 13–20: The author’s description of love for offspring once again shares many details with Greco-Roman writings on the topic; see 13.19–26n. 20: See 13.12n. 15.1: O reason . . . O religion . . . ! The author makes extensive use of “apostrophe” (direct address to some ideal or person not physically present) throughout his oration in order to heighten its emotionally evocative power. 2–3: For a time . . . for eternal did not change her attitude. 15 She watched the flesh of her children being consumed by fire, their toes and fingers scattered on the ground, and the flesh of the head to the chin exposed like masks.

16 O mother, tried now by more bitter pains than even the birth pangs you suffered for them! 17 O woman, who alone gave birth to such complete devotion! 18 When the firstborn breathed his last, it did not turn you aside, nor when the second in torments looked at you piteously nor when the third expired; 19 nor did you weep when you looked at the eyes of each one in his tortures gazing boldly at the same agonies, and saw in their nostrils the signs of the approach of death.

20 When you saw the flesh of children burned upon the flesh of other children, severed hands upon hands, scalped heads upon heads, and corpses fallen on other corpses, and when you saw the place filled with many spectators of the torturings, you did not shed tears. 21 Neither the melodies of sirens nor the songs of swans attract the attention of their hearers as did the voices of the children in songs of swans attract the attention of their spectators of the torturings, you did not shed tears.

22 How great and how many torturers the mother then suffered as her sons were tortured on the wheel and with the hot irons! 23 But devout reason, giving her heart a man’s courage in the very midst of her emotions, strengthened her to disregard, for the time, her parental love.

24 Although she witnessed the destruction of seven children and the ingenious and various rackings, this noble mother disregarded all these because of faith in God. 25 For as in the council chamber of her own soul she saw mighty advocates—nature, family, parental love, and the rackings of her children—this mother held two ballots, one bearing death and the other deliverance for her children. 26 She did not approve the deliverance that would preserve the seven sons for a short time, but as the daughter of God-fearing Abraham she remembered his fortitude.

29 O mother of the nation, vindicator of the law and champion of religion, who carried away the prize of the contest in your heart!

30 O more noble than males in steadfastness, and more courageous than men in endurance! Just as Noah’s ark, carrying the world in the universal flood, stoutly endured the waves, so you, O guardian of the law, overwhelmed from every side by the flood of your emotions and the violent winds, the torture of your sons, endured nobly and withstood the wintry storms that assail religion.

16 If, then, a woman, advanced in years and mother of seven sons, endured seeing her children tortured to death, it must be admitted that devout reason is sovereign over the emotions. Thus I have demonstrated not only that men have ruled over the emotions, but also that a woman has despised the fiercest tortures. The lions surrounding Daniel were not so savage, nor was the raging fiery furnace of Mishael so intensely hot, as was her innate parental love, inflamed as she saw her seven sons tortured in such varied ways. 4 But the mother quenched so many and such great emotions by devout reason.

5 Consider this also: If this woman, though a mother, had been fainthearted, she would

---

a Or quivering
b Other ancient authorities read having hidden them farewell, surrendered them have mourned over them and perhaps spoken as follows: °O how wretched am I and many times unhappy! After bearing seven children, I am now the mother of none! °O seven childbirths all in vain, seven profitless pregnancies, fruitless nurturings and wretched nursings! °In vain, my sons, I endured many birth pangs for you, and the more grievous anxieties of your upbringing. °Alas for my children, some unmarried, others married and without offspring. °I shall not see your children or have the happiness of being called grandmother. °Alas, I who had so many and beautiful children am a widow and alone, with many sorrows. °And when I die, I shall have none of my sons to bury me.” °Yet that holy and God-fearing mother did not wail with such a lament for any of them, nor did she dissuade any of them from dying, nor did she grieve as they were dying. °On the contrary, as though having a mind like adamant and giving rebirth for immortality to the whole number of her sons, she implored them and urged them on to death for the sake of religion. °O mother, soldier of God in the cause of religion, elder and woman! By steadfastness you have conquered like adamant and giving rebirth for immortality. °In vain, my sons, I have proved more powerful than a man. °For when you and your sons were arrested together, you stood and watched Eleazar being tortured, and said to your sons in the Hebrew language, °“My sons, noble is the contest to nullify the violence of the tyrant, frustrated his evil designs, and showed the courage of your faith!” °Nobly set like a roof on the pillars of your sons, you held firm and unswerving against the earthquake of the tortures. °Take courage, therefore, O holy-minded mother, a° Gk without benefit
b° Or much to be pitied
c° Gk sword
tortures. °Remember that it is through God that you have had a share in the world and have enjoyed life, °and therefore you ought to endure any suffering for the sake of God. °For his sake also our father Abraham was zealous to sacrifice his son Isaac, the ancestor of our nation; and when Isaac saw his father’s hand wielding a knife °and descending upon him, he did not cower. °Daniel the righteous was thrown to the lions, and Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishael were hurled into the fiery furnace and endured it for the sake of God. °You too must have the same faith in God and not be grieved. °It is unreasonable for people who have religious knowledge not to withstand pain.” °By these words the mother of the seven encouraged and persuaded each of her sons to die rather than violate God’s commandment. °They knew also that those who die for the sake of God live to God, as do Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the patriarchs.

17 Some of the guards said that when she also was about to be seized and put to death she threw herself into the flames so that no one might touch her body.

2 °O mother, who with your seven sons nullified the violence of the tyrant, frustrated his evil designs, and showed the courage of your faith! °Nobly set like a roof on the pillars of your sons, you held firm and unswerving against the earthquake of the tortures. °Take courage, therefore, O holy-minded mother,

Daniel, Dan 6.1–24. Mishael, also called Meshach, Dan 1.7; 3.1–30. 5–11: As for the brothers (8.16–26), the author provides a speech reflective of the mind-set that the mother refused to adopt. Almost every element in the hypothetical lament composed for the mother reflects the laments of bereaved mothers in the tragedies of Euripides (see especially Tro. 380–82, 473–88, 503–505, 758–60). Having raised many children only to lose them in a single struggle, the mother is worthy of comparison with Queen Hecuba of Troy. 12–13: The author stresses, however, that despite similar loss she did not grieve like Hecuba, since she considered the faithful deaths of her sons the best course for them and for her. Her pregnancies were not profitless (v. 7) since she gave rebirth for immortality to all her sons. Dissuade, see 12.6–7. Adamant, here a hard metal or diamond. 15: Hebrew, see 12.7n. 16: Noble . . . contest, see 6.10n. The martyrs bear witness in this public arena to the value of the Jewish way of life and the nation’s character. Fight zealously, again turning the passive experience of victimization into active resistance. 18–19: See 13.12–13n. 20: Abraham . . . Isaac, Gen 22.1–19. 21: Daniel . . . Mishael, see 13.9n.; 16.3n. 22: Have the same faith, or “show the same loyalty toward God.” 25: See 7.19n.; 9.8–9n. 17.1: The mother commits suicide rather than allow herself to be inappropriately handled by other men. Suicide under such circumstances

1736 | APOCRYPHAA
maintaining firm an enduring hope in God. 5 The moon in heaven, with the stars, does not stand so august as you, who, after lighting the way of your star-like seven sons to piety, stand in honor before God and are firmly set in heaven with them. 6 For your children were true descendants of father Abraham.a 7 If it were possible for us to paint the history of your religion as an artist might, would not those who first beheld it have shuddered as they saw the mother of the seven children enduring their varied tortures to death for the sake of religion? 8 Indeed it would be proper to inscribe on their tomb these words as a reminder to the people of our nation.b 9 “Here lie buried an aged priest and an aged woman and seven sons, because of the violence of the tyrant who wished to destroy the way of life of the Hebrews. 10 They vindicated their nation, looking to God and enduring torture even to death.”

11 Truly the contest in which they were engaged was divine, 12 for on that day virtue gave the awards and tested them for their endur-ce. The prize was immortality in endless life. 13 Eleazar was the first contestant, the mother of the seven sons entered the competition, and the brothers contended. 14 The tyrant was the antagonist, and the world and the human race were the spectators. 15 Reverence for God was victor and gave the crown to its own athletes. 16 Who did not admire the athletes of the divine legislation? Who were not amazed? 17 The tyrant himself and all his council marveled at their endurance, because of which they now stand before the divine throne and live the life of eternal blessedness. 18 For Moses says, “All who are consecrated are under your hands.” 20 These, then, who have been consecrated for the sake of God, are honored, not only with this honor, but also by the fact that because of them our enemies did not rule over our nation, 21 the tyrant was punished, and the homeland purified—they having become, as it were, a ransom for the sin of our nation. 22 And through the blood of those devout ones and their death as an atoning sacrifice, divine Providence preserved Israel that previously had been mistreated. 23 For the tyrant Antiochus, when he saw the courage of their virtue and their endurance under the tortures, proclaimed them to his soldiers as an example for their own endurance, 24 and this made them brave and courageous for infantry battle and siege, and he ravaged and conquered all his enemies.

18 O Israelite children, offspring of the seed of Abraham, obey this law and exercise piety in every way, 2 knowing that devout reason is master of all emotions, not only of sufferings from within, but also of those from without.

a Gk For your childbearing was from Abraham the father; other ancient authorities read For … Abraham the servant

b Or as a memorial to the heroes of our people
c Other ancient authorities read true d Other ancient authorities add virtue and e Other ancient authorities lack for the sake of God
Therefore those who gave over their bodies in suffering for the sake of religion were not only admired by mortals, but also were deemed worthy to share in a divine inheritance. Because of them the nation gained peace, and by reviving observance of the law in the homeland they ravaged the enemy. The tyrant Antiochus was both punished on earth and is being chastised after his death. Since in no way whatever was he able to compel the Israelites to become pagans and to abandon their ancestral customs, he left Jerusalem and marched against the Persians.

The mother of seven sons expressed also these principles to her children:

1. "I was a pure virgin and did not go outside my father’s house; but I guarded the rib from which woman was made. No seducer corrupted me on a desert plain, nor did the destroyer, the deceitful serpent, defile the purity of my virginity. In the time of my maturity I remained with my husband, and when these sons had grown up their father died. A happy man was he, who lived out his life with good children, and did not have the grief of bereavement. While he was still with you, he taught you the law and the prophets.

2. He read to you about Abel slain by Cain, and Isaac who was offered as a burnt offering, and about Joseph in prison. He told you of the zeal of Phinehas, and he taught you about Hananiah, Azariah, and Mishael in the fire. He praising Daniel in the den of the lions and blessed him. He reminded you of the scripture of Isaiah, which says, ‘Even though you go through the fire, the flame shall not consume you.’ He sang to you songs of the psalmist David, who said, ‘Many are the afflictions of the righteous.’ He recounted to you Solomon’s proverb, ‘There is a tree of life for those who do his will.’ He confirmed the query of Ezekiel, ‘Shall these dry bones live?’ For he did not forget to teach you the song that Moses taught, ‘Shall these dry bones live?’"

O bitter was that day—and yet not bitter—when that bitter tyrant of the Greeks quenched fire with fire in his cruel caldrons, and in his burning rage brought those seven sons of the daughter of Abraham to the catapult and back again to more tortures, pierced the pupils of their eyes and cut out their tongues, and put them to death with various tortures. For these crimes divine justice pursued and will pursue the accursed tyrant. But the sons of Abraham with their victorious mother are gathered together into the chorus of the fathers, and have received pure and immortal souls from God, to whom be glory forever and ever. Amen.

18.6–19: The mother’s testimony to feminine virtue and additional exhortation. This second speech of the mother is possibly a later addition, but nevertheless one well crafted to suit the larger text. Though celebrated mainly for her courage, the mother here reflects on her careful preservation throughout her life of her modesty and chastity, quintessential female virtues in the ancient world. Rib, Gen 2.22. Desert plain, Deut 22.25–27. Serpent, Gen 3.13; cf. 2 Cor 11.2–3. The father laudably fulfilled the obligations to teach his children (Deut 4.9; 6.7; 11.19) the scriptures (the law and the prophets). As Abel was attacked by Cain (Gen 4.8), so the ungodly continue to assault the pious. Isaac, Gen 22.1–19. Joseph endured prison rather than transgress virtue (Gen 39.1–23). Phinehas exemplified zeal for the Torah and watchfulness against assimilation (Num 25.1–9; Sir 45.23–24; 1 Macc 2.26, 54). Hananiah . . . Daniel, see 13.9n. The quotations from scripture encourage perseverance in hardship for the sake of covenant loyalty. Isa 43.2. The firm conviction in an afterlife allows the promise to remain true in an ultimate sense. Ps 34.19. The context may be important and assumed, as the constant refrain of this psalm speaks of God’s deliverance of the righteous from every trial (Ps 34.4, 6, 7, 17, 19). Prov 3.18, slightly altered. Ezek 37.2–3, as appropriate a question in Ezekiel’s valley as in the courtyard where the tortures occurred. Even those who were “burned to the very bones” (6.26) will not fail to enjoy God’s reward. Song, Deut 31.30–32.44. Deut 32.39; 30.20. The word order is crucial and climactic: God will make those righteous whom he has permitted to be killed. Length of your days is now transferred to eternity.

18.20–24: Conclusion. Speaking of a tyrant of the Greeks is a bitterly ironic criticism of the imperialism of Alexander the Great and his successors, since the Greeks prized themselves on perfecting democracy. The fates after death of martyrs and tyrant, foundational to the martyrs’ resistance, are here confirmed in the author’s closing sentences. Now the chorus (see 8.4n.) is in heaven.
This page intentionally left blank
THE NEW TESTAMENT

The new covenant commonly called
The New Testament of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ

New Revised Standard Version
This page intentionally left blank
INTRODUCTION TO THE GOSPELS

THE LITERARY GENRE OF THE GOSPELS

The English word "gospel" originally meant "good news," and it is an exact translation of the Gk word euangelion (from which the English word "evangelist" is derived). The opening of Mark's Gospel, "The beginning of the good news [or "gospel"] of Jesus Christ, the Son of God" (1.1), uses the word "gospel" for the message about salvation through Jesus. In the New Testament the word "gospel" (Gk euangelion) refers either to the act of preaching (1 Thess 1.5, NRSV: "our message of the gospel") or its content (Acts 15.7, NRSV: "message of the good news"); 20.24, NRSV: "good news"). Outside the New Testament and other early Christian writings, the term is used for happy announcements, such as a military victory, the birth of a son, or a wedding. An inscription from 9 bce uses the noun (in the plural) to refer to the past event of the birth of the Roman emperor Augustus: "the birthday of the god was for the world the beginning of 'joyful messages' which have gone forth because of him." The idea that an emperor's birth, coming of age, and ascent to the throne was "good news" for the world would have come to mind when Christian missionaries came preaching "good news." Not until the mid-second century ce was the word for "gospel" used of a literary genre (Justin Martyr, Dialogue with Trypho 10.2; Irenaeus, Adv. Haer. 50.26.6).

The use of the word "gospel" in Mark's introduction presumably led to its being adopted as the designation for written accounts of the ministry, teaching, death, and resurrection of Jesus. Short formulas in Paul's letters show that the "good news" of early preaching focused on the death, resurrection, and exaltation of Jesus (1 Thess 1.9–10; Rom 1.2–4; 1 Cor 15.3–5). Mark expanded this to include Jesus’ own preaching of the kingdom of God (Mk 1.14–15). So far as we know, Mark was the first to create a distinctive literary form by combining early Christian preaching about Jesus with a narrative account of Jesus' life and ministry. Writings that some scholars date earlier than Mark are collections of sayings with little or no narrative framework.

By presenting a narrative about Jesus as the basis of Christian preaching (see Lk 1.1–4), the Gospel writers (the "evangelists") assume that the life of Jesus provides evidence to support Christian beliefs about him. By providing an account of Jesus from the time of his emergence on the public stage through his trial and death, Mark presents a "life" (Gk bios) of his subject. The ancient bios should not be confused with a modern biography, which explicates the subject's origins, family, cultural influences, and character development, and tends to emphasize uniqueness and individuality. Ancient writers often characterized persons as types, and the narratives of their lives reflected a view that individuals had fixed characters from birth rather than personalities that developed through life.

Still, scholars disagree over the extent to which the Gospels follow conventions of ancient biography. Because the story of Jesus concerns a figure with a crucial place in the history of God's relationship with Israel, it is closer to Jewish accounts of Moses or a prophet like Elijah than to typical Greek and Roman biographies of rulers or philosophers (e.g., Xenophon, Agesilaus; Isocrates, Evagoras; Tacitus, Agricola; Lucian, Demonax), which had a wider scope, including an account of the preliminary education of the subject of the biography. Greco-Roman biographies were addressed to a social and literary elite, which may explain why the Gospels, addressed to a much broader audience, do not match them very closely. Philo's Life of Moses adopts a Hellenistic-style laudatory biography for a Jewish subject. Echoes of the life of Moses as related in Matthew's version of the birth and infancy of Jesus (Mt 1–2).

Since the genre "biography" emerged from Greek historical writing, the question of whether the Gospels belong to this genre often involves a prior judgment concerning their historical plausibility. Scholars who reject biography as a description of the Gospels often overemphasize the ideological or legendary elements found in the narratives. They prefer to read the Gospels as etiological legends that explain the emergence of a new religion or as ideological representations of the Christology of particular early Christian communities. Such writings do not intend to provide historical information about their subject. Rather, they operate like myths and symbols to support Christian beliefs and practices.
THE GOSPELS

Second-century CE authors, on the other hand, both adherents of Christianity like Justin Martyr and opponents like Celsus, presumed that the evangelists intended to provide information. Justin Martyr’s designation of the Gospels as “memoirs” (Gk hypomnemata; 1 Apology 1.67.3) suggests something less than a full literary biography, something more like a gathering of notes about the subject and his teaching. This perception may have been enhanced by the fact that early Christians disseminated their writings using a codex (similar to a bound book) rather than a scroll. Though some modern readers think of the codex as a technological advance over the scroll, the ancients did not. Serious literary works were copied onto scrolls. Notes, preliminary drafts, and all sorts of records were kept in codices. Thus their physical appearance would suggest to an ancient reader that the Gospels were more educational handbooks than examples of high literary art. Papias’s comment that Mark is “not in order” (Eusebius, Hist. eccl. 3.39.5) shows that even some Christian readers considered it an unfinished composition. Papias also noted that Matthew was a more polished work (Eusebius, Hist. eccl. 3.39.16). Luke’s prologue states that he intends to correct the deficiencies in earlier accounts (1.1–4). Such comments indicate that Mark’s earliest readers treated the Gospel as a rough life of Jesus. A “biography” of this type naturally invited expansions in content and revisions of style like those that Matthew and Luke subsequently undertook.

THE SOURCES OF THE GOSPELS

A historical genre does not necessarily guarantee historical accuracy or reliability, and neither the evangelists nor their first readers engaged in historical analysis. Their aim was to confirm Christian faith (Lk 1.4; Jn 20.31). Scholars generally agree that the Gospels were written forty to sixty years after the death of Jesus. They thus do not present eyewitness or contemporary accounts of Jesus’ life and teaching. Even the language has changed. Though Greek had become the common language used between groups whose primary languages were different in the eastern Roman Empire, and inscriptions and fragments of Greek translations of the Hebrew Bible show that Greek was used even among Jews within Judea, Jesus, his disciples, and the crowds would have spoken Aramaic, a Semitic language closely related to Hebrew, which it had replaced as the principal spoken language of Palestine. Despite scholarly efforts to detect an underlying Aramaic original for Mark or Matthew, it is probable that all the evangelists wrote in the common (“koine”) Greek of their day. Further, the vast majority of Hebrew Bible citations in the New Testament are taken from the Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible (the Septuagint).

Large sections of Matthew, Mark, and Luke repeat stories about and sayings of Jesus in nearly identical words. Hence these three Gospels are referred to as the “Synoptic” Gospels (from Gk synoptikos, “viewed together”). On a linguistic level, both Luke and Matthew improve on Mark’s style, smoothing out inelegant expressions and repetitions. Luke eliminates Mark’s characteristic use of parataxis (one short phrase following another without indicating how they are related) by employing balancing particles and subordinate clauses. Matthew follows Mark’s outline, though the insertion of considerable sections of discourse material may obscure that relationship for the casual reader. Luke knows most of Mark but has no parallels to Mk 6.45–8.26; whether Luke chose to omit this section or had a different version of Mark remains unclear. Detailed analysis of the traditions shared by Matthew, Mark, and Luke provides strong support for the view that Mark was the earliest Gospel. But, given its rough, draft-like composition, both Matthew and Luke revised it extensively.

Further study of additional material shared by Matthew and Luke shows a number of close verbal parallels in passages such as the temptation of Jesus (Mt 4.2–11; Lk 4.2–13), the Beatitudes (Lk 6.20–23; Mt 5.3,6,4,11–12), the parable of the lost sheep (Lk 15.4–7; Mt 18.11–14), and the Lord’s Prayer (Lk 11.2–4; Mt 6.9–13). These parallels include various types of sayings, controversy stories, and parables. Scholars have hypothesized that a collection of such material must have been circulating in the early churches, and they have designated it with the symbol “Q,” from the German Quelle (“source”). In 1945, a library of religious treatises in Coptic was discovered near Nag Hammadi in Egypt. They included just such a “sayings book,” the Gospel of Thomas. Subsequently, sayings from a variant tradition of this Gospel in Greek were identified among Greek papyri. The Gospel of Thomas is not “Q”: Some of its sayings and parables appear to have been taken from the Synoptic Gospels rather than from earlier oral tradition. But its discovery provides evidence that such sayings collections existed.

Scholars presume that the Gospel writers may have had other such notebook-like collections of material such as parables and miracle stories. Presumably additional items, such as genealogies, hymnic prayers, and legends in the infancy narratives of Matthew and Luke, were not created by the evangelists but come from... earlier tradition. Similarly, some of the material found only in Matthew or in Luke is not likely to be the author’s creation. The following diagram shows the understanding of a majority of scholars about the sources and literary relationships of the Synoptic Gospels.

Four Source Hypothesis. In composing their Gospels, both Matthew and Luke independently used two earlier sources: the gospel of Mark, and "Q," the collection of sayings of Jesus. Each also used other sources specific to each of them.

There may also have been an earlier narrative of the passion and death of Jesus; some scholars think that most of Mark’s narrative came from such a source, while others maintain that there is no evidence for such an account. The origin of the story of Jesus’ passion is unclear, and some details may have been based on biblical descriptions of the suffering righteous one.

While the Synoptic Gospels have a close relationship based on their literary connections, the Fourth Gospel, the Gospel of John, presents a much greater puzzle. Its chronology of Jesus’ ministry is quite different from that of the Synoptics, as are many narrative details. Jesus spends three years preaching, during which he journeys between Galilee and Jerusalem; in the Synoptic Gospels he visits Jerusalem only once, at the end of a ministry that apparently lasted less than a year. The episode denouncing the sellers in the Temple, which enrages the religious authorities and leads to his death in the Synoptics, occurs near the beginning of the three-year ministry in John (Jn 2.13–22). John claims that Jesus’ popularity with Jerusalem crowds after he dramatically restored Lazarus to life awakened political fears for the safety of the nation (Jn 11.45–57; 12.9–11). John’s account of the passion also differs markedly: There is no agony. Conscious of his unity with the Father and the cross as his exaltation and return to preexistent glory, Jesus controls all the events; he engages Pilate, the Roman governor, in an ironic discussion of kingship; and John has a disciple-witness, a resident of Jerusalem, who does not flee with the others. Is this unnamed “disciple whom Jesus loved” (Jn 21.7,20; cf. 19.26; 20.2) a symbolic creation of the Evangelist? Some scholars think so; others suggest that he was a historical individual, the source of much of the Fourth Gospel’s unique tradition and theology, as the text alleges (19.35; 21.24). What led the author of the Gospel of John to compose such a unique variant on an outline of Jesus’ life that still has a recognizable similarity to Mark (and in some instances to Luke)? Some scholars use the parallels as indications of a shorter sketch of Jesus’ life known to both authors. Others think that the Gospel of Mark, and perhaps also Luke, were already circulating in the Evangelist’s area. He assumed that readers knew some other account of Jesus’ life and teaching, and formulated a different version of who Jesus is and what he taught based on the insight that Jesus of Nazareth was not just a miracle-worker, a prophet, or a charismatic Jewish teacher, but the incarnate Son of God. That claim constitutes the flash point between Jesus and the Jewish authorities throughout the narrative.

The Evangelists did more than compile a notebook of traditions about Jesus. Rather, each shaped the narrative to emphasize particular features of Jesus and his teaching. Readers may approach every Gospel in a similar way, asking what are the special characteristics of Jesus and of his followers in each Evangelist’s presentation of Jesus and of those who follow Jesus.
THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MATTHEW

LOCATION IN CANON
Matthew is the first book of the New Testament. Its primacy of place is appropriate for several reasons. As the Gospel that draws most extensively on the Hebrew Scriptures, Matthew functions as a bridge between the two Testaments by showing how prophetic “fulfillment citations” from the Hebrew Bible were fulfilled in the person of Jesus. Matthew was also the Gospel most frequently employed by the early church. Its arrangement of the teaching of Jesus into five prominent discourses, including the Sermon on the Mount, made it easy to use it for the catechetical instruction of recent converts. Further, the Gospel’s inclusion of the accounts of the birth and resurrection of Jesus offered a more comprehensive biographical shape to Jesus’ life than is found in the Gospel of Mark, which follows Matthew in the canonical order.

AUTHORSHIP, DATE, AND PLACE OF COMPOSITION
Some scholars have seen the Gospel’s replacement of Mark’s tax-collector Levi (Mk 2.13–17) with Matthew (9.9–13) as a sort of authorial signature. Yet, the fact that the Evangelist was so reliant upon Mark and a collection of Jesus’ sayings (“Q”) seems to point to a later, unknown, author. The Gospel’s time of writing is likewise unknown. As it appears to be familiar with events of the first Jewish Revolt (66–70 ce; see 22.7), Matthew must have been composed sometime afterward. Since, however, Christian writers show a broad familiarity with the Gospel from an early period, it cannot date from much beyond the final decade of the first century. Scholars usually settle on the 80s ce as a likely decade for the Gospel’s composition.

Evidence for the Gospel’s place of composition is also largely conjectural. The author’s familiarity with Judaism and his acquaintance with the geography of Palestine are two of the chief considerations. Thus, large cities proximate to Palestine with a substantial Jewish presence are the most plausible locales. Syrian Antioch, the third largest city in the Roman Empire, has the added distinction of being associated with Matthew in church tradition. Nevertheless, other sites continue to be proposed, such as Caesarea Maritima or Sepphoris, a Greco-Roman city located near Nazareth. Certainty is hardly possible.

LITERARY FORM
A proper reading of the Gospel requires being attuned to its literary form. For instance, it is important to remember that the division into chapters and verses is a relatively recent modification (1551 ce) and occasionally overlooks natural divisions in the Gospel. Temporarily disregarding chapter and verse numbers will bring out the literary contours of the text and allow one to approximate the experience of the Gospel’s first readers.

Without doubt, the most distinctive of these literary contours are the Gospel’s five discourses. More of Matthew is devoted to Jesus’ teaching than any other Gospel (estimates are Matthew 43 percent; Mark 20 percent; Luke 37 percent; and John 34 percent).

The Evangelist has assembled five discourses comprising different aspects of Jesus’ teaching, probably a deliberate parallel to the five books of the Torah/Pentateuch. Each of these discourses ends with the phrase, “when Jesus had finished saying these things . . . ” The first, the Sermon on the Mount (chs 5–7), is justly famous as an encapsulation of the “entry requirements of the kingdom,” while a number of “parables of the kingdom” can be found in ch 13’s “parable discourse.” Taken together, the discourses afford an overview of the progress of the kingdom: it begins with teaching about the kingdom (chs 5–7), moves to the preaching of the kingdom (ch 10), its mysteries (ch 13), its application to the church (ch 18), and finally, its implications for the last days and final judgment (chs 24–25).

That the last discourse contains parables of judgment is characteristic of Matthew as a whole; in fact, each of his discourses ends with references to judgment. His view of the world is highly polarized. One either walks according to Jesus’ “way of righteousness” and produces spiritual fruit, or one does not. For Matthew, the consequences of this decision are momentous: the coming judgment will be swift, unexpected, and inexorable.
Another of the Gospel’s literary contours is the way in which it approximates the ancient Greek literary form of the bios (“life”). The bios differs from modern biography in its concern to provide episodes that reveal the underlying character of its subject. Rather than display the psychological development of Jesus, Matthew depicts him as the humble and compassionate Messiah over the entirety of his Gospel. Jesus acts throughout the Gospel as the exemplar for every Christian.

INTERPRETATION

Matthew’s utility for the Christian church is no coincidence. The issues of his own church and community were of pressing importance to the Evangelist; Matthew’s is the only Gospel to use the word “church” expressly (Gk ekklesia, 16.18; 18.17) and to include issues of church authority and discipline (ch 18). Matthew’s Gospel gives vivid insights into the concerns of his own church. The evangelist has telescoped the experiences of Christians in his day with the story of Jesus so that Jesus’ words and actions apply to both the time of Jesus and that of Matthew a half century later.

This procedure explains some of the Gospel’s apparent anomalies. One of the most striking is the narrative’s conflicted portrayal of Jewish piety and religious leaders. Its high regard for the Jewish Torah (5.17–20; 23.1–3) is noteworthy, as is the extensive use of prophecies from the Hebrew Bible, and its occasional disdain for non-Jews (5.47; 6.7,32; 16.17). These features suggest a positive assessment of Judaism. On the other hand, the Gospel displays a strident and unrelenting condemnation of the Jewish leadership—the chief priests, elders, Sadducees, Pharisees, and scribes. These groups are indiscriminately paired with each other in a manner inconsistent with the historical distinctions between these groups in Jesus’ day. The Gospel’s treatment of the Pharisees, routinely condemned as hypocrites (e.g., 23.5–7), in particular, has led many scholars to suggest that their portrayal reflects later tensions between Matthew’s church and emergent Rabbinic Judaism. In other words, the conflict between Jesus and the Pharisees reflects tensions that emerged fifty years after Jesus’ death.

The crucifixion narrative also displays this telescoping of perspective. Responsibility for Jesus’ passion is shifted from Pontius Pilate and the Romans to the Jewish people and their leadership (27.20–25). The horrific pronouncement “His blood be on us and on our children!” (27.25) is Matthew’s way of attributing the destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple in 70 ce to Israel’s rejection of Jesus. The vehemence with which the evangelist expresses such sentiments was likely intended to shock both Jewish Christians and their Jewish neighbors into reconsidering the claims made by the Gospel, and discounting rival claims being advanced by the leadership of emergent Rabbinic Judaism, such as the Jewish explanation for the resurrection of Jesus (Matt 27.52–66; 28.11–15).

While such deliberately shocking rhetoric was characteristic of debates between groups in the first century ce, its long-term consequences have been disastrous. Subsequent non-Jewish Christians interpreted the Gospel as a warrant to exact retribution from Jews for the death of Jesus and persecution of his first followers. A proper reading of the Gospel, therefore, requires being attuned to the polemical context in which it was written, and recognizing that the conflict between emerging Rabbinic Judaism and the smaller Jewish Christian minority ceased being relevant nearly two millennia ago.

What remains unchanged about the Gospel of Matthew, however, is its place as one of the richest and most fascinating documents within the Christian Bible—one that will reward long and detailed study with treasures both new and old (13.52).

J. R. C. Cousland
An account of the genealogy\(^a\) of Jesus the Messiah,\(^b\) the son of David, the son of Abraham.

Abraham was the father of Isaac, and Isaac the father of Jacob, and Jacob the father of Judah and his brothers, \(^3\) and Judah the father of Perez and Zerah by Tamar, and Perez the father of Hezron, and Hezron the father of Aram, \(^4\) and Aram the father of Aminadab, and Aminadab the father of Nahshon, and Nahshon the father of Salmon, \(^5\) and Salmon the father of Boaz by Rahab, and Boaz the father of Obed by Ruth, and Obed the father of Jesse, \(^6\) and Jesse the father of King David.

And David was the father of Solomon by the wife of Uriah, \(^7\) and Solomon the father of Rehoboam, and Rehoboam the father of Abijah, and Abijah the father of Asaph, \(^c\) and Asaph the father of Jehoshaphat, and Jehoshaphat the father of Joram, and Joram the father of Uzziah, \(^9\) and Uzziah the father of Jotham, and Jotham the father of Ahaz, and Ahaz the father of Hezekiah, \(^10\) and Hezekiah the father of Manasseh, and Manasseh the father of Amos, \(^d\) and Amos the father of Josiah, \(^11\) and Josiah the father of Jechoniah and his brothers, at the time of the deportation to Babylon.

And after the deportation to Babylon: Jechoniah was the father of Salathiel, and Salathiel the father of Zerubbabel, \(^12\) and Zerubbabel the father of Abiud, and Abiud the father of Eliakim, and Eliakim the father of Azor, \(^14\) and Azor the father of Zadok, and Zadok the father of Achim, and Achim the father of Eliud, \(^15\) and Eliud the father of Eleazar, and Eleazar the father of Mattathai, and Mattathai the father of Jacob, \(^16\) and Jacob the father of Joseph the husband of Mary, of whom Jesus was born, who is called the Messiah.\(^e\)

So all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations; and from David to the deportation to Babylon, fourteen generations; and from the deportation to Babylon to the Messiah, fourteen generations.

Now the birth of Jesus the Messiah\(^b\) took place in this way. When his mother Mary had been engaged to Joseph, but before they lived together, she was found to be with child from the Holy Spirit. \(^19\) Her husband Joseph, being a righteous man and unwilling to expose her to public disgrace, planned to dismiss her quietly. \(^20\) But just when he had resolved to do this, an angel of the Lord appeared to him in a dream and said, “Joseph, son of David, do not be afraid to take Mary as your wife, for

---

\(^a\) Or birth
\(^b\) Or Jesus Christ
\(^c\) Other ancient authorities read Asaph
\(^d\) Other ancient authorities read Amon
\(^e\) Or the Christ
the child conceived in her is from the Holy Spirit. 21 She will bear a son, and you are to name him Jesus, for he will save his people from their sins.” 22 All this took place to fulfill what had been spoken by the Lord through the prophet:

23 “Look, the virgin shall conceive and bear a son, and they shall name him Emmanuel,” which means, “God is with us.” 24 When Joseph awoke from sleep, he did as the angel of the Lord commanded him; he took her as his wife,

1 In the time of King Herod, after Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea, wise men from the East came to Jerusalem, 2 asking, “Where is the child who has been born king of the Jews? For we observed his star at its rising, and have come to pay him homage.” 3 When King Herod heard this, he was frightened, and all Jerusalem with him; 4 and calling together all the chief priests and scribes of the people, he inquired of them where the Messiah was to be born. 5 They told him, “In Bethlehem of Judea; for so it has been written by the prophet:

6 ‘And you, Bethlehem, in the land of Judah, are by no means least among the rulers of Judah;

MATTHEW 2

for from you shall come a ruler who is to shepherd my people Israel.’” 7 Then Herod secretly called for the wise men and learned from them the exact time when the star had appeared. 8 Then he sent them to Bethlehem, saying, “Go and search diligently for the child; and when you have found him, bring me word so that I may also go and pay him homage.” 9 When they had heard the king, they set out; and there, ahead of them, went the star that they had seen at its rising, until it stopped over the place where the child was. 10 When they saw that the star had stopped, they were overwhelmed with joy. 11 On entering the house, they saw the child with Mary his mother; and they knelt down and paid him homage. Then, opening their treasure chests, they offered him gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh. 12 And having been warned in a dream not to return to Herod, they left for their own country by another road.

13 Now after they had left, an angel of the Lord appeared to Joseph in a dream and said, “Get up, take the child and his mother, and flee to Egypt, and remain there until I a Other ancient authorities read her firstborn son

b Or astrologers; Gk magi c Or in the East
d Or the Christ
e Or rule
f Gk saw the star

d a common means of revelation in Matthew (2.12,13,19–20,22; 27.19). 21: The angel’s reference to Jesus “saving his people” probably alludes to Jesus’ name (see v. 1n.). 23: The first of Matthew’s fulfillment citations (Isa 7.14), showing how Jesus’ life conforms to prophecies of the Hebrew Bible.

2.1–12: The visit of the wise men. 1: King Herod is Herod the Great (ruled 37–4 BCE), who was confirmed as the client king of Judea by the emperor Augustus (31 BCE–14 CE). Herod was only partly Jewish and was notorious for reacting savagely to potential rivals, particularly Jewish rivals. Bethlehem was David’s hometown and where he was anointed king of Israel (1 Sam 16.1–13). The wise men or Magi were a class of Parthian (Persian) priests, renowned as astrologers. 2: As Gentiles, the Magi do not ask for the king of Israel, but for the king of the Jews (27.11,37). The star has been variously explained as a supernova, a comet, or a notable conjunction of the planets, but its meaning is probably symbolic; see Num 24.17. 4: The chief priests would have included the current high priest and a larger priestly college, based in Jerusalem. The scribes were lawyers, teachers, and interpreters of the Torah (Sir 39.1–11). 5–6: Mic 5.1,3; cf. 2 Sam 5.2. 11: Frankincense and myrrh were costly, resinous gums derived from trees and shrubs (Isa 60.6; Song 3.6). Because of their aromatic qualities they were often employed in religious rituals. The mention of three gifts is probably the origin of the postbiblical tradition that there were three wise men.

2.13–23: The escape to Egypt and return. 15: A fulfillment citation from Hos 11.1, where son refers to the people of Israel (Ex 4.22). The citation calls to mind Israel’s sojourn in Egypt and God’s mighty deliverance of Israel tell you; for Herod is about to search for the child, to destroy him.” ¹⁴ Then Joseph a got up, took the child and his mother by night, and went to Egypt, b and remained there until the death of Herod. This was to fulfill what had been spoken by the Lord through the prophet, “Out of Egypt I have called my son.”

NEW TESTAMENT | 1749

¹⁶ When Herod saw that he had been tricked by the wise men, b he was infuriated, and he sent and killed all the children in and around Bethlehem who were two years old or under, according to the time that he had learned from the wise men. b ¹⁷ Then was fulfilled what had been spoken through the prophet Jeremiah:

³¹⁸ “A voice was heard in Ramah, wailing and loud lamentation, Rachel weeping for her children; she refused to be consoled, because they are no more.”

¹⁹ When Herod died, an angel of the Lord suddenly appeared in a dream to Joseph in Egypt and said, ²⁰ “Get up, take the child and his mother, and go to the land of Israel, for those who were seeking the child’s life are dead.” ²¹ Then Joseph a got up, took the child and his mother, and went to the land of Israel. ²² But when he heard that Archelaus was ruling over Judea in place of his father Herod, he was afraid to go there. And after being warned in a dream, he went away to the district of Galilee. ²³ There he made his home in a town called Nazareth, so that what had been spoken through the prophets might be fulfilled, “He will be called a Nazorean.”

In those days John the Baptist appeared in the wilderness of Judea, proclaiming, ² “Repent, for the kingdom of heaven has come near.” ³ This is the one of whom the prophet Isaiah spoke when he said, “The voice of one crying out in the wilderness: ‘Prepare the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.’” ⁴ Now John wore clothing of camel’s hair with a leather belt around his waist, and his food was locusts and wild honey. ⁵ Then the people of Jerusalem and all Judea were going out to him, and all the region along the Jordan, ⁶ and they were baptized by him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins.

³ But when he saw many Pharisees and Sadducees coming for baptism, he said to them, “You brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the wrath to come? ⁸ Bear through Moses. ¹⁶: Herod’s action recalls the command of the king of Egypt in Ex 1.16. ¹⁸: A fulfillment citation from Jer 31.15. The tomb of Rachel, the wife of Jacob, the father of the twelve “tribes” of Israel, was near Bethlehem (Gen 35.16–20). ²⁰: Cf. Ex 4.19. ²²: Upon Herod’s death in 4 BCE, his kingdom was divided among his sons Archelaus (4 BCE–6 CE), ethnarch (prince) over Judea, Samaria, and Idumea; Herod Antipas (4 BCE–39 CE), tetrarch (minor prince) over Galilee and Perea; and Philip (4 BCE–33/34 CE), tetrarch of smaller territories northeast of the Sea of Galilee. ²³: Nazareth in Jesus’ day was not so much a “city” (NRSV town) as a village. Nazorean, this fulfillment citation does not explicitly correspond to any passage in the Hebrew Bible, though it echoes passages such as Isa 11.12 and Judg 13.5.

3.1–12: The preaching of John the Baptist (Mk 1.1–8; Lk 3.1–9,15–17; Jn 1.19–28; Josephus, Ant. 18.116–19). 1: In those days, a general reference to the time when Jesus began his public ministry. John the Baptist, the prophetic forerunner of Jesus. In Matthew, although John is subordinate to Jesus, their ministries display strong parallels (compare 3.2 with 4.17). Wilderness of Judea, the barren eastern slopes of the Judean mountains that face the Dead Sea and lower Jordan valley. 2: Kingdom of heaven is Matthew’s circumlocution for kingdom of God, one that avoids mentioning the name of God directly (though the phrase “kingdom of God” remains unchanged at 6.33; 12.28; 21.31–43). The kingdom of heaven (or God) refers to the absolute rule of God over human affairs. Its establishment marks the onset of the new age and God’s ultimate dominion. 3: A fulfillment citation from Isa 40.3 (Mk 1.2–3; cf. CD 10.16; 16.15). John acts as a herald announcing the coming of the king. 4: John’s manner of dress recalled the prophet Elijah (2 Kings 1.8) while his food was that of an ascetic; locusts are one of the few types of insects not regarded as unclean (Lev 11.20–23). In Matthew, John is more closely identified with Elijah than in the other Gospels (17.11–13). 7: The Pharisees and Sadducees were two of the most important groups of fruit worthy of repentance. Do not presume to say to yourselves, ‘We have Abraham as our ancestor’; for I tell you, God is able from these stones to raise up children to Abraham.

10 Even now the ax is lying at the root of the trees; every tree therefore that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire.

11 ‘I baptize you with water for repentance, but one who is more powerful than I is coming after me; I am not worthy to carry his sandals. He will baptize you with the Holy Spirit and fire.

His winnowing fork is in his hand, and he will clear his threshing floor and will gather his wheat into the granary; but the chaff he will burn with unquenchable fire.’

Then Jesus came from Galilee to John at the Jordan, to be baptized by him. John would have prevented him, saying, ‘I need to be baptized by you, and do you come to me?’

15 But Jesus answered him, ‘Let it be so now; for it is proper for us in this way to fulfill all righteousness.’ Then he consented.

16 And when Jesus had been baptized, just as he came up from the water, suddenly the heavens were opened to him and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove and alighting on him.

17 And a voice from heaven said, ‘This is my Son, the Beloved, with whom I am well pleased.’

Then Jesus was led up by the Spirit into the wilderness to be tempted by the devil. He fasted forty days and forty nights, and afterwards he was famished. The tempter came and said to him, ‘If you are the Son of God, command these stones to become loaves of bread.’ But he answered, ‘It is written, ‘One does not live by bread alone, but by every word that comes from the mouth of God.’’

5 Then the devil took him to the holy city and placed him on the pinnacle of the temple, saying to him, ‘If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down; for it is written, ‘He will command his angels concerning you,’ and ‘On their hands they will bear you up, so that you will not dash your foot against a stone.’’

7 Jesus said to him, ‘Again it is written, ‘Do not put the Lord your God to the test.’’

8 Again, the devil took him to a very high mountain and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and their splendor; and he said to him, ‘All these I will give you, if you will fall down and worship me.’ Jesus said to him, ‘Away with you, Satan! for it is written, ‘Worship the Lord your God, and serve only him.’”

4

3.13–17: The baptism of Jesus (Mk 1.9–11; Lk 3.21–22; Jn 1.31–34). 15: Righteousness is a central theme in Matthew, and means acting in accordance with the will of God. It furnishes the justification for the greater (Jesus) being baptized by the lesser (the Baptist; 11.11). 16: Spirit, 28.19; Gen 1.2; Isa 61.1. 17: My beloved Son (see textual note b), 17.5; Ps 2.7; Isa 42.1.

4.1–11: The temptation of Jesus (Mk 1.12–13; Lk 4.1–13). 1: The devil, a transcendent evil being, also described in this chapter as the tempter (v. 3) and Satan (“the enemy”; v. 10). 2: The forty days recall the testing of Israel in the wilderness (Ex 34.28), and Elijah’s forty-day journey into the Sinai wilderness (1 Kings 19.8). 3: Son of God, the most comprehensive christological designation for Jesus in Matthew (3.17; 16.16; 17.5; 27.54; 28.19). 4: Deut 8.3. 5: Holy city, Jerusalem; cf. 27.53; pinnacle, possibly the southeast corner of the Temple’s terrace where there was a steep drop to the Kidron Valley below. 6: Ps 91.11–12. 7: Deut 6.16. 8: Mountains figure prominently in Matthew as places of revelation (5.1; 14.23; 15.29; 17.1; 24.3; 28.16). 10: Deut 6.13. All of Jesus’ responses to Satan are 11 Then the devil left him, and suddenly angels came and waited on him.

12 Now when Jesus a heard that John had been arrested, he withdrew to Galilee. b He left Nazareth and made his home in Capernaum by the sea, in the territory of Zebulun and Naphtali, c so that what had been spoken through the prophet Isaiah might be fulfilled:

15 “Land of Zebulun, land of Naphtali, on the road by the sea, across the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles—

16 the people who sat in darkness have seen a great light, and for those who sat in the region and shadow of death light has dawned.”

17 From that time Jesus began to proclaim, “Repent, for the kingdom of heaven has come near.” d

18 As he walked by the Sea of Galilee, he saw two brothers, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother, casting a net into the sea—for they were fishermen. e And he said to them, “Follow me, and I will make you fish for people.” f Immediately they left their nets and followed him. g As he went from there, he saw two other brothers, James son of Zebedee and his brother John, in the boat with their father Zebedee, mending their nets, and he called them. h Immediately they left the boat and their father, and followed him.

23 Jesus i went throughout Galilee, teaching in their synagogues and proclaiming the good news of the kingdom and curing every disease and every sickness among the people. j So his fame spread throughout all Syria, and they brought to him all the sick, those who were afflicted with various diseases and pains, demoniacs, epileptics, and paralytics, and he cured them. k And great crowds followed him from Galilee, the Decapolis, Jerusalem, Judea, and from beyond the Jordan.

5 When Jesus a saw the crowds, he went up the mountain; and after he sat down, his disciples came to him. b Then he began to speak, and taught them, saying:

3 “Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.

4 “Blessed are those who mourn, for they will be comforted.

citations from Deuteronomy. 11: The angels feed Jesus as they had once fed Elijah (1 Kings 19.5–8).

4.12–25: The beginning of the Galilean ministry (Mk 1.14–20; Lk 4.14–15; 5.1–11; 6.17–19). 12: Galilee was a region in northern Israel, one of the chief areas of Jesus’ activity. It was separated from Judea (and Jerusalem) by Samaria. 13: Capernaum, a village on the northwest shore of the Sea of Galilee. Fishing was an important and lucrative economic activity in the region. 15–16: Fulfillment citation of Isa 9.1–2. The name “Galilee” is derived from the Hebrew phrase “circle of the Gentiles” (Isa 8.23). After the fall of the Northern Kingdom of Israel to Assyria (722 BCE), much of the area had been repopulated by Gentiles, although by Jesus’ day it was predominantly Jewish. 17: Some scholars argue that the phrase from that time marks the beginning of the second of three major divisions in the Gospel; cf. 16.21. 18: Sea of Galilee, not a sea but a fresh-water lake, also known as Gennesaret (Lk 5.1) and the Lake of Tiberias (Jn 21.1). 24: Syria is mentioned in no other Gospel; many scholars think that its capital, Antioc–on–the–Orontes, was the location of Matthew’s church. Demoniacs, those thought to be possessed by demons. 25: The crowds generally represent the Jewish people as distinguished from their leaders. Decapolis: A league of some ten cities with all but Scythopolis (earlier Beth–shan) situated east of the Jordan River. Their populations were largely Gentile, though they also contained substantial Jewish minorities.

5.1–7.29: The first discourse: The Sermon on the Mount. Matthew postpones his account of the Galilean ministry in order to introduce Jesus’ teaching in the Sermon on the Mount, the first and longest of Jesus’ five discourses in Matthew (compare the much briefer “Sermon on the Plain” in Lk 6.20–49). Its prominence within Matthew testifies to its importance for understanding Jesus and the requirements for “entering the kingdom.” Whether the Sermon advocates an idealized or a realizable ethic continues to be debated. 1: Mountain, recalling the figure of Moses giving the law to Israel (Ex 19–24). Just as the Law of Moses had five books, the Gospel of Matthew contains five discourses of Jesus. He sat down, the posture normally assumed by Jewish teachers.
5 “Blessed are the meek, for they will inherit the earth.
6 “Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for righteousness, for they will be filled.
7 “Blessed are the merciful, for they will receive mercy.
8 “Blessed are the pure in heart, for they will see God.
9 “Blessed are the peacemakers, for they will be called children of God.
10 “Blessed are those who are persecuted for righteousness’ sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven.
11 “Blessed are you when people revile you and persecute you and utter all kinds of evil against you falsely on my account.
12 Rejoice and be glad, for your reward is great in heaven, for in the same way they persecuted the prophets who were before you.
13 “You are the salt of the earth; but if salt has lost its taste, how can its saltiness be restored? It is no longer good for anything, but is thrown out and trampled under foot.
14 “You are the light of the world. A city built on a hill cannot be hid. No one after lighting a lamp puts it under the bushel basket, but on the lampstand, and it gives light to all in the house. In the same way, let your light shine before others, so that they may see your good works and give glory to your Father in heaven.

17 “Do not think that I have come to abolish the law or the prophets; I have come not to abolish but to fulfill. For truly I tell you, until heaven and earth pass away, not one letter, not one stroke of a letter, will pass from the law until all is accomplished. Therefore, whoever breaks one of the least of these commandments, and teaches others to do the same, will be called least in the kingdom of heaven; but whoever does them and teaches them will be called great in the kingdom of heaven. For I tell you, unless your righteousness exceeds that of the scribes and Pharisees, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven.

21 “You have heard that it was said to those of ancient times, ‘You shall not murder’; and ‘whoever murders shall be liable to judgment.’ But I say to you that if you are angry with a brother or sister, you will be liable to judgment; and if you insult a brother or sister, you will be liable to the council; and if you say, ‘You fool,’ you will be liable to the hell.

Disciples, for Jesus’ named disciples, see 9.9–13; 10.2. 5.3–12: The Beatitudes (Lk 6.20–23). Luke has only four beatitudes to Matthew’s nine, and his four have a more this-worldly focus. 3: The term “Beatitudes” is derived from the Latin word “beatus,” meaning “blessed” or “favored by God.” Matthew’s beatitudes emphasize that God’s blessings will be bestowed on believers in the new age (Isa 61.2). The poor in spirit, Lk 6.20 has “the poor.” 4. Mourn, perhaps for one’s sins. 5: Meek, Ps 37.11. 8: Pure in heart, Pss 24.4; 73.1. 12: Persecuted the prophets, Matthew assumes that all true prophets were persecuted (1 Kings 19.10; Neh 9.26), John the Baptist and Jesus among them.

5.13–16: Salt and light (Mk 9.45; Lk 14.34–35). 13: Lost its taste, genuine salt can leach away from impure salt, leaving only a tasteless residue. 16: Father is one of Jesus’ favorite expressions for God in Matthew.

5.17–20: Teaching about the law. The rest of ch 5 deals with issues relating to the Torah. 17: Prophets, the second of the three divisions of the Hebrew Bible. 18: The phrase truly (“amen”) I tell you in Jesus’ mouth frequently involves pronouncements pertaining to the end time. Until . . . all: both temporal clauses refer to the end of the present age and the onset of the eschatological age. The verse suggests that the Torah remained in force among Jewish Christians in Matthew’s church.

5.21–48: The outworking of the law (Lk 6.27–36; cf. Lev 19.18; m. Abot 1.12). The phrase “you have heard that it was said” occurs six times in ch 5, each followed by a reference to one of the commandments in the Hebrew Bible. In three of these “antitheses,” Jesus’ purpose is not to abrogate the Law, but to express the deeper significance of God’s commandments. 21: Ex 20.13; Deut 5.17. 22: I say to you occurs twelve other times in the Sermon, and emphasizes Jesus’ unprecedented authority to determine God’s will (7.29; 28.18). Council, the Sanhedrin; of fire. 23 So when you are offering your gift at the altar, if you remember that your brother or sister has something against you, leave your gift there before the altar and go; first be reconciled to your brother or sister, and then come and offer your gift. 24 Come to terms quickly with your accuser while you are on the way to court with him, or your accuser may hand you over to the judge, and the judge to the guard, and you will be thrown into prison. 26 Truly I tell you, you will never get out until you have paid the last penny.

27 ‘You have heard that it was said, ‘You shall not commit adultery.’ 28 But I say to you that everyone who looks at a woman with lust has already committed adultery with her in his heart. 29 If your right eye causes you to sin, tear it out and throw it away; it is better for you to lose one of your members than for your whole body to be thrown into hell. 30 And if your right hand causes you to sin, cut it off and throw it away; it is better for you to lose one of your members than for your whole body to go into hell.

31 ‘It was also said, ‘Whoever divorces his wife, let him give her a certificate of divorce.’ 32 But I say to you that anyone who divorces his wife, except on the ground of unchastity, causes her to commit adultery; and whoever marries a divorced woman commits adultery.

33 ‘Again, you have heard that it was said to those of ancient times, ‘You shall not swear falsely, but carry out the vows you have made to the Lord.’ 34 But I say to you, Do not swear at all, either by heaven, for it is the throne of God, or by earth, for it is his footstool, or by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. 35 And do not swear by your head, for you cannot make one hair white or black.

36 Let your word be ‘Yes, Yes’ or ‘No, No’; anything more than this comes from the evil one.

38 ‘You have heard that it was said, ‘An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.’ 39 But I say to you, Do not resist an evil-doer. But if anyone strikes you on the right cheek, turn the other also; 40 and if anyone wants to sue you and take your coat, give your cloak as well; 41 and if anyone forces you to go one mile, go also the second mile. 42 Give to everyone who begs from you, and do not refuse anyone who wants to borrow from you.

43 ‘You have heard that it was said, ‘You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy.’ 44 But I say to you, Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, so that you may be children of your Father in heaven; for he makes his sun rise on the evil and on the good, and sends rain on the righteous and on the unrighteous. 46 For if you love those who love you, what reward do you have? Do not even the tax collectors do the same? 47 And if you greet only your brothers and sisters, what more are you doing than others? Do not even the Gentiles do the same? 48 Be perfect, therefore, as your heavenly Father is perfect.

a Gk your brother
b Gk lacks to court
c Gk Gehenna
d Or evil
e Gk your brothers

see 26.59n. 24: Gift, true worship of God requires full reconciliation with one’s neighbors. 25: Imprisonment for debt was a Gentile, not a Jewish, practice. 27: For the remaining three antitheses, Jesus proposes a different ethic for his followers. Adultery, cf. Ex. 20.14; Deut 5.18; cf. 5.32; 15.19; 19.9. Jesus not only condemns adultery but even entertaining thoughts that would lead to adultery. 31: Divorce, Deut 24.1–4; cf. 19.7–9. Jesus indicates that the only justification for divorcing one’s wife is sexual infidelity; otherwise the divorce is invalid, and any future marriages adulterous. 33: Lev 19.12; Num 30.2; Deut 23.21. 34–36: Heaven, earth, and Jerusalem are all circumlocutions for “God,” they, along with one’s head, are in God’s keeping and, therefore, not under humans’ dominion. 35: Isa 66.1; Ps 48.2. 38: Jesus qualifies the law of retaliation, the “lex talionis” (“an eye for an eye . . .,” Ex 21.23–24; Lev 24.19–20; Deut 19.21), by advocating the return of good for evil. 40: Cf. Ex 22.26–27; Deut 24.12–13. 43: Love your neighbor quotes Lev 19.18, but hate your enemy is not found in the Hebrew Bible. 44: Those who persecute you, Matthew’s version (cf. Lk 6.27–28) may refer to actual persecution experienced by his church, demonstrating the radical nature of the commandment (cf. 10.17). 46: Tax collectors though Jewish, were popularly regarded as unclean, Roman collaborators. 47: Gentiles occasionally have a negative connotation in the Gospel.
“Beware of practicing your piety before others in order to be seen by them; for then you have no reward from your Father in heaven.

2 “So whenever you give alms, do not sound a trumpet before you, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the streets, so that they may be praised by others. Truly I tell you, they have received their reward. 3 But when you give alms, do not let your left hand know what your right hand is doing, so that your alms may be done in secret; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you.

4 “And whenever you pray, do not be like the hypocrites; for they love to stand and pray in the synagogues and at the street corners, so that they may be seen by others. Truly I tell you, they have received their reward. 5 But whenever you pray, go into your room and shut the door and pray to your Father who is in secret; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you.

6 “When you are praying, do not heap up empty phrases as the Gentiles do; for they think that they will be heard because of their many words. 7 Do not be like them, for your Father knows what you need before you ask him.

8 “Pray then in this way:
Our Father in heaven, hallowed be your name. 9 Your kingdom come. Your will be done, on earth as it is in heaven. 10 Give us this day our daily bread. 11 And forgive us our debts, as we also have forgiven our debtors. 12 And do not bring us to the time of trial, 13 but rescue us from the evil one. 14 For if you forgive others their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you; 15 but if you do not forgive others, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses.

16 “And whenever you fast, do not look dismal, like the hypocrites, for they disfigure their faces so as to show others that they are fasting. Truly I tell you, they have received their reward. 17 But when you fast, put oil on your head and wash your face, so that your fasting may be seen not by others but by your Father who is in secret; and your Father who sees in secret will reward you.

18 “Do not store up for yourselves treasures on earth, where moth and rust consume and where thieves break in and steal; 19 but store up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust consumes and where thieves do not break in and steal. 20 For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.

21 “The eye is the lamp of the body. So, if your eye is healthy, your whole body will be..."
full of light; 23 but if your eye is unhealthy, your whole body will be full of darkness. If then the light in you is darkness, how great is the darkness!

24 “No one can serve two masters; for a slave will either hate the one and love the other, or be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and wealth.a 25 “Therefore I tell you, do not worry about your life, what you will eat or what you will drink, or about your body, what you will wear. Is not life more than food, and the body more than clothing? 26 Look at the birds of the air; they neither sow nor reap nor gather into barns, and yet your heavenly Father feeds them. Are you not of more value than they? 27 And can any of you by worrying add a single hour to your span of life? ²⁸ And why do you worry about clothing? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they neither toll nor spin, ²⁹ yet I tell you, even Solomon in all his glory was not clothed like one of these. ³⁰ But if God so clothes the grass of the field, which is alive today and tomorrow is thrown into the oven, will he not much more throw your pearls before swine, or they will trample them under foot and turn and maul you.

31 “Ask, and it will be given you; search, and you will find; knock, and the door will be opened for you. ³² For everyone who asks receives, and everyone who searches finds, and for everyone who knocks, the door will be opened. ³³ Is there anyone among you who,
if your child asks for bread, will give a stone?
³⁴ Or if the child asks for a fish, will give a snake? ³⁵ If you then, who are evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father in heaven give good things to those who ask him!

36 “In everything do to others as you would have them do to you; for this is the law and the prophets.

37 “Enter through the narrow gate; for the gate is wide and the road is easyb that leads to destruction, and there are many who take it.
38 For the gate is narrow and the road is hard that leads to life, and there are few who find it.

a Gk mammon
b Other ancient authorities lack or what you will drink
c Or add one cubit to your height
d Other ancient authorities lack of God e Or its f Gk brother’s
g Gk brother
h Other ancient authorities read for the road is wide and easy

7.1–6: Judging others (Lk 6.37–38,41–42). 1: Be judged, by God. 6: Holy, meat from the sacrifice or possibly the deeper truths of the Gospel; dogs were considered scavengers and swine were unclean animals.

7.7–23: The way of righteousness (Lk 11.9–13; 6.43–44; 13.24–27). The following sayings from Q embody Matthew’s ethic of righteousness. 12: The “Golden Rule” epitomizing Jesus’ ethical teaching. A similar principle is attributed to the Pharisee Hillel (b. Shabb 31a; cf. Tob 4.15). 13: Narrow gate, a metaphor for entering 15 “Beware of false prophets, who come to you in sheep’s clothing but inwardly are ravenous wolves. 16 You will know them by their fruits. Are grapes gathered from thorns, or figs from thistles? 17 In the same way, every good tree bears good fruit, but the bad tree bears bad fruit. 18 A good tree cannot bear bad fruit, nor can a bad tree bear good fruit. 19 Every tree that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire. 20 Thus you will know them by their fruits.

21 “Not everyone who says to me, ‘Lord, Lord,’ will enter the kingdom of heaven, but only the one who does the will of my Father in heaven. 22 On that day many will say to me, ‘Lord, Lord,’ did we not prophesy in your name, and cast out demons in your name, and do many deeds of power in your name?’ 23 Then I will declare to them, ‘I never knew you; go away from me, you evildoers.’ 24 “Everyone then who hears these words of mine and acts on them will be like a wise man who built his house on rock. 25 The rain fell, and the winds blew and beat on that house, but it did not fall, because it had been founded on rock. 26 And everyone who hears these words of mine and does not act on them will be like a foolish man who built his house on sand. 27 The rain fell, and the floods came, and the winds blew and beat against that house, and it fell—and great was its fall!”

28 Now when Jesus had finished saying these things, the crowds were astounded at his teaching, 29 for he taught them as one having authority, and not as their scribes.

8 When Jesus⁴ had come down from the mountain, great crowds followed him; 2 and there was a leper⁵ who came to him and knelt before him, saying, “Lord, if you choose, you can make me clean.” 3 He stretched out his hand and touched him, saying, “I do choose. Be made clean!” Immediately his leprosy⁶ was cleansed. 4 Then Jesus said to him, “See that you say nothing to anyone; but go, show yourself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses commanded, as a testimony to them.”

5 When he entered Capernaum, a centurion came to him, appealing to him ⁴ and saying, “Lord, my servant is lying at home paralyzed, in terrible distress.” ⁷ And he said to him, “I will come and cure him.” ⁸ The cen-

---

⁴ Gk he
⁵ The terms leper and leprosy can refer to several diseases

---

the kingdom of God. 15: False prophets, possibly itinerant Christian prophets 7.22; 23.34; Did. 11.7–12. 16: Fruits, repentance and righteous behavior. 22: That day, the day of judgment. In your name, “on behalf of” or “with the authority of.” 23: Evildoers, Ps 6.8.

7.24–29: The two foundations (Lk 6.47–49). 24: These words of mine, obedience to Jesus’ words, as to the will of God (7.21), is the only way to achieve righteousness and enter the kingdom. In the Sermon, Jesus has provided his hearers with a solid foundation of rock (16.18). 28: The crowds, not mentioned at the beginning of the discourse, appear as the audience beyond the inner circle of disciples. Their presence suggests that Jesus’ words are directed not only to the disciples but to all followers of Jesus. 29: Scribes, 2.4n. All five of Matthew’s discourses close with a reference to judgment.

8.1–9.38: The deeds of the Messiah. Matthew follows his epitome of Jesus’ teaching with a collection of Jesus’ miracles: the Messiah of word is succeeded by the Messiah of deed. While Matthew conforms to the order of Mark in a general way, he has made considerable use of Q and his own traditions (two of which are doubles; see 9.27–31 and 9.32–34). To create the Messiah of deed sequence Matthew has introduced five miracle stories so that chs 8–9 form a composite of ten miracle accounts interleaved with two discipleship narratives (8.18–22; 9.9–17).

8.1–4: The cleansing of a leper (Mk 1.40–45; Lk 5.12–16). Matthew emphasizes Jesus’ divine calm by eliminating Mark’s reference to Jesus’ emotions (1.41,43). 2: Make me clean, the skin condition of lepers rendered them ceremonially unclean (Lev. 13.1–59; Num. 5.1–4). 3: Leprosy was a serious skin disease, including what we describe as leprosy (Hansen’s disease), as well as many other disorders such as psoriasis, lupus, ringworm, and favus. 4: The gift that Moses commanded, offerings for the cleansing of a leper (Lev. 14.10–32). This leper heeds Jesus’ command to tell no one (contrast Mk 1.40–5).

8.5–17: Many healings (Lk 7.1–10; Jn 4.43–54; Mk 1.29–34; Lk 4.38–41). 5: Centurion, a Roman officer comturion answered, “Lord, I am not worthy to have you come under my roof; but only speak the word, and my servant will be healed.” For I also am a man under authority, with soldiers under me; and I say to one, ‘Go,’ and he goes, and to another, ‘Come,’ and he comes, and to my slave, ‘Do this,’ and the slave does it.”

When Jesus heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

When Jesus heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.

When Jesus entered Peter’s house, he saw his mother-in-law lying in bed with a fever; he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she got up and began to serve him.

That evening they brought to him many who were sick.

When he heard him, he was amazed and said to those who followed him, “Truly I tell you, in no one in Israel have I found such faith. I tell you, many will come from east and west and will eat with Abraham and Isaac and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven, while the heirs of the kingdom will be thrown into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”

And to the centurion Jesus said, “Go; let it be done for you according to your faith.” And the servant was healed in that hour.
suddenly, the whole herd rushed down the steep bank into the sea and perished in the water. Then the swineherds ran off, and on going into the town, they told the whole story about what had happened to the demoniacs.

Then the whole town came out to meet Jesus; and when they saw him, they begged him to leave their neighborhood. And after getting into a boat he crossed the sea and came to his own town.

And just then some people were carrying a paralyzed man lying on a bed. When Jesus saw their faith, he said to the paralytic, “Take heart, son; your sins are forgiven.” Then some of the scribes said to themselves, “This man is blaspheming.” But Jesus, perceiving their thoughts, said, “Why do you think evil in your hearts? For which is easier, to say, ‘Your sins are forgiven,’ or to say, ‘Stand up and walk’? But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins”—he then said to the paralytic—“Stand up, take your bed and go to your home.” And he stood up and went to his home. When the crowds saw it, they were filled with awe, and they glorified God, who had given such authority to human beings.

As Jesus was walking along, he saw a man called Matthew sitting at the tax booth; and he said to him, “Follow me.” And he got up and followed him.

And as he sat at dinner in the house, many tax collectors and sinners came and were sitting with him and his disciples. When the Pharisees saw this, they said to his disciples, “Why does your teacher eat with tax collectors and sinners?” But when he heard this, he said, “Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick. Go and learn what this means, ‘I desire mercy, not sacrifice.’ For I have come to call not the righteous but sinners.”

Then the disciples of John came to him, saying, “Why do we and the Pharisees fast often, but your disciples do not fast?” And Jesus said to them, “The wedding guests cannot mourn as long as the bridegroom is with them, can they? The days will come when the bridegroom is taken away from them, and then they will fast. No one sews a piece of unshrunk cloth on an old cloak, for the patch pulls away from the cloak, and a worse tear is made. Neither is new wine put into old wineskins; otherwise, the skins burst, and the wine is spilled, and the skins are destroyed; but new wine is put into fresh wineskins, and so both are preserved.”

While he was saying these things to them, suddenly a leader of the synagogue came in and knelt before him, saying, “My daughter has just died; but come and lay your hand on her, and she will live.” And Jesus got up and followed him, with his disciples. Then suddenly a woman who had been suffering from hemorrhages for twelve years came up behind him and touched the fringe of his cloak, for she said to herself, “If I only touch his cloak, I will be made well.” Jesus turned, and seeing her he said, “Take heart, daughter; your faith has made you well.” And instantly the woman was made well.

When Jesus came to the leader’s house and saw the flute players and the crowd making a commotion, he said, “Go away; for the girl is not dead but sleeping.” And they laughed at him. But when the crowd had been put outside, he went in and took her by the hand, and the girl got up.

The healing narratives of Matthew often contrast the treatment of the demoniacs with that of the woman with hemorrhages. The demoniacs are marginalized and ostracized, while the woman is the center of attention. The story of the woman with hemorrhages is a doublet of 20.29–34. The evangelist frequently doubles
Matthew 10

27 As Jesus went on from there, two blind men followed him, crying loudly, “Have mercy on us, Son of David!” 28 When he entered the house, the blind men came to him; and Jesus said to them, “Do you believe that I am able to do this?” They said to him, “Yes, Lord.” 29 Then he touched their eyes and said, “According to your faith let it be done to you.” 30 And their eyes were opened. Then Jesus sternly ordered them, “See that no one knows of this.” 31 But they went away and spread the news about him throughout that district.

32 After they had gone away, a demoniac who was mute was brought to him. 33 And when the demon had been cast out, the one who had been mute spoke; and the crowds were amazed and said, “Never has anything like this been seen in Israel.” 34 But the Pharisees said, “By the ruler of the demons he casts out the demons.”

35 Then Jesus went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and proclaiming the good news of the kingdom, and curing every disease and every sickness.

36 When he saw the crowds, he had compassion for them, because they were harassed and helpless, like sheep without a shepherd. 37 Then he said to his disciples, “The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers are few; 38 therefore ask the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into his harvest.”

Then Jesus summoned his twelve disciples and gave them authority over unclean spirits, to cast them out, and to cure every disease and every sickness. 2 These are the names of the twelve apostles: first, Simon, also known as Peter, and his brother Andrew; James son of Zebedee, and his brother John; Philip and Bartholomew; Thomas and Matthew the tax collector; James son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus; 4 Simon the Cananaean, and Judas Iscariot, the one who betrayed him.

5 These twelve Jesus sent out with the following instructions: “Go nowhere among the Gentiles, and enter no town of the Samaritans, 6 but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. 7 As you go, proclaim the good news, ‘The kingdom of heaven has come near.’ 8 Cure the sick, raise the dead, cleanse the lepers, cast out demons. You received without payment; give without payment. 9 Take no gold, or silver, or copper in your belts, 10 no bag for your journey, or two tunics, or sandals, or a staff; for laborers deserve their food.

the number of figures in his sources (8.28–34; 9.27–31), possibly in keeping with the Jewish legal tradition of furnishing double witnesses to testify to the truth of something (Deut 19.15). 27: The sick and marginalized often address Jesus as Son of David (1.1) in order to be healed. In the other Gospels the title does not have such therapeutic associations. 32–34: A doublet of 12.22–24; 34: Ruler of the demons: cf. 12.24–32.

9.35–38: The compassion of Jesus. 35: Their synagogues may indicate that Jewish Christians in Matthew’s day were no longer participants in Jewish synagogues. In Jesus’ day, synagogue buildings were well established as places of worship. 36: Jesus’ compassion for the leaderless people of Israel is a defining feature of Matthew’s Jesus; cf. Num 27:17; Ezek 34.5. 37: Normally a symbol for the final judgment, the harvest appears here as a metaphor for Jesus’ mission, and forms a fitting introduction to the mission discourse.

10.1–11: The second (mission) discourse. This discourse appears to reflect both the time of Jesus and that of the early church. While Jesus delimits the disciples’ mission to the people of Israel (10.5–6), the discourse goes on to speak of a later phase where the disciples were dragged before governors and provided testimony to the Gentiles (10.18).

10.1–15: The commissioning of the twelve (Mk 3.13–19; Lk 6.12–16; Mk 6.7–13; Lk 9.1–6). The miraculous acts performed by Jesus now become a feature of the disciples’ own ministry. 2: Twelve apostles, this is the first time Matthew explicitly names the twelve; their number reflects the twelve tribes of Israel (19.28). 3: Matthew has added tax collector. 4: Iscariot may mean “from Kerioth,” a town in southern Judea. 5: Gentiles, only Matthew has Jesus delimit his own and his disciples’ ministry to Israel. Samaritans were the inhabitants of Samaria, a region that had been part of the Northern Kingdom of Israel until its defeat by the Assyrians in 722 BCE. Those Jews who were not deported were thought to have intermarried with Gentiles, and their descendants, the Samariever town or village you enter, find out who in it is worthy, and stay there until you leave. As you enter the house, greet it. 13 If the house is worthy, let your peace come upon it; but if it is not worthy, let your peace return to you. 14 If anyone will not welcome you or listen to your words, shake off the dust from your feet as you leave that house or town. 15 Truly I tell you, it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah on the day of judgment than for that town.

16 “See, I am sending you out like sheep into the midst of wolves; so be wise as serpents and innocent as doves. 17 Beware of them, for they will hand you over to councils and flog you in their synagogues; 18 and you will be dragged before governors and kings because of me, as a testimony to them and the Gentiles. 19 When they hand you over, do not worry about how you are to speak or what you are to say; for what you are to say will be given to you at that time; 20 for it is not you who speak, but the Spirit of your Father speaking through you. 21 Brother will betray brother to death, and a father his child, and children will rise against parents and have them put to death; 22 and you will be hated by all because of my name. But the one who endures to the end will be saved. 23 When they persecute you in one town, flee to the next; for truly I tell you, you will not have gone through all the towns of Israel before the Son of Man comes.

24 “A disciple is not above the teacher, nor a slave above the master; 25 it is enough for the disciple to be like the teacher, and the slave like the master. If they have called the master of the house Beelzebul, how much more will they malign those of his household!

26 “So have no fear of them; for nothing is covered up that will not be uncovered, and nothing secret that will not become known. 27 What I say to you in the dark, tell in the light; and what you hear whispered, proclaim from the housetops. 28 Do not fear those who kill the body but cannot kill the soul; rather fear him who can destroy both soul and body in hell. 29 Are not two sparrows sold for a penny? Yet not one of them will fall to the ground apart from your Father. 30 And even the hairs of your head are all counted. 31 So do not be afraid; you are of more value than many sparrows.

32 “Everyone therefore who acknowledges me before others, I also will acknowledge before my Father in heaven; 33 but whoever denies me before others, I also will deny before my Father in heaven.

34 “Do not think that I have come to bring peace to the earth; I have not come to bring peace, but a sword.

35 For I have come to set a man against his father, and a daughter against her mother, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law; 36 and one’s foes will be members of one’s own household.

37 Whoever loves father or mother more than me is not worthy of me; and whoever loves son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me; 38 and whoever does not take up the cross and follow me is not worthy of me. 39 Those who find their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake will find it.

40 “Whoever welcomes you welcomes me, and whoever welcomes me welcomes the one who sent me. 41 Whoever welcomes a tans, were reviled by Jews (see Jn 4.9). 6: Lost sheep of the house of Israel, see 9.36n. 15: Sodom and Gomorrah, Gen 18.16–19.39.

10.26–11.1: The consequences of mission (Lk 12.2–9; 12.51–53; 14.26–27; Mk 9.41). 26: Them, the scribes and Pharisees. 29: Sparrows, the least expensive of edible birds. 34–39: The affliction and pain that must come prior to the messianic age of peace. 38: Cross, a Roman punishment reserved for slaves and rebels. The condemned

a Gk Gehenna
prophet in the name of a prophet will receive a prophet’s reward; and whoever welcomes a righteous person in the name of a righteous person will receive the reward of the righteous; ⁴² and whoever gives even a cup of cold water to one of these little ones in the name of a disciple—truly I tell you, none of these will lose their reward.”

Now when Jesus had finished instructing his twelve disciples, he went on from there to teach and proclaim his message in their cities.

When John heard in prison what the Messiah⁴ was doing, he sent word by his disciples ³ and said to him, “Are you the one who is to come, or are we to wait for another?” ⁴ Jesus answered them, “Go and tell John what you hear and see: ⁵ the blind receive their sight, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, and the poor have good news brought to them. ⁶ And blessed is anyone who takes no offense at me.”

As they went away, Jesus began to speak to the crowds about John: “What did you go out into the wilderness to look at? A reed shaken by the wind? ⁸ What then did you go out to see? Someone dressed in soft robes? Look, those who wear soft robes are in royal palaces. ⁹ What then did you go out to see? A prophet?¹⁰ Yes, I tell you, and more than a prophet. ¹¹ This is the one about whom it is written, ‘See, I am sending my messenger ahead of you, who will prepare your way before you.’

¹² Truly I tell you, among those born of women no one has arisen greater than John the Baptist; yet the least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. ¹³ From the days of John the Baptist until now the kingdom of heaven has suffered violence, and the violent take it by force. ¹⁴ For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John came; ¹⁵ and if you are willing to accept it, he is Elijah who is to come. ¹⁶ Let anyone with ears listen!

"But to what will I compare this generation? It is like children sitting in the marketplaces and calling to one another, ¹⁷ ‘We played the flute for you, and you did not dance; we wailed, and you did not mourn.’ ¹⁸ For John came neither eating nor drinking, and they say, ‘He has a demon’; ¹⁹ the Son of Man came eating and drinking, and they say, ‘Look, a glutton and a drunkard, a friend of tax collectors and sinners!’ Yet wisdom is vindicated by her deeds."¹⁰

Then he began to reproach the cities in which most of his deeds of power had been done, because they did not repent. ²¹ “Woe were forced to carry their cross to the place of execution (27.32). ⁴¹: In the name of a prophet, i.e., because he is a prophet. ⁴²: Little ones, those disciples occupying a humble or lowly position (18.6).

11.2–19: The messengers from John the Baptist (Lk 7.18–35). 2: Prison, Herod’s stronghold Machaerus, 5 mi (8 km) east of the Dead Sea (see 14.1–12). 3: The one who is to come, the Messiah. 5: The blind … to them, the deeds predicted of the Messiah (Isa 35.5–6; 61.1). 5: Lepers: 8.3n. 11: The least: The least are greater through having witnessed the kingdom’s arrival in Jesus and through having been given the opportunity to act on that knowledge (5.19; 18.4). 12: As had happened with many true prophets, violence would soon be visited on John and Jesus. 14: John is the Elijah to come before the day of the Lord: he ushers in the kingdom (Mal 3.1; cf. 17.12–13). 15: 13.9. 16: This generation, the entire generation of Israel contemporaneous with Jesus. 19: Son of Man, 8.20n. Wisdom, Jesus, like John, embodies wisdom, and is justified by his actions (11.4–5).

11.20–24: Woes to unrepentant cities (Lk 10.13–15). 21: A woe oracle against Galilean towns for failing to respond to Jesus. Chorazin has been identified with Kerazeh, a town situated close to Capernaum. After Jerusalem and Capernaum, Bethsaida is the place most commonly associated with Jesus’ ministry in the Gospels (Mk 8.22–6). Sackcloth, a rough fabric worn as a symbol of mourning and repentance. 21–23: Tyre and Sidon, on the Mediterranean coast north of Israel, were often linked in prophetic oracles (Isa 23; Jer 25.22; 27.3–7; 47.4; Ezek 12 Then he said to the man, “Have you not read what David did when he and his companions were hungry? 4 He entered the house of God and ate the bread of the Presence, which it was not lawful for him or his companions to eat, but only for the priests. 5 Or have you not read in the law that on the sabbath the priests in the temple break the sabbath and yet are guiltless?
6 I tell you, something greater than the temple is here. 7 But if you had known what this means, ‘I desire mercy and not sacrifice,’ you would not have condemned the guiltless. 8 For the Son of Man is lord of the sabbath.”

9 He left that place and entered their synagogue; 10 a man was there with a withered hand, and they asked him, “Is it lawful to cure the sabbath?” so that they might accuse him. 11 He said to them, “Suppose one of you has only one sheep and it falls into a pit on the sabbath; will you not lay hold of it and lift it out? 12 How much more valuable is a human being than a sheep! So it is lawful to do good on the sabbath.” 13 Then he said to the man, “Stretch out your hand.” He stretched it out, and it was restored, as sound as the other.
14 But the Pharisees went out and conspired against him, how to destroy him.
15 When Jesus became aware of this, he departed. Many crowds 16 followed him, and he cured all of them, 16 and he ordered them not to make him known. 17 This was to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet Isaiah: 18 “Here is my servant, whom I have chosen,

28.11–23; Joel 3.4–8), while Sodom was a stock example of an evil and unrepentent city (see 10.15n.).
11.25–30: Come to me and rest (Lk 11.21–22). 28: Heavy burdens, 23.4. Rest, a defining feature of the new age
(1 Enoch 63.6). 29: Yoke, either Jesus’ way of life or his teaching of the Torah’s requirements. Jesus may be ad-addressing his disciples here, but it is more likely the crowds of Israel (v. 7).
12.1–8: Plucking grain on the sabbath (Mk 2.23–28; Lk 6.1–5). 1: Grainfields, wheat or barley. Sabbath, Ex 20.8–11; 34.21. Plucking grain was considered to be “work.” 3: David, 1 Sam 21.1–6. 4: Priests were permitted to eat the bread of the Presence once it had been replaced with freshly consecrated loaves (Ex 25.30; Lev 24.5–9).
7: A second citation (see 9.13) of Hos 6.6. For God, acts of mercy outweigh ritual observances. 8: Lord of the sabbath, Jesus’ authority exceeds even that of divinely established institutions.
12.9–21: The healing Messiah (Mk 3.1–6; Lk 6.6–11). 10: Healing would be permitted if the afflicted person was unlikely to survive the sabbath (cf. m. Shabb 18.3; for a ruling against doing so, see CD 11.13–14).
15–21: Isa 42.1–4, the longest fulfillment citation in Matthew. Here the servanthood of Jesus is strongly emphasized.
my beloved, with whom my soul is well gleased.
I will put my Spirit upon him, and he will proclaim justice to the Gentiles.
¹⁹ He will not wrangle or cry aloud, nor will anyone hear his voice in the streets.
²⁰ He will not break a bruised reed or quench a smoldering wick until he brings justice to victory.
²¹ And in his name the Gentiles will hope."
²² Then they brought to him a demoniac who was blind and mute; and he cured him, so that the one who had been mute could speak and see.
²³ All the crowds were amazed and said, "Can this be the Son of David?"
²⁴ But when the Pharisees heard it, they said,
"It is only by Beelzebul, the ruler of the demons, that this fellow casts out the demons."
²⁵ He knew what they were thinking and said to them, "Every kingdom divided against itself is laid waste, and no city or house divided against itself will stand. ²⁶ If Satan casts out Satan, he is divided against himself; how then will his kingdom stand? ²⁷ If I cast out demons by Beelzebul, by whom do your own exorcists⁸ cast them out? Therefore they will be your judges. ²⁸ But if it is by the Spirit of God that I cast out demons, then the kingdom of God has come to you. ²⁹ Or how can one enter a strong man's house and plunder his property, without first tying up the strong man? Then indeed the house can be plundered. ³⁰ Whoever is not with me is against me, and whoever does not gather with me scatters. ³¹ Therefore I tell you, people will be forgiven for every sin and blasphemy, but blasphemy against the Spirit will not be forgiven. ³² Whoever speaks a word against the Son of Man will be forgiven, but whoever speaks against the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven, either in this age or in the age to come.
³³ "Either make the tree good, and its fruit good; or make the tree bad, and its fruit bad; for the tree is known by its fruit. ³⁴ You brood of vipers! How can you speak good things, when you are evil? For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaks. ³⁵ The good person brings good things out of a good treasure, and the evil person brings evil things out of an evil treasure. ³⁶ I tell you, on the day of judgment you will have to give an account for every careless word you utter; ³⁷ for by your words you will be justified, and by your words you will be condemned."
³⁸ Then some of the scribes and Pharisees said to him, "Teacher, we wish to see a sign from you." ³⁹ But he answered them, "An evil and adulterous generation asks for a sign, but no sign will be given to it except the sign of the prophet Jonah. ⁴⁰ For just as Jonah was three days and three nights in the belly of the sea monster, so for three days and three nights the Son of Man will be in the heart of the earth. ⁴¹ The people of Nineveh will rise up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because they repented at the proclamation of Jonah, and see, something greater than Jonah is here! ⁴² The queen of the South will rise up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because she came from the ends of the earth to listen to the wisdom of Solomon, and see, something greater than Solomon is here!
⁴³ "When the unclean spirit has gone out of a person, it wanders through waterless regions looking for a resting place, but it finds none. ⁴⁴ Then it says, 'I will return to my house from which I came.' When it comes, it finds it empty, swept, and put in order.

¹ Gk sons

The title Son of David is synonymous with the Messiah of Israel (1.1; 9.27n.; Ezek 34; Pss. Sol. 17). The crowds merely broach the question of Jesus’ identity, but their question is framed in such a way as to expect a negative answer: “This isn’t . . . , is it?” 24: Beelzebul, 10.25n. 31: Blasphemy, impious denigration. 33: 7.17. 34: 3.7. 37:
Jas 3.1–12.

12.38–45: The demand for a sign (Mk 8.11–12; Lk 11.29–32; 11.24–26). 38: 16.1n. 39: Adulterous, unfaithful to God. Sign of the prophet Jonah, Jesus’ resurrection after three days and nights. 41: Nineveh, capital of the Assyrian empire, proverbial for its size and power. It was the subject of numerous prophetic oracles (Jon; Nah; Zeph 2.13; Tob 14). 42: Queen of the South, the queen of Sheba (1 Kings 10.1–13; 2 Chr 9.1–12). 43: Waterless regions, demons
Then it goes and brings along seven other spirits more evil than itself, and they enter and live there; and the last state of that person is worse than the first. So will it be also with this evil generation.”

While he was still speaking to the crowds, his mother and his brothers were standing outside, wanting to speak to him.

Someone told him, “Look, your mother and your brothers are standing outside, wanting to speak to you.”

But to the one who had told him this, Jesus replied, “Who is my mother, and who are my brothers?”

And pointing to his disciples, he said, “Here are my mother and my brothers!

For whoever does the will of my Father in heaven is my brother and sister and mother.”

That same day Jesus went out of the house and sat beside the sea.

Such great crowds gathered around him that he got into a boat and sat there, while the whole crowd stood on the beach.

And he told them many things in parables, saying: “Listen! A sower went out to sow.

And as he sowed, some seeds fell on the path, and the birds came and ate them up.

Other seeds fell on rocky ground, where they did not have much soil, and they sprang up quickly, since they had no depth of soil. But when the sun rose, they were scorched; and since they had no root, they withered away.

Other seeds fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up and choked them.

Other seeds fell on good soil and brought forth grain, some a hundredfold, some sixty, some thirty. Let anyone with ears listen!”

Then the disciples came and asked him, “Why do you speak to them in parables?”

He answered, “To you it has been given to know the secrets of the kingdom of heaven, but to them it has not been given. For to those who have, more will be given, and they will have an abundance; but from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away. The reason I speak to them in parables is that ‘seeing they do not perceive, and hearing they do not listen, nor do they understand.’ With them indeed is fulfilled the prophecy of Isaiah that says:

‘You will indeed listen, but never understand, and you will indeed look, but never perceive.

For this people’s heart has grown dull, and their ears are hard of hearing, so that they might not look with their eyes, and listen with their ears, and understand with their heart and turn—and I would heal them.’

But blessed are your eyes, for they see, and your ears, for they hear. Truly I tell you, many prophets and righteous people longed... to see what you see, but did not see it, and to hear what you hear, but did not hear it.
¹⁸ “Hear then the parable of the sower.
When anyone hears the word of the kingdom and does not understand it, the evil one comes and snatches away what is sown in the heart; this is what was sown on the path.
As for what was sown on rocky ground, this is the one who hears the word and immediately receives it with joy; yet such a person has no root, but endures only for a while, and when trouble or persecution arises on account of the word, that person immediately falls away. As for what was sown among thorns, this is the one who hears the word, but the cares of the world and the lure of wealth choke the word, and it yields nothing.
But as for what was sown on good soil, this is the one who hears the word and understands it, who indeed bears fruit and yields, in one case a hundredfold, in another sixty,
and in another thirty.”

He put before them another parable:
“The kingdom of heaven may be compared to someone who sowed good seed in his field;
but while everybody was asleep, an enemy came and sowed weeds among the wheat, and then went away. So when the plants came up and bore grain, then the weeds appeared as well. And the slaves of the householder came and said to him, ‘Master, did you not sow good seed in your field? Where, then, did these weeds come from?’ He answered, ‘An enemy has done this.’ The slaves said to him, ‘Then do you want us to go and gather them?’ He replied, ‘No; for in gathering the weeds you would uproot the wheat along with them. Let both of them grow together until the harvest; and at harvest time I will tell the reapers, Collect the weeds first and bind them in bundles to be burned, but gather the wheat into my barn.’”

He put before them another parable:
“The kingdom of heaven is like a mustard seed that someone took and sowed in his field; it is the smallest of all the seeds, but when it has grown it is the greatest of shrubs and becomes a tree, so that the birds of the air come and make nests in its branches.”

He told them another parable: “The kingdom of heaven is like yeast that a woman took and mixed in with three measures of flour until all of it was leavened.”

Jesus told the crowds all these things in parables; without a parable he told them nothing. This was to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet:

“I will open my mouth to speak in parables;
I will proclaim what has been hidden from the foundation of the world.”

Then he left the crowds and went into the house. And his disciples approached him, saying, “Explain to us the parable of the weeds of the field.” He answered, “The one who sows the good seed is the Son of Man;
the field is the world, and the good seed are the children of the kingdom; the weeds are the children of the evil one, and the enemy who sowed them is the devil; the harvest is the end of the age, and the reapers are angels.
Just as the weeds are collected and burned up with fire, so will it be at the end of the age.
The Son of Man will send his angels, and 18–23: In the Gospels only a few of Jesus’ parables are provided with interpretations. 19: Does not understand it, a characteristic Matthean addition.

13.24–33: Three parables of growth (Mk 4.30–32; Lk 13.18–21). 25: Weeds, perhaps darnel, a weed resembling wheat. 31: Mustard seed, the precise species cannot be determined, though mustard seed was popularly regarded as the smallest of seeds planted by farmers. 32: Tree, actually a shrub growing to a height of ca. 10 ft (3 m). Birds, Ezek 17.23; Dan 4.10–12. 33: Yeast, not yeast but leaven, a remnant of fermented dough used as a “starter” for raising a new batch of dough. Three measures, ca. 2/3 bu (21 L).

13.34–35: The use of parables (Mk 4.33–34). A fulfillment citation (Ps 78.2) attributed to Asaph the seer (2 Chr 29.30). In this half of the discourse Jesus’ teaching is reserved for the disciples.

13.36–43: The parable of the weeds explained. 36: House, 13.1. 38: Children of the kingdom, those worthy of the kingdom. 41: Out of his kingdom, some scholars have identified the kingdom with the church, but in view they will collect out of his kingdom all causes of sin and all evildoers, and they will throw them into the furnace of fire, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. Then the righteous will shine like the sun in the kingdom of their Father. Let anyone with ears listen!

44 “The kingdom of heaven is like treasure hidden in a field, which someone found and hid; then in his joy he goes and sells all that he has and buys that field. 45 Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant in search of fine pearls; 46 on finding one pearl of great value, he went and sold all that he had and bought it. 47 Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a net that was thrown into the sea and caught fish of every kind; when it was full, they drew it ashore, sat down, and put the good into baskets but threw out the bad. So it will be at the end of the age. The angels will come out and separate the evil from the righteous and throw them into the furnace of fire, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

51 “Have you understood all this?” They answered, “Yes.” 52 And he said to them, “Therefore every scribe who has been trained for the kingdom of heaven is like the master of a household who brings out of his treasure what is new and what is old.” 53 When Jesus had finished these parables, he left that place. 54 He came to his hometown and began to teach the people in their synagogue, so that they were astounded and said, “Where did this man get this wisdom and these deeds of power? Is not this the carpenter’s son? Is not his mother called Mary? And are not his brothers James and Joseph and Simon and Judas? And are not all his sisters with us? Where then did this man get all this?” 55 And they took offense at him. But Jesus said to them, “Prophets are not without honor except in their own country and in their own house.” And he did not do many deeds of power there, because of their unbelief.

14 At that time Herod the ruler heard reports about Jesus; and he said to his servants, “This is John the Baptist; he has been raised from the dead, and for this reason these powers are at work in him.” For Herod had arrested John, bound him, and put him in prison on account of Herodias, his brother Philip’s wife, because John had been telling him, “It is not lawful for you to have her.” Though Herod wanted to put him to death, he feared the crowd, because they regarded him as a prophet. But when Herod’s birthday came, the daughter of Herodias danced before the company, and she pleased Herod so much that he promised on oath to grant her whatever she might ask. Prompted by her mother, she said, “Give me the head of John the Baptist here on a platter.” The king was grieved, yet out of regard for his oaths and for the guests, he of v. 38 it is better understood as the world. Causes of sin, 16.23; 18.7. Evildoers, 7.23. 42: 8.12n. 43: Shine like the sun, Dan 12.3.

13.44–53: Four more parables. 44: Field, in the absence of banks, valuables were often buried for safekeeping (25.25). 47: Net, a seine net. 51: The final parable in the chapter. Understood, in contrast to Jesus’ disciples in Mk 4.13–33–34, here the disciples confirm their understanding of Jesus’ teaching. 52: Scribe, perhaps a self-portrait of the Gospel’s author, or an indication of early Christian scribes (23.34). His treasure, the storeroom from which he draws his understanding of Jesus’ ministry (the new) and of the Jewish Scriptures (the old).

13.54–58: The rejection of Jesus at Nazareth (Mk 6.1–6; Lk 4.16–30). 54: His hometown, Nazareth. 55: Carpenter’s son contrasts with “carpenter” (Mk 6.3). The word translated here as “carpenter” can also mean “builder” or “stonemason.” What Mk 6.5 describes as an inability to perform mighty deeds becomes, in Matthew, an unwillingness to do so in the face of the Nazarenes’ disbelief (13.58). His brothers, Mk 6.3; Jude 1.

14.1–12: The death of John the Baptist (Mk 6.14–29; Lk 9.7–9). 1: Herod, Matthew uses the correct designation “Herod the Tetrarch” (see textual note c) for Herod Antipas (2.22n.) in contrast to the “King Herod” of Mk 6.14. 4: Lev 18.16; 20.21. 6: Daughter of Herodias, Josephus identifies her as Salome (Ant. 18.136; for Josephus’s account of John’s death, see Ant. 18.116–19). Compare Esth 2.9.

NEW TESTAMENT | 1767
commanded it to be given; ¹⁰ he sent and had John beheaded in the prison. ¹¹ The head was brought on a platter and given to the girl, who brought it to her mother. ¹² His disciples came and took the body and buried it; then they went and told Jesus.

¹³ Now when Jesus heard this, he withdrew from there in a boat to a deserted place by himself. But when the crowds heard it, they followed him on foot from the towns. ¹⁴ When he went ashore, he saw a great crowd; and he had compassion for them and cured their sick. ¹⁵ When it was evening, the disciples came to him and said, “This is a deserted place, and the hour is now late; send the crowds away so that they may go into the villages and buy food for themselves.” ¹⁶ Jesus said to them, “They need not go away; you give them something to eat.” ¹⁷ They replied, “We have nothing here but five loaves and two fish.” ¹⁸ And he said, “Bring them here to me.” ¹⁹ Then he ordered the crowds to sit down on the grass. Taking the five loaves and the two fish, he looked up to heaven, and blessed and broke the loaves, and gave them to the disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowds. ²⁰ And all ate and were filled; and they took up what was left over of the broken pieces, twelve baskets full. ²¹ And those who ate were about five thousand men, besides women and children.

²² Immediately he made the disciples get into the boat and go on ahead to the other side, while he dismissed the crowds. ²³ And after he had dismissed the crowds, he went up the mountain by himself to pray. When evening came, he was there alone, while he dismissed the crowds. ²⁴ After the people of that place recognized him, they sent word throughout the region and brought all who were sick to him, ²⁵ and begged him that they might touch even the fringe of his cloak; and all who touched it were healed.

¹⁴.13–36: The feeding of the five thousand and the walking on the water (Mk 6.30–56; Lk 9.10–17; Jn 6.1–21). These are the only miracles found in all four Gospels. There is a doublet for the feeding in 15.32–38; cf. also 1 Kings 17.8–16; 2 Kings 4.42–44. ¹⁹: Looked . . . blessed . . . broke . . . gave . . . , the language suggests a liturgical action; cf. 26.26. ²¹: Matthew increases the magnitude of the miracle by adding besides women and children. ²²: The other side of the Sea of Galilee. ²⁵: Early in the morning, lit., “in the fourth watch of the night,” i.e., between 3 and 6 AM. ²⁷: It is I, lit., “I am,” a reference to the divine name (Ex 3.14). ²⁸: Peter’s walking on the water is unique to Matthew and brings out both the role of Peter as the representative of the disciples, and his—and their—need for faith. ³⁴: Gennesaret, either a narrow plain on the west side of the Sea, or a town on that plain; 4:18n.

¹⁵.1–20: The tradition of the elders (Mk 7.1–23). ²: Tradition of the elders, Pharisaic oral law designed to elucidate and protect the law of Moses (3.8n.). Wash, eat food in a state of ritual purity. ³: Hand-washing was a
then that person need not honor the father. ⁸ So, for the sake of your tradition, you make void the word⁹ of God. ⁷ You hypocrites! Isaiah prophesied rightly about you when he said:

⁸ This people honors me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me; in vain do they worship me, teaching human precepts as doctrines.”

¹⁰ Then he called the crowd to him and said to them, “Listen and understand: ¹¹ it is not what goes into the mouth that defiles a person, but it is what comes out of the mouth that defiles.” ¹² Then the disciples approached and said to him, “Do you know that the Pharisees took offense when they heard what you said?” ¹³ He answered, “Every plant that my heavenly Father has not planted will be uprooted. ¹⁴ Let them alone; they are blind guides of the blind. ⁵ And if one blind person guides another, both will fall into a pit.” ¹⁵ But Peter said to him, “Explain this parable to us.” ¹⁶ Then he said, “Are you also still without understanding? ¹⁷ Do you not see that whatever goes into the mouth enters the stomach, and goes out into the sewer? ¹⁸ But what comes out of the mouth proceeds from the heart, and this is what defiles. ¹⁹ For out of the heart come evil intentions, murder, adultery, fornication, theft, false witness, slander. ²⁰ These are what defile a person, but to eat with unwashed hands does not defile.” ²¹ Jesus left that place and went away to the district of Tyre and Sidon. ²² Just then a Canaanite woman from that region came out and started shouting, “Have mercy on me, Lord, Son of David; my daughter is tormented by a demon.” ²³ But he did not answer her at all. And his disciples came and urged him, saying, “Send her away, for she keeps shouting after us.” ²⁴ He answered, “I was sent only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.” ²⁵ But she came and knelt before him, saying, “Lord, help me.” ²⁶ He answered, “It is not fair to take the children’s food and throw it to the dogs.” ²⁷ She said, “Yes, Lord, yet even the dogs eat the crumbs that fall from their masters’ table.” ²⁸ Then Jesus answered her, “Woman, great is your faith! Let it be done for you as you wish.” And her daughter was healed instantly.

²⁹ After Jesus had left that place, he passed along the Sea of Galilee, and he went up the mountain, where he sat down. ³⁰ Great crowds came to him, bringing with them the lame, the maimed, the blind, the mute, and many others. They put them at his feet, and he cured them, ³¹ so that the crowd was amazed when they saw the mute speaking, the maimed whole, the lame walking, and the blind seeing. And they praised the God of Israel.

³² Then Jesus called his disciples to him and said, “I have compassion for the crowd, because they have been with me now for three days and have nothing to eat; and I do not want to send them away hungry, for they might faint on the way.” ³³ The disciples said to him, “Where are we to get enough bread in the desert to feed so great a crowd?” ³⁴ Jesus asked them, “How many loaves have you?” They said, “Seven, and a few small fish.” ³⁵ Then ordering the crowd to sit down on the ground, ³⁶ he took the seven loaves and the fish; and after giving thanks he broke them and gave them to the disciples, and the disciples gave them to the crowds. ³⁷ And all

---

Pharisaic tradition, not stipulated by the Torah. ⁴ God said, Ex 20.12; 21.17; Lev 20.9; Deut 5.16. ⁷–⁹: Isa 29.13. ¹¹: Defiles, renders one ritually unclean. ¹⁴: Blind guides. ²¹. ¹⁵: Significantly, Matthew stops short of Mark’s conclusion, “Thus he declared all foods clean” (Mk 7.19).

¹⁵.21–28: The Canaanite woman’s faith (Mk 7.24–30). ²¹: District, perhaps the largely Jewish enclave in Syria bordering on northwest Galilee. ²²: Canaanite replaces Mark’s more accurate, political designation “Syrophoenician.” The archaic term “Canaanite” may be designed to recall Israel’s traditional enemies (Deut 7.1). Son of David, see 9.27n. ²⁴: The limited mission to Israel enjoined on the disciples at 10.5–6 also applies to Jesus’ own ministry. ²⁷: Dogs, “little dogs” or household pets as metaphors for Gentiles. ²⁸: Like the Roman centurion (8.5–10), the Gentile woman is praised for exemplary faith.

¹⁵.29–39: The feeding and healing of many people (Mk 8.1–10). There is a doublet to the feeding in 14.13–23.
of them ate and were filled; and they took up the broken pieces left over, seven baskets full. 38 Those who had eaten were four thousand men, besides women and children. 39 After sending away the crowds, he got into the boat and went to the region of Magadan.

16 The Pharisees and Sadducees came, and to test Jesus they asked him to show them a sign from heaven. 2 He answered them, “When it is evening, you say, ‘It will be fair weather, for the sky is red.’ 3 And in the morning, ‘It will be stormy today, for the sky is red and threatening.’ You know how to interpret the appearance of the sky, but you cannot interpret the signs of the times. 4 An evil and adulterous generation asks for a sign, but no sign will be given to it except the sign of Jonah.” Then he left them and went away.

5 When the disciples reached the other side, they had forgotten to bring any bread. 6 Jesus said to them, “Watch out, and beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees.” 7 They said to one another, “It is because we have brought no bread.” 8 And becoming aware of it, Jesus said, “You of little faith, why are you talking about having no bread? 9 Do you still not perceive? Do you not remember the five loaves for the five thousand, and how many baskets you gathered? 10 Or the seven loaves for the four thousand, and how many baskets you gathered? 11 How could you fail to perceive that I was not speaking about bread? Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and Sadducees!” 12 Then they understood that he had not told them to beware of the yeast of bread, but of the teaching of the Pharisees and Sadducees.

13 Now when Jesus came into the district of Caesarea Philippi, he asked his disciples, “Who do people say that the Son of Man is?” 14 And they said, “Some say John the Baptist, but others Elijah, and still others Jeremiah or one of the prophets.” 15 He said to them, “But who do you say that I am?” 16 Simon Peter answered, “You are the Messiah, the Son of the living God.” 17 And Jesus answered him, “Blessed are you, Simon son of Jonah! For flesh and blood has not revealed this to you, but my Father in heaven. 18 And I tell you, you are Peter, and on this rock I will build my church, and the gates of Hades will not prevail against it. 19 I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven, and whatever you bind on earth will be bound 30: 9.35–36n. 38: The four thousand may be Gentiles but are more likely Israelites. 39: Magadan (see textual note a) replaces Mark’s “district of Dalmanutha” (Mk 8.10); both locales are unknown. 16.1–12: The Pharisees and Sadducees (Mk 8.11–21; Lk 12.54–56). 1: 3.7n. Sign, probably a cosmic event. 4: Sign of Jonah, see 12.38–41. 6: Here yeast (leaven) is a metaphor for teaching, but teaching that has the capacity to corrupt everything with which it comes into contact. At 13.33 the metaphor is used positively. 8: 14.28n. 9: 14.13–21. 10: 15.32–39.

16.13–20: Peter’s confession about Jesus (Mk 8.27–30; Lk 9.18–21). 13: Caesarea Philippi, a city 25 mi (40 km) north of the Sea of Galilee, formerly Baneas and renamed by Philip in honor of Augustus. It is to be distinguished from Caesarea Maritima, the Hellenistic city redesigned and expanded by Herod the Great on the Mediterranean coast that served as the headquarters of the Roman governor (Acts 8.40; 21.8,16). Son of Man, 8.20n. 14: Jeremiah, Matthew’s inclusion of Jeremiah among the prophets emphasizes the parallels between Jesus and Jeremiah (also mentioned in Mt 2.17; 27.9). 16: Son of the living God is found only in Matthew’s version of Peter’s confession (cf. 26.63; Ps 42.2). The title has strong messianic overtones (4Q174.10–14). 17: Son of Jonah, either a variant of “son of John” (Jn 1.42) or an indication that Peter has a prophetic gift like Jonah’s. Flesh and blood, humans. 18: This promise to Peter is found only in Matthew. Peter . . . rock, Jesus’ nickname for Simon (Gk “petros”) means “stone” or “rock.” The same pun works with its Aramaic equivalent, Kephas (1 Cor 11.2; 15.5; Gal 1.18). Church, the only occurrences of the word “church” (“ekklesia”) in the Gospels are here and at 18.17. Hades is the Greek term for both the god of the dead and his realm, the latter roughly equivalent to Heb Sheol, the shadowy domain of all the dead. The gates of Hades may mean the “powers of death.” 19: Keys, a symbolic ascription of power (see Isa 22.22), bequeathing Peter the authority to oversee admission to the church (cf. 18.18).
in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven.” 20 Then he sternly ordered the disciples not to tell anyone that he was the Messiah.

21 From that time on, Jesus began to show his disciples that he must go to Jerusalem and undergo great suffering at the hands of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and on the third day be raised. 22 And Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him, saying, “God forbid it, Lord! This must never happen to you.” 23 But he turned and said to Peter, “Get behind me, Satan! You are a stumbling block to me; for you are setting your mind not on divine things but on human things.”

24 Then Jesus told his disciples, “If any want to become my followers, let them deny themselves and take up their cross and follow me. 25 For those who want to save their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake will find it. 26 For what will it profit them if they gain the whole world but forfeit their life? Or what will they give in return for their life?

27 “For the Son of Man is to come with his angels in the glory of his Father, and then he will repay everyone for what has been done. 28 Truly I tell you, there are some standing here who will not taste death before they see the Son of Man coming in his kingdom.”

Six days later, Jesus took with him Peter and James and his brother John and led them up a high mountain, by themselves. 2 And he was transfigured before them, and his face shone like the sun, and his clothes became dazzling white. 3 Suddenly there appeared to them Moses and Elijah, talking with him. 4 Then Peter said to Jesus, “Lord, it is good for us to be here; if you wish, I will make three dwellings here, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.” 5 While he was still speaking, suddenly a bright cloud overshadowed them, and from the cloud a voice said, “This is my Son, the Beloved; with him I am well pleased; listen to him!” 6 When the disciples heard this, they fell to the ground and were overcome by fear. 7 But Jesus came and touched them, saying, “Get up and do not be afraid.” 8 And when they looked up, they saw no one except Jesus himself alone.

9 As they were coming down the mountain, Jesus ordered them, “Tell no one about the vision until after the Son of Man has been raised from the dead.” 10 And the disciples asked him, “Why, then, do the scribes say that Elijah must come first?” 11 He replied, “Elijah is indeed coming and will restore all things; 12 but I tell you that Elijah has already come, and they did not recognize him, but they did to him whatever they pleased. So also the Son of Man is about to suffer at their hands.” 13 Then the disciples understood that he was speaking to them about John the Baptist.

14 When they came to the crowd, a man came to him, knelt before him, 15 and said, “Lord, have mercy on my son, for he is an epileptic and he suff ers terribly; he often falls into the fire and often into the water. 16 And I brought him to your disciples, but they could not cure him.” 17 Jesus answered, “You faithless and perverse generation, how much longer must I be with you? How much longer must

---

17.1–13: The transfiguration of Jesus (Mk 9.2–13; Lk 9.28–36). 1: High mountain, traditionally identified with Mount Tabor or, because of its proximity to Caesarea Philippi, with Mount Hermon. The setting is reminiscent of God’s revelation to Moses, and later Elijah, on Sinai (Horeb) (Ex 34.1–9; 1 Kings 19.1–18). 3: Moses and Elijah symbolize, respectively, the Law and the prophets, the first two divisions of the Hebrew Bible. 5: My Son, 3.17n. 10: Elijah must come first, according to the traditional interpretation of Mal 4.5, Elijah would come “before the day of the Lord.” 12: Elijah has already come in the person of John the Baptist.

I put up with you? Bring him here to me.”
18 And Jesus rebuked the demon, and it came out of him, and the boy was cured instantly.
19 Then the disciples came to Jesus privately and said, “Why could we not cast it out?” 20 He said to them, “Because of your little faith. For truly I tell you, if you have faith the size of a mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, ‘Move from here to there,’ and it will move; and nothing will be impossible for you.”
22 As they were gathering in Galilee, Jesus said to them, “The Son of Man is going to be betrayed into human hands, 23 and they will kill him, and on the third day he will be raised.” And they were greatly distressed.
24 When they reached Capernaum, the collectors of the temple tax came to Peter and said, “Does your teacher not pay the temple tax?” 25 He said, “Yes, he does.” And when he came home, Jesus spoke of it first, asking, “What do you think, Simon? From whom do kings of the earth take toll or tribute? From their children or from others?” 26 When Peter said, “From others,” Jesus said to him, “Then the children are free. 27 However, so that we do not give offense to them, go to the sea and cast a hook; take the first fish that comes up; and when you open its mouth, you will find a coin; take that and give it to them for you and me.”

At that time the disciples came to Jesus and asked, “Who is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven?” 2 He called a child, whom he put among them, and said, “Truly I tell you, unless you change and become like children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven. 4 Whoever becomes humble like this child is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven. 5 Whoever welcomes one such child in my name welcomes me.
6 “If any of you put a stumbling block before one of these little ones who believe in me, it would be better for you if a great millstone were fastened around your neck and you were drowned in the depth of the sea. 7 Woe to the world because of stumbling blocks! Occasions for stumbling are bound to come, but woe to the one by whom the stumbling block comes!
8 “If your hand or your foot causes you to stumble, cut it off and throw it away; it is better for you to enter life maimed or lame than to have two hands or two feet and to be thrown into the eternal fire. 9 And if your eye causes you to stumble, tear it out and throw it away; it is better for you to enter life with one eye than to have two eyes and be cast into Gehenna. 10 And if your hand or your foot makes you stumble, cut it off and throw it away; it is better for you to enter life with limbs than to have limbs and be cast into Gehenna. 11 It is better for you to enter life with no body parts than to have all your body parts and be cast into Gehenna. 12 Whoever causes one of these little ones who believe in me to stumble, it would be better for him if a great millstone were fastened around his neck and he were thrown into the deep sea. 13 So then, if your hand or your foot or your eye causes you to stumble, cut it off and throw it away; it is better for you to enter life with one hand or with one foot or with one eye, rather than to have all your limbs and be cast into Gehenna. 14 And if your eye causes you to stumble, you should pluck it out and throw it away; it is better for you to enter life with one eye, rather than to have two eyes and be cast into Gehenna. 15 Watch out that you do not despise one of these little ones; for I tell you, their angels in heaven always see the face of my Father in heaven.”
16 As Jesus was leaving Jericho with his disciples, a large crowd followed him. 17 A blind man named Bartimaeus was sitting along the road and heard that Jesus was passing by. 18 He began to beg with a loud voice, “Jesus, son of David, have mercy on me!” 19 Jesus’ disciples rebuked him, telling him to be silent, but Bartimaeus cried out all the more. 20 “Son of David, have mercy on me!” he shouted. 21 Jesus stopped and ordered him to come near. When Bartimaeus came near, Jesus said to him, “What do you want me to do for you?” 22 Bartimaeus replied, “Lord, I want to see.” 23 Jesus said to him, “Then go; your faith has made you well.” And instantly he received his sight and followed Jesus along the road.

Jesus’ disciples; cf. Deut 32.5,20. 20: Little faith is the main problem besetting Jesus’ disciples in Matthew. Mustard seed, 13.31n.
17.22–23: Jesus’ second prediction of his death and resurrection (Mk 9.30–32; Lk 9.43–45). 22: Were gathering, in order to visit Jerusalem for Passover. 23: Whereas in Mk 9.32 the disciples are perplexed, Matthew’s disciples are greatly distressed.
17.24–27: Payment of the temple tax. 24: Temple tax, lit., “the didrachma.” This “double drachma” was equivalent to half a shekel, an amount enjoined on all Israel (Ex 30.11–16). Used in Jesus’ day for sacrifices and the upkeep of the Temple, the tax (the “fiscus judaicus”) continued to be levied by Rome after the Temple’s destruction in 70 CE, as a penalty for the Jewish people’s revolt. 26: The children are free, just as a king’s children are tax-exempt, so too are God’s children, i.e., Jesus and his brothers and sisters (12.50). 27: Give offense, offend the devout people who collect the tax.
18.1–35: The fourth discourse, on community or church. This discourse focuses on community interrelations and church discipline—specifically the need for the church to care for their disadvantaged and forgive one another.
18.1–9: The greatest in the kingdom and temptations to sin (Mk 9.33–37; 42–48; Lk 9.46–48; 17.1–2). 3–6: Children and little ones, humble Christian disciples. 6: Great millstone, a stone harnessed to a donkey to grind grain. Sea, millstones were sometimes used as anchors (cf. Rev 18.21). 9: Hell, lit., “Gehenna,” the valley of Ben Hinnom to the immediate south of Jerusalem, formerly a place of child sacrifice (Jer 7.31), used in Jesus’ day as 10 “Take care that you do not despise one of these little ones; for, I tell you, in heaven their angels continually see the face of my Father in heaven.

11 “For this reason the kingdom of heaven may be compared to a king who wished to settle accounts with his slaves.

12 When he began the reckoning, one who owed him ten thousand talents was brought to him;

13 and, as he could not pay, his lord ordered him to be sold, together with his wife and children and all his possessions, and payment to be made.

14 So it is not the will of your Father in heaven that one of these little ones should be lost.

15 “If another member of the church sins against you, go and point out the fault when the two of you are alone. If the member listens to you, you have regained that one.

16 But if you are not listened to, take one or two others along with you, so that every word may be confirmed by the evidence of two or three witnesses.

17 If the member refuses to listen to them, tell it to the church; and if the offender refuses to listen even to the church, let such a one be to you as a Gentile and a tax collector.

18 Truly I tell you, whatever you bind on earth will be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth will be loosed in heaven.

19 Again, truly I tell you, if two of you agree on earth about anything you ask, it will be done for you by my Father in heaven.

20 For where two or three are gathered in my name, I am there among them.”

21 Then Peter came and said to him, “Lord, if another member of the church sins against me, how often should I forgive? As many as seven times?”

22 Jesus said to him, “Not seven times, but, I tell you, seventy-seven times.

23 “For this reason the kingdom of heaven may be compared to a king who wished to settle accounts with his slaves.

24 When he began the reckoning, one who owed him ten thousand talents was brought to him;

25 and, as he could not pay, his lord ordered him to be sold, together with his wife and children and all his possessions, and payment to be made.

26 So the slave fell on his knees before him, saying, ‘Have patience with me, and I will pay you everything.’

27 And out of pity for him, the lord of that slave released him and forgave him the debt.

28 But that same slave, as he went out, came upon one of his fellow slaves who owed him a hundred denarii;

29 and seizing him by the throat, he said, ‘Pay what you owe.’

30 Then his fellow slave fell down and pleaded with him, ‘Have patience with me, and I will pay you.’

31 But he refused; then he went and threw him into prison until he would pay the debt.

32 When his fellow slaves saw what had happened, they were greatly distressed, and they went and reported to their lord all that had taken place.

33 Then his lord summoned him and said to him, ‘You wicked slave! I forgave you all that debt because you pleaded with me.

34 Should you not have had mercy on your fellow slave as I had mercy on you?’

a Gk Gehenna

b Other ancient authorities add verse 11, For the Son of Man came to save the lost

c Other ancient authorities read my

d Gk If your brother

e Other ancient authorities lack against you

f Gk the brother

g Gk if my brother

h Or seventy times seven

i A talent was worth more than fifteen years’ wages of a laborer

j The denarius was the usual day’s wage for a laborer a garbage dump and incinerator.

on your fellow slave, as I had mercy on you?’”

34 And in anger his lord handed him over to be tortured until he would pay his entire debt.

35 So my heavenly Father will also do to every one of you, if you do not forgive your brother or sister from your heart.”

19 When Jesus had finished saying these things, he left Galilee and went to the region of Judea beyond the Jordan. Large crowds followed him, and he cured them there.

2 Some Pharisees came to him, and to test him they asked, “Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife for any cause?”

4 He answered, “Have you not read that the one who made them at the beginning ‘made them male and female,’

5 and said, ‘For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh’?

6 So they are no longer two, but one flesh. Therefore what God has joined together, let no one separate.”

7 They said to him, “Why then did Moses command us to give a certificate of dismissal and to divorce her?”

8 He said to them, “It was because you were so hard-hearted that Moses allowed you to divorce your wives, but from the beginning it was not so. And I say to you, whoever divorces his wife, except for unchastity, and marries another commits adultery.”

10 His disciples said to him, “If such is the case of a man with his wife, it is better not to marry.”

11 But he said to them, “Not everyone can accept this teaching, but only those to whom it is given.”

12 For there are eunuchs who have been so from birth, and there are eunuchs who have been made eunuchs by others, and there are eunuchs who have made themselves eunuchs for the sake of the kingdom of heaven. Let anyone accept this who can.”

13 Then little children were being brought to him in order that he might lay his hands on them and pray. The disciples spoke sternly to those who brought them; but Jesus said, “Let the little children come to me, and do not stop them; for it is to such as these that the kingdom of heaven belongs.”

14 And he laid his hands on them and went on his way.

16 Then someone came to him and said, “Teacher, what good deed must I do to have eternal life?”

17 And he said to him, “Why do you ask me about what is good? There is only one who is good. If you wish to enter into life, keep the commandments.”

18 He said to him, “Which ones?”

19 And Jesus said, “You shall not murder; You shall not commit adultery; You shall not steal; You shall not bear false witness; Honor your father and mother; also, You shall love your neighbor as yourself.”

20 The young man said to him, “I have kept all these; what do I still lack?”

21 Jesus said to him, “If you wish to be perfect, go, sell your possessions, and give the money to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me.”

22 When the young man heard this word, he went away grieving, for he had many possessions.

23 Then Jesus said to his disciples, “Truly I tell you, it will be hard for a rich person to enter the kingdom of heaven.”

Again I tell you, it will be hard for a rich person to enter the kingdom of heaven.

wages. 30: 5.25n. 34: Tortured, to ascertain the location of the slave’s money or to coerce money from his family.

19.1–20.34: Jesus moves from Galilee to Judea. In Matthew, this transition marks Jesus’ first (and final) trip to Judea.

19.1–12: Teaching about divorce (Mk 10.1–12). 1: Beyond the Jordan, the Transjordan or Perea, regions on the east side of the Jordan river. Galileans traveling to Jerusalem for Passover would often cross over the Jordan to bypass Samaria (Lk 9.51–56).

2: Large crowds, 4.25n. 3: The Pharisaic schools of Hillel and Shammai both permitted divorce but differed over the appropriate grounds. 4–5: Gen 1.27; 2.24. 7: Moses, Deut 24.1–4. 9: Except for unchastity, this exception clause has been added by Matthew. 12: Made themselves eunuchs, hyperbole for the voluntary practice of celibacy; a eunuch is a castrated male.

19.13–30: Little children and the rich young man (Mk 10.13–31; Lk 18.15–30). 13–15: Cf. 18.1–5. 17: Only one, God; Mk 10.18. To enter into life means both “to enter the kingdom” and “to gain eternal life” (vv. 16,23,24). 19: Ex 20.12–16; Deut 5.16–20; Matthew adds the love commandment from Lev 19.18 (cf. 22.39). 21: Perfect, 5.48. 22:
you, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for someone who is rich to enter the kingdom of God.” 25 When the disciples heard this, they were greatly astounded and said, “Then who can be saved?” 26 But Jesus looked at them and said, “For mortals it is impossible, but for God all things are possible.”

27 Then Peter said in reply, “Look, we have left everything and followed you. What then will we have?” 28 Jesus said to them, “Truly I tell you, at the renewal of all things, when the Son of Man is seated on the throne of his glory, you who have followed me will also sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. 29 And everyone who has left houses or brothers or sisters or father or mother or children or fields, for my name’s sake, will receive a hundredfold, and will inherit eternal life. 30 But many who are first will be last, and the last will be first.

20 “For the kingdom of heaven is like a landowner who went out early in the morning to hire laborers for his vineyard. 2 After agreeing with the laborers for the usual daily wage, he sent them into his vineyard. 3 When he went out about nine o’clock, he saw others standing idle in the marketplace; 4 and he said to them, ‘You also go into the vineyard, and I will pay you whatever is right.’ So they went. 5 When he went out again about noon and about three o’clock, he did the same. 6 And about five o’clock he went out and found others standing around; and he said to them, ‘Why are you standing here idle all day?’ 7 They said to him, ‘Because no one has hired us.’ He said to them, ‘You also go into the vineyard.’ 8 When evening came, the owner of the vineyard said to his manager, ‘Call the laborers and give them their pay, beginning with the last and then going to the first.’ 9 When those hired about five o’clock came, each of them received the usual daily wage. 10 Now when the first came, they thought they would receive more; but each of them also received the usual daily wage.

11 And when they received it, they grumbled against the landowner, saying, ‘These last worked only one hour, and you have made them equal to us who have borne the burden of the day and the scorching heat.’ 12 But he replied to one of them, ‘Friend, I am doing you no wrong; did you not agree with me for the usual daily wage? Take what belongs to you and go; I choose to give to this last the same as I give to you. 13 Am I not allowed to do what I choose with what belongs to me? Or are you envious because I am generous?’ 14 So the last will be first, and the first will be last.”

17 While Jesus was going up to Jerusalem, he took the twelve disciples aside by themselves, and said to them on the way, “See, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be handed over to the chief priests and scribes, and they will condemn him to death; 19 then they will hand him over to the Gentiles to be mocked and flogged and crucified; and on the third day he will be raised.”

20 Then the mother of the sons of Zebedee came to him with her sons, and kneeling before him, she asked a favor of him. 21 And he said to her, “What do you want?” She said to him, “Declare that these two sons of mine will sit, one at your right hand and one at your left, in your kingdom.” 22 But Jesus answered, “You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink the cup that I a Other ancient authorities read manifold b Gk a denarius c Gk is your eye evil because I am good? d Other ancient authorities add for many are called but few are chosen

Young, only found in Matthew. 24: Camel, the largest animal in the region (23.24). 28: Renewal, the new age on earth, featuring a general resurrection. Thrones, Dan 7.9–14. 30: 20.16.

20.20–28: The request of James and John (Mk 10.35–45). In contrast to Mark, the request here originates with their mother. 21: Right . . . left, indicates those figures who, flanking a monarch, would rank as second and am about to drink?"a They said to him, “We are able.”b 23 He said to them, “You will indeed drink my cup, but to sit at my right hand and at my left, this is not mine to grant, but it is for those for whom it has been prepared by my Father.”

24 When the ten heard it, they were angry with the two brothers. 25 But Jesus called them to him and said, “You know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great ones are tyrants over them. It will not be so among you; but whoever wishes to be great among you must be your servant, 26 and whoever wishes to be first among you must be your slave; just as the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve, and to give his life a ransom for many.”

29 As they were leaving Jericho, a large crowd followed him. 30 There were two blind men sitting by the roadside. When they heard that Jesus was passing by, they shouted, “Lord, have mercy on us, Son of David!”

31 The crowd sternly ordered them to be quiet; but they shouted even more loudly, “Have mercy on us, Lord, Son of David!” 32 Jesus stood still and called them, saying, “What do you want me to do for you?” 33 They said to him, “Lord, let our eyes be opened.” 34 Moved with compassion, Jesus touched their eyes. Immediately they regained their sight and followed him.

When they had come near Jerusalem and had reached Bethphage, at the Mount of Olives, Jesus sent two disciples, 2 saying to them, “Go into the village ahead of you, and immediately you will find a donkey tied, and a colt with her; untie them and bring them to me. 3 If anyone says anything to you, just say this, ‘The Lord needs them.’ And he will send them immediately.” 4 This took place to fulfill what had been spoken through the prophet, saying,

5 “Tell the daughter of Zion, Look, your king is coming to you, humble, and mounted on a donkey, and on a colt, the foal of a donkey.”

6 The disciples went and did as Jesus had directed them; 7 they brought the donkey and the colt, and put their cloaks on them, and he sat on them. 8 A very large crowd spread their cloaks on the road, and others cut branches from the trees and spread them on the road. 9 The crowds that went ahead of him and that followed were shouting,

“Hosanna to the Son of David! Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord! Hosanna in the highest heaven!”

10 When he entered Jerusalem, the whole city was in turmoil, asking, “Who is this?” 11 The crowds were saying, “This is the prophet Jesus from Nazareth in Galilee.”

a Other ancient authorities add or to be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?
b Other ancient authorities lack Lord
c Or ‘The Lord needs them and will send them back immediately.’
d Or Most of the crowd

third in authority. 23: My cup, Acts 12.2 mentions James’ martyrdom; according to postbiblical tradition, his brother John was also martyred. 28: Ransom, the price paid to liberate a slave.

20.29–34: The healing of two blind men (Mk 10.46–52; Lk 18.35–43); a doublet of 9.27–31. 29: Jericho, city and oasis 15 mi (24 km) east of Jerusalem and 8 mi (13 km) north of the Dead Sea. 30: Two blind men, in Mk 10.46 the single blind man is identified as Bartimeus, son of Timaeus. 31: Son of David, see 9.27n.

21.1–11: The triumphal entry into Jerusalem (Mk 11.1–11; Lk 19.28–38; Jn 12.12–19). 1: Bethphage (“House of Figs”), a village on the Mount of Olives ca. 1 mi (1.6 km) east of the Jerusalem Temple. 2: Village, perhaps Bethany (see v. 17; Mk 11.1). Donkey, instead of a warhorse connoting a military leader (Pss. Sol. 17), Jesus rides a donkey symbolizing peace (Zech 9.9–10). 4–5: A composite fulfillment citation of Isa 62.11 and Zech 9.9. Daughter of Zion, Jerusalem and its residents. 7: Colt, while Zechariah refers to only one donkey, expressed by poetical parallelism, Matthew’s fulfillment citation interprets the expression as two: a donkey and its foal. 8: Cloaks, an act of royal homage; 2 Kings 9.13. 9: The cry Hosanna (lit., in Heb “Help” or “Save, I pray”) had become by Jesus’ day an exclamation of praise. Blessed, a citation of Ps 118.26, which was used as a traditional greeting for pilgrims arriving in Jerusalem for the great festivals. 11: Prophet, 21.46. Not a reference to the prophet resembling Moses (Deut 18.18).

21.12–27: The Temple and the fig tree (Mk 11.12–24; 27–33; Lk 19.45–48; 20.1–8). 12: In Jn 2.13–22 this episode
¹² Then Jesus entered the temple and drove out all who were selling and buying in the temple, and he overturned the tables of the money changers and the seats of those who sold doves. ¹³ He said to them, “It is written, ‘My house shall be called a house of prayer’; but you are making it a den of robbers.” ¹⁴ The blind and the lame came to him in the temple, and he cured them. ¹⁵ But when the chief priests and the scribes saw the amazing things that he did, and heard the children crying out in the temple, “Hosanna to the Son of David,” they became angry and said to him, “Do you hear what these are saying?” Jesus said to them, “Yes; have you never read, ‘Out of the mouths of infants and nursing babies you have prepared praise for yourself?’” ¹⁶ He left them, went out of the city to Bethany, and spent the night there.

a Other ancient authorities add of God
b Gk lacks heard is situated early in Jesus’ ministry, in Mk 11.11–19 on the day after Jesus’ arrival in Jerusalem. Selling and buying, animals for sacrifice. Money changers, Roman money had to be changed into Tyrian shekels, the only currency acceptable for use within the Temple. Doves, offerings typical of the poor (Lev 5.7–10). Business transactions took place in the large outer Court of the Gentiles; it was here that Jesus’ “cleansing” took place. 13: Written, Isa 56.7; Jer 7.11. 14: Jesus’ cleansing culminates in the healing of the blind and the lame, who were normally excluded In the morning, when he returned to the city, he was hungry. And seeing a fig tree by the side of the road, he went to it and found nothing at all on it but leaves. Then he said to it, “May no fruit ever come from you again!”

And the fig tree withered at once. When the disciples saw it, they were amazed, saying, “How did the fig tree wither at once?” Jesus answered them, “Truly I tell you, if you have faith and do not doubt, not only will you do what has been done to the fig tree, but even if you say to this mountain, ‘Be lifted up and thrown into the sea,’ it will be done. Whatever you ask for in prayer with faith, you will receive.”

When he entered the temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people came to him as he was teaching, and said, “By what authority are you doing these things, and who gave you this authority?” Jesus said to them, “I will also ask you one question; if you tell me the answer, then I will also tell you by what authority I do these things. Did the baptism of John come from heaven, or was it of human origin?” And they argued with one another, “If we say, ‘From heaven,’ he will say to us, ‘Why then did you not believe him?’ But if we say, ‘Of human origin,’ we are afraid of the crowd; for all regard John as a prophet.” So they answered Jesus, “We do not know.” And he said to them, “Neither will I tell you by what authority I am doing these things.

“Do you think? A man had two sons; he went to the first and said, ‘Son, go and work in the vineyard today.’ He answered, ‘I will not’; but later he changed his mind and went. The father went to the second and said the same; and he answered, ‘I go, sir’; but he did not go. Which of the two did the will of his father?” They said, “The first.” Jesus said to them, “Truly I tell you, the tax collectors and the prostitutes are going into the kingdom of God ahead of you.
For John came to you in the way of righteousness and you did not believe him, but the tax collectors and the prostitutes believed him; and even after you saw it, you did not change your minds and believe him.

“Listen to another parable. There was a landowner who planted a vineyard, put a fence around it, dug a wine press in it, and built a watchtower. Then he leased it to tenants and went to another country. When the harvest time had come, he sent his slaves to the tenants to collect his produce. But the tenants seized his slaves and beat one, killed another, and stoned another. Again he sent other slaves, more than the first; and they treated them in the same way. Finally he sent his son to them, saying, ‘They will respect my son.’ But when the tenants saw the son, they said to themselves, ‘This is the heir; come, let us kill him and get his inheritance.’ So they seized him, threw him out of the vineyard, and killed him. Now when the owner of the vineyard comes, what will he do to those tenants?” They said to him, “He will put those wretches to a miserable death, and lease the vineyard to other tenants who will give him the produce at the harvest time.”

Jesus said to them, “Have you never read in the scriptures:

‘The stone that the builders rejected
has become the cornerstone; this was the Lord’s doing, and it is amazing in our eyes’?

Therefore I tell you, the kingdom of God will be taken away from you and given to a people that produces the fruits of the \[\text{from the Temple (Lev 21.16–23).} \]

16: Ps 8.2. 19: Fig tree, “it was not the season for figs” (Mk 11.13) is omitted. As fig trees often symbolized Jerusalem or the Temple, Jesus’ action is best understood as a prophecy of judgment (23.37–24.2). 23: Authority, 7.29; 9.6–8. 25: From heaven, from God.

21.28–22.14: Three parables (Mk 12.1–12; Lk 20.9–19; Lk 14.15–24). 21.28–32: The first of three consecutive parables condemning the Jewish religious leadership. 31: The tax collectors and the prostitutes, the people who were presumed to have the lowest morals (5.46n.). 33–37: The second parable is an allegory based on Isa 5.1–7, outlining the history of God and Israel. The vineyard is a metaphor for Israel, with God as the landowner, the Jewish leadership as the tenants, the prophets as the slaves, and Jesus as the son. 42: Ps 118.22–23; cornerstone, the keystone of an arch. 43: A people that produces the fruits, a reference to the Christian church and its practice
What one falls on this stone will be broken to pieces; and it will crush anyone on whom it falls.”

When the chief priests and the Pharisees heard his parables, they realized that he was speaking about them. They wanted to arrest him, but they feared the crowds, because they regarded him as a prophet.

Once more Jesus spoke to them in parables, saying: “The kingdom of heaven may be compared to a king who gave a wedding banquet for his son. He sent his slaves to call those who had been invited to the wedding banquet, but they would not come. Again he sent other slaves, saying, ‘Tell those who have been invited: Look, I have prepared my dinner, my oxen and my fat calves have been slaughtered, and everything is ready; come to the wedding banquet.’ But they made light of it and went away, one to his farm, another to his business, while the rest seized his slaves, mistreated them, and killed them. The king was enraged. He sent his troops, destroyed those murderers, and burned their city. Then he said to his slaves, ‘The wedding is ready, but those invited were not worthy. Go therefore into the main streets, and invite everyone you find to the wedding banquet.’ Those slaves went out into the streets and gathered all whom they found, both good and bad; so the wedding hall was filled with guests.

“But when the king came in to see the guests, he noticed a man there who was not wearing a wedding robe, and he said to him, ‘Friend, how did you get in here without a wedding robe?’ And he was speechless.

They said to one another, ‘Here are some murderers, and burned their city.

The king said to the attendants, ‘Bind him hand and foot, and throw him into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.’ For many are called, but few are chosen.”

Then the Pharisees went and plotted to entrap him in what he said. So they sent their disciples to him, along with the Herodians, saying, “Teacher, we know that you are sincere, and teach the way of God in accordance with truth, and show deference to no one; for you do not regard people with partiality. Tell us, then, what you think. Is it lawful to pay taxes to the emperor, or not?” But Jesus, aware of their malice, said, “Why are you putting me to the test, you hypocrites? Show me the coin used for the tax.” And they brought him a denarius. Then he said to them, “Whose head is this, and whose title?” They answered, “The emperor’s.” Then he said to them, “Give therefore to the emperor the things that are the emperor’s, and to God the things that are God’s.”

When they heard this, they were amazed; and they left him and went away.

The same day some Sadducees came to him, saying there is no resurrection; and they asked him a question, saying, “Teacher, Moses said, ‘If a man dies childless, his brother shall marry the widow, and raise up children for his brother.’ Now there were seven brothers among us; the first married, and did not die childless, the second and third, down to the seventh. The second did the same, so also the third, down to the seventh. Last of all, the woman herself died. Is there a resurrection, then, whose wife of the seven will she be? For all of them had married her.”

Jesus answered them, “You are wrong, because you know neither the scriptures nor the power of God.” For in the resurrection of righteousness.

If this verse is Matthean (see textual note b), it refers to the dire consequences of misunderstanding who Jesus is. Prophet, v. 11. 22.3–14: The third parable. Burned their city, an allusion to the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 CE. 11–14: These four verses are a Matthean addition to the parable. A wedding robe may suggest the righteous deeds necessary for believers to enter the kingdom (see Mt 7.21–23). 13: 8.12n.

Attempts to ensnare Jesus (Mk 12.13–37; Lk 20.20–44; 10.25–28). The preceding three parables are followed by three trick questions meant to entrap Jesus in his own words. Herodians, possibly supporters of Herod Antipas and his family. Tax, on agricultural yield and personal property amounting to about a denarius a year. Emperor, Tiberius Caesar (14–37 CE). Hypocrites, 6.2n. 20: A typical silver denarius of Tiberias’ day would have his portrait on the obverse and the Latin inscription “Tiberius Caesar Augustus, Son of the Divine Augustus” on the reverse. Sadducees, 3.7n. Moses said, Deut 25.5; cf. Gen 38.7–11. Marry, they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are like angels in heaven. And as for the resurrection of the dead, have you not read what was said to you by God, 32 ‘I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob’? He is God not of the dead, but of the living.” 33 And when the crowd heard it, they were astounded at his teaching.

34 When the Pharisees heard that he had silenced the Sadducees, they gathered together, 35 and one of them, a lawyer, asked him a question to test him. 36 “Teacher, which commandment in the law is the greatest?” 37 He said to him, ‘You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind.’ 38 This is the greatest and first commandment. 39 And a second is like it: ‘You shall love your neighbor as yourself.’ 40 On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets.

41 Now while the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus asked them this question: 42 “What do you think of the Messiah?” Whose son is he?” They said to him, “The son of David.” 43 He said to them, “How is it then that David himself calls him Lord, saying, ‘Sit at my right hand, until I put your enemies under your feet’?”

45 If David thus calls him Lord, how can he be his son?” No one was able to give him an answer, nor from that day did anyone dare to ask him any more questions.

23 Then Jesus said to the crowds and to his disciples, 2 ‘The scribes and the Pharisees sit on Moses’ seat; therefore, do whatever they teach you and follow it; but do not do as they do, for they do not practice what they teach. 4 They tie up heavy burdens, hard to bear, and lay them on the shoulders of others; but they themselves are unwilling to lift a finger to move them. 5 They do all their deeds to be seen by others; for they make their phylacteries broad and their fringes long. 6 They love to have the place of honor at banquets and the best seats in the synagogues, and to be greeted with respect in the marketplaces, and to have people call them rabbi. 8 But you are not to be called rabbi, for you have one teacher, and you are all students. 9 And call no one your father on earth, for you have one Father—the one in heaven. 10 Nor are you to be called instructors, for you have one instructor, the Messiah. 11 The greatest among you will be your servant. 12 All who exalt themselves will be humbled, and all who humble themselves will be exalted.

13 “But woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you lock people out of the kingdom of heaven.

---

in the coming age men no longer marry and women are no longer given in marriage. Like angels, since angels are eternal, they do not need to reproduce; the same holds true for the resurrected dead. 32: Ex 3.6. Otherwise God would have said, “I was the God of Abraham.” 34–40: For Matthew, the love commandment is preeminent; all other commandments are subsidiary and to be interpreted and performed out of love for God and one’s neighbor. 37: Deut 6.5. 39: 19.19; Lev 19.18. 44–45: Jesus replies with a query of his own. In Ps 110.1 David (reputed author of the Psalms) describes the Lord (God) as speaking to my Lord (the Messiah). How can David’s Lord be his son, since it is invariably sons who call their fathers “my lord”?

23–1–39: The denunciation of the scribes and Pharisees (Mk 12.38–40; Lk 11.37–52; 13.34–35; 20.45–47). This chapter contains the harshest and most sustained criticism of the scribes and Pharisees in the Gospels. Some scholars regard ch 23 as part of Matthew’s fifth discourse (chs 24–25), but Matthew shifts the latter to a new setting (see 24.1). 2: Moses’ seat, a stone seat for synagogue leaders or a receptacle for the Torah scroll. 3: Do whatever they teach you, a surprising directive from Matthew’s Jesus. It may mean, “Follow their guidelines if you must, but by no means follow their example.” 4: Heavy burdens, contrast 11.30. 5: Phylacteries, small cases, often made of leather, containing scriptural passages such as Deut 6.4–9. They were strapped to the left arm and forehead during prayer (Deut 6.8). Fringes, tassels (“tsitsit”) attached to the corners of an outer garment or prayer shawl (Num 15.38). 6: Place of honor, normally, the place nearest the host. 7: Rabbi, a designation of respect; lit., “my great one” or “my teacher.” 9: Father, do not use “father” as an honorific title. 13: Woe, lit., “Alas!” kingdom of heaven. For you do not go in yourselves, and when others are going in, you stop them. Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you cross sea and land to make a single convert, and you make the new convert twice as much a child of hell as yourselves.

16 Woe to you, blind guides, who say, ‘Whoever swears by the sanctuary is bound by nothing, but whoever swears by the gold of the sanctuary is bound by the oath.’ You blind fools! For which is greater, the gold or the sanctuary that has made the gold sacred? And you say, ‘Whoever swears by the altar is bound by nothing, but whoever swears by the gift that is on the altar is bound by the oath.’ How blind you are! For which is greater, the gift or the altar that makes the gift sacred? So whoever swears by the altar, swears by it and by everything on it; and whoever swears by the sanctuary, swears by it and by the one who dwells in it; and whoever swears by heaven, swears by the throne of God and by the one who is seated upon it.

23 Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you tithe mint, dill, and cummin, and have neglected the weightier matters of the law: justice and mercy and faith. It is these you ought to have practiced without neglecting the others. You blind guides! You strain out a gnat but swallow a camel!

25 Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you clean the outside of the cup and of the plate, but inside they are full of greed and self-indulgence. You blind Pharisee! First clean the inside of the cup, so that the outside also may become clean.

27 Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you are like whitewashed tombs, which on the outside look beautiful, but inside they are full of the bones of the dead and of all kinds of filth. So you also on the outside look righteous to others, but inside you are full of hypocrisy and lawlessness.

29 Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you build the tombs of the prophets and decorate the graves of the righteous, and you say, ‘If we had lived in the days of our ancestors, we would not have taken part with them in shedding the blood of the prophets.’ Thus you testify against yourselves that you are descendants of those who murdered the prophets.

fill up, then, the measure of your ancestors. You snakes, you brood of vipers! How can you escape being sentenced to hell?

Therefore I send you prophets, sages, and scribes, some of whom you will kill and crucify, and some you will flog in your synagogues and pursue from town to town, so that upon you may come all the righteous blood shed on earth, from the blood of righteous Abel to the blood of Zechariah son of Barachiah, whom you murdered between the sanctuary and the altar. Truly I tell you, all this will come upon this generation.

27 “Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the city that kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to it! How often have I desired to gather your children together as a hen gathers her brood under her wings, and you were not willing!

See, your house is left to you, desolate. For I tell you, you will not see me again until you say, ‘Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord.’”

The seven woes given here contrast with the beatitudes at 5.3–12. 15: Hypocrites, 6.2n. You cross sea and land, “you do everything possible.” New convert, a proselyte, or Gentile convert to Judaism. 16: Gold of the sanctuary, perhaps the Temple treasury, which was also used as a bank. Cup . . . plate may symbolize the Pharisees themselves. 27: Tombs were whitewashed during festivals to prevent pilgrims from touching them and polluting themselves by contact with the dead. 34: Prophets . . . scribes, Christian missionaries. Synagogues, see 9.35n. 35: Abel, Gen 4.8–11. The allusion to Zechariah, son of Barachiah likely conflates Zechariah the martyr (son of Jehoiada, 2 Chr 24.20–22) with Zechariah the prophet (son of Berechiah, Zech 1.1). 38: Your house, Jerusalem.

24.1–51: The fifth (apocalyptic) discourse. As with the mission discourse (ch 10), it is not clear whether

24.1: Other authorities add here (or after verse 12) verse 14, Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you devour widows’ houses and for the sake of appearance you make long prayers; therefore you will receive the greater condemnation

25. Other ancient authorities lack desolate

26. Gk Gehenna

27. Other ancient authorities add and of the plate

28. Other ancient authorities add desolate
24 As Jesus came out of the temple and was going away, his disciples came to point out to him the buildings of the temple. 2 Then he asked them, “You see all these, do you not? Truly I tell you, not one stone will be left here upon another; all will be thrown down.”

3 When he was sitting on the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to him privately, saying, “Tell us, when will this be, and what will be the sign of your coming and of the end of the age?” 4 Jesus answered them, “Beware that no one leads you astray. 5 For many will come in my name, saying, ‘I am the Messiah!’ and they will lead many astray. 6 And you will hear of wars and rumors of wars; see that you are not alarmed; for this must take place, but the end is not yet. 7 For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and there will be famines and earthquakes in various places: 8 all this is but the beginning of the birth pangs.

9 “Then they will hand you over to be tortured and will put you to death, and you will be hated by all nations because of my name. 10 Then many will fall away, and they will betray one another and hate one another. 11 And many false prophets will arise and lead many astray. 12 And because of the increase of lawlessness, the love of many will grow cold. 13 But the one who endures to the end will be saved. 14 And this good news of the kingdom will be proclaimed throughout the world, as a testimony to all the nations; and then the end will come. 15 “So when you see the desolating sacrilege standing in the holy place, as was spoken of by the prophet Daniel (let the reader understand). 16 then those in Judea must flee to the mountains; 17 the one on the housetop must not go down to take what is in the house; 18 the one in the field must not turn back to get a coat. 19 Woe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing infants in those days! 20 Pray that your flight may not be in winter or on a sabbath. For at that time there will be great suffering, such as has not been from the beginning of the world until now, no, and never will be. 21 And if those days had not been cut short, no one would be saved; but for the sake of the elect those days will be cut short. 22 Then if anyone says to you, ‘Look! Here is the Messiah!’ or ‘There he is!’—do not believe it. 23 For false messiahs and false prophets will appear and produce great signs and omens, to lead astray, if possible, even the elect. 24 Take note, I have told you beforehand. 25 So, if they say to you, ‘Look! He is in the wilderness,’ do not go out. If they say, ‘Look! He is in the inner rooms,’ do not believe it. 26 For as the lightning comes from the east and flashes as far as the west, so will be the coming of the Son of Man. 27 Wherever the corpse is, there the vultures will gather.

a Or the Christ
b Other ancient authorities add and pestilences
c Or stumble
d Or gospel
e Or chists

these prophetic words speak of events that are imminent or had already occurred when the Gospel was written; probably they combine both perspectives. Matthew regards some of the tribulations as consequent upon the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 ce and others as the prelude to the Second Coming.

24.1–14: The Temple’s destruction and the beginning of woes (Mk 13.1–13; Lk 21.5–19). 2: Buildings of the temple, the Jerusalem Temple was one of the most magnificent sanctuaries of the ancient world. The reconstruction begun by Herod the Great spanned eighty years (20 BCE–63 CE) and came to include separate courtyards for Gentiles, Jewish women, Jewish males, and priests. 3: Mount of Olives, a low mountain facing the east side of the Temple from across the Kidron Valley. Jesus and his disciples may have camped here during the crowded Passover festival. Zech 14.1–10 indicates that the Messiah would appear here. 8: Birth pangs, a metaphor for the onset of the end-time woes. 14: See 28.19–20.

24.15–28: The great tribulation (Mk 13.14–23; Lk 21.20–24). 15: Desolating sacrilege standing in the holy place, the image of Zeus Olympios erected in the Temple by Antiochus Epiphanes in 167 BCE (Dan 9.27; 11.31; 12.11; 1 Macc 1.54; 6.7). The phrase may also refer to Gaius Caligula’s attempt in 40 CE to install an image of himself in the Jerusalem Temple. The reader, either an editorial aside (as it is translated above) or Jesus’ reference to the readers of Daniel. 16: Mountains had caves where one might hide. 19: Lk 23.28–31. 20: Winter or on a sabbath, times when travel was difficult or prohibited.
29 “Immediately after the suffering of those days the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light; the stars will fall from heaven, and the powers of heaven will be shaken.

30 Then the sign of the Son of Man will appear in heaven, and then all the tribes of the earth will be gathered together; and they will see ‘the Son of Man coming on the clouds of heaven’ with power and great glory. 31 And he will send out his angels with a loud trumpet call, and they will gather his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other.

32 “From the fig tree learn its lesson: as soon as its branch becomes tender and puts forth its leaves, you know that summer is near. 33 So also, when you see all these things, you know that he is near, at the very gates.

34 Truly I tell you, this generation will not pass away until all these things have taken place. 35 Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

36 “But about that day and hour no one knows, neither the angels of heaven, nor the Son, but only the Father. 37 For as the days of Noah were, so also will the coming of the Son of Man be. 38 For as in those days before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day Noah entered the ark, and they knew nothing until the flood came and swept them all away, so too will be the coming of the Son of Man.

39 Then two will be in the field; one will be taken and one will be left. 40 Two women will be grinding meal together; one will be taken and one will be left. 41 Two men will be in bed in the same house; one will be taken, and one will not.

42 Keep awake therefore, for you do not know on what night your Lord is coming. 43 But understand this: if the owner of the house had known in what part of the night the thief was coming, he would have stayed awake and would not have let his house be broken into. Therefore you also must be ready, for the Son of Man is coming at an unexpected hour.

45 “Who then is the faithful and wise slave, whom his master has put in charge of his household, to give the other slaves their allowance of food at the proper time? 46 Blessed is that slave whom his master will find at work when he arrives. 47 Truly I tell you, he will put that one in charge of all his possessions. 48 But if that wicked slave says to himself, ‘My master is delayed,’ and he begins to beat his fellow slaves, and eat and drink with drunkards, the master of that slave will come on a day when he does not expect him and at an hour that he does not know. 51 He will cut him in pieces and put him with the hypocrites, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.

25 “Then the kingdom of heaven will be like this. Ten bridesmaids took their lamps and went to meet the bridegroom. 9 Five of them were foolish, and five were wise. 3 When the foolish took their lamps, they took no oil with them; 4 but the wise took flasks of oil with their lamps. 5 As the bridegroom was delayed, all of them became drowsy and slept. 6 But at midnight there was a shout, ‘Look! Here is the bridegroom! Come out to meet him.’ 7 Then all those bridesmaids got up and trimmed their lamps. 8 The foolish said to the wise, ‘Give us some of your oil, for our lamps are going out.’ 9 But the wise replied, ‘No! there will not be enough for you and for us; you had better go to the dealers and buy some for yourselves.’ 10 And while they went to buy it, the bridegroom came, and those who were ready went with him into the wedding banquet; and the door was shut.
11 Later the other bridesmaids⁴ came also, saying, ‘Lord, Lord, open to us.’ ¹² But he replied, ‘Truly I tell you, I do not know you.’ ¹³ Keep awake therefore, for you know neither the day nor the hour. ²⁴ ‘For it is as if a man, going on a journey, summoned his slaves and entrusted his property to them; ¹⁵ to one he gave five talents, ²⁵ to another two, to another one, to each according to his ability. Then he went away. ¹⁶ The one who had received the five talents went off at once and traded with them, and made five more talents. ¹⁷ In the same way, the one who had the two talents made two more talents. ¹⁸ But the one who had received the one talent went off and dug a hole in the ground and hid his master’s money. ¹⁹ After a long time the master of those slaves came and settled accounts with them. ²⁰ Then the one who had received the five talents came forward, bringing five more talents, saying, ‘Master, you handed over to me five talents; see, I have made five more talents.’ ²¹ His master said to him, ‘Well done, good and trustworthy slave; you have been trustworthy in a few things, I will put you in charge of many things; enter into the joy of your master.’ ²² And the one with the two talents also came forward, saying, ‘Master, you handed over to me two talents; see, I have made two more talents.’ ²³ His master said to him, ‘Well done, good and trustworthy slave; you have been trustworthy in a few things, I will put you in charge of many things; enter into the joy of your master.’ ²⁴ Then the one who had received the one talent also came forward, saying, ‘Master, I knew that you were a harsh man, reaping where you did not sow, and gathering where you did not scatter seed; ²⁵ so I was afraid, and I went and hid your talent in the ground. Here you have what is yours.’ ²⁶ But his master replied, ‘You wicked and lazy slave! You knew, did you, that I reaped where I did not sow, and gather where I did not scatter? ²⁷ Then you ought to have invested my money with the bankers, and on my return I would have received what was my own with interest. ²⁸ So take the talent from him, and give it to the one with the ten talents. ²⁹ For to all those who have, more will be given, and they will have an abundance; but from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away. ³⁰ As for this worthless slave, throw him into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.’ ³¹ ‘When the Son of Man comes in his glory, and all the angels with him, then he will sit on the throne of his glory. ³² All the nations will be gathered before him, and he will separate people one from another as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats, ³³ and he will put the sheep at his right hand and the goats at the left. ³⁴ Then the king will say to those at his right hand, ‘Come, you that are blessed by my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world; ³⁵ for I was hungry and you gave me food, I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink, I was a stranger and you welcomed me, ³⁶ I was naked and you gave me clothing, I was sick and you took care of me, I was in prison and you visited me.’ ³⁷ Then the righteous will answer him, ‘Lord, when was it that we saw you hungry and gave you food, or thirsty and gave you something to drink? ³⁸ And when was it that we saw you a stranger and welcomed you, or naked and gave you clothing? ³⁹ And when was it that we saw you sick or in prison and visited you?’ ⁴⁰ And the a Gk virgins

b Other ancient authorities add in which the Son of Man is coming c A talent was worth more than fifteen years’ wages of a laborer away the charred cloth wicks and added more oil. 13: 24,42. 14: Slaves, in Jesus’ day, it was not unusual to entrust slaves with large amounts of money and responsibility. 15: Talents, 18.24n. This parable furnishes the basis for the English word “talent.” 18: 13.44n. 19: The delay of the parousia (Jesus’ return). 23: Joy of your master, possibly the messianic banquet (8.11n.). 29: Cf. 13.12.

25.31–46: The judgment of the nations. 31: The Son of Man, 8.20n. 32: 24.9; 28.19; Isa 66.18; Joel 3.2. 33: Right, the auspicious side, while left was the bad or unlucky side. The distinction between sheep and goats may reside in the fabrics the two produce: goats produce dark hair, which was used to make ill-omened sackcloth (11.21n.), while white wool was a sign of prosperity.
When Jesus had finished saying all these things, he said to his disciples, 2 “You know that after two days the Passover is coming, and the Son of Man will be handed over to be crucified.”

Then the chief priests and the elders of the people gathered in the palace of the high priest, who was called Caiaphas, and they conspired to arrest Jesus by stealth and kill him. But they said, “Not during the festival, or there may be a riot among the people.”

Now while Jesus was at Bethany in the house of Simon the leper, a woman came to him with an alabaster jar of very costly ointment, and she poured it on his head as he sat at the table. But when the disciples saw it, they were angry and said, “Why this waste? For this ointment could have been sold for a large sum, and the money given to the poor.” But Jesus, aware of this, said to them, “Why do you trouble the woman? She has performed a good service for me. For you always have the poor with you, but you will not always have me. By pouring this ointment on my body she has prepared me for burial. Truly I tell you, wherever this good news is proclaimed in the whole world, what she has done will be told in remembrance of her.”

Then one of the twelve, who was called Judas Iscariot, went to the chief priests and said, “What will you give me if I betray him to you?” They paid him thirty pieces of silver. And from that moment he began to look for an opportunity to betray him.

On the first day of Unleavened Bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying, “Where do you want us to make the preparations for you to eat the Passover?” He said, “Go into the city to a certain man, and say to him, ‘The Teacher says, My time is near; I will keep the Passover at your house with my disciples.’” So the disciples did as Jesus had directed them, and they prepared the Passover meal.

When it was evening, he took his place at the table.

Gk these my brothers

The terms leper and leprosy can refer to several diseases

Or gospel

Other ancient authorities add disciples

---

26.1–16: Preliminaries to the Passover (Mk 14.3–11; Lk 22.3–6; Jn 12.1–8). 1: The conclusion of Jesus’ final discourse. 2: Passover, the annual Jewish festival celebrating Israel’s exodus from Egypt (Ex 12.1–20). 3: Caiaphas, high priest ca.18–36 ce, was the son-in-law of the high priest Annas (6–15 ce; 26.57). 5: Riots were always a possibility during the major festivals. 6: Bethany, a village on the Mount of Olives just east of Jerusalem. 7: Alabaster jar, a small vial or bottle called an alabaster. 14: Judas Iscariot, 10.4n. Thirty pieces of silver, tetradrachmas worth about one hundred and twenty denarii, a third of a year’s wages; cf. Zech 11.12.

26.17–35: The Passover and Lord’s Supper (Mk 14.12–31; Lk 22.7–23.31–34 Jn 13.21–30, 36–38; cf. 1 Cor 11.23–25). 17: First day, the fourteenth of Nisan (March-April), sometimes described as “the preparation of the Passover.” It marks the beginning of the week-long festival. 25: Rabbi, a title for Jesus that is typically used by non-disciples in Matthew (23.7n); Judas is the only disciple to use the title in Matthew. You have said so means... betrayed him, said, “Surely not I, Rabbi?” He replied, “You have said so.”

26 While they were eating, Jesus took a loaf of bread, and after blessing it he broke it, gave it to the disciples, and said, “Take, eat; this is my body.” 27 Then he took a cup, and after giving thanks he gave it to them, saying, “Drink from it, all of you; 28 for this is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many for the forgiveness of sins. 29 I tell you, I will never again drink of this fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new with you in my Father’s kingdom.”

30 When they had sung the hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives.

31 Then Jesus said to them, “You will all become deserters because of me this night; for it is written, ‘I will strike the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will be scattered.’

32 But after I am raised up, I will go ahead of you to Galilee.” 33 Peter said to him, “Though all become deserters because of you, I will never desert you.” 34 Jesus said to him, “Truly I tell you, this very night, before the cock crows, you will deny me three times.” 35 Peter said to him, “Even though I must die with you, I will not deny you.” And so said all the disciples.

36 Then Jesus went with them to a place called Gethsemane; and he said to his disciples, “Sit here while I go over there and pray.” 37 He took with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, and began to be grieved and agitated. 38 Then he said to them, “I am deeply grieved, even to death; remain here, and stay awake with me.” 39 And going a little farther, he threw himself on the ground and prayed, “My Father, if it is possible, let this cup pass from me; yet not what I want but what you want.” 40 Then he came to the disciples and found them sleeping; and he said to Peter, “So, could you not stay awake with me one hour? 41 Stay awake and pray that you may not come into the time of trial; 42 the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.” 42 Again he went away for the second time and prayed, “My Father, if this cannot pass unless I drink it, your will be done.” 43 Again he came and found them sleeping, for their eyes were heavy. 44 So leaving them again, he went away and prayed for the third time, saying the same words. 45 Then he came to the disciples and said to them, “Are you still sleeping and taking your rest? See, the hour is at hand, and the Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners. 46 Get up, let us be going. See, my betrayer is at hand.”

47 While he was still speaking, Judas, one of the twelve, arrived; with him was a large crowd with swords and clubs, from the chief priests and the elders of the people. 48 Now the betrayer had given them a sign, saying, “The one I will kiss is the man; arrest him.” 49 At once he came up to Jesus and said, “Greetings, Rabbi!” and kissed him. 50 Jesus said to him, “Friend, do what you are here to do.” Then they came and laid hands on Jesus and arrested him. 51 Suddenly, one of those with Jesus put his hand on his sword, drew it, and struck the slave of the high priest, cutting off his ear. 52 Then Jesus said to him, “Put your sword back into its place; for all who take the sword will perish by the sword. 53 Do you think that I cannot appeal to my Father, and he will at once send me more than twelve legions of angels? 54 But how then would the scriptures be fulfilled, which say it must happen in this way?” 55 At that hour Jesus said to the crowds, “Have you come out with swords and clubs to arrest me as though I were a bandit? Day after day I sat in the temple teaching, and you did not arrest me. 56 But all a Other ancient authorities add new b Or into temptation

26.36–56: The arrest in Gethsemane (Mk 14.32–50; Lk 22.39–53; Jn 18.3–12). 36: Gethsemane, the name means “garden of oil,” so the site was likely an olive grove on the Mount of Olives (Lk 22.39) with olive presses nearby. 37: Sons of Zebedee, James and John (4.21; 17.1; 20.20–23n.). 38: Cf. Ps 42.6; Jon 4.9. 39: Cup, see 20.22. 49: Rabbi, see 26.25n. 53: In the Roman army a legion was about five thousand soldiers. 56: Scriptures, not individual passages, but the Jewish scriptures as a whole.
when this has taken place, so that the scriptures of the prophets may be fulfilled.” Then all the disciples deserted him and fled.

57 Those who had arrested Jesus took him to Caiaphas the high priest, in whose house the scribes and the elders had gathered. But Peter was following him at a distance, as far as the courtyard of the high priest; and going inside, he sat with the guards in order to see how this would end. 58 Now the chief priests and the whole council were looking for false testimony against Jesus so that they might put him to death, but they found none, though many false witnesses came forward. At last two came forward and said, “This fellow said, ‘I am able to destroy the temple of God and to build it in three days.’” 59 The high priest stood up and said, “Have you no answer? What is it that they testify against you?” 60 But Jesus was silent. Then the high priest said to him, “I put you under oath before the living God, tell us if you are the Messiah, the Son of God.” 61 Jesus said to him, “You have said so. But I tell you, From now on you will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of Power and coming on the clouds of heaven.” 62 Then the high priest tore his clothes and said, “He has blasphemed! Why do we still need witnesses? You have now heard his blasphemy.” 63 But they answered, “He deserves death.” 64 Then they spat in his face and struck him; and some slapped him, saying, “Prophesy to us, you Messiah! Who is it that struck you?”

65 Now Peter was sitting outside in the courtyard. A servant-girl came to him and said, “You also were with Jesus the Galilean.” 66 But he denied it before all of them, saying, “I do not know what you are talking about.” 67 When he went out to the porch, another servant-girl saw him, and she said to the bystanders, “This man was with Jesus of Nazareth.” 68 Again he denied it with an oath, “I do not know the man.” 69 A little while after the bystanders came up and said to Peter, “Certainly you are also one of them, for your accent betrays you.” 70 Then he began to curse, and he swore an oath, “I do not know the man!” At that moment the cock crowed. 71 Then Peter remembered what Jesus had said: “Before the cock crows, you will deny me three times.” And he went out and wept bitterly.

27 When morning came, all the chief priests and the elders of the people conferred together against Jesus in order to bring about his death. 2 They bound him, led him away, and handed him over to Pilate the governor.

3 When Judas, his betrayer, saw that Jesus was condemned, he repented and brought back the thirty pieces of silver to the chief priests and the elders. 4 He said, “I have sinned by betraying innocent blood.” But they said, “What is that to us? See to it yourself.” 5 Throwing down the pieces of silver in the temple, he departed; and he went and hanged himself. 6 But the chief priests, taking the pieces of silver, said, “It is not lawful to put them into the treasury, since they are blood money.” 7 After conferring together, they used them to buy the potter’s field as a place to bury foreigners. 8 For this reason that field has been called the Field of Blood to this day. 9 Then was fulfilled what had been spoken through the prophet Jeremiah, “And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of the one on whom a price had been set, on whom some of the people of Jerusalem have put their trust, on whom all the people of the house of Israel have put their trust.”

a Or Christ
b Gk the Nazorean
c Gk he
d Other ancient authorities read righteous e Other ancient authorities read Zechariah or Isaiah f Or I took
g Or the price of the precious One

26.57–27.2: Jesus before the council and Pilate (Mk 14.53–15.1; Lk 22.54–23.2; Jn 18.13–27). 26.59: Whole council, the Sanhedrin, the highest council of the Jews, possessing judicial authority in noncapital cases. 61: Cf. 24.2. 63: Messiah, the Son of God, 16.16n. 64: You have said so: Jesus’ response confirms the high priest’s identification (25.25n.; 27.11). Son of Man, 8.20n. Cf. Ps 110.1; Dan 7.13. 75: 26.34. 27.2: Pilate the governor, Roman administrator of Judea, 26–36 CE.

Israel had set a price, "and they gave them for the potter’s field, as the Lord commanded me."

11 Now Jesus stood before the governor; and the governor asked him, "Are you the King of the Jews?" Jesus said, "You say so."

12 But when he was accused by the chief priests and elders, he did not answer. 13 Then Pilate said to him, "Do you not hear how many accusations they make against you?"

14 But he gave him no answer, not even to a single charge, so that the governor was greatly amazed.

15 Now at the festival the governor was accustomed to release a prisoner for the crowd, anyone whom they wanted. 16 At that time they had a notorious prisoner, called Jesus. 17 So after they had gathered, Pilate said to them, "Whom do you want me to release for you, Jesus or Jesus who is called the Messiah?"

18 For he realized that it was out of jealousy that they had handed him over. 19 While he was sitting on the judgment seat, his wife sent word to him, "Have nothing to do with that innocent man, for today I have suffered a great deal because of a dream about him."

20 Now the chief priests and the elders persuaded the crowds to ask for Barabbas and to have Jesus killed. 21 The governor again said to them, "Which of the two do you want me to release for you?" And they said, "Barabbas." 22 Pilate said to them, "Then what should I do with Jesus who is called the Messiah?"

23 All of them said, "Let him be crucified!" 24 Then he asked, "Why, what evil has he done?" But they shouted all the more, "Let him be crucified!"

25 So when Pilate saw that he could do nothing, but rather that a riot was beginning, he took some water and washed his hands before the crowd, saying, "I am innocent of this man’s blood; see to it yourselves."

26 Then the people as a whole answered, "His blood be on us and on our children!" So he released Barabbas for them; and after flogging Jesus, he handed him over to be crucified.

27 Then the soldiers of the governor took Jesus into the governor’s headquarters, and they gathered the whole cohort around him. 28 They stripped him and put a scarlet robe on him, and after twisting some thorns into a crown, they put it on his head. They put a reed in his right hand and knelt before him and mocked him, saying, "Hail, King of the Jews!" 30 They spat on him, and took the reed and struck him on the head. 31 After mocking him, they stripped him of the robe and put his own clothes on him. Then they led him away to crucify him.

32 As they went out, they came upon a man from Cyrene named Simon; they compelled this man to carry his cross. 33 And when they came to a place called Golgotha (which means Place of a Skull), 34 they offered him wine to drink, mixed with gall; but when he tasted it, he would not drink it. 35 And when they had crucified him, they divided his clothes among themselves by casting lots; 36 then they sat down there and kept watch over him. 37 Over his head they put the charge against him, which read, "This is Jesus, the King of the Jews."

38 Then two bandits were crucified with him, one on his right and one on his left.

---

27.11–31: Jesus on trial before Pilate (Mk 15.2–20; Lk 23.3–6,13–25; Jn 18.33–19.16). 11: 26.64n. 16: Barabbas, ("son of the Father") was a common name in Israel. 19: Judgment seat, a raised, paved area outside Pilate’s residence. 24: Washed his hands, Deut 21.6; Ps 73.13. 25: Children, an indication that the next generation would experience the destruction of Jerusalem in 70 ce. 27: The governor’s headquarters (see textual note e), Pilate’s residence (Jn 19.13). Whole cohort, ca. 600–1,000 men.

27.32–56: The crucifixion and death of Jesus (Mk 15.21–41; Lk 23.26–49; Jn 19.17–30). 32: Simon, Mk 15.21. 34: Gall, a bitter, poisonous plant (see Ps 69.21). 35: See Ps 22.18. 37: King of the Jews, the official charge against.
39 Those who passed by derided him, shaking their heads 40 and saying, “You who would destroy the temple and build it in three days, save yourself! If you are the Son of God, come down from the cross.” 41 In the same way the chief priests also, along with the scribes and elders, were mocking him, saying, 42 “He saved others; he cannot save himself. 43 He trusts in God; let God deliver him now, if he wants to; for he said, ‘I am God’s Son.’” 44 The bandits who were crucified with him also taunted him in the same way.

45 From noon on, darkness came over the whole land 46 until three in the afternoon. 47 And about three o’clock Jesus cried with a loud voice, “Eli, Eli, lema sabachthani?” that is, “My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?” 48 When some of the bystanders heard it, they said, “This man is calling for Elijah.” 49 At once one of them ran and got a sponge, filled it with sour wine, put it on a stick, and gave it to him to drink. 50 But the others said, “Wait, let us see whether Elijah will come to save him.”

51 Then Jesus cried again with a loud voice and breathed his last.

52 The tombs also were opened, and many bodies of the saints who had fallen asleep were raised. 53 After his resurrection they came out of the tombs and entered the holy city and appeared to many. 54 Now when the centurion and those with him, who were keeping watch over Jesus, saw the earthquake and what took place, they were terrified and said, “ Truly this man was God’s Son!”

55 Many women were also there, looking on from a distance; they had followed Jesus from Galilee and had provided for him. 56 Among them were Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of the sons of Zebedee.

57 When it was evening, there came a rich man from Arimathea, named Joseph, who was also a disciple of Jesus. 58 He went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus; then Pilate ordered it to be given to him. 59 So Joseph took the body and wrapped it in a clean linen cloth 60 and laid it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn in the rock. 61 Mary Magdalene and the other Mary were there, sitting opposite the tomb.

62 The next day, that is, after the day of Preparation, the chief priests and the Pharisees gathered before Pilate 63 and said, “Sir, we remember what that impostor said while he was still alive, ‘After three days I will rise again.’ Therefore command the tomb to be made secure until the third day; otherwise his disciples may go and steal him away, and tell the people, ‘He has been raised from the dead,’ and the last deception would be worse than the first.” 64 Pilate said to them, “You have a guard 9 of soldiers; go, make it as secure as you can.”

65 So they went with the guard and made the tomb secure by sealing the stone.

---

a Or blasphemed
b Or is he unable to save himself?
c Or earth
d Other ancient authorities add And another took a spear and pierced his side, and out came water and blood
e Or gave up his spirit
f Or a son of God
g Or Take a guard
h Gk you know how

Jesus was inscribed on a tablet. The charge suggests that he was considered a political threat (2.2). 46: Eli... an Aramaic translation of Ps 22.1. The invocation to God (“Eli,” “my God”) sounds similar to the name Elijah (“the Lord is my God”). 47: Elijah was popularly regarded as a helper to those in need. 51: The curtain of the temple, a large tapestry that hung in front of the Holy of Holies, the innermost room of the Temple. The earth shook, 28.2. 53: The holy city, Jerusalem. 54: God’s Son, the first acclamation of Jesus as Son of God by a Gentile. 56: Mary Magdalene, 27:61, 28:1; Mk 16:9; Lk 8:2. Magdala was a fishing town on the west coast of the Sea of Galilee, northwest of Tiberias. Sons of Zebedee, see 26.37.

27.57–66: The burial of Jesus and the guard at the tomb. (Mk 15.42–47; Lk 23.50–56; Jn 19.38–42). 61: Other Mary, the mother of James and Joseph (27:56; 28:1). 62: After the day of Preparation, the sabbath (Saturday). Friday was the day of Preparation. The Pharisees, last mentioned at 23.29, were not involved in Jesus’ crucifixion. 65: Guard of soldiers, Roman soldiers, not the Temple police.
After the sabbath, as the first day of the week was dawning, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went to see the tomb. And suddenly there was a great earthquake; for an angel of the Lord, descending from heaven, came and rolled back the stone and sat on it. His appearance was like lightning, and his clothing white as snow. For fear of him the guards shook and became like dead men. But the angel said to the women, “Do not be afraid; I know that you are looking for Jesus who was crucified. He is not here; for he has been raised, as he said. Come, see the place where he lay. Then go quickly and tell his disciples, ‘He has been raised from the dead, and indeed he is going ahead of you to Galilee; there you will see him.’ This is my message for you.”

So they left the tomb quickly with fear and great joy, and ran to tell his disciples. Suddenly Jesus met them and said, “Greetings!” And they came to him, took hold of his feet, and worshiped him. Then Jesus said to them, “Do not be afraid; go and tell my brothers to go to Galilee; there they will see me.”

While they were going, some of the guard went into the city and told the chief priests everything that had happened. After the priests had assembled with the elders, they devised a plan to give a large sum of money to the soldiers, telling them, “You must say, ‘His disciples came by night and stole him away while we were asleep.’ If this comes to the governor’s ears, we will satisfy him and keep you out of trouble.” So they took the money and did as they were directed. And this story is still told among the Jews to this day.

Now the eleven disciples went to Galilee, to the mountain to which Jesus had directed them. When they saw him, they worshiped him; but some doubted. And Jesus came and said to them, “All authority in heaven and on earth has been given to me. Go therefore and make disciples of all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit, and teaching them to obey everything that I have commanded you. And remember, I am with you always, to the end of the age.”

28.1–15: The resurrection of Jesus and the guards’ report (Mk 16.1–8; Lk 24.1–12; Jn 20.1–10). 1: First day of the week, Sunday. The other Mary, 27.61n. 2: 27.51. 7: Galilee, 26.32; Mk 16.7; contrast Acts 1.4; Jn 20.19. 9: Here, as in the other Gospels, Jesus’ women disciples are the first to witness the risen Jesus. 10: My brothers, Jesus identifies his disciples as “brothers,” indicating his ongoing love for them despite their lapses. 14: Governor’s ears, an investigation before Pilate. 15: Not among the Jews but “among Jews,” i.e., among Jews who had not accepted the Christian message.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MARK

AUTHORSHIP AND DATE

Although the Gospel is anonymous, an ancient tradition ascribes it to John Mark (mentioned in Acts 12.12; 15.37), who is supposed to have composed it at Rome as a summary of Peter’s preaching (see 1 Pet 5.13). Modern scholars find little first-century CE evidence to support this tradition. Mark is the shortest of the four canonical Gospels and is generally thought to be the earliest and to have been used as a source for both Matthew and Luke. The vague references to the destruction of Jerusalem in Mark 13 (contrast Mt 22.7; Lk 19.43) could be clues that the Gospel was composed just prior to the Jewish revolt that began in 66 CE and the Roman reconquest and destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple in 70 CE.

STYLE AND CONTENT

The language of the Gospel is that of popular spoken Greek. Its style features rapid sequences of brief and vivid concrete episodes linked simply by “and” or “and immediately,” frequently omitted in translation for less awkward reading in English. The narrative often shifts from the past tense into the present tense, enlivening the action. The content of the Gospel consists mostly of stories about Jesus’ actions and disputes with scribes and Pharisees, including some of Jesus’ sayings, with two speeches (one mostly of parables) interrupting the rapid flow of episodes. Mark appears to have drawn upon a rich variety of oral traditions of Jesus’ actions and teachings, including chains of miracle stories, sets of parables, and stories of controversies with the Pharisees. Some scholars think that the Gospel may have been a text that was still performed orally by Christian storytellers. The overall narrative weaves sequences of episodes together into a complex plot with several interrelated themes and conflicts. In the earliest manuscripts, Mark ends abruptly at 16.8. This (apparently original) open ending invites the reader to continue the story of Jesus and the kingdom. In some later manuscripts Mark’s story was “completed” with resurrection appearances of amalgamated elements from the other canonical Gospels, to make it conform to their common pattern.

STRUCTURE

The Gospel story unfolds in an escalating series of steps. After Jesus’ baptism by John, he proclaims the kingdom of God and manifests its miraculous power in rural Galilee as the renewal of Israel, over against the Jerusalem priestly establishment and its representatives, the scribes and Pharisees (chs 1–3). In the first long speech of the Gospel, Jesus then teaches the mysterious plan of the kingdom in parables to large audiences and especially to his disciples (4.1–34). Jesus continues his program of the renewal of Israel in a sustained program of sea crossings, exorcisms, healings, and wilderness feedings reminiscent of the activities of Moses and Elijah (the great prophets of the past who, respectively, founded and renewed Israel), along with continuing disputes with the scribes and Pharisees (4.35–8.21). In the next step of the story, one framed by healings of blind men that highlight the disciples’ misunderstanding, Jesus repeatedly makes clear that, besides being a new prophet equal in significance to Moses and Elijah in his restoration of covenantal Israel, it is necessary that he carry out the agenda of a martyr-messiah of Israel who must be condemned by the rulers, be killed, and rise again (8.22–10.52). After his dramatic messianic entry into Jerusalem and his provocative prophetic condemnation of the Temple, Jesus confronts the Jerusalem priestly establishment and its representatives (chs 11–12). In a second major speech, Jesus warns the disciples about fanatical misinterpretation of the coming political struggles (ch 13). In the final section of the Gospel, following Jesus’ last meal with the disciples and his betrayal and arrest by the rulers’ posse, he is accused of treason, blasphemy, and insurrection, condemned, and turned over to Pilate, the Roman governor, who orders him executed by crucifixion (chs 14–15). The Gospel then ends abruptly with the story of the empty tomb and the women’s fear (16.1–8).

INTERPRETATION

Modern readers often hear the Gospel as a story of Christian discipleship, but it is much more than that. Mark is a story of multiple conflicts, exciting to read and with a compelling message. In the dominant conflict that builds to a climax throughout the Gospel, Jesus’ challenge to the Jewish religious leaders and their Roman imperial overlords escalates from his preaching and practice of the kingdom of God in the village gatherings of Galilee to his dramatic demonstration against the Temple and confrontation with the rulers in Jerusalem. That results in his torturous death by crucifixion at the hands of the Romans as an insurrectionary. In Jesus’ exorcisms, moreover, God is winning the struggle with Satan and the demonic “unclean spirits” (1.27; 5.10–12) that have taken possession of the people like an occupying Roman legion. Surprisingly, a conflict between Jesus and the very disciples he designates as representative of the renewed people of Israel also develops in the course of the story. Although Jesus teaches them the mystery of the kingdom, they persistently fail to understand what he is teaching and doing, and at the end they betray, deny, and desert him. By contrast with the misunderstanding and faithless disciples, women, who play an increasingly prominent role in Mark’s story, serve as models of faithfulness. The Gospel of Mark presents Jesus’ preaching and manifestation of the kingdom of God as a decisive new development in the history of Israel, not as the beginning of a new religion. Indeed, in this story religion is inseparable from the social, political, economic, even the physiological aspects of life. Throughout the Gospel, Jesus is portrayed in terms of popular Israelite memories of the great prophets, especially Moses, who had led Israel’s Exodus from subjection to alien rule in Egypt; Elijah, who had led the renewal of Israel in resistance to oppressive monarchs; and Jeremiah, who had proclaimed God’s judgment on the Temple and the rulers based there. At the beginning, in the middle, and toward the end, Mark also presents Jesus as a specially designated son of God, or king. Jesus, however, turns out to be a messiah (anointed one) who is a martyr, in contrast to the disciples’ expectations that Jesus would be invested with political power in Jerusalem. And Jesus’ role as both prophet and martyr-messiah is pointedly distinguished from the expectations of the Jewish elite, such as the scribes (see esp. 9.11–13; 12.35–37).

GUIDE TO READING

Because the Gospel presents a sustained narrative of escalating conflicts, it should be read as a whole so its components are understood in their connection with the overall story—a story that did not end at the tomb, as the prophecy of a new encounter between Jesus and his disciples reminds the audience (14.27–28; 16.7).

Richard A. Horsley

1.1–13: Preparing the way of the Lord. 1: In the context of the Roman Empire, the good news (gospel) of Jesus Christ, i.e., Jesus the “anointed” king of Israel, a people subject to Rome, would have been understood over against the “gospel” of Caesar as the “Savior” who brought peace to the world. Son of God is missing in the earliest manuscripts. 1.2–8: John’s baptism of repentance (Mt 3.1–12; Lk 3.1–20; Jn 1.6–15,19–28) preparing the way as the new Exodus and covenant renewal. 2–3: See Ex 23.20; Mal 3.1 (cf. Mt 11.10; Lk 7.27); Isa 40.3. That this is not all a quotation from Isaiah suggests that it is rooted in a popular (non-scribal) oral conflation of “prophecies.” It is not clear whether my messenger ahead of you refers to John sent ahead of Jesus, or Jesus sent ahead of the addressees. “Prepare the way of the Lord” proclaims a new Exodus, as in Isa 40. The wilderness, also suggestive of a new Exodus, was a place where other popular prophets and movements often originated (e.g., Acts 5.36; cf. Josephus, Ant. 20.5.1). 4–5: Acts 13.24. Baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins, John proclaims and performs a ritual of entrance into God’s renewed covenant with Israel in which those ready to change their ways are baptized as forgiven for having broken the covenantal laws. 5: The whole Judean countryside and all the people of Jerusalem, i.e., all the people of Israel, from the capital city as well as from the villages, were baptized. 6: John’s garb evokes an image of the prophet Elijah, as in 2 Kings 1.8; cf. 9.11–13. Jesus is also taken to be Elijah in 6.15; 8.28; 15.35–36. 7–8: John also proclaims one . . . more powerful who will bring the enabling divine power of the Holy Spirit.
the people of Jerusalem were going out to him, and were baptized by him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins. Now John was clothed with camel's hair, with a leather belt around his waist, and he ate locusts and wild honey. He proclaimed, “The one who is more powerful than I is coming after me; I am not worthy to stoop down and untie the thong of his sandals. I have baptized you with water; but he will baptize you with the Holy Spirit.”

In those days Jesus came from Nazareth of Galilee and was baptized by John in the Jordan. And just as he was coming up out of the water, he saw the heavens torn apart and the Spirit descending like a dove on him. And a voice came from heaven, “You are my Son, the Beloved; with you I am well pleased.”

And the Spirit immediately drove him out into the wilderness. He was in the wilderness forty days, tempted by Satan; and he was with the wild beasts; and the angels waited on him.

Now after John was arrested, Jesus came to Galilee, proclaiming the good news of God, and saying, “The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God has come near; repent, and believe in the good news.”

As Jesus passed along the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and his brother Andrew casting a net into the sea—for they were fishermen. And Jesus said to them, “Follow me and I will make you fish for people.” And immediately they left their nets and followed him. As he went a little farther, he saw James son of Zebedee and his brother John, who were in their boat mending the nets. Immediately he called them; and they left their father Zebedee in the boat with the hired men, and followed him.

They went to Capernaum; and when the sabbath came, he entered the synagogue and taught. They were astounded at his teaching, for he taught them as one having authority, and not as the scribes. Just then there was in their synagogue a man with an unclean spirit, and he cried out, “What have you to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are, the Holy One of God.” But Jesus rebuked him, saying, “Be silent, and come out of him!” And the unclean spirit, convulsing him and crying with a loud voice, came out of him. They were all amazed, and they kept on asking one another, “What is this? A new teaching—with authority! He commands even the unclean spirits, and they obey him.” At once his fame began to spread throughout the surrounding region of Galilee.

As soon as they left the synagogue, they entered the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John. Now Simon’s mother-in-law was in bed with a fever, and they told him about her at once. He came and took her by the hand and lifted her up. Then the fever left her, and she began to serve them. That evening, at sunset, they brought in a leper to him begging him, and said to him, “I do choose. Be made clean.” As soon as he spoke, immediately the leper was made clean.

Moved with pity, Jesus went and stood among them. And he said, “I do choose. Be made clean.” When he had spoken, immediately the leper was made clean.

And Jesus answered, “Let us go on to the neighboring towns, so that I may proclaim the message there also; for that is what I came out to do.” And he went throughout Galilee, proclaiming the message in their synagogues and casting out demons.

A leper came to him begging him, and kneeling he said to him, “If you choose, you can make me clean.” Moved with pity, Jesus stretched out his hand and touched him, and said to him, “I do choose. Be made clean.”

In the morning, while it was still very dark, he got up and went out to a deserted place, and there he prayed. And Simon and his companions hunted for him. When they found him, they said to him, “Everyone is searching for you.” He answered, “Let us go on to the neighboring towns, so that I may proclaim the message there also; for that is what I came out to do.” And he went throughout Galilee, proclaiming the message in their synagogues and casting out demons.

unclean spirit, possessed by an alien force or demon. In Mark the unclean spirits immediately recognize who Jesus is, as again in 1.34; 3.11; 5.7. Holy One of God, a prophet possessed of divine power, as Elisha, 2 Kings 4.9. The exorcism involves a violent struggle. In Pss 6.9; 68.31; 78.6; 80.16; Zech 3.2 and the War Scroll from Qumran (1QM14.9–11), the Heb equivalent of the Gk term here translated “rebuke” referred to God defeating foreign conquerors or even Satan. Jesus is defeating the alien demonic forces in battle. With v. 22 these exclamations frame Jesus’ exorcism: In contrast to the scribal “authorities,” Jesus teaches and acts with authority and power over the unclean spirits for the benefit of the people. In Jesus’ struggle against the superhuman demonic spirits his political conflict with the rulers and their scribal representatives is also engaged. From his very first exorcism, Jesus’ fame spreads rapidly throughout the region; see also 1.45; 3.7–8.

1.29–34: Healings and exorcisms (Mt 8.14–17; Lk 4.38–41). 30–31: The first of several key healings of women in Mark; see 5.21–43. 32–34: A Markan summary, cf. 1.39; 3.7–8. 33: Mark often uses city with reference to a village. 34: Not permit the demons to speak, Jesus commands the demons, who know who he is, not to make him known (see 3.12) and sometimes asks people who witness healings not to tell anyone (e.g., 1.44; 5.43; 7.36). Nevertheless, his fame spreads rapidly and widely (e.g., 1.37; 1.45; 3.7–8; 7.36). The readers of Mark, of course, like the demons, know who he is from the beginning (1.1).

1.35–39: Summary of Jesus’ activity (Mt 4.23–25; Lk 4.42–44). A Markan summary of Jesus’ program of proclaiming the kingdom of God and exorcism of demons throughout the villages of Galilee. In their synagogues, the Greek word means “assemblies.” Jesus’ proclamations, exorcisms, and healings take place largely in the village assemblies (see vv. 21–22n.).

1.40–45: Healing a leper (Mt 8.2–4; Lk 5.12–16). Leper, a person suffering from skin lesions of any sort, and interpreted in priestly sources (see Lev 13–14) as a channel of “unclean” contamination for individuals and society. 40–42: The leper dares Jesus to declare him clean, and Jesus responds to the challenge, in defiance of the elaborate and costly procedures prescribed in biblical law. Moved with pity, some manuscripts have “with anger” (see textual note e), which is the more difficult, hence the preferred reading; Jesus is angry at the institutionalized procedures and prescribed offerings in the Temple necessary for the “leper” to be declared free of clean!” 42 Immediately the leprosy left him, and he was made clean. 43 After sternly warning him he sent him away at once, 44 saying to him, “See that you say nothing to anyone; but go, show yourself to the priest, and offer for your cleansing what Moses commanded, as a testimony to them.” 45 But he went out and began to proclaim it freely, and to spread the word, so that Jesus could no longer go into a town openly, but stayed out in the country; and people came to him from every quarter.

2 When he returned to Capernaum after some days, it was reported that he was at home. 2 So many gathered around that there was no longer room for them, not even in front of the door; and he was speaking the word to them. 3 Then some people came, bringing to him a paralyzed man, carried by four of them. 4 And when they could not bring him to Jesus because of the crowd, they removed the roof above him; and after having dug through it, they let down the mat on which the paralytic lay. 5 When Jesus saw their faith, he said to the paralytic, “Son, your sins are forgiven.” 6 Now some of the scribes were sitting there, questioning in their hearts, “Why does this fellow speak in this way? It is blasphemy! Who can forgive sins but God alone?” 8 At once Jesus perceived in his spirit that they were discussing these questions among themselves; and he said to them, “Why do you raise such questions in your hearts? 9 Which is easier, to say to the paralytic, ‘Your sins are forgiven,’ or to say, ‘Stand up and take your mat and walk’? 10 But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins”—he said to the paralytic—11 “I say to you, stand up, take your mat and go to your home.” 12 And he stood up, and immediately took the mat and went out before all of them; so that they were all amazed and glorified God, saying, “We have never seen anything like this!” 13 Jesus went out again beside the sea; the whole crowd gathered around him, and he taught them. 14 As he was walking along, he saw Levi son of Alphaeus sitting at the tax booth, and he said to him, “Follow me.” And he got up and followed him. 15 And as he sat at dinner in Levi’s house, many tax collectors and sinners were also sit-

2.1–12: Healing paralysis and forgiveness of sins (Mt 9.1–8; Lk 5.17–26)

This controversy story, which is also a healing story, begins a series of controversies in which the scribes (see 1.21–22n.) and Pharisees attack or question Jesus, whose sharp response is decisive. The scribes were the literate expert interpreters and guardians of the official law codes, the Pharisees a particular party or faction within the wider class of scribes. Both were based in the Jerusalem Temple (3.22; 7.1) and worked for and represented the priestly rulers in dealings with the people. 4: Houses often had a flat roof consisting of mud plaster over a wood framework. 5–11: Jesus equates the declaration “Your sins are forgiven” with “Stand up . . . and walk.” The man’s paralysis is believed to be due to his own sin (or that of his parents; see Ex 34.7; Jn 9.2). The scribes, the authorities who socially reinforced such self-blame for illness and misfortune, accuse Jesus of blasphemy, a capital offense (Lev 24.16), since forgiveness can be done by God alone through the established procedures in the Temple, according to these his official interpreters. The accusation prefigures that by the high priest at his trial (Mk 14.64). Again Jesus asserts his own prophetic authority and power over against the scribes, as in 1.22–27. Son of Man means either “human being” or refers to Jesus as an exalted figure representative of a finally restored Israel (derived from Dan 7.13), or both.

2.13–17: Eating with sinners (Mt 9.9–13; Lk 5.27–32)

14: Levi, identified as “Matthew” in Mt 9.9, is a customs officer at Capernaum, a border village, presumably working under an officer of Herod Antipas. 15–16: Eating with sinners and tax collectors (or rather “toll collectors”) would have entailed contact with impure people and social outcasts, according to the scribes of the Pharisees.
tang with Jesus and his disciples—for there were many who followed him. 16 When the scribes of the Pharisees saw that he was eating with sinners and tax collectors, they said to his disciples, “Why does he eat with tax collectors and sinners?” 17 When Jesus heard this, he said to them, “Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick; I have come to call not the righteous but sinners.”

Now John’s disciples and the Pharisees were fasting; and people came and said to him, “Why do John’s disciples and the disciples of the Pharisees fast, but your disciples do not fast?” 19 Jesus said to them, “The wedding guests cannot fast while the bridegroom is with them, can they? As long as they have the bridegroom, they cannot fast. 20 The days will come when the bridegroom is taken away from them, and then they will fast on that day.

“‘No one sews a piece of unshrunk cloth on an old cloak; otherwise, the patch pulls away from it, and then it will tear. And no one puts new wine into old wineskins; otherwise, the wine is lost, and so are the skins; but one puts new wine into fresh wineskins.’”

One sabbath he was going through the grainfields; and as they made their way his disciples began to pluck heads of grain. 24 The Pharisees said to him, “Look, why are they doing what is not lawful on the sabbath?” 25 And he said to them, “Have you never read what David did when he and his companions were hungry and in need of food? 26 He entered the house of God, when Abiathar was high priest, and ate the bread of the Presence, which it is not lawful for any but the priests to eat, and he gave some to his companions.” 27 Then he said to them, “The sabbath was made for human-kind, and not humankind for the sabbath; 28 so the Son of Man is lord even of the sabbath.”

Again he entered the synagogue, and a man was there who had a withered hand. 2 They watched him to see whether he would cure him on the sabbath, so that they might accuse him. 3 And he said to the man who had the withered hand, “Come forward.” 4 Then he said to them, “Is it lawful to do good or to do harm on the sabbath, to save life or to kill?” But they were silent. 5 He looked around at them with anger; he was grieved at their hardness of heart and said to the man, “Stretch out your hand.” He stretched it out, and his hand was restored. 6 The Pharisees went out and immediately conspired with the Herodians against him, how to destroy him.

2.18–22: Fasting (Mt 9.14–17; Lk 5.33–39). 19: A wedding feast, one of the principal times of celebration and feasting among peasants, was a traditional symbol of the future time of fulfillment, a time of justice and plenty; cf. Isa 62.5; Lk 17.22. 20: The bridegroom . . . taken away, after the crucifixion when Jesus, understood as the bridegroom, is gone. 21–22: With Jesus’ preaching and manifestation of the kingdom something new has come, calling for suspension of old forms such as fasting.

2.23–28: The sabbath and hunger (Mt 12.1–8; Lk 6.1–5). 23–24: The disciples’ action may have violated the Pharisees’ restrictions against travel as well as harvesting on the sabbath, meant to implement the fourth commandment (Ex 20.8–10). 25–26: Jesus’ reply summarizes a story about David commandeering food for his soldiers that appears in 1 Sam 21.1–6, in which Ahimelech, Abiathar’s father, is the priest (cf. 2 Sam 15.35). The point of the story: David’s men were hungry, a detail not found in 1 Sam 21.27: Ex 23.12; Deut 5.14–15. 28: Son of Man, even more clearly than in 2.10, could mean either “human being,” in parallelism with “humankind” in v. 27, or the future Jesus as an exalted figure representing a renewed Israel.

3.1–6: Healing on the sabbath (Mt 12.9–14; Lk 6.6–11). 1: Synagogue, see 1.21–22n. 2–4: Having already performed an exorcism on the sabbath (1.22–27), Jesus now pointedly performs a healing on the sabbath in the presence of the Pharisees, who remain silent. 5: Juxtaposition of Jesus’ anger and grief at the Pharisees’ program and his compassion in curing the man’s withered hand. 6: In response to this and Jesus’ previous actions, the Pharisees conspire with the Herodians, representatives of Herod Antipas, the ruler of Galilee, to destroy him.

3.7–12: Summary of Jesus’ activity (Mt 4.24–25; 12.15–21; Lk 6.17–19; 4.41). A summary of Jesus’ program and Jesus departed with his disciples to the sea, and a great multitude from Galilee followed him; hearing all that he was doing, they came to him in great numbers from Judea, Jerusalem, Idumea, beyond the Jordan, and the region around Tyre and Sidon. He told his disciples to have a boat ready for him because of the crowd, so that they would not crush him; for he had cured many, so that all who had diseases pressed upon him to touch him. Whenever the unclean spirits saw him, they fell down before him and shouted, “You are the Son of God!” But he sternly ordered them not to make him known.

He went up the mountain and called to him those whom he wanted, and they came to him. And he appointed twelve, whom he also named apostles, to be with him, and to be sent out to proclaim the message, and to have authority to cast out demons. So he appointed the twelve:

- Simon (to whom he gave the name Peter);
- James son of Zebedee and John the brother of James (to whom he gave the name Boanerges, that is, Sons of Thunder);
- Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James son of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus, and Simon the Cananaean, and Judas Iscariot, who betrayed him.

Then he went home; and the crowd came together again, so that they could not even eat. When his family heard it, they went out to restrain him, for people were saying, “He has gone out of his mind.” And the scribes who came down from Jerusalem said, “He has Beelzebul, and by the ruler of the demons he casts out demons.” And he called them to him, and spoke to them in parables, “How can Satan cast out Satan? If a kingdom is divided against itself, that kingdom cannot stand. And if a house is divided against itself, that house will not be able to stand. But if Satan has risen up against himself and is divided, he cannot stand, but his end has come. But no one can enter a strong man’s house and plunder his property without first tying up the strong man; then indeed the house can be plundered.

“Truly I tell you, people will be forgiven for their sins and whatever blasphemies they utter; but whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit can never have forgiveness, but is guilty of an eternal sin”—for they had said, “He has an unclean spirit.”

a Other ancient authorities lack whom he also named apostles
b Other ancient authorities lack So he appointed the twelve the burgeoning response it evokes. 8: Peoples of Israelite heritage from all these areas flock to Jesus, indicating that a renewal of all Israel is happening. The region around indicates that they are mainly from rural villages. See map on p. 1800.

3.13–19a: Appointing the twelve (Mt 10.1–4; Lk 6.12–16). 13–14: Up the mountain . . . appointed twelve, suggests a new Sinai, on which Jesus is constituting a renewed Israel symbolized by the twelve. 14–15: The twelve are invested with the same proclamation (of the kingdom) and authority and power to exorcize demons as Jesus, an extension of his program.

3.19b–35: Defeat of Satan, and the new community (Mt 12.22–27; Lk 11.14–23; 12.10; 16.43–45). In a repeated narrative technique, Mark “sandwiches” one story into another. 21: To those who knew Jesus before he assumed the role of prophet or are concerned lest he be seized by the authorities, he appears to be out of his mind (cf. 6.1–3). 22–27: Both Jesus and the scribes (see 1.21–22n.) think that current personal and social-political life is caught in the struggle for dominion between God and Satan. 22: The threatened scribes attribute Jesus’ power to demonic possession: He is a witch! Beelzebul, possibly “Lord of the (divine) house” (cf. Mt 10.25), or “Baal, the prince,” originally a title of the Canaanite storm and fertility god (2 Kings 1.2), later demonized into the chief power of evil. 23: In parables, in extended metaphors or analogies; cf. 4.2.33. 24–26: A kingdom was thought of as a household on a large scale, and both kingdom and household were metaphors for God’s and Satan’s power or control. Jesus argues both that the scribes’ charge is absurd and that even assuming they are right, Satan’s rule is at an end. 27: By analogy, in his exorcism of demons Jesus (the “more powerful one,” 1.7) has broken into Satan’s house, tied up “the strong man,” and “plundered his property.” This further implies that God’s is now the only kingdom left, by which Jesus is acting. 28–30: From Mark’s viewpoint, attacks on Jesus during his mission can be forgiven, but not attacks against the Holy Spirit acting in his movement. 31–35: Not necessarily an attack on his family (but see v. 21), but rather an indication that within the Jesus-movement and its commu-
Again he began to teach beside the sea.

Such a very large crowd gathered around him that he got into a boat on the sea and sat there, while the whole crowd was beside the sea on the land. 2 He began to teach them many things in parables, and in his teaching he said to them: ³’Listen! A sower went out to sow. ⁴And as he sowed, some seed fell on the path, and the birds came and ate it up. ⁵Other seed fell on rocky ground, where it did not have much soil, and it sprang up quickly, since it had no depth of soil. ⁶And when the sun rose, it was scorched; and since it had no root, it withered away. ⁷Other seed fell among thorns, and the thorns grew up and choked it, and it yielded no grain. ⁸Other seed fell into good soil and brought forth grain, growing up and increasing and yielding thirty and sixty and a hundredfold.’ ⁹And he said, ‘Let anyone with ears to hear listen!’

10 When he was alone, those who were around him along with the twelve asked him about the parables. ¹¹And he said to them, ‘To you has been given the secret⁵ of the kingdom of God, but for those outside, everything comes in parables.’ ¹²In order that ‘they may indeed look, but not perceive, and may indeed listen, but not understand; so that they may not turn again and be forgiven.’”

¹³And he said to them, “Do you not understand this parable? Then how will you understand all the parables? ¹⁴The sower sows the word. ¹⁵These are the ones on the path where the word is sown: when they hear, Satan immediately comes and takes away the word that is sown in them. ¹⁶And these are the ones sown on rocky ground: when they hear, they immediately receive it with joy. ¹⁷But they have no root, and endure only for a while; then, when trouble or persecution arises on account of the word, immediately they fall away. ¹⁸And others are those sown among the thorns: these are the ones who hear the word, they immediately receive it with joy. ¹⁹But the cares of the world, and the desire for other things come in and choke the word, and it yields nothing. ²⁰And these are the ones sown on the good soil: they hear the word and accept it and bear fruit, thirty and sixty and a hundredfold.’”

²¹He said to them, “Is a lamp brought in to be put under the bushel basket, or under the bed, and not on the lampstand? ²²For there is nothing hidden, except to be disclosed; nor is anything secret, except to come to light. ²³Let anyone with ears to hear listen!” ²⁴And he said to them, “Pay attention to what you hear; the measure you give will be the measure you receive.”

The struggle with Satan continues, as it also will in Peter’s misunderstanding in 8.29–33. ¹⁶–¹⁷: Cf. 9.42–48; 13.19,24; 14.27,29. ¹⁸–¹⁹: The lure of wealth, cf. 10.17–22,25. ²¹–²²: These sayings repeat and reinforce the message of 4.3–10,20; the kingdom, hidden now, will come to light. ²⁴–²⁵: These sayings make most sense as a warning not to accept any cynical “realistic” advice that the established power-relations

---

a  Other ancient authorities lack and sisters b  Or mystery
c  Or stumble
get, and still more will be given you. 25 For to those who have, more will be given; and from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away."

26 He also said, "The kingdom of God is as if someone would scatter seed on the ground, 27 and would sleep and rise night and day, and the seed would sprout and grow, he does not know how. 28 The earth produces of itself, first the stalk, then the head, then the full grain in the head. 29 But when the grain is ripe, at once he goes in with his sickle, because the harvest has come."

30 He also said, "With what can we compare the kingdom of God, or what parable will we use for it? 31 It is like a mustard seed, which, when sown upon the ground, is the smallest of all the seeds on earth; 32 yet when it is sown it grows up and becomes the greatest of all shrubs, and puts forth large branches, so that the birds of the air can make nests in its shade."

33 With many such parables he spoke the word to them, as they were able to hear it; 34 he did not speak to them except in parables, but he explained everything in private to his disciples.

35 On that day, when evening had come, he said to them, "Let us go across to the other side." 36 And leaving the crowd behind, they took him with them in the boat, just as he was. Other boats were with him. 37 A great wind-storm arose, and the waves beat into the boat, so that the boat was already being swamped.

38 But he was in the stern, asleep on the cushion; and they woke him up and said to him, "Teacher, do you not care that we are perishing?" 39 He woke up and rebuked the wind, and said to the sea, "Peace! Be still!" Then the wind ceased, and there was a dead calm. 40 He said to them, "Why are you afraid? Have you still no faith?" 41 And they were filled with great awe and said to one another, "Who then is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?"

5 They came to the other side of the sea, to the country of the Gerasenes. 42 And when he had stepped out of the boat, immediately a man out of the tombs with an unclean spirit met him. 43 He lived among the tombs; and no one could restrain him any more, even with a chain; 44 for he had often been restrained with shackles and chains, but the chains he wrenched apart, and the shackles he broke in pieces; and no one had the strength to subdue him. 45 Night and day among the tombs and on the mountains he was always howling and bruising himself with stones. 46 When he saw Jesus from a distance, he ran and bowed down before him; 47 and he shouted at the top of his voice, "What have you to do with me, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I adjure you by God, do not torment me." 48 For he had said to him, "Come out of the man, you unclean spirit!"

Then Jesus asked him, "What is your a Other ancient authorities read Gergesenes; others, Gadarenes

b Gk he will inevitably continue. 26–29: The kingdom of God will surely come to full fruition, just as the seed inevitably sprouts, grows, and produces a harvest (cf. Joel 3.13). 30–32: The climax of the process by which the kingdom of God is growing is like the tiniest seed producing a large bush that provides homes for the birds. Note the modest metaphor, in contrast with the imperial metaphor of the cedar tree in Ezek 17; 31; Dan 4.

4.35–8.21: Continuing the prophetic renewal of Israel (and other peoples) despite opposition and the disciples’ misunderstanding. This section is organized around two sequences of Moses- and Elijah-like sea crossings, exorcisms, hearings, and wilderness feedings.

4.35–41: First sea crossing (Mt 8.18,23–27; Lk 8.22–25; cf. Mk 6.45–52). Emphasis falls on the disciples’ lack of faith and their great awe . . . “that even the wind and the sea obey him.” Control of the sea is a divine characteristic (e.g., Job 26.12; 38.8–11; see Ps 89.9; cf. Ps 89.25).

5.1–20: Exorcism of the demon whose name is “Legion” (Mt 8.28–34; Lk 8.26–39). This is the most embellished such episode in Mark. 1: The territory of the city of Gerasa (modern Jerash) was in central Transjordan; its population was largely non-Jewish. Mt 8.28 situates this event in Gadara, southeast of the Sea of Galilee, a setting that better fits the narrative. 2–5: The man’s possession by the alien force generated such violence that his community had not been able to restrain him, even with chains. 7: Most High God is not an Israelite but a Hellenistic name, found mainly in Luke-Acts. 9: Once the unclean spirit is cast out, it is possible to find name?” He replied, “My name is Legion; for we are many.” ¹⁰ He begged him earnestly not to send them out of the country. ¹¹ Now there on the hillside a great herd of swine was feeding; ¹² and the unclean spirits begged him, “Send us into the swine; let us enter them.” ¹³ So he gave them permission. And the unclean spirits came out and entered the swine; and the herd, numbering about two thousand, rushed down the steep bank into the sea, and were drowned in the sea.
The geography of the Gospel of Mark.

¹⁴ The swineherds ran off and told it in the city and in the country. Then people came to see what it was that had happened. ¹⁵ They came to Jesus and saw the demoniac sitting there, clothed and in his right mind, the very man who had had the legion; and they were afraid. ¹⁶ Those who had seen what had happened to the demoniac and to the swine reported it. ¹⁷ Then they began to beg Jesus to leave their neighborhood. ¹⁸ As he was getting into the boat, the man who had been possessed by demons begged him that he might be with him. ¹⁹ But Jesus refused, and said to him, “Go home to your friends, and tell them how much the Lord has done for you, and what mercy he has shown you.” ²⁰ And he went away and began to proclaim in the Decapolis how much Jesus had done for him; and everyone was amazed.

²¹ When Jesus had crossed again in the boat to the other side, a great crowd gathered around him; and he was by the sea. ²² Then one of the leaders of the synagogue named Jairus came and, when he saw him, fell at his feet ²³ and begged him repeatedly, “My little daughter is at the point of death. Come and lay your hands on her, so that she may be made well, and live.” ²⁴ So he went with him.

And a large crowd followed him and pressed in on him. ²⁵ Now there was a woman who had been suffering from hemorrhages for twelve years. ²⁶ She had endured much under many physicians, and had spent all that she had; and she was no better, but rather grew worse. ²⁷ She had heard about Jesus, and came up behind him in the crowd and touched his cloak, ²⁸ for she said, “If I but touch his clothes, I will be made well.” ²⁹ Immediately her hemorrhage stopped; and she felt in her body that she was healed of her disease. ³⁰ Immediately aware that power had gone forth from him, Jesus turned about in the crowd and said, “Who touched my clothes?” ³¹ And his disciples said to him, “You see the crowd pressing in on you; how can you say, ‘Who touched me?’” ³² He looked all around to see who had done it. ³³ But the woman, knowing what had happened to her, came in fear and trembling, fell down before him, and told him the whole truth. ³⁴ He said to her, “Daughter, your faith has made you well; go in peace, and be healed of your disease.”

a Gk they
b Gk him
c Gk he
d Other ancient authorities lack in the boat

out its identity. A legion was a division (usually consisting of about five or six thousand troops) of the Roman military, who had conquered and, in effect, still occupied the country. ¹¹–¹³: Having entered the herd of pigs (which Jews were not permitted to eat, Lev 11.7; Deut 14.8), the Roman “legion” of unclean spirits, in a military image, charged into the sea and were destroyed, alluding to the destruction of Pharaoh’s army in Israel’s Exodus deliverance (Ex 15.4). Cf. the image of the (Temple-) mount “thrown into the sea,” ¹¹.⁵³. ¹⁴–¹⁷: The people were apprehensive that Jesus had disrupted their delicately balanced adjustment to the alien possession. ²⁰: The liberated man carried the good news about Jesus’ actions into the wider Decapolis, the district of “ten cities” in the Jordan valley and in Transjordan. They were Hellenistic in character, with a largely non-Israelite population.

5.21–43: Healings of Jairus’s daughter and the hemorrhaging woman (Mt 9.18–26; Lk 8.40–56). Again (see 3.19b–25) Mark has “sandwiched” one story into another. The healings of both the woman who had been hemorrhaging for twelve years and the almost dead twelve-year-old woman are also symbolic of Jesus’ renewal of Israel. ²²: Leaders of the synagogue, i.e., of the village assembly. ²⁵–²⁶: The woman is poverty-stricken from the worsening hemorrhaging that no physicians could stop. According to the official Jerusalem purity code (Lev 15.25–30), she would have been “unclean.” It is doubtful that this code affected village life. The story itself does not mention ritual purity. ²⁷–³³: The initiative and action are entirely hers, Jesus being the passive conduit through which the healing power goes forth. ³⁴: Her confidence that she would be healed is a paradigm of trust.
While he was still speaking, some people came from the leader’s house to say, “Your daughter is dead. Why trouble the teacher any further?” But overhearing what they said, Jesus said to the leader of the synagogue, “Do not fear, only believe.” He allowed no one to follow him except Peter, James, and John, the brother of James. When they came to the house of the leader of the synagogue, he saw a commotion, people weeping and wailing loudly. Then he had entered, he said to them, “Why do you make a commotion and weep? The child is not dead but sleeping.” He took her by the hand and said to her, “Talitha cum,” which means, “Little girl, get up!” And immediately the girl got up and began to walk about (she was twelve years of age). At this they were overcome with amazement. He strictly ordered them that no one should know this, and told them to give her something to eat.

He left that place and came to his hometown, and his disciples followed him. On the sabbath he began to teach in the synagogue, and many who heard him were astounded. They said, “Where did this man get all this? What is this wisdom that has been given to him? What deeds of power are being done by his hands? Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary and brother of James and Joses and Judas and Simon, and are not his sisters here with us?” And they took offense at him. Then Jesus said to them, “Prophets are not without honor, except in their own hometown, and among their own kin, and in their own house.” And he could do no deed of power there, except that he laid his hands on a few sick people and cured them. And he was amazed at their unbelief.

Then he went about among the villages teaching. He called the twelve and began to send them out two by two, and gave them authority over the unclean spirits. He ordered them to take nothing for their journey except a staff; no bread, no bag, no money in their belts; but to wear sandals and not to put on two tunics. He said to them, “Wherever you enter a house, stay there until you leave the place. If any place will not welcome you and they refuse to hear you, as you leave, shake off the dust that is on your feet as a testimony against them.” So they went out and proclaimed that all should repent. King Herod heard of it, for Jesus’ name had become known. Some were saying, “John the baptizer has been raised from the dead; and for this reason these powers are at work in him.” But others said, “It is Elijah.” And others said, “It is a prophet, like one of the prophets of old.” But when Herod heard of it, he said, “John, whom I beheaded, has been raised.”

(1) In the renewal that is happening through Jesus. The phrase talitha cum is Aramaic; cf. 7.34; 14.36; 15.34. The young woman, at twelve approaching marriage, appears to be dead, yet Jesus restores her to life and, presumably, the ability to reproduce new life in and of Israel.

6.1–6a: Rejection in his hometown (Mt. 13.53–58; Lk 4.16–30). Those who knew Jesus from his early years, before he was called into service as a prophet mediating extraordinary powers, cannot respond in faith as others can; cf. 3.21. The powers that work through such a prophet are dependent on people’s positive response with faith.

6.6b–13: Commissioning the twelve (Mt 10.1,9–11,14; Lk 9.1–6; cf. Lk 10.2–16). Jesus commissions the twelve, appointed as symbolic heads of the renewed Israel in 3.13–19, to expand his mission of proclamation, exorcism, and healing. They work in villages, staying in sympathetic households, building the renewal movement.

6.14–29: Herod’s execution of John (Mt 14.1–12; Lk 9.7–9). Herod, Antipas, son of Herod the Great, technically appointed tetrarch, but popularly known as “King,” ruled Galilee and part of Transjordan 4 bce–39 ce. Clearly people were responding to and identifying Jesus out of their cultivation of popular tradition as “Elijah” or “one of the prophets.” Herod, however, is anxiously superstitious because he had beheaded John.
For Herod himself had sent men who arrested John, bound him, and put him in prison on account of Herodias, his brother Philip’s wife, because Herod had married her. 18 For John had been telling Herod, “It is not lawful for you to have your brother’s wife.” 19 And Herodias had a grudge against him, and wanted to kill him. But she could not, 20 for Herod feared John, knowing that he was a righteous and holy man, and he protected him. When he heard him, he was greatly perplexed; and yet he liked to listen to him. 21 But an opportunity came when Herod on his birthday gave a banquet for his courtiers and officers and for the leaders of Galilee. 22 When his daughter Herodias came in and danced, she pleased Herod and his guests; and the king said to the girl, “Ask me for whatever you wish, and I will give it.” 23 And he solemnly swore to her, “Whatever you ask me, I will give you, even half of my kingdom.” 24 She went out and said to her mother, “What should I ask for?” She replied, “The head of John the baptizer.” 25 Immediately she rushed back to the king and requested, “I want you to give me at once the head of John the Baptist on a platter.” 26 The king was deeply grieved; yet out of regard for his oaths and for the guests, he did not want to refuse her. 27 Immediately the king sent a soldier of the guard with orders to bring John’s head. He went and beheaded him in the prison, 28 brought his head on a platter, and gave it to the girl. Then the girl gave it to her mother. 29 When his disciples heard about it, they came and took his body, and laid it in a tomb.

30 The apostles gathered around Jesus, and told him all that they had done and taught. 31 He said to them, “Come away to a deserted place all by yourselves and rest a while.” For many were coming and going, and they had no leisure even to eat. 32 And they went away in the boat to a deserted place by themselves. 33 Now many saw them going and recognized them, and they hurried there on foot from all the towns and arrived ahead of them. 34 As he went ashore, he saw a great crowd; and he had compassion for them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd; and he began to teach them many things. 35 When it grew late, his disciples came to him and said, “This is a deserted place, and the hour is now very late; 36 send them away so that they may go into the surrounding country and villages and buy something for themselves to eat.” 37 But he answered them, “You give them something to eat.” They said to him, “Are we to go and buy two hundred denarii worth of bread, and give it to them to eat?” 38 And he said to them, “How many loaves have you? Go and 17–29: A popular tale of the decadent life at Herod’s court and of the gruesome beheading of John that sounds an ominous note for Jesus’ prophetic renewal of Israel over against the king appointed by Rome. 17–18: Royal marriages were instruments of international politics. John’s prophecy against Herod Antipas’s marriage to his brother’s wife, which was illegal (Lev 18.16; 20.21) and which alienated the Nabatean king Aretas IV, father of his first wife, was politically incendiary (see Josephus, J.W. 2.182; Ant. 18.240–44). 19–20: Herod’s and Herodias’s respective feelings about John are reminiscent of Ahab’s and Jezebel’s stances toward Elijah in 1 Kings 18–19. 21: Leaders, better “the first ones,” i.e., high-ranking officials at court. 22: His daughter, called Salome by Josephus (Ant. 18.5.136). 29: John also had disciples, and perhaps headed a prophetic movement parallel to that of Jesus.

6.30–44: Wilderness feeding of five thousand (Mt 14.13–21; Lk 9.10–17; Jn 6.1–13; cf. Mk 8.1–10). First of two wilderness feedings reminiscent of God’s feeding early Israel in the wilderness through Moses (Ex 16; Num 11). 30–33: In need of a temporary retreat from the rigors of their mission, Jesus and his apostles withdraw, but hordes of people clamor to them even in the wilderness. 34: Sheep without a shepherd, a frequent image for a people without a prophet or king to lead them (see Num 27.17; 1 Kings 22.17; Ezek 34.8; Zech 10.2). Coming right after Herod’s execution of John, it also alludes to the prophetic tradition of political criticism of predatory and exploitative kings who become rich by “fleeing” rather than caring for their people (see Ezek 34.2–5; Zech 11.4–17). 35–37: The disciples’ suggestion and protest both represent a misunderstanding of Jesus’ program. That the villagers could no longer feed themselves from their own produce and had to become laborers to earn money to buy food is just the problem! 38–44: One of the dreams of peasants, who are always economically marginal and therefore hungry, is a future good time when food is plentiful (cf. Lk 6.20–21). Both the multiplication of the food and the twelve baskets left over suggest that this story is reminiscent of Elijah-Elisha stories of feeding in times of famine (e.g., 2 Kings 4.42–44) and of their restoration of Israel symbolized in its twelve tribes. 39–40: Groups of hundreds and fifties are an allusion to Moses’ organization of Israel following the Exodus (Ex 18.21–25). 41: Christian readers usually find eucharistic overtones in Jesus’ blessing and breaking of the loaves (cf. 14.22).

6.45–52: Second sea crossing (Mt 14.22–33; Jn 6.15–21; cf. Mk 4.35–41). 45: Bethsaida, a village at the north of the Sea of Galilee, transformed into a small “city” by Herod Philip. 47–52: Again the disciples are terrified, not only at the wind but also at the apparition. 50: Mark compares Jesus to God, using the phrase “I am” (Gk “ego eimi,” NRSV: “It is I!”; cf. Ex 3.14). 51–52: Yet the disciples not only lack faith, as in 4.40, but their hearts were hardened, as had occurred with enemies of God in earlier times (e.g., Ex 7.3,14; Deut 2.30; Josh 11.20; 1 Sam 6.6).

6.53–56: A summary passage highlighting the widening response to Jesus. Mt 14.34–36. 56: His cloak . . . were healed, cf. 5.25–34.

7.1–23: Traditions of the elders vs. the commandment of God (Mt 15.1–20). 1–5: As representatives of the Jerusalem Temple, the political-economic as well as religious capital of Judea, the Pharisees and scribes cultivated oral tradition of the elders supplementary to the law of Moses, in this story focused on purity codes for processing and eating food. 3–4: The parenthetical explanation claims that “all the Judeans/NRSV “all the prophesied rightly about you hypocrites, as it is written,
‘This people honors me with their lips, but their hearts are far from me;
7 in vain do they worship me, teaching human precepts as doctrines.’
8 You abandon the commandment of God and hold to human tradition.”

9 Then he said to them, “You have a fine way of rejecting the commandment of God in order to keep your tradition! 10 For Moses said, ‘Honor your father and your mother’; and, ‘Whoever speaks evil of father or mother must surely die.’ 11 But you say that if anyone tells father or mother, ‘Whatever support you might have had from me is Corban’ (that is, an offering dedicated to God)— 12 then you no longer permit doing anything for a father or mother, 13 thus making void the word of God through your tradition that you have handed on. And you do many things like this.”

14 Then he called the crowd again and said to them, “Listen to me, all of you, and understand: 15 there is nothing outside a person that by going in can defile, but the things that come out are what defile.”

17 When he had left the crowd and entered the house, his disciples asked him about the parable. 18 He said to them, “Then do you also fail to understand? Do you not see that whatever goes into a person from outside cannot defile, 19 since it enters, not the heart but the stomach, and goes out into the sewer?” (Thus he declared all foods clean.) 20 And he said, “It is what comes out of a person that defiles.

21 For it is from within, from the human heart, that evil intentions come: fornication, theft, murder, 22 adultery, avarice, wickedness, deceit, licentiousness, envy, slander, pride, folly. 22 All these evil things come from within, and they defile a person.”

24 From there he set out and went away to the region of Tyre. 25 He entered a house and did not want anyone to know he was there. Yet he could not escape notice, 26 but a woman whose little daughter had an unclean spirit immediately heard about him, and she came and bowed down at his feet. 26 Now the woman was a Gentile, of Syrophoenician origin. She begged him to cast the demon out of her daughter.

27 He said to her, “Let the children be fed first, for it is not fair to take the children’s food and throw it to the dogs.” 28 But she answered him, “Sir, d even the dogs under the table eat the children’s crumbs.” 29 Then he said to her, “For saying that, you may go—the demon has left your daughter.” 30 So she went home, found the child lying on the bed, and the demon gone.

31 Then he returned from the region of Tyre, and went by way of Sidon towards the Sea of Galilee, in the region of the Decapo-

Jews”), not just the Pharisees, observed their hand-washing regulations. 6–8: In reply, quoting Isa 29.13 (LXX), Jesus claims that the Pharisees in effect replace the basic covenantal commandment of God with their merely human tradition. 9–13: Jesus focuses the dispute in concrete terms on the commandment of God concerning Honor your father and your mother (cf. Ex 20.12; 21.17), which includes economic support in their declining years. He claims that the Pharisees make it void with their tradition of Corban, encouraging people to dedicate the produce of their land to the Jerusalem Temple—thus siphoning off produce that otherwise could have been used to support parents. Corban is an Aramaic word meaning “offering dedicated to God.” 14–19a: Addresses purity codes with a touch of earthy humor regarding eating and resultant bodily functions. 17: Parable here has the sense of “riddle.” 19b: Perhaps a later addition to the text. 20–23: Shifts the focus from bodily functions to the inner motivations of “defiling,” socially destructive behavior.

7.24–30: The Syrophoenician woman (Mt 15.21–28). 24–26: In the region of Tyre, not in the city itself, a “Greek” woman intrudes with her plea on behalf of her possessed daughter. 27–28: To Jesus’ insistence that the manifestation of the kingdom (food) is primarily for Israelites (children), she gives a reply that wins the debate. 29–30: The representative figure of the peoples surrounding Israel insists on receiving the benefits of the kingdom, and her insistence produces precisely that.

7.31–37: Healing the deaf (Mt 15.29–31). Healing the deaf-mute, which is symbolic of a more general restoration of hearing and speech, confirms that the kingdom of God and the movement of renewal has extended to

NEW TESTAMENT | 1805
8 In those days when there was again a great crowd without anything to eat, he called his disciples and said to them, "I have compassion for the crowd, because they have been with me now for three days and have nothing to eat. If I send them away hungry to their homes, they will faint on the way—and some of them have come from a great distance." His disciples replied, "How can one feed these people with bread here in the desert?" He asked them, "How many loaves do you have?" They said, "Seven." Then he ordered the crowd to sit down on the ground; and he took the seven loaves, and after giving thanks he broke them and gave them to his disciples to distribute; and they distributed them to the crowd. They had also a few small fish; and after blessing them, he ordered that these too should be distributed. They ate and were filled; and they took up the broken pieces left over, seven baskets full. Now there were about four thousand people. And he sent them away. And immediately he got into the boat with his disciples and went to the district of Dalmanutha.

The Pharisees came and began to argue with him, asking him for a sign from heaven, to test him. And he sighed deeply in his spirit and said, "Why does this generation ask for a sign? Truly I tell you, no sign will be given to this generation." And he left them, and getting into the boat again, he went across to the other side.

Now the disciples had forgotten to bring any bread; and they had only one loaf with them in the boat. And he cautioned them, saying, "Watch out—beware of the yeast of the Pharisees and the yeast of Herod." They said to one another, "It is because we have no bread." And becoming aware of it, Jesus said to them, "Why are you talking about having no bread? Do you still not perceive or understand? Are your hearts hardened? Do you have eyes, and fail to see? Do you have ears, and fail to hear? And do you not remember? When I broke the five loaves for the five thousand, how many baskets full of broken pieces did you collect?" They said to him, "Twelve." And the seven for the four thousand, how many baskets full of broken pieces did you collect?" And they said to him, "Seven." Then he said to them, "Do you not yet understand?"

8.1–9: Wilderness feeding of four thousand (Mt 15.32–38; cf. Mk 6.30–44). As he had fed the earlier crowd in the wilderness, implicitly composed of Israelites, now Jesus also feeds the surrounding peoples in the wilderness. Seven is symbolic of the surrounding peoples, as twelve was of Israel (6.43). The two wilderness feedings echo the two accounts of the giving of food to the Israelites in the wilderness (Ex 16; Num 11).

8.10–12: No sign will be given (Mt 16.1–4; 12.28–39; Lk 11.29; 11.16; 12.54–56). This passage would make better sense if v. 10 were in one paragraph with vv. 11–12, and v. 13 were joined to the following paragraph (vv. 14–21). Blind to the sequences of Moses- and Elijah-like actions Jesus has just taken, the Pharisees again press Jesus, asking for a sign from heaven, to test him, which they do again in 10.2 and 12.15. Dalmanutha, the parallel in Mt 15.39 reads "Magadan" (see note there).

8.13–21: The disciples misunderstand (Mt 16.4–12; Lk 12.1). In a bridge to the next section, the disciples simply do not understand what is happening, either the scheming of the religious and political authorities seeking to destroy Jesus (cf. 3.6) or the renewal movement underway among the surrounding peoples as well as among Israelite villages. 17–18: 4.9–12; 6.52. 19: 6.41–44. 20: 8.5–8.
Jesus went on with his disciples to the villages of Caesarea Philippi; and on the way he asked his disciples, “Who do people say that I am?” 28 And they answered him, “John the Baptist; and others, Elijah; and still others, one of the prophets.” 29 He asked them, “But who do you say that I am?” Peter answered him, “You are the Messiah.” 30 And he sternly ordered them not to tell anyone about him.

Then he began to teach them that the Son of Man must undergo great suffering, and be rejected by the elders, the chief priests, and the scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise again. 32 He said all this quite openly. And Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him. 33 But turning and looking at his disciples, he rebuked Peter and said, “Get behind me, Satan! For you are setting your mind not on divine things but on human things.”

He called the crowd with his disciples, and said to them, “If any want to become my followers, let them deny themselves and take up their cross and follow me. 35 For those who want to save their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake, and for the sake of the gospel, will save it. 36 For what will it profit them to gain the whole world and forfeit their life? 37 Indeed, what can they give in return for their life? 38 Those who are ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of them the Son of Man will also be ashamed.

22 They came to Bethsaida. Some people brought a blind man to him and begged him to touch him. 23 He took the blind man by the hand and led him out of the village; and when he had put saliva on his eyes and laid his hands on him, he asked him, “Can you see anything?” 24 And the man looked up and said, “I can see people, but they look like trees, walking.” 25 Then Jesus laid his hands on his eyes again; and he looked intently and his sight was restored, and he saw everything clearly. 26 Then he sent him away to his home, saying, “Do not even go into the village.”

27 Jesus went on with his disciples to the villages of Caesarea Philippi; and on the way he asked his disciples, “Who do people say that I am?” 28 And they answered him, “John the Baptist; and others, Elijah; and still others, one of the prophets.” 29 He asked them, “But who do you say that I am?” Peter answered him, “You are the Messiah.” 30 And he sternly ordered them not to tell anyone about him.

31 Then he began to teach them that the Son of Man must undergo great suffering, and be rejected by the elders, the chief priests, and the scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise again. 32 He said all this quite openly. And Peter took him aside and began to rebuke him. 33 But turning and looking at his disciples, he rebuked Peter and said, “Get behind me, Satan! For you are setting your mind not on divine things but on human things.”

34 He called the crowd with his disciples, and said to them, “If any want to become my followers, let them deny themselves and take up their cross and follow me. 35 For those who want to save their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake, and for the sake of the gospel, will save it. 36 For what will it profit them to gain the whole world and forfeit their life? 37 Indeed, what can they give in return for their life? 38 Those who are ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of them the Son of Man will also be ashamed.

---

a Gk They

b Gk he

c Other ancient authorities add or tell anyone in the village

d Or the Christ

e Other ancient authorities read lose their life for the sake of the gospel

f Other ancient authorities read and of mine when he comes in the glory of his Father with the holy angels. And he said to them, “Truly I tell you, there are some standing here who will not taste death until they see that the kingdom of God has come with power.”

Six days later, Jesus took with him Peter and James and John, and led them up a high mountain apart, by themselves. And he was transfigured before them, and his clothes became dazzling white, such as no one on earth could bleach them. And there appeared to them Elijah with Moses, who were talking with Jesus. Then Peter said to Jesus, “Rabbi, it is good for us to be here; let us make three dwellings, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.” He did not know what to say, for they were terrified. Then a cloud overshadowed them, and from the cloud there came a voice, “This is my Son, the Beloved; listen to him!” Suddenly when they looked around, they saw no one with them any more, but only Jesus.

As they were coming down the mountain, he ordered them to tell no one about what they had seen, until after the Son of Man had risen from the dead. So they kept the matter to themselves, questioning what this rising from the dead could mean. Then they asked him, “Why do the scribes say that Elijah must come first?” He said to them, “Elijah is indeed coming first to restore all things. How then is it written about the Son of Man, that he is to go through many sufferings and be treated with contempt? But I tell you that Elijah has come, and they did to him whatever they pleased, as it is written about him.”

When they came to the disciples, they saw a great crowd around them, and some scribes arguing with them. When the whole crowd saw him, they were immediately overcome with awe, and they ran forward to greet him. He asked them, “What are you arguing about with them?” Someone from the crowd answered him, “Teacher, I brought you my son; he has a spirit that makes him unable to speak; and whenever it seize him, it dashes him down; and he foams and grinds his teeth and becomes rigid; and I asked your disciples to cast it out, but they could not do so.” He answered them, “You faithless generation, how much longer must I be among you? How much longer must I put up with you? Bring him to me.” And they brought the boy to him. When the spirit saw him, immediately it convulsed the boy, and he fell on the ground and rolled about, foaming at the mouth.
And he said, “From childhood. 22 It has often cast him into the fire and into the water, to destroy him; but if you are able to do anything, have pity on us and help us.” 23 Jesus said to him, “If you are able!—All things can be done for the one who believes.” 24 Im-m ediately the father of the child cried out, “I believe; help my unbelief!” 25 When Jesus saw that a crowd came running together, he rebuked the unclean spirit, saying to it, “You spirit that keeps this boy from speaking and hearing, I command you, come out of him, and never enter him again!” 26 After crying out and convulsing him terribly, it came out, and the boy was like a corpse, so that most of them said, “He is dead.” 27 But Jesus took him by the hand and lifted him up, and he was able to stand. 28 When he had entered the house, his disciples asked him privately, “Why could we not cast it out?” 29 He said to them, “This kind can come out only through prayer.”

30 They went on from there and passed through Galilee. He did not want anyone to know it; 31 for he was teaching his disciples, saying to them, “The Son of Man is to be betrayed into human hands, and they will kill him, and three days after being killed, he will rise again.” 32 But they did not understand what he was saying and were afraid to ask him.

33 Then they came to Capernaum; and when he was in the house he asked them, “What were you arguing about on the way?” 34 But they were silent, for on the way they had argued with one another who was the greatest. 35 He sat down, called the twelve, and said to them, “Whoever wants to be first must be last of all and servant of all.” 36 Then he took a little child and put it among them; and taking it in his arms, he said to them, 37 “Whoever welcomes one such child in my name welcomes me, and whoever welcomes me welcomes not me but the one who sent me.”

38 John said to him, “Teacher, we saw someone casting out demons in your name, and we tried to stop him, because he was not following us.” 39 But Jesus said, “Do not stop him; for no one who does a deed of power in my name will be able soon afterward to speak evil of me. 40 Whoever is not against us is for us. 41 For truly I tell you, whoever gives you a cup of water to drink because you bear the name of Christ will by no means lose the reward.

42 “If any of you put a stumbling block before one of these little ones who believe in me, d it would be better for you if a great millstone were hung around your neck and you were thrown into the sea. 43 If your hand causes you to stumble, cut it off; it is better for you to enter life maimed than to have two hands and to go to hell; to the unquenchable fire. 44 And if your foot causes you to stumble, cut it off; it is better for you to enter life lame than to have two feet and to be thrown into hell. 45 And if your eye causes you to stumble, tear it out; it is better for you to enter the kingdom of God with one eye than a Other ancient authorities add with tears

b Other ancient authorities add and fasting
c Other ancient authorities add who does not follow us d Other ancient authorities lack in me
e Gk Gehenna
f Verses 44 and 46 (which are identical with verse 48) are lacking in the best ancient authorities

9.30–37: Second announcement and misunderstanding (Mt 17.22–23; 18.1–5; Lk 9.43–48). Despite his teaching, again (see 8.31n.), that the Son of Man would be killed and rise again, the disciples still do not understand, as illustrated in their blithe discussion of who was the greatest. 36–37: A child was the lowest-status person in a household.

9.38–41: Unknown exorcist (Lk 9.49–50). An allusion to the story in Num 11.27–29. The movement is not to be defensive or controlling.

9.42–50: Warning on discipline (Mt 18.6–9; 5.29–30; 5.13; Lk 17.1–2; 14.34–35). A series of warnings on male sexual discipline, judging from references in rabbinic literature, beginning with sexual abuse of children. 43: Hand probably refers to prohibition of masturbation (See Mishnah Niddah 2.1). Hell, lit., “Gehenna,” the valley of the son of Hinnom (2 Kings 23.10; Jer 7.31), symbolizing the place of eternal punishment by fire. 45: Foot is a standard euphemism in Heb for the male genitals (Isa 6.2; 7.20), and there is probably double-entendre here.
to have two eyes and to be thrown into hell, where their worm never dies, and the fire is never quenched.

49 “For everyone will be salted with fire. Salt is good; but if salt has lost its saltiness, how can you season it? Have salt in yourselves, and be at peace with one another.”

10 Then he left that place and went to the region of Judea and beyond the Jordan. And crowds again gathered around him; and, as was his custom, he again taught them.

2 Some Pharisees came, and to test him they asked, “Is it lawful for a man to divorce his wife?” He answered them, “What did Moses command you?” They said, “Moses allowed a man to write a certificate of dismissal and to divorce her.” But Jesus said to them, “Because of your hardness of heart he wrote this commandment for you. But from the beginning of creation, ‘God made them male and female.’ For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh. Therefore what God has joined together, let no one separate.”

10 Then in the house the disciples asked him again about this matter. He said to them, “Whoever divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery against her; and if she divorces her husband and marries another, she commits adultery.”

13 People were bringing little children to him in order that he might touch them; and the disciples spoke sternly to them. But when Jesus saw this, he was indignant and said to them, “Let the little children come to me; do not stop them; for it is to such as these that the kingdom of God belongs. Truly I tell you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God as a little child will never enter it.” And he took them up in his arms, laid his hands on them, and blessed them.

17 As he was setting out on a journey, a man ran up and knelt before him, and asked him, “Good Teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life?” Jesus said to him, “Why do you call me good? No one is good but God alone. You know the commandments: ‘You shall not murder; You shall not commit adultery; You shall not steal; You shall not bear false witness; You shall not defraud; Honor your father and mother.’” He said to him, “Teacher, I have kept all these since my youth.” Jesus, looking at him, loved him and said, “You lack one thing; go, sell what you own, and give the money to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me.” When he heard this, he was shocked and went away grieving, for he had many possessions.

10.1–16: Marriage and children in the kingdom (Mt 19.1–15; Lk 18.15–17). 1: Jesus moves into Israelite territory beyond Galilee, now concentrating on teaching. 2–12: The first step in a series of covenantal instructions and exhortations focuses on (the commandment against) adultery (Ex 20.12; Deut 5.18), i.e., on marriage and divorce. 3–4: See Deut 24.1–4; Jer 3.8. 5–9: To the Pharisees’ focus on divorce as a male prerogative, Jesus insists upon the equality of marriage intended in the creation stories, Gen 1.27; 2.24. 10–12: Cf. Mt 5.31–32. The juxtaposition of vv. 2–9 and vv. 11–12 indicates that Jesus’ restrictive interpretation of the commandment against adultery, allowing divorce but prohibiting remarriage, was grounded in creation. Jesus’ formulation with both the man and the woman as active agents stands in contrast to the ancient assumption that adultery was an offense against the husband. 13–16: Not an idealization of childhood. Against the disciples’ restriction of access to Jesus and his movement, Jesus uses children, who occupied the lowest status in society, as a symbol for how one should receive the kingdom.

10.17–31: Egalitarian economic relations in the kingdom (Mt 19.16–30; Lk 18.18–30). An exhortation for egalitarian covenantal economic relations. 17: The man’s address is flattering and his question unusual for Mark, in which the common people have more concrete concerns. 19: Recitation of covenantal commandments, Ex 20.12–16, adding defraud. 21–22: Jesus’ test exposes the man as adamantly attached to his wealth, which (from the covenantal viewpoint) he might have gained by defrauding peasants by charging interest on loans, etc., Then Jesus looked around and said to his disciples, “How hard it will be for those who have wealth to enter the kingdom of God!” But the disciples were perplexed at these words. And Jesus said to them again, “Children, how hard it is for someone who is rich to enter the kingdom of God! It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for someone who is rich to enter the kingdom of God.” They were greatly astounded and said to one another, “For mortals it is impossible, but not for God; for God all things are possible.”

Peter began to say to him, “Look, we have left everything and followed you.” Jesus said, “Truly I tell you, there is no one who has left house or brothers or sisters or mother or father or children or fields, for my sake and for the sake of the good news, who will not receive a hundredfold now in this age—houses, brothers and sisters, mothers and children, and fields, with persecutions—and in the age to come eternal life. But many who are first will be last, and the last will be first.”

They were on the road, going up to Jerusalem, and Jesus was walking ahead of them; they were amazed, and those who followed were afraid. He took the twelve aside again and began to tell them what was to happen to him, saying, “See, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of Man will be handed over to the chief priests and the scribes, and they will condemn him to death; then they will hand him over to the Gentiles; they will mock him, and spit upon him, and fling him, and kill him; and after three days he will rise again.”

James and John, the sons of Zebedee, came forward to him and said to him, “Teacher, we want you to do for us whatever we ask of you.” And he said to them, “What is it you want me to do for you?” And they said to him, “Grant us to sit, one at your right hand and one at your left, in your glory.” But Jesus said to them, “You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink the cup that I drink, or be baptized with the baptism that I am baptized with?” They replied, “We are able.” Then Jesus said to them, “The cup that I drink you will drink; and with the baptism with which I am baptized, you will be baptized; but to sit at my right hand or at my left is not mine to grant, but it is for those for whom it has been prepared.”

When the ten heard this, they began to be angry with James and John. So Jesus thus also violating the commandment against stealing. 23–25: Jesus consolidates the point just illustrated with a little proverbial peasant humor: It is impossible for a rich person to enter the kingdom of God. 26–27: Jesus’ reply to the disciples’ incomprehension, although precisely how it connects with the previous discussion is unclear. 28–31: To Peter’s anxious plea, Jesus’ reply is serious about the concrete restoration (houses, fields, families) but teasingly facetious as well. The obvious exaggeration about the degree is canceled out by the persecutions, and the promise of eternal life in the age to come is a throw-away line mocking the rich man’s concern (v. 17).

10.32–45: Egalitarian social-political relations in the kingdom and the third announcement and misunderstanding (Mt 20.17–28; Lk 18.31–34, 22.24–27). Mark uses Jesus’ third explanation to the disciples that the Son of Man will be condemned, killed, and rise again (see 8.31n.), combined with the disciples’ stubborn misunderstanding, as a foil for exhortation on egalitarian social-political relations in the movement and its communities. 32–34: The tone becomes ominous as they head toward Jerusalem and the climax of Jesus’ escalating conflict with the rulers there, as explicitly dramatized in the details added to this third announcement of his destiny there. 35–37: James and John’s request indicates that they have completely misunderstood Jesus’ mission and movement as well as refused to hear what Jesus has repeatedly told them. 38–40: They claim they are prepared to follow the path of Jesus into martyrdom for the cause, which he promises will happen. But he rejects their request as presumptuous. On the metaphor of cup, see 14.24,36; Isa 51.17; Lam 4.21. 41–45: The request for positions of power and privilege results in conflict among the disciples. But in contrast to the imperial practices of the nations, there will be no rulers in Jesus’ movement or communities. Rather, would-be leaders must take called them and said to them, “You know that among the Gentiles those whom they recognize as their rulers lord it over them, and their great ones are tyrants over them. But it is not so among you; but whoever wishes to become great among you must be your servant, 44 and whoever wishes to be first among you must be slave of all. 45 For the Son of Man came not to be served but to serve, and to give his life a ransom for many.”

46 They came to Jericho. As he and his disciples and a large crowd were leaving Jericho, Bartimaeus son of Timaeus, a blind beggar, was sitting by the roadside. 47 When he heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to shout out and say, “Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!” 48 Many sternly ordered him to be quiet; but he cried out even more loudly, “Son of David, have mercy on me!” 49 Jesus stood still and said, “Call him here.” And they called the blind man, saying to him, “Take heart; get up, he is calling you.” 50 So throwing off his cloak, he sprang up and came to Jesus. 51 Then Jesus said to him, “What do you want me to do for you?” The blind man said to him, “My teacher, let me see again.” 52 Jesus said to him, “Go; your faith has made you well.” Immediately he regained his sight and followed him on the way.

11 When they were approaching Jerusalem, at Bethphage and Bethany, near the Mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples 2 and said to them, “Go into the village ahead of you, and immediately as you enter it, you will find tied there a colt that has never been ridden; untie it and bring it. 3 If anyone says to you, ‘Why are you doing this?’ just say this, ‘The Lord needs it and will send it back here immediately.’” 4 They went away and found a colt tied near a door, outside in the street. As they were untying it, 5 some of the bystanders said to them, “What are you doing, untying the colt?” 6 They told them what Jesus had said; and they allowed them to take it. 7 Then they brought the colt to Jesus and threw their cloaks on it; and he sat on it. 8 Many people spread their cloaks on the road, and others spread leafy branches that they had cut in the fields. 9 Then those who went ahead and those who followed were shouting, “Hosanna! Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord! 10 Blessed is the coming kingdom of our ancestor David! Hosanna in the highest heaven!”

a Aramaic Rabbouni
Then he entered Jerusalem and went into the temple; and when he had looked around at everything, as it was already late, he went out to Bethany with the twelve. On the following day, when they came from Bethany, he was hungry. Seeing in the distance a fig tree in leaf, he went to see whether perhaps he would find anything on it. When he came to it, he found nothing but leaves, for it was not the season for figs. He said to it, “May no one ever eat fruit from you again.” And his disciples heard it. Then they came to Jerusalem. And he entered the temple and began to drive out those who were selling and those who were buying in the temple, and he overturned the tables of the money changers and the seats of those who sold doves; and he would not allow anyone to carry anything through the temple. He was teaching and saying, “Is it not written, ‘My house shall be called a house of prayer for all the nations’? But you have made it a den of robbers.”

And when the chief priests and the scribes heard it, they kept looking for a way to kill him; for they were afraid of him, because the whole crowd was spellbound by his teaching. And when evening came, Jesus and his disciples went out of the city. In the morning as they passed by, they saw the fig tree withered away to its roots. Then Peter remembered and said to him, “Rabbi, look! The fig tree that you cursed has withered.” Jesus answered them, “Have faith in God. Truly I tell you, if you say to this mountain, ‘Be taken up and thrown into the sea,’ and if you do not doubt in your heart, but believe that what you say will come to pass, it will be done for you. So I tell you, whatever you ask for in prayer, believe that you have received it, and it will be yours.

Whenever you stand praying, forgive, if you have anything against anyone; so that if you have anything against anyone; so that the hope of Israel’s future restoration and independence led by the anointed “son of David,” as in Bartimaeus’s repeated cry in 10.48–49 that just preceded the demonstration. On the temple, see 11.12–25n. Looked around, after the messianic demonstration in seeming anticipation of the restoration of Israel, Jesus enters Jerusalem, but only to reconnoiter before launching his aggressive face-off with the rulers the next day.

11.12–25 [26]: Prophetic demonstration against the Temple (Mt 21.12–13,18–22; Lk 19.45–48). Mark again sandwiches one story into another (cf. 3.19b–35; 5.21–43), framing the prophetic demonstration against the Temple with the cursing of the fig tree (which is bearing no fruit), a figure for God’s judgment in Israelite tradition (e.g., Isa 34.4; Jer 5.17). The temple in Jerusalem was the political-economic center of power as well as the sanctuary where the priests offered sacrifices to God. Supported by the tithes and offerings of the people, it had been rebuilt. In 20 bce Herod the Great had mounted a massive rebuilding of the Temple into a vast complex of colonnades and shops as well as a center of Jewish pilgrimage and one of the wonders of the Roman imperial world. Jesus took forcible action against the sellers and buyers in the large Court of the Gentiles, the principal open public space in Jerusalem, where anyone—including non-Israelites—could go. Commerce, including moneychanging, was necessary in connection with sacrifices and offerings in the semi-monetarized Temple economy. Quoting Isa 56.7, and Jeremiah’s prophecy against the first Temple (Jer 7.11), Jesus interprets his action as a prophetic demonstration of God’s condemnation of the Temple. Den of robbers is better translated “bandits’ stronghold,” conveying more the original sense in Jeremiah that the rulers plunder the people like bandits and then seek refuge in the Temple. In response to Jesus’ prophetic demonstration, the Jerusalem rulers intensify the long-standing scheme to kill him, known since 3.6. In preindustrial cities, rulers had to worry at festival times about touching off mob action by taking repressive measures against agitators, as indicated in 14.1–2. But Jesus and his disciples strategically withdraw from the city at evening. This astounding statement about the mount of the Temple upon which Jesus has just demonstrated God’s condemnation says, in effect, to trust God to do what has been prophesied. Early manuscripts omit v. 26, as does the NRSV translation. If original to Mark, it establishes mutual forgiveness (as in the Lord’s Prayer, Lk 11.2–4) as the focus of prayer, now that the Temple, the official site for prayer and for obtaining divine forgiveness (see Lev 6.7), stands under God’s condemnation.
your Father in heaven may also forgive you your trespasses."a

27 Again they came to Jerusalem. As he was walking in the temple, the chief priests, the scribes, and the elders came to him 28 and said, “By what authority are you doing these things? Who gave you this authority to do them?”

29 Jesus said to them, “I will ask you one question; answer me, and I will tell you by what authority I do these things. 30 Did the baptism of John come from heaven, or was it of human origin? Answer me.” 31 They argued with one another, “If we say, ‘From heaven,’ he will say, ‘Why then did you not believe him?’ 32 But shall we say, ‘Of human origin’?”—they were afraid of the crowd, for all regarded John as truly a prophet. 33 So they answered Jesus, “We do not know.” And Jesus said to them, “Neither will I tell you by what authority I am doing these things.”

Then he began to speak to them in parables. “A man planted a vineyard, put a fence around it, dug a pit for the wine press, and built a watchtower; then he leased it to tenants and went to another country. 2 When the season came, he sent a slave to the tenants to collect from them his share of the produce of the vineyard. 3 But they seized him, and beat him, and sent him away empty-handed. 4 And again he sent another slave to them; this one they beat over the head and insulted. 5 Then he sent another, and that one they killed. And so it was with many others; some they beat, and others they killed. 6 He had still one other, a beloved son. Finally he sent him to them, saying, “They will respect my son.” 7 But those tenants said to one another, ‘This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and the inheritance will be ours.’ 8 So they seized him, killed him, and threw him out of the vineyard. 9 What then will the owner of the vineyard do? He will come and destroy the tenants and give the vineyard to others.

10 Have you not read this scripture: ‘The stone that the builders rejected has become the cornerstone; b

11 this was the Lord’s doing, and it is amazing in our eyes’?” 12 When they realized that he had told this parable against them, they wanted to arrest him, but they feared the crowd. So they left him and went away.

13 Then they sent to him some Pharisees and some Herodians to trap him in what

11.27–33: Jesus’ authority (Mt 21.23–27; Lk 20.1–8; cf. Jn 2.18–22). The first in a series of sharp charges and countercharges in the escalating conflict between Jesus and the Roman-backed Jewish priestly rulers and their representatives. 27–28: The chief priests, the scribes, and the elders, authorized presumably by God as well as imperial Rome, challenge Jesus on the authority by which he acts and speaks, referring to the confrontation regarding “authority and power” with which the whole gospel story began in 1.22–28. 29–30: In his counter question Jesus cleverly entraps them and exposes their lack of authority among the people, while avoiding any statement that might seem to justify his seizure by them.

12.1–12: Parable of the vineyard (Mt 21.33–46; Lk 20.9–19). Building on the traditional image of Israel as the vineyard of God in Isa 5.1–7, Jesus tells a parable that invites listeners to see the chief priests, who were themselves absentee landlords of estates with tenant labor, as tenants of God’s vineyard. It also resonated with the resentment of indebted peasants who feared nothing more than becoming such share-cropping tenants on their own ancestral land and would have reveled at such role-reversal. In Mark the parable virtually passes over into allegory, with the landlord’s “slaves” being analogous to the prophets God sent to “tenants” to demand the fruit of justice, and the beloved son clearly being Jesus himself, as in 1.11 and 9.7, and the rejected stone becoming the cornerstone (citing Ps 118.22–23) of the new political-religious order that will replace the Temple establishment.

12.13–17: Paying taxes to the emperor (Mt 22.15–22; Lk 20.9–26). As in 3.6, the representatives of both the Jerusalem priestly establishment and Herod Antipas’s regime conspire to entrap Jesus into giving some pretext to arrest and kill him. 14: They preface the entrapping question with heavy, insincere flattery. Is it lawful to pay taxes to the emperor? A genuine dilemma. In the strict adherence to the covenantal law (commandment) of Moses, supposedly advocated by the Pharisees themselves, it was not lawful because God was their exclusive sovereign. Yet the Romans treated nonpayment of tribute as rebellion. Some decades earlier the teacher Judas and he said. 14 And they came and said to him, “Teacher, we know that you are sincere, and show deference to no one; for you do not regard people with partiality, but teach the way of God in accordance with truth. Is it lawful to pay taxes to the emperor, or not? 15 Should we pay them, or should we not?” But knowing their hypocrisy, he said to them, “Why are you putting me to the test? Bring me a denarius and let me see it.” 16 And they brought one. Then he said to them, “Whose head is this, and whose title?” They answered, “The emperor’s.” 17 Jesus said to them, “Give to the emperor the things that are the emperor’s, and to God the things that are God’s.” And they were utterly amazed at him.

18 Some Sadducees, who say there is no resurrection, came to him and asked him a question, saying, 19 “Teacher, Moses wrote for us that if a man’s brother dies, leaving a wife but no child, the man shall marry the widow and raise up children for his brother. 20 There were seven brothers; the first married and, when he died, left no children; 21 and the second married the widow and died, leaving no children; and the third likewise; 22 none of the seven left children. Last of all the woman herself died. 23 In the resurrection whose wife will she be? For the seven had married her.

24 Jesus said to them, “Is not this the reason you are wrong, that you know neither the scriptures nor the power of God? 25 For when they rise from the dead, they neither marry nor are given in marriage, but are like angels in heaven. 26 And as for the dead being raised, have you not read in the book of Moses, in the story about the bush, how God said to him, ‘I am the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?’ 27 He is God not of the dead, but of the living; you are quite wrong.”

28 One of the scribes came near and heard them disputing with one another, and seeing that he answered them well, he asked him, “Which commandment is the first of all?” 29 Jesus answered, “The first is, ‘Hear, O Israel: the Lord our God, the Lord is one; 30 you shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind, and with all your strength.’ 31 The second is this, ‘You shall love your neighbor as yourself.’ There is no other commandment greater than these.” 32 Then the scribe said to him, “You are right, Teacher; you have truly said that ‘he is one, and besides him there is no other’; 33 and ‘to love one’s neighbor as oneself,’—this is much more important than all whole burnt offerings and sacrifices.” 34 When Jesus saw that he answered wisely, he said to him, “You are not..."
far from the kingdom of God.” After that no one dared to ask him any question.

35 While Jesus was teaching in the temple, he said, “How can the scribes say that the Messiah is the son of David? 36 David himself, by the Holy Spirit, declared, ‘The Lord said to my Lord, “Sit at my right hand, until I put your enemies under your feet.”’

37 David himself calls him Lord; so how can he be his son?” And the large crowd was listening to him with delight.

38 As he taught, he said, “Beware of the scribes, who like to walk around in long robes, and to be greeted with respect in the marketplaces, and to have the best seats in the synagogues and places of honor at banquets! 39 They devour widows’ houses and for the sake of appearance say long prayers. They will receive the greater condemnation.”

40 He sat down opposite the treasury, and watched the crowd putting money into the treasury. Many rich people put in large sums. 41 A poor widow came and put in two small copper coins, which are worth a penny. 42 Then he called his disciples and said to them, “Truly I tell you, this poor widow has put in more than all those who are contributing to the treasury. 43 For all of them have contributed out of their abundance; but she out of her poverty has put in everything she had, all she had to live on.”

13 As he came out of the temple, one of his disciples said to him, “Look, Teacher, what large stones and what large buildings!” Then Jesus asked him, “Do you see these great buildings? Not one stone will be left here upon another; all will be thrown down.”

3 When he was sitting on the Mount of Olives opposite the temple, Peter, James, John, and Andrew asked him privately. 4 “Tell us, when will this be, and what will be the sign that all these things are about to be accomplished?” 5 Then Jesus began to say to them, “Beware that no one leads you astray. 6 Many will come in my name and say, ‘I am he!’ and they will lead many astray. 7 When you hear of wars and rumors of wars, do not sacrifices at the Temple, from which he draws his living. 34: The scribe does not “resign” his position, and Jesus does not invite him into the movement. Jesus has outmaneuvered all segments of the Temple establishment in the series of attacks and counterattacks from 11.27.

12.35–37: How can the messiah be David’s son? (Mt 22.41–46; Lk 20.41–44). This passage constitutes a rejection of any triumphalist restoration of the Davidic state (which Bartimaeus and the shouts of the crowd may have suggested; see 10.47–48n.; 11.10), reciting one of the imperial Davidic psalms (Ps 110.1) in the refutation.

12.38–44: Beware of the scribes (Mt 23.1,6; Lk 20.45–47; 21.1–4; 11.43; 14.7–11). 38–40: Condemnation of the scribes, moving from their craving for honor to a concrete example of their exploitation of the poor. Widows’ houses refers to all their inheritance and resources. 41–44: Illustrates how the scribes “devour widow’s houses”: by inducing them to give their meager resources to the Temple. For this “they will receive the greater condemnation” (v. 40), confirmed by the immediately ensuing prophecy of the destruction of the Temple which they serve (13.1–2).

13.1–2: Destruction of Jerusalem and the Temple (Mt 24.1–3; Lk 21.5–7). This section of the Gospel, which began with Jesus’ prophetic demonstration against the Temple (11.15–17), ends with his prophecy of its destruction—also implicating those whose base of power it constituted.

13.3–37: Exhortation not to be distracted from the movement by distressing events (Mt 24.3–36; Lk 21.7–36). Jesus’ second speech uses prophetic and apocalyptic motifs in order to caution against an apocalyptic interpretation of historical crises of resistance, repression, and reconquest under Roman imperial rule, but to remain disciplined and vigilant in the struggle, despite persecution. The Israelite prophetic and Judean revelatory traditions are framed, balanced, and interpreted by the exhortation in vv. 5–6,9–13, and 28–37, particularly by the carefully positioned and repeated “beware/ be alert” in vv. 5,9,23,33. Judging from v. 14, these paragraphs must be written from a viewpoint outside both Jerusalem and Judea. 3: Addressed through Peter and other disciples to the whole movement. 4: Despite this apparent link with the destruction of the Temple just prophesied in v. 2, nothing in the rest of ch 13 implies that the events prophesied have anything to do with Jerusalem. 6: / be alarmed; this must take place, but the end is still to come. For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; there will be earthquakes in various places; there will be famines. This is but the beginning of the birth pangs.

9 “As for yourselves, beware; for they will hand you over to councils; and you will be beaten in synagogues; and you will stand before governors and kings because of me, as a testimony to them. And the good news must first be proclaimed to all nations. 10 When they bring you to trial and hand you over, do not worry beforehand about what you are to say; but say whatever is given you at that time, for it is not you who speak, but the Holy Spirit. 12 Brother will betray brother to death, and a father his child, and children will rise against parents and have them put to death; 13 and you will be hated by all because of my name. But the one who endures to the end will be saved.

14 “But when you see the desolating sacrilege set up where it ought not to be (let the reader understand), then those in Judea must flee to the mountains; 15 the one on the housetop must not go down or enter the house to take anything away; 16 the one in the field must not turn back to get a coat. 17 Woe to those who are pregnant and to those who are nursing infants in those days! 18 Pray that it may not be in winter. 19 For in those days there will be suffering, such as has not been from the beginning of the creation that God created until now, no, and never will be.

20 And if the Lord had not cut short those days, no one would be saved; but for the sake of the elect, whom he chose, he has cut short those days. 21 And if anyone says to you at that time, ‘Look! Here is the Messiah!’ or ‘Look! There he is!’—do not believe it. 22 False messiahs and false prophets will appear and produce signs and omens, to lead astray, if possible, the elect. 23 But be alert; I have already told you everything.

24 “But in those days, after that suffering, the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give its light, 25 and the stars will be falling from heaven, and the powers in the heavens will be shaken.

26 Then they will see ‘the Son of Man coming in clouds’ with great power and glory. 27 Then he will send out the angels, and gather his elect from the four winds, from the ends of the earth to the ends of heaven. 28 “From the fig tree learn its lesson: as soon as its branch becomes tender and puts forth its leaves, you know that summer is near. 29 So also, when you see these things taking place, you know that he is near, at the very gates. 30 Truly I tell you, this generation will not pass away until all these things have taken place. 31 Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

a Gk gospel
b Or the Christ
c Or christs
d Or it
32 “But about that day or hour no one knows, neither the angels in heaven, nor the Son, but only the Father. 33 Beware, keep alert; 4 for you do not know when the time will come. 34 It is like a man going on a journey, when he leaves home and puts his slaves in charge, each with his work, and commands the doorkeeper to be on the watch. 35 Therefore, keep awake—for you do not know when the master of the house will come, in the evening, or at midnight, or at cockcrow, or at dawn, 36 or else he may find you asleep when he comes suddenly. 37 And what I say to you I say to all: Keep awake.”

14 It was two days before the Passover and the festival of Unleavened Bread. The chief priests and the scribes were looking for a way to arrest Jesus 2 by stealth and kill him; 3 for they said, “Not during the festival, or there may be a riot among the people.” 3 While he was at Bethany in the house of Simon the leper, 4 as he sat at the table, a woman came with an alabaster jar of very costly ointment of nard, and she broke open the jar and poured the ointment on his head. 4 But some were there who said to one another in anger, “Why was the ointment wasted in this way? 5 For this ointment could have been sold for more than three hundred denarii, 6 and the money given to the poor.” And they scolded her. 6 But Jesus said, “Let her alone; why do you trouble her? She has performed a good service for me. 7 For you always have the poor with you, and you can show kindness to them whenever you wish; but you will not always have me. 8 She has done what she could; she has anointed my body beforehand for its burial. 9 Truly I tell you, wherever the good news 10 is proclaimed in the whole world, what she has done will be told in remembrance of her.” 10 Then Judas Iscariot, who was one of the twelve, went to the chief priests in order to betray him to them. 11 When they heard it, they were greatly pleased, and promised to give him money. So he began to look for an opportunity to betray him. 12 On the first day of Unleavened Bread, when the Passover lamb is sacrificed, his disciples said to him, “Where do you want us to go and make the preparations for you to eat the Passover?” 13 So he sent two of his disciples, saying to them, “Go into the city, and a man carrying a jar of water will meet you; follow him, 14 and wherever he enters, say to the owner of the house, ‘The Teacher asks, Where is my guest room where I may eat the Passover with my disciples?’ 15 He will show you a large room upstairs, furnished and ready. Make preparations for us there.” 16 So the disciples set out and went to the city, and found everything as he had told them; and they prepared the Passover meal.

Isa 51.6; 40.8. 32–37: Since no one knows precisely when the crisis will be resolved, they must simply maintain discipline and Keep awake.

14.1–15.47: Jesus’ death as martyr-messiah (Mt 26.1–27.66; Lk 22.1–23.56; Jn 18.1–19.42). 1–2: Passover and the festival of Unleavened Bread, in March/April, celebrated Israel’s deliverance from foreign rule in ancient Egypt. Repressive actions by rulers repeatedly touched off massive protest demonstrations at Passover. The concern of the Jerusalem rulers and their representatives to kill Jesus, signaled in 3.6 and indicated again in 11.18 and 12.12, finally focuses on a specific plot.

14.3–8: Anointing for burial (Mt 26.6–13; Jn 12.1–8). As a prophet had poured oil on the head of (anointed, made a messiah of) David and other popular kings leading Israel, so a woman . . . poured ointment on Jesus’ head, but to prepare his body for burial. In reply to strenuous objections, Jesus recognizes what she has done as part of the gospel itself. 3: Nard was imported from the Himalayan mountains.

14.10–11: Anticipation of betrayal (Mt 26.14–16; Lk 22.3–6). It is from within the twelve, representatives of the renewed Israel, that the betrayal comes.

14.12–25: The Last Supper (Mt 26.17–29; Lk 22.7–20). 12–16: Just as the chief priests and scribes had resorted to covert means “to arrest Jesus by stealth” (14.1), so Jesus and his disciples are now operating covertly, “underground,” as indicated by Jesus’ instructions for discreet movement inside the city and the carefully planned
17 When it was evening, he came with the twelve. 18 And when they had taken their places and were eating, Jesus said, “Truly I tell you, one of you will betray me, one who is eating with me.” 19 They began to be distressed and to say to one another, “Surely, not I?” 20 He said to them, “It is one of the twelve, one who is dipping bread into the bowl with me. 21 For the Son of Man goes as it is written of him, but woe to that one by whom the Son of Man is betrayed! It would have been better for that one not to have been born.”

22 While they were eating, he took a loaf of bread, and after blessing it he broke it, gave it to them, and said, “Take; this is my body.” 23 Then he took a cup, and after giving thanks he gave it to them, and all of them drank from it. 24 He said to them, “This is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many.

25 Truly I tell you, I will never again drink of the fruit of the vine until that day when I drink it new in the kingdom of God.” 26 When they had sung the hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives. 27 And Jesus said to them, “You will all become deserters; for it is written, ‘I will strike the shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered.’

28 But after I am raised up, I will go before you to Galilee.” 29 Peter said to him, “Even though all become deserters, I will not.” 30 Jesus said to him, “Truly I tell you, this day, this very night, before the cock crows twice, you will deny me three times.” 31 But he said vehemently, “Even though I must die with you, I will not deny you.” And all of them said the same.

32 They went to a place called Gethsemane; and he said to his disciples, “Sit here while I pray.” 33 He took with him Peter and James and John, and began to be distressed and agitated. 34 And he said to them, “I am deeply grieved, even to death; remain here, and keep awake.” 35 And going a little farther, he threw himself on the ground and prayed that, if it were possible, the hour might pass from him. 36 He said, “Abba, Father, for you all things are possible; remove this cup from me; yet, not what I want, but what you want.” 37 He came and found them sleeping; and he said to Peter, “Simon, are you asleep? Could you not keep awake one hour?” 38 Keep awake and pray that you may not come into the time of trial; the spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak.” 39 And again he went away and prayed, saying the same words. 40 And once more he came and found them sleeping, for their eyes were very heavy; and they did not know what to say to him. 41 He came a third time and said to them, “Are you still sleeping and taking your rest? Enough! The hour has signal of a man carrying a jar of water (a task that a woman would usually have performed). 18: Cf. Ps 41.9. 20: Dipping bread into the bowl with me, the common meal was the most intimate form of fellowship. 22–25: Mt 26.26–29; Lk 22.15–20; 1 Cor 11.23–26. Jesus’ words at the Last Supper became the words of institution of the regularly celebrated Lord’s Supper. 22: My body, without “for you” as in 1 Cor 11.24, clearly a collective symbol of the community. 24: My blood of the covenant, thus renewing the covenant between God and the people, alluding to the covenant ceremony on Sinai (Ex 24.4–8). For many, see Isa 53.12. 25: The Supper is eaten in anticipation of celebrating it new in the kingdom of God, whereas in 1 Cor 11.25–26 it is eaten also in memory.

14.26–52: Agony and betrayal in Gethsemane (Mt 26.30–56; Lk 22.31–53). Jesus’ prediction of the disciples’ desertion and their actual desertion frames his agonized prayer over his impending martyrdom and his enemies’ surreptitious seizure of him. 26: The Passover ended with the singing of Pss 115–118. 27: Zech 13.7; Jn 16.32. See 6.34n. 28: Although the disciples are all about to desert, the movement will continue as Jesus will go back to Galilee after his martyr’s death; see 16.7. 29–31: Cf. 8.34; 14.66–72; Jn 13.36–38; 18.15–18,25–27. 32: Gethsemane, meaning “garden of oil,” was an olive orchard or “garden” (Jn 18.1) on the slope of the Mount of Olives just east of Jerusalem. 33–35: Distressed and agitated . . . deeply grieved, even to death . . . threw himself on the ground. The language and action are very strong, v. 34 echoing Pss 42.5,11; 43.5. 36: Abba, Aramaic for “father” (see 5.41n.). This cup, refers to both vv. 23–24 and 10.39, implicating the disciples, especially James and John. 37–41: The disciples are utterly incapable of doing what Jesus had emphasized in teaching about future crises; see 13.35–37.
come; the Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners. 42 Get up, let us be going. See, my betrayer is at hand.”

43 Immediately, while he was still speaking, Judas, one of the twelve, arrived; and with him there was a crowd with swords and clubs, from the chief priests, the scribes, and the elders. 44 Now the betrayer had given them a sign, saying, “The one I will kiss is the man; arrest him and lead him away under guard.” 45 So when he came, he went up to him at once and said, “Rabbi!” and kissed him. 46 Then they laid hands on him and arrested him. 47 But one of those who stood near drew his sword and struck the slave of him.

50 When they had seized Jesus, they led him away to the house of Caiphas the high priest, where the chief priests and the scribes were assembled. 54 Peter had followed him at a distance, right into the courtyard of the high priest; and he was sitting with the guards, warming himself at the fire. 55 Now the chief priests and the whole council were looking for testimony against Jesus to put him to death; but they found none. 58 For many gave false testimony against him, and their testimony did not agree. 57 Some stood up and gave false testimony against him, saying, “We heard him say, ‘I will destroy this temple that is made with hands, and in three days I will build another, not made with hands.’” 59 But even on this point their testimony did not agree.

60 Then the high priest stood up before them and asked Jesus, “Have you no answer? What is it that they testify against you?” 61 But he was silent and did not answer. Again the high priest asked him, “Are you the Messiah, the Son of the Blessed One?” 62 Jesus said, “I am; and you will see the Son of Man seated at the right hand of the Power,’ and ‘coming with the clouds of heaven.’” 63 Then the high priest tore his clothes and said, “Why do we still need witnesses? You have heard his blasphemy! What is your 43–50: Emphasis is on the excessive force used by the Jerusalem rulers in their covert action to capture Jesus, as if Jesus were a violent bandit-chieftain. Jesus mocks their reluctance simply to seize him when he had been teaching in the Temple courtyard, which betrays their lack of “authority” and their political impotence with the people. 45: Rabbi, see 9.5–6n. 47: In contrast to Mt 26.52–53, Lk 22.51, and Jn 18.10–11, Jesus in Mark does not rebuke the spontaneous violent response by one of those who stood near (not necessarily a disciple, although identified as Peter in Jn 18.10). 49: Let the scriptures be fulfilled, Jesus’ arrest, trial, and death in particular proceed “as written” in the scripture (v. 21,27; etc.): fulfilled, only here and 1.15, marks a highly significant point in the overall gospel story. 51–52: Young man . . . naked, presumably symbolic in the narrative, of the disciples now standing exposed as unfaithful deserters and of Jesus as defenseless before the rulers. The “young man” appears once more in the narrative in 16.5–7.

14.53–72: Jesus condemned by chief priests and council and Peter’s denial (Mt 26.57–75; Lk 22.54–71). Jesus is condemned twice, first by the ruling chief priest and council, then by the Roman governor. While the accounts are integral parts of the Gospel, not historical transcripts, they have historical plausibility against the background of Roman imperial rule in Judea. 53: Convening the council at night would have been highly unusual, but by this point due process was hardly a concern of the Jerusalem rulers. 55–59: Although Jesus had been speaking and acting in public (see v. 49), the council had no witnesses with credible testimony to justify his execution. The false testimony appears to be a confusing parody of Jesus’ prophetic condemnation of the Temple and his renewal of Israel (the “house of God” “not made with hands?”) in opposition to the Temple (the “house of God” “made with hands?”). 61–62: The Messiah, it is unclear whether this is a charge. “I am” would be an uncharacteristic answer for Jesus (but see 6.50n.). It stands in sharp contrast with his answer to Pilate in 15.2: “You say so,” and both Mt 26.64 and Lk 22.70 have “You say (that I am),” which suggests that Mk 14.62 also originally read “You say so” or “Am I?” But in immediately confessing the Son of Man . . . coming with the clouds of heaven (quoting Dan 7.13 and Ps 110.1), Jesus gives the high priest all he needs for condemnation. 63–64:
decision?" All of them condemned him as deserving death. 65 Some began to spit on him, to blindfold him, and to strike him, saying to him, “Prophecy!” The guards also took him over and beat him. 66 While Peter was below in the courtyard, one of the servant-girls of the high priest came by. 67 When she saw Peter warming himself, she stared at him and said, “You also were with Jesus, the man from Nazareth.” 68 But he denied it, saying, “I do not know or understand what you are talking about.” And he went out into the forecourt. 69 Then the cock crowed. 70 And the servant-girl, on seeing him, began again to say to the bystanders, “This man is one of them.” But again he denied it. Then after a little while the bystanders again said to Peter, “Certainly you are one of them; for you are a Galilean.” 71 But he began to curse, and he swore an oath, “I do not know this man you are talking about.” 72 At that moment the cock crowed for the second time. Then Peter remembered that Jesus had said to him, “Before the cock crows twice, you will deny me three times.” And he broke down and wept.

As soon as it was morning, the chief priests held a consultation with the elders and scribes and the whole council. They bound Jesus, led him away, and handed him over to Pilate. 2 Pilate asked him, “Are you the King of the Jews?” He answered him, “You say so.” 3 Then the chief priests accused him of many things. 4 Pilate asked him again, “Have you no answer? See how many charges they bring against you.” 5 But Jesus made no further reply, so that Pilate was amazed. 6 Now at the festival he used to release a prisoner for them, anyone for whom they asked. 7 Now a man called Barabbas was in prison with the rebels who had committed murder during the insurrection. 8 So the crowd came and began to ask Pilate to do for them according to his custom. 9 Then he answered them, “Do you want me to release for you the King of the Jews?” 10 For he realized that it was out of jealousy that the chief priests had handed him over. 11 But the chief priests stirred up the crowd to have him release Barabbas for them instead. 12 Pilate spoke to them again, “Then what do you wish me to do with the

---

Blasphemy would presumably refer to the confession of being the Son of Man, rather than his threat against the Temple. For the prescribed punishment, see Lev 24.16. See also 2.7. 66–72: Cf. v. 54. Peter’s denial of Jesus is juxtaposed to and simultaneous with Jesus’ confession and condemnation. Even the servants of the high priest share the prejudice against and contempt of Galileans such as Jesus, “the man from Nazareth,” and Peter. 71: Peter’s third denial is very strong language. I do not know this man had double meaning: As indicated repeatedly throughout the Gospel, Peter indeed does not understand who Jesus is and what he is doing. 72: See v. 30.

15.1–15: Jesus condemned by Pilate (Mt 27.1–2,11–26; Lk 23.1–5,18–25; Jn 18.28–40; 19.4–16). The second trial, before the Roman governor Pilate (26–37 ce). 1: This further consultation suggests that the specific charge(s) against Jesus were still not clear, and that this continued in the hearing before Pilate (v. 3). 2: It is the Roman governor who defines the charge as one of indigenous kingship in potential insurrection against the Roman order. The formulation of the question is that of outsiders to Israel, who viewed Galileans and others subject to Herodian rulers as “Judeans.” It is surely significant also that the title King of the Jews (i.e., Judeans) occurs only in speech by Pilate or the Roman soldiers and the inscription on the cross presumably placed there by Pilate’s order, in vv. 2,9,12,18,26, in contrast with “the Messiah, the King of Israel,” used by the chief priests and scribes in v. 32. Thus Jesus’ answer: “That is what you say.” 4–5: As in 14.60–61, Jesus is just “above it all,” or is deliberately refusing to cooperate in his own interrogation. 6–15: There is no evidence outside the New Testament of such a custom by Roman governors of Judea generally. Mark does not in any way suggest that “the Jews” demanded Jesus’ death. The crowd is stirred up by the chief priests. Infamous in sources outside the New Testament for his tough stance, provocations, and violence as Roman governor, Pilate is portrayed here as an experienced imperial official who understands both that Jesus is politically more dangerous to the Roman order than an anti-imperial assassin and how to mollify the crowd while manipulating them into a choice. On crucifixion as the intensely imperial Roman form of torture and execution for provincial rebels, see 8.34n. Beating was standard treatment of political prisoners, whether they were to be executed or not.
man you call the King of the Jews?” ¹³ They shouted back, “Crucify him!” ¹⁴ Pilate asked them, “Why, what evil has he done?” But they shouted all the more, “Crucify him!” ¹⁵ So Pilate, wishing to satisfy the crowd, released Barabbas for them; and after flogging Jesus, he handed him over to be crucified.

¹⁶ Then the soldiers led him into the courtyard of the palace (that is, the governor’s headquarters); and they called together the whole cohort. ¹⁷ And they clothed him in a purple cloak; and after twisting some thorns into a crown, they put it on him. ¹⁸ And they began saluting him, “Hail, King of the Jews!” ¹⁹ They struck his head with a reed, spat upon him, and knelt down in homage to him. ²⁰ After mocking him, they stripped him of the purple cloak and put his own clothes on him. Then they led him out to crucify him.

²¹ They compelled a passer-by, who was coming in from the country, to carry his cross; it was Simon of Cyrene, the father of Alexander and Rufus. ²² Then they brought Jesus to the place called Golgotha (which means the place of a skull). ²³ And they offered him wine mixed with myrrh; but he did not take it. ²⁴ And they crucified him, and divided his clothes among them, casting lots to decide what each should take.

²⁵ It was nine o’clock in the morning when they crucified him. ²⁶ The inscription of the charge against him read, “The King of the Jews.” ²⁷ And with him they crucified two bandits, one on his right and one on his left. ²⁸ Those who passed by derided him, shaking their heads and saying, “Aha! You who would destroy the temple and build it in three days, save yourself, and come down from the cross!” ²⁹ In the same way the chief priests, along with the scribes, were also mocking him among themselves and saying, “He saved others; he cannot save himself.” ³⁰ Let the Messiah, the King of Israel, come down from the cross now, so that we may see and believe.” Those who were crucified with him also taunted him.

³¹ When it was noon, darkness came over the whole land until three in the afternoon. ³² At three o’clock Jesus cried out with a loud voice, “Eloi, Eloi, lema sabachthani?” which means “My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?” ³³ When Pilate saw that he was gaining nothing, he released Barabbas for them; and after flogging Jesus, he handed him over to be crucified.

³⁴ Casting lots, they compelled a passer-by, who was coming in from the country, to carry his cross; it was Simon of Cyrene, the father of Alexander and Rufus. ³⁵ Then they brought Jesus to the place called Golgotha (which means the place of a skull). ³⁶ And they offered him wine mixed with myrrh; but he did not take it. ³⁷ And they crucified him, and divided his clothes among them, casting lots to decide what each should take.

³⁸ When Pilate saw that he was gaining nothing, he released Barabbas for them; and after flogging Jesus, he handed him over to be crucified.

15.16–38: The crucifixion (Mt 27.27–48; Lk 23.18–43). 16–20: Along with the purple cloak symbolizing royalty, the mockery, by the whole cohort, of Jesus as “King of the Judeans,” includes several allusions to worship of the Roman emperor whom Jesus has the audacity to challenge: The crown of thorns suggests the laurel wreath crowning the emperor’s head, the hailing suggests the acclamation of the emperor, and kneeling in homage suggests the prostration to the emperor. The mutual hostility between Mark’s Jesus and the imperial army is unmistakably intense. 16: A cohort consisted of about five hundred soldiers. 21: Simon of Cyrene, a peasant coming in from the country, had perhaps moved back to Judea from the Diaspora Jewish community in Cyrene, west of Egypt; his sons apparently later joined the movement. This Simon in effect replaces Peter, whose original name was Simon, and who had just proven incapable of “taking up his cross” by denying Jesus instead of himself (8.34; 14.66–72). Perhaps they “compel” Simon to carry the cross because Jesus is already too weak from repeated beatings, 14.65; 15.15,19. Once hung on the cross he died more quickly than expected (vv. 44–45). 23: Jesus declines the offer of a sedative to mitigate the pain. 24: Casting lots, see Ps 22.18; the first of three allusions to this psalm. 26: The inscription indicates the crime: As “King of the Judeans” Jesus threatened to bring about a rebellion against the law and order of the empire, which was maintained by such gruesome, terrorizing violence against subject peoples. 27: Two bandits, perhaps actually ancient “Robin Hoods”; but the Romans used the term contemptuously to demean rebels against Roman rule. On his right . . . on his left, cf. 10.37–40; not James and John, but the two “bandits” undergo the baptism of death with Jesus. 29–30: Shaking their heads, cf. Ps 22.7–8. The mocking passers-by would appear to be hostile, using the same terms as the false witnesses in 14.56–58. 31: He saved others; he cannot save himself, double meaning: cf. 8.34; 10.45. 33–38: Mt 27.45–53; Lk 23.44–48. 33: Darkness came over the whole land, crisis in the natural order indicating God coming in judgment (cf. Joel 2.2; Am 5.18–20; Zeph 1.15). 34: “Eloi, Eloi,” Jesus crying out in abandonment in the words of Ps 22.1 in ... means, “My God, my God, why have you forsaken me?” 35 When some of the bystanders heard it, they said, “Listen, he is calling for Elijah.” 36 And someone ran, filled a sponge with sour wine, put it on a stick, and gave it to him to drink, saying, “Wait, let us see whether Elijah will come to take him down.” 37 Then Jesus gave a loud cry and breathed his last. 38 And the curtain of the temple was torn in two, from top to bottom. 39 Now when the centurion, who stood facing him, saw that in this way he breathed his last, he said, “Truly this man was God’s Son!”

40 There were also women looking on from a distance; among them were Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James the younger and of Joses, and Salome. 41 These used to follow him and provided for him when he was in Galilee; and there were many other women who had come up with him to Jerusalem. 42 When evening had come, and since it was the day of Preparation, that is, the day before the sabbath, 43 Joseph of Arimathea, a respected member of the council, who was also himself waiting expectantly for the kingdom of God, went boldly to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. 44 Then Pilate wondered if he were already dead; and summoning the centurion, he asked him whether he had been dead for some time. 45 When he learned from the centurion that he was dead, he granted the body to Joseph. 46 Then Joseph bought a linen cloth, and taking down the body, 47 wrapped it in the linen cloth, and laid it in a tomb that had been hewn out of the rock. He then rolled a stone against the door of the tomb. 48 Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joses saw where the body was laid.

16 When the sabbath was over, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome bought spices, so that they might go and anoint him. 2 And very early on the first day of the week, when the sun had risen, they went to the tomb. 3 They had been saying to one another, “Who will roll away the stone for us from the entrance to the tomb?” 4 When they looked up, they saw that the stone, which was very large, had already been rolled back. 5 As they entered... the tomb, they saw a young man, dressed in a white robe, sitting on the right side; and they were alarmed. 6 But he said to them, “Do not be alarmed; you are looking for Jesus of Nazareth, who was crucified. He has been raised; he is not here. Look, there is the place they laid him. 7 But go, tell his disciples and Peter that he is going ahead of you to Galilee; there you will see him, just as he told you.” 8 So they went out and fled from the tomb, for terror and amazement had seized them; and they said nothing to anyone, for they were afraid.

THE SHORTER ENDING OF MARK
[And all that had been commanded them they told briefly to those around Peter. And afterward Jesus himself sent out through them, from east to west, the sacred and imperishable proclamation of eternal salvation.]

THE LONGER ENDING OF MARK
9 [Now after he rose early on the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, from whom he had cast out seven demons. 10 She went out and told those who had been with him, while they were mourning and weeping. 11 But when they heard that he was alive and had been seen by her, they would not believe it. 12 After this he appeared in another form to two of them, as they were walking into the country. 13 And they went back and told the rest, but they did not believe them. 14 Later he appeared to the eleven themselves as they were sitting at the table; and he upbraided them for their lack of faith and stubbornness, because they had not believed those who saw him after he had risen. c 15 And he said to them, “Go into all the world and proclaim the good news d to the whole creation. 16 The one who believes and is baptized will be saved; but the one who does not believe will be condemned. 17 And these signs will accompany those who believe: by using my name they will cast out demons; they will speak in new tongues; 18 they will pick up snakes in their hands, e and if they drink any deadly thing, it will not hurt them; they will lay their hands on the sick, and they will recover.”

a Some of the most ancient authorities bring the book to a close at the end of verse 8. One authority concludes the book with the shorter ending; others include the shorter ending and then continue with verses 9-20. In most authorities verses 9-20 follow immediately after verse 8, though in some of these authorities the passage is marked as being doubtful.

b Other ancient authorities add Amen

c Other ancient authorities add, in whole or in part, And they excused themselves, saying, “This age of lawlessness and unbelief is under Satan, who does not allow the truth and power of God to prevail over the unclean things of the spirits. Therefore reveal your righteousness now”—thus they spoke to Christ. And Christ replied to them, “The term of years of Satan’s power has been fulfilled, but other terrible things draw near. And for those who have sinned I was handed over to death, that they may return to the truth and sin no more, that they may inherit the spiritual and imperishable glory of righteousness that is in heaven.”

d Or gospel

e Other ancient authorities lack in their hands

young man (cf. 14.51–52) is dressed in a white robe, as a martyr vindicated by God would be dressed (cf. Dan 11.35; Rev 7.9,13), reminiscent of Jesus’ garments becoming “dazzling white” in the transfiguration, 9.3. 6: The “young man” tells the women He has been raised; there was apparently no resurrection appearance in the original text of Mark that ended at 16.8. 7: The risen Jesus is going ahead . . . to Galilee (cf. 14.28), where they will see him, in the same way as Jesus twice before said people would “see the Son of Man coming with the clouds of heaven,” i.e., the standard symbol of the renewed Israel. Jesus is vindicated and his movement is to continue. Mark’s Gospel is open-ended and must be completed by the hearers and readers of the Gospel. 8: The narrative ends with the women terrified. Obviously, however, they eventually told the tale, or Mark’s Gospel could not have been written. 16.9–20: Two attempts to provide a more satisfactory ending to the Gospel of Mark. The shorter ending. Although present in some manuscripts, this ending is clearly different from the rest of Mark in style and understanding of Jesus. It was evidently not added before the fourth century c.e. The longer ending. Possibly written in the early second century and appended to the Gospel later in the second century. These sentences borrow So then the Lord Jesus, after he had spoken to them, was taken up into heaven and sat down at the right hand of God. And they went out and proclaimed the good news everywhere, while the Lord worked with them and confirmed the message by the signs that accompanied it.

a Other ancient authorities add Amen

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO LUKE

NAME AND AUTHORIZATION
The Third Gospel, traditionally called the Gospel according to Luke, is a unique literary and theological contribution to the story of Jesus Christ. The oldest traditions of the Christian church identify Luke, a physician who was a traveling companion and co-worker with Paul (Philem 1.24; Col 4.14), as the author of the Gospel and its sequel, the Acts of the Apostles. At times the tradition further identifies Luke as a Syrian from Antioch, but practically nothing else is remembered of the writer of the Third Gospel. The earliest of these traditions about the author are from the late second century, and scholarly analysis of the Gospel and Acts raises critical questions about the accuracy of the attribution of the writings to the Luke who was Paul’s associate. The strongest argument in favor of identifying Luke the physician as the author of the Gospel and Acts is the relative obscurity of this figure in early Christianity. Yet, even defenders of the traditional identity of Luke recognize difficulties with that connection. Though Luke’s familiarity with Judaism is extensive, he seems to have more book-knowledge than practical experience of its particular rituals and beliefs. Similarly, when Luke provides details about Palestinian locations and practices, they exhibit a tendency toward setting the story in an urban environment rather than the predominantly nonurban village culture that Jesus would have known. Above all, Luke never mentions in Acts that Paul wrote letters nor does he use theological themes from the letters attributed to the apostle.

SOURCES
Luke’s Gospel is dependent on other earlier writings, especially the Gospel according to Mark. That Luke knew and used still other materials, both oral and written, in composing this Gospel is certain, if not demonstrable. In fact, Luke shares a body of material (probably in written form) with the author of the Gospel according to Matthew that accounts for approximately one-fifth of the overall Gospel story. Scholars designate this common material as “Q” (German “Quelle,” “source”). Whether Luke had additional written sources for episodes and teaching found only in his Gospel—such as the account of Jesus’ birth, childhood, certain parables, and some materials peculiar to Luke’s account of Jesus’ passion and resurrection—is debated, though possible. Luke’s concern with sources—with acknowledging and using them profitably—is clear from his prologue to the Gospel (1.1–4). (See Introduction to the Gospels, p. 1743.)

DATE AND PLACE OF COMPOSITION
The time and place of the writing of this Gospel are uncertain. Tradition identifies Luke’s account with both Antioch and Rome (where Acts comes to its end), but no firm tradition specifies a precise time and place of composition. Any major urban center in the Greek-speaking areas of the Roman empire would be a suitable location for such a document to be written and read. As for its date, all one can say with certainty is that Luke wrote this account after Mark composed his Gospel. The typical suggestion that Luke wrote around 85 ce is plausible, though the Gospel could have been completed five to fifteen years earlier or even five to ten years later.

STYLE, CONTENTS, AND STRUCTURE
In telling this story, Luke demonstrates an ability to write in different literary styles. The initial four verses of the book are a single Greek sentence that forms a highly stylized introductory statement typical of ancient historical writings. The language is formal and refined in a fashion familiar to well-educated citizens of the Roman empire in the first century ce. After this distinctive preface, however, the narrative shifts into a style of Greek reminiscent of the Septuagint (the ancient Greek translation of the Hebrew Bible). (In the annotations, places where Luke’s quotations from the scriptures follow the Septuagint rather than the Hebrew are marked with the standard abbreviation for the Septuagint, LXX.) This Semitic-influenced form of Greek permeates the stories about the birth and childhood of Jesus. The Septuagint-like style lightens into a more normal (and more typically secular) form of first-century Greek (called “koine”) in the narrative that comprises the remainder of the Gospel. As situations shift in the story, the language used varies appropriately to suit the locale and characters in the narrative. Luke’s appreciation of stylistic variation in narrative communication is apparent.
LUKE

from his skilled employment of this technique. Indeed, it seems that the Gospel communicates the universal significance of its story of God's salvation in and through Jesus Christ in the variety of styles that Luke uses to tell the story. Readers from different religious, ethnic, and social backgrounds would find one level or another of the overall account familiar and, thereby, a point of identity and entry into the story of Jesus Christ.

In broad strokes, Luke tells the same basic story that one reads in the other canonical Gospels: Jesus appears, ministers in Galilee, and moves to Judea and Jerusalem where he encounters deadly hostility that leads to his suffering, death, and resurrection. Yet, Luke's story of Jesus has logic and content that distinguish it among the four Gospels. The advent of Jesus among pious Jews, who observed ancestral traditions, highlights the continuity of Jesus' story with the history of Israel and presents it as the fulfillment of his people's hopes. In Luke's remembrance of Jesus, one finds an emphasis on God's compassion as Jesus reaches out to live and work among the marginal members of his society. Women, the less-than-pious, tax collectors, the poor, the sick, the oppressed, and even noble Pharisees are present and interact with Jesus more prominently in this account than in any other. As stated in Acts, "Jesus of Nazareth . . . went about doing good . . . for God was with him" (Acts 10.38). Both the coming of Jesus and his ministry of compassion are the direct results of God's anointing Jesus with the power of the Holy Spirit. Such an outpouring of the Spirit was neither unprecedented nor singular, however. The same Spirit of God that was active in the history of Israel is clearly present in the infancy stories concerning John the Baptist and Jesus with which the Gospel begins, and later reappears in Acts as the church spreads the message of salvation to all the peoples of the known world.

Luke has structured the narrative in a deliberate and logical way. A prologue (1.1–4) prepares readers for the significance of the story that follows. The infancy and childhood of Jesus is told in a series of scenes that alternate with an account of the origins of John the Baptist so that readers understand the role of both these figures in God's bringing salvation to all humanity, though Jesus is clearly presented as superior to the Baptist in this arrangement (1.5–2.52). As an adult Jesus prepares for his ministry through an encounter with John (then, readers learn Jesus' genealogy), and he undergoes temptations by the devil (3.1–4.13); Jesus ministers in Galilee, provoking controversy, calling disciples, preaching, working miracles, teaching, commissioning the initial ministry of his followers, and dealing compassionately with the masses of people (4.14–9.50). Jesus and his followers journey to Jerusalem and he ministers along the way (9.51–19.27). Jesus enters Jerusalem, working in the Temple area and teaching about the future (19.28–21.38). Jesus directs the Last Supper, suffers, dies, and is buried (22.1–23.56), and Jesus' empty tomb is found before he appears to the disciples and then ascends to heaven (24.1–53).

INTERPRETATION

The carefully crafted beginning of Luke's narrative contains anticipations of the story that follows and declarations that highlight the significance of the whole story. The narrative unfolds smoothly. Initial incidents are told in such a way that they anticipate later developments in the narrative. Readers who become actively involved with Luke's account will find hints and signals that provoke questions and expectations that are answered after one has read the whole story. In general, wondering about the nature of salvation, the character of the kingdom of God, the reality of repentance, and the person and work of Jesus as the Lord—God's messiah, son, and savior—will lead readers to ask about the deeper significance of the story that Luke is telling. Luke's primary concern is to inform the reader who Jesus of Nazareth was—and now, who he is as the suffering, crucified savior and the risen, exalted Lord. Furthermore, in the wake of Luke's purposeful presentation of the person and work of Jesus Christ, there is another dimension of the story that preserves and communicates Jesus' teaching about what it means to be his follower. Discipleship is a secondary theme that is closely related to the primary theme of Jesus' identity and significance. Discipleship, however, is sometimes a difficult dimension of the story for contemporary readers to grasp, for discipleship is a way of life as a member of the repentant and saved people of God. For Luke, one is not a disciple alone, but one finds profound personal significance in becoming one of the people of God who live as citizens of God's kingdom in a manner consistent with God's intentions for the life of all humanity as brought and taught, shown and known in Jesus Christ.

Luke's elegantly crafted account of Jesus' life and teaching shows him to be "the Lord," God's son who is the universal savior of humanity. Jesus inaugurates a mission to all humankind as the kingdom of God draws near...
Since many have undertaken to set down an orderly account of the events that have been fulfilled among us, just as they were handed on to us by those who from the beginning were eyewitnesses and servants of the word, I too decided, after investigating everything carefully from the very first, to write an orderly account for you, most excellent Theophilus, so that you may know the truth concerning the things about which you have been instructed.

In the days of King Herod of Judea, there was a priest named Zechariah, who belonged to the priestly order of Abijah. His wife was a descendant of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth. Both of them were righteous before God, living blamelessly according to all the commandments and regulations of the Lord. But they had no children, because Elizabeth was barren, and both were getting on in years.

Once when he was serving as priest before God and his section was on duty, he was chosen by lot, according to the custom of the priesthood, to enter the sanctuary of the Lord and offer incense. Now at the time of the incense offering, the whole assembly of the people was praying outside. Then there appeared to him an angel of the Lord, standing at the right side of the altar of incense. When Zechariah saw him, he was terrified; and fear overwhelmed him. But the angel said to him, “Do not be afraid, Zechariah, for your prayer has been heard. Your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son, and you will name him John. You will have joy and gladness, and many will rejoice at his birth, for he will be great in the sight of the Lord. He must never drink wine or strong drink; even before his birth he will be filled with the Holy Spirit.”

Or for a long time

---

1.1–4: The prologue (Mt 1.1; Mk 1.1). See Acts 1.1–2. Jn 20.30–31; 21.25 show similar awareness of sources used by the Gospel writers. This literary prologue resembles the openings of many classical or Hellenistic Greek works, particularly histories. Accordingly, Luke refers to previous early Christian writings, acknowledges sources, and explains the need or purpose of his own work. 3: Theophilus means “friend of God” and may address a person of prominent social standing, since Theophilus is designated “most excellent,” terminology typically applied to persons of high official or socioeconomic status. If Theophilus is a specific prominent person, then, he is likely to be the patron of the author of the Gospel, one who would use his influence to have the Gospel copied and distributed. While the address may be to a specific person, the symbolic sense of the name may designate any ideal Christian, as it has been understood since the earliest interpretations of Luke’s Gospel.

1.5–2.52: The infancy and childhood of Jesus.

5: In the days of King Herod of Judea, there was a priest named Zechariah, who belonged to the priestly order of Abijah. His wife was a descendant of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth. Both of them were righteous before God, living blamelessly according to all the commandments and regulations of the Lord. But they had no children, because Elizabeth was barren, and both were getting on in years.

8: Once when he was serving as priest before God and his section was on duty, he was chosen by lot, according to the custom of the priesthood, to enter the sanctuary of the Lord and offer incense. Now at the time of the incense offering, the whole assembly of the people was praying outside. Then there appeared to him an angel of the Lord, standing at the right side of the altar of incense. When Zechariah saw him, he was terrified; and fear overwhelmed him. But the angel said to him, “Do not be afraid, Zechariah, for your prayer has been heard. Your wife Elizabeth will bear you a son, and you will name him John. You will have joy and gladness, and many will rejoice at his birth, for he will be great in the sight of the Lord. He must never drink wine or strong drink; even before his birth he will be filled with the Holy Spirit.”

Marion L. Soards
Spirit. 16 He will turn many of the people of Israel to the Lord their God. 17 With the spirit and power of Elijah he will go before him, to turn the hearts of parents to their children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the righteous, to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.” 18 Zechariah said to the angel, “How will I know that this is so? For I am an old man, and my wife is getting on in years.” 19 The angel replied, “I am Gabriel. I stand in the presence of God, and I have been sent to speak to you and to bring you this good news. 20 But now, because you did not believe my words, which will be fulfilled in their time, you will become mute, unable to speak, until the day these things occur.”

21 Meanwhile the people were waiting for Zechariah, and wondered at his delay in the sanctuary. 22 When he did come out, he could not speak to them, and they realized that he had seen a vision in the sanctuary. He kept motioning to them and remained unable to speak. 23 When his time of service was ended, he went to his home.

24 After those days his wife Elizabeth conceived, and for five months she remained in seclusion. She said, 25 “This is the Lord who has done for me when he looked favorably on me and took away the disgrace I have endured among my people.”

26 In the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent by God to a town in Galilee called Nazareth, 27 to a virgin engaged to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David. The virgin’s name was Mary. 28 And he came to her and said, “Greetings, favored one! The Lord is with you.” 29 But she was much perplexed by his words and wondered what sort of greeting this might be. 30 The angel said to her, “Do not be afraid, Mary, for you have found favor with God. 31 And now, you will conceive in your womb and bear a son, and you will name him Jesus. 32 He will be great, and will be called the Son of the Most High, and the Lord God will give to him the throne of his ancestor David. 33 He will reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there will be no end.” 34 Mary said to the angel, “How can this be, since I am a virgin?”

35 The angel said to her, “The Holy Spirit will come upon you, and the power of the Most High will overshadow you; therefore the child to be born of you will be holy; he will be called Son of God. 36 And now, your relative Elizabeth in her old age has also conceived a son; and this is the sixth month for her who was said to be barren. 37 For nothing will be impossible with God.” 38 Then Mary said, “Here am I, the servant of the Lord; let it be with me according to your word.” Then the angel departed from her.

39 In those days Mary set out and went with haste to a Judean town in the hill country, 40 where she entered the house of Zechariah and greeted Elizabeth. 41 When Elizabeth heard Mary’s greeting, the child leaped in her womb. And Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit 42 and exclaimed with a loud cry, “Blessed are you among women, and blessed is the fruit of your womb. 43 And why has this happened to me, that the mother of my Lord...”

---

13.4–5; 1 Sam 1.11 LXX. 17: He will go before him, that is, he will be the forerunner of the messiah (Mal 4.5–6; Mt 11.14); on Elijah, see 1 Kings 17–19; 21. 19: Gabriel is one of two angels named in the Hebrew Bible (Dan 8.16; 9.21). 25: Among Jews sterility was regarded as a sign of divine disfavor and therefore a disgrace (see Gen 16.2; 25.21; 30.23; 1 Sam 1.18; Lev 20.20–21; Ps 128.3; Jer 22.30).

1.26–38: The announcement of Jesus’ birth. 26: In the sixth month, after the conception of John. Nazareth, a small village (cf. Jn 1.46) in southern Galilee. 27: There is a clear emphasis on Mary’s status as a virgin, a term used twice in this verse; see 1.34. Mary, Gk “Marian,” from Heb “Miriym.” 31: Jesus, the Greek form of the Hebrew name Joshua, meaning “The Lord has saved” (see Mt 1.21). 32: The Son of the Most High implies both divinity (see Sir 4.10) and royal authority (see 2 Sam 7.13–16; cf. Lk 2.35,76; 6.35; 8.28; Acts 7.48; 16.17). 32–33: Jesus will fulfill the expectation that David’s heir will reign eternally; see 2 Sam 7.12–17. 36: Elizabeth . . . conceived, the angel offers Mary some corroboration, on which she acts (v. 39).

1.39–56: Mary and Elizabeth. 41: Elizabeth’s being filled with the Holy Spirit may also acknowledge the presence and the power of the Holy Spirit at work in relation to the unborn John in her womb. 43: Prior to his birth comes to me? 44 For as soon as I heard the sound of your greeting, the child in my womb leaped for joy. 45 And blessed is she who believed that there would be a fulfillment of what was spoken to her by the Lord.”

46 And Mary said,
“My soul magnifies the Lord,
47 and my spirit rejoices in God my Savior,
48 for he has looked with favor on the lowliness of his servant.
Surely, from now on all generations will call me blessed;
49 for the Mighty One has done great things for me,
and holy is his name.
50 His mercy is for those who fear him from generation to generation.
51 He has shown strength with his arm;
he has scattered the proud in the thoughts of their hearts.
52 He has brought down the powerful from their thrones, and lifted up the lowly;
53 he has filled the hungry with good things,
and sent the rich away empty.
54 He has helped his servant Israel,
in remembrance of his mercy, 55 according to the promise he made to our ancestors, to Abraham and to his descendants forever.”

56 And Mary remained with her about three months and then returned to her home.
57 Now the time came for Elizabeth to give birth, and she bore a son. 58 Her neighbors and relatives heard that the Lord had shown his great mercy to her, and they rejoiced with her.
59 On the eighth day they came to circumcise the child, and they were going to name him Zechariah after his father. 60 But his mother said, “No; he is to be called John.” 61 They said to her, “None of your relatives has this name.” 62 Then they began motioning to his father to find out what name he wanted to give him. 63 He asked for a writing tablet and wrote, “His name is John.” And all of them were amazed. 64 Immediately his mouth was opened and his tongue freed, and he began to speak, praising God. 65 Fear came over all their neighbors, and all these things were talked about throughout the entire hill country of Judea. 66 All who heard them pondered them and said, “What then will this child become?” For, indeed, the hand of the Lord was with him.
67 Then his father Zechariah was filled with the Holy Spirit and spoke this prophecy:
68 “Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he has looked favorably on his people and redeemed them.
69 He has raised up a mighty savior for us in the house of his servant David,
70 as he spoke through the mouth of his holy prophets from of old,
71 that we would be saved from our enemies and from the hand of all who hate us.
72 Thus he has shown the mercy promised to our ancestors, and has remembered his holy covenant, 73 the oath that he swore to our ancestor Abraham, to grant us 74 that we, being rescued from the hands of our enemies, might serve him without fear, 75 in holiness and righteousness before him all our days.

a Or believed, for there will be b Other ancient authorities read Elizabeth c Gk a horn of salvation

Jesus is designated Lord. 44: Joy indicates the positive nature of the relationship of John the Baptist and Jesus.
46–55: These verses form the first of four “canticles” or “hymns” in the infancy narrative of Luke. This “song” is the “Magnificat” (so called from its first word in the Latin or Vulgate translation); compare the prayer of Hannah in 1 Sam 2.1–10, a passage to which these verses relate. 55: Gen 17.7; 18.18; 22.17; Mic 7.20.
1.57–80: The birth and naming of John. 58: Here, the Lord refers to God. 59: Lev 12.3; Gen 17.12; Lk 2.21. 65: Fear (rendered “awe” in 5.26) designates humble, reverent recognition of the limits of human understanding and power before God (2.9; 7.16; Acts 2.43,46–47; 5.5,11; 19.17). 66: The question anticipates the appearance of the adult John, 3.1–18. 67–79: The second hymn, called the “Benedictus.” 69: A mighty savior, lit., “a horn of salvation,” uses a biblical metaphor (“horn”) for power (Pss 18.3; 75.5–6; 89.18; 112.9; 148.14) and here refers to
And you, child, will be called the prophet of the Most High; for you will go before the Lord to prepare his ways, to give knowledge of salvation to his people by the forgiveness of their sins. By the tender mercy of our God, the dawn from on high will break upon us, to give light to those who sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, to guide our feet into the way of peace.”

In those days a decree went out from Emperor Augustus that all the world should be registered. This was the first registration and was taken while Quirinius was governor of Syria. All went to their own towns to be registered. Joseph also went from the town of Nazareth in Galilee to Judea, to the city of David called Bethlehem, because he was descended from the house and family of David. He went to be registered with Mary, to whom he was engaged and who was expecting a child. While they were there, the time came for her to deliver her child. And she gave birth to her firstborn son and wrapped him in bands of cloth, and laid him in a manger, because there was no place for them in the inn.

But Mary treasured all these things and pondered them in her heart. And the angel said to them, “Do not be afraid; for see—I am bringing you good news of great joy for all the people: to you is born this day in the city of David a Savior, who is the Messiah, the Lord. This will be a sign for you: you will find a child wrapped in bands of cloth and lying in a manger.” And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host, praising God and saying, “Glory to God in the highest heaven, and on earth peace among those whom he favors!”

When the angels had left them and gone into heaven, the shepherds said to one another, “Let us go now to Bethlehem and see this thing that has taken place, which the Lord has made known to us.” So they went with haste and found Mary and Joseph, and the child lying in the manger. When they saw this, they made known what had been told them about this child; and all who heard it were amazed at what the shepherds told them. But Mary treasured all these things and pondered them in her heart.

one who will bring salvation; see Pss 92.10–11; 132.17–18. 76: See 3.4. 80: Compare 1.80 with 2.52. These words cover a period of approximately thirty years (see 3.23). In the wilderness, see 3.4.

2.1–7: The birth of Jesus (Mt 1.18–25). 1: General censuses of Roman citizens are known from 28 BCE, 8 BCE, and 14 CE; but outside the New Testament this enrollment under Caesar Augustus is not attested. Caesar Augustus reigned 27 BCE–14 CE. His rule marked a time of peace, the “pax Augusta”, which caused the populace to hail him as lord and savior of the world. 2: Quirinius was at this time legate or commissioner of Augustus in a war against a rebellious tribe, the Homonadenses. As such he was a military governor of Syria, while civil administration was in the hands of Varus. It is possible that Quirinius was affiliated with Syria as a governmental authority on two different occasions, 6–4 BCE and 6–9 CE. City of David called Bethlehem, see 1 Sam 1–13. 7: Firstborn son indicates nothing about Mary’s subsequent childbearing; the word is more a technical term in reference to the child upon which God laid full claim (Num 3.11–13). Bands of cloth were normally used to bundle and provide warmth and comfort for infants. Manger, a feeding trough for animals.

2.8–20: Annunciation to shepherds and their visit (cf. Mt 2.1–12). 8: That the shepherds were living in the fields indicates nothing about the season of Jesus’ birth. 11: Jesus is identified by three primary titles of Christian belief, Savior, Messiah, and Lord (see Mt 1.21; 16.16; Jn 4.42; Acts 2.36; 5.31; Phil 2.11). The designation of the newborn Jesus as Lord is striking (see 1.43), for that word in Greek (“kyrios”) is the precise term used consistently throughout the LXX to translate the tetragrammaton, God’s holy and personal name (Heb “YHWH”). 14: The words and pondered them in her heart. 20 The shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all they had heard and seen, as it had been told them.

21 After eight days had passed, it was time to circumcise the child; and he was called Jesus, the name given by the angel before he was conceived in the womb.

22 When the time came for their purification according to the law of Moses, they brought him up to Jerusalem to present him to the Lord 23 (as it is written in the law of the Lord, “Every firstborn male shall be designated as holy to the Lord”), 24 and they offered a sacrifice according to what is stated in the law of the Lord, “a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons.”

25 Now there was a man in Jerusalem whose name was Simeon; a this man was righteous and devout, looking forward to the consolation of Israel, and the Holy Spirit rested on him. 26 It had been revealed to him by the Holy Spirit that he would not see death before he had seen the Lord’s Messiah. b

27 Guided by the Spirit, Simeon c came into the temple; and when the parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him what was customary under the law, 28 Simeon d took him in his arms and praised God, saying,

29 “Master, now you are dismissing your servant e in peace, according to your word; f

30 for my eyes have seen your salvation, g

31 which you have prepared in the presence of all peoples, h

32 a light for revelation to the Gentiles i and for glory to your people Israel.”

33 And the child’s father and mother were amazed at what was being said about him. 34 Then Simeon k blessed them and said to his mother Mary, “This child is destined for the falling and the rising of many in Israel, and to be a sign that will be opposed l so that the inner thoughts of many will be revealed—

m

35 and a sword will pierce your own soul too.”

36 There was also a prophet, Anna f the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Asher. She was of a great age, having lived with her husband seven years after her marriage, 37 then as a widow to the age of eighty-four. She never left the temple but worshiped there with fasting and prayer night and day. 38 At that moment she came, and began to praise God and to speak about the child g to all who were looking for the redemption of Jerusalem.

39 When they had finished everything required by the law of the Lord, they returned to Galilee, to their own town of Nazareth.

40 The child grew and became strong, filled with wisdom; and the favor of God was upon him.

41 Now every year his parents went to Jerusalem for the festival of the Passover. 42 And when he was twelve years old, they went up as usual for the festival. 43 When the festival was ended and they started to return, the boy Jesus stayed behind in Jerusalem, but his parents did not know it. 44 Assuming that he was in the group of travelers, they went a day’s journey. Then they started to look for him among their third hymn. 19: See 1.66; 2.51.

2.21–38: Jesus’ circumcision and presentation. 21: See 1.59. 22–23: Ex 13.2,12,15; Lev 5.11; 12.8. The phrase their purification is ambiguous and likely refers to the parents, though there was no rite of purification for the father (or the newborn). Luke’s interest in this ritual is to recognize the occasion of the parents’ taking Jesus to the Temple. 25–38: Simeon and Anna, not otherwise known, acclaim Jesus as savior and redeemer. 29–32: The fourth hymn, whose opening words in Latin are “Nunc dimittis.” 30–31: See 3.6. 32: See Isa 49.6; 46.13. 32: See Acts 2.21; 10.28,34–35; 22.21. 33: Luke calls Joseph the father of Jesus (notwithstanding 1.34–35) since he was Mary’s husband and Jesus’ legal father (cf. Mt 13.55; Lk 2.48; 3.23).

2.39–40: Jesus’ childhood in Nazareth (Mt 2.22–23).

2.41–52: Young Jesus in the Temple. This story of Jesus’ boyhood is unique to Luke among the canonical Gospels, though later legendary writings also show interest in this otherwise unknown period of Jesus’ life.
relatives and friends. 45 When they did not find him, they returned to Jerusalem to search for him. 46 After three days they found him in the temple, sitting among the teachers, listening to them and asking them questions. 47 And all who heard him were amazed at his understanding and his answers. 48 When his parents saw him they were astonished; and his mother said to him, “Child, why have you treated us like this? Look, your father and I have been searching for you in great anxiety.” 49 He said to them, “Why were you searching for me? Did you not know that I must be in my Father’s house?” 50 But they did not understand what he said to them. 51 Then he went down with them and came to Nazareth, and was obedient to them. His mother treasured all these things in her heart.

52 And Jesus increased in wisdom and in years, and in divine and human favor.

3 In the fifteenth year of the reign of Emperor Tiberius, when Pontius Pilate was governor of Judea, and Herod was ruler of Galilee, and his brother Philip ruler of the region of Ituraea and Trachonitis, and Lysanias ruler of Abilene, 2 during the high priesthood of Annas and Caiaphas, the word of God came to John son of Zechariah in the wilderness. ³ He went into all the region around the Jordan, proclaiming a baptism of repentance for the forgiveness of sins, ⁴ as it is written in the book of the words of the prophet Isaiah,

“'The voice of one crying out in the wilderness:
Prepare the way of the Lord, make his paths straight.
Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be made low, and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough ways made smooth;
and all flesh shall see the salvation of God.'”

7 John said to the crowds that came out to be baptized by him, “You brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the wrath to come? ⁸ Bear fruits worthy of repentance. Do not begin to say to yourselves, ‘We have Abraham as our ancestor’; for I tell you, God is able from these stones to raise up children to Abraham. ⁹ Even now the ax is lying at the root of the trees; every tree therefore that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire.”

41: Ex 23.15; Deut 16.1–8. 49: My Father’s house recognizes the special relationship between Jesus and God and contrasts with Mary’s reference to Joseph as “your father” (v. 48). 51: See 2.19. 52: 1 Sam 2.26; Lk 1.80; 2.40.
3.1–4.13: Jesus’ preparation for ministry (Mt 3.1–4.11; Mk 1.2–13).
3.1–6: The appearance of John the Baptist (Mt 3.1–6; Mk 1.2–6). 1: Tiberius Caesar succeeded Augustus in 14 CE and ruled until 37. Thus, depending on the manner of reckoning years, sometime between 26 and 29 CE is indicated. Pontius Pilate, a Roman governor, held authority in Judea, Samaria, and Idumea 26–36 CE; see 23.1, etc. The remainder of the kingdom of Herod the Great had been divided between his sons Herod Antipas who ruled Galilee and Perea (23.6–7) and Philip (see map on p. 1800). Initially another son, Herod Archelaus, had ruled Judea as ethnarch from 4 BCE, but he was deposed and banished for incompetence and replaced by a Roman official in 6 CE (see Mt 2.22). Lysanias was a Roman tetrarch of Abilene ca. 25–30 CE. 2: Annas was high priest 6–15 CE when the Romans deposed him. He was followed by relatives; initially by his son, Eleazar; then by his son-in-law Caiaphas (18–36 CE), and thereafter by four more sons. Because Jewish custom was for the high priest to serve for life, even when out of office, Annas’s influence and authority continued to be recognized by the population. 3: A summary statement of the shape and substance of John’s ministry. Proclamation led to baptism, a baptism of repentance, a symbolic act of cleansing to indicate realignment with the will of God in forgiveness of the one baptized. ⁴–⁶: Isa 40.3–5. ⁶: All flesh refers to all humanity and emphasizes that God’s salvation was universal in character; see 2.30–32; Acts 2.21.
3.7–9: John’s call to repentance (Mt 3.7–10). 8: The assertion to have Abraham as . . . ancestor was a claim to privileged standing with God through natural birth (see Jn 8.33,39; Rom 2.28–29). ⁹: Fire, a symbol of judgment, often eschatological judgment (see 3.16; 16.24).
And the crowds asked him, “What then should we do?” 11 In reply he said to them, “Whoever has two coats must share with anyone who has none; and whoever has food must do likewise.” 12 Even tax collectors came to be baptized, and they asked him, “Teacher, what should we do?” 13 He said to them, “Collect no more than the amount prescribed for you.” 14 Soldiers also asked him, “And we, what should we do?” He said to them, “Do not extort money from anyone by threats or false accusation, and be satisfied with your wages.”

15 As the people were filled with expectation, and all were questioning in their hearts concerning John, whether he might be the Messiah, 16 John answered all of them by saying, “I baptize you with water; but one who is more powerful than I is coming; I am not worthy to untie the thong of his sandals. He will baptize you with fire.”

17 His winnowing fork is in his hand, to clear his threshing floor and to gather the wheat into his granary; but the chaff he will burn with unquenchable fire.”

18 So, with many other exhortations, he proclaimed the good news to the people.

19 But Herod the ruler, who had been rebuked by him because of Herodias, his brother’s wife, and because of all the evil things that Herod had done, 20 added to them all by shutting up John in prison.

21 Now when all the people were baptized, and when Jesus also had been baptized and was praying, the heaven was opened, 22 and the Holy Spirit descended upon him in body-ily form like a dove. And a voice came from heaven, “You are my Son, the Beloved; with you I am well pleased.”

23 Jesus was about thirty years old when he began his work. He was the son (as was thought) of Joseph son of Heli, 24 son of Mattathias, son of Amos, son of Nahum, son of Esli, son of Naggi, 26 son of Maath, son of Mattathias, son of Semain, son of Josech, son of Joda, 27 son of Joanan, son of Rhesa, son of Zerubbabel, son of Shealtiel, 28 son of Neri, son of Addi, son of Cosam, son of Elmadam, son of Er, 29 son of Joshua, son of Eliezer, son of Jorim, son of Matthat, son of Levi, 30 son of Simeon, son of Judah, son of Joseph, son of Jonam, son of Eliakim, 31 son of Melea, son of Menna, son of Mattatha, son of Nathan, son of David, 32 son of Jesse, son of Obed, son of Boaz, son of Sala, 33 son of Nahshon, 34 son of Amminadab, son of Admin, son of Arni, 35 son of Hezron, son of Perez, son of Judah, 34 son of Jacob, son of Isaac, son of Abraham, son of Terah, son of Nahor, son of Serug, son of Reu, son of Peleg, son of Eber, son of Shelah, son of Cainan, son of Arphaxad, son of Shem, son of Noah, son of Lamech, son of Methuselah, son of Enoch, son of Jared, son of Mahalaleel, son of Cainan, son of Enos, son of Seth, son of Adam, son of God.

4 Jesus, full of the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan and was led by the Spirit in the wilderness, where for forty days he was tempted by the devil. He ate nothing at all during those days, and when they were over, he was famished. The devil said to him, “If you are the Son of God, command this stone to become a loaf of bread.” Jesus answered him, “It is written, ‘One does not live by bread alone.’” Then the devil took him up and showed him in an instant all the kingdoms of the world. And the devil said to him, “To you I will give their glory and all this authority; for it has been given over to me, and I give it to anyone I please. If you, then, will worship me, it will all be yours.” Jesus answered him, “It is written, ‘Worship the Lord your God, and serve only him.’” Then the devil took him to Jerusalem, and placed him on the pinnacle of the temple, saying to him, “If you are the Son of God, throw yourself down from here, for it is written, ‘He will command his angels concerning you, to protect you,’” and “On their hands they will bear you up, so that you will not dash your foot against a stone.”

12 Jesus answered him, “It is said, ‘Do not put the Lord your God to the test.’” When the devil had finished every test, he departed from him until an opportune time.

14 Then Jesus, filled with the power of the Spirit, returned to Galilee, and a report about him spread through all the surrounding country. He began to teach in their synagogues and was praised by everyone. When he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up, he went to the synagogue on the sabbath day, as was his custom. He stood up to read, and the scroll of the prophet Isaiah was given to him. He unrolled the scroll and found the place where it was written:

18 “The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he has anointed me to bring good news to the poor. He has sent me to proclaim release to the captives and recovery of sight to the blind, to let the oppressed go free, to proclaim the year of the Lord’s favor.”

20 And he rolled up the scroll, gave it back to the attendant, and sat down. The eyes of all in the synagogue were fixed on him. Then he began to say to them, “Today this scripture has been fulfilled in your hearing.” All

a Gk he
spoke well of him and were amazed at the gracious words that came from his mouth. They said, “Is not this Joseph’s son?” 23 He said to them, “Doubtless you will quote to me this proverb, ‘Doctor, cure yourself!’ And you will say, ‘Do here also in your hometown the things that we have heard you did at Capernaum.’” 24 And he said, “Truly I tell you, no prophet is accepted in the prophet’s hometown. 25 But the truth is, there were many widows in Israel in the time of Elijah, when the heaven was shut up three years and six months, and there was a severe famine over all the land; 26 yet Elijah was sent to none of them except to a widow at Zarephath in Sidon. 27 There were also many lepers in Israel in the time of the prophet Elisha, and none of them was cleansed except Naaman the Syrian.” 28 When they heard this, all in the synagogue were filled with rage. 29 They got up, drove him out of the town, and led him to the brow of the hill on which their town was built, so that they might hurl him off the cliff. 30 But he passed through the midst of them and went on his way.

31 He went down to Capernaum, a city in Galilee, and was teaching them on the sabbath. 32 They were astounded at his teaching, because he spoke with authority.

In the synagogue there was a man who had the spirit of an unclean demon, and he cried out with a loud voice, 34 “Let us alone! What have you to do with us, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are, the Holy One of God.” 35 But Jesus rebuked him, saying, “Be silent, and come out of him!” When the demon had thrown him down before them, he came out of him without having done him any harm. 36 They were all amazed and kept saying to one another, “What kind of utterance is this? For with authority and power he commands the unclean spirits, and out they come!” 37 And a report about him began to reach every place in the region.

38 After leaving the synagogue he entered Simon’s house. Now Simon’s mother-in-law was suffering from a high fever, and they asked him about her. 39 Then he stood over her and rebuked the fever, and it left her. Immediately she got up and began to serve them.

40 As the sun was setting, all those who had any who were sick with various kinds of diseases brought them to him; and he laid his hands on each of them and cured them. Demons also came out of many, shouting, “You are the Son of God!” But he rebuked them and would not allow them to speak, because they knew that he was the Messiah.

41 At daybreak he departed and went into a deserted place. And the crowds were looking

---

61.1; 58.6; 61.2. 22: The initial reaction to Jesus was strikingly positive. 24–27: Traditions of the prophets (1 Kings 17.8–16; 2 Kings 5.1–14) illustrate that foreigners sometimes experienced God’s aid when Israel did not. 28: The hostile reaction comes in response to Jesus’ references to Gentiles (vv. 24–27), not to his apparent messianic claims (v. 21).

4.31–37: Jesus in the synagogue at Capernaum (Mt 4.13; 7.28–29; Mk 1.21–28). Demons were thought of as nonmaterial existences of a personal kind, hostile to human welfare and rebellious against God. The Gospels reflect widespread dread of demons and a general sense of helplessness before demonic activity. Jesus is portrayed here and elsewhere (11.20–22) as one who can deliver persons from demonic oppression and from Satan himself (see 13.16). 31: This incident is the first of five sabbath healings or exorcisms by Jesus (4.31,38; 6.6; 13.10; 14.1). 32: Jesus produced astonishment; 2.48; 9.43. 34–36: The demon recognized Jesus’ true identity, whereas the people were simply amazed; see 4.41.

4.38–39: The healing of Simon Peter’s mother-in-law (Mt 8.14–15; Mk 1.29–31). While not stated explicitly, this incident is another “sabbath healing” (see 4.31n.). Simon Peter is more fully introduced in 5.1–11; 6.13–14.

4.40–41: Healings and exorcisms at sunset (Mt 8.16–17; Mk 1.32–34). With the sabbath ending at sundown, people began to present their problems and maladies to Jesus for attention and healing.

4.42–44: Departure and further preaching in Galilee (Mt 4.23; Mk 1.35–39). 44: This is the only express men-for him; and when they reached him, they wanted to prevent him from leaving them. 43 But he said to them, “I must proclaim the good news of the kingdom of God to the other cities also; for I was sent for this purpose.” 44 So he continued proclaiming the message in the synagogues of Judea. 8

5 Once while Jesus 9 was standing beside the lake of Gennesaret, and the crowd was pressing in on him to hear the word of God, 2 he saw two boats there at the shore of the lake; the fishermen had gone out of them and were washing their nets. 3 He got into one of the boats, the one belonging to Simon, and asked him to put out a little way from the shore. Then he sat down and taught the crowds from the boat. 4 When he had finished speaking, he said to Simon, “Put out into the deep water and let down your nets for a catch.” 5 Simon answered, “Master, we have worked all night long but have caught nothing. Yet if you say so, I will let down the nets.” 6 When they had done this, they caught so many fish that their nets were beginning to break. 7 So they signaled their partners in the other boat to come and help them. And they came and filled both boats, so that they began to sink. 8 But when Simon Peter saw it, he fell down at Jesus’ knees, saying, “Go away from me, Lord, for I am a sinful man!” 9 For he and all who were with him were amazed at the catch of fish that they had taken; 10 and so also were James and John, sons of Zebedee, who were partners with Simon. Then Jesus said to Simon, “Do not be afraid; from now on you will be catching people.” 11 When they had brought their boats to shore, they left everything and followed him.

12 Once, when he was in one of the cities, there was a man covered with leprosy. 13 When he saw Jesus, he bowed with his face to the ground and begged him, “Lord, if you choose, you can make me clean.” 14 Then Jesus stretched out his hand, touched him, and said, “I do choose. Be made clean.” Immediately the leprous left him. 14 And he ordered him to tell no one. “Go,” he said, “and show yourself to the priest, and, as Moses commanded, make an offering for your cleansing, for a testimony to them.” 15 But now more than ever the word about Jesus 9 spread abroad; many crowds would gather to hear him and to be cured of their diseases. 16 But he would withdraw to deserted places and pray.

17 One day, while he was teaching, Pharisees and teachers of the law were sitting near by (they had come from every village of Galilee and Judea and from Jerusalem); and the power of the Lord was with him to heal. 18 Just then some men came, carrying a paralyzed man on a bed. They were trying to bring him in and lay him before Jesus; 19 but finding no way to bring him in because of the crowd, they went up on the roof and let him down with his bed

a Other ancient authorities read Galilee
b Gk he
c The terms leper and leprosy can refer to several diseases
d Gk him
e Other ancient authorities read was present to heal them through the tiles into the middle of the crowd in front of Jesus.

20 When he saw their faith, he said, “Friend, your sins are forgiven you.”

21 Then the scribes and the Pharisees began to question, “Who is this who is speaking blasphemies? Who can forgive sins but God alone?”

22 When Jesus perceived their questionings, he answered them, “Why do you raise such questions in your hearts? Which is easier, to say, ‘Your sins are forgiven you,’ or to say, ‘Stand up and walk’? But so that you may know that the Son of Man has authority on earth to forgive sins”—he said to the one who was paralyzed—“I say to you, stand up and take your bed and go to your home.”

25 Immediately he stood up before them, took what he had been lying on, and went to his home, glorifying God.

26 Amazement seized all of them, and they glorified God and were filled with awe, saying, “We have seen strange things today.”

27 After this he went out and saw a tax collector named Levi, sitting at the tax booth; and he said to him, “Follow me.” And he got up, left everything, and followed him.

29 Then Levi gave a great banquet for him in his house; and there was a large crowd of tax collectors and others sitting at the table with them. The Pharisees and their scribes were complaining to his disciples, saying, “Why do you eat and drink with tax collectors and sinners?”

31 Jesus answered, “Those who are well have no need of a physician, but those who are sick; I have come to call not the righteous but sinners to repentance.”

33 Then they said to him, “John’s disciples, like the disciples of the Pharisees, frequently fast and pray, but your disciples eat and drink.”

34 Jesus said to them, “You cannot make wedding guests fast while the bridegroom is with them, can you? The days will come when the bridegroom will be taken away from them, and then they will fast in those days.”

36 He also told them a parable: “No one tears a piece from a new garment and sews it on an old garment; otherwise the new will be torn, and the piece from the new will not match the old. And no one puts new wine into old wineskins; otherwise the new wine will burst the skins and will be spilled, and the skins will be destroyed. But new wine must be put into fresh wineskins. And no one after drinking old wine desires new wine, but says, ‘The old is good.’”

6 One sabbath while Jesus was going through the grainfields, his disciples plucked some heads of grain, rubbed them in their hands, and ate them. But some of the Pharisees said, “Why are you doing what is not lawful on the sabbath?”

Mark’s account says the people “dug” a hole through which to lower the paralytic. The connection between forgiveness of sins and healing reflects an ancient belief that sickness resulted from sin (see Ex 34.7; Jn 9.2). Scribes, the group called “teachers of the law” at 5.17, were Jewish specialists in the law of Moses. Luke also refers to these persons as “lawyers,” e.g., 7.30. “Blasphemy” was a capital offense; see Lev 24.14–16. Son of Man, Jesus’ self-designation here and in other Gospel accounts is an ambiguous title that can be understood either to refer to Jesus as a human being among humans (e.g., Ps 8.4; Ezek 2.1) or to identify Jesus with the apocalyptic figure of Dan 7.13–14, who was often understood to be the coming messiah and deputy of God.

5.27–32: The call of Levi (Mt 9.9–13; Mk 2.13–17). Tax collectors worked directly or indirectly for the Roman overlords and were generally despised by the Jewish population. Levi is identified by some as Matthew (6.15; cf. Mt 10.3).

5.33–39: Debate about fasting (Mt 9.14–17; Mk 2.18–22). Jesus’ words refer to him as the bridegroom and to days when the bridegroom will be taken away from them as the time after his death and resurrection. Parable, memorable word-pictures or stories that captured and communicated in sometimes cryptic form the essence of Jesus’ message concerning God and God’s kingdom. Found only in Luke, this saying is difficult to interpret. It may be ironic, indicating that contentment with the old prevents openness to the new.

6.1–11: Eating and healing on the sabbath (Mt 12.1–14; Mk 2.23–3.6). Harvesting violated the sabbath.
“Have you not read what David did when he and his companions were hungry? He entered the house of God and took and ate the bread of the Presence, which it is not lawful for any but the priests to eat, and gave some to his companions?” Then he said to them, “The Son of Man is lord of the sabbath.”

On another sabbath he entered the synagogue and taught, and there was a man there whose right hand was withered. The scribes and the Pharisees watched him to see whether he would cure on the sabbath, so that they might find an accusation against him. Even though he knew what they were thinking, he said to the man who had the withered hand, “Come and stand here.” He got up and stood there. Then Jesus said to them, “I ask you, is it lawful to do good or to do harm on the sabbath, to save life or to destroy it?” After looking around at all of them, he said to him, “Stretch out your hand.” He did so, and his hand was restored.

But they were filled with fury and discussed with one another what they might do to Jesus.

Now during those days he went out to the mountain to pray; and he spent the night in prayer to God. And when day came, he called his disciples and chose twelve of them, whom he also named apostles: Simon, whom he named Peter, and his brother Andrew, and James, and John, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James son of Alphaeus, and Simon, who was called the Zealot, and Judas son of James, and Judas Iscariot, who became a traitor.

He came down with them and stood on a level place, with a great crowd of his disciples and a great multitude of people from all Judea, Jerusalem, and the coast of Tyre and Sidon. They had come to hear him and to be healed of their diseases; and those who were troubled with unclean spirits were cured. And all in the crowd were trying to touch him, for power came out from him and healed all of them.

Then he looked up at his disciples and said:

“Blessed are you who are poor, for yours is the kingdom of God.”

“Blessed are you who are hungry now, for you will be filled.”

“Blessed are you who weep now, for you will laugh.”

“Blessed are you when people hate you, and when they exclude you, revile you, and defame you on account of the Son of Man. Rejoice in that day and leap for joy, for surely your reward is great in heaven; for that is what their ancestors did to the prophets.”

“But woe to you who are rich,” Jesus said.

rest (Ex 34.21). 3–4: Luke’s version of this story does not name the priest as in Mk 2.23–26. 3: 1 Sam 21.1–6. 4: Lev 24.5–9. 5: See 5.24n. 6: See 4.31n. 11: The Gk word “anioa” translated “fury” more exactly means “lack of understanding.”

6.12–16: Jesus’ selection of the twelve (Mt 10.1–4; Mk 3.13–19a). Other lists of the twelve occur at Mt 10.2–4; Mk 3.16–19; Acts 1.13; while there is variation, Peter is always named first and Judas Iscariot is always named last. 13: “The twelve” (8.1; Acts 6.2; etc.) are a recognized and remembered group in early Christianity, and Luke designates the twelve to be apostles in such a way that the two titles are strictly equated. “Apostle” (from the Gk verb “apostellein,” “to send”) occurs in the New Testament to designate a Christian who was commissioned to preach the gospel, essentially as a missionary. 14: The “name” Peter is a nickname, meaning “rock.” 15: Zealots were a distinct faction of revolutionaries in the Jewish war with Rome of 66–70 CE, but whether this designation indicates that this Simon was zealous in a political fashion is debatable since it is unlikely that a Zealot party existed during Jesus’ life. 16: Iscariot is a peculiar term that probably means “the man from Kerioth” (see Josh 15.25); if so, then this Judas was the only Judean among the twelve.

6.17–19: The occasion of the preaching (Mt 4.24–5.2; Mk 3.7–13a). 18: Unclean spirits designates “spirits” that are contrary to God. “Clean” and “unclean” were religious terms, not strictly descriptions of sanitary conditions, and can be understood as categories of “holiness” or “sanctity.” 19: Luke emphasizes both that the thongs pressed on Jesus and that Jesus was a source of miraculous power.

6.20–23: The beatitudes (Mt 5.3–12). The focus is on economic and social conditions, not spiritual states.
25 “Woe to you who are full now, for you will be hungry. Woe to you who are laughing now, for you will mourn and weep.
26 “Woe to you when all speak well of you, for that is what their ancestors did to the false prophets.
27 “But I say to you that listen, Love your enemies, do good to those who hate you, bless those who curse you, pray for those who abuse you. If anyone strikes you on the cheek, offer the other also; and from anyone who takes away your coat do not withhold even your shirt. Give to everyone who begs from you; and if anyone takes away your goods, do not ask for them again. Do to others as you would have them do to you.
28 “If you love those who love you, what credit is that to you? For even sinners love those who love them. If you do good to those who do good to you, what credit is that to you? For even sinners do the same. But love your enemies, do good, and lend, expecting nothing in return. Your reward will be great, and you will be children of the Most High; for he is kind to the ungrateful and the wicked.
29 “Do not judge, and you will not be judged; do not condemn, and you will not be condemned. Forgive, and you will be forgiven; give, and it will be given to you. A good measure, pressed down, shaken together, running over, will be put into your lap; for the measure you give will be the measure you get back.”
30 He also told them a parable: “Can a blind person guide a blind person? Will not both fall into a pit? A disciple is not above the teacher, but everyone who is fully qualified will be like the teacher. Why do you see the speck in your neighbor’s eye, but do not notice the log in your own eye? Or how can you say to your neighbor, ‘Friend, let me take out the speck in your eye,’ when you yourself do not see the log in your own eye? You hypocrite, first take the log out of your own eye, and then you will see clearly to take the speck out of your neighbor’s eye.
31 No good tree bears bad fruit, nor again does a bad tree bear good fruit; for each tree is known by its own fruit. Figs are not gathered from thorns, nor are grapes picked from a bramble bush. The good person out of the good treasure of the heart produces good, and the evil person out of evil treasure produces evil; for it is out of the abundance of the heart that the mouth speaks.
32 “Why do you call me ‘Lord, Lord,’ and do not do what I tell you? I will show you what someone is like who comes to me, hears my words, and acts on them. That one is like a man building a house, who dug deeply and laid the foundation on rock; when a flood arose, the river burst against that house but could not shake it, because it had been well built. But the one who hears and does not act is like a man who built a house on the 6.24–26: The woes. These verses provide a point-by-point antithesis to the previous statements of blessing in vv. 20–23. Again, actual circumstances are the point of Jesus’ statements. In Jesus’ declarations of blessings and woes, the earthly status of those addressed will be reversed in the divinely determined future. 6.27–36: The love of enemies (Mt 5.38–48; 7:12). Jesus demands love and forbids spite or retaliation. 28: In Luke, Jesus gives an example of this on the cross in 23.34, if that verse is authentic. 31: Luke’s version of the “Golden Rule,” see Mt 7.12. 34–35: For Israelite laws concerning loans, see Ex 22.25; Lev 25.36–37; Deut 23.19–20. 36: Cf. Mt 5.48; God’s own actions and character provide the standard. 6.37–42: On judging others (Mt 7.1–5; 12.36–37; 15.14; Mk 4.24–25). 41–42: The form of this teaching is hyperbole. 6.43–45: The sources of good and evil (Mt 7.15–20; 12.33–35). Cf. Jas 3.11–12. 45: Heart, for the ancients the heart was the body’s mental and spiritual center. 6.46–49: The wise and the foolish builders (Mt 7.21–27). Cf. Jas 1.22–25.

After Jesus had finished all his sayings in the hearing of the people, he entered Capernaum. A centurion there had a slave whom he valued highly, and who was ill and close to death. When he heard about Jesus, he sent some Jewish elders to him, asking him to come and heal his slave. When they came to Jesus, they appealed to him earnestly, saying, “He is worthy of having you do this for him, for he loves our people, and it is he who built our synagogue for us.” And Jesus went with them, but when he was not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to say to him, “Lord, do not trouble yourself, for I am not worthy to have you come under my roof; I am not worthy to have you come under my roof; therefore I did not presume to come to you. But only speak the word, and let my servant be healed. For I also am a man set under authority, with soldiers under me; and I say one, ‘Go,’ and he goes, and to another, ‘Come,’ and he comes, and to my slave, ‘Do this,’ and the slave does it.” When Jesus heard this he was amazed at him, and turning to the crowd that followed him, he said, “I tell you, not even in Israel have I found such faith.” When those who had been sent returned to the house, they found the slave in good health.

Soon afterwards he went to a town called Nain, and his disciples and a large crowd went with him. As he approached the gate of the town, a man who had died was being carried out. He was his mother’s only son, and she was a widow; and with her was a large crowd from the town. When the Lord saw her, he had compassion for her and said to her, “Do not weep.” Then he came forward and touched the bier, and the bearers stood still. And he said, “Young man, I say to you, rise!” The dead man sat up and began to speak, and Jesus gave him to his mother. Fear seized all of them; and they glorified God, saying, “A great prophet has risen among us!” and “God has looked favorably on his people!” This word about him spread throughout Judea and all the surrounding country.

The disciples of John reported all these things to him. So John summoned two of his disciples and sent them to the Lord to ask, “Are you the one who is to come, or are we to wait for another?” When the men had come to him, they said, “John the Baptist has sent us to you to ask, ‘Are you the one who is to come, or are we to wait for another?’” Jesus had just then cured many people of diseases, plagues, and evil spirits, and had given sight to many who were blind. And he answered them, “Go and tell John what you have seen and heard: the blind receive sight, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, the poor have good news brought to them. And blessed is anyone who takes no offense at me.”

7.1–10: The centurion’s slave (Mt 8.5–13). This story parallels the account of Peter’s conversion of the Gentile centurion Cornelius, who was also generous to the Jews; see Acts 10.2,34–35. 2: Centurion, an officer in charge of a company of 100 soldiers. Clearly a Gentile, this particular centurion was either an employee of Herod Antipas, a member of the Roman police force, or an official attached to the customs service. 3: Elders, leaders in the Jewish community. 6: According to Acts 10.28, the house of a Gentile was considered unclean, and entering such a home defiled a Jew (see also m. Oholot 18.7). 9: Though Luke lacks the climactic utterance of Mt 8.13, his intent is the same: The faith of a Gentile is acceptable to Jesus (4.27; 5.32).

7.11–17: The widow’s son at Nain. Cf. 1 Kings 17.17–24; 2 Kings 4.32–37; see Lk 4.25–26. 11: Nain, about 37 km (23 mi) southwest of Capernaum. 12: Cemeteries were usually located outside a city or town. This description of the widow implies that she is utterly destitute with the death of her son. 16: Apparently the similarity of Jesus’ action to that of Elijah in raising the only son of a widow of Zarephath (1 Kings 17) elicits the reaction of the crowd. 17: See 4.42–44n.

7.18–35: Jesus and John the Baptist (Mt 11.2–19). 18: John the Baptist was at this time in prison (see 2.9) at Machaerus, east of the Dead Sea. 19: Lord, Luke’s own title for Jesus. The one who is to come, the messiah.
When John’s messengers had gone, Jesus began to speak to the crowds about John: “What did you go out into the wilderness to look at? A reed shaken by the wind? What then did you go out to see? Someone dressed in soft robes? Look, those who put on fine clothing and live in luxury are in royal palaces. What then did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes, I tell you, and more than a prophet. This is the one about whom it is written, ‘See, I am sending my messenger ahead of you, who will prepare your way before you.’ I tell you, among those born of women no one is greater than John; yet the least in the kingdom of God is greater than he.” (And all the people who heard this, including the tax collectors, acknowledged the justice of God, because they had been baptized with John’s baptism. But by refusing to be baptized by him, the Pharisees and the lawyers rejected God’s purpose for themselves.)

“To what then will I compare the people of this generation, and what are they like? They are like children sitting in the marketplace and calling to one another, ‘We played the flute for you, and you did not dance; we wailed, and you did not weep.’ For John the Baptist has come eating no bread and drinking no wine, and you say, ‘He has a demon’; the Son of Man has come eating and drinking, and you say, ‘Look, a glutton and a drunkard, a friend of tax collectors and sinners!’ Nevertheless, wisdom is vindicated by all her children.”

One of the Pharisees asked Jesus to eat with him, and he went into the Pharisee’s house and took his place at the table.

A woman in the city, who was a sinner, having learned that he was eating in the Pharisee’s house, brought an alabaster jar of ointment. She stood behind him at his feet, weeping, and began to bathe his feet with her tears and to dry them with her hair. Then she continued kissing his feet and anointing them with the ointment. Now when the Pharisee who had invited him saw it, he said to himself, “If this man were a prophet, he would have known who and what kind of woman this is who is touching him—that she is a sinner.” Jesus spoke up and said to him, “Simon, I have something to say to you.” “Teacher,” he replied, “speak.” “A certain creditor had two debtors; one owed five hundred denarii, and the other fifty. When they could not pay, he canceled the debts for both of them. Now which of them will love him more?” Simon answered, “I suppose the one for whom he canceled the greater debt.” And Jesus said to him, “You have judged rightly.” Then turning toward the woman, he said to Simon, “Do you see this woman? I entered your house; you gave me no water for my feet, but she has bathed my feet with her tears and dried them with her hair. You gave me no kiss, but from the time I came in she has not stopped kissing my feet. You did not anoint my head with oil, but she has anointed my feet with ointment.”

a Gk he
b Gk him
c Or Why then did you go out? To see someone d Or praised God
e The denarius was the usual day’s wage for a laborer

24–30: Jesus’ statements concerning John indicate the nature of the relationship between them. John is Jesus’ precursor, the messenger mentioned in Mal 3:1 and identified in Mal 3:23 as Elijah. John, then, is an Elijah-like figure, not Elijah reincarnated. 27: Ex 23.20; Mal 3.1. 28: A pivotal point arises with the ministries of John and Jesus. 30: The Pharisees and the lawyers are specific, not simply all, members of their classes. 33: Demon possession is offered as the explanation of unconventional behavior or attitudes that were deemed unacceptable or inappropriate. 35: The personification of “Wisdom” is a way to speak of God and God’s purposes; thus, Wisdom’s children are those who do God’s will.

7.36–50: Simon the Pharisee, Jesus, and the woman with the ointment (Mt 26.6–13; Mk 14.3–9; Jn 12.1–8). 37: Houses seem to have been open to intrusion of this kind (cf. Mk 1.33; 2.2). The story seems to presuppose a previous encounter between Jesus and the woman, a story not told in this Gospel. 38: Jesus reclined at the banquet table, stretching out his feet on a couch. The motivation for the woman’s anointing Jesus’ feet rather than ment. Therefore, I tell you, her sins, which were many, have been forgiven; hence she has shown great love. But the one to whom little is forgiven, loves little.” Then he said to her, “Your sins are forgiven.” But those who were at the table with him began to say among themselves, “Who is this who even forgives sins?” And he said to the woman, “Your faith has saved you; go in peace.”

Soon afterwards he went on through cities and villages, proclaiming and bringing the good news of the kingdom of God. The twelve were with him, as well as some women who had been cured of evil spirits and infirmities: Mary, called Magdalene, from whom seven demons had gone out, and Joanna, the wife of Herod’s steward Chuza, and Susanna, and many others, who provided for them out of their resources.

When a great crowd gathered and people from town after town came to him, he said in a parable: “A sower went out to sow his seed; and as he sowed, some fell on the path and was trampled on, and the birds of the air ate it up. Some fell on the rock; and as it grew up, it withered for lack of moisture. Some fell among thorns, and the thorns grew with it and choked it. Some fell into good soil, and when it grew, it produced a hundred-fold.” As he said this, he called out, “Let anyone with ears to hear listen!”

Then his disciples asked him what this parable meant. He said, “To you it has been given to know the secrets of the kingdom of God; but to others I speak in parables, so that looking they may not perceive, and listening they may not understand.’

“Now the parable is this: The seed is the word of God. The ones on the path are those who have heard; then the devil comes and takes away the word from their hearts, so that they may not believe and be saved. The ones on the rock are those who, when they hear the word, receive it with joy. But these have no root; they believe only for a while and in a time of testing fall away. As for what fell among the thorns, these are the ones who hear; but as they go on their way, they are choked by the cares and riches and pleasures of life, and their fruit does not mature. But as for that in the good soil, these are the ones who, when they hear the word, hold it fast in an honest and good heart, and bear fruit with patient endurance.

No one after lighting a lamp hides it under a jar, or puts it under a bed, but puts it outside, for it gives light to everyone who sees it. In the same way, let your light shine before people in order that they may see your good works and glorify your Father in heaven.”

his head, which was the normal action, is uncertain. 47: Hence she has shown great love, her great love proving that her many sins had been forgiven. Cf. v. 48; 5.20. 50: Cf. 8.48; 17.19; 18.42. The story combines the ideas of faith, salvation, forgiveness, and peace.

8.1–3: Jesus’ tour and the ministering women. These verses recall the itinerant character of Jesus’ preaching, teaching, and healing. His entourage included the unusual combination of male and female followers. Given ancient Palestinian attitudes toward women, this association of these Galilean women with Jesus’ ministry is remarkable, as is the mixture of the sexes among the followers. Many of those persons mentioned here later follow Jesus to Jerusalem and witness his arrest, crucifixion, death, burial, empty tomb, and resurrection appearances. See 23.49. 2: Mary, called Magdalene, apparently came from Magdala on the western coast of the Sea of Galilee. There is no evidence to identify her with the woman in 7.36–50. 3: Herod’s steward was probably a domestic administrator. Others, i.e., other women.

8.4–8: Parable of the sower (Mt 13.1–9; Mk 4.1–9). 4–8: The parable invites allegorization, which follows in 8.11–15.

8.9–10: Jesus’ explanation of parables (Mt 13.10–17; Mk 4.1–10). 10: Paraphrase of Isa 6.9–10. See Mk 4.11; Mt 13.11; Jer 5.21; Ezek 12.2. The meaning of the statement is enigmatic and implies that parables deliberately created obscurity while actually revealing a message.

8.11–15: Interpretation of the parable of the sower (Mt 13.18–23; Mk 4.13–20). 15: The words honest and good, here spoken of the heart (cf. Mk 7.21–23), echo the classical Greek description of the true gentleman. Heart, see 6.45n.

8.16–18: On obedient listening (Mt 5.15; 10.26; 13.12; Mk 4.21–25).
on a lampstand, so that those who enter may see the light. 17 For nothing is hidden that will not be disclosed, nor is anything secret that will not become known and come to light. 18 Then pay attention to how you listen; for to those who have, more will be given; and from those who do not have, even what they seem to have will be taken away.”

19 Then his mother and his brothers came to him, but they could not reach him because of the crowd. 20 And he was told, “Your mother and your brothers are standing outside, wanting to see you.” 21 But he said to them, “My mother and my brothers are those who hear the word of God and do it.”

22 One day he got into a boat with his disciples, and he said to them, “Let us go across to the other side of the lake.” So they put out, 23 and while they were sailing he fell asleep. A windstorm swept down on the lake, and the boat was filling with water, and they were in danger. 24 They went to him and woke him up, shouting, “Master, Master, we are perishing!” And he woke up and rebuked the wind and the raging waves; they ceased, and there was a calm. 25 He said to them, “Where is your faith?” They were afraid and amazed, and said to one another, “Who then is this, that he commands even the winds and the water, and they obey him?”

26 Then they arrived at the country of the Gerasenes,a which is opposite Galilee. 27 As he stepped out on land, a man of the city who had demons met him. For a long time he had wornb no clothes, and he did not live in a house but in the tombs. 28 When he saw Jesus, he fell down before him and shouted at the top of his voice, “What have you to do with me, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I beg you, do not torment me”— 29 for Jesusc had commanded the unclean spirit to come out of the man. (For many times it had seized him; he was kept under guard and bound with chains and shackles, but he would break the bonds and be driven by the demon into the wilds.) 30 Jesus then asked him, “What is your name?” He said, “Legion”; for many demons had entered him. 31 They begged him not to order them to go back into the abyss. 32 Now there on the hillside a large herd of swine was feeding; and the demonsd begged Jesuse to let them enter these. So he gave them permission. 33 Then the demons came

---

8.19–21: Jesus’ true relatives (Mt 12.46–50; Mk 3.31–35). 19: Brothers, four names are given in Mk 6.3, and there is also a mention of sisters. A variety of explanations come from the early church, usually arguing that they were sons of Joseph by a previous marriage, or that they were cousins, or that they were the natural children of Joseph and Mary. 21: Luke seems to soften Mark’s version of Jesus’ reply, not reporting items such as Mk 3.20–21,33, so that the natural family of Jesus is not rejected as Jesus highlights the importance of obedience to God as the essential criterion for intimacy and mutual concern among Jesus’ followers.

8.22–25: Winds and water obey (Mt 8.23–27; Mk 4.35–41). Power over the elements is a divine capacity often celebrated in the Psalms and other texts (see Ps 104.28–30).

8.26–39: The Gerasene demoniac (Mt 8.28–34; Mk 5.1–20). 26: Gerasenes, the territory of the city of Gerasa (modern Jerash) was in central Transjordan; its population was largely non-Jewish. Mt 8.28 situates this event in Gadara, southeast of the Sea of Galilee, a setting that fits the narrative somewhat better. 28: The demon-possessed man recognized Jesus’ true identity. 30: The inquiry after the name of the demon-possessed man probably reflects the ancient idea that knowledge of the name of a supernatural power gave one an advantage over it (see, e.g., Gen 32.29). Legion, the technical term for a division of the Roman army, usually consisting of about five thousand troops; thus the name suggests a horde of demons (see 11.24–26). 31: Abyss, a place of confinement for demonic forces which, though hostile to God, are ultimately under his control (Rev 9.1–11; 11.7; 17.8; 20.1–3). The words attribute a judicial authority to Jesus (as do Mt 7.21–23; 11.20–24). 32: Swine, Jews were prohibited from eating pork (Lev 11.7; Deut 14.8), but the pigs were raised for the large Gentile population that lived in sections of Palestine. Contrast Jesus’ instructions to “declare how much God has done for you” with the man’s action of “proclaiming throughout the city how much Jesus has done for him.”
out of the man and entered the swine, and the herd rushed down the steep bank into the lake and was drowned.

34 When the swineherds saw what had happened, they ran off and told it in the city and in the country. 35 Then people came out to see what had happened, and when they came to Jesus, they found the man from whom the demons had gone sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed and in his right mind. And they were afraid. 36 Those who had seen it told them how the one who had been possessed by demons had been healed. 37 Then all the people of the surrounding country of the Gerasenes asked Jesus to leave them; for they were seized with great fear. So he got into the boat and returned.

38 The man from whom the demons had gone begged that he might be with him; but Jesus sent him away, saying, “Return to your home, and declare how much God has done for you.” So he went away, proclaiming throughout the city how much Jesus had done for him.

39 Now when Jesus returned, the crowd welcomed him, for they were all waiting for him. 40 Just then there came a man named Jairus, a leader of the synagogue. He fell at Jesus’ feet and begged him to come to his house, for he had an only daughter, about twelve years old, who was dying.

As he went, the crowds pressed in on him. 41 Now there was a woman who had been suffering from hemorrhages for twelve years; and though she had spent all she had on physicians, no one could cure her. 42 She came up behind him and touched the fringe of his clothes, and immediately her hemorrhage stopped.

43 Then Jesus asked, “Who touched me?” When all denied it, Peter said, “Master, the crowds surround you and press in on you.” 44 But Jesus said, “Someone touched me; for I noticed that power had gone out from me.” 45 When the woman saw that she could not remain hidden, she came trembling; and falling down before him, she declared in the presence of all the people why she had touched him, and how she had been immediately healed. 46 He said to her, “Daughter, your faith has made you well; go in peace.”

47 While he was still speaking, someone came from the leader’s house to say, “Your daughter is dead; do not trouble the teacher any longer.” 48 When Jesus heard this, he replied, “Do not fear. Only believe, and she will be saved.” 49 When he came to the house, he did not allow anyone to enter with him, except Peter, John, and James, and the child’s father and mother. 50 They were all weeping and wailing for her; but he said, “Do not weep; for she is not dead but sleeping.” 51 And they laughed at him, knowing that she was dead. 52 But he took her by the hand and called out, “Child, get up!” 53 Her spirit returned, and she got up at once. Then he directed them to give her something to eat. 54 Her parents were astounded; but he ordered them to tell no one what had happened.

9 Then Jesus called the twelve together and gave them power and authority over all demons and to cure diseases, and he sent them out to proclaim the kingdom of God and to heal.

He said to them, “Take nothing for your journey, no staff, nor bag, nor bread, nor money—not even an extra tunic.

Whatever house you enter, stay there, and leave from there. Wherever they do not welcome you, as you are leaving that town shake... the dust off your feet as a testimony against them.” 4 They departed and went through the villages, bringing the good news and curing diseases everywhere. 5

Now Herod the ruler a heard about all that had taken place, and he was perplexed, because it was said by some that John had been raised from the dead, b by some that Elijah had appeared, and by others that one of the ancient prophets had arisen. 6 Herod said, “John I beheaded; but who is this about whom I hear such things?” And he tried to see him.

7 On their return the apostles told Jesus b all they had done. He took them with him and withdrew privately to a city called Bethsaida. 8 When the crowds found out about it, they followed him; and he welcomed them, and spoke to them about the kingdom of God, and healed those who needed to be cured.

9 The day was drawing to a close, and the twelve came to him and said, “Send the crowd away, so that they may go into the surrounding villages and countryside, to lodge and get provisions; for we are here in a deserted place.” 10 But he said to them, “You give them something to eat.” They said, “We have no more than five loaves and two fish—unless we are to go and buy food for all these people.” 11 For there were about five thousand men. And he said to his disciples, “Make them sit down in groups of about fifty each.” 12 They did so and made them all sit down.

13 And taking the five loaves and the two fish, he looked up to heaven, and blessed and broke them, and gave them to the disciples to set before the crowd. 14 And all ate and were filled. What was left over was gathered up, twelve baskets of broken pieces.

15 Once when Jesus d was praying alone, with only the disciples near him, he asked them, “Who do the crowds say that I am?” 16 They answered, “John the Baptist; but others, Elijah; and still others, that one of the ancient prophets has arisen.” 17 He said to them, “But who do you say that I am?” Peter answered, “The Messiah d of God.” 18 He sternly ordered and commanded them not to tell anyone, 19 saying, “The Son of Man must undergo great suffering, and be rejected by the elders, chief priests, and scribes, and be killed, and on the third day be raised.” 20 Then he said to them all, “If any want to become my followers, let them deny themselves and take up their cross daily and follow me.”

5: The act of shaking off dust was a graphic demonstration of renunciation of further responsibility for those who did not welcome the twelve; cf. 10.10–12.

9.7–9: Herod’s curiosity about Jesus (Mt 14.1–2; Mk 6.14–16). Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great; see 3.1n. Cf. 9.18–19. 9: John I beheaded, see Mk 6.17–29.

9.12–17: Feeding of the five thousand (Mt 14.15–21; Mk 6.35–44; Jn 6.5–14). The one story from the account of Jesus’ ministry that occurs in all four canonical Gospels. 14: Five thousand men, not counting any women and children. 16: The language of this sentence anticipates the account of the Last Supper in 22.17–20.

9.18–20: Peter’s confession (Mt 16.13–19; Mk 8.27–29). 19: The answers to Jesus’ question illustrate the variety of expectations (some messianic) among Jews of Jesus’ day. The Messiah of God, translates Gk “ho christos tou theou,” lit., “God’s anointed one,” a title that typically named a royal Davidic leader who would reconstitute the former political glory of Israel for the people and the nation.

9.21–22: Jesus’ command to silence and first prediction of his death (Mt 16.20–21; Mk 8.30–31). Jesus’ forceful direction to silence probably reflects his attempt to prevent misunderstandings of his “messianic” work. In turn, Luke’s version of this first prediction does not include the attempt of Peter to redirect Jesus’ thinking and commitments, so that Peter’s previous confession (9.20) maintains more force in this version of the story than in Mark’s account, in which Jesus sharply rebukes him (Mk 8.32–33).

9.23–27: The requirements of discipleship (Mt 16.24–28; Mk 8.34–9.1). Take up their cross daily and follow me, the Greek is not cast in the plural (any . . . their) but in the singular (lit., “anyone . . . his”), so that the challenge their life will lose it, and those who lose their life for my sake will save it. 25 What does it profit them if they gain the whole world, but lose or forfeit themselves? 26 Those who are ashamed of me and of my words, of them the Son of Man will be ashamed when he comes in his glory and the glory of the Father and of the holy angels. 27 But truly I tell you, there are some standing here who will not taste death before they see the kingdom of God.”

28 Now about eight days after these sayings Jesus took with him Peter and John and James, and went up on the mountain to pray. 29 And while he was praying, the appearance of his face changed, and his clothes became dazzling white. 30 Suddenly they saw two men, Moses and Elijah, talking to him. 31 They appeared in glory and were speaking of his departure, which he was about to accomplish at Jerusalem. 32 Now Peter and his companions were weighed down with sleep; but since they had stayed awake, 3 they saw his glory and the two men who stood with him. 33 Just as they were leaving him, Peter said to Jesus, “Master, it is good for us to be here; let us make three dwellings, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah”—not knowing what he said. 34 While he was saying this, a cloud came and overshadowed them; and they were terrified as they entered the cloud. 35 Then from the cloud came a voice that said, “This is my Son, my Chosen; listen to him!” 36 When the voice had spoken, Jesus was found alone. And they kept silent and in those days told no one any of the things they had seen.

37 On the next day, when they had come down from the mountain, a great crowd met him. 38 Just then a man from the crowd shouted, “Teacher, I beg you to look at my son; he is my only child. Suddenly a spirit seizes him, and all at once he shrieks. It convulses him until he foams at the mouth; it mauls him and will scarcely leave him. 40 I begged your disciples to cast it out, but they could not.” 41 Jesus answered, “You faithless and perverse generation, how much longer must I be with you and bear with you? Bring your son here.” 42 While he was coming, the demon dashed him to the ground in convulsions. But Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, healed the boy, and gave him back to his father. 43 And all were astounded at the greatness of God.

While everyone was amazed at all that he was doing, he said to his disciples, 44 “Let these words sink into your ears: The Son of Man is going to be betrayed into human hands.” 45 But they did not understand this saying; its meaning was concealed from is intensely personal. The temporal qualifier daily makes clear the ongoing character of discipleship. 26: Jesus’ words anticipate a final day of divine judgment. 27: Jesus’ enigmatic statement invites various interpretations; one is that it refers to the time after the resurrection.

---

9.28–36: The Transfiguration (Mt 17.1–9; Mk 9.2–10). This account recalls an intense religious experience, the exact nature of which is uncertain. The aura of unnatural brilliance is associated with mystical experiences elsewhere (Ex 34.29–35; Acts 9.3). 28: About eight days, may merely indicate the passage of a week, but in the early church “the eighth day” became a designation for both the Lord’s day and the day of Jesus’ resurrection, the first day of a new creation. 30: Moses and Elijah, two paragons of the faith of Israel: Moses was the lawgiver and Elijah the great prophet. 31: Departure, lit., “exodus,” probably referring to Jesus’ death, resurrection, and ascension. 32: The sleepy condition of the disciples may indicate that this event transpired at night (cf. 22.45). 33: Peter’s suggestion concerning three dwellings demonstrates his desire to preserve the experience. 34: The association of God with a cloud in reminiscent of Israel’s exodus experience of God, see Ex 13.17–22. 35: The voice is clearly that of God (see 3.22), and the command, listen to him, focuses the attention and obedience of the disciples on Jesus above all others.

9.37–43a: Jesus heals an afflicted boy (Mt 17.14–21; Mk 9.14–29). The description of the boy’s malady leads some scholars to conclude that the boy had epilepsy, but any diagnosis is speculative.

9.43b–45: A second prediction (Mt 17.22–23; Mk 9.30–32). Cf. 9.22; 18.31–33. 44: 9.22; 18.31–34; 17.25. 45: The comment is based on the view that (a) the messiah’s death was not part of the disciples’ Jewish faith, and them, so that they could not perceive it. And they were afraid to ask him about this saying. 46 An argument arose among them as to which one of them was the greatest. 47 But Jesus, aware of their inner thoughts, took a little child and put it by his side, 48 and said to them, “Whoever welcomes this child in my name welcomes me, and whoever welcomes me welcomes the one who sent me; for the least among all of you is the greatest.”

49 John answered, “Master, we saw someone casting out demons in your name, and we tried to stop him, because he does not follow with us.” 50 But Jesus said to him, “Do not stop him; for whoever is not against you is for you.”

51 When the days drew near for him to be taken up, he set his face to go to Jerusalem. 52 And he sent messengers ahead of him. On their way they entered a village of the Samaritans to make ready for him; 53 but they did not receive him, because his face was set toward Jerusalem. 54 When his disciples James and John saw it, they said, “Lord, do you want us to command fire to come down from heaven and consume them?” 55 But he turned and rebuked them. 56 Then ⁵⁵ they went on to another village.

⁵⁶ As they were going along the road, someone said to him, “I will follow you wherever you go.” 58 And Jesus said to him, “Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of Man has nowhere to lay his head.” 59 To another he said, “Follow me.” But he said, “Lord, first let me go and bury my father.” 60 But Jesus ⁵⁶ said to him, “Let the dead bury their own dead; but as for you, go and proclaim the kingdom of God.” 61 Another said, “I will follow you, Lord; but let me first say farewell to those at my home.” 62 Jesus said to him, “No one who puts a hand to the plow and looks back is fit for the kingdom of God.”

After this the Lord appointed seventy ⁹ some others and sent them on ahead of him in pairs to every town and place where he himself intended to go. ² He said to them, “The harvest is plentiful, but the laborers

(a) Other ancient authorities read as Elijah did
(b) Other ancient authorities read rebuked them, and said, “You do not know what spirit you are of, ⁶⁴ for the Son of Man has not come to destroy the lives of human beings but to save them.” Then
(c) Gk he
(d) Other ancient authorities read seventy-two are few; therefore ask the Lord of the harvest to send out laborers into his harvest. Go on your way. See, I am sending you out like lambs into the midst of wolves. Carry no purse, no bag, no sandals; and greet no one on the road. Whatever house you enter, first say, 'Peace to this house!' And if anyone is there who shares in peace, your peace will rest on that person; but if not, it will return to you. Remain in the same house, eating and drinking whatever they provide, for the laborer deserves to be paid. Do not move about from house to house. Whenever you enter a town and its people welcome you, eat what is set before you; cure the sick who are there, and say to them, 'The kingdom of God has come near to you.' But whenever you enter a town and they do not welcome you, go out into its streets and say, 'Even the dust of your town that clings to our feet, we wipe off in protest against you. Yet know this: the kingdom of God has come near.' I tell you, on that day it will be more tolerable for Sodom than for that town.

⁴ Go on your way. See, I am sending you out like lambs into the midst of wolves. Carry no purse, no bag, no sandals; and greet no one on the road. Whatever house you enter, first say, 'Peace to this house!' And if anyone is there who shares in peace, your peace will rest on that person; but if not, it will return to you. Remain in the same house, eating and drinking whatever they provide, for the laborer deserves to be paid. Do not move about from house to house. Whenever you enter a town and its people welcome you, eat what is set before you; cure the sick who are there, and say to them, 'The kingdom of God has come near to you.' But whenever you enter a town and they do not welcome you, go out into its streets and say, 'Even the dust of your town that clings to our feet, we wipe off in protest against you. Yet know this: the kingdom of God has come near.' I tell you, on that day it will be more tolerable for Sodom than for that town. ⁵ “Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! For if the deeds of power done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago, sitting in sackcloth and ashes. ⁶ But at the judgment it will be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon than for you. ⑤ And you, Capernaum, will you be exalted to heaven? No, you will be brought down to Hades. ⁷ Whoever listens to you listens to me, and whoever rejects me rejects me, and whoever rejects me rejects the one who sent me.”

17 The seventy returned with joy, saying, “Lord, in your name even the demons submit to us!” He said to them, “I watched Satan fall from heaven like a flash of lightning. See, I have given you authority to tread on snakes and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy; and nothing will hurt you. ²⁰ Nevertheless, do not rejoice at this, that the spirits submit to you, but rejoice that your names are written in heaven.”

²¹ At that same hour Jesus rejoiced in the Holy Spirit and said, “I thank you, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because you have hidden these things from the wise and the intelligent and have revealed them to infants; yes, Father, for such was your gracious will. ²² All things have been handed over to me by my Father; and no one knows who the Son is except the Father, or who the Father is except the Son and anyone to whom the Son chooses to reveal him.”

²³ Then turning to the disciples, Jesus said to them privately, “Blessed are the eyes that see what you see! For I tell you that many prophets and kings desired to see what you see, but did not see it, and to hear what you hear, but did not hear it."

10.16: Jesus’ interpretation of the mission (Mt 10.40).
10.17–20: Return of the seventy (Mt 11.25–27). 17: Even the demons submit to us, unlike the twelve (9.1), the seventy had not been promised this power. 18: I watched Satan fall from heaven, alluding to the victory of the seventy over the demons; cf. Isa 14.15; Jn 12.31; Rev 12.7–12. 20: Jesus did not regard exorcism in itself as a sign of God’s kingdom (11.19). Written in heaven, Dan 12.1; Ps 69.28; Ex 32.32.

10.23–24: Jesus’ blessing of the disciples (Mt 13.16–17).
Teacher,” he said, “what must I do to inherit eternal life?” He said to him, “What is written in the law? What do you read there?” He answered, “You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your strength, and with all your mind; and your neighbor as yourself.” And he said to him, “You have given the right answer; do this, and you will live.”

But wanting to justify himself, he asked Jesus, “And who is my neighbor?” Jesus replied, “A man was going down from Jerusalem to Jericho, and fell into the hands of robbers, who stripped him, beat him, and went away, leaving him half dead. Now by chance a priest was going down that road; and when he saw him, he passed by on the other side. So likewise a Levite, when he came to the place and saw him, passed by on the other side. But a Samaritan, while traveling came near him; and when he saw him, he was moved with pity. He went to him and bandaged his wounds, having poured oil and wine on them. Then he put him on his own animal, brought him to an inn, and took care of him. The next day he took out two denarii, gave them to the innkeeper, and said, ‘Take care of him; and when I come back, I will repay you whatever more you spend.’

Which of these three, do you think, was a neighbor to the man who fell into the hands of the robbers?” He said, “The one who showed him mercy.” Jesus said to him, “Go and do likewise.”

Now as they went on their way, he entered a certain village, where a woman named Martha welcomed him into her home. She had a sister named Mary, who sat at the Lord’s feet and listened to what he was saying. But Martha was distracted by her many tasks; so she came to him and asked, “Lord, do you not care that my sister has left me to do all the work by myself? Tell her then to help me.” But the Lord answered her, “Martha, Martha, you are worried and distracted by many things; there is need of only one thing. Mary has chosen the better part, which will not be taken away from her.”

He was praying in a certain place, and after he had finished, one of his disciples said to him, “Lord, teach us to pray, as John taught his disciples.” He said to them, “When you pray, say: Father, hallowed be your name. Your kingdom come. Give us each day our daily bread. And forgive us our sins, for we ourselves forgive everyone indebted to us. And do not bring us to the time of trial.”

25. A lawyer, an expert in the law of Moses, probably synonymous with “scribe” and likely affiliated with or belonging to the party of the Pharisees. 27. Deut 6.5; Lev 19.18. 28. Deut 10.25–28: Parable of the Good Samaritan. 29. Justify himself means to show himself to be righteous, acceptable to God. 30. Down from Jerusalem to Jericho, about 18 mi (30 km) with a drop in elevation from about 2,500 ft (760 m) above sea level to about 820 ft (250 m) below sea level. The road between the cities was notoriously dangerous. 31–33: The priest represented the highest religious leadership among the Jews; the Levite (v. 32) belonged to minor clergy below the priest. In contrast, it was a Samaritan (see 9.52n.), a foreigner not expected to show sympathy to Jews, who was moved with pity. 34: The oil served as a salve (see Isa 1.6) and the wine as an antiseptic. 35. Two denarii would provide approximately two months of lodging in an ancient inn. 38. Now as they went on their way, he entered a certain village, where a woman named Martha welcomed him into her home. 39. She had a sister named Mary, who sat at the Lord’s feet and listened to what he was saying. 40. But Martha was distracted by her many tasks; so she came to him and asked, “Lord, do you not care that my sister has left me to do all the work by myself? Tell her then to help me.” But the Lord answered her, “Martha, Martha, you are worried and distracted by many things; there is need of only one thing. Mary has chosen the better part, which will not be taken away from her.”

11. The Lord’s Prayer. This model prayer appears in a more elaborate form in Mt 6.9–13. In both Matthew and Luke there is an eschatological cast to the petitions, yet the concerns specified are related to daily life.
And he said to them, “Suppose one of you has a friend, and you go to him at midnight and say to him, ‘Friend, lend me three loaves of bread; ’ for a friend of mine has arrived, and I have nothing to set before him.’ And he answers from within, ‘Do not bother me; the door has already been locked, and my children are with me in bed; I cannot get up and give you anything.’ I tell you, even though he will not get up and give him anything because he is his friend, at least because of his persistence he will get up and give him whatever he needs.

“So I say to you, Ask, and it will be given you; search, and you will find; knock, and the door will be opened for you. For everyone who asks receives, and everyone who searches finds, and for everyone who knocks, the door will be opened. Is there anyone among you who, if your child asks for a fish, will give a snake instead of a fish? Or if the child asks for an egg, will give a scorpion? If you then, who are evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will the heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to those who ask him!”

Now he was casting out a demon that was mute; when the demon had gone out, the one who had been mute spoke, and the crowds were amazed. But some of them said, “He casts out demons by Beelzebul, the ruler of the demons.” Others, to test him, kept demanding from him a sign from heaven. But he knew what they were thinking and said to them, “Every kingdom divided against itself becomes a desert, and house falls on house. If Satan also is divided against himself, how will his kingdom stand? —for you say that I cast out the demons by Beelzebul. Now if I cast out the demons by Beelzebul, by whom do your exorcists cast them out? Therefore they will be your judges. But if it is by the finger of God that I cast out the demons, then the kingdom of God has come to you. When a strong man, fully armed, guards his castle, his property is safe. But when one stronger than he attacks him and overpowers him, he takes away his armor in which he trusted and divides his plunder. Whoever is not with me is against me, and whoever does not gather with me scatters.

When the unclean spirit has gone out of a person, it wanders through waterless regions looking for a resting place, but not finding any, it says, ‘I will return to my house from which I came.’ When it comes, it finds it swept and put in order. Then it goes and brings seven other spirits more evil than itself, and they enter and live there; and the last state of that person is worse than the first.”

While he was saying this, a woman in the crowd raised her voice and said to him, “Blessed is the womb that bore you and the breasts that nursed you!” But he said, “Blessed rather are those who hear the word of God and obey it!” When the crowds were increasing, he began to say, “This generation is an evil generation.”

---

11.5–8: Teaching about persistence (Mt 7.7–11). Cf. Lk 18.1–5. 5–8: Following the Lord’s Prayer, this parable in Luke relates to persistence in prayer.

11.14–23: The Beelzebul controversy (Mt 12.22–30; Mk 3.22–27). 15: Beelzebul, the ruler of the demons, Satan (see v. 18); Beelzebul was originally a title of the Canaanite storm and fertility god Baal (see 2 Kings 1.2). 16: The request for a sign comes almost immediately after Jesus restores the power of speech to one afflicted with muteness. 20: Ex 8.19. Finger stands for God’s power. The kingdom of God has come to you indicates Jesus’ interpretation of the meaning of his ministry. 21–22: Jesus seems to cast himself in this parable as the one stronger than he. 23: Cf. 9.50. This statement registers the uncompromising demands of Jesus’ call to discipleship, and in relation to the preceding parable the saying declares that in the struggle between Jesus and Beelzebul neutrality is not an option.

11.24–26: The return of unclean spirits (Mt 12.43–45).

11.29–32: The sign of Jonah (Mt 12.38–42; Mk 8.11–12). 29: The sign of Jonah was given through Jonah’s preach-generation; it asks for a sign, but no sign will be given to it except the sign of Jonah. 30 For just as Jonah became a sign to the people of Nineveh, so the Son of Man will be to this generation. 31 The queen of the South will rise at the judgment with the people of this generation and condemn them, because she came from the ends of the earth to listen to the wisdom of Solomon, and see, something greater than Solomon is here! 32 The people of Nineveh will rise up at the judgment with this generation and condemn it, because they repented at the proclamation of Jonah, and see, something greater than Jonah is here!

33 “No one after lighting a lamp puts it in a cellar, but on the lampstand so that those who enter may see the light. 34 Your eye is the lamp of your body. If your eye is healthy, your whole body is full of light; but if it is not healthy, your body is full of darkness. 35 Therefore consider whether the light in you is not darkness. 36 If then your whole body is full of light, with no part of it in darkness, it will be as full of light as when a lamp gives you light with its rays.”

37 While he was speaking, a Pharisee invited him to dine with him; so he went in and took his place at the table. 38 The Pharisee was amazed to see that he did not first wash before dinner. 39 Then the Lord said to him, “Now you Pharisees clean the outside of the cup and of the dish, but inside you are full of greed and wickedness. 40 You fools! Did not the one who made the outside make the inside also? 41 So give for alms those things that are within; and see, everything will be clean for you.

42 “But woe to you Pharisees! For you tithe mint and rue and herbs of all kinds, and neglect justice and the love of God; it is these you ought to have practiced, without neglecting the others. 43 Woe to you Pharisees! For you love to have the seat of honor in the synagogues and to be greeted with respect in the marketplaces. 44 Woe to you! For you are like unmarked graves, and people walk over them without realizing it.”

45 One of the lawyers answered him, “Teacher, when you say these things, you insult us too.” 46 And he said, “Woe also to you lawyers! For you load people with burdens hard to bear, and you yourselves do not lift a finger to ease them. 47 Woe to you! For you build the tombs of the prophets whom your ancestors killed. 48 So you are witnesses and approve of the deeds of your ancestors; for they killed them, and you build their tombs. 49 Therefore also the Wisdom of God said, ‘I will send them prophets and apostles, some of whom they will kill and persecute,’ so that this generation may be charged with the blood of all the prophets shed since the foundation of the world, 51 from the blood of Abel to the blood of Zechariah, who perished between the altar and the sanctuary. Yes, I tell you, it will be charged against this generation. 52 Woe to you lawyers! For you have taken away the key of knowledge; you did not enter yourselves, and you hindered those who were entering.”

53 When he went outside, the scribes and the Pharisees began to be very hostile toward him and to cross-examine him about many things, 54 lying in wait for him, to catch him in something he might say.

---

a Other ancient authorities add or under the bushel basket

11.33: Light and sight (Mt 5.15; Mk 4.21). Cf. 8.16.
11.34–36: The healthy eye (Mt 6.22–23). 34–36: One theory of vision held that the eye produced fire or light, which made sight possible.
11.37–54: Sayings against Pharisees and lawyers (Mt 15.1–9; Mk 7.1–9; Mt 23.1–36, in different order). 37: 7.36; 14.1. 38: Wash before dinner, ceremonial washing (lit., “baptize before dinner”; cf. Mk 7.1–5). 39–41: Mt 23.25–26. Jesus turns back the Pharisees’ criticism that the outside is unwashed by insisting that the inner life is equal in importance to the outer (v. 40), indeed, that it exercises a cleansing or corrupting power over the outer (v. 41; Mk 7.23). 41: Alms, charitable gifts for the poor. 42: Tithe, see Deut 14.22–29. Mint and rue were common herbs of little value. 44: Graves were carefully marked and even whitewashed (Mt 23.27) to prevent defilement through unintentional contact with the dead. 49: The Wisdom of God said, introduces an apparent quotation, but from neither the Hebrew Bible nor the nonbiblical writings of Judaism. 49: Cf. Jer 7.25–26. 51: Abel is the first person murdered in the Bible (Gen 4.8), and Zechariah seems to be the person murdered in 2 Chr 24.20–22.
Meanwhile, when the crowd gathered by the thousands, so that they trampled on one another, he began to speak first to his disciples, “Beware of the yeast of the Pharisees, that is, their hypocrisy. 2 Nothing is covered up that will not be uncovered, and nothing secret that will not become known. 3 Therefore whatever you have said in the dark will be heard in the light, and what you have whispered behind closed doors will be proclaimed from the housetops.

4 "I tell you, my friends, do not fear those who kill the body, and after that can do nothing more. 5 But I will warn you whom to fear: fear him who, after he has killed, has authority to cast into hell. 6 Yes, I tell you, fear him!

7 Are not five sparrows sold for two pennies? Yet not one of them is forgotten in God’s sight. 8 But even the hairs of your head are all counted. Do not be afraid; you are of more value than many sparrows.

8 “And I tell you, everyone who acknowledges me before others, the Son of Man also will acknowledge before the angels of God; 9 but whoever denies me before others will be denied before the angels of God. 10 And everyone who speaks a word against the Son of Man will be forgiven; but whoever blasphemes against the Holy Spirit will not be forgiven. 11 When they bring you before the synagogues, the rulers, and the authorities, do not worry about how you are to defend yourselves or what you are to say; 12 for the Holy Spirit will teach you at that very hour what you ought to say.”

13 Someone in the crowd said to him, “Teacher, tell my brother to divide the family inheritance with me.” 14 But he said to him, “Friend, who set me to be a judge or arbitrator over you?” 15 And he said to them, “Take care! Be on your guard against all kinds of greed; for one’s life does not consist in the abundance of possessions.” 16 Then he told them a parable: “The land of a rich man produced abundantly. 17 And he thought to himself, ‘What should I do, for I have no place to store my crops?’ 18 Then he said, ‘I will do this: I will pull down my barns and build larger ones, and there I will store all my grain and my goods. 19 And I will say to my soul, Soul, you have ample goods laid up for many years; relax, eat, drink, be merry.’ 20 But God said to him, ‘You fool! This very night your life is being demanded of you. And the things you have prepared, whose will they be?’ 21 So it is with those who store up treasures for themselves but are not rich toward God.”

22 He said to his disciples, “Therefore I tell you, do not worry about your life, what you will eat, or about your body, what you need to wear.

12.1: The yeast of the Pharisees (Mt 16.5–6; Mk 8.14–15). 1: Leaven/yeast was often a symbol of corruption for ancient Jews; cf. 1 Cor 5.6–8.

12.2–9: Calls to fearless confession (Mt 10.26–33). 5: Him who . . . has authority to cast into hell, God alone. Hell is “Gehenna,” not Hades as in 10.5; Gehenna was a deep ravine to the south of Jerusalem. Human sacrifices were allegedly made there during the Judean monarchy (2 Kings 23.10), and it came to symbolize the place of eternal punishment. 6: The penny (“assarion”) was one-sixteenth of a denarius (see 12.59n.). 8–9: Cf. 9.26; Mk 8.38.

12.10: Blaspheming the Holy Spirit (Mt 12.31–32; Mk 3.28–30). Blasphemy against the Holy Spirit is attributing the genuine work of the Spirit to the forces of evil rather than to God.

12.11–12: Aid from the Holy Spirit (Mt 10.19–20; Mk 13.11).

12.13–15: Warning against greed. 13: According to Deut 21.17 the oldest son received double the younger’s share. Jesus shows no interest in ensuring equitable division and subsequently warns against greed and material self-satisfaction.

12.16–21: Parable of the rich fool. 19: Relax, eat, drink, be merry, see Eccl 8.15. The maxim is reminiscent of similar declarations in Tob 7.10; 1 Enoch 97.8–9; Euripides; Meander. 20: Cf. Jer 17.11; Lk 12.33–34. The declaration by God in Greek is difficult, reading literally, “Fool! In this night your soul they demand from you.” The subject “they” may be a circumlocution for God, but more likely it is “the things” that now own the man and that claim his life.

1854 | NEW TESTAMENT
will wear. 23 For life is more than food, and the body more than clothing. 24 Consider the ravens: they neither toil nor reap, they have neither storehouse nor barn, and yet God feeds them. Of how much more value are you than the birds! 25 And can any of you by worrying add a single hour to your span of life? 26 If then you are not able to do so small a thing as that, why do you worry about the rest? 27 Consider the lilies, how they grow: they neither toil nor spin; yet I tell you, even Solomon in all his glory was not clothed like one of these. 28 But if God so clothes the grass of the field, which is alive today and tomorrow is thrown into the oven, how much more will he clothe you—you of little faith! 29 And do not keep striving for what you are to eat and what you are to drink, and do not keep worrying. 30 For it is the nations of the world that strive after all these things, and your Father knows that you need them. 31 Instead, strive for his kingdom, and these things will be given to you as well.

32 “Do not be afraid, little flock, for it is your Father’s good pleasure to give you the kingdom. 33 Sell your possessions, and give alms. Make purses for yourselves that do not wear out, an unfailing treasure in heaven, where no thief comes near and no moth destroys. 34 For where your treasure is, there your heart will be also.

35 “Be dressed for action and have your lamps lit; 36 be like those who are waiting for their master to return from the wedding banquet, so that they may open the door for him as soon as he comes and knocks. 37 Blessed are those slaves whom the master finds alert when he comes; truly I tell you, he will fasten his belt and have them sit down to eat, and he will come and serve them. 38 If he comes during the middle of the night, or near dawn, and finds them so, blessed are those slaves.

39 “But know this: if the owner of the house had known at what hour the thief was coming, he would not have let his house be broken into. 40 You also must be ready, for the Son of Man is coming at an unexpected hour.”

41 Peter said, “Lord, are you telling thisparable for us or for everyone?” 42 And the Lord said, “Who then is the faithful and prudent manager whom his master will put in charge of his slaves, to give them their allowance of food at the proper time? 43 Blessed is that slave whom his master will find at work when he arrives. 44 Truly I tell you, he will put that one in charge of all his possessions. 45 But if that slave says to himself, ‘My master is delayed in coming,’ and if he begins to beat the other slaves, men and women, and to eat and drink and get drunk, 46 the master of that slave will come on a day when he does not expect him and at an hour that he does not know, and will cut him in pieces, 47 and put him with the unfaithful. 48 That slave who knew what his master wanted, but did not prepare himself or do what was wanted, will receive a severe beating. 49 But the one who did not know and did what deserved a beating will receive a light beating. From everyone to whom much has been given, much will be required; and from the one to whom much has been entrusted, even more will be demanded. 50 I came to bring fire to the earth, and how I wish it were already kindled! 51 Do a Or add a cubit to your stature

b Other ancient authorities read Consider the lilies; they neither spin nor weave c Other ancient authorities read God’s d Other ancient authorities add would have watched and e Or cut him off

12.35–48: Sayings on watchfulness and faithfulness (Mt 24.42–51). 35: Dressed for action, lit., “your loins girded”; see Ex 12.11. 37: The language suggests the messianic banquet (13.29; 14.15; 22.16), to which a marriage feast served as an analogy. For the action of this master in serving the servants, see 17.7–8; cf. Jn 13.3–16; Lk 22.27. 40: Cf. Mk 13.35; 1 Thess 5.2. 48: 8.18; 19.26.
12.49–53: The controversial character of Jesus’ mission (Mt 10.34–36). 49: Fire, a symbol of judgment (Mt
you think that I have come to bring peace to the earth? No, I tell you, but rather division! 52 From now on five in one household will be divided, three against two and two against three; 53 they will be divided: father against son and son against father, mother against daughter and daughter against mother, mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law and daughter-in-law against mother-in-law."

He also said to the crowds, “When you see a cloud rising in the west, you immediately say, ‘It is going to rain’; and so it happens. 55 And when you see the south wind blowing, you say, ‘There will be scorching heat’; and it happens. 56 You hypocrites! You know how to interpret the appearance of earth and sky, but why do you not know how to interpret the present time? 57 “And why do you not judge for yourselves what is right? 58 Thus, when you go with your accuser before a magistrate, on the way make an effort to settle the case, 59 or you may be dragged before the judge, and the judge hand you over to the officer, and the officer throw you in prison. 60 I tell you, you will never get out until you have paid the very last penny.”

At that very time there were some present who told him about the Galileans whose blood Pilate had mingled with their sacrifices. 2 He asked them, “Do you think that because these Galileans suffered in this way they were worse sinners than all other Galileans? 3 No, I tell you; but unless you repent, you will all perish as they did.

4 Or those eighteen who were killed when the tower of Siloam fell on them—do you think that they were worse offenders than all the others living in Jerusalem? 5 No, I tell you; but unless you repent, you will all perish just as they did.”

Then he told this parable: “A man had a fig tree planted in his vineyard; and he came looking for fruit on it and found none. 7 So he said to the gardener, ‘See here! For three years I have come looking for fruit on this fig tree, and still I find none. Cut it down! Why should it be wasting the soil?’ 8 He replied, ‘Sir, let it alone for one more year, until I dig around it and put manure on it.’ 9 If it bears fruit next year, well and good; but if not, you can cut it down.”

Now he was teaching in one of the synagogues on the sabbath. 10 And just then there appeared a woman with a spirit that had crippled her for eighteen years. She was bent over and was quite unable to stand up straight.

11 When Jesus saw her, he called her over and said, “Woman, you are set free from your ailment.” When he laid his hands on her, immediately she stood up straight and began praising God.

12 But the leader of the synagogue, indignant because Jesus had cured on the sabbath, kept saying to the crowd, “There are six days on which work ought to be done; come on those days and be cured, and not on the sabbath day.” 13 But the Lord answered him and said, “You hypocrites! Does not each of you on the sabbath untie his ox or his donkey from the manger, and lead it away to give it water? 14 And ought not this woman, who has been bent over for eighteen years, to be set free from this time?”

3.11; 7.19; Mk 9.48; Lk 3.16). 50: Baptism, Jesus’ death. 53: Incorporates phrases from Mic 7.6.

12.54–56: Interpreting the times (Mt 16.2–3). Winds from the west blew off the Mediterranean, those from the south off the desert. Jesus says there are signs of crisis that human beings neglect. 12.57–59: Settling with an accuser (Mt 5.25–26). 59: Penny, Greek “lepton,” the smallest Greek coin in circulation. There were two lepta to a quadrans (“penny” in Mt 5.26; Mk 12.42), eight to an assarion (“penny” in Lk 12.6), and one hundred twenty-eight to a denarius, the daily wage in Mt 20.2.

13.1–9: Parable of the unfruitful fig tree (compare Mt 21.18–19; Mk 11.12–14). 1: The Galileans had been slain by the order of Pilate (see 3.1n.) while sacrificing in the Temple at Jerusalem. This incident is otherwise unattested. 2: The reports carried with them questions of a deeper meaning. According to common Jewish belief, painful experiences were signs of God’s judgments (see 5.20n.). Jesus issues a call to repentance so that catastrophe would not overtake his hearers. 4: Siloam, in the southeast corner of Jerusalem, where the pool of Siloam (Isa 8.6; Neh 3.15; Jn 9.7) was located. 7: See 3.9.

13.10–17: Healing of a crippled woman on the sabbath. A similar sabbath healing follows in 14.1–6; see a Gk settle with him a daughter of Abraham whom Satan bound for eighteen long years, be set free from this bondage on the sabbath day?” ¹⁷ When he said this, all his opponents were put to shame; and the entire crowd was rejoicing at all the wonderful things that he was doing.

¹⁸ He said therefore, “What is the kingdom of God like? And to what should I compare it? ¹⁹ It is like a mustard seed that someone took and sowed in the garden; it grew and became a tree, and the birds of the air made nests in its branches.”

²⁰ And again he said, “To what should I compare the kingdom of God? ²¹ It is like yeast that a woman took and mixed in with three measures of flour until all of it was leavened.”

²² Jesus went through one town and village after another, teaching as he made his way to Jerusalem. ²³ Someone asked him, “Lord, will only a few be saved?” He said to them,

²⁴ “Strive to enter through the narrow door; for many, I tell you, will try to enter and will not be able. ²⁵ When once the owner of the house has got up and shut the door, and you begin to stand outside and to knock at the door, saying, ‘Lord, open to us,’ then in reply he will say to you, ‘I do not know where you come from.’ ²⁶ Then you will begin to say, ‘We ate and drank with you, and you taught in our streets.’ ²⁷ But he will say, ‘I do not know where you come from; go away from me, all you evildoers!’

²⁸ There will be weeping and gnashing of teeth when you see Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrown out. ²⁹ Then people will come from east and west, from north and south, and will eat in the kingdom of God.

³⁰ Indeed, some are last who will be first, and some are first who will be last.”

³¹ At that very hour some Pharisees came and said to him, “Get away from here, for Herod wants to kill you.” ³² He said to them, “Go and tell that fox for me, ‘Listen, I am casting out demons and performing cures today and tomorrow, and on the third day I finish my work.’ ³³ Yet today, tomorrow, and the next day I must be on my way, because it is impossible for a prophet to be killed outside of Jerusalem.” ³⁴ Jerusalem, Jerusalem, the city that kills the prophets and stones those who are sent to it! How often have I desired to gather your children together as a hen gathers her brood under her wings, and you were not willing! ³⁵ See, your house is left to you. And I tell you, you will not see me until the time comes when you say, ‘Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord.’”

On one occasion when Jesus was going to the house of a leader of the Pharisees to eat a meal on the sabbath, they were watching him closely. 2 Just then, in front of him, there was a man who had dropsy. 3 And Jesus asked the lawyers and Pharisees, “Is it lawful to cure people on the sabbath, or not?” 4 But they were silent. So Jesus took him and healed him, and sent him away. 5 Then he said to them, “If one of you has a child or an ox that has fallen into a well, will you not immediately pull it out on a sabbath day?” 6 And they could not reply to this.

7 When he noticed how the guests chose the places of honor, he told them a parable. 8 “When you are invited by someone to a wedding banquet, do not sit down at the place of honor, in case someone more distinguished than you has been invited by your host; and the host who invited both of you may come and say to you, ‘Give this person your place,’ and then in disgrace you would start to take the lowest place. 10 But when you are invited, go and sit down at the lowest place, so that when your host comes, he may say to you, ‘Friend, move up higher’; then you will be honored in the presence of all who sit at the table with you. 11 For all who exalt themselves will be humbled, and those who humble themselves will be exalted.”

12 He said also to the one who had invited him, “When you give a luncheon or a dinner, do not invite your friends or your brothers or your relatives or rich neighbors, in case they may invite you in return, and you would be repaid. 13 But when you give a banquet, invite the poor, the crippled, the lame, and the blind. 14 And you will be blessed, because they cannot repay you, for you will be repaid at the resurrection of the righteous.”

15 One of the dinner guests, on hearing this, said to him, “Blessed is anyone who will eat bread in the kingdom of God!” 16 Then Jesus said to him, “Someone gave a great dinner and invited many. 17 At the time for the dinner he sent his slave to say to those who had been invited, ‘Come; for everything is ready now.’ 18 But they all alike began to make excuses. The first said to him, ‘I have bought a piece of land, and I must go out and see it; please accept my regrets.’ 19 Another said, ‘I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I am going to try them out; please accept my regrets.’ 20 Another said, ‘I have just been married, and therefore I cannot come.’ 21 So the slave returned and reported this to his master. Then the owner of the house became angry and said to his slave, ‘Go out at once into the streets and lanes of the town and bring in the poor, the crippled, the blind, and the lame.’ 22 And the slave said, ‘Sir, what you ordered has been done, and there is still room.’ 23 Then the master said to the slave, ‘Go out into the roads and lanes, and compel people to come in, so that my house may be filled. 24 For I tell you, 25 none of those who were invited will taste my dinner.’”

25 Now large crowds were traveling with him; and he turned and said to them, 26 “Whoever comes to me and does not hate father and mother, wife and children, brothers and sisters, yes, and even life itself, cannot be my disciple. 27 Whoever does not carry the cross and follow me cannot be my disciple. 28 For which of you, intending to pair with the foregoing account of Jesus’ healing the crippled woman (13.1–16), exhibiting Luke’s concern to show the inclusive nature of Jesus’ ministry. 2: Dropsy, swelling from abnormal fluid retention. 5: The variant reading, “a donkey” instead of “a child” (see note b) was a scribal alteration to make this verse conform to the wording of 13.15. Cf. Ex 23.5; Deut 22.4.

14.7–14: Parable on humility. 8: Prov 25.6–7. 11: See 13.30; 18.14; Mt 18.4; 23.12.
14.15–24: Parable of the great dinner (Mt 22.1–14). 18–20: Cf. Deut 20.5–8. 24: You is plural here, whereas the master in the parable was speaking to only one servant (“you” singular). Thus, Jesus seems to have completed the parabolic form in v. 23 and, now, he speaks to the guests directly in this verse (v. 24) as a reply to the statement by the guest in v. 15. My dinner suggests the messianic banquet (see 12.37n.).
14.25–33: The costs of discipleship (Mt 10.37–38). A series of sayings declaring the necessity of the disciples’ total devotion to following Jesus. 26: Jn 12.25. Hate is vivid language; the parallel passage in Mt 10.37 is build a tower, does not first sit down and estimate the cost, to see whether he has enough to complete it? 29 Otherwise, when he has laid a foundation and is not able to finish, all who see it will begin to ridicule him, saying, ‘This fellow began to build and was not able to finish.’ 30 Or what king, going out to wage war against another king, will not sit down first and consider whether he is able with ten thousand to oppose the one who comes against him with twenty thousand? 32 If he cannot, then, while the other is still far away, he sends a delegation and asks for the terms of peace. 33 So therefore, none of you can become my disciple if you do not give up all your possessions.

34 “Salt is good; but if salt has lost its taste, how can its saltiness be restored? It is neither for the soil nor for the manure pile; they throw it away. Let anyone with ears to hear listen!”

15 Now all the tax collectors and sinners were coming near to listen to him. 2 And the Pharisees and the scribes were grumbling and saying, “This fellow welcomes sinners and eats with them.”

3 So he told them this parable: 4 “Which one of you, having a hundred sheep and losing one of them, does not leave the ninety-nine in the wilderness and go after the one that is lost until he finds it? 5 When he has found it, he lays it on his shoulders and rejoices. 6 And when he comes home, he calls together his friends and neighbors, saying to them, ‘Rejoice with me, for I have found my sheep that was lost.’ 7 Just so, I tell you, there will be more joy in heaven over one sinner who repents than over ninety-nine righteous persons who need no repentance.

8 “Or what woman having ten silver coins, 9 if she loses one of them, does not light a lamp, sweep the house, and search carefully until she finds it? 9 When she has found it, she calls together her friends and neighbors, saying, ‘Rejoice with me, for I have found the coin that I had lost.’ 10 Just so, I tell you, there is joy in the presence of the angels of God over one sinner who repents.”

11 Then Jesus said, “There was a man who had two sons. 12 The younger of them said to his father, ‘Father, give me the share of the property that will belong to me.’ So he divided his property between them. 13 A few days later the younger son gathered all he had and traveled to a distant country, and there he squandered his property in dissolute living. 14 When he had spent everything, a severe famine took place throughout that country, and he began to be in need. 15 So he went and hired himself out to one of the citizens of that country, who sent him to his fields to feed the pigs. 16 He would gladly have filled himself with the pods that the pigs were eating; and no one gave him anything. 17 But when he came to himself he said, ‘How many of my father’s hired hands have bread enough and to spare, but here I am dying of hunger! 18 I will get up and go to my father, and I will say to him, “Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you; 19 I am no longer worthy to be called your son; treat me like one of your so/fter.

27: See Mk 8.34. 31–32: Possibly alludes to some contemporary event. 33: The stark severity of this statement suggests that it is to be understood as hyperbole. See 12.33; 18.22.

14.34–35: Saying about salt (Mt 5.13; Mk 9.49–50). This saying warns against lackadaisical discipleship. Ancient salt was not pure sodium chloride, so the other material in the salt could go bad and cause the salt to be no good.

15.1–7: Parable of the lost sheep (Mt 18.12–14). God is frequently called the shepherd, both of Israel (e.g., Pss 78.52; 80.1; 100.3) and of the individual (Ps 23); for the image of lost sheep, see Ps 119.176; Jer 50.6; Ezek 34.15–16. 6–7: The mention of joy anticipates the declarations of joy in the following two parables, which share the theme of lost and found.

15.8–10: Parable of the lost coin. The woman sweeping and seeking the coin is freely cast in the parable to depict the activity of God. 8: The coins are Greek drachmas; see note b.

15.11–32: Parable of the lost prodigal son. 12: On inheritance, see Deut 21.17. See 12.13n. 15: Pigs, see 8.32n.
hired hands.” 20 So he set off and went to his father. But while he was still far off, his father saw him and was filled with compassion; he ran and put his arms around him and kissed him. 21 Then the son said to him, ‘Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you; I am no longer worthy to be called your son.’ 22 But the father said to his slaves, ‘Quickly, bring out a robe—the best one—and put it on him; put a ring on his finger and sandals on his feet. 23 And get the fatted calf and kill it, and let us eat and celebrate; 24 for this son of mine was dead and is alive again; he was lost and is found!’ And they began to celebrate.

25 “Now his elder son was in the field; and when he came and approached the house, he heard music and dancing. 26 He called one of the slaves and asked what was going on. 27 He replied, ‘Your brother has come, and your father came out and began to plead with him. 28 But he answered his father, ‘Listen! For all these years I have been working like a slave for you, and I have never disobeyed your command; yet you have never given me even a young goat so that I might celebrate with my friends. 29 But when this son of yours came back, who has devoured your property with prostitutes, you killed the fatted calf for him!’ 30 Then the father said to him, ‘Son, you are always with me, and all that is mine is yours. 31 But we had to celebrate and rejoice, because this brother of yours was dead and has come to life; he was lost and has been found.’”

16 Then Jesus said to the disciples, “There was a rich man who had a manager, and charges were brought to him that this man was squandering his property. 2 So he summoned him and said to him, ‘What is this that I hear about you? Give me an accounting of your management, because you cannot be my manager any longer.’ 3 Then the manager said to himself, ‘What will I do, now that my master is taking the position away from me? I am not strong enough to dig, and I am ashamed to beg. 4 I have decided what to do so that, when I am dismissed as manager, people may welcome me into their homes.’ 5 So, summoning his master’s debtors one by one, he asked the first, ‘How much do you owe my master?’ 6 He answered, ‘A hundred jugs of olive oil.’ He said to him, ‘Take your bill, sit down quickly, and make it fifty.’ 7 Then he asked another, ‘And how much do you owe?’ He replied, ‘A hundred containers of wheat.’ He said to him, ‘Take your bill and make it eighty.’ 8 And his master commended the dishonest manager because he had acted shrewdly; for the children of this age are more shrewd in dealing with their own generation than are the children of light. 9 And I tell you, make friends for yourselves

22–24: His place as son is freely restored, though his inheritance is gone. The parable illustrates God’s grace toward those who rebel and return. 22: Robe, a festive garment (not worn while working); ring, symbol of authority; sandals, slaves would have been barefooted. Cf. Gen 41.42; Zech 3.4. 23: Fatted calf, a luxury; see 1 Sam 28.24; Am 6.4. 25–32: Rivalry between brothers is a common biblical theme (see Gen 4.2–8; 25.27–34; 27.1–36; 37.1–4). Note the elder son’s pique (“this son of yours,” v. 30). 31: See v. 12n.

16.1–9: Parable of the dishonest manager. The culmination of this enigmatic story appears to be v. 8, and Jesus’ exposition follows in v. 9. The meaning of the story for those hearing Jesus’ teaching is that the dishonest manager was prudent in using the things of this life to ensure the future, so believers should do the same. More generally, however, the probable sense of the story itself is that the steward was dishonest in his squandering his master’s estate. When confronted, he does not necessarily engage in dishonest behavior (in fact he is praised for his actions), but he calls in the debtors and reduces their bills by eliminating his own commission. Thus, he shrewdly uses material goods to win gratitude from his master’s debtors. 8: His master, lit., “the lord”; perhaps indicating a reference by Luke to Jesus (“the Lord”) rather than being the words of Jesus’ conclusion to the parable. Children of light, those who are spiritually enlightened; this phrase appears in Jn 12.36; Eph 5.8; 1 Thess 5.5, as well as in the Dead Sea Scrolls where it is contrasted with the phrase “children of darkness.” 9: Wealth, lit., “mammon,” is the Greek transliteration of a Semitic word probably meaning “that in which one trusts.”
by means of dishonest wealth so that when it is gone, they may welcome you into the eternal homes.

10 “Whoever is faithful in a very little is faithful also in much; and whoever is dishonest in a very little is dishonest also in much. If then you have not been faithful with the dishonest wealth, who will entrust to you the true riches? 12 And if you have not been faithful with what belongs to another, who will give you what is your own? 13 No slave can serve two masters; for a slave will either hate the one and love the other, or be devoted to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and wealth.”

14 The Pharisees, who were lovers of money, heard all this, and they ridiculed him. 15 So he said to them, “You are those who justify yourselves in the sight of others; but God knows your hearts; for what is prized by human beings is an abomination in the sight of God.

16 “The law and the prophets were in effect until John came; since then the good news of the kingdom of God is proclaimed, and everyone tries to enter it by force. But it is easier for heaven and earth to pass away, than for one stroke of a letter in the law to be dropped.

18 “Anyone who divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery, and whoever marries a woman divorced from her husband commits adultery.

19 “There was a rich man who was dressed in purple and fine linen and who feasted sumptuously every day. And at his gate lay a poor man named Lazarus, covered with sores, who longed to satisfy his hunger with what fell from the rich man’s table; even the dogs would come and lick his sores. The poor man died and was carried away by the angels to be with Abraham. The rich man also died and was buried. In Hades, where he was being tormented, he looked up and saw Abraham far away with Lazarus by his side. He called out, ‘Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and send Lazarus to dip the tip of his finger in water and cool my tongue; for I am in agony in these flames.’ But Abraham said, ‘Child, remember that during your lifetime you received your good things, and Lazarus in like manner evil things; but now he is comforted here, and you are in agony. Besides all this, between you and us a great chasm has been fixed, so that those who might want to pass from here to you cannot do so, and no one can cross from there to us.’ He said, ‘Then, father, I beg you to send him to my father’s house— for I have five brothers—that he may warn them, so that they will not also come into this place of torment.’ Abraham replied, ‘They have Moses and the prophets; they should listen to them.’ He said, ‘No, father Abraham; but

a Gk mammon
b Gk tents
c Or everyone is strongly urged to enter it d Gk to Abraham’s bosom
e Gk in his bosom

16.10–18: A series of sayings. 10–12: Sayings on faithfulness. The sayings take the form of “from lesser to greater.” 11: 13: The impossibility of serving two masters (Mt 6.24; cf. Deut 6.13). 14–15: Strong criticism of the Pharisees. 16–17: Sayings concerning the law (Mt 11.12–13; 5.18; cf. Lk 21.33). 16: Here, John the Baptist is presented as the figure through whom the fulfillment of God’s promises began to appear. The law and the prophets, the first two parts of what became the three divisions of the Hebrew Bible, the Torah or “law” of Moses, and the prophets (the books of Joshua through 2 Kings and Isaiah through Malachi; see the Prologue to Sirach; 2 Macc 15.9; Lk 16.29; 24.27.44). 18: Saying concerning divorce (Mt 19.9; Mk 10.11–12). This statement may condemn the simultaneous actions of divorce and marrying another; in other words, a divorce that occurred to facilitate remarriage. Herod Antipas had done exactly that; see 3.19–20n.

16.19–31: Parable of the rich man and Lazarus. A clear emphasis of this parable (vv. 27–31) is that the Hebrew Bible speaks an urgent and sufficient call to repentance (v. 17). As a whole the story seems to illustrate vv. 10–15. The rich man, though unnamed, is commonly called “Dives,” which is Latin for “rich man.” Purple was an expensive cloth dyed with the liquid obtained from a species of shellfish. 20: The person named here is not to be identified with the Lazarus of Jn 11.1–44; 12.1.9. 21–22: The moral character of Lazarus is passed over to illustrate the fatal deficiency in the life of the indifferent rich man and the impossibility of altering his condemnation. 22: With Abraham, traditional terminology for a blessed condition in the afterlife; see 13.28–29. 23: Hades, 10.15n.
if someone goes to them from the dead, they will repent.' ³¹ He said to him, ‘If they do not listen to Moses and the prophets, neither will they be convinced even if someone rises from the dead.’”

17 Jesus⁴ said to his disciples, “Occasions for stumbling are bound to come, but woe to anyone by whom they come! ² It would be better for you if a millstone were hung around your neck and you were thrown into the sea than for you to cause one of these little ones to stumble. ³ Be on your guard! If another disciple⁵ sins, you must rebuke the offender, and if there is repentance, you must forgive. ⁴ And if the same person sins against you seven times a day, and turns back to you seven times and says, ‘I repent,’ you must forgive.”

⁵ The apostles said to the Lord, “Increase our faith!” ⁶ The Lord replied, “If you had faith the size of a mustard seed, you could say to this mulberry tree, ‘Be uprooted and planted in the sea,’ and it would obey you.

⁷ “Who among you would say to your slave who has just come in from plowing or tending sheep in the field, ‘Come here at once and take your place at the table’? ⁸ Would you not rather say to him, ‘Prepare supper for me, put on your apron and serve me while I eat and drink; later you may eat and drink’? ⁹ Do you thank the slave for doing what was commanded? ¹⁰ So you also, when you have done all that you were ordered to do, say, ‘We are worthless slaves; we have done only what we ought to have done!’”

¹¹ On the way to Jerusalem Jesus⁴ was going through the region between Samaria and Galilee. ¹² As he entered a village, ten lepers⁶ approached him. Keeping their distance, ¹³ they called out, saying, “Jesus, Master, have mercy on us!” ¹⁴ When he saw them, he said to them, “Go and show yourselves to the priests.” And as they went, they were made clean. ¹⁵ Then one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back, praising God with a loud voice. ¹⁶ He prostrated himself at Jesus’ feet and thanked him. And he was a Samaritan. ¹⁷ Then Jesus asked, “Were not ten made clean? But the other nine, where are they? ¹⁸ Was none of them found to return and give praise to God except this foreigner?” ¹⁹ Then he said to him, “Get up and go on your way; your faith has made you well.”

²⁰ Once Jesus⁴ was asked by the Pharisees when the kingdom of God was coming, and he answered, “The kingdom of God is not coming with things that can be observed; ²¹ nor will they say, ‘Look, here it is!’ or ‘There it is!’ For, in fact, the kingdom of God is among you.”

29: Moses and the prophets, see v. 16n. 31: Rises from the dead, a clear reference to Jesus’ resurrection (see 9.22) and the ensuing refusal of some to believe it.

17.1–3a: The peril of causing temptation (Mt 18.6–7; Mk 9.42). 2: Millstone, stone (used in pairs) to grind grain; it was typically made of basalt and ca. 12–18 in (30–40 cm) in diameter and 2–4 in (5–10 cm) thick. Little ones, disciples.

17.3b–4: Sayings concerning forgiveness (Mt 18.15,21–22).

17.5–6: Saying concerning faith (Mt 17.19–21; Mk 9.28–29). 6: The size of a mustard seed, see Mk 4.31.

17.7–10: The obligation to obedience. For the apostles, obedience to God is a duty to be fulfilled and not an occasion for reward; yet, if ct. 12.35–38.

17.11–19: The cleansing of ten lepers. (See 5.12–16n.) 12: Lev 13.45–46. 14: Priests, Lev 13.2–3; 14.2–32. 16: Samaritan, see 9.52n. 17: The other nine were, presumably, Jews. 18: The Gk word translated foreigner more literally means “another race,” 7:9n. 19: 7:50; 8:48; 18.42. Made you well, lit., “saved you.”

17.20–21: The coming of the kingdom of God. 20: 19.11; 21.7; Acts 1.6. 21: The questioners had in mind a kingdom bringing material and political benefits. Jesus shifted the emphasis from future expectation to the observable presence of the kingdom in his ministry; see 11.20.

17.22–37: The day of the Son of Man (Mt 24.17–18,23,26–28,37–41; Mk 13.14–16,19–23). Mt 24 has similar
Then he said to the disciples, “The days are coming when you will long to see one of the days of the Son of Man, and you will not see it. They will say to you, ‘Look there!’ or ‘Look here!’ Do not go, do not set off in pursuit. For as the lightning flashes and lights up the sky from one side to the other, so will the Son of Man be in his day. But first he must endure much suffering and be rejected by this generation. Just as it was in the days of Noah, so too it will be in the days of the Son of Man. They were eating and drinking, and marrying and being given in marriage, until the day Noah entered the ark, and the flood came and destroyed all of them. Likewise, just as it was in the days of Lot: they were eating and drinking, but on the day that Lot left Sodom, it rained fire and sulfur from heaven and destroyed all of them. —it will be like that on the day that the Son of Man is revealed. On that day, anyone on the housetop who has belongings in the house must not come down to take them away; and likewise anyone in the field must not turn back. Remember Lot’s wife. Those who try to make their life secure will lose it, but those who lose their life will keep it. I tell you, on that night there will be two in one bed; one will be taken and the other left. There will be two women grinding meal together; one will be taken and the other left. On the housetop who has belongings in the house must not come down to take them away; and likewise anyone in the field must not turn back. Remember Lot’s wife. Those who try to make their life secure will lose it, but those who lose their life will keep it. I tell you, on that night there will be two in one bed; one will be taken and the other left. There will be two women grinding meal together; one will be taken and the other left. When they cry to you, ‘Look here!’ Do not go, do not set off in pursuit.

18 Then Jesus told them a parable about their need to pray always and not to lose heart. He said, “In a certain city there was a judge who neither feared God nor had respect for people. In that city there was a widow who kept coming to him and saying, ‘Grant me justice against my opponent.’ For a while he refused; but later he said to himself, ‘Though I have no fear of God and no respect for anyone, yet because this widow keeps bothering me, I will grant her justice, so that she may not wear me out by continually coming.’ And the Lord said, “Listen to what the unjust judge says. And will not God grant justice to his chosen ones who cry to him day and night? Will he delay long in helping them? I tell you, he will quickly grant justice to them. And yet, when the Son of Man comes, will he find faith on earth?”

He also told this parable to some who trusted in themselves that they were righteous and regarded others with contempt: “Two men went up to the temple to pray, one a Pharisee and the other a tax collector. The Pharisee, standing by himself, was praying thus, ‘God, I thank you that I am not like other people: thieves, rogues, adulterers, or even like this tax collector. I fast twice a week; I give a tenth of all my income.’ But the tax collector, standing far off, would not even look up to heaven, but was beating his breast and saying, ‘God, be merciful to me, a sinner!’ I tell you, this man went down to prayers thus, ‘God, I thank you that I am not like other people: thieves, rogues, adulterers, or even like this tax collector. I fast twice a week; I give a tenth of all my income.’ But the tax collector, standing far off, would not even look up to heaven, but was beating his breast and saying, ‘God, be merciful to me, a sinner!’ I tell you, this man went down to prayers thus, ‘God, I thank you that I am not like other people: thieves, rogues, adulterers, or even like this tax collector. I fast twice a week; I give a tenth of all my income.’ But the tax collector, standing far off, would not even look up to heaven, but was beating his breast and saying, ‘God, be merciful to me, a sinner!’ I tell you, this man went down to prayers thus, ‘God, I thank you that I am not like other people: thieves, rogues, adulterers, or even like this tax collector. I fast twice a week; I give a tenth of all my income.’ But the tax collector, standing far off, would not even look up to heaven, but was beating his breast and saying, ‘God, be merciful to me, a sinner!’ I tell you, this man went down to his home justified rather than the other; for all who exalt themselves will be humbled, but all who humble themselves will be exalted.”

15 People were bringing even infants to him that he might touch them; and when the disciples saw it, they sternly ordered them not to do it. 16 But Jesus called for them and said, “Let the little children come to me, and do not stop them; for it is to such as these that the kingdom of God belongs. 17 Truly I tell you, whoever does not receive the kingdom of God as a little child will never enter it.”

18 A certain ruler asked him, “Good Teacher, what must I do to inherit eternal life?” 19 Jesus said to him, “Why do you call me good? No one is good but God alone.

20 You know the commandments: ‘You shall not commit adultery; You shall not murder; You shall not steal; You shall not bear false witness; Honor your father and mother.’” 21 He replied, “I have kept all these since my youth.”

22 When Jesus heard this, he said to him, “There is still one thing lacking. Sell all that you own and distribute the money to the poor, and you will have treasure in heaven; then come, follow me.” 23 But when he heard this, he became sad; for he was very rich.

24 Jesus looked at him and said, “How hard it is for those who have wealth to enter the kingdom of God! 25 Indeed, it is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for someone who is rich to enter the kingdom of God.”

26 Those who heard it said, “Then who can be saved?” 27 He replied, “What is impossible for mortals is possible for God.”

Then Peter said, “Look, we have left our homes and followed you.” 29 And he said to them, “Truly I tell you, there is no one who has left house or wife or brothers or parents or children, for the sake of the kingdom of God, who will not get back very much more in this age, and in the age to come eternal life.”

31 Then he took the twelve aside and said to them, “See, we are going up to Jerusalem, and everything that is written about the Son of Man by the prophets will be accomplished. 32 For he will be handed over to the Gentiles; and he will be mocked and insulted and spat upon. 33 After they have flogged him, they will kill him, and on the third day he will rise again.” 34 But they understood nothing about all these things; in fact, what he said was hidden from them, and they did not grasp what was said.

35 As he approached Jericho, a blind man was sitting by the roadside begging. 36 When he heard a crowd going by, he asked what was happening. 37 They told him, “Jesus of Nazareth is passing by.” 38 Then he shouted, “Jesus, Son of David, have mercy on me!”

39 Those who were in front sternly ordered him to be quiet; but he shouted even more loudly, “Son of David, have mercy on me!” 40 Jesus stood still and ordered the man to be brought to him; and when he came near, he a Gk lacks the money

b Gk the Nazorean
asked him, “What do you want me to do for you?” He said, “Lord, let me see again.” 41 Jesus said to him, “Receive your sight; your faith has saved you.” 42 Immediately he regained his sight and followed him, glorifying God; and all the people, when they saw it, praised God.

19 He entered Jericho and was passing through it. 2 A man was there named Zacchaeus; he was a chief tax collector and was rich. 3 He was trying to see who Jesus was, but on account of the crowd he could not, because he was short in stature. 4 So he ran ahead and climbed a sycamore tree to see him, because he was going to pass that way. 5 When Jesus came to the place, he looked up and said to him, “Zacchaeus, hurry and come down; for I must stay at your house today.”

6 So he hurried down and was happy to welcome him. 7 All who saw it began to grumble and said, “He has gone to be the guest of one who is a sinner.” 8 Zacchaeus stood there and said to the Lord, “Look, half of my possessions, Lord, I will give to the poor; and if I have defrauded anyone of anything, I will pay back four times as much.” 9 Then Jesus said to him, “Today salvation has come to this house, because he too is a son of Abraham. 10 For the Son of Man came to seek out and to save the lost.”

11 As they were listening to this, he went on to tell a parable, because he was near Jerusalem, and because they supposed that the kingdom of God was to appear immediately. 12 So he said, “A nobleman went to a distant country to get royal power for himself and then return. 13 He summoned ten of his slaves, and gave them ten pounds, 8 and said to them, ‘Do business with these until I come back.’ 14 But the citizens of his country hated him and sent a delegation after him, saying, ‘We do not want this man to rule over us.’

15 When he returned, having received royal power, he ordered these slaves, to whom he had given the money, to be summoned so that he might find out what they had gained by trading. 16 The first came forward and said, ‘Lord, your pound has made ten more pounds.’ 17 He said to him, ‘Well done, good slave! Because you have been trustworthy in a very small thing, take charge of ten cities.’ 18 Then the second came, saying, ‘Lord, your pound has made five pounds.’ 19 He said to him, ‘And you, rule over five cities.’

20 Then the other came, saying, ‘Lord, here is your pound. I wrapped it up in a piece of cloth, 21 for I was afraid of you, because you are a harsh man; you take what you did not deposit, and reap what you did not sow.’ 22 He said to him, ‘I will judge you by your own words, you wicked slave! You knew, did you, that I was a harsh man, taking what I did not deposit and reaping what I did not sow? 23 Why then did you not put my money into the bank? Then when I returned, I could have collected it with interest.’ 24 He said to the by-standers, ‘Take the pound from him and give it to the one who has ten pounds.’ 25 (And they said to him, ‘Lord, he has ten pounds!’) 26 ‘I tell you, to all those who have, more will be given; but from those who have nothing, even what they have will be taken away. 27 But as for these enemies of mine who did not want me to be king over them—bring them here and slaughter them in my presence.’”

8 The mina, rendered here by pound, was about three months’ wages for a laborer.
28 After he had said this, he went on ahead, going up to Jerusalem.
29 When he had come near Bethphage and Bethany, at the place called the Mount of Olives, he sent two of the disciples, saying, “Go into the village ahead of you, and as you enter it you will find tied there a colt that has never been ridden. Untie it and bring it here. If anyone asks you, ‘Why are you untying it?’ just say this, ‘The Lord needs it.’” So those who were sent departed and found it as he had told them. As they were untying the colt, its owners asked them, “Why are you untying the colt?” They said, “The Lord needs it.” Then they brought it to Jesus; and after throwing their cloaks on the colt, they set Jesus on it. As he rode along, people kept spreading their cloaks on the road. As he was now approaching the path down from the Mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the disciples began to praise God joyfully with a loud voice for all the deeds of power that they had seen, saying, “Blessed is the king who comes in the name of the Lord! Peace in heaven, and glory in the highest heaven!” Some of the Pharisees in the crowd said to him, “Teacher, order your disciples to stop.” He answered them, “I tell you, if these were silent, the stones would shout out.”

32 As he entered the temple and began to drive out those who were selling things there; and he said, “It is written, ‘My house shall be a house of prayer’; but you have made it a den of robbers.” Every day he was teaching in the temple. The chief priests, the scribes, and the leaders of the people kept looking for a way to kill him; but they did not find anything they could do, for all the people were spellbound by what they heard.

20 One day, as he was teaching the people in the temple and telling the good news, the chief priests and the scribes came with the elders and said to him, “Tell us, by what authority are you doing these things? Who is it who gave you this authority?” He answered them, “I will also ask you a question, and you tell me: Did the baptism of John come from heaven, or was it of human origin? Who are you?” They did not dare to question him further, for they saw that a miracle had been done, but they asked him, “Then what authority have you to speak these things?” He answered, “I will also ask you a question, and you tell me: ‘Is the Messiah to come from the house of David, or from the house of the prophets?’ How is it then that David, in the Spirit, in the Book of Psalms, designated the Messiah and said, ‘The Lord said to my Lord, “Sit at my right hand, until I make your enemies your footstool”? If David then called him ‘Lord,’ how is he his son?” Then the chief priests and the scribes answered him, “Out of this scripture you have quoted us!” Jesus said to them, “So you think that you are able to destroy me, because you are able to write about me? The Son of Man is seated at the right hand of the power of God.” They were unwilling to answer him any further from that day on.
LUKE 20

origin?" ⁵ They discussed it with one another, saying, "If we say, 'From heaven,' he will say, 'Why did you not believe him?' ⁶ But if we say, 'Of human origin,' all the people will stone us; for they are convinced that John was a prophet." ⁷ So they answered that they did not know where it came from. ⁸ Then Jesus said to them, "Neither will I tell you by what authority I am doing these things."

⁹ He began to tell the people this parable: "A man planted a vineyard, and leased it to tenants, and went to another country for a long time. ¹⁰ When the season came, he sent a slave to the tenants in order that they might give him his share of the produce of the vineyard; but the tenants beat him and sent him away empty-handed. ¹¹ Next he sent another slave; that one also they beat and insulted and sent away empty-handed. ¹² And he sent still a third; this one also they wounded and threw out. ¹³ Then the owner of the vineyard said, 'What shall I do? I will send my beloved son; perhaps they will respect him.'

¹⁴ But when the tenants saw him, they discussed it among themselves and said, 'This is the heir; let us kill him so that the inheritance may be ours.' ¹⁵ So they threw him out of the vineyard and killed him. What then will the owner of the vineyard do to them? ¹⁶ He will come and destroy those tenants and give the vineyard to others." When they heard this, they said, "Heaven forbid!"

¹⁷ But he looked at them and said, "What then does this text mean:

"The stone that the builders rejected
has become the cornerstone?" ²⁸

¹⁸ Everyone who falls on that stone will be broken to pieces; and it will crush anyone on whom it falls." ²⁹ When the scribes and chief priests realized that he had told this parable against them, they wanted to lay hands on him at that very hour, but they feared the people.

²⁰ So they watched him and sent spies who pretended to be honest, in order to trap him by what he said, so as to hand him over to the jurisdiction and authority of the governor. ²¹ So they asked him, "Teacher, we know that you are right in what you say and teach, and you show deference to no one, but teach the way of God in accordance with truth. ²² Is it lawful for us to pay taxes to the emperor, or not?" ²³ But he perceived their craftiness and said to them, ²⁴ "Show me a denarius. Whose head and whose title does it bear?" They said, "The emperor's." ²⁵ He said to them, "Then give to the emperor the things that are the emperor's, and to God the things that are God's." ²⁶ And they were not able in the presence of the people to trap him by what he said; and being amazed by his answer, they became silent.

²⁷ Some Sadducees, those who say there is no resurrection, came to him ²⁸ and asked him a question, "Teacher, Moses wrote for us that if a man's brother dies, leaving a wife but no children, the man shall marry the widow and raise up children for his brother. ²⁹ Now there were seven brothers; the first married, and died childless; ³⁰ then the second ³¹ and the third married her, and so in the same way all seven died childless. ³² Finally the woman also died. ³³ In the resurrection, therefore,

---

²⁰.20–26: Paying taxes to the emperor (Mt 22.15–22; Mk 12.13–17). ²⁰: Honest translates a Greek word that normally means “correct according to the law,” i.e., “righteous.” It is used here in the same sense of false pretense that it has in Mt 23.28. ²²–²⁵: A falsified version of this incident lies behind the charge against Jesus before Pilate in 23.2. ²⁴: Denarius, a coin that had the head of the emperor on one side. Strict, pious Jews did not use these Roman coins, but specially minted Jewish coinage.

²⁰.27–40: Question concerning resurrection (Mt 22.23–33; Mk 12.18–27). ²⁷: Sadducees were the elite class of landed Jerusalem gentry who operated the Temple and wielded power from that religious base of operations; cf. Acts 4.1–2; 23.6–10. ²⁷: Sadducees recognized only the Pentateuch (first five books of the Hebrew Bible) as authoritative, so they denied resurrection because they insisted that it was not taught there. ²⁸: The question whose wife will the woman be? For the seven had married her.”

34 Jesus said to them, “Those who belong to this age marry and are given in marriage; but those who are considered worthy of a place in that age and in the resurrection from the dead neither marry nor are given in marriage. 36 Indeed they cannot die anymore, because they are like angels and are children of God, being children of the resurrection.

37 And the fact that the dead are raised Moses himself showed, in the story about the bush, where he speaks of the Lord as the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. 38 Now he is God not of the dead, but of the living; for to him all of them are alive.” 39 Then some of the scribes answered, “Teacher, you have spoken well.” 40 For they no longer dared to ask him another question.

41 Then he said to them, “How can they say that the Messiah is David’s son? 42 For David himself says in the book of Psalms, ‘The Lord said to my Lord, “Sit at my right hand, until I make your enemies your footstool.”’

43 David thus calls him Lord; so how can he be his son?”

44 In the hearing of all the people he said to the disciples, “Beware of the scribes, who like to walk around in long robes, and love to be greeted with respect in the marketplaces and to have the best seats in the synagogues and places of honor at banquets. 47 They devour widows’ houses and for the sake of appearance say long prayers. They will receive the greater condemnation.”

21 He looked up and saw rich people putting their gifts into the treasury; 2 he also saw a poor widow put in two small copper coins. 3 He said, “Truly I tell you, this poor widow has put in more than all of them; 4 for all of them have contributed out of their abundance, but she out of her poverty has put in all she had to live on.”

5 When some were speaking about the temple, how it was adorned with beautiful stones and gifts dedicated to God, he said, “As for these things that you see, the days will come when not one stone will be left upon another; all will be thrown down.”

7 They asked him, “Teacher, when will this be, and what will be the sign that this is about to take place?” 8 And he said, “Beware that you are not led astray; for many will come in my name and say, ‘I am he!’ and, ‘The time is near!’ Do not go after them.

9 “When you hear of wars and insurrections, do not be terrified; for these things must take place first, but the end will not follow immediately.”

reflected the practice of levirate marriage in Deut 25.5–10; see Gen 38.8. 34–36: Human relations in marriage do not exist in the same way beyond death. Jesus distinguishes two ages and kinds of existence. Mortals are part of this age by their physical birth, and of the age to come by resurrection. 37: Ex 3.6. Jesus cites the words of Moses from the Pentateuch to refute the Sadducees’ argument. 39: Note the praise of Jesus by the scribes, affirmation that shows that all scribes were not simply aligned against Jesus.

20.41–44: A question about David’s son (Mt 22.41–46; Mk 12.35–37a). 42–43: Ps 110.1. No solution is given for the riddle that Jesus offered. 44: King David was traditionally viewed as the author of most of the Psalms. The question is: How can the messiah be David’s descendant if David calls him Lord? Ps 110 was frequently referred to in early Christian writings; see Acts 2.34–35; 1 Cor 15.25; Heb 1.5.

21.1–4: The widow’s offering (Mk 12.41–44). 1: The treasury refers here to a container (shaped like an inverted trumpet for protection against theft) to receive offerings; there were thirteen of these receptacles in “the court of the women” of the Temple; in Jn 8.20 the term refers to a room in the Temple. 2: The copper coin (Gk “lepton”) was of little monetary value (see 12.59n.) but of great cost to this giver.

21.5–6: Foretelling the destruction of the Temple (Mt 24.1–2; Mk 13.1–2). Jesus’ teachings in these and the following verses are related to the material in Mk 13, but Luke’s version of that eschatological discourse has distinctive elements and perspectives. 6: See 19.44n.

21.7–11: Sayings about end-time signs (Mt 24.3–8; Mk 13.3–8). 7: 17.20; Acts 1.6. 10: 2 Chr 15.6; Isa 19.2.
“Nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; ¹¹there will be great earthquakes, and in various places famines and plagues; and there will be dreadful portents and great signs from heaven.

¹²“But before all this occurs, they will arrest you and persecute you; they will hand you over to synagogues and prisons, and you will be brought before kings and governors because of my name. ¹³This will give you an opportunity to testify. ¹⁴So make up your minds not to prepare your defense in advance; ¹⁵for I will give you words and a wisdom that none of your opponents will be able to withstand or contradict. ¹⁶You will be betrayed even by parents and brothers, by relatives and friends; and they will put some of you to death. ¹⁷You will be hated by all because of my name. ¹⁸But not a hair of your head will perish. ¹⁹By your endurance you will gain your souls.

²⁰“When you see Jerusalem surrounded by armies, then know that its desolation has come near. ²¹Then those in Judea must flee to the mountains, and those inside the city must leave it, and those out in the country to the mountains, and those inside the city will perish.

²²For there will be great distress on the earth among nations confused by the roaring of the sea and the waves. ²³People will faint from fear and foreboding of what is coming upon the world, for the powers of the heavens will be shaken. ²⁴Then they will see ‘the Son of Man coming in a cloud’ with power and great glory. ²⁵Now when these things begin to take place, stand up and raise your heads, because your redemption is drawing near.”

²⁶Then he told them a parable: “Look at the fig tree and all the trees; ²⁷as soon as they sprout leaves you can see for yourselves and know that summer is already near. ²⁸So also, when you see these things taking place, you know that the kingdom of God is near. ²⁹Truly I tell you, this generation will not pass away until all things have taken place. ³⁰Heaven and earth will pass away, but my words will not pass away.

³¹“Be on guard so that your hearts are not weighed down with dissipation and drunkenness and the worries of this life, and that day does not catch you unexpectedly, ³²like a trap. For it will come upon all who live on the face of the whole earth. ³³Be alert at all times, praying that you may have the strength to escape all these things that will take place, and to stand before the Son of Man.”

³⁴Every day he was teaching in the temple, and at night he would go out and spend the night on the Mount of Olives, as it was called.

21.25–28: The coming of the Son of Man (Mt 24.29–31; Mk 13.24–27). 25–27: These verses reflect language and elements of thought from Joel 3.3–4; Isa 21.9 (LXX); Ps 65.8; 46.4; 89.10; Wis 5.22; Jon 1.15. 25: Isa 13.10; Joel 2.10; Zep 1.15. 26: Incorporates wording parallel to Isa 34.4. The powers of the heavens are likely the celestial bodies mentioned in v. 25, 27: Incorporates wording parallel to Dan 7.13–14.

21.37–38: Summary concerning Jesus’ ministry in Jerusalem. 38: The story of the woman caught in adultery (Jn 8.1–11) appears after this verse in some ancient manuscripts; see Jn 8.11, note c.
And all the people would get up early in the morning to listen to him in the temple.

Now the festival of Unleavened Bread, which is called the Passover, was near.

The chief priests and the scribes were looking for a way to put Jesus to death, for they were afraid of the people. Then Satan entered into Judas called Iscariot, who was one of the twelve; he went away and conferred with the chief priests and officers of the temple police about how he might betray him to them. They were greatly pleased and agreed to give him money. So he consented and began to look for an opportunity to betray him to them when no crowd was present.

Then came the day of Unleavened Bread, on which the Passover lamb had to be sacrificed. So Jesus sent Peter and John, saying, “Go and prepare the Passover meal for us that we may eat it.” They asked him, “Where do you want us to make preparations for it?” So he said to them, “When you have entered the city, a man carrying a jar of water will meet you; follow him into the house he enters and say to the owner of the house, ‘The teacher asks you, “Where is the guest room, where I may eat the Passover with my disciples?”’” He will show you a large room upstairs, already furnished. Make preparations for us there.” So they went and found everything as he had told them; and they prepared the Passover meal.

When the hour came, he took his place at the table, and the apostles with him. He said to them, “I have eagerly desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer; for I tell you, I will not eat it until it is fulfilled in the kingdom of God.” Then he took a cup, and after giving thanks he said, “Take this and divide it among yourselves; for I tell you that from now on I will not drink of the fruit of the vine until the kingdom of God comes.” Then he took a loaf of bread, and when he had given thanks, he broke it and gave it to them, saying, “This is my body, which is given for you. Do this in remembrance of me.” And he did the same with the cup after supper, saying, “This cup that is poured out for you is the new covenant in my blood.” But see, the one who betrays me is with me, and his hand is on the table. For the Son of Man is going as it has been determined.

22.1–6: The deadly conspiracy against Jesus. 1–2: Mt 26.2–5; Mk 14.1–2; Jn 11.47–53. The word “called” is a concession to the Gentile readers for whom Luke wrote. 3–6: Mt 26.14–16; Mk 14.10–11; Jn 13.2. The entry of Satan into Judas (see 6.16n.) reintroduces the theme from 4.13. Cf. Jn 13.2. 4: Chief priests . . . , see 19.47n. 5: Judas’s motive for betrayal is made explicit here.

22.7–13: Preparations for the Passover (Mt 26.17–19; Mk 14.12–16; Jn 13.1). 7: Ex 12.18–20; Deut 16.5–8. 10: The plans appear to rest on some prior arrangement; a man carrying a jar of water would be doing woman’s work and would be easily noticeable. 11: The identity of the householder is unknown. 12: The large room upstairs was on the second floor, probably served by an outside staircase; such rooms were regularly available and rented to pilgrims to Jerusalem.

22.14–20: The Last Supper (Mt 26.26–29; Mk 14.22–25; cf. Jn 6.51–58). 14: The hour, of the meal, after sundown. 15: 12.49–50. 16: Jesus thinks of the meal as pointing forward to the meal celebrating the fulfilling of God’s kingdom (12.37n.; 13.28–29; 14.15; 22.28–30). 17: Some Jewish meals included prayers over the cup of wine, and several such prayers might be offered during the meal (see v. 20). Luke’s order of events may be related to this practice, or to a variation among early Christians in the way they remembered and observed the “Lord’s supper.” Luke’s inclusion of a cup before the bread, as well as the usual cup after the bread, is unique. Jesus transformed a Jewish devotional meal into a continuing expression of association with himself in death and victory. 19: 1 Cor 11.23–26. 21: Ps 41.9; Jn 13.21–30.

22.21–23: The foretelling of the betrayal (Mt 26.21–25; Mk 14.18–21; Jn 13.21–30). 22: Jesus (the Son of Man) moves toward a destiny determined by God and even Judas’s actions are a part of a process beyond human control, although Judas is still responsible for his betrayal.
determined, but woe to that one by whom he is betrayed!” 23 Then they began to ask one another which one of them it could be who would do this. 24 A dispute also arose among them as to which one of them was to be regarded as the greatest. 25 But he said to them, “The kings of the Gentiles lord it over them; and those in authority over them are called benefactors. 26 But not so with you; rather the greatest among you must become like the youngest, and the leader like one who serves. 27 For who is greater, the one who is at the table or the one who serves? Is it not the one at the table? and the one who has no sword must sell his cloak and buy one. 28 “You are those who have stood by me in my trials; 29 and I confer on you, just as my Father has conferred on me, a kingdom, 30 so that you may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and you will sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

31“Simon, Simon, listen! Satan has demanded⁴ to sift all of you like wheat, 32 but I have prayed for you that your own faith may not fail; and you, when once you have turned back, strengthen your brothers.” 33 And he said to him, “Lord, I am ready to go with you to prison and to death!” 34 Jesus⁵ said, “I tell you, Peter, the cock will not crow this day, until you have denied three times that you know me.”

35 He said to them, “When I sent you out without a purse, bag, or sandals, did you lack anything?” They said, “No, not a thing.” 36 He said to them, “But now, the one who has a purse must take it, and likewise a bag. And the one who has no sword must sell his cloak and buy one. 37 For I tell you, this scripture must be fulfilled in me, ‘And he was counted among the lawless’; and indeed what is written about me is being fulfilled.” 38 They said, “Lord, look, here are two swords.” He replied, “It is enough.”

39 He came out and went, as was his custom, to the Mount of Olives; and the disciples followed him. 40 When he reached the place, he said to them, “Pray that you may not come into the time of trial.”⁶ 41 Then he withdrew from them about a stone’s throw, knelt down, and prayed, 42 “Father, if you are willing, remove this cup from me; yet, not my will but yours be done.” 43 Then an angel from heaven appeared to him and gave him strength. 44 In his anguish he prayed more earnestly, and his sweat became like great drops of blood falling down on the ground. 45 When he got up from prayer, he came to the disciples and found them sleeping because of grief, 46 and he said to them, “Why are you sleeping? Get up and pray that you may not come into the time of trial.”

47 While he was still speaking, suddenly a crowd came, and the one called Judas, one of the twelve, was leading them. He approached Jesus to kiss him; 48 but Jesus said to him, “Judas, is it with a kiss that you are betraying the Son of Man?” 49 When those who were around him saw what was coming, they asked, “Lord, should we strike with the sword?” 50 Then one of them struck the slave of the high priest and cut off his right ear.

a Or has obtained permission
b Gk He
c Or into temptation
d Other ancient authorities lack verses 43 and 44

22.24–30: True discipleship (Mt 20.24–28; Mk 10.41–45). These verses and those of the two sections that follow (21.31–34,35–38) form a brief farewell discourse delivered by Jesus to his disciples. 24: Jn 13.3–16. 25: Benefactors, a title bestowed on Hellenistic kings. 27: See 12.37n.

22.35–38: Sayings about the coming crisis. 35: See 10.4; cf. 9.3. 36: An example of Jesus’ fondness for striking metaphors, but the disciples take it literally (v. 38). 37: Isa 53.12. 38: An ironic rebuke.

22.39–46: Jesus’ prayer on the Mount of Olives (Mt 26.36–46; Mk 14.32–42; Jn 18.1–2). 40: See 11.4. 42: Cup, metaphor for that which is allotted by God, whether blessing (Pss 16.5; 116.13) or judgment (Isa 51.17; Lam 4.21). Here it refers to Jesus’ suffering and death. 43–44: Important early manuscripts lack these verses, but they were known to Christian writers of the second century CE and reflect tradition concerning the suffering of Jesus. Whether they were a part of the original text is debatable.

51 But Jesus said, “No more of this!” And he touched his ear and healed him. 52 Then Jesus said to the chief priests, the officers of the temple police, and the elders who had come for him, “Have you come out with swords and clubs as if I were a bandit? 53 When I was with you day after day in the temple, you did not lay hands on me. But this is your hour, and the power of darkness!”

54 Then they seized him and led him away, bringing him into the high priest’s house. But Peter was following at a distance. 55 When they had kindled a fire in the middle of the courtyard and sat down together, Peter sat among them. 56 Then a servant-girl, seeing him in the firelight, stared at him and said, “This man also was with him.” 57 But he denied it, saying, “Woman, I do not know him.” 58 A little later someone else, on seeing him, said, “You also are one of them.” But Peter said, “Man, I am not!” 59 Then about an hour later still another kept insisting, “Surely this man also was with him; for he is a Galilean.” 60 But Peter said, “Man, I do not know what you are talking about!” At that moment, while he was still speaking, the cock crowed. 61 The Lord turned and looked at Peter. Then Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said to him, “Before the cock crows today, you will deny me three times.” 62 And he went out and wept bitterly.

63 Now the men who were holding Jesus began to mock him and beat him; 64 they also blindfolded him and kept asking him, “Prophesy! Who is it that struck you?” 65 They kept heaping many other insults on him.

66 When day came, the assembly of the elders of the people, both chief priests and scribes, gathered together, and they brought him to their council. 67 They said, “If you are the Messiah, tell us.” He replied, “If I tell you, you will not believe; 68 and if I question you, you will not answer. 69 But from now on the Son of Man will be seated at the right hand of the power of God.” 70 All of them asked, “Are you then, the Son of God?” He said to them, “You say that I am.” 71 Then they said, “What further testimony do we need? We have heard it ourselves from his own lips!”

23 Then the assembly rose as a body and brought Jesus before Pilate. 2 They began to accuse him, saying, “We found this man perverting our nation, forbidding us to pay taxes to the emperor, and saying that he himself is the Messiah, a king.” 3 Then Pilate asked him, “Are you the king of the Jews?” He answered, “You say so.” 4 Then Pilate said to the chief priests and the crowds, “I find no basis for an accusation against this man.” 5 But they were insistent and said, “He stirs up the people by teaching throughout all Judea, from Galilee where he began even to this place.” 6 When Pilate heard this, he asked whether the man was a Galilean. 7 And when he learned that he was under Herod’s jurisdiction, he sent him off to Herod, who was himself in Jerusalem at that time. 8 When Herod saw Jesus,

---

51: But Jesus said, “No more of this!” And he touched his ear and healed him.
52: Then Jesus said to the chief priests, the officers of the temple police, and the elders who had come for him, “Have you come out with swords and clubs as if I were a bandit?” When I was with you day after day in the temple, you did not lay hands on me. But this is your hour, and the power of darkness!
54: Then they seized him and led him away, bringing him into the high priest’s house. But Peter was following at a distance.
55: When they had kindled a fire in the middle of the courtyard and sat down together, Peter sat among them. Then a servant-girl, seeing him in the firelight, stared at him and said, “This man also was with him.” But he denied it, saying, “Woman, I do not know him.”
58: A little later someone else, on seeing him, said, “You also are one of them.” But Peter said, “Man, I am not!” Then about an hour later still another kept insisting, “Surely this man also was with him; for he is a Galilean.”
59: But Peter said, “Man, I do not know what you are talking about!” At that moment, while he was still speaking, the cock crowed.
61: The Lord turned and looked at Peter. Then Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said to him, “Before the cock crows today, you will deny me three times.”
62: And he went out and wept bitterly.
63: Now the men who were holding Jesus began to mock him and beat him; they also blindfolded him and kept asking him, “Prophesy! Who is it that struck you?” They kept heaping many other insults on him.
66: When day came, the assembly of the elders of the people, both chief priests and scribes, gathered together, and they brought him to their council. They said, “If you are the Messiah, tell us.” He replied, “If I tell you, you will not believe; and if I question you, you will not answer. But from now on the Son of Man will be seated at the right hand of the power of God.” All of them asked, “Are you then, the Son of God?” He said to them, “You say that I am.” Then they said, “What further testimony do we need? We have heard it ourselves from his own lips!”

23: Then the assembly rose as a body and brought Jesus before Pilate. They began to accuse him, saying, “We found this man perverting our nation, forbidding us to pay taxes to the emperor, and saying that he himself is the Messiah, a king.” Then Pilate asked him, “Are you the king of the Jews?” He answered, “You say so.” Then Pilate said to the chief priests and the crowds, “I find no basis for an accusation against this man.” But they were insistent and said, “He stirs up the people by teaching throughout all Judea, from Galilee where he began even to this place.”

---

51: Or the Christ
52: Gk him
53: Or is an anointed king

NEW TESTAMENT | 1873
he was very glad, for he had been wanting to see him for a long time, because he had heard about him and was hoping to see him perform some sign. 9 He questioned him at some length, but Jesus[a] gave him no answer. 10 The chief priests and the scribes stood by, vehemently accusing him. 11 Even Herod with his soldiers treated him with contempt and mocked him; then he put an elegant robe on him, and sent him back to Pilate. 12 That same day Herod and Pilate became friends with each other; before this they had been enemies. 13 Pilate then called together the chief priests, the leaders, and the people, 14 and said to them, “You brought me this man as one who was perverting the people; and here I have examined him in your presence and have not found this man guilty of any of your charges against him. 15 Neither has Herod, for he sent him back to us. Indeed, he has done nothing to deserve death. 16 I will therefore have him flogged and release him.”

18 Then they all shouted out together, “Away with this fellow! Release Barabbas for us!” 19 (This was a man who had been put in prison for an insurrection that had taken place in the country, and for murder.) 20 Pilate, wanting to release Jesus, addressed them again; 21 but they kept shouting, “Crucify, crucify him!” 22 A third time he said to them, “Why, what evil has he done? I have found in him no ground for the sentence of death; I will therefore have him flogged and then release him.”

24 So Pilate gave his verdict that their demand should be granted. 25 He released the man they asked for, the one who had been put in prison for insurrection and murder, and he handed Jesus over as they wished.

26 As they led him away, they seized a man, Simon of Cyrene, who was coming from the country, and they laid the cross on him, and made him carry it behind Jesus. 27 A great number of the people followed him, and among them were women who were beating their breasts and wailing for him. 28 But Jesus turned to them and said, “Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep for me, but weep for yourselves and for your children. 29 For the days are surely coming when they will say, ‘Blessed are the barren, and the wombs that never bore, and the breasts that never nursed.’ 30 Then they will begin to say to the mountains, ‘Fall on us’; and to the hills, ‘Cover us.’ 31 For if they do this when the wood is green, what will happen when it is dry?” 32 Two others also, who were criminals, were led away to be put to death with him. 33 When they came to the place that is called The Skull, they crucified Jesus[a] there with the criminals, one on his right and one on his left. 34 Then Jesus said, “Father, forgive them; for they do not know what they are

(a) Gk he
(b) Here, or after verse 19, other ancient authorities add verse 17, Now he was obliged to release someone for them at the festival
(c) Gk him

(see 3.11n.). Herod [Antipas] had arrested (3.19–20) and beheaded (9.9) John the Baptist. 8: 9,9; Acts 4.27–28. 9: Jesus’ silence, noted in Mt 27.12 and Mk 15.5, occurs in Luke’s account as Jesus stands before Herod Antipas, a scene unique to Luke. 11: Jn 19.2–3.

23.13–16 [17]: Pilate’s declaration of Jesus’ innocence. 14: Vv. 4,22,41. 16: Jn 19.12–14. [17]: An addition to Luke’s account from Mk 15.6; see note there.

23.18–25: The sentencing of Jesus to death (Mt 27.15–26; Mk 15.6–15; Jn 18.39–40; 19.16; see Acts 3.13–14). 18: The Barabbas incident is recounted in further detail in Mt 27.15–23; Mk 15.6–14; Jn 18.39–40.

23.26–31: On the way to the cross (Mt 27.31b–32; Mk 15.20b–21; Jn 19.17a). 26: Cyrene, in Libya. The cross, i.e., the horizontal cross-beam. 27: Here beating their breasts seems to indicate more mourning than repentance (cf. 18.3; 23.48). 28–32: 21.23–24; 19.41–44. 30: Incorporates wording parallel to Hos 10.8. 31: Cf. Prov 11.31. This proverb may mean either that if the innocent Jesus meets such a fate, then a worse fate awaits the guilty Jerusalem, or that if such takes place with Jesus present and active, what will happen when he is no longer present?

Cf. 1 Pet 4.17–18.

23.32: Two criminals with Jesus. The Gk word for criminal gives no indication of the nature of the crime(s) committed by these two who were crucified with Jesus.

23.33–38: The scene of the crucifixion (Mt 27.33–43; Mk 15.22–32a; Jn 19.17b–27). 33: The Skull, its Aramaic doing.” a And they cast lots to divide his clothing. 35 And the people stood by, watching; but the leaders scoffed at him, saying, “He saved others; let him save himself if he is the Messiah b of God, his chosen one!” 36 The soldiers also mocked him, coming up and offering him sour wine, 37 and saying, “If you are the King of the Jews, save yourself!” 38 There was also an inscription over him, c “This is the King of the Jews.” 39 One of the criminals who were hanged there kept deriding d him and saying, “Are you not the Messiah? 40 Save yourself and us!” 40 But the other rebuked him, saying, “Do you not fear God, since you are under the same sentence of condemnation? 41 And we indeed have been condemned justly, for we are getting what we deserve for our deeds, but this man has done nothing wrong.” 42 Then he said, “Jesus, remember me when you come into your kingdom.” 43 He replied, “Truly I tell you, today you will be with me in Paradise.” 44 It was now about noon, and darkness came over the whole land e until three in the afternoon, 45 while the sun’s light failed; g and the curtain of the temple was torn in two. 46 Then Jesus, crying with a loud voice, said, “Father, into your hands I commend my spirit.” Having said this, he breathed his last. 47 When the centurion saw what had taken place, he praised God and said, “Certainly this man was innocent.” h 48 And when all the crowds who had gathered there for this spectacle saw what had taken place, they returned home, beating their breasts. 49 But all his acquaintances, including the women who had followed him from Galilee, stood at a distance, watching these things. 50 Now there was a good and righteous man named Joseph, who, though a member of the council, 51 had not agreed to their plan and action. He came from the Jewish town of Arimathea, and he was waiting expectantly for the kingdom of God. 52 This man went to Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. 53 Then he took it down, wrapped it in a linen cloth, and laid it in a rock-hewn tomb where no one had ever been laid. 54 It was the day of Preparation, and the sabbath was beginning. 55 The women who had come with him from Galilee followed, and they saw the tomb and a Other ancient authorities lack the sentence Then Jesus . . . what they are doing

b Or the Christ
c Other ancient authorities add written in Greek and Latin and Hebrew (that is, Aramaic)
d Or blaspheming
e Other ancient authorities read in f Or earth
g Or the sun was eclipsed. Other ancient authorities read the sun was darkened h Or righteous
i Gk was dawning
24.1–53: The empty tomb and the resurrection (Mt 28.1–10,16–20; Mk 16.1–8; Jn 20–21).

24.1–12: The women at the tomb (Mt 28.1–8; Mk 16.1–8; Jn 20.1–13).

4. The two men wear clothing that identifies them as angels, not ordinary humans (see v. 23), as do their sudden appearance and supernatural knowledge (vv. 5–7). 6: 9.22; 13.32–33. You here suggests that Jesus’ disciples as a group often included others in addition to those of the inner circle. 10: 8.1–3; Jn 19.25; 20.2. 12: This verse, though appearing in many ancient manuscripts, may be an addition to the original text of Luke based on Jn 20.3–10.

24.13–35: The Emmaus incident. 13: Seven miles, lit., “sixty stadia”; a stade was approximately 180 m (600 ft). The exact location of Emmaus is uncertain. 16: The inability of these persons to recognize Jesus is typical of initial reactions to Jesus in resurrection stories (cf. 24.37). 19: 7.16; 13.33; Acts 3.22; 10.38. 26: Necessary because of God’s divine plan (see 7.30; Acts 2.23; 13.36; 20.27). 27: Moses, the traditional author of the first five books of the Bible. The prophets, a major section of the Jewish scriptures more extensive in scope than the prophetic works... all the prophets, he interpreted to them the things about himself in all the scriptures.

28 As they came near the village to which they were going, he walked ahead as if he were going on. 29 But they urged him strongly, saying, “Stay with us, because it is almost evening and the day is now nearly over.” So he went in to stay with them. 30 When he was at the table with them, he took bread, blessed and broke it, and gave it to them. 31 Then their eyes were opened, and they recognized him; and he vanished from their sight. 32 They said to each other, “Were not our hearts burning within us while he was talking to us on the road, while he was opening the scriptures to us?” 33 That same hour they got up and returned to Jerusalem; and they found the eleven and their companions gathered together. 34 They were saying, “The Lord has risen indeed, and he has appeared to Simon!” 35 Then they told what had happened on the road, and how he had been made known to them in the breaking of the bread.

36 While they were talking about this, Jesus himself stood among them and said to them, “Peace be with you.”

37 They were startled and terrified, and thought that they were seeing a ghost. 38 He said to them, “Why are you frightened, and why do doubts arise in your hearts? 39 Look at my hands and my feet; see that it is I myself. Touch me and see; for a ghost does not have flesh and bones as you see that I have.” 40 And when he had said this, he showed them his hands and his feet. 41 While in their joy they were disbelieving and still wondering, he said to them, “Have you anything here to eat?”

42 They gave him a piece of broiled fish, 43 and he took it and ate in their presence.

44 Then he said to them, “These are my words that I spoke to you while I was still with you—that everything written about me in the law of Moses, the prophets, and the psalms must be fulfilled.” 45 Then he opened their minds to understand the scriptures, 46 and he said to them, “Thus it is written, that the Messiah is to suffer and to rise from the dead on the third day, 47 and that repentance and forgiveness of sins is to be proclaimed in his name to all nations, beginning from Jerusalem. 48 You are witnesses of these things. 49 And see, I am sending upon you what my Father promised; so stay here in the city until you have been clothed with power from on high.”

50 Then he led them out as far as Bethany, and, lifting up his hands, he blessed them.

51 While he was blessing them, he withdrew from them and was carried up into heaven. 52 And they worshiped him, and returned to Jerusalem with great joy; 53 and they were continually in the temple blessing God.

---

a Other ancient authorities lack within us while he was talking to us on the road, while he was opening the scriptures to us?

b Other ancient authorities lack and said to them, “Peace be with you.”

c Other ancient authorities lack verse 40

d Or the Christ

e Or nations. Beginning from Jerusalem “you are witnesses"

f Other ancient authorities lack and was carried up into heaven

g Other ancient authorities lack worshiped him, and h Other ancient authorities add Amen

This page intentionally left blank
THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO JOHN

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, AND DATE

The Fourth Gospel is named for John, the son of Zebedee, one of the Twelve (see Mk 1.19; 3.17; etc.), traditionally thought to be its author and identified as the “beloved disciple” repeatedly mentioned in the Gospel. Modern scholars think it was more likely written by a disciple of John. It may have been the “beloved disciple,” who is never called John in the Gospel, or someone to whom he dictated it (see Jn 21.24n.). Most scholars date the Gospel to about 90 CE, although some have proposed an earlier date for it, or for an earlier version of it.

RELATIONSHIP TO THE SYNOPTIC GOSPELS

The author of the Fourth Gospel was apparently familiar with the earlier Synoptic Gospels or with traditions they contain. It includes sayings of Jesus that resemble some in the Synoptics, and such narratives as Jesus and the money changers in the Temple, Jesus multiplying bread and fish, and Jesus walking on water are found in all four Gospels. Moreover, the narrative structure of the Fourth Gospel in general follows that of the earlier Gospels: the preaching of John the Baptist; preaching and healing by Jesus in Galilee and Judea; journey to Jerusalem to celebrate the Passover; arrest, trial, death, burial, and resurrection there; and appearances of Jesus after the resurrection both in Judea and in Galilee.

Within this general framework, however, John is very different in many details and in content. For example, the scene in the Temple, which the Synoptics place in the week before Jesus’ death, appears in John near the beginning of Jesus’ ministry (2.13–23). In the Synoptics, the adult Jesus journeys to Jerusalem only once, implying that his ministry lasted less than a year, whereas in John, Jesus makes several journeys to Jerusalem, including three Passovers (2.13; 6.4; 11.55), meaning that his ministry lasted several years. Although there is a Last Supper in John, it is not a Passover meal as in the Synoptic Gospels. Rather, in John the first day of Passover is the day of Jesus’ death, when he is symbolically identified as the Passover lamb (see 19.36; cf. 1.29,36), and thus the account of the Last Supper does not include the institution of the Eucharist.

Most significant are the differences in content. John has a very high Christology: Jesus is repeatedly identified and identifies himself as divine. Many of Jesus’ speeches in the Gospel reflect this perspective, and they have few parallels in the Synoptic tradition.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The Gospel of John thus seems to represent a relatively late stage in the development of earliest Christian beliefs. Its views have much in common with the other Johannine literature, the Letters of John and the book of Revelation. Although it is no longer thought likely that these works have a single author, they do seem to be the product of a “Johannine school,” which ancient tradition perhaps correctly locates at Ephesus in western Asia Minor at a time when persecution by Roman authorities was becoming more frequent, and conflicts between Gentile Christians and Jewish Christians as well as between Christians in general and Jews were becoming more intense.

STYLE, STRUCTURE, AND INTERPRETATION

The audience of John consists of Greek speakers, for many Hebrew words are translated into Greek. The “beloved disciple” is considered the “witness” to the story, presumably written in Ephesus. The author (composer and writer), who differs from the “witness,” displays sophisticated literary and rhetorical abilities. He knows the encomium that praises a person because of origins (geography and generation), education and training, virtuous actions, and noble death. Here we find two encomiums, one praiseworthy and one condemnatory, both arguing from the same topics. Opponents know that Jesus comes from Nazareth of Galilee, an insignificant place; his father is the peasant Joseph; he never studied; as for his actions, he deceives and violates the Law; and he died a death befitting a sinner. But insiders know that his geography is heaven, God’s world; his generation, son of a heavenly Father; his education, God’s instruction on what to say and do; his actions virtuous (obedience, courage, and justice); and his death noble. Antitheses like these occur regularly as crowds voice contrasting judgments about Jesus, either sinner or saint.
The Gospel argues through the rhetorical figure “comparison” the superiority of Jesus to Israel’s patriarchs: he is “greater than” Jacob (4.12), Abraham (8.52), and Moses (1.17; 3.13–14; 5.45–47). When Jesus says that “I am . . . (something),” he is claiming superiority over some element of Israelite tradition and ritual as well as of nature. “I am . . . bread . . . from heaven” (6.41; not mere manna); “light of the world” (8.12; not mere sunlight); “gate” (10.9; no other broker provides access to God); “noble shepherd” (see 10.11n.; not thieves or bandits); “resurrection and . . . life” (11.25; apart from death), and “vine” (15.1). Jesus speaks eight statements, each of which begin with a demand “Unless . . .”; these require something be done, either to join the group (3.3; 12.24; 13.8) or remain in it (8.24; 15.4). They all demand behavior surpassing Israel’s transformative and confirmatory rituals.

The following division is suggested by the Gospel itself: the prologue (1.1–18); the book of Jesus’ signs that he is the revelation of the Father (1.19–12.50); the book of Jesus’ glory as it is revealed to those who accept him through his crucifixion, resurrection, and ascension (13.1–20.31); the epilogue, which contains additional accounts of Jesus’ postresurrection appearances and comments on the future of Peter and the “beloved disciple” (21.1–25).

The author knows traditional literary forms, such as the shape of a miracle narrative. Commonly noted are (1) the severity of the disease; (2) cure by command or use of spit and mud; (3) proof of the cure; and (4) honor awarded the healer. This form illuminates the structure of many of the “signs,” especially 5.1–10; 9.1–11 and 11.38–44. The genre of the “farewell address,” known from both Jewish and Greek literature, structures the discourse in John 14–17. It typically contains (1) notice of death or departure (13.33; 14.2–3,28); (2) review of the person’s life (14.32; 17.4–8,18,26); (3) relationships to be maintained (14.3–17; 15.13–17); (4) knowledge and revelations given (14.4–11,20–26; 15.25–26); (5) predictions of forthcoming events (14.29; 15.18–25; 16.1–4,29–22); (6) exhortation to virtue (“believe,” 14.10–11; “love,” 14.21–24; 15.12–17; “abide,” 15.1–10); (7) successor named (14.25–26; 16.7–15); and (8) legacy (“greater works,” 14.12–14; “name of God” bestowed, 17.6,11–12,26; knowledge, 17.3–8).

Other patterns appear. Four times people request Jesus to act; he refuses, but shortly thereafter acts positively (2.3–7; 4.47–50; 7.3–10; 11.3–7). Only Jesus knows his “hour,” and all actions are of his own choosing, a display of his honor and of control. Conflict, which pervades this Gospel, is expressed in forensic trials, which consist of: person charged; witnesses pro and con; judge; sentence and verdict. All trials occur in Jerusalem (chs 5; 7–11; 18–19) where the elite accuse Jesus of violating the sabbath (5.17; 7.21; 9.16) and blasphemy (5.18; 10.33). Witnesses testify both favorably and critically. The judges, who claim to judge according to the law, judge instead according to appearances (7.24; 8.15). Despite their guilty verdict, they cannot execute sentence, and in time they themselves will be judged.

Jesus reveals and conceals. As revealer, he is the Word of God who speaks God’s words. But he also conceals in that only insiders hear and know his revelation (e.g., 10.27). Outsiders like Nicodemus barely know the workings of the world of matter and flesh below (see 3.12). In one of the notable patterns here, Jesus uses words with double meanings. Nicodemus must be born “again,” he thinks, but Jesus meant “from above.” The Samaritan woman discusses “water” with Jesus but never realizes that Jesus is not speaking of well water (4.7–15); nor do the disciples understand Jesus’ “food” (4.31–34). Some interpret “I am going. . . .” as departure or suicide (7.35; 8.22), not as glorious return to the Father. Jesus hides himself (8.59; 12.36), dissembles with his brothers (7.1–11), the disciples understand Jesus’ “food” (4.31–34). Some interpret “I am going. . . .” as departure or suicide (7.35; 8.15). Despite their guilty verdict, they cannot execute sentence, and in time they themselves will be judged.

The Gospel discredits the religious authorities, whom it calls “the Jews,” by portraying them as mercenary and uncaring shepherds (10.12–13), as haughty and condescending to the people (7.15,49; 9.34), as being more concerned with worldly honor than divine favor (12.43), and as maliciously plotting to kill Jesus (11.53). Although its scathing portrayal of “the Jews” has opened John to charges of anti-Semitism, a careful reading reveals “the Jews” to be a class designation, not a religious or ethnic grouping; rather than denoting adherents to Judaism in general, the term primarily refers to the hereditary Temple religious authorities. The Gospel further acknowledges their influential status by including among “the Jews” those who have accepted the worldview and class interests of the hereditary religious authorities as their own. This larger group includes the Pharisees (1.19,24) and even the “crowd” of laypersons whose worth the religious authorities dismissed (7.49; cf. 6.22,41). Thus the rejection and persecution of Jesus by “the Jews” is shown to be not only the result of his words and deeds, but a result of the fact that his healings, pronouncements, and person lack the pedigree and imprimatur of the governing religious elite (7.15,48–49; cf. 9.34).
The Gospel of John celebrates Jesus, albeit differently from the other Gospels. Indeed, Jesus is acclaimed Messiah, Son of God, king of Israel, prophet, and Son of Man. But the author understands Jesus in more elevated terms. For example, in the prologue we learn at once that Jesus is a heavenly figure existing with God before the world was created. Thus he is uncreated in the past and brokers God’s creative power. Jesus comes from God, is not merely sent by him, and entered this world, becoming flesh. Jesus, moreover, returns to that heavenly world when God glorifies him, God thus vindicating all that he said and did. This descent-ascent motif permeates the narrative, from beginning (1.1–18; 3.13) to end (13.1–3; 20.18).

It is false to claim that Jesus “makes himself” anything, for God makes him equal to himself, especially in terms of creative power (1.1–3; all healings) and eschatological power (5.19–29; 10.17–18; 11.38–44). God gives Jesus his own name, which he in turn gives to the disciples: the name “I AM” in 8.58 (see also 4.26n.; cf. Ex 3.14; Isa 43.10; 46.4) expresses uncreated existence in the past and imperishability in the future. All of Jesus’ qualities and endowments serve to make him a superior broker or mediator between God who is patron and the disciples who are clients. Disciples pray always in Jesus’ name; God’s word and power comes to the world through Jesus. In fact, no one can know or see God except through Jesus. Jesus is the ideal broker because he belongs equally to the patron’s world and that of the clients.

GUIDE TO READING
The Gospel is best read straight through, but readers may wish to attend to significant aspects such as the signs, the “I am” sayings, and other characteristics noted in this introduction. The Gospel itself claims that its narrative should be viewed in service to a larger goal: “that . . . you [the reader] may have life” (20.31).

Jerome H. Neyrey

In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. He was in the beginning with God. All things came into being through him, and without him not one thing came into being. What has come into being in him was life, and the life was the light of all people. The light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not overcome it.

There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. He came as a witness to testify to the light, so that all might believe through him. He himself was not the light, but he came to testify to the light. The true light, which enlightens everyone, was coming into the world. He was in the world, and the world came into being through him; yet the world did not know him. He came to what was his own, and his own people did not accept him.

1.1–18: Prologue. The Gospel begins with a prologue containing important topics to be developed. Jesus is eternal (uncreated and imperishable); the Word who speaks God’s words; the light of the world; the one who faces rejection and acceptance; is compared with Israel’s patriarchs; and mediates God’s blessings (creation, grace, and truth). Here also is the plot of the story: Jesus begins with God in heaven, sojourns on earth, and returns there (3.13; 6.62; 13.1–3), which appears in the repeated discussion of where Jesus comes from and where he is going. Jesus as mediator or broker: through him all things were made, and through him come grace and truth (v. 17); later the disciples will address God in his name, that is, through him (14.13–14; 16.26). The world is hostile to the light and “hates” him (7.7; 15.18–19); this is developed in vv. 10–11, and dramatized in the trials in chs 18–19. In contrast to those rejecting the light, John (the Baptist) acknowledges it, even brokering Jesus to Israel. John’s subordination to Jesus is found in 1.15, 29–34; 3.27–30. Jesus, true light of the world (see 8.12). True means “authentic, unique”; cf. “true bread” (6.32); “true vine” (15.1). Disciples walk in light (10.9–10) but many prefer darkness (3.19–20; 12.25–26). The world did not know him (i.e., acknowledge him; see 4.44; 7.1–7); nor did his own (blood relatives and Israel) become disciples. The Word is in a hostile place. But he meets with acceptance and gives believers kinship with him and God. This depends not on birth, circumcision, to all who received him, who believed in his name, he gave power to become children of God, 13 who were born, not of blood or of the will of the flesh or of the will of man, but of God.

14 And the Word became flesh and lived among us, and we have seen his glory, the glory as of a father’s only son, a full of grace and truth. 15 (John testified to him and cried out, “This was he of whom I said, ‘He who comes after me ranks ahead of me because he was before me.’”) 16 From his fullness we have all received, grace upon grace. 17 The law indeed was given through Moses; grace and truth came through Jesus Christ. 18 No one has ever seen God. It is God the only Son, b who is close to the Father’s heart, c who has made him known.

19 This is the testimony given by John when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to ask him, “Who are you?” 20 He confessed and did not deny it, but confessed, “I am not the Messiah.” 21 And they asked him, “What then? Are you Elijah?” He said, “I am not.” “Are you the prophet?” He answered, “No.” 22 Then they said to him, “Who are you? Let us have an answer for those who sent us. What do you say about yourself?” 23 He said, “I am the voice of one crying out in the wilderness, ‘Make straight the way of the Lord,’” as the prophet Isaiah said.

24 Now they had been sent from the Pharisees. 25 They asked him, “Why then are you baptizing if you are neither the Messiah, d nor Elijah, nor the prophet?” 26 John answered them, “I baptize with water. Among you stands one whom you do not know, 27 the one who is coming after me; I am not worthy to untie the thong of his sandal.” 28 This took place in Bethany across the Jordan where John was baptizing.

29 The next day he saw Jesus coming toward him and declared, “Here is the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world! 30 This is he of whom I said, ‘After me comes a man who ranks ahead of me because he was before me.’ 31 I myself did not know him; but I came baptizing with water for this reason, that he might be revealed to Israel.” 32 And John testified, “I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and it remained on him. 33 I myself did not know him, but the one who sent me to baptize with water said to me, ‘He on whom you see the Spirit descend and remain is the one who baptizes with the Holy or adoption, but on acceptance of Jesus and honoring his name. 14: Along with Heb 2.11,14,17, this is the clearest statement of Jesus’ humanity; he not only “came into the world” (1.10) but suffered thirst, weariness, and death. Lived among us, lit., “tented among us,” just as the “glory of the Lord” took up residence in the tent of meeting (Ex 40.34). 15: John repeats the statement about Jesus’ eternity in 1.1–2. Temporally Jesus follows John but existed before John, from the beginning: John’s testimony is quoted by anticipation from v. 30. 16–17: Moses gave the law, the Torah; the comparison of Jesus and Moses inaugurates a pattern, which argues that Jesus was “greater” than Moses (see also 3.14; 5.45–46), Jacob (4.12), and Abraham (8.53).

1.19–34: John’s testimony to hostile outsiders and receptive insiders. On John the Baptist, cf. Mt 3.1–17; Mk 1.1–11; Lk 3.1–22. In the Gospel of John, John the Baptist does not actually baptize Jesus. 19–23: Two groups question John, first priests and Levites, then Pharisees. They do not seek information but attempt to discredit him, with questions acting as weapons. He replies that he is not the Messiah, nor Elijah the prophet (despite Mt 11.14; Mk 9.11–12; cf. Mal 4.5), nor another prophet (cf. Deut 18.15), but rather the one described in Isa 40.3. 19: The Jews, here, as often in this Gospel, referring to religious authorities in Jerusalem. 24–25: Pharisees continue the attack, demanding to know why he baptizes. John deflects the attack by talking about the one whom he heralds. 26: They do not know (cf. v. 10) this honorable person in their midst. 28: Bethany across the Jordan, an unknown location, but different from the Bethany in 11.18. 29–30: John also testifies about Jesus to receptive people as Lamb of God, a reference to the Passover lamb (Ex 12), as 19.36 makes explicit; cf. Rev 6.6–14. John admits that he did not know him (1.31,33), but God revealed his son to John (cf. Gal 1.15) that he might testify. 30: cf. v. 15. 32: The spirit remained on Jesus, a word repeatedly used in this Gospel and in 1 and 2 John that signals belonging and attachment; not a transitory Spirit, it remains upon Jesus. As in the Synoptic Gospels (see Mk
The geography of the Gospel of John.
Spirit.' 34 And I myself have seen and have testified that this is the Son of God." 35 The next day John again was standing with two of his disciples, 36 and as he watched Jesus walk by, he exclaimed, "Look, here is the Lamb of God!" 37 The two disciples heard him say this, and they followed Jesus. 38 When Jesus turned and saw them following, he said to them, "What are you looking for?" They said to him, "Rabbi" (which translated means Teacher), "where are you staying?" 39 He said to them, "Come and see." They came and saw where he was staying, and they remained with him that day. It was about four o'clock in the afternoon. 40 One of the two who heard John speak and followed him was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother. 41 He first found his brother Simon and said to him, "We have found the Messiah" (which is translated Anointed 42). 43 The next day Jesus decided to go to Galilee. He found Philip and said to him, "Follow me." 44 Now Philip was from Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter. 45 Philip found Nathanael and said to him, "We have found him about whom Moses in the law and also the prophets wrote, Jesus son of Joseph from Nazareth." 46 Nathanael said to him, "Can anything good come out of Nazareth?" Philip said to him, "Come and see." 47 When Jesus saw Nathanael coming toward him, he said of him, "Here is truly an Israelite in whom there is no deceit!" 48 Nathanael asked him, "Where did you get to know me?" Jesus answered, "I saw you under the fig tree before Philip called you." 49 Nathanael replied, "Rabbi, you are the Son of God! You are the King of Israel!" 50 Jesus answered, "Do you believe because I told you that I saw you under the fig tree? You will see greater things than these." 51 And he
On the third day there was a wedding in Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there. Jesus and his disciples had also been invited to the wedding. When the wine gave out, the mother of Jesus said to him, “They have no wine.” And Jesus said to her, “Woman, what concern is that to you and to me? My hour has not yet come.” His mother said to the servants, “Do whatever he tells you.” Now standing there were six stone water jars for the Jewish rites of purification, each holding twenty or thirty gallons. Jesus said to them, “Fill the jars with water.” And they filled them up to the brim. He said to them, “Now draw some out, and take it to the chief steward.” So they took it. When the steward tasted the water that had become wine, and did not know where it came from, but provided proof of the wine. Twenty or thirty gallons, just as bread is multiplied superabundantly (6.1–14), so too is wine (see 10.10). The steward did not know where the wine came from, but provides proof of the miracles (cf. 9.18–21; 11.43–44; Mk 2.10–12). The first . . . sign of seven (4.47–50; 5.1–9; 6.1–14; 6.15–21; 9.1–12; 11.17–44). Signs are credentials, which the apostles acknowledge: Jesus could not do them unless God were with him (cf. 9.32–33). Capernaum, a town on the northeastern shore of the Sea of Galilee. On Jesus’ brothers, see 7.3,10; 20.17; 21.23; Mk 6.3.

2.13–25: Jesus and the Temple. In the Synoptic Gospels, this episode occurs at the end of Jesus’ ministry (Mt 21.12–17; Mk 11.15–19; Lk 19.45–46); here it is toward the beginning. 13–16: Passover, in this Gospel, Jesus celebrates three Passovers. Here Jesus replaces the Jerusalem Temple, not with another building but with his body; later Jesus is bread, not manna (6.41), and Jesus’ body, not the lamb, is sacrifice (13.1). 14: The Temple alone supplied unblemished sacrificial animals; the half-shekel of Tyre, required for entry, was procured from the money changers. 15–17: Jesus halts sacrificial worship and renders the Temple as non-sacred space. He attacks the sellers for profaning it by making it a market. 17: Remembering the event, also interpreting it by means of Ps 69.9: zeal for your house is virtuous, despite the attacks by his critics; it will consume me, that is, occasion Jesus’ death. 18: What sign, this challenge seeks to discredit Jesus. 19: Destroy . . . temple . . . three days, similar to the testimony in Mk 14.58; but Jesus himself speaks here. 20: Another pattern: Jesus speaks, listeners misunderstand, so Jesus speaks again either in clarification or to demonstrate the listeners’ obtuseness. Jesus says temple . . . three days; outsiders misunderstand, thinking that he means the Temple whose construction began under Herod the Great in the late first century BCE. 21–22: Not an earthly temple (cf. 4.21) but his risen and they believed the scripture and the word that Jesus had spoken.

23 When he was in Jerusalem during the Passover festival, many believed in his name because they saw the signs that he was doing.

24 But Jesus on his part would not entrust himself to them, because he knew all people and needed no one to testify about anyone; for he himself knew what was in everyone.

3 Now there was a Pharisee named Nicodemus, a leader of the Jews. 2 He came to Jesus by night and said to him, “Rabbi, we know that you are a teacher who has come from God; for no one can do these signs that you do apart from the presence of God.”

3 Jesus answered him, “Very truly, I tell you, no one can see the kingdom of God without being born from above.”

4 Nicodemus said to him, “How can anyone be born after having grown old? Can one enter a second time into the mother’s womb and be born?”

5 Jesus answered, “Very truly, I tell you, no one can enter the kingdom of God without being born of water and Spirit. 6 What is born of the flesh is flesh, and what is born of the Spirit is spirit. 7 Do not be astonished that I said to you, ‘You must be born from above.’

8 The wind blows where it chooses, and you hear the sound of it, but you do not know where it comes from or where it goes. So it is with everyone who is born of the Spirit.” 9 Nicodemus said to him, “How can these things be?” 10 Jesus answered him, “Are you a teacher of Israel, and yet you do not understand these things?

11 “Very truly, I tell you, we speak of what we know and testify to what we have seen; yet you do not receive our testimony. 12 If I have told you about earthly things and you do not believe, how can you believe if I tell you about heavenly things? 13 No one has ascended into heaven except the one who descended from heaven, the Son of Man. 14 And just as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, so must the Son of Man be lifted up, 15 that whoever believes in him may have eternal life.

16 “For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, so that everyone who believes in him may not perish but may have eternal life.

17 “Indeed, God did not send the Son into the world to condemn the world, but in order that the world might be saved through him.

body, which replaces all temples. After his vindication, believers remember and understand Jesus’ remark. 23: This Gospel contains many people with ambiguous loyalties (3.1–12; 7.1–10; 8.31–45). Hypocrisy and cowardice abound (see 9.22), making it hard to distinguish insiders from outsiders, true from false. 24–25: Jesus knows all (18.4), especially human hearts; prophets could read hearts and not be fooled by hypocrisy.

3.1–21: Nicodemus listens but does not hear. 1–2: A high-ranking Pharisee comes in darkness to Jesus. Teacher…. come from God reveals little when compared with what insiders had said (1.34,36,41,49). 3–5: A pattern repeated (see 2.20n.): Jesus speaks, Nicodemus misunderstands a double-meaning word: he thinks Jesus means “again” (see textual note b), whereas Jesus meant from above. Nicodemus ridicules Jesus’ word, thinking about birth as the impossible return to the womb. 5: No one can…. without introduces absolute claims by Jesus. Born of water and Spirit introduces the double–meaning word Spirit, which could be “heavenly agent” or “wind” (v. 8). Scholars disagree about whether there is a reference to baptism here. 6: A typical Johannine dichotomy dividing the world in two: Nicodemus is flesh, knowing earthly things. 8: Nicodemus cannot understand even where the wind comes from or where it goes. 9: He claimed knowledge (3.2), but is now reduced to questioning, proof that he is flesh. 10: Nicodemus’s remark about Jesus (“a teacher…. from God,” v. 3), is now sarcastically turned back on him. 11–12: In contrast, “we” speak true testimony about what we know and have seen, which he cannot receive. Even as “flesh,” he still cannot understand earthly things, like wind; he is incapable of comprehending heavenly things. 13–15: The Son of Man first mentioned in 1.51 was ambiguous; but Son of Man refers to the heavenly figure who first descended then re-ascended, confirming his heavenly origin. Serpent, see Num 21.9. 16: God’s own plan, who as a benevolent patron, sent his agent Jesus out of love. 17–18: Not...
Yet no one accepts his testimony. 33 Whoever has accepted his testimony has certified this, that God is true. 34 He whom God has sent speaks the words of God, for he gives the Spirit without measure. 35 The Father loves the Son and has placed all things in his hands. 36 Whoever believes in the Son has eternal life; whoever disobeys the Son will not see life, but must endure God’s wrath.

Now when Jesus learned that the Pharisees had heard, “Jesus is making and baptizing more disciples than John,” although it was not Jesus himself but his disciples who baptized—³³ he left Judea and started back to Galilee. ³⁴ But he had to go through Samaria. ³⁵ So he came to a Samaritan city called Sychar, near the plot of ground that Jacob had given to his son Joseph. ³⁶ Jacob’s well was 18 Those who believe in him are not condemned; but those who do not believe are condemned already, because they have not believed in the name of the only Son of God. 19 And this is the judgment, that the light has come into the world, and people loved darkness rather than light because their deeds were evil. ²⁰ For all who do evil hate the light and do not come to the light, so that their deeds may not be exposed. ²¹ But those who do what is true come to the light, so that it may be clearly seen that their deeds have been done in God.”⁴

---

22 After this Jesus and his disciples went into the Judean countryside, and he spent some time there with them and baptized. ²³ John also was baptizing at Aenon near Salim because water was abundant there; and people kept coming and were being baptized into the Judean countryside, and he spent some time there with them and baptized.

---

a Some interpreters hold that the quotation concludes with verse 15 b Other ancient authorities read the Jews
c Or the Christ
d Some interpreters hold that the quotation continues through verse 36 e Gk set a seal to f Other ancient authorities read the Lord

---

3.22–30: John’s testimony again (cf. 1.15,29–36). 22–23: With two groups of baptizers—Jesus and his disciples, and John and his disciples—competition is inevitable; see further 4.1–2. The locations of Aenon and Salim are uncertain. 24: See Mk 6.14–29. 27: All Jesus has and does is because he is God’s agent. 28: John happily holds second place, as his herald. 29: Friend, the best man or groomsman is not a rival of the bridegroom; cf. Mk 2.18–20. 30: Jesus’ increase does not shame John, because John’s decrease is voluntary, thus honorable.

3.31–36: Concluding summary. 31: Nicodemus misunderstood the double-meaning word as “again” (3.3), which here describes Jesus who comes from above (3.13,31). As “flesh” contrasts with “spirit” (3.6) and “earthly” with “heavenly” knowledge (3.12), so the speaker from above is contrasted with the one of the earth speaking earthly things. 32: Cf. 1.10–11. 34: Spirit in 3.5–8 meant “wind,” but now is it God’s gift without measure.

4.1–42: Success in Samaria. 1–2: The Pharisees’ concern over Jesus’ baptizing balances the controversy with John’s disciples (3.22–26). 3: Chs 3 and 4 are antithetical: from Judea and unbelief to Samaria and acceptance, from night to noon, from water for birth to water of life, from Israelite male to Samaritan female. 4: Samaria, between Judea and Galilee (v. 3), was inhabited by the Samaritans, who worshiped the Lord God and used the Torah. But Jews did not consider Samaritan observances to be authentic; see further v. 9. 5–6: Jacob’s well, there, and Jesus, tired out by his journey, was sitting by the well. It was about noon.

7 A Samaritan woman came to draw water, and Jesus said to her, “Give me a drink.” (His disciples had gone to the city to buy food.)

8 The Samaritan woman said to him, “How is it that you, a Jew, ask a drink of me, a woman of Samaria?” (Jews do not share things in common with Samaritans.)

9 Jesus answered her, “If you knew the gift of God, and who it is that is saying to you, ‘Give me a drink,’ you would have asked him, and he would have given you living water.”

10 The woman said to him, “Sir, you have no bucket, and the well is deep. Where do you get that living water? Are you greater than our ancestor Jacob, who gave us the well, and with his sons and his flocks drank from it?”

11 Jesus said to her, “Everyone who drinks of this water will be thirsty again, but those who drink of the water that I will give them will never be thirsty. The water that I will give will become a spring of water gushing up to eternal life.”

12 The woman said to him, “Sir, give me this water, so that I may never be thirsty or have to keep coming here to draw water.”

13 Jesus said to her, “Go, call your husband, and come back.”

14 The woman answered him, “I have no husband.”

15 Jesus said to her, “You are right in saying, ‘I have no husband’; for you have had five husbands, and the one you have now is not your husband. What you have said is true!”

16 Jesus said to her, “Go, call your husband, and come back.”

17 The woman said to him, “Sir, I see that you are a prophet.

18 Our ancestors worshiped on this mountain, but you say that the place where people must worship is in Jerusalem.”

19 Jesus said to her, “Woman, believe me, the hour is coming when you will worship the Father neither on this mountain nor in Jerusalem. 20 You worship what you do not know; we worship what we know, for salvation is from the Jews.

21 But the hour is coming, and is now here, when the true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and truth, for the Father seeks such as these to worship him. 22 God is spirit, and those who worship him must worship in spirit and truth.”

23 The woman said to him, “I know that Messiah is coming” (who is called Christ). “When he comes, he will proclaim all things to us.”

24 Jesus said to her, “I am he, the one who is speaking to you.”

25 Just then his disciples came. They were astonished that he was speaking with a woman, but no one said, “What do you want?” or, “Why are you speaking with her?”

26 Then the woman left her water jar and went back to the city. She said to the people, “Come and see a man who told me everything I have ever done! He cannot be the Messiah.”

27 They left the city and were on their way to him.

28 Meanwhile the disciples were urging him, “Rabbi, eat something.”

29 But he said to them, “I have food to eat that you do not know about.”

30 So the disciples said to one another, “Surely no one has brought him something to eat?”

31 Jesus said to them, “My food is to do the will of him who sent me and to complete his work.”

32 Then his disciples said to him, “Ah! Here is a wondrous sign!

33 Everyone will go to see where you are doing your works.”

34 The disciple John testifies, and so do those who heard the testimony about Jesus, and declare his bona fides: “This is the one who testifies about these things, and reveals the very secrets of the spirit and truth.”

35 The true worshipers will worship the Father in spirit and truth, for the Father seeks such as these, who worship him.

36 Jesus said to the woman, “I am he, the one who is speaking to you.”
work. Do you not say, ‘Four months more, then comes the harvest?’ But I tell you, look around you, and see how the fields are ripe for harvesting. The reaper is already receiving wages and is gathering fruit for eternal life, so that sower and reaper may rejoice together.

37 For here the saying holds true, ‘One sows and another reaps.’ 38 I sent you to reap that for which you did not labor. Others have labored, and you have entered into their labor.”

39 Many Samaritans from that city believed in him because of the woman’s testimony, “He told me everything I have ever done.” 40 So when the Samaritans came to him, they asked him to stay with them; and he stayed there two days. And many more believed because of his word. 42 They said to the woman, “It is no longer because of what you said that we believe, for we have heard for ourselves, and we know that this is truly the Savior of the world.”

43 When the two days were over, he went from that place to Galilee (for Jesus himself had testified that a prophet has no honor in the prophet’s own country). 45 When he came to Galilee, the Galileans welcomed him, since they had seen all that he had done in Jerusalem at the festival; for they too had gone to the festival.

46 Then he came again to Cana in Galilee where he had changed the water into wine. Now there was a royal official whose son lay ill in Capernaum. 47 When he heard that Jesus had come from Judea to Galilee, he went and begged him to come down and heal his son, for he was at the point of death. 48 Then Jesus said to him, “Unless you see signs and wonders you will not believe.”

49 The official said to him, “Sir, come down before my little boy dies.” 50 Jesus said to him, “Go; your son will live.” The man believed the word that Jesus spoke to him and started on his way. 51 As he was going down, his slaves met him and told him that his child was alive. 52 So he asked them the hour when he began to recover, and they said to him, “Yesterday at one in the afternoon the fever left him.”

53 The father realized that this was the hour when Jesus had said to him, “Your son will live.” So he himself believed, along with his whole household. 54 Now this was the second sign that Jesus did after coming from Judea to Galilee.

5 After this there was a festival of the Jews, and Jesus went up to Jerusalem.

2 Now in Jerusalem by the Sheep Gate there is a pool, called in Hebrew Bethesda, which has five porticoes. In these lay many invalids—blind, lame, and paralyzed. One a Or ... the fields are already ripe for harvesting.

b The reaper is receiving

c Both instances of the Greek word for you in this verse are plural

d That is, Aramaic

e Other ancient authorities read Bethesda, others Betsaida

f Other ancient authorities add, wholly or in part, waiting for the stirring of the water; for an angel of the Lord went down at certain seasons into the pool, and stirred up the water; whoever stepped in first after the stirring of the water was made well from whatever disease that person had.

they misunderstand; Jesus explains: obeying God is food for him (cf. Deut 8.3; Mt 4.4). 35–36: Jesus expands the metaphor by including harvest of grain, which is recruitment of disciples; cf. Mt 9.37–38. 37–38: Normally sowers and reapers are the same people; unlike the proverb in Mic 6.15 (see also Deut 6.10–11), here, although they are distinguished, it is done is a positive light. Jesus’ command should neutralize any competition. 39–42: Samaritans first believed for a curious reason: Jesus revealed the woman’s personal history. Eventually they believe because of Jesus’ own words; the result is a climactic acknowledgment: he is Savior of the world, which dismisses earlier ethnic points of conflict.

4.43–54: Progress of the prophet (cf. Mt 8.5–15; Lk 7.1–10). 43–46: Cana (see 2.1n.) and Galilee symbolize places favorable to Jesus, not just actual locations. Just as the Galileans saw Jesus’ signs earlier, now an official seeks a sign. 46–47: High-ranking people normally sent messages by an intermediary, but this one comes himself. 48–49: The earlier pattern of request, refusal, then positive action (2.3–4) recurs. 50–54: The boy lived and the father believed, as Jesus had said to him; in fact his whole household believed. Second sign, after Cana and the wine (2.1–11), before the feeding (ch 6).

5.1–18: The sign that failed. 1: Jesus attended this unnamed feast as well as Passover (see 2.13–16n.), Booths (7.2), and Dedication (10.22). 2–3: Jerusalem, where Jesus is repeatedly rejected. Water links this episode with 3.5 and 4.7; and pool links it with 9.7. See map on p. 1862. 5–9: Typical miracles have these elements: the severity man was there who had been ill for thirty-eight years. When Jesus saw him lying there and knew that he had been there a long time, he said to him, “Do you want to be made well?” The sick man answered him, “Sir, I have no one to put me into the pool when the water is stirred up; and while I am making my way, someone else steps down ahead of me.” Jesus said to him, “Stand up, take your mat and walk.” At once the man was made well, and he took up his mat and began to walk.

Now that day was a sabbath. So the Jews said to the man who had been cured, “It is the sabbath; it is not lawful for you to carry your mat.” But he answered them, “The man who made me well said to me, ‘Take up your mat and walk.’” They asked him, “Who is the man who said to you, ‘Take it up and walk’?” Now the man who had been healed did not know who it was, for Jesus had disappeared.

The sick man answered him, “Sir, I have no one to put me into the pool when the water is stirred up; and while I am making my way, someone else steps down ahead of me.” Jesus said to him, “Stand up, take your mat and walk.” At once the man was made well, and he took up his mat and began to walk.

Now that day was a sabbath. So the Jews said to the man who had been cured, “It is the sabbath; it is not lawful for you to carry your mat.” But he answered them, “The man who made me well said to me, ‘Take up your mat and walk.’” They asked him, “Who is the man who said to you, ‘Take it up and walk’?” Now the man who had been healed did not know who it was, for Jesus had disappeared in the crowd that was there. Later Jesus found him in the temple and said to him, “See, you have been made well! Do not sin any more, so that nothing worse happens to you.” The man went away and told the Jews that it was Jesus who had made him well. Therefore the Jews started persecuting Jesus, because he was doing such things on the sabbath. But Jesus answered them, “My Father is still working, and I also am working.” For this reason the Jews were seeking all the more to kill him, because he was not only breaking the sabbath, but was also calling God his own Father, thereby making himself equal to God.

Jesus said to them, “Very truly, I tell you, the Son can do nothing on his own, but only what he sees the Father doing; for whatever the Father does, the Son does likewise. The Father loves the Son and shows him all that he himself is doing; and he will show him greater works than these, so that you will be astonished. Indeed, just as the Father raises the dead and gives them life, so also the Son gives life to whomever he wishes. The Father judges no one but has given all judgment to the Son, so that all may honor the Son just as they honor the Father. Anyone who does not honor the Son does not honor the Father who sent him. Very truly, I tell you, anyone who hears my word and believes him who sent me has eternal life, and does not come under judgment, but has passed from death to life.

“Very truly, I tell you, the hour is coming, and is now here, when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God, and those who hear will live. For just as the Father has life in himself, so he has granted the Son also to have life in himself; and he has given him authority to execute judgment, because he is the Son of Man. Do not be astonished at this; for the hour is coming when all who are in their graves will hear his voice and will come out—those who have done good, to the resurrection of life, and those who have done evil, to the resurrection of condemnation.

Or had left because of Gk that one of the disease (ill for thirty-eight years); cure, either by the use of spittle and clay (as in 9.5) or by a command (stand up); proof of healing (he . . . began to walk); and grant of honor to the healer, absent here. Healing on the sabbath (5.10; 7.23 and 9.14) persuades many that Jesus is sinner—a judgment by appearances. The water is stirred up, explained by an addition in some manuscripts (see textual note on v. 3). Jesus’ first trial begins; the man healed is charged with sabbath violation; he shifts the blame to his healer, whom he did not know. This witness brings no glory to the healer, but shame. After meeting Jesus again, he testified who the healer was. Punishment follows crime: they persecuted Jesus for breaking the sabbath. A defense is offered: if God works on the sabbath, Jesus’ working cannot be sinful. The charge is elevated to blasphemy, whose punishment was death.

5.19–47: Two trials and two defenses. The two charges (sabbath violation and blasphemous claims) require different defenses. The first defense denies that Jesus makes himself anything; rather, God honors him: because “the Father loves the Son,” Jesus is not vaingloriously claiming anything. But he is truly “equal to God” (v. 18) because God gave him God’s two comprehensive powers: lifegiver (cf. 1.1–3) and judge. God’s power over death is exercised by Jesus. God twice invested Jesus with judgment (5.22,27). God’s power over death is exercised by Jesus. This will be proved in Jesus’ own case (10.17–18) and in that of Lazarus...
30 “I can do nothing on my own. As I hear, I judge; and my judgment is just, because I seek to do not my own will but the will of him who sent me.

31 “If I testify about myself, my testimony is not true. 32 There is another who testifies on my behalf, and I know that his testimony to me is true. 33 You sent messengers to John, and he testified to the truth. 34 Not that I accept such human testimony, but I say these things so that you may be saved. 35 He was a burning and shining lamp, and you were willing to rejoice for a while in his light. 36 But I have a testimony greater than John’s. The works that the Father has given me to complete, the very works that I am doing, testify on my behalf that the Father has sent me.

37 And the Father who sent me has himself testified on my behalf. You have never heard his voice or seen his form, 38 and you do not have his word abiding in you, because you do not believe him whom he has sent. 39 “You search the scriptures because you think that in them you have eternal life; and it is they that testify on my behalf. 40 Yet you refuse to come to me to have life. 41 I do not accept glory from human beings. 42 But I know that you do not have the love of God in you. 43 I have come in my Father’s name, and you do not accept me; if another comes in his own name, you will accept him.

44 How can you believe when you accept glory from one another and do not seek the glory that comes from the one who alone is God? 45 Do not think that I will accuse you before the Father; your accuser is Moses, on whom you have set your hope. 46 If you believed Moses, you would believe me, for he wrote about me. 47 But if you do not believe what he wrote, how will you believe what I say?”

6 After this Jesus went to the other side of the Sea of Galilee, also called the Sea of Tiberias. a 2 A large crowd kept following him, because they saw the signs that he was doing for the sick. 3 Jesus went up the mountain and sat down there with his disciples. 4 Now the Passover, the festival of the Jews, was near. 5 When he looked up and saw a large crowd coming toward him, Jesus said to Philip, “Where are we to buy bread for these people to eat?” 6 He said this to test him, for he himself knew what he was going to do. 7 Philip answered him, “Six months’ wages would not bring enough bread for each of them to get a little.” 8 One of his disciples, Andrew, Simon Peter’s brother, said to him, 9 “There is a boy here who has five barley loaves and two fish. But what are they among so many people?” 10 Jesus said, “Make the people sit down.” Now there was a great deal of grass in the place; so they sat down, about five thousand in all. 11 Then Jesus took the loaves, and when he had given thanks, he distributed them to those who were seated; so also the fish, as much as they wanted. 12 When they were satisfied, he told his disciples, “Gather up the fragments left over, so that nothing may be lost.” 13 So they gathered them up, and from the fragments of the five barley loaves, left by those who had eaten, they filled twelve baskets. 14 When the people saw the sign that he had

[a] Or among
[b] Gk of Galilee of Tiberias
[c] Gk Two hundred denarii; the denarius was the usual day’s wage for a laborer
d Gk the men

(11.43–44). 27: Son of Man, see 1.51n., 3.13–15n. 30–35: The defense against sabbath violation consists of calling witnesses to testify that Jesus is a saint, not a sinner. John the Baptist is acceptable to this court which valued him as a burning and shining lamp (see 1.29,34; 3.28–30). 36: Jesus’ second witness—his works—proves God’s favor (9.33). 37–38: God is also Jesus’ witness. Although the Israelites never saw God at Sinai (see Deut 4.15), Jesus was face-to-face with God; he alone has seen God (contrast Ex 34.17–23). 39: Scripture witnesses to Jesus because “Moses . . . wrote about me” (v. 46; cf. 1.45). 40–44: The trial turns upside down: accusers are accused, the one judged becomes the judge. Jesus charges his accusers with a deadly crime: You do not have the love of God in you. Their accuser is Moses, once their defender (Ex 32.11–14; Num 14.13–19). The death sentence they would bring upon Jesus (v. 18) will be turned on them: they will never enjoy “eternal life” (vv. 24,39).

6.1–21: Fourth sign: multiplication of bread. Cf. Mt 14.13–21; Mk 6.32–44; Lk 9.10–17. 1: The other side, the eastern shore. 5–6: Jesus tests Philip by asking him how the crowd is to be fed; the Synoptic Gospels make Jesus’ humanitarian motive explicit.
done, they began to say, “This is indeed the prophet who is to come into the world.”

15 When Jesus realized that they were about to come and take him by force to make him king, he withdrew again to the mountain by himself.

16 When evening came, his disciples went down to the sea, 17 got into a boat, and started across the sea to Capernaum. It was now dark, and Jesus had not yet come to them.

18 The sea became rough because a strong wind was blowing. 19 When they had rowed about three or four miles, ²⁸ they saw Jesus walking on the sea and coming near the boat, and they were terrified. ²⁰ But he said to them, “It is I; ²¹ do not be afraid.” ²¹ Then they wanted to take him into the boat, and immediately the boat reached the land toward which they were going.

22 The next day the crowd that had stayed on the other side of the sea saw that there had been only one boat there. They also saw that Jesus had not got into the boat with his disciples, but that his disciples had gone away alone. ²³ Then some boats from Tiberias came near the place where they had eaten the bread after the Lord had given thanks. ²⁴ So when the crowd saw that neither Jesus nor his disciples were there, they themselves got into the boats and went to Capernaum looking for Jesus.

25 When they found him on the other side of the sea, they said to him, “Rabbi, when did you come here?” ²⁶ Jesus answered them, “Very truly, I tell you, you are looking for me, not because you saw signs, but because you ate your fill of the loaves. ²⁷ Do not work for the food that perishes, but for the food that endures for eternal life, which the Son of Man will give you. For it is on him that God the Father has set his seal.” ²⁸ Then they said to him, “What must we do to perform the works of God?” ²⁹ Jesus answered them, “This is the work of God, that you believe in him whom he has sent.” ³⁰ So they said to him, “What sign are you going to give us then, so that we may see it and believe you? What work are you performing? ³¹ Our ancestors ate the manna in the wilderness; as it is written, ‘He gave them bread from heaven to eat.’ ³² Then Jesus said to them, “Very truly, I tell you, it was not Moses who gave you the bread from heaven, but it is my Father who gives you the true bread from heaven. ³³ For the bread of God is that which ³⁴ comes down from heaven and gives life to the world.” ³⁴ They said to him, “Sir, give us this bread always.”

³⁵ Jesus said to them, “I am the bread of life. Whoever comes to me will never be hungry, and whoever believes in me will never be thirsty. ³⁶ But I said to you that you have seen me and yet do not believe. ³⁷ Everything that the Father gives me will come to me, and anyone who comes to me I will never drive away; ³⁸ for I have come down from heaven, not to do my own will, but the will of him who sent me. ³⁹ And this is the will of him who sent me, that I should lose nothing of all that he has given me, but raise it up on the last day. ⁴⁰ This is indeed the will of my Father, that all who see the Son and believe in him may have eternal life; and I will raise them up on the last day.” ⁴¹ Then the Jews began to complain about him because he said, “I am the bread that came down from heaven.” ⁴² They were saying, “Is not this Jesus, the son of Joseph, whose father and mother we know? How can he now say, ‘I have come down from heaven’?” ⁴³ Jesus answered them, “Do not complain among yourselves. No one can come to me

Gk about twenty-five or thirty stadia
Gk I am
Other ancient authorities lack after the Lord had given thanks Or he who

6.22–59: Bread from heaven. The crowd are not true insiders because they challenge Jesus with hostile questions. Jesus responds by accusing them of hypocrisy and demands acknowledgment as God’s agent, declaring that he is the bread from heaven (v. 31). ²⁴ Capernaum, see 2.12n. ²⁷ Son of Man, see 3.13–15n. ³¹–³²: They challenge Jesus with a scripture (see Ex 16.4–5 and Ps 78.24), and he reinterprets each word in it as a reference to himself. ³⁴: As in 4.15, the questioners misunderstand. ³⁵–⁴⁰: Jesus explains: I am the bread of life . . . come down from heaven. ⁴¹: They complained, like the Israelites in the wilderness before and after the manna was given (Ex 16.2; Num 11.1). ⁴²: Reference to Jesus’ earthly parents should refute his claim to have come unless drawn by the Father who sent me; and I will raise that person up on the last day. 43 It is written in the prophets, ‘And they shall all be taught by God.’ Everyone who has heard and learned from the Father comes to me. 46 Not that anyone has seen the Father except the one who is from God; he has seen the Father. 47 Very truly, I tell you, whoever believes has eternal life. 48 I am the bread of life. 49 Your ancestors ate the manna in the wilderness, and they died. 50 This is the bread that comes down from heaven, so that one may eat of it and not die. 51 I am the living bread that came down from heaven. Whoever eats this bread will live forever; and the bread that I will give for the life of the world is my flesh.”

52 The Jews then disputed among themselves, saying, “How can this man give us his flesh to eat?” 53 So Jesus said to them, “Very truly, I tell you, unless you eat the flesh of the Son of Man and drink his blood, you have no life in you. 54 Those who eat my flesh and drink my blood have eternal life, and I will raise them up on the last day; 55 for my flesh is true food and my blood is true drink. 56 Those who eat my flesh and drink my blood abide in me, and I in them. Just as the living Father sent me, and I live because of the Father, so whoever eats this bread will live forever.” 59 He said these things while he was teaching in the synagogue at Capernaum.

60 When many of his disciples heard it, they said, “This teaching is difficult; who can accept it?” 61 But Jesus, being aware that his disciples were complaining about it, said to them, “Does this offend you? 62 Then what if you were to see the Son of Man ascending to where he was before? 63 It is the spirit that gives life; the flesh is useless. The words that I have spoken to you are spirit and life. 64 But among you there are some who do not believe.” For Jesus knew from the first who were the ones that did not believe, and who was the one that would betray him. 65 And he said, “For this reason I have told you that no one can come to me unless it is granted by the Father.”

66 Because of this many of his disciples turned back and no longer went about with him. 67 So Jesus asked the twelve, “Do you also wish to go away?” 68 Simon Peter answered him, “Lord, to whom can we go? You have the words of eternal life. 69 We have come to believe and know that you are the Holy One of God.” 70 Jesus answered them, “Did I not choose you, the twelve? Yet one of you is a devil.” 71 He was speaking of Judas son of Simon Iscariot, for he, though one of the twelve, was going to betray him.

7 After this Jesus went about in Galilee. He did not wish to go about in Judea because the Jews were looking for an... opportunity to kill him. 2 Now the Jewish festival of Booths was near. 3 So his brothers said to him, “Leave here and go to Judea so that your disciples also may see the works you are doing; 4 for no one who wants to be widely known acts in secret. If you do these things, show yourself to the world.” 5 (For not even his brothers believed in him.) 6 Jesus said to them, “My time has not yet come, but your time is always here. 7 The world cannot hate you, but it hates me because I testify against it that its works are evil. 8 Go to the festival yourselves. I am not going to this festival, for my time has not yet fully come.” 9 After saying this, he remained in Galilee.

10 But after his brothers had gone to the festival, then he also went, not publicly but as it were in secret. 11 The Jews were looking for him at the festival and saying, “Where is he?” 12 And there was considerable complaining about him among the crowds. While some were saying, “He is a good man,” others were saying, “No, he is deceiving the crowd.” 13 Yet no one would speak openly about him for fear of the Jews.

14 About the middle of the festival Jesus went up into the temple and began to teach. 15 The Jews were astonished at it, saying, “How does this man have such learning, when he has never been taught?” 16 Then Jesus answered them, “My teaching is not mine but his who sent me. 17 Anyone who resolves to do the will of God will know whether the teaching is from God or whether I am speaking on my own. 18 Those who speak on their own seek their own glory; but the one who seeks the glory of him who sent him is true, and there is nothing false in him. 19 “Did not Moses give you the law? Yet none of you keeps the law. Why are you looking for an opportunity to kill me?” 20 The crowd answered, “You have a demon! Who is trying to kill you?” 21 Jesus answered them, “I performed one work, and all of you are astonished. 22 Moses gave you circumcision (it is, of course, not from Moses, but from the patriarchs), and you circumcise a man on the sabbath. 23 If a man receives circumcision on the sabbath in order that the law of Moses may not be broken, are you angry with me because I healed a man’s whole body on the sabbath? 24 Do not judge by appearances, but judge with right judgment.” 25 Now some of the people of Jerusalem were saying, “Is not this the man whom they are trying to kill? 26 And here he is, speaking openly, but they say nothing to him! Can it be that the authorities really know that this is the Messiah? 27 Yet we know where this man is from; but when the Messiah comes, will he do more signs than this man has done?”

---

a Or Tabernacles
b Other ancient authorities read wants it c Other ancient authorities add yet d Other ancient authorities lack as it were e Or this man know his letters
f Or the Christ
g Other ancient authorities read is doing

---

day harvest feast in the fall during which petitions for rains and sunlight were expressed in daily water libations and nightly lighting of menorahs. 3–5: Brothers (see 2.12n.), here opposed to Jesus (cf. 1.12). 6,8: My time, cf. “my hour” in 2.4; 7.30; 8.20; 13.1. 8–10: Jesus regularly controls his fate with a strategy of secrecy.

7.11–52: Second trial in Jerusalem. 11–13: Another schism: some accuse Jesus of deception, but others praise him (cf. 7.40–44,45–52; 10.19–21). Fear of the Jews muzzles possible disciples (9.22; 12.42; 19.38–39). 14–17: Can Jesus teach if not schooled? His Father taught him (5.20); and godly people recognize this (9.29–30). 18: Telling false from true speakers: Those who seek their own glory are false (5.44); but the one who seeks the glory of him who sent him is true (8.50). 25–27: Testimony against Jesus: “We know” where he comes from (see 1.45–46; 6.42), but no one knows where the Messiah comes from. 28–29: Jesus’ challenge, “You do not know him,” because you know according to the flesh. But “I know him, because I am from him.” 30–31: A negative schism again (they 32 The Pharisees heard the crowd muttering such things about him, and the chief priests and Pharisees sent temple police to arrest him. 33 Jesus then said, “I will be with you a little while longer, and then I am going to him who sent me. 34 You will search for me, but you will not find me; and where I am, you cannot come.” 35 The Jews said to one another, “Where does this man intend to go that we will not find him? Does he intend to go to the Dispersion among the Greeks and teach the Greeks? 36 What does he mean by saying, ‘You will search for me and you will not find me’ and ‘Where I am, you cannot come’?” 37 On the last day of the festival, the great day, while Jesus was standing there, he cried out, “Let anyone who is thirsty come to me and drink. 38 The one who believes in me shall flow rivers of living water.” 39 Now he said this about the Spirit, which believers in him were to receive; for as yet the Spirit, because Jesus was not yet glorified.

40 When they heard these words, some in the crowd said, “This is really the prophet.” 41 Others said, “This is the Messiah.” But some asked, “Surely the Messiah does not come from Galilee, does he? 42 Has not the scripture said that the Messiah is descended from David and comes from Bethlehem, the village where David lived? 43 So there was a division in the crowd because of him. 44 Some of them wanted to arrest him, but no one laid hands on him. 45 Then the temple police went back to the chief priests and Pharisees, who asked them, “Why did you not arrest him?” 46 The police answered, “Never has anyone spoken like this!” 47 Then the Pharisees replied, “Surely you have not been deceived too, have you? 48 Has any one of the authorities or of the Pharisees believed in him? But this crowd, which does not know the law—they are accursed.” 50 Nicodemus, who had gone to Jesus before, and who was one of them, asked, “Our law does not judge people without first giving them a hearing to find out what they are doing, does it?” 52 They replied, “Surely you are not also from Galilee, are you? Search and you will see that no prophet is to arise from Galilee.”

8 53 Then each of them went home, while Jesus went to the Mount of Olives. 2 Early in the morning he came again to the temple. All the people came to him and he sat down and began to teach them. 3 The scribes and the Pharisees brought a woman who had been caught in adultery; and making her stand before all of them, 4 they said to him, “Teacher, this woman was caught in the very act of committing adultery. 5 Now in the law Moses commanded us to stone such women. But what do you say?” 6 They said this to test him, so that they might have some charge to bring against him.
John 8

bring against him. Jesus bent down and wrote with his finger on the ground. 7 When they kept on questioning him, he straightened up and said to them, “Let anyone among you who is without sin be the first to throw a stone at her.” 8 And once again he bent down and wrote on the ground. 9 When they heard it, they went away, one by one, beginning with the elders; and Jesus was left alone with the woman standing before him. 10 Jesus straightened up and said to her, “Woman, where are they? Has no one condemned you?” 11 She said, “No one, sir.” And Jesus said, “Neither do I condemn you. Go your way, and from now on do not sin again.”

12 Again Jesus spoke to them, saying, “I am the light of the world. Whoever follows me will never walk in darkness but will have the light of life.” 13 Then the Pharisees said to him, “You are testifying on your own behalf; your testimony is not valid.” 14 Jesus answered, “Even if I testify on my own behalf, my testimony is valid because I know where I have come from and where I am going, but you do not know where I come from or where I am going. 15 You judge by human standards; I judge no one. 16 Yet even if I do judge, my judgment is valid; for it is not I alone who judge, but I and the Father who sent me. 17 In your law it is written that the testimony of two witnesses is valid. 18 I testify on my own behalf, and the Father who sent me testifies on my behalf.” 19 Then they said to him, “Where is your Father?” Jesus answered, “You know neither me nor my Father. If you knew me, you would know my Father also.” 20 He spoke these words while he was teaching in the treasury of the temple, but no one arrested him, because his hour had not yet come.

21 Again he said to them, “I am going away, and you will search for me, but you will die in your sin. Where I am going, you cannot come.” 22 Then the Jews said, “Is he going to kill himself? Is that what he means by saying, ‘Where I am going, you cannot come’?” 23 He said to them, “You are from below, I am from above; you are of this world, I am not of this world. 24 I told you that you would die in your sins, for you will die in your sins unless you believe that I am he.” 25 They said to him, “Who are you?” Jesus said to them, “Why do I speak to you at all? 26 I have much to say about you and much to condemn; but the one who sent me is true, and I declare to the world what I have heard from him.” 27 They did not understand that he was speaking to them about the Father. 28 So Jesus said, “When you have lifted up the Son of Man, then you will realize that I am he, and that I do nothing on my own, but I speak these things as the Father instructed me. 29 And the one who sent me is with me; he has not left me alone, for I always do what is pleasing to a Other ancient authorities add the sins of each of them

b Or Lord
c The most ancient authorities lack 7.53—8.11; other authorities add the passage here or after 7.36 or after 21.25 or after Luke 21.38, with variations of text; some mark the passage as doubtful.
d Gk according to the flesh e Other ancient authorities read he f Gk I am
g Or What I have told you from the beginning

8.12–20: The feast of Tabernacles, continued. 12: Jesus claims to replace the rain (7.37–38) and sunlight (8.12) for which Israel prayed. 13–14: The trial is resumed: Jesus’ testimony is declared invalid; but because Jesus knows his origin and destination, i.e., his authorization, it is valid. 15–16: They judge by appearances (7.24). Jesus does not but does judge because God stands with him (5.22,27). 17–18: Two valid witnesses (see Deut 19.15): Jesus and the Father who sent him. 19: Know means to acknowledge or honor. 20: Jesus in public space (cf. 18.20).

8.21–30: Jesus judges. 21–25: Jesus’ topic statement contains four points: Going away may imply suicide; search for me, “attempt to kill”; die in your sins, sentence for failing to keep my law (see 4.26n.,7.19,25; 8.58–59); you cannot come, because they belong to irreconcilable worlds (see 3.5–8). 28: Lifted up, either lifting Jesus on the cross or his glorious return to heaven. I am he, lit., “I am,” the name of God in Ex 3.14; here, a being who is both eternal in the past and imperishable in the future.
him.” 30 As he was saying these things, many believed in him.

31 Then Jesus said to the Jews who had believed in him, “If you continue in my word, you are truly my disciples; 32 and you will know the truth, and the truth will make you free.” 33 They answered him, “We are descendants of Abraham and have never been slaves to anyone. What do you mean by saying, ‘You will be made free?’”

34 Jesus answered them, “Very truly, I tell you, everyone who commits sin is a slave to sin. 35 The slave does not have a permanent place in the household; the son has a place there forever. 36 So if the Son makes you free, you will be free indeed. 37 I know that you are descendants of Abraham; yet you look for an opportunity to kill me, because there is no place in you for my word. 38 I declare what I have seen in the Father’s presence; as for you, you should do what you have heard from the Father.”

39 They answered him, “Abraham is our father.” Jesus said to them, “If you were Abraham’s children, you would be doing what Abraham did, 40 but now you are trying to kill me, a man who has told you the truth that I heard from God. This is not what Abraham did. 41 You are indeed doing what your father does.” They said to him, “We are not illegitimate children; we have one father, God himself.” 42 Jesus said to them, “If God were your Father, you would love me, for I came from God and now I am here. I did not come on my own, but he sent me. 43 Why do you not understand what I say? It is because you cannot accept my word. 44 You are from your father the devil, and you choose to do your father’s desires. He was a murderer from the beginning and does not stand in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he lies, he speaks according to his own nature, for he is a liar and the father of lies. 45 But because I tell the truth, you do not believe me. 46 Which of you convicts me of sin? If I tell the truth, why do you not believe me? 47 Whoever is from God hears the words of God. The reason you do not hear them is that you are not from God.”

48 The Jews answered him, “Are we not right in saying that you are a Samaritan and have a demon?” 49 Jesus answered, “I do not have a demon; but I honor my Father, and you dishonor me. 50 Yet I do not seek my own glory; there is one who seeks it and he is the judge.

51 Very truly, I tell you, whoever keeps my word will never see death.” 52 The Jews said to him, “Now we know that you have a demon. Abraham died, and so did the prophets; yet you say, ‘Whoever keeps my word will never taste death.’ 53 Are you greater than our father Abraham, who died? The prophets also died. Who do you claim to be?” 54 Jesus answered, “If I glorify myself, my glory is nothing. It is my Father who glorifies me, he of whom you say, ‘He is our God,’ 55 though you do not know him. But I know him; if I would say that I do not know him, I would be a liar like you. But I do know him and I keep his word. 56 Your ancestor Abraham rejoiced that he would see my day; he saw it and was glad.” 57 Then the Jews said to him, “You are not yet fifty years old, and have you seen Abraham?”

8.31–59: Exposing lies. 31–32: As judge, Jesus examines their testimony according to his criterion for true discipleship. 31: Believed in him, it is unclear whether this is genuine or a deception. 33: Abraham had two sons, Ishmael (slave) and Isaac (free); their claim that Isaac was their father is proven false. 34–36: Slaves of sin (Ishmael) do not remain in the house, but free sons (Isaac) do (Gen 21.9–14). 37: They are children of Ishmael, sinners trying to kill Jesus. The criterion “continue in my word” (v. 31) is verified. There is no place in you for my word. 38–42: Abraham did not try to kill heavenly messengers at Mamre (Gen 18.1–9). Masking their illegitimacy, they lie, claiming God as father. But if he were, they would do what their Father does, love Jesus. 43: The criterion repeated. 44: Their paternity is revealed: the devil, a murderer, and a liar, like them. 48: Samaritan, not one of us; see 4.4n. Have a demon, not of God. 49–50: Denial of demon charge because Jesus honors God and God honors him. 51–52: Jesus says “never see death,” which they misunderstand as “never taste death.” 54–55: God makes Jesus who he is, but they do not know God; Jesus does not lie, for he knows God and keeps his word. 56–58: Jesus is “greater” than Abraham (v. 53) because Abraham came into being and died but Jesus as divine (I am; see
The neighbor who had formerly been blind.

9 As he walked along, he saw a man blind from birth. 2 His disciples asked him, “Rabbi, who sinned, this man or his parents, that he was born blind?” 3 Jesus answered, “Neither this man nor his parents sinned; he was born blind so that God’s works might be revealed in him. 4 We must work the works of him who sent me while it is day; night is coming when no one can work. 5 As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world.” 6 When he had said this, he spat on the ground and made mud with the saliva and spread the mud on the man’s eyes, 7 saying to him, “Go, wash in the pool of Siloam” (which means Sent). Then he went and washed and came back able to see. 8 The neighbors and those who had seen him before as a beggar began to ask, “Is this not the man who used to sit and beg?” 9 Some were saying, “It is he.” Others were saying, “No, but it is someone like him.” He kept saying, “I am the man.” 10 But they kept asking him, “Then how were your eyes opened?” 11 He answered, “The man called Jesus made mud, spread it on my eyes, and said to me, ‘Go to Siloam and wash.’ Then I went and washed and received my sight.” 12 They said to him, “Where is he?” He said, “I do not know.”

13 They brought to the Pharisees the man who had formerly been blind. 14 Now it was a sabbath day when Jesus made the mud and opened his eyes. 15 Then the Pharisees also began to ask him how he had received his sight. He said to them, “He put mud on my eyes. Then I washed, and now I see.” 16 Some of the Pharisees said, “This man is not from God, for he does not observe the sabbath.” But others said, “How can a man who is a sinner perform such signs?” And they were divided. 17 So they said again to the blind man, “What do you say about him? It was your eyes he opened.” He said, “He is a prophet.” 18 The Jews did not believe that he had been blind and had received his sight until they called the parents of the man who had received his sight 19 and asked them, “Is this your son, who you say was born blind? How then does he now see?” 20 His parents answered, “We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind; 21 but we do not know how it is that now he sees, nor do we know who opened his eyes. Ask him; he is of age. He will speak for himself.” 22 His parents said this because they were afraid of the Jews; for the Jews had already agreed that anyone who confessed Jesus to be the Messiah would be put out of the synagogue. 23 Therefore his parents said, “He is of age; ask him.” 24 So for the second time they called the man who had been blind, and they said to him, “Give glory to God! We know that this man is a sinner.” 25 He answered, “I do not know whether he is a sinner. One thing I do know, that though I was blind, now I see.” 26 They said to him, “What did he do to you? How did he open your eyes?” 27 He answered them, “I have told you already, and you would not listen. Why do you want to hear it again? Do you also want to become his disciples?” 28 Then they reviled him, saying, “You are his disciple, but we are disciples of Moses.” 29 We know that God has spoken to Moses, but as for this man, we do not know where he comes from.” 30 The man answered, “Here is an astonishing thing! You do not know where he comes from, and yet he opened my eyes. 31 We know that God does not observe the sabbath.” 32 He answered, “Neither this man nor his parents sinned; he was born blind so that God’s works might be revealed in him. 33 It was not that this man was sinned against or his parents; but that God’s works might be revealed in him. 34 We see him; yet, as for your son, who you say was born blind? How then does he now see?” 35 He answered, “Neither this man nor his parents sinned; he was born blind so that God’s works might be revealed in him. 36 It was not that this man was sinned against or his parents; but that God’s works might be revealed in him. 37 It was not that this man was sinned against or his parents; but that God’s works might be revealed in him. 38 The Jews did not believe that he had been blind and had received his sight until they called the parents of the man who had received his sight and asked them, “Is this your son, who you say was born blind? How then does he now see?” 39 His parents answered, “We know that this is our son, and that he was born blind; 40 but we do not know how it is that now he sees, nor do we know who opened his eyes. Ask him; he is of age. He will speak for himself.” 41 His parents said this because they were afraid of the Jews; for the Jews had already agreed that anyone who confessed Jesus to be the Messiah would be put out of the synagogue. Therefore his parents said, “He is of age; ask him.”

a Other ancient authorities read I b Other ancient authorities read us
c Gk him
d Or the Christ
yet he opened my eyes. 31 We know that God does not listen to sinners, but he does listen to one who worships him and obeys his will. 32 Never since the world began has it been heard that anyone opened the eyes of a person born blind. 33 If this man were not from God, he could do nothing.” 34 They answered him, “You were born entirely in sins, and are you trying to teach us?” And they drove him out.

35 Jesus heard that they had driven him out, and when he found him, he said, “Do you believe in the Son of Man?” 36 He answered, “And who is he, sir? Tell me, so that I may believe in him.” 37 Jesus said to him, “You have seen him, and the one speaking with you is he.” 38 He said, “Lord, I believe.” And he worshiped him. 39 Jesus said, “I came into this world for judgment so that those who do not see may see, and those who do see may become blind.” 40 Some of the Pharisees near him heard this and said to him, “Surely we are not blind, are we?” 41 Jesus said to them, “If you were blind, you would not have sin. But now that you say, ‘We see,’ your sin remains.

10 “Very truly, I tell you, anyone who does not enter the sheepfold by the gate but climbs in by another way is a thief and a bandit. 2 The one who enters by the gate is the shepherd of the sheep. 3 The gatekeeper opens the gate for him, and the sheep hear his voice. He calls his own sheep by name and leads them out. 4 When he has brought out all his own, he goes ahead of them, and the sheep follow him because they know his voice. 5 They will not follow a stranger, but they will run from him because they do not know the voice of strangers.” 6 Jesus used this figure of speech with them, but they did not understand what he was saying to them.

7 So again Jesus said to them, “Very truly, I tell you, I am the gate for the sheep. 8 All who came before me are thieves and bandits; but the sheep did not listen to them. 9 I am the gate. Whoever enters by me will be saved, and will come in and go out and find pasture. 10 The thief comes only to steal and kill and destroy. I came that they may have life, and have it abundantly.

11 “I am the good shepherd. The good shepherd lays down his life for the sheep. 12 The hired hand, who is not the shepherd and does not own the sheep, sees the wolf coming and leaves the sheep and runs away—and the wolf snatches them and scatters them. 13 The hired hand runs away because a hired hand does not care for the sheep. 14 I am the good shepherd. I know my own and my own know me, 15 just as the Father knows me and I know the Father. And I lay down my life for the sheep. 16 I have other sheep that do not belong to this fold. I must bring them also, and they will listen to my voice. So there will be one flock, one shepherd. 17 For this reason the Father loves me, because I lay down my life in order to take it up again. 18 No one takes it from me, but I lay it down of my own accord. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it up again. I have received this command from my Father.”

19 Again the Jews were divided because of these words. 20 Many of them were saying,
“He has a demon and is out of his mind. Why listen to him?” 21 Others were saying, “These are not the words of one who has a demon. Can a demon open the eyes of the blind?” 22 At that time the festival of the Dedication took place in Jerusalem. It was winter, 23 and Jesus was walking in the temple, in the portico of Solomon. 24 So the Jews gathered around him and said to him, “How long will you keep us in suspense? If you are the Messiah, tell us plainly.” 25 Jesus answered, “I have told you, and you do not believe. The works that I do in my Father’s name testify to me; 26 but you do not believe, because you do not belong to my sheep. 27 My sheep hear my voice. I know them, and they follow me. 28 I give them eternal life, and they will never perish. No one will snatch them out of my hand. 29 What my Father has given me is greater than all else, and no one can snatch it out of the Father’s hand. 30 The Father and I are one.”

31 The Jews took up stones again to stone him. 32 Jesus replied, “I have shown you many good works from the Father. For which of these are you going to stone me?” 33 The Jews answered, “It is not for a good work that we are going to stone you, but for blasphemy, because you do not belong to my sheep. 34 My sheep hear my voice. I know them, and they follow me. I give them eternal life, and they will never perish. No one will snatch them out of my hand. What my Father has given me is greater than all else, and no one can snatch it out of the Father’s hand. The Father and I are one.”

Now a certain man was ill, Lazarus of Bethany, the village of Mary and her sister Martha. Mary was the one who anointed the Lord with perfume and wiped his feet with her hair; her brother Lazarus was ill. 3 So the sisters sent a message to Jesus, “Lord, whom you love is ill.” 4 But when Jesus heard it, he said, “This illness does not lead to death; rather it is for God’s glory, so that the Son of God may be glorified through it.” 5 Accordingly, though Jesus loved Martha and her sister and Lazarus, after having heard that Lazarus had been ill, he stayed two days longer in the place where he was.

7 Then after this he said to the disciples, “Let us go to Judea again.” 8 The disciples said to him, “Rabbi, the Jews were just now trying to stone you, and are you going there again?” 9 Jesus answered, “Are there not twelve hours of daylight? Those who walk during the day do not stumble, because they see the light of this world. 10 But those who walk at night stumble, because the light is not in them.” 11 After saying this, he told them, “Our friend Lazarus has fallen asleep, but I am going there to awaken him.” 12 The disciples said to him, “Lord, if he has fallen asleep, he will be all right.” 13 Jesus, however, had been speaking about his death, but they thought that he was referring merely to sleep. 14 Then Jesus told them plainly, “Lazarus is dead. 15 For your sake I am glad I was not there, so that you may believe. But let us go to him.” 16 Thomas, who was called the Twin, 17 said to his fellow disciples, “Let us also go, that we may die with him.”

18 When Jesus arrived, he found that Lazarus had already been in the tomb four days. 19 Now Bethany was near Jerusalem, some two miles away, and many of the Jews had come to Martha and Mary to console them about their brother. 20 When Martha heard that Jesus was coming, she went and met him, while Mary stayed at home. 21 Martha said to Jesus, “Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died. 22 But even now I know that God will give you whatever you ask of him.” 23 Jesus said to her, “Your brother will rise again.” 24 Martha said to him, “I know that he will rise again in the resurrection on the last day.” 25 Jesus said to her, “I am the resurrection and the life. Those who believe in me, even though they die, will live, 26 and everyone who lives and believes in me will never die. Do you believe this?” 27 She said to him, “Yes, Lord, I believe that you are the Messiah, 28 the Son of God, the one coming into the world.”

28 When she had said this, she went back and called her sister Mary, and told her privately, “The Teacher is here and is calling for you.” 29 And when she heard it, she got up quickly and went to him. 30 Now Jesus had not yet come to the village, but was still at the place where Martha had met him. 31 The Jews who were with her in the house, consoling her, saw Mary get up quickly and go out. They followed her because they thought that she was going to the tomb to weep there. 32 When Mary came where Jesus was and saw him, she knelt at his feet and said to him, “Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died.” 33 When Jesus saw her weeping, and the Jews who came with her also weeping, he was greatly disturbed in spirit and deeply moved. 34 He said, “Where have you laid him?” They said to him, “Lord, come and see.” 35 Jesus began to weep. 36 So the Jews said, “See how much he loved him!” 37 But some of them said, “Could not he who opened the eyes of the blind man have kept this man from dying?”

38 Then Jesus, again greatly disturbed, came to the tomb. It was a cave, and a stone

---

a Gk he
b Gk Didymus
c Gk fifteen stadia
d Other ancient authorities lack and the life
e Or the Christ
was lying against it. 39 Jesus said, “Take away the stone.” Martha, the sister of the dead man, said to him, “Lord, already there is a stench because he has been dead four days.”

40 Jesus said to her, “Did I not tell you that if you believed, you would see the glory of God?” 4 So they took away the stone. And Jesus looked upward and said, “Father, I thank you for having heard me. 42 I knew that you always hear me, but I have said this for the sake of the crowd standing here, so that they may believe that you sent me.” 43 When he had said this, he cried with a loud voice, “Lazarus, come out!” 44 The dead man came out, his hands and feet bound with strips of cloth, and his face wrapped in a cloth. Jesus said to them, “Unbind him, and let him go.”

45 Many of the Jews therefore, who had come with Mary and had seen what Jesus did, believed in him. 46 But some of them went to the Pharisees and told them what he had done. 47 So the chief priests and the Pharisees called a meeting of the council, and said, “What are we to do? This man is performing many signs. 48 If we let him go on like this, everyone will believe in him, and the Romans will come and destroy both our holy place and our nation.” 49 But one of them, Caiaphas, who was high priest that year, said to them, “You know nothing at all! 50 You do not understand that it is better for you to have one man die for the people than to have the whole nation destroyed.” 51 He did not say this on his own, but being high priest that year he prophesied that Jesus was about to die for the nation, and not for the nation only, but to gather into one the dispersed children of God. 52 So from that day on they planned to put him to death.

53 Jesus therefore no longer walked about openly among the Jews, but went from there to a town called Ephraim in the region near the wilderness; and he remained there with the disciples.

55 Now the Passover of the Jews was near, and many went up from the country to Jerusalem before the Passover to purify themselves. 56 They were looking for Jesus and were asking one another as they stood in the temple, “What do you think? Surely he will not come to the festival, will he?” 57 Now the chief priests and the Pharisees had given orders that anyone who knew where Jesus was should let them know, so that they might arrest him.

12 Six days before the Passover Jesus came to Bethany, the home of Lazarus, whom he had raised from the dead. 2 There they gave a dinner for him. Martha served, and Lazarus was one of those at the table with him. 3 Mary took a pound of costly perfume made of pure nard, anointed Jesus’ feet, and wiped them with her hair. The house was filled with the fragrance of the perfume. 4 But Judas Iscariot, one of his disciples (the one who was about to betray him), said, 5 “Why was this perfume not sold for three hundred denarii and the money given to the poor?” 6 (He said this not because he cared about the poor, but because he was a thief; he kept the common purse and used to steal what was put into it.) 7 Jesus said, “Leave her alone. She bought it so that she might keep it for the day of my burial. 8 You always have the “weary” (4.6), “troubled” about his own death (12.27; 13.21). 38b–39: The cave tomb was closed by a round stone rolled in front (Lk 24.2).

11.45–57: The plot to kill Jesus intensifies. 47–48: John did not envy Jesus’ success (3.25–30), but this court, threatened by his success, envies him: his honor and fame mean their disgrace. 49–52: Ironically Caiaphas (who was high priest 18–36 ce) repeats the virtue of the “noble shepherd” (see 10.11n.): one who dies for others. While Caiaphas was promoting Jesus’ destruction, he states that Jesus’ death will benefit the people. The audience knows the secret: Jesus’ enemy, this unwitting prophet; death sentence, death to benefit the people; saving the nation by killing Jesus, Jesus saves it by voluntary death. 53: Another trial in absentia (7:50–52). 54: Ephraim, also Aphairema, ca. 12 mi (20 km) north of Jerusalem. 55–57: Another division among the people: folk from the country look for Jesus, while Pharisees’ spies are seeking to arrest Jesus.

12.1–11: Jesus returns to Bethany, the home of beloved disciples. 5: Costly perfume: three hundred denarii poor with you, but you do not always have me.”

9 When the great crowd of the Jews learned that he was there, they came not only because of Jesus but also to see Lazarus, whom he had raised from the dead. 10 So the chief priests planned to put Lazarus to death as well, 11 since it was on account of him that many of the Jews were deserting and were believing in Jesus.

12 The next day the great crowd that had come to the festival heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem. 13 So they took branches of palm trees and went out to meet him, shouting, “Hosanna!

Blessed is the one who comes in the name of the Lord—
the King of Israel!”

14 Jesus found a young donkey and sat on it; as it is written:

15 “Do not be afraid, daughter of Zion.
Look, your king is coming, sitting on a donkey’s colt!”

16 His disciples did not understand these things at first; but when Jesus was glorified, then they remembered that these things had been written of him and had been done to him. 17 So the crowd that had been with him when he called Lazarus out of the tomb and raised him from the dead continued to testify. 18 It was also because they heard that he had performed this sign that the crowd went to meet him. 19 The Pharisees then said to one another, “You see, you can do nothing. Look, the world has gone after him!”

20 Now among those who went up to worship at the festival were some Greeks. 21 They came to Philip, who was from Bethsaida in Galilee, and said to him, “Sir, we wish to see Jesus.” 22 Philip went and told Andrew; then Andrew and Philip went and told Jesus. 23 Jesus answered them, “The hour has come for the Son of Man to be glorified. 24 Very truly, I tell you, unless a grain of wheat falls into the earth and dies, it remains just a single grain; but if it dies, it bears much fruit. 25 Those who love their life lose it, and those who hate their life in this world will keep it for eternal life. 26 Whoever serves me must follow me, and where I am, there will my servant be also. Whoever serves me, the Father will honor.

27 “Now my soul is troubled. And what should I say—‘Father, save me from this hour’? No, it is for this reason that I have come to this hour. 28 Father, glorify your name.” Then a voice came from heaven, “I have glorified it, and I will glorify it again.” 29 The crowd standing there heard it and said that it was thunder. Others said, “An angel has spoken to him.” 30 Jesus answered, “This voice has come for your sake, not for mine. 31 Now is the judgment of this world; now the ruler of this world will be driven out. 32 And I, when I am lifted up from the earth, will draw all people 33 to myself.” He said this to indicate the kind of death he was to die. 34 The crowd answered him, “We have heard from the law that the Messiah 35 remains forever. How can you say that the Son of Man must be lifted up? Who is this Son of Man?”
said to them, "The light is with you for a little longer. Walk while you have the light, so that the darkness may not overtake you. If you walk in the darkness, you do not know where you are going. While you have the light, believe in the light, so that you may become children of light."

After Jesus had said this, he departed and hid from them. Although he had performed so many signs in their presence, they did not believe in him. This was to fulfill the word spoken by the prophet Isaiah:

"Lord, who has believed our message, and to whom has the arm of the Lord been revealed?"

And so they could not believe, because Isaiah also said,

"He has blinded their eyes and hardened their heart, so that they might not look with their eyes, and understand with their heart and turn—and I would heal them."

Isaiah said this because he saw his glory and spoke about him.

Nevertheless many, even of the authorities, believed in him. But because of the Pharisees they did not confess it, for fear that they would be put out of the synagogue; for they loved human glory more than the glory that comes from God.

Then Jesus cried aloud: "Whoever believes in me believes not in me but in him who sent me. And whoever sees me sees him who sent me. I have come as light into the world, so that everyone who believes in me should not remain in the darkness. I do not judge anyone who hears my words and does not keep them, for I came not to judge the world, but to save the world. The one who rejects me and does not receive my word has a judge; on the last day the word that I have spoken will serve as judge, for I have not spoken on my own, but the Father who sent me has himself given me a commandment about what to say and what to speak. And I know that his commandment is eternal life. What I speak, therefore, I speak just as the Father has told me."

13 Now before the festival of the Passover, Jesus knew that his hour had come to depart from this world and go to the Father. Having loved his own who were in the world, he loved them to the end. The devil had already put it into the heart of Judas son of Simon Iscariot to betray him. And during supper Jesus, knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he had come from God and was going to God, got up from the table, took off his outer robe, and tied a towel around himself. Then he poured water into a basin and began to wash the disciples' feet and to wipe them with the towel that was tied around him. He came to Simon Peter, who said to him, "Lord, are you going to wash my feet?" Jesus answered, "You do not know now what I am doing, but later you will understand." Peter said to him, "You will never wash my feet." Jesus answered, "Unless I wash you, you have no share with me." Simon Peter said to him, "Lord, not my feet only but also my hands and my head!" Jesus said to him, "One who has bathed does not need to wash, except for the feet, but is entirely clean. And you are clean, though not all of you."

and the honor of resurrection (see 3.13). 35–36: Cf. 3.19–20; 11.9–10. 12.37–50: Judgment time. 37: Signs fail to create acceptance of Jesus (6.26–29; 11.45–52). 38–40: Isaiah prophesied failure: a rejected message (Isa 53.1), and blind eyes (Isa 6.10). 41: Saw his glory, the eternal Jesus appeared to the prophet Isaiah, as he had to Abraham (cf. 8.56; Isa 6.1–6). 42–43: Fear of expulsion paralyzed even those who believed, like the parents of the blind man (9.22). 44–45: The only issue for judgment is whether Jesus is God's agent. 47: Repeats 3.16–17; yet Jesus indeed judges in 8.15–16,31–59. 13.1–20: Foot washing. 1–3: Whereas 1.1–18 stressed Jesus' coming into the world, 13.1–3 focuses on his departure from this world. 1: In John the Passover begins on Friday (see 19.14); contrast Mk.14.12–16; Lk 22.15. 4–5: Dressed as a servant, Jesus washes their feet, a reversal of roles. 6–11: Simon Peter challenges Jesus, who demands compliance: Unless, the familiar demand (3.3; 6.53; 12.24). By requesting a total bath, Simon misunderstands Jesus, who states that only this washing is necessary. 11: All disciples are clean except the traitor, a Other ancient witnesses read when b Gk from supper
c Other ancient authorities lack except for the feet
d The Greek word for you here is plural who was to betray him; for this reason he said, “Not all of you are clean.”

12 After he had washed their feet, had put on his robe, and had returned to the table, he said to them, “Do you know what I have done to you? 13 You call me Teacher and Lord—and you are right, for that is what I am. 14 So if I, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you also ought to wash one another’s feet. 15 For I have set you an example, that you also should do as I have done to you. 16 Very truly, I tell you, servants are not greater than their master, nor are messengers greater than the one who sent them. 17 If you know these things, you are blessed if you do them. 18 I am not speaking of all of you; I know whom I have chosen. But it is to fulfill the scripture, ‘The one who ate my bread has lifted his heel against me.’ 19 I tell you this now, before it occurs, so that when it does occur, you may believe that I am he. 20 Very truly, I tell you, whoever receives one whom I send receives me; and whoever receives me receives him who sent me.”

21 After saying this Jesus was troubled in spirit, and declared, “Very truly, I tell you, one of you will betray me.” 22 The disciples looked at one another, uncertain of whom he was speaking. 23 One of his disciples—the one whom Jesus loved—was reclining next to him; 24 Simon Peter therefore motioned to him to ask Jesus of whom he was speaking. 25 So while reclining next to Jesus, he asked him, “Lord, who is it?” 26 Jesus answered, “It is the one to whom I give this piece of bread when I have dipped it in the dish.” 27 So when he had dipped the piece of bread, he gave it to Judas son of Simon Iscariot. 28 After he received the piece of bread, Satan entered into him. Jesus said to him, “Do quickly what you are going to do.” 29 Now no one at the table knew why he said this to him. 30 Some thought that, because Judas had the common purse, Jesus was telling him, “Buy what we need for the festival”; or, that he should give something to the poor. 31 So, after receiving the piece of bread, he immediately went out. And it was night.

32 When he had gone out, Jesus said, “Now the Son of Man has been glorified, and God has been glorified in him. 33 If God has been glorified in him, 9 God will also glorify him in himself and will glorify him at once. 34 Little children, I am with you only a little longer. You will look for me; and as I said to the Jews so now I say to you, ‘Where I am going, you cannot come.’ 34 I give you a new commandment, that you love one another. Just as I have loved you, you also should love one another. 35 By this everyone will know that you are my disciples, if you have love for one another.”

36 Simon Peter said to him, “Lord, where are you going?” Jesus answered, “Where I am..."
going, you cannot follow me now; but you will follow afterward.” 37 Peter said to him, “Lord, why can I not follow you now? I will lay down my life for you.” 38 Jesus answered, “Will you lay down your life for me? Very truly, I tell you, before the cock crows, you will have denied me three times.

14 “Do not let your hearts be troubled. Believe in God, believe also in me. 2 In my Father’s house there are many dwelling places. If it were not so, would I have told you that I go to prepare a place for you? 3 And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and will take you to myself, so that where I am, there you may be also. 4 And you know the way to the place where I am going.” 5 Thomas said to him, “Lord, we do not know where you are going. How can we know the way?” 6 Jesus said to him, “I am the way, and the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through me. 7 If you know me, you will know my Father also. From now on you do know him and have seen him.” 8 Philip said to him, “Lord, show us the Father, and we will be satisfied.” 9 Jesus said to him, “Have I been with you all this time, Philip, and you still do not know me? Whoever has seen me has seen the Father. How can you say, ‘Show us the Father’? 10 Do you not believe that I am in the Father and the Father is in me? The words that I say to you I do not say on my own; but the Father who dwells in me does his works. 11 Believe me that I am in the Father and the Father is in me; but if you do not, then believe me because of the works themselves. 12 Very truly, I tell you, the one who believes in me will also do the works that I do and, in fact, will do greater works than these, because I am going to the Father. 13 I will do whatever you ask in my name, so that the Father may be glorified in the Son. 14 If in my name you ask me for anything, I will do it. 15 “If you love me, you will keep my commandments. 16 And I will ask the Father, and he will give you another Advocate, to be with you forever. 17 This is the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it neither sees him nor knows him. You know him, because he abides with you, and he will be in you.

18 “I will not leave you orphaned; I am coming to you. 19 In a little while the world will no longer see me, but you will see me; because I live, you also will live. 20 On that day you will know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you. 21 They who have my commandments and keep them are those who love me; and those who love me will be loved by my Father, and I will love them and reveal myself to them.” 22 Judas (not Iscariot) said to him, “Lord, how is it that you will reveal yourself to us, and not to the world?” 23 Jesus answered him, “Those who love me will keep my word, and my Father will love them, and we will come to them and make our home with them. 24 Whoever does not love me does not keep my words; and the word that you hear is not mine, but is from the Father who sent me.

25 “I have said these things to you while I am still with you. 26 But the Advocate, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father will send in my name, will teach you everything, and remind you of all that I have said to you. 27 Peace I leave with you; my peace I give to you. I do not give to you as the world gives. Do not let your hearts be troubled, and do not let them be afraid. 28 You heard me say to you, ‘I am going away, and I am coming to you.’ If you loved me, you would rejoice that I am going to the Father, because the Father is greater than I. 29 And now I have told you this before it occurs, so that when it does occur, you may believe. 30 I will no longer talk much with you, for the ruler of this world is coming. He has no power over me; 31 but I do as the Father has commanded me, so that the world may know that I love the Father. Rise, let us be on our way.

15 “I am the true vine, and my Father is the vinegrower. 2 He removes every branch in me that bears no fruit. Every branch that bears fruit he prunes to make it bear more fruit. 3 You have already been cleansed by the word that I have spoken to you. 4 Abide in me as I abide in you. Just as the branch cannot bear fruit by itself unless it abides in the vine, neither can you unless you abide in me. 5 I am the vine, you are the branches. Those who abide in me and I in them bear much fruit, because apart from me you can do nothing. 6 Whoever does not abide in me is thrown away like a branch and withers; such branches are gathered, thrown into the fire, and burned. 7 If you abide in me, and my words abide in you, ask for whatever you wish, and it will be done for you. 8 My Father is glorified by this, that you bear much fruit and become my disciples. 9 As the Father has loved me, so I have loved you; abide in my love. 10 If you keep my commandments, you will abide in my love, just as I have kept my Father’s commandments and abide in his love. 11 I have said these things to you so that my joy may be in you, and that your joy may be complete.

12 “This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you. 13 No one has greater love than this, to lay down one’s life for one’s friends. 14 You are my friends if you do what I command you. 15 I do not call you servants any longer, because the servant ¹⁰

a Or Helper
b The same Greek root refers to pruning and cleansing c Or be d Gk slaves
e Gk slave

Jesus is in the Father and in them, and they are in him. 21: The same relationships are expressed through love. 22: Judas (see Lk 6.16; Acts 1.13) asks: is revelation only for insiders? 23–24: Jesus replies indirectly: Only insiders love him and keep his word. Only to insiders will Jesus and his Father come and make a home, which again is not a place but a relationship. Outsiders do not love Jesus or keep his words.

14.25–31: Comings and goings. 25–26: Now Jesus speaks, but the Advocate/Holy Spirit will speak later. The Advocate functions to link past and future, reminding them of Jesus’ words and teaching all things. The Spirit, then, is Jesus’ broker. 28: Going away, both Jesus’ death and return to God. 29: Forewarned about the crisis to come means forearmed. 30: Ruler of this world, either the father of lies and murder (8.44; 12.31), or the Roman emperor and his legions in Palestine; see also 16.11.

15.1–25: Exhortations: abide and love. 1–11: The first exhortation. Abide occurs nine times and is the focus of the exhortation. As in 14.1–3, it is not spatial but relational, referring to loyalty and faithfulness. On the image of the vine and God as the vinegrower, cf. Isa 5.1–7; Jer 2.21; Ezek 19.10–14; Mk 12.1–12 par. 3: The disciples are already cleansed (13.10); see also textual note b. 5–9: Argument from advantage: those abiding profit, those not abiding perish. 6: Cf. Mt 3.10; 7.19. 10: Keeping produces a durable relationship of loving: the disciples abide in Jesus’ love who abides in God’s love. 12–17: The second exhortation: Love. 14: Friends expresses the polite relationship of clients and patron. Pilate is a “friend” of Caesar, his patron, not an intimate (19.12). 15: Not ser-does not know what the master is doing; but I have called you friends, because I have made known to you everything that I have heard from my Father. 16 You did not choose me but I chose you. And I appointed you to go and bear fruit, fruit that will last, so that the Father will give you whatever you ask him in my name. 17 I am giving you these commands so that you may love one another. 18 “If the world hates you, be aware that it hated me before it hated you. 19 If you belonged to the world, the world would love you as its own. Because you do not belong to the world, but I have chosen you out of the world—therefore the world hates you. 20 Remember the word that I said to you, ‘Servants are not greater than their master.’ If they persecuted me, they will persecute you; if they kept my word, they will keep yours also. 21 But they will do all these things to you on account of my name, because they do not know him who sent me. 22 If I had not come and spoken to them, they would not have sin; but now they have no excuse for their sin. 23 Whoever hates me hates my Father also. 24 If I had not done among them the works that no one else did, they would not have sin. But now they have seen and hated both me and my Father. 25 It was to fulfill the word that is written in their law, ‘They hated me without a cause.’ 26 “When the Advocate comes, whom I will send to you from the Father, the Spirit of truth who comes from the Father, he will testify on my behalf. 27 You also are to testify because you have been with me from the beginning.

16 “I have said these things to you to keep you from stumbling. 2 They will put you out of the synagogues. Indeed, an hour is coming when those who kill you will think that by doing so they are offering worship to God. 3 And they will do this because they have not known the Father or me. 4 But I have said these things to you so that when their hour comes you may remember that I told you about them.

“I did not say these things to you from the beginning, because I was with you. 5 But now I am going to him who sent me; yet none of you asks me, ‘Where are you going?’ 6 But because I have said these things to you, sorrow has filled your hearts. 7 Nevertheless I tell you the truth: it is to your advantage that I go away, for if I do not go away, the Advocate will not come to you; but if I go, I will send him to you. 8 And when he comes, he will prove the world wrong about sin and righteousness and judgment: 9 about sin, because they do not believe in me; 10 about righteousness, because I am going to the Father and you will see me no longer; 11 about judgment, because the ruler of this world has been condemned.

12 “I still have many things to say to you, but you cannot bear them now. 13 When the Spirit of truth comes, he will guide you into all the truth; for he will not speak on his own, but will speak whatever he hears, and he will declare to you the things that are to come.

vants, but not peers: see 13.13. 16: A return to the vine imagery of the first exhortation. 17: Love one another, the second exhortation ends as it began (15.12). 18–25: Exhortation on hatred, balancing the preceding exhortation on love. Hatred is proof that disciples belong to Jesus and not the world. 20: See 13.16. The disciples are both “friends” because Jesus brokers wisdom (see v. 14n.), and also servants because they are followers of the master (see 13.13). 22–24: When Jesus is hated, God who sent him is also hated. 25: Pss 35.19; 69.4.

15.26–27: Testifying. 26: The role of the Advocate (see 14.16n.) is not just forensic but also that of a mediator or broker. I will send, cf. “The Father will send” (14.26). 26: As in 8.13–14, there are two witnesses: here the Spirit and the disciples, both confirming Jesus’ role as unique broker.

16.1–15: What Jesus now has to say. 1–4a: Predictions defuse crises to come. 4b–7: Announcement of departure, which causes consternation. Yet his departure is an advantage, because he will send the Advocate (see 14.16n.), partly replacement and partly broker. 8: Like Jesus, the Advocate plays many roles, especially that of forensic witness. 11: Ruler of this world, see 12.31n. 12–15: The Advocate will clarify to the disciples both things said and not said. As Jesus’ agent and broker, he looks back to Jesus’ past remarks and looks to what is forthcoming.
14 He will glorify me, because he will take what is mine and declare it to you. 15 All that the Father has is mine. For this reason I said that he will take what is mine and declare it to you.

16 “A little while, and you will no longer see me, and again a little while, and you will see me.” 17 Then some of his disciples said to one another, “What does he mean by saying to us, ‘A little while, and you will no longer see me, and again a little while, and you will see me’; and ‘Because I am going to the Father’?” 18 They said, “What does he mean by this ‘a little while’? We do not know what he is talking about.” 19 Jesus knew that they wanted to ask him, so he said to them, “Are you discussing among yourselves what I meant when I said, ‘A little while, and you will no longer see me, and again a little while, and you will see me’?” 20 Very truly, I tell you, you will weep and mourn, but the world will rejoice; you will have pain, but your pain will turn into joy. 21 When a woman is in labor, she has pain, because her hour has come. But when her child is born, she no longer remembers the anguish because of the joy of having brought a human being into the world. 22 So you have pain now; but I will see you again, and your hearts will rejoice, and no one will take your joy from you. 23 On that day you will ask nothing of me. 24 Very truly, I tell you, if you ask anything of the Father in my name, he will give it to you. 25 “I have said these things to you in figures of speech. The hour is coming when I will no longer speak to you in figures, but will tell you plainly of the Father. 26 On that day you will ask in my name. I do not say to you that I will ask the Father on your behalf; 27 for the Father himself loves you, because you have loved me and have believed that I came from God. 28 I came from the Father and have come into the world; again, I am leaving the world and am going to the Father.” 29 His disciples said, “Yes, now you are speaking plainly, not in any figure of speech!

30 Now we know that you know all things, and do not need to have anyone question you; by this we believe that you came from God.” 31 Jesus answered them, “Do you now believe? 32 The hour is coming, indeed it has come, when you will be scattered, each one to his home, and you will leave me alone. Yet I am not alone because the Father is with me. 33 I have said this to you, so that in me you may have peace. In the world you face persecution. But take courage; I have conquered the world!”

17 After Jesus had spoken these words, he looked up to heaven and said, “Father, the hour has come; glorify your Son so that the Son may glorify you, 2 since you have given him authority over all people, 3 to give eternal life to all whom you have given him. 4 And this is eternal life, that they may know you, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom you have sent. 5 I glorified you on earth by finishing the work that you gave me to do. 6 So now, Father, glorify me in your own presence with the glory that I had in your presence before the world existed.

16.16–24: “A little while.” 20: Jesus does not yet explain what he meant but focuses attention on the disciples and their distress. 21–22: The labor pains of childbirth and the joy of a birth parallel the disciples’ experience. 23–24: Instruction for petitionary prayer, as in 14.13–14; cf. Mt 21.22. 25–33: Full explanation. 26: Petitionary prayer with direct access to God, not through broker. 27: Secure relationships: the Father loves you because you love and believe me. 28: As ideal broker, Jesus belongs both to God’s world and the disciples’. He came from the Father into the world and now returns to the Father (1.1–18; 3.13; 13.1–3). 32: Like sheep scattered they will leave Jesus alone, yet he is not truly alone because of his relationship with God. 33: A crisis foretold to strengthen them.

17.1–26: Jesus praying. For previous prayers of Jesus, see 11.41–42; 12.27–28. 1: Mutual glorifying indicates ideal relationship; cf. 8.50,54; 16.14. 3: Eternal life, a two-part confession: to know you, the only true God (monotheism) and to acknowledge Jesus Christ as agent (broker). 5: The relationship demands that God in turn glorify

NEW TESTAMENT | 1909
6 “I have made your name known to those whom you gave me from the world. They were yours, and you gave them to me, and they have kept your word. 7 Now they know that everything you have given me is from you; 8 for the words that you gave to me I have given to them, and they have received them and know in truth that I came from you; and they have believed that you sent me. 9 I am asking on their behalf; I am not asking on behalf of the world, but on behalf of those whom you gave me, because they are yours. 10 All mine are yours, and yours are mine; and I have been glorified in them. 11 And now I am no longer in the world, but they are in the world, and I am coming to you. Holy Father, protect them in your name that you have given me. I have given them, and they have received them, because they are yours. 12 While I was with them, I protected them in your name that you have given me. I guarded them, and not one of them was lost except the one destined to be lost, 13 so that the scripture might be fulfilled. 14 While I was with them, I protected them in your name that you have given me. I guarded them, and not one of them was lost except the one destined to be lost, 15 so that the scripture might be fulfilled. 16 They do not belong to the world, just as I do not belong to the world. 17 Sanctify them in the truth; your word is truth. 18 As you have sent me into the world, so I have sent them into the world. 19 And for their sakes I sanctify myself, so that they also may be sanctified in truth.

20 “I ask not only on behalf of these, but also on behalf of those who will believe in me through their word, 21 that they may all be one. As you, Father, are in me and I am in you, may they also be in us, so that the world may believe that you have sent me. 22 The glory that you have given me I have given them, so that they may be one, as we are one, 23 in them and you in me, that they may become completely one, so that the world may know that you have sent me and have loved them even as you have loved me. 24 Father, I desire that those also, whom you have given me, may be with me where I am, to see my glory, which you have given me because you loved me before the foundation of the world.

25 “Righteous Father, the world does not know you, but I know you; and these know that you have sent me. 26 I made your name known to them, and I will make it known, so that the love with which you have loved me may be in them, and I in them.”

18 After Jesus had spoken these words, he went out with his disciples across the Kidron valley to a place where there was a garden, which he and his disciples en-

Jesus in heaven, not with earned honor but restoration of Jesus’ eternal glory (1.1–2). 6: Besides petition and praise, Jesus prays a self-focused prayer: Jesus tells God of his honorable behavior, the accomplishment of what he was sent to do. Name, not God or “Lord,” but “I AM,” the name revealed to Moses (Ex 3.14); see 8.28,58. 7–8: Words given by God to Jesus are given to them, acknowledging him as broker. 9: Jesus brokers only the needs of insiders. 10: Sender and agent equally share all, establishing Jesus as the ideal broker. 11: Reason for petition: your broker is in transit to you; petition: You protect them, i.e., keep them loyal. 12: Again (see. v. 6) a self-focused prayer. 13: An implied petition: the broker, who is in transit, desires them to have my joy in abundance (16.20–22). 14: As in Jesus’ case, the world hates them, for, like him, they do not belong below (7.7; 8.23). 15–17: Further petitions. 18: Cf. 20.21. 19: Sanctify means total dedication to God; Jesus sanctions himself so that the disciples might be totally loyal. 20–21: Petition: Jesus intercedes for them and those recruited by them (v. 18). One, unified, in the same proper relationship as Jesus and the Father. In me . . . in you . . . in us, . . . recalling the household language of 14.2. 24: Petition: not contradicting v. 15, but suggesting a relationship with the heavenly Jesus. See my glory explains the promise in 1.51. 25–26: Know means “acknowledge”; the world does not know God because it rejects God’s broker; Jesus knows God as his agent; disciples know God because they acknowledge Jesus as agent. That knowledge cements perfect relationships in love.
tered. 2 Now Judas, who betrayed him, also knew the place, because Jesus often met there with his disciples. 3 So Judas brought a detachment of soldiers together with police from the chief priests and the Pharisees, and they came there with lanterns and torches and weapons. 4 Then Jesus, knowing all that was to happen to him, came forward and asked them, “Whom are you looking for?” 5 They answered, “Jesus of Nazareth.” 6 Jesus replied, “I am he.” 7 Judas, who betrayed him, was standing with them. 8 When Jesus said to them, “I am he,” they stepped back and fell to the ground. 9 Again he asked them, “Whom are you looking for?” And they said, “Jesus of Nazareth.” 10 This was to fulfill the word that he had spoken, “I did not lose a single one of those whom you gave me.” 11 Then Simon Peter, who had a sword, drew it, struck the high priest’s slave, and cut off his right ear. The slave’s name was Malchus. 12 Jesus said to Peter, “Put your sword back into its sheath. Am I not to drink the cup that the Father has given me?” 13 So the soldiers, their officer, and the Jewish police arrested Jesus and bound him. 14 First they took him to Annas, who was the father-in-law of Caiaphas, the high priest that year. 15 Caiaphas was the one who had advised the Jews that it was better to have one person die for the people. 16 Simon Peter and another disciple followed Jesus. Since that disciple was known to the high priest, he went with Jesus into the courtyard of the high priest. 17 but Peter was standing outside at the gate. So the other disciple, who was known to the high priest, went out, spoke to the woman who guarded the gate, and brought Peter in. 18 The woman said to Peter, “You are not also one of this man’s disciples, are you?” He said, “I am not.” 19 Now the slaves and the police had made a charcoal fire because it was cold, and they were standing around it and warming themselves. Peter also was standing with them and warming himself.

Then the high priest questioned Jesus about his disciples and about his teaching. 20 Jesus answered, “I have spoken openly to the world; I have always taught in synagogues and in the temple, where all the Jews come together. I have said nothing in secret. 21 Why do you ask me? Ask those who heard what I said to them; they know what I said.” 22 When he had said this, one of the police standing nearby struck Jesus on the face, saying, “Is that how you answer the high priest?” 23 Jesus answered, “If I have spoken wrongly, testify to the wrong. But if I have spoken rightly, why do you strike me?” 24 Then Annas sent him bound to Caiaphas the high priest. 25 Now Simon Peter was standing and warming himself. They asked him, “You are not also one of his disciples, are you?” He denied it and said, “I am not.” 26 One of the slaves of the high priest, a relative of the man whose ear Peter had cut off, asked, “Did I not see you in the garden with him?” 27 Again Peter denied it, and at that moment the cock crowed.

28 Then they took Jesus from Caiaphas to Pilate’s headquarters. a It was early in the morning. They themselves did not enter the headquarters, a so as to avoid ritual defilement and to be able to eat the Passover. 29 So Pilate went out to them and said, “What accusation do you bring against this man?” 30 They answered, “If this man were not a criminal, we would not have handed him over to you.” 31 Pilate said to them, “Take him yourselves and judge him according to your law.” The Jews replied, “We are not permitted to put anyone to death.” 32 (This was to fulfill what Jesus had said when he indicated the kind of death he was to die.)

33 Then Pilate entered the headquarters a again, summoned Jesus, and asked him, “Are you the King of the Jews?” 34 Jesus answered, “Do you ask this on your own, or did others tell you about me?” 35 Pilate said to him, “I am not a Jew, am I? Your own nation and the chief priests have handed you over to me. What have you done?” 36 Jesus answered, “My kingdom is not from this world. If my kingdom were from this world, my followers would be fighting to keep me from being handed over to the Jews. But as it is, my kingdom is not from here.” 37 Pilate asked him, “So you are a king?” Jesus answered, “You say that I am a king. For this I was born, and for this I came into the world, to testify to the truth. Everyone who belongs to the truth listens to my voice.” 38 Pilate asked him, “What is truth?”

After he had said this, he went out to the Jews again and told them, “I find no case against him. 39 But you have a custom that I release someone for you at the Passover. Do you want me to release for you the King of the Jews?” 40 They shouted in reply, “Not this man, but Barabbas!” Now Barabbas was a bandit.

19 Then Pilate took Jesus and had him flogged. a And the soldiers wove a crown of thorns and put it on his head, and they dressed him in a purple robe. 3 They kept coming up to him, saying, “Hail, King of the Jews!” and striking him on the face. 4 Pilate went out again and said to them, “Look, I am bringing him out to you to let you know that I find no case against him.” 5 So Jesus came out, wearing the crown of thorns and the purple robe. Pilate said to them, “Here is the man!” 6 When the chief priests and the police saw him, they shouted, “Crucify him! Crucify him!” Pilate said to them, “Take him yourselves and crucify him; I find no case against him.” 7 The Jews answered him, “We have a law, and according to that law he ought to die because he has claimed to be the Son of God.”

8 Now when Pilate heard this, he was more afraid than ever. 9 He entered his headquarters a again and asked Jesus, “Where are you from?” But Jesus gave him no answer. 10 Pilate therefore said to him, “Do you refuse to speak to me? Do you not know that I have power to release you, and power to crucify you?” 11 Jesus answered him, “You would have no

a Gk the praetorium power over me unless it had been given you from above; therefore the one who handed me over to you is guilty of a greater sin.”

12 From then on Pilate tried to release him, but the Jews cried out, “If you release this man, you are no friend of the emperor. Everyone who claims to be a king sets himself against the emperor.”

13 When Pilate heard these words, he brought Jesus outside and sat on the judge’s bench at a place called The Stone Pavement, or in Hebrew Gabbatha. 14 Now it was the day of Preparation for the Passover; and it was about noon. He said to the Jews, “Here is your King!” 15 They cried out, “Away with him! Away with him! Crucify him!” Pilate asked them, “Shall I crucify your King?” The chief priests answered, “We have no king but the emperor.” 16 Then he handed him over to them to be crucified.

So they took Jesus; 17 and carrying the cross by himself, he went out to what is called The Place of the Skull, which in Hebrew is called Golgotha. 18 There they crucified him, and with him two others, one on either side, with Jesus between them. 19 Pilate also had an inscription written and put on the cross. It read, “Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews.” 20 Many of the Jews read this inscription, because the place where Jesus was crucified was near the city; and it was written in Hebrew, in Latin, and in Greek. 21 Then the chief priests of the Jews said to Pilate, “Do not write, ‘The King of the Jews,’ but, ‘This man said, I am King of the Jews.’” 22 Pilate answered, “What I have written I have written.” 23 When the soldiers had crucified Jesus, they took his clothes and divided them into four parts, one for each soldier. They also took his tunic; now the tunic was seamless, woven in one piece from the top. 24 So they said to one another, “Let us not tear it, but cast lots for it to see who will get it.” This was to fulfill what the scripture says, “They divided my clothes among themselves, and for my clothing they cast lots.” 25 And that is what the soldiers did.

Meanwhile, standing near the cross of Jesus were his mother, and his mother’s sister, Mary the wife of Clopas, and Mary Magdalene. 26 When Jesus saw his mother and the disciple whom he loved standing beside her, he said to his mother, “Woman, here is your son.” 27 Then he said to the disciple, “Here is your mother.” And from that hour the disciple took her into his own home.

28 After this, when Jesus knew that all was now finished, he said (in order to fulfill the scripture), “I am thirsty.” 29 A jar full of sour wine was standing there. So they put a sponge full of the wine on a branch of hyssop and held it to his mouth. 30 When Jesus had received the wine, he said, “It is finished.” Then he bowed his head and gave up his spirit.

It challenges Pilate. 10–11: Pilate’s power comes from God, not from Caesar. Greater sin, rejection by his own superiors, Pilate’s injustice. 12: Pilate cannot release Caesar’s rival and be his client (friend). 13: Gabbatha, occurring only here, probably means “the elevated (place)” in Aramaic (see textual note b); it was probably near the Praetorium (see 18.28n.) 14–15: Noon on the day of Preparation: time when Passover lambs were slaughtered. We have no king but the emperor, an example of the “greater sin” (v. 11), rejection of God and of Jesus.

19.17–30: The crucifixion: killing the king. 17: Golgotha, in the northwest section of the city; see map on p. 1883. Hebrew, see textual note b. 18: Crucified, like “flogged” (v. 1), focuses not just on pain but on shame. 19: The sign states Jesus’ “crime,” but ironically it is true. 20: Three languages suggests openness to all (cf. “savior of the world,” 4.42). 23–24: Clothes, spoils for executioners, whose refusal to cut the tunic necessitates casting lots, fulfilling Ps 22.18. 25: His mother, unnamed as in 2.4, as also is her sister, who is not mentioned elsewhere in the New Testament. Mary . . . of Clopas, perhaps to be identified with the mother of James and Joses (Mk 15.40; etc.). 26–27: Jesus provides his mother with a new son to protect her. The disciple whom he loved, see 13.23n. 28: Thirsty, fulfilling Ps 69.21. 29: Hyssop, a wild shrub whose branches were used for sprinkling liquids in religious rituals. 30: Finished, either life ended or mission accomplished (17.4). Gave up his Spirit, a double meaning: “spirit” can mean “breath,” but the phrase is also indicative of a Pentecostal event (see 7.39; Acts 2.4).
Early on the first day of the week, while it was still dark, Mary Magdalene came to the tomb and saw that the stone had been removed from the tomb. So she ran and went to Simon Peter and the other disciple, the one whom Jesus loved, and said to them, “They have taken the Lord out of the tomb, and we do not know where they have laid him.” Then Peter and the other disciple set out and went toward the tomb. The two were running together, but the other disciple outran Peter and reached the tomb first. He bent down to look in and saw the linen wrappings lying there, but he did not go in. Then Simon Peter came, following him, and went into the tomb. He saw the linen wrappings lying there, and the cloth that had been on Jesus’ head, not lying with the linen wrappings but rolled up in a place by itself. Then the other disciple, who reached the tomb first, also went in, and he saw and believed; for as yet they did not understand the scripture, that he must rise from the dead. Then the disciples returned to their homes.

But Mary stood weeping outside the tomb. As she wept, she bent over to look into the tomb; and she saw two angels in white, sitting where the body of Jesus had been lying, one at the head and the other at the feet. They said to her, “Woman, why are you weeping?” She said to them, “They have taken away my Lord, and I do not know where they have laid him.” When she had said this, she turned around and saw Jesus standing there, but she did not recognize him.

...And she turned around and saw Jesus standing there, but she did not recognize him.

19.31–42: Final affairs. 31: Legs...broken: to forestall asphyxiation, the crucified pulled up with their arms and pushed up with their legs. With legs broken, the arms cramp quickly, bringing death. 34: Either senseless mutilation or fluids suggesting benefits: baptism (water) and Eucharist (blood; 6.53–56; 1 Jn 5.6–8). 35: The witness is not the actual writer, but guarantor of the narrative. 36–37: Scriptures...fulfilled, a claim that God providentially controls Jesus’ death. 36: Ex 12.46, referring to the Passover lamb; see 1.29–30n. Cf. Ps 34.20. 37: Zech 12.10. 38: Joseph of Arimathea’s fear of censure (cf. 9.22; 12.42) is balanced by his public attempt to bury Jesus. 39: Nicodemus (3.2), brings excessive spices. 40–42: An honorable burial: a new tomb, burial clothes, excessive spices, all according to Judean burial customs.

20.1–18: The resurrection (cf. Mt 28; Mk 16; Lk 24). 1: The first day of the week, Sunday. 2–5: The one whom Jesus loved (see 13.23n.) arrives first; not entering indicates respect for Peter; contrast 13.23–25. 6–7: Peter arrives, inventories the tomb’s contents, and leaves knowing nothing. 8: The other disciple sees all Peter saw, but believed. 9: As yet they did not understand the scripture: see 2.17 (Ps 69.9); 3.14 (Num 21.9); 19.24 (Ps 22.18); etc.
know that it was Jesus. 15 Jesus said to her, “Woman, why are you weeping? Whom are you looking for?” Supposing him to be the gardener, she said to him, “Sir, if you have carried him away, tell me where you have laid him, and I will take him away.” 16 Jesus said to her, “Mary!” She turned and said to him, “Teacher, if you have carried him away, tell me where you have laid him, and I will take him away.” 17 Jesus said to her, “Do not hold on to me, because I have not yet ascended to the Father. But go to my brothers and say to them, ‘I am ascending to my Father and your Father, to my God and your God.’” 18 Mary Magdalene went and announced to the disciples, “I have seen the Lord”; and she told them that he had said these things to her.

19 When it was evening on that day, the first day of the week, and the doors of the house where the disciples had met were locked for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood among them and said, “Peace be with you.” 20 After he said this, he showed them his hands and his side. Then the disciples rejoiced when they saw the Lord. 21 Jesus said to them again, “Peace be with you. As the Father has sent me, so I send you.” 22 When he had said this, he breathed on them and said to them, “Receive the Holy Spirit. 23 If you forgive the sins of any, they are forgiven them; if you retain the sins of any, they are retained.”

24 But Thomas (who was called the Twin), one of the twelve, was not with them when Jesus came. 25 So the other disciples told him, “We have seen the Lord.” But he said to them, “Unless I see the mark of the nails in his hands, and put my finger in the mark of the nails and my hand in his side, I will not believe.” 26 A week later his disciples were again in the house, and Thomas was with them. Although the doors were shut, Jesus came and stood among them and said, “Peace be with you.” 27 Then he said to Thomas, “Put your finger here and see my hands. Reach out your hand and put it in my side. Do not doubt but believe.” 28 Thomas answered him, “My Lord and my God!” 29 Jesus said to him, “Have you believed because you have seen me? Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have come to believe.”

30 Now Jesus did many other signs in the presence of his disciples, which are not written in this book. 31 But these are written so that you may come to believe that Jesus 11–13: The angels tell Mary nothing, unlike Mt 28.5–7. She repeats her lines (see v. 2). 14: She saw, but did not know. 15: More confusion and ambiguity. 16: Jesus rarely addresses people by name in this Gospel; exceptions are Lazarus (11.43), Simon, son of John (21.15), now Mary. She addresses Jesus by his role, Rabbouni (a variant of “rabbi”), Teacher (1.38; 3.2; 11.28; 13.13). 17a: Only members of his inner circle touch Jesus: Mary (12.3–4); the beloved disciple (13.23); Thomas (20.25,27); Jesus rarely touches others (but see 9.6; 13.5). 17b: The Gospel’s greatest revelation, communicated only to Mary: As Jesus lays down his life, he takes it back (10.17); he travels by his own power. She in turn is sent only to insiders, but her role is of limited duration.

20.19–29: Commissioning. 19–21: Peace be with you, a traditional Jewish greeting (e.g., Tob 12.17) is repeated twice, erasing their cowardice (16.32; 18.25–27). Showed them his hands and his side, proving he is no ghost (see Lk 24.38–39,41–42). 21: Typically the risen Jesus commissions disciples to roles of service (Mt 28.16–28; Lk 24.48; Jn 21.15–18). As the Father has sent . . . I send, “identical to 17.18, this sending will endure, unlike Mary’s. 22: Breathed, cf. Gen 2.7, Receive the Holy Spirit, resurrection, “ascension” (v. 17) and “Pentecost” (v. 22) all occur on one day; thus Jesus confirms his brokerage. 24–25: Thomas, absent from the group, refused the apostles’ “gospel” about Jesus. 26: The setting is the same as in v. 19, but Thomas is in attendance. 27: “See . . . reach out your hand,” gentler treatment than with those demanding signs (2.18; 4.48; 6.2,26). Unlike these previous requests, Jesus gives in to Thomas completely. 28: Thomas surrenders and honors Jesus as Lord and God. This recalls 1.1–3 and 5.19–29. 29: John’s second beatitude (see 13.17). In the Synoptic Gospels, the beatitudes honor people suffering for Jesus (Lk 6.22–24); this honors insiders who believe the gospel.

20.30–31: First conclusion to the Gospel. In the Gospel, seven signs have been narrated out of a collection of many. These signs are credentials and proof of Jesus’ relationship with God. Thus believing, one has access to eternal life by having Jesus as broker, in his name.
is the Messiah, the Son of God, and that through believing you may have life in his name.

21 After these things Jesus showed himself again to the disciples by the Sea of Tiberias; and he showed himself in this way. 2 Gathered there together were Simon Peter, Thomas called the Twin, Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, the sons of Zebedee, and two others of his disciples. 3 Simon Peter said to them, “I am going fishing.” They said to him, “We will go with you.” They went out and got into the boat, but that night they caught nothing.

4 Just after daybreak, Jesus stood on the beach; but the disciples did not know that it was Jesus. 5 Jesus said to them, “Children, you have no fish, have you?” They answered him, “No.” 6 He said to them, “Cast the net to the right side of the boat, and you will find some.” So they cast it, and now they were not able to haul it in because there were so many fish. 7 That disciple whom Jesus loved said to Peter, “It is the Lord!” When Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he put on some clothes, for he was naked, and jumped into the sea.

8 But the other disciples came in the boat, dragging the net full of fish, for they were not far from the land, only about a hundred yards off.

9 When they had gone ashore, they saw a charcoal fire there, with fish on it, and bread. 10 Jesus said to them, “Bring some of the fish that you have just caught.” 11 So Simon Peter went aboard and hauled the net ashore, full of large fish, a hundred fifty-three of them; and though there were so many, the net was not torn. 12 Jesus said to them, “Come and have breakfast.” Now none of the disciples dared to ask him, “Who are you?” because they knew it was the Lord. 13 Jesus came and took the bread and gave it to them, and did the same with the fish. 14 This was now the third time that Jesus appeared to the disciples after he was raised from the dead.

15 When they had finished breakfast, Jesus said to Simon Peter, “Simon son of John, do you love me more than these?” He said to him, “Yes, Lord; you know that I love you.” Jesus said to him, “Feed my lambs.” 16 A second time he said to him, “Simon son of John, do you love me?” He said to him, “Yes, Lord; you know that I love you.” Jesus said to him, “Tend my sheep.” 17 He said to him the third time, “Simon son of John, do you love me?” Peter felt hurt because he said to him the third time, “Do you love me?” And he said to him, “Lord, you know everything; you know that I love you.” Jesus said to him, “Feed my sheep.” 18 Very truly, I tell you, when you were younger, you used to fasten your own belt and to go wherever you wished. But when you grow old, you will stretch out your hands, and someone else will fasten a belt around you and take you where you do not wish to go.” 19 (He said this to indicate the kind of death by

a Or the Christ
b Gk Didymus
c Gk two hundred cubits

21.1–19: Simon Peter: fisherman, table servant, and shepherd. 1: By the Sea of Tiberias, in Galilee (see 6.1). 2: Typical boats held six comfortably; here, seven: Simon Peter, Thomas, Nathanael (see 1.45–51), the sons of Zebedee (James and John), and two others. 3: Simon Peter, returns to his occupation as a fisherman (Lk 5.1–10). 6: Abundance is typical of Jesus’ benefactions: wine (2.6–7), bread (6.5–13), life (10.10), now fish. 7: Only the disciple whom Jesus loved (see 13.23n.) recognizes Jesus (20.8), upon whom Simon Peter totally depends for knowledge (13.25; 18.15–16). Neither nakedness nor working clothes are suitable for the presence of the Lord. 9–10: Fire, fish, and bread provided by Jesus the host. Fish and bread have eucharistic overtones (see 6.11). 11: A hundred fifty-three, either gematria (a numerical code) for Simon’s name or just a very large number. 12–13: Jesus’ service continues the foot washing (13.13–15). 15: Presumably they speak publicly before the others. Love suggests exceptional loyalty; if Peter’s triple denial (18.17,25–27) meant rejection of all relationship with Jesus, now his assertion of love means the opposite. Feed my lambs, Jesus authorizes Peter to be the new shepherd. 17: Third time, paralleling the triple denial. Peter now acknowledges Jesus and professes complete loyalty. 18: Peter, as “noble” shepherd (see 10.11n.), will die in service of Jesus (10.11,15); his boast in 13.37 ironically will come true. 19: Peter’s death will glorify God, as did Jesus’ (13.31–32; 17.1). Although now a shepherd, he is still Jesus’ sheep: Follow me. which he would glorify God.) After this he said to him, “Follow me.”

²⁰ Peter turned and saw the disciple whom Jesus loved following them; he was the one who had reclined next to Jesus at the supper and had said, “Lord, who is it that is going to betray you?” ²¹ When Peter saw him, he said to Jesus, “Lord, what about him?” ²² Jesus said to him, “If it is my will that he remain until I come, what is that to you? Follow me!” ²³ So the rumor spread in the community that this disciple would not die. Yet Jesus did not say to him that he would not die, but, “If it is my will that he remain until I come, what is that to you?” ²⁴ This is the disciple who is testifying to these things and has written them, and we know that his testimony is true. ²⁵ But there are also many other things that Jesus did; if every one of them were written down, I suppose that the world itself could not contain the books that would be written.

²¹.²⁰–²⁵: Rivalry, continued. ²⁰: The disciple’s high status comes from his touching Jesus, learning his secrets, courageously standing with him at the cross, and recognizing him (see 13.24n.). ²²: Simon’s question challenges Jesus about the status of the disciple. His response resembles 2.3–4; it is none of your business. ²³: Jesus’ statement is typically misunderstood. They construe remain as he would not die (see 5.24; 8.51–52; 1 Cor 15.50–52), but Jesus clarifies.

²¹.²⁴–²⁵: Second conclusion to the Gospel. The disciple who is testifying, most likely the beloved disciple (13.25–26; 19.35; 21.7), as opposed to the one who has written, just as Pilate caused the title on the cross to be written by another (19.19). Other things, cf. 20.30.
This page intentionally left blank
THE ACTS OF THE APOSTLES

NAME
The anonymous author of the third Gospel and its sequel, the Acts of the Apostles, supplied no titles for these works. By the end of the second century ce this author was thought to be Luke, and his second volume was referred to as “Acts” in the sense of the “activities” or “deeds” of the apostles. As a descriptive title, however, Acts of the Apostles is a misnomer, since Peter is the only one of the twelve apostles whose deeds and speeches are recounted in detail. Paul, the subject of the second half of the book, refers to himself as “apostle” in his letters but is not presented as such by Luke. Nevertheless, the title does capture a key concept of the book, namely, that the twelve apostles collectively guaranteed the early church’s continuity with Jesus. In Luke’s view they did so because they had been witnesses to everything that happened during Jesus’ ministry, and especially to his resurrection (Acts 1.21–22; 10.39–41).

CANONICAL STATUS
Acts is the fifth book of the New Testament, immediately following the four Gospels. Although modern interpreters now understand Luke-Acts as a unified literary work in two parts, in the canonical arrangement the Gospel of John comes between these two books. Moreover, Luke’s two works never appear in sequence in any ancient manuscript. In its canonical position, Acts connects the four Gospels to the collection of letters that follow, and its narrative focus, first on Peter and then on Paul, whether by accident or design allows it to function as an appropriate transition from the accounts about Jesus to the writings of the apostles.

AUTHORSHIP
Although Acts nowhere identifies its author, by the end of the second century it was possible to argue that Luke was the obvious candidate, and it has become conventional to refer to the author with this traditional name. This identification was based on the occurrence of Luke’s name in Philemon 24 and in two other letters attributed to Paul (Col 4.14; 2 Tim 4.11), and also on passages in Acts in which the author presents himself as a traveling companion of Paul. Irenaeus (ca. 180 ce) pointed to these “we” passages (Acts 16.10–17; 20.5–15; 21.1–18; 27.1–28.16), in which the text shifts from third-person to first-person plural narration, as proof that Luke had been Paul’s inseparable collaborator (Irenaeus, Adv. Haer. 3.14.1). Many modern scholars, however, challenge the assumption that the “we” passages demonstrate personal familiarity with Paul. In fact, one consequence of Luke’s larger narrative goals is that his presentation of Paul is inconsistent with biographical and theological details in Paul’s own letters. For example, Luke’s denial of the formal status of “apostle” to Paul in Acts is almost unimaginable for an actual companion of Paul. In his letters Paul repeatedly claims to be one divinely called to be an apostle (e.g., Rom 1.1; 1 Cor 1.1; Gal 1.1). Luke’s reluctance to use this term for Paul is connected to his view that only the Twelve, who had been present with Jesus throughout his public activity (Acts 1.21–22), were apostles. This disqualifies Paul, even if there is an echo of this contested status within Acts itself (14.4.14).

Although there is reason to doubt the identification of Luke as a companion of Paul, it cannot be denied that Luke admired Paul and viewed his missionary career as decisive for the establishment of Christianity in Asia Minor and Greece. Indeed, Luke’s portrayal suggests that Paul’s fame and influence extended from Jerusalem to Rome. Luke was probably someone from the Pauline mission area who, a generation or so after Paul, addressed issues facing Christians who found themselves in circumstances different from those addressed by Paul himself. Precisely where Luke carried out this task is uncertain. Ancient tradition placed him in Antioch, but his obvious respect for Paul and the Pauline tradition might indicate that he was connected with any of the cities of the Pauline mission around the Aegean Sea.

DATE
According to its opening words, Acts was written sometime after Luke’s Gospel, which scholarly consensus currently dates to 85–95 ce (though some arguments have been advanced for an early second-century date). The considerations on the relation between Luke and Paul just reviewed support this late first-century date. Discrepancies between the undisputed Pauline letters and the narrative about Paul in Acts have long been recognized, and a temporal gap between the two does much to clarify the situation. During the period in which Luke was writing, Paul’s image was undergoing revision (as is shown in the Pastoral Epistles; see 1 and 2 Tim; Titus, p. 2084). For example, Luke does not hesitate to portray Paul as subject to Jewish law; this depiction is consistent with Luke’s emphasis on the continuity of the history of Israel and of the church. Moreover, according to Luke it was not Paul’s theological arguments but the conversion of Cornelius through Peter, ratified by the apostolic council (Acts 10.1–11.18), that established that Gentile Christians were not required to observe the law of Moses in its entirety. Such contradictions arise because Acts preserves an image of Paul from a period some decades after his death. Thus Paul’s role in Acts is dictated not primarily by biographical details but rather by the needs of Luke’s theology as well as the circumstances of his readers.

LITERARY HISTORY

Luke gives no information about the sources upon which the narrative presented in Acts is based. He appears to have relied on a mixture of traditional information uncovered by his own investigation (see Lk 1.3) and his imagination about how the founding events unfolded in Jerusalem and reverberated throughout the Mediterranean world. Like many Greek historians, whom Luke imitates in part, Luke supplemented his narrative with speeches appropriate to significant occasions. These speeches, which amount to nearly one-third of the total text, are Luke’s own literary creations, inserted into the narrative to instruct and please the reader. They also serve to demonstrate the unity of the earliest Christian preaching, even as they present Luke’s own interpretation of the “events” (Lk 1.1) surrounding the emergence of the church. Scholars have attempted to identify traditional material and sources behind Luke’s account, but no consensus has emerged from these efforts. To the extent that Luke did use preexisting sources and traditions, his rewriting of them leaves few clues about what they were. While scholars previously have made much of Luke’s apparent lack of use of Paul’s letters, some now believe that Luke in fact was familiar with at least some of them. It may be that Luke used Paul’s letters in a way most appropriate to his narrative genre: not by explicitly citing them but more generally as an aid in fashioning his picture of Paul and the early church.

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS

The book of Acts tells a dramatic story of the birth and expansion of the church from the time of the ascension of Jesus until the arrival of Paul in Rome. The plot line of Acts begins with Jesus’ ascent to heaven. The narrative first portrays the life and dynamic growth of the primitive community in Jerusalem, energized by the Spirit and led by Peter and the apostles up through the martyrdom of Stephen (chs 1–7). The persecution initiated with Stephen’s death resulted in mission activity outside Jerusalem highlighted by approaches to non-Jews by Philip (ch 8). After narrating the conversion of Saul (ch 9), Luke presents Peter as the individual through whom God established the inclusion of the Gentiles (10.1–11.18). Next, the early missionary tour of Barnabas and Saul/Paul on behalf of Antioch is narrated (11.19–14.28), along with a story about Peter’s miraculous escape from death (ch 12). The center of the book recounts the apostolic council’s vindication of the efforts to free the Gentile mission from the requirements of Jewish ritual law (ch 15). Then Paul’s further missionary travels are depicted (15.36–21.26) in Philippi, Thessalonica, Athens, Corinth, Ephesus, Miletus, Caesarea, and Jerusalem. Finally, the book recounts Paul’s arrest, imprisonment, and trials in Jerusalem and Caesarea, and his transfer to Rome (21.27–28.31), closing with the uplifting image of Paul, while under house arrest, preaching and teaching without hindrance in the capital city of the empire.

INTERPRETATION

Written from the perspective of the late first or perhaps early second century ce, Acts alone among the documents of the earliest Christian period offers a narrative sequel to the accounts of Jesus’ words and deeds found in the Gospels. Its author, identified by tradition as Luke, had already produced the Gospel (Acts 1.1–2). His purpose in writing again was more than a matter of antiquarian interest, although Acts can be compared with Hellenistic historical monographs. The account was intended to give Christians of his day an unshakable confidence in their future through an instructive survey of their past. In carrying out that overarching purpose, Acts addresses social and theological problems brought about by the church’s relationship to its Jewish heritage and its Greco-Roman cultural and political environment. Luke sought to clarify both how the church was faithful to the God of the Jewish scriptures and how Christianity was not incompatible with civic order and morality in the cities of the Roman Empire. Luke devotes half of the narrative to Paul, constructing for Christians of the era after Paul an image of this important figure consistent with the stance taken on Jewish and Roman concerns in the book. Beginning with Irenaeus and especially with Eusebius (d. ca. 339 ce), readers drew on Acts more strictly as a historical account or for information useful for solving later theological problems, no longer observing how in Acts Luke addressed the situation of the original audience. Moreover, such later uses were aided and abetted by the canonical arrangement of Luke's works, which gave no indication that his two books were to be read as a single work in two parts. Thus, for most ancient readers and their modern successors, Acts has been viewed not as a supplement to Luke's Gospel in particular but to the Gospels in general.

GUIDE TO READING

For Luke, who was likely a Gentile Christian (though a minority of scholars contend that he was a Diaspora Jew), that God's promises in scripture had been made to the ancient people of God required the church to stand in continuity with Israel. But since most Jews did not accept Jesus as the Messiah, and since the increasingly Gentile Christian community ceased to observe Jewish ritual, this historical continuity had been called into question. Luke responds to this threat by depicting the earliest Christians as faithful Jews in Jerusalem until persecution pushed them out. Then, by means of multiple elaborations of the Cornelius episode (10.1–48; 11.1–18; 15.7–9) and of the story of Paul's conversion (9.1–19; 22.4–16; 26.9–18), he stresses that the entrance of Gentiles into the church is nothing less than an act of God, and so by definition in continuity with Israel's history. It is significant that Luke's ideal Gentile convert is one who continues to practice Jewish piety (10.2), and that Gentile Christians are urged to adhere to conduct that would permit association with Jews (15.20). Luke's portrayal of Paul's visits to synagogues and his Jewish lifestyle serve to reinforce this maintaining of continuity with Jewish roots.

Apart from any value Acts has as a work of history, it is an important example of early Christian theology. Luke develops the idea of the church as a historical entity with its own distinctive era. Moreover, the earliest church, by being confined to Jerusalem, was set apart from the church of Luke's day. The ideal and unrepeatable structures of the early community resulted from the presence of the apostles and eyewitnesses. Luke's concern to highlight the continuity between Israel and the church is expressed by the continued observance of Jewish practices in the early period, implicitly in contrast to Luke's later situation. The gap between Luke's generation and the earlier time is bridged by the endorsement of the Gentile mission in the deliberations of the apostolic council and the promulgation of the apostolic decree (15.20,29; 21.23). The latter pronouncement may have been of practical value for Luke's community by creating the conditions necessary to allow table fellowship between Jewish and Gentile Christians. Luke's portrayal of Christianity's close ties to Judaism and thus as possessing a venerable heritage (24.14) also bolsters his appeal to Roman officials not to concern themselves with internal religious disputes (25.19,20). Acts portrays influential Romans expressing interest in Christianity (13.12; 19.31), or at least concluding that it posed no threat to the state (18.15; 19.37; 22.29; 25.25; 26.32). In this way Luke demonstrates the nonsubversive nature of the church, possibly in an effort to convince citizen elites of his own day that their membership in the Christian community was not incompatible with their status as Roman citizens. Luke's argument is designed for internal consumption; it was neither intended to persuade non-Christians nor would it have been likely to do so.

Key among the factors promoting continuity within the church itself throughout the narrative are the descriptions of the church's proclamation and teaching about Jesus and the constant presence of the Spirit as the prime mover at the crucial junctures of early Christian history (e.g., 8.29; 10.19; 16.6–7). Yet in Acts it is God who occupies the dominant place. Jesus is described as a man whom God legitimated by mighty works, wonders, and signs (2.22). The view of Jesus' death as atoning occurs only once in an expression taken over from earlier tradition (20.28). The focal point of salvation is the resurrection, which is viewed as the turning point of history. The combination of all of these forces allows Luke to portray the successful expansion of the early Christian mission throughout the Roman Empire under the direction of the Spirit according to the purpose of God.

Christopher R. Matthews
In the first book, Theophilus, I wrote about all that Jesus did and taught from the beginning 2 until the day when he was taken up to heaven, after giving instructions through the Holy Spirit to the apostles whom he had chosen. 3 After his suffering he presented himself alive to them by many convincing proofs, appearing to them during forty days and speaking about the kingdom of God. 4 While staying with them, he ordered them not to leave Jerusalem, but to wait there for the promise of the Father. “This,” he said, “is what you have heard from me; 5 for John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days from now.”

6 So when they had come together, they asked him, “Lord, is this the time when you will restore the kingdom to Israel?” 7 He replied, “It is not for you to know the times or periods that the Father has set by his own authority. 8 But you will receive power when the Holy Spirit has come upon you; and you will be my witnesses in Jerusalem, in all Judea and Samaria, and to the ends of the earth.” 9 When he had said this, as they were watching, he was lifted up, and a cloud took him out of their sight. 10 While he was going and they were gazing up toward heaven, suddenly two men in white robes stood by them. 11 They said, “Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking up toward heaven? This Jesus, who has been taken up from you into heaven, will come in the same way as you saw him go into heaven.”

12 Then they returned to Jerusalem from the mount called Olivet, which is near Jerusalem, a sabbath day’s journey away. 13 When they had entered the city, they went to the room upstairs where they were staying, Peter, and John, and James, and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James son of Alphaeus, and Simon the Zealot, and Judas son of James. 14 All these were constantly devoting themselves to prayer, together with certain women, including Mary the mother of Jesus, as well as his brothers.

--

1.1–14: Introduction and summary. The author (hereafter, “Luke”) summarizes information from the first book, the Gospel of Luke. 1: Theophilus, “dear to God”; perhaps a patron sponsoring publication of the two books (note the respectful address “most excellent” in Lk 1.3), or symbolic for any ideal reader. An opening dedication and reference to previous work is a common pattern in ancient literature. 3: Examples of the many convincing proofs are given in Lk 24.13–53. Appearing to them during forty days, note that Lk 24.50–53 seems to place the ascension on Easter; forty, a symbolic number in the Bible frequently used for important transitions (e.g., Gen 7:12; Ex 24:18; Num 14:23), and here parallels the beginning of Jesus’ ministry (Lk 4.2). Kingdom of God stands for the Christian proclamation (8.12; 19.8; 20.25) and indicates continuity with the teaching of Jesus (Lk 4.43; 8.1; 9.2.11). 4: The Gk word translated staying means “to eat at the same table with” (see note a) and likely refers to Lk 24.30,31,35,41–43. Promise of the Father, that is, the Spirit; see Lk 11.33–24.49. The promise is fulfilled in Acts 2.1–4 (see 2.33). Jerusalem, Luke locates all of the significant founding events in this holy city; the other Gospels report resurrection appearances in Galilee. 5: John the Baptist, Lk 3.1–20. The Holy Spirit is one of the major characters of Acts. 6–11: The ascension, cf. Lk 24.44–51. 6: The apostles suppose that Jesus intends to restore the kingdom to Israel (Lk 22.28–30) and reestablish the dominion once enjoyed by David (Lk 1.32). 7: The nationalistic tenor of the question is deflected. 8: The theme of the apostles as witnesses (Lk 24.48) recurs often (1.22; 2.32; 3.15; 5.32; 10.39,41; 13.31). Jerusalem...Samaria...the ends of the earth, the progress of the mission is given in geographical terms (8.38n.). 9: Elsewhere in the New Testament the ascension is found only at Lk 24.51 (cf. Mk 16.19). 10: Two men in white robes, angels (24.4; Jn 20.12); in Lk 9.30 the two men are Moses and Elijah. There are other parallels between Luke’s Transfiguration account (Lk 9.28–36) and the ascension scene. 11: Will come in the same way, note the.cloud in v. 9; Lk 21.27; cf. Mk 14.62; Dan 7.13. 12: Olivet, the Mount of Olives is just east of Jerusalem. A sabbath day’s journey, about 3,000 ft. (1,000 m.), the distance it was permissible for an observant Jew to walk on the sabbath (Tr. Eruvin) without breaking the command not to leave one’s “place” on the sabbath (Ex 6.29). 13: The same list as in Lk 6.14–16, but in a different order (and without Judas Iscariot). 14: Jesus’ family is incorporated into the church. Brothers, see Mt 13.55; Mk 6.3; James later appears as the leader of the Jerusalem church (12.17; 15.13; 21.18).
15 In those days Peter stood up among the believers (together the crowd numbered about one hundred twenty persons) and said, 16 “Friends, b the scripture had to be fulfilled, which the Holy Spirit through David foretold concerning Judas, who became a guide for those who arrested Jesus— for he was numbered among us and was allotted his share in this ministry.” 18 (Now this man acquired a field with the reward of his wickedness; and falling headlong, c he burst open in the middle and all his bowels gushed out. 19 This became known to all the residents of Jerusalem, so that the field was called in their language Hakeldama, that is, Field of Blood.) 20 ‘For it is written in the book of Psalms, ‘Let his homestead become desolate, and let there be no one to live in it’; and ‘Let another take his position of overseer.’ 21 So one of the men who have accompanied us during all the time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us, beginning from the baptism of John until the day when he was taken up from us—one of these must become a witness with us to his resurrection.” 23 So they proposed two, Joseph called Barsabbas, who was also known as Justus, and Matthias. 24 Then they prayed and said, “Lord, you know everyone’s heart. Show us which one of these two you have chosen to take the place in this ministry and apostleship from which Judas turned aside to go to his own place.” 26 And they cast lots for them, and the lot fell on Matthias; and he was added to the eleven apostles.

2 When the day of Pentecost had come, they were all together in one place. 2 And suddenly from heaven there came a sound like the rush of a violent wind, and it filled the entire house where they were sitting. 3 Divided tongues, as of fire, appeared among them, and a tongue rested on each of them. 4 All of them were filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in other languages, as the Spirit gave them ability. 5 Now there were devout Jews from every nation under heaven living in Jerusalem. 6 And at this sound the crowd gathered and was bewildered, because each one heard them speaking in the native language of each. 7 Amazed and astonished, they asked, “Are not all these who are speaking Galileans? 8 And how is it that we hear, each of us, in our own language this incredible event?” 9 Parthians, Medes, Elamites, 10 residents of Mesopotamia, Judea, Cappadocia, Pontus, Asia, 11 Phrygia, Pamphylia, Egypt, the districts of Libya around Cyrene, residents of Rome, 12 philosophers, murderers, men of every nation living in Jerusalem.

1.15–26: The restoration of the twelve. The selection of Matthias restores the number of apostles to twelve, corresponding to the twelve tribes of Israel. 16: Through David, in the Psalms quoted in v. 20; King David was traditionally viewed as the author of the Psalms. Judas, see Lk 22.3–6,47–48. 17: Us, the apostles. 18: Compare the gruesome death of Herod Agrippa in 12.23. According to Mt 27.5, Judas hanged himself. 19: Their language, Aramaic, a language closely related to Hebrew; the information is clearly for Luke’s Gk readers, not Peter’s Aramaic-speaking audience. 20: Scripture foresaw the situation (Ps 69.25) and dictates a course of action (Ps 109.8). In Acts, citations from the Hebrew Bible are based on the Gk version, the Septuagint. 21: The requirements stipulated here explain why Paul does not qualify as an apostle in Acts. 22: The baptism of John (Lk 3.1–21) marks the beginning of Jesus’ ministry (10.37). To become a witness . . . to Jesus’ resurrection in Acts means to become one of the twelve apostles, who function in a special sense as witnesses (v. 8; 2.32). 23: Nothing else is known about Joseph and Matthias. 24: Know . . . heart, see Lk 9.47; Acts 15.8. 26: Cast lots, allowing the “Lord” (v. 24; Jesus, or perhaps God) to choose. Lots were widely used in the ancient world for religious and social decisions and are often mentioned in the Hebrew Bible (e.g., Lev 16.8; 1 Sam 10.20–21; 1 Chr 25.8).

2.1–41: The day of Pentecost. The Feast of Weeks or Pentecost (Lev 23.15–21), the spring barley harvest, falls fifty days after Passover. In Jewish tradition the law was given on this day. 1–13: The coming of the Holy Spirit. 2: Rush of a violent wind, perhaps an allusion to Gen 1.2 (“while a mighty wind swept over the face of the waters” [alternate version]), though this and other features here are typical of theophanies—manifestations of God (Ex 19.16–19; 1 Kings 19.11; Isa 66.15). 3: John the Baptist had predicted a baptism “with the Holy Spirit and fire” (Lk 3.16; Mt 3.11; cf. Mk 1.8; Jn 1.33). 4: This baptism (1.5) or filling with the Spirit is clearly foundational for Acts but is not referred to elsewhere in the New Testament (but cf. Jn 20.22). 5: Devout Jews from every nation, emphasizing the universal character of the Pentecost event. 6: The other languages (v. 4) are foreign languages, not the “tongues” of 1 Cor 14.1–33. Perhaps the author thinks of a reversal of the confusion of languages at the tower of Babel.
native language? Parthians, Medes, Elamites, and residents of Mesopotamia, Judea and Cappadocia, Pontus and Asia, Phrygia and Pamphylia, Egypt and the parts of Libya belonging to Cyrene, and visitors from Rome, both Jews and proselytes, Cretans and Arabs—in our own languages we hear them speaking about God’s deeds of power.” All were amazed and perplexed, saying to one another, “What does this mean?” But others sneered and said, “They are filled with new wine.”

But Peter, standing with the eleven, raised his voice and addressed them, “Men of Judea and all who live in Jerusalem, let this be known to you, and listen to what I say. Indeed, these are not drunk, as you suppose, for it is only nine o’clock in the morning. No, this is what was spoken through the prophet Joel:

In the last days it will be, God declares, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams. Even upon my slaves, both men and women, in those days I will pour out my Spirit; and they shall prophesy. And I will show portents in the heaven above and signs on the earth below, blood, and fire, and smoky mist. The sun shall be turned to darkness and the moon to blood, before the coming of the Lord’s great and glorious day.
21 ‘Then everyone who calls on the name of the Lord shall be saved.’

22 “You that are Israelites, a listen to what I have to say: Jesus of Nazareth, b a man attested to you by God with deeds of power, wonders, and signs that God did through him among you, as you yourselves know—this man, handed over to you according to the definite plan and foreknowledge of God, you crucified and killed by the hands of those outside the law. 24 But God raised him up, having freed him from death, c because it was impossible for him to be held in its power.

25 For David says concerning him, ‘I saw the Lord always before me, for he is at my right hand so that I will not be shaken; therefore my heart was glad, and my tongue rejoiced; moreover my flesh will live in hope.

28 You have made known to me the ways of life; you will make me full of gladness with your presence.’

29 “Fellow Israelites, d I may say to you confidently of our ancestor David that he both died and was buried, and his tomb is with us to this day. 30 Since he was a prophet, he knew that God had sworn with an oath to him that he would put one of his descendants on his throne. 31 Foreseeing this, David e spoke of the resurrection of the Messiah, f saying, ‘He was not abandoned to Hades, nor did his flesh experience corruption.’

32 This Jesus God raised up, and of that all of us are witnesses. 33 Being therefore exalted at the right hand of God, and having received from the Father the promise of the Holy Spirit, he has poured out this that you both see and hear. 34 For David did not ascend into the heavens, but he himself says, ‘The Lord said to my Lord, “Sit at my right hand, 35 until I make your enemies your footstool.”’

36 Therefore let the entire house of Israel know with certainty that God has made him both Lord and Messiah, g this Jesus whom you crucified.”

37 Now when they heard this, they were cut to the heart and said to Peter and to the other apostles, “Brothers, d what should we do?”

38 Peter said to them, “Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ so that your sins may be forgiven; and you will receive the gift of the Holy Spirit.

39 For the promise is for you, for your children, and for all who are far away, everyone whom the Lord our God calls to him.”

40 And he testified with many other arguments and exhorted them, saying, “Save yourselves from this corrupt generation.” 41 So those who welcomed his message were baptized, and that day about three thousand persons were added. \(^{42}\) They devoted themselves to the apostles’ teaching and fellowship, to the breaking of bread and the prayers.

\(^{43}\) Awe came upon everyone, because many wonders and signs were being done by the apostles. \(^{44}\) All who believed were together and had all things in common; \(^{45}\) they would sell their possessions and goods and distribute the proceeds\(^{4}\) to all, as any had need. \(^{46}\) Day by day, as they spent much time together in the temple, they broke bread at home\(^{b}\) and ate their food with glad and generous\(^{c}\) hearts, \(^{47}\) praising God and having the goodwill of all the people. And day by day the Lord added to their number those who were being saved.

One day Peter and John were going up to the temple at the hour of prayer, at three o’clock in the afternoon. \(^{2}\) And a man lame from birth was being carried in. People would lay him daily at the gate of the temple called the Beautiful Gate so that he could ask for alms from those entering the temple. \(^{3}\) When he saw Peter and John about to go into the temple, he asked them for alms. \(^{4}\) Peter looked intently at him, as did John, and said, “Look at us.” \(^{5}\) And he fixed his attention on them, expecting to receive something from them. \(^{6}\) But Peter said, “I have no silver or gold, but what I have I give you; in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, \(^{d}\) stand up and walk.” \(^{7}\) And he took him by the right hand and raised him up; and immediately his feet and ankles were made strong. \(^{8}\) Jumping up, he stood and began to walk, and he entered the temple with them, walking and leaping and praising God. \(^{9}\) All the people saw him walking and praising God, \(^{10}\) and they recognized him as the one who used to sit and ask for alms at the Beautiful Gate of the temple; and they were filled with wonder and amazement at what had happened to him.

While he clung to Peter and John, all the people ran together to them in the portico called Solomon’s Portico, utterly astonished.

When Peter saw it, he addressed the people, “You Israelites,\(^{e}\) why do you wonder at this, or why do you stare at us, as though by our own power or piety we had made him walk? \(^{13}\) The God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, the God of our ancestors has glorified his servant Jesus, whom you handed over and rejected in the presence of Pilate, though he had decided to release him.

---

\(^{42}\) The breaking of bread (v. 46) describes both a common Christian meal (e.g., 20.7,11) and the Lord’s Supper (27.33–38; cf. 1 Cor 11.17–34).

\(^{43}\) Luke portrays life in the early Jerusalem community as a golden age.

\(^{44}\) By performing wonders and signs the apostles fulfill Joel’s prophecy (2.19) and imitate Jesus (2.22).

\(^{45}\) The ideal use of possessions and money illustrates the proper response to the preaching of Jesus on this subject in the Gospel (see Lk 6.20; 12.13–21,33–34; 14.12–24,33). For community of goods in the Dead Sea scrolls, see 1QS 1.11–12; cf. Josephus, J.W. 2.122 on the Essenes.

\(^{46}\) Members of the growing Christian group are simultaneously devout Jews who remain close to the temple.

---

3.1–10: Peter’s healing miracle in the Temple. An illustration of the apostles’ “wonders and signs” (2.43). 1: The apostles center their activity in the temple (see 2.46) and so imitate Jesus’ practice in Jerusalem (note the distinctive portrayal in Lk 20–21). John appears here and elsewhere with Peter but with no individualized role. Three o’clock in the afternoon, when sacrifice was offered with prayer (Ex 29.39; Lev 6.20; Josephus, Ant. 14.65). 2: The Beautiful Gate, perhaps the Nicanor Gate of Corinthian bronze on the east side of the Temple; see Josephus, J.W. 5.201.

6: The name is a key concept in Acts (v. 16; 2.21,38), as 4.7–12 will underline (see also 4.17,18,30; 10.43; 19.13).

3.11–26: Peter’s explanation. In a second sermon Peter links Jesus with the patriarchs and Moses. 11: Solomon’s Portico, a colonnade located by Josephus (J.W. 5.185; Ant. 20.221) on the east side of the Temple. 13: The word servant recalls Isa 52.13 and the suffering servant of the Lord (4.27; 8.30–35). Pilate, Pontius Pilate, the Roman governor of Judea, who sentenced Jesus to death (Lk 3.1; 23.24). Roman responsibility for the death of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, stand up and walk.” And he took him by the right hand and raised him up; and immediately his feet and ankles were made strong. Jumping up, he stood and began to walk, and he entered the temple with them, walking and leaping and praising God. All the people saw him walking and praising God, and they recognized him as the one who used to sit and ask for alms at the Beautiful Gate of the temple; and they were filled with wonder and amazement at what had happened to him. While he clung to Peter and John, all the people ran together to them in the portico called Solomon’s Portico, utterly astonished.

When Peter saw it, he addressed the people, “You Israelites, why do you wonder at this, or why do you stare at us, as though by our own power or piety we had made him walk? The God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob, the God of our ancestors has glorified his servant Jesus, whom you handed over and rejected in the presence of Pilate, though he had decided to release him.
14 But you rejected the Holy and Righteous One and asked to have a murderer given to you, 15 and you killed the Author of life, whom God raised from the dead. To this we are witnesses. 16 And by faith in his name, his name itself has made this man strong, whom you see and know; and the faith that is through Jesus has given him this perfect health in the presence of all of you.

17 “And now, friends, I know that you acted in ignorance, as did also your rulers. 18 In this way God fulfilled what he had foretold through all the prophets, that his Messiah would suffer. 19 Repent therefore, and turn to God so that your sins may be wiped out, 20 so that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord, and that he may send the Messiah appointed for you, that is, Jesus, 21 who must remain in heaven until the time of universal restoration that God announced long ago through his holy prophets. 22 Moses said, ‘The Lord your God will raise up for you from your own people a prophet like me. You must listen to whatever he tells you. 23 And it will be that everyone who does not listen to that prophet will be utterly rooted out of the people.’ 24 And all the prophets, as many as have spoken, from Samuel and those after him, also predicted these days. 25 You are the descendants of the prophets and of the covenant that God gave to your ancestors, saying to Abraham, ‘And in your descendants all the families of the earth shall be blessed.’ 26 When God raised up his servant, 2 he sent him first to you, to bless you by turning each of you from your wicked ways.”

4 While Peter and John 1 were speaking to the people, the priests, the captain of the temple, and the Sadducees came to them, 2 much annoyed because they were teaching the people and proclaiming that in Jesus there is the resurrection of the dead. 3 So they arrested them and put them in custody until the next day, for it was already evening. 4 But many of those who heard the word believed; and they numbered about five thousand.

5 The next day their rulers, elders, and scribes assembled in Jerusalem, 6 with Annas the high priest, Caiaphas, John, 9 and Alexander, and all who were of the high-priestly family. 7 When they had made the prisoners stand in their midst, they inquired, “By what power or by what name did you do this?”

8 Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, said to them, “Rulers of the people and elders, if we are questioned today because of a good deed done to someone who was sick and are asked how this man has been healed, 10 let it be known to all of you, and to all the people of Israel, that this man is standing before you a Gk him b Gk brothers c Or his Christ d Or the Christ e Or child f Gk While they g Other ancient authorities read Jonathan h Gk them

Jesus is downplayed here as in Lk 23.4–16, 20–25; contrast Acts 4.27. 14: A murderer, Barabbas (Lk 23.18–19). 15: Author, the word can mean “pioneer” or “founder” (of a new city); in 5.31 it is “leader” (cf. Heb 2.10; 12.2). The testimony of the witnesses is again emphasized (1.22n.). 16: Name, see v. 6n. 17: You acted in ignorance, mitigating the guilt emphasized in vv. 13–15 (see 4.10). Compare 14.16 and 17.30. 18: The necessity that the Messiah would suffer was foretold, see Lk 24.25–27, 46; Acts 17.2–3; 26.22–23. Recall the “plan” of 2.23. 19: Lk 3.3. 22: 7.37. Jesus is successor of Moses (Deut 18.15) as well as David. 23: Deut 18.19; Lev 23.29. 24: These days, i.e., the last days (2.17). 25: Gen 12.3; 18.18; 22.18. 26: First to you, implying the later mission to the Gentiles.

4.1–22: Arrest and release of Peter and John. The first of many incidents in which the apostles defend the faith before the authorities. 1–2: Captain of the temple, the officer in charge of the Temple police. Sadducees, a circle composed of priests and lay nobility who according to Luke denied the resurrection of the dead (23.6–8). 3: It was not legal to hold a judicial inquiry at night. 4: Five thousand, the rapid growth of the community of believers continues (see 2.41). This is a recurrent theme in Acts, typically in the face of opposition. 5–6: Perhaps the rulers are priests; with the elders and scribes they made up the Sanhedrin, or council (v. 15), of which the high priest was head. Annas held this office from 6–14 ce; Caiaphas was his son-in-law (Jn 18.13) and became high priest in 18 ce (Lk 3.2); John may be Jonathan, the son of Annas who succeeded Caiaphas in 37 ce. 8–12: A condensed version of the speeches in chs 2, 3, 10, and 13. The scene in v. 8 represents the fulfillment of Jesus’ in good health by the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, whom you crucified, whom God raised from the dead. "This Jesus is ‘the stone that was rejected by you, the builders; it has become the cornerstone.’

There is salvation in no one else, for there is no other name under heaven given among mortals by which we must be saved.”

Now when they saw the boldness of Peter and John and realized that they were uneducated and ordinary men, they were amazed and recognized them as companions of Jesus. When they saw the man who had been cured standing beside them, they had nothing to say in opposition. So they ordered them to leave the council while they discussed the matter with one another. They said, “What will we do with them? For it is obvious to all who live in Jerusalem that a notable sign has been done through them; we cannot deny it. But to keep it from spreading further among the people, let us warn them to speak no more in this name.”

So they called them and ordered them not to speak or teach at all in the name of Jesus. But Peter and John answered them, “Whether it is right in God’s sight to listen to you rather than to God, you must judge; for we cannot keep from speaking about what we have seen and heard.” After threatening them again, they let them go, finding no way to punish them because of the people, for all of them praised God for what had happened.

For the man on whom this sign of healing had been performed was more than forty years old.

After they were released, they went to their friends and reported what the chief priests and the elders had said to them.

When they heard it, they raised their voices together to God and said, “Sovereign Lord, who made the heaven and the earth, the sea, and everything in them, it is you who said by the Holy Spirit through our ancestor David, your servant: ‘Why did the Gentiles rage, and the peoples imagine vain things? The kings of the earth took their stand, and the rulers have gathered together against the Lord and against his Messiah.’

For in this city, in fact, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles and the peoples of Israel, gathered together against your holy servant Jesus, whom you anointed, to do whatever your hand and your plan had predestined to take place. And now, Lord, look at their threats, and grant to your servants to speak your word with all boldness, while you stretch out your hand to heal, and signs and wonders are performed through the name of your holy servant Jesus.”

When they had prayed, the place in which they were gathered together was shaken; and they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and spoke the word of God with boldness.

Now the whole group of those who believed were of one heart and soul, and no one claimed private ownership of any possessions, but everything they owned was held in common. With great power the apostles promise in Lk 12.12; compare the prediction of Lk 21.15. 11: Ps 118.22 was popular in Christian arguments (Mt 21.42; Mk 12.10; Lk 20.17; 1 Pet 2.7). 12: No other name underlines the answer (v. 10) to the question posed (v. 7) about the name; see 3.6,16; 4.17–18,30. 13: Boldness, this word and its cognates are used often in Acts and connote frank and courageous speech (e.g., 13.46; 18.26). Uneducated and ordinary men, lacking legal training. 19: The reply here and in 5.29 is reminiscent of Socrates’ famous words (Plato, Apology 29d).

4.23–31: Prayer of the community. 24: Ps 146.6. 25–26: Ps 2.1–2. 27: Servant, see 3.13n.; the same term is used of David in v. 25. Herod, Herod Antipas, Lk 3.1n.; 23.12. Pontius Pilate, see 3.13n. 28: See 2.23n.; 3.18. 29: Look at their threats, a prayer to be shielded from harm. 31: The place . . . was shaken, meaning that the prayer was heard (cf. 16.25–26).

4.32–5.11: The sharing of goods. 4.32–35: The ideal handling of possessions in the early Jerusalem commu-
gave their testimony to the resurrection of the Lord Jesus, and great grace was upon them all. 34 There was not a needy person among them, for as many as owned lands or houses sold them and brought the proceeds of what was sold. 35 They laid it at the apostles’ feet, and it was distributed to each as any had need. 36 There was a Levite, a native of Cyprus, Joseph, to whom the apostles gave the name Barnabas (which means “son of encouragement”). 37 He sold a field that belonged to him, then brought the money, and laid it at the apostles’ feet.

5 But a man named Ananias, with the consent of his wife Sapphira, sold a piece of property; 2 with his wife’s knowledge, he kept back some of the proceeds, and brought only a part and laid it at the apostles’ feet. 3 “Ananias,” Peter asked, “why has Satan filled your heart to lie to the Holy Spirit and to keep back part of the proceeds of the land? 4 While it remained unsold, did it not remain your own? And after it was sold, were not the proceeds at your disposal? How is it that you have contrived this deed in your heart? You did not lie to us 5 but to God!” 6 Now when Ananias heard these words, he fell down and died. And great fear seized all who heard of it. 6 The young men came and wrapped up his body, b then carried him out and buried him.

7 After an interval of about three hours his wife came in, not knowing what had happened. 8 Peter said to her, “Tell me whether you and your husband sold the land for such and such a price.” And she said, “Yes, that was the price.” 9 Then Peter said to her, “How is it that you have agreed together to put the Spirit of the Lord to the test? Look, the feet of those who have buried your husband are at the door, and they will carry you out.” 10 Immediately she fell down at his feet and died. When the young men came in they found her dead, so they carried her out and buried her beside her husband. 11 And great fear seized the whole church and all who heard of these things.

12 Now many signs and wonders were done among the people through the apostles. And they were all together in Solomon’s Portico. 13 None of the rest dared to join them, but the people held them in high esteem. 14 Yet more than ever believers were added to the Lord, great numbers of both men and women, 15 so that they even carried out the sick into the streets, and laid them on cots and mats, in order that Peter’s shadow might fall on some of them as he came by. 16 A great number of people would also gather from the towns around Jerusalem, bringing the sick and those tormented by unclean spirits, and they were all cured.

17 Then the high priest took action; he and all who were with him (that is, the sect of the Sadducees), being filled with jealousy, 18 arrested the apostles and put them in the public prison. 19 But during the night an angel of the Lord opened the prison doors, brought them out, and said, 20 “Go, stand in the temple and tell the people the whole message about this life.” 21 When they heard this, they entered the temple at daybreak and went on with their teaching.

When the high priest and those with him arrived, they called together the council and a Gk to men

---

b Meaning of Gk uncertain
we found no one inside.” But when the temple police went there, they did not find them in the prison; so they returned and reported, “We found the prison securely locked and the guards standing at the doors, but when we opened them, we found no one inside.” Now when the captain of the temple and the chief priests heard these words, they were perplexed about them, wondering what might be going on. Then someone arrived and announced, “Look, the men whom you put in prison are standing in the temple and teaching the people!” Then the captain went with the temple police and brought them, but without violence, for they were afraid of being stoned by the people.

When they had brought them, they had them stand before the council. The high priest questioned them, saying, “We gave you strict orders not to teach in this name, yet here you have filled Jerusalem with your teaching and you are determined to bring this man’s blood on us.” But Peter and the apostles answered, “We must obey God rather than any human authority.” The God of our ancestors raised up Jesus, whom you had killed by hanging him on a tree. God exalted him at his right hand as Leader and Savior that he might give repentance to Israel and forgiveness of sins. And we are witnesses to these things, and so is the Holy Spirit whom God has given to those who obey him.”

When they heard this, they were enraged and wanted to kill them. But a Pharisee in the council named Gamaliel, a teacher of the law, respected by all the people, stood up and ordered the men to be put outside for a short time. Then he said to them, “Fellow Israelites, consider carefully what you propose to do to these men. For some time ago Theudas rose up, claiming to be somebody, and a number of men, about four hundred, joined him; but he was killed, and all who followed him were dispersed and disappeared. After him Judas the Galilean rose up at the time of the census and got people to follow him; he also perished, and all who followed him were scattered. So in the present case, I tell you, keep away from these men and let them alone; because if this plan or this undertaking is of human origin, it will fail; but if it is of God, you will not be able to overthrow them—in that case you may even be found fighting against God!”

They were convinced by him, and when they had called in the apostles, they had them flogged. Then they ordered them not to speak in the name of Jesus, and let them go. As they left the council, they rejoiced that they were considered worthy to suffer dishonor for the sake of the name. And every day in the temple and at home they did not cease to teach and proclaim Jesus as the Messiah.

Now during those days, when the disciples were increasing in number, the Hellenists complained against the Hebrews because their widows were being neglected in the daily distribution of food. And the twelve called together the whole community of the disciples and said, “It is not right that we should neglect the word of God in order to neglect the care of the needy.”
to wait on tables. 3 Therefore, friends, select from among yourselves seven men of good standing, full of the Spirit and of wisdom, whom we may appoint to this task, while we, for our part, will devote ourselves to prayer and to serving the word.” 4 What they said pleased the whole community, and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and the Holy Spirit, together with Philip, Prochorus, Nicanor, Timon, Parmenas, and Nicolaus, a proselyte of Antioch. 5 They had these men stand before the apostles, who prayed and laid their hands on them.

7 The word of God continued to spread; the number of the disciples increased greatly in Jerusalem, and a great many of the priests became obedient to the faith.

8 Stephen, full of grace and power, did great wonders and signs among the people. 9 Then some of those who belonged to the synagogue of the Freedmen (as it was called), Cyrenians, Alexandrians, and others of those from Cilicia and Asia, stood up and argued with Stephen. 10 But they could not withstand the wisdom and the Spirit with which he spoke. 11 Then they secretly instigated some men to say, “We have heard him speak blasphemous words against Moses and God.” 12 They stirred up the people as well as the elders and the scribes; then they suddenly confronted him, seized him, and brought him before the council.

13 They set up false witnesses who said, “This man never stops saying things against this holy place and the law;” 14 for we have heard him say that this Jesus of Nazareth will destroy this place and will change the customs that Moses handed on to us.” 15 And all who sat in the council looked intently at him, and they saw that his face was like the face of an angel.

7 Then the high priest asked him, “Are these things so?” 2 And Stephen replied: “Brothers and fathers, listen to me. The God of glory appeared to our ancestor Abraham when he was in Mesopotamia, before he lived in Haran, and said to him, ‘Leave your country and your relatives and go to the land that I will show you.’ 4 Then he left the country of the Chaldeans and settled in Haran. After his father died, God had him move from there to this country in which you are now living. 5 He did not give him any of it as a heritage, not even a foot’s length, but promised to give it to him as his possession and to his descendants after him, even though he had no child. 6 And God spoke in these terms, that his descendants would be resident aliens in a country belonging to others, who would enslave them and mistreat them during four hundred years. 7 ‘But I will judge the nation that they serve,’ said God, ‘and after that they shall come out and worship me in this place.’ 8 Then he gave him the covenant of circumcision. And so Abraham became the father of Christians.

a Or keep accounts
b Gk brothers
c Or spirit
d Gk the Nazorean
e Gk Men, brothers
f Gk he

ACTS 7

6.8–8.1a: Preaching and martyrdom of Stephen. Elements of Stephen’s trial and death reflect the passion of Jesus. 6.8: Stephen does wonders and signs like the apostles (2.43; 4.30; 5.12). 9: Diaspora Jews argued with Stephen. Freedmen, former slaves, either Jews or proselytes; an inscription found in Jerusalem possibly refers to this synagogue. Cyrenians, from Cyrene in northern Africa (see 11.20n.). Cilicia, the southeastern portion of Asia Minor where Paul was from (21.39; 22.3; 23.34). Asia, the Roman province of that name in western Asia Minor. 10: A fulfillment of Jesus’ prediction in Lk 21.15. 13: False witnesses, cf. Mk 14.55–57. 14: Jesus . . . will destroy this place, Mk 14.58; Lk 21.6; Jn 2.19. The change in customs reported by Mk 7.15,19 is not recorded in Lk. These charges had not been made in the earlier examinations of the apostles. 7.2–50: Stephen’s speech contains some thirty citations from the Greek version of the Hebrew Bible (the Septuagint), which was the Bible of the early Christians. Accordingly, Stephen makes reference to Abraham (v. 2), Joseph (v. 9), Moses (v. 20), and others (cf. 13.16–24; Heb 11.4–40). 3: Gen 12.1; according to Gen 11.31 Abraham was already in Haran (against v. 2). 5: Gen 12.7; 13.15;
Isaac and circumcised him on the eighth day; and Isaac became the father of Jacob, and Jacob of the twelve patriarchs.

9 “The patriarchs, jealous of Joseph, sold him into Egypt; but God was with him, 10 and rescued him from all his afflictions, and enabled him to win favor and to show wisdom when he stood before Pharaoh, king of Egypt, who appointed him ruler over Egypt and over all his household. 11 Now there came a famine throughout Egypt and Canaan, and great suffering, and our ancestors could find no food. 12 But when Jacob heard that there was grain in Egypt, he sent our ancestors there on their first visit. 13 On the second visit Joseph made himself known to his brothers, and Joseph’s family became known to Pharaoh. 14 Then Joseph sent and invited his father Jacob and all his relatives to come to him, seventy-five in all; 15 so Jacob went down to Egypt. He himself died there as well as our ancestors, 16 and their bodies were brought back to Shechem and laid in the tomb that Abraham bought for a sum of silver from the sons of Hamor in Shechem.

17 But as the time drew near for the fulfillment of the promise that God had made to Abraham, our people in Egypt increased and multiplied 18 until another king who had not known Joseph ruled over Egypt. 19 He dealt craftily with our race and forced our ancestors to abandon their infants so that they would die. 20 At this time Moses was born, and he was beautiful before God. For three months he was brought up in his father’s house; 21 and when he was abandoned, Pharaoh’s daughter adopted him and brought him up as her own son. 22 So Moses was instructed in all the wisdom of the Egyptians and was powerful in his words and deeds.

23 “When he was forty years old, it came into his heart to visit his relatives, the Israelites. 24 When he saw one of them being wronged, he defended the oppressed man and avenged him by striking down the Egyptian. 25 He supposed that his kinsfolk would understand that God through him was rescuing them, but they did not understand. 26 The next day he came to some of them as they were quarreling and tried to reconcile them, saying, ‘Men, you are brothers; why do you wrong each other?’ 27 But the man who was wronging his neighbor pushed Moses aside, saying, ‘Who made you a ruler and a judge over us?’ 28 Do you want to kill me as you killed the Egyptian yesterday?’ 29 When he heard this, Moses fled and became a resident alien in the land of Midian. There he became the father of two sons.

30 “Now when forty years had passed, an angel appeared to him in the wilderness of Mount Sinai, in the flame of a burning bush. 31 When Moses saw it, he was amazed at the sight; and as he approached to look, there came the voice of the Lord: 32 ‘I am the God of your ancestors, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.’ Moses began to tremble and did not dare to look. 33 Then the Lord said to him, ‘Take off the sandals from your feet, for the place where you are standing is holy ground. 34 I have surely seen the mistreatment of my people who are in Egypt and have heard their groaning, and I have come down to rescue them. Come now, I will send you to Egypt.’

35 “It was this Moses whom they rejected when they said, ‘Who made you a ruler and a judge?’ and whom God now sent as both ruler and liberator through the angel who appeared to him in the bush. 36 He led them out, having performed wonders and signs in Egypt, at the Red Sea, and in the wilderness for forty years. 37 This is the Moses who said to the Israelites, ‘God will raise up a prophet for you from your own people as he raised me up.’ 38 He is the one who was in the

17.8; 48.4. 6–7: Four hundred years, see Gen 15.13–14; cf. Ex 12.40. 8: Gen 17.10–13. 9: Gen 37. 10–16: Gen 39–50. 14: Seventy-five, according to the Septuagint of Gen 46.27; Ex 1.5. 16: Shechem, but according to Gen 50.13 Jacob was buried at Hebron. Abraham, but according to Gen 33.19 and Josh 24.32 it was Jacob who bought the tomb at Shechem. 17–19: Ex 1–2. 20–22: Ex 2.1–10. 20: The importance of Moses is stressed by the amount of space devoted to him in the following verses. 23–29: Ex 2.11–22. 29: Midian, northwestern Arabia, on the east coast of the Gulf of Aqaba (Eilat). 30–34: Ex 3.1–10. 30: In Ex 3.1 the mountain is Horeb, not Sinai. 35: Ex 2.14. 37: A congregation in the wilderness with the angel who spoke to him at Mount Sinai, and with our ancestors; and he received living oracles to give to us. ⁴⁹ Our ancestors were unwilling to obey him; instead, they pushed him aside, and in their hearts they turned back to Egypt, ⁴⁰ saying to Aaron, ‘Make gods for us who will lead the way for us; as for this Moses who led us out from the land of Egypt, we do not know what has happened to him.’ ⁴¹ At that time they made a calf, offered a sacrifice to the idol, and reveled in the works of their hands. ⁴² But God turned away from them and handed them over to worship the host of heaven, as it is written in the book of the prophets:

‘Did you offer to me slain victims and sacrifices forty years in the wilderness, O house of Israel?

⁴³ No; you took along the tent of Moloch, and the star of your god Rephan, the images that you made to worship; so I will remove you beyond Babylon.’

⁴⁴ ‘Our ancestors had the tent of testimony in the wilderness, as God directed when he spoke to Moses, ordering him to make it according to the pattern he had seen. ⁴⁵ Our ancestors in turn brought it in with Joshua when they dispossessed the nations that God drove out before our ancestors. And it was there until the time of David, ⁴⁶ who found favor with God and asked that he might find a dwelling place for the house of Jacob. ⁴⁷ But it was Solomon who built a house for him.

⁴⁸ Yet the Most High does not dwell in houses made with human hands; ⁴⁹ as the prophet says, Heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool. What kind of house will you build for me, says the Lord, or what is the place of my rest?

⁵⁰ Did not my hand make all these things?’

⁵¹ ‘You stiff-necked people, uncircumcised in heart and ears, you are forever opposing the Holy Spirit, just as your ancestors used to do. ⁵² Which of the prophets did your ancestors not persecute? They killed those who foretold the coming of the Righteous One, and now you have become his betrayers and murderers. ⁵³ You are the ones that received the law as ordained by angels, and yet you have not kept it.’

⁵⁴ When they heard these things, they became enraged and ground their teeth at Stephen. ⁵⁵ But filled with the Holy Spirit, he gazed into heaven and saw the glory of God and Jesus standing at the right hand of God. ⁵⁶ ‘Look,’ he said, “I see the heavens opened and the Son of Man standing at the right hand of God!’ ⁵⁷ But they covered their ears, and with a loud shout all rushed together against him. ⁵⁸ Then they dragged him out of the city and began to stone him; and the witnesses laid their coats at the feet of a young man named Saul. ⁵⁹ While they were stoning Stephen, he prayed, “Lord Jesus, receive my spirit.” ⁶⁰ Then he knelt down and cried out in a loud voice, “Lord, A prophet, Deut 18.15; see 3.22. 38: In the Hebrew Bible God, not an angel, speaks to Moses and gives him the law (living oracles); cf. v. 53. 40: Ex 32.1. 42–43: Am 5.25–27 is quoted to support the charge of idolatry raised in vv. 40–42. The book of the (twelve minor) prophets (Hosea through Malachi) was thought of as a unit. 42: The host of heaven, the stars (2 Kings 17.16), which are associated with various supernatural beings. 43: Moloch, a deity to whom children were offered as sacrifices (Jer 32.35). Rephan, an astral deity (Saturn). 44: The tent of testimony, the tabernacle (Ex 27.21), is brought forward in the following verses as preferable to the Temple; compare the “true tent” of Heb 8.1–5. 45: Josh 3.7–4.18. 46: Ps 132.5; cf. 2 Sam 7.1–2. 47: 1 Kings 6. 48: Since made with human hands is language associated with idolatry in the Hebrew Bible (see Ps 115.4; Isa 2.8), its application to the Temple would be offensive to a Jewish audience. Cf. 17.24–25. 49–50: Isa 66.1–2. 51: Stiff-necked people, uncircumcised in heart and ears, see Ex 33.3,5; Lev 26.41; Jer 9.26; cf. Rom 2.29. 52: The question is hyperbolic but recalls Lk 11.47–48. 53: The law, being ordained by angels (cf. v. 38) is considered valid (Heb 2.2); but Paul used this Jewish tradition to argue that the law is secondary (Gal 3.19). 54–58a: Here Stephen is described as the victim of a lynching. 55–56: Lk 22.69. Son of Man in the Gospels often denotes Jesus as the glorified heavenly judge; Chs 8–11: Sites of early Christian missionary activities.

do not hold this sin against them.” When he had said this, he died. 13 And Saul approved of their killing him.

That day a severe persecution began against the church in Jerusalem, and all except the apostles were scattered throughout the countryside of Judea and Samaria. 2 Devout men buried Stephen and made loud lamentation over him. 3 But Saul was ravaging the church by entering house after house; dragging off both men and women, he committed them to prison.

₄ Now those who were scattered went from place to place, proclaiming the word. 5 Philip went down to the city of Samaria and proclaimed the Messiah to them. 6 The crowds with one accord listened eagerly to what was said by Philip, hearing and seeing the signs that he did, 7 for unclean spirits, crying with loud shrieks, came out of many who were possessed; and many others who were paralyzed or lame were cured. ₈ So there was great joy in that city.

₉ Now a certain man named Simon had previously practiced magic in the city and amazed the people of Samaria, saying that he was someone great. 10 All of them, from the least to the greatest, listened to him eagerly, saying, “This man is the power of God that is called Great.” ¹¹ And they listened eagerly to him because for a long time he had amazed them with his magic. ¹² But when they believed Philip, who was proclaiming the good news about the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women. ¹₃ Even Simon himself believed. After being baptized, he stayed constantly with Philip and was amazed when he saw the signs and great miracles that took place.

₁₄ Now when the apostles at Jerusalem heard that Samaria had accepted the word of God, they sent Peter and John to them. ¹₅ The two went down and prayed for them that they might receive the Holy Spirit ¹₆ (for as yet the Spirit had not come upon any of them; they had only been baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus). ¹₇ Then Peter and John laid their hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit. ¹₈ Now when Simon saw that the Spirit was given through the laying on of the apostles’ hands, he offered them money, ¹₉ saying, “Give me also this power so that anyone on whom I lay my hands may receive the Holy Spirit.” ²₀ But Peter said to him, “May your silver perish with you, because you thought you could obtain God’s gift with money! ²¹ You have no part or share in this, for your heart is not right before God. ²² Repent therefore of this wickedness of yours, and pray to the Lord that, if possible, the intent of your heart may be forgiven you. ²³ For I see that you are in the gall of bitterness and the chains of wickedness.” ²⁴ Simon answered, “Pray for me elsewhere in the New Testament the term is found only here and in Rev 1.13; 14.14. ⁵₈b–8.1: The presence of witnesses, who were legally required to cast the first stones at the offender (Deut 17.7), suggests not a lynching but a judicial execution. ⁵₈b: Saul, Luke’s dramatic introduction of Paul. His presence may have been suggested by 1 Cor 15.9 and Gal 1.13 but is not confirmed by these references. ⁵₉: Lk 23.46. ⁶₀: See Lk 23.34n.

8.1b–40: Spread of the gospel to Samaria and beyond. Christianity now reaches non-Jewish regions. 1: Except the apostles, although unrealistic, it is important for Luke that the apostles remain in Jerusalem. Samaria, between Galilee and the north and Judea to the south, was inhabited by remnants of the northern tribes who worshiped the Lord God and used the Pentateuch. Jews despised them (2 Kings 17.24–41; cf. Mt 10.5). 3: Saul was ravaging the church, 9.1–2; cf. Gal 1.13. 4: Ironically, severe persecution leads to proclaiming the word in new places. 5: Philip, one of the seven mentioned in 6.5, is now active as an evangelist (21.8). All second-century references to this individual consider him to be one of the twelve apostles, but according to the idealized account of Acts the apostles remain in Jerusalem during this period. 9: Acts displays great interest in distinguishing between magic and Christian signs (see 13.6–12; 19.13–20). 12: Philip breaks religious barriers and fulfills the expectations about Samaritans generated by Luke’s Gospel (Lk 10.30–37; 17.11–19) and the promise of 1.8. 14: Jerusalem is represented as coordinating the ever-growing church (see 11.1,22). 16–17: Spirit had not come, see 2.38. Laid . . . hands, see 6.6n. 18–24: The medieval term “simony” (buying church offices) is derived from to the Lord, that nothing of what you a have said may happen to me.”

25 Now after Peter and John b had testified and spoken the word of the Lord, they returned to Jerusalem, proclaiming the good news to many villages of the Samaritans.

26 Then an angel of the Lord said to Philip, “Get up and go toward the south c to the road that goes down from Jerusalem to Gaza.” (This is a wilderness road.) 27 So he got up and went. Now there was an Ethiopian eunuch, a court official of the Candace, queen of the Ethiopians, in charge of her entire treasury. He had come to Jerusalem to worship 28 and was returning home; seated in his chariot, he was reading the prophet Isaiah. 29 Then the Spirit said to Philip, “Go over to this chariot and join it.” 30 So Philip ran up to it and heard him reading the prophet Isaiah. He asked, “Do you understand what you are reading?” 31 He replied, “How can I, unless someone guides me?” And he invited Philip to get in and sit beside him. 32 Now the passage of the scripture that he was reading was this: “Like a sheep he was led to the slaughter, and like a lamb silent before its shearer, so he does not open his mouth. 33 In his humiliation justice was denied him. Who can describe his generation? For his life is taken away from the earth.”

34 The eunuch asked Philip, “About whom, may I ask you, does the prophet say this, about himself or about someone else?” 35 Then Philip began to speak, and starting with this scripture, he proclaimed to him the good news about Jesus. 36 As they were going along the road, they came to some water; and the eunuch said, “Look, here is water! What is to prevent me from being baptized?” 37 He commanded the chariot to stop, and both of them, Philip and the eunuch, went down into the water, and Philip b baptized him. 38 When they came up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord snatched Philip away; the eunuch saw him no more, and went on his way rejoicing. 39 But Philip found himself at Azotus, and as he was passing through the region, he proclaimed the good news to all the towns until he came to Caesarea.

Meanwhile Saul, still breathing threats and murder against the disciples of the Lord, went to the high priest c and asked him for letters to the synagogues at Damascus, so that if he found any who belonged to the Way, men or women, he might bring them bound to Jerusalem. 4 Now as he was going along and approaching Damascus, suddenly a light from heaven flashed around him. 4 He fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to him, “Saul, Saul, why do you persecute me?”

a The Greek word for you and the verb pray are plural b Gk after they c Or go at noon
d Other ancient authorities add all or most of verse 37, And Philip said, “If you believe with all your heart, you may.” And he replied, “I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.”
e Gk he

this account. 27: An Ethiopian, see Ps 68.31; Zeph 3.10. The Candace was the title of the queen of the Ethiopians. Although he had come to Jerusalem to worship, a eunuch could not have become a proselyte (Deut 23.1). The passage may envisage fulfillment of Isa 56.3–5. 28: He was reading aloud to himself (as was customary in antiquity); hence Philip heard him (v. 30). 32–33: Isa 53.7–8; see Acts 3.13n. 35: Cf. Lk 24.27, 38: As in the case of the Samaritans, the baptism of an Ethiopian eunuch breaks social and ritual barriers (v. 12n.). Since in the ancient Mediterranean world Ethiopia was often considered to be located at the “ends of the earth” (e.g., Homer, Od. 1.22–23; Herodotus 3.25), this conversion fulfills the prediction of 1.8. 39: The Spirit of the Lord snatched Philip away, cf. 1 Kings 18.12; 2 Kings 2.16. 40: Philip’s evangelizing journey proceeds along the Mediterranean coast from Gaza (v. 26) through Azotus (ancient Ashdod, ca. 23 mi [37 km] north-northeast of Gaza) to Caesarea (ca. 55 mi [90 km] farther north). Caesarea was an important seaport and the headquarters of the Roman governor; see 10.1; 21.8.
do you persecute me?” He asked, “Who are you, Lord?” The reply came, “I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting. But get up and enter the city, and you will be told what you are to do.” The men who were traveling with him stood speechless because they heard the voice but saw no one. Saul got up from the ground, and though his eyes were open, he could see nothing; so they led him by the hand and brought him into Damascus. For three days he was without sight, and neither ate nor drank.

Now there was a disciple in Damascus named Ananias. The Lord said to him in a vision, “Ananias.” He answered, “Here I am, Lord.” The Lord said to him, “Get up and go to the street called Straight, and at the house of Judas look for a man of Tarsus named Saul. At this moment he is praying, and he has seen in a vision a man named Ananias come in and lay his hands on him so that he might regain his sight.” But Ananias answered, “Lord, I have heard from many about this man, how much evil he has done to your saints in Jerusalem; and here he has authority from the chief priests to bind all who invoke your name.” But the Lord said to him, “Go, for he is an instrument whom I have chosen to bring my name before Gentiles and kings and before the people of Israel; myself will show him how much he must suffer for the sake of my name.” So Ananias went and entered the house. He laid his hands on Saul and said, “Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus, who appeared to you on your way here, has sent me so that you may regain your sight and be filled with the Holy Spirit.” And immediately something like scales fell from his eyes, and his sight was restored. Then he got up and was baptized, and after taking some food, he regained his strength.

For several days he was with the disciples in Damascus, and immediately he began to proclaim Jesus in the synagogues, saying, “He is the Son of God.” All who heard him were amazed and said, “Is not this the man who made havoc in Jerusalem among those who invoked this name? And has he not come here for the purpose of bringing them bound before the chief priests?” Saul became increasingly more powerful and confounded the Jews who lived in Damascus by proving that Jesus was the Messiah.

After some time had passed, the Jews plotted to kill him, but their plot became known to Saul. They were watching the gates day and night so that they might kill him; but his disciples took him by night and let him down through an opening in the wall, lowering him in a basket.

When he had come to Jerusalem, he attempted to join the disciples; and they were all afraid of him, for they did not believe that he was a disciple. But Barnabas took him, brought him to the apostles, and described for them how on the road he had seen the Lord, who had spoken to him, and how in Damascus he had spoken boldly in the name of Jesus. So he went in and out among them in Jerusalem, speaking boldly in the name of the Lord. He spoke and argued with the disciples, he persecuted Jesus (cf. Mt 25.40). Ananias, evidently one of the leaders of the believers at Damascus (see 22.12). Acts does not record how or when Christians first arrived in Damascus. The street called Straight, commonly identified as Darbel-Mostakim, an east-to-west street in the Old City of Damascus. Tarsus, see v. 30n. Saints, holy ones, i.e., Christians as sanctified by their faith (see 26.18). Saul, like the prophets, was chosen for a special purpose (Jer 1.5; Gal 1.15). Laid his hands, see 6.6n.

9.19b–31: Saul’s preaching in Damascus and first visit to Jerusalem. Immediately he began to proclaim Jesus in the synagogues, this will be the consistent pattern followed by Paul in Acts; according to Paul himself, he went immediately to Arabia (Gal 1.17). Son of God occurs only here in Acts; cf. Gal 1.15–16. In 2 Cor 11.32–33 Paul flees the governor of Damascus appointed by Aretas IV, king of the Nabateans. See vv. 1–2n. In Gal 1.18 Paul states that his first visit to Jerusalem was three years after his conversion. Luke associates Paul with Jerusalem from the beginning. Barnabas (see 4.36–37) intercedes with the apostles on Paul’s behalf. Paul himself (Gal 1.18–19) claimed only to have seen Peter and James, the Lord’s brother (not considered an apostle in Acts). Paul, from the Diaspora himself, contends with the Hellenists, namely, Stephen’s Greek-speaking, Hellenists; but they were attempting to kill him. 30 When the believers learned of it, they brought him down to Caesarea and sent him off to Tarsus.

31 Meanwhile the church throughout Judea, Galilee, and Samaria had peace and was built up. Living in the fear of the Lord and in the comfort of the Holy Spirit, it increased in numbers.

32 Now as Peter went here and there among all the believers, he came down also to the saints living in Lydda. 33 There he found a man named Aeneas, who had been bedridden for eight years, for he was paralyzed. 34 Peter said to him, “Aeneas, Jesus Christ heals you; get up and make your bed!” And immediately he got up. 35 And all the residents of Lydda and Sharon saw him and turned to the Lord.

36 Now in Joppa there was a disciple whose name was Tabitha, which in Greek is Dorcas. She was devoted to good works and acts of charity. 37 At that time she became ill and died. When they had washed her, they laid her in a room upstairs. 38 Since Lydda was near Joppa, the disciples, who heard that Peter was there, sent two men with the request, “Please come to us without delay.” 39 So Peter got up and went with them; and when he arrived, they took him to the room upstairs. All the widows stood beside him, weeping and showing tunics and other clothing that Dorcas had made while she was with them. 40 Peter put all of them outside, and then he knelt down and prayed. He turned to the body and said, “Tabitha, get up.” Then she opened her eyes, and seeing Peter, she sat up. 41 He gave her his hand and helped her up. Then calling the saints and widows, he showed her to be alive. 42 This became known throughout Joppa, and many believed in the Lord. 43 Meanwhile he stayed in Joppa for some time with a certain Simon, a tanner.

In Caesarea there was a man named Cornelius, a centurion of the Italian Cohort, as it was called. 2 He was a devout man who feared God with all his household; he gave alms generously to the people and prayed constantly to God. 3 One afternoon at about three o'clock he had a vision in which he clearly saw an angel of God coming in and saying to him, “Cornelius.” 4 He stared at him in terror and said, “What is it, Lord?” He answered, “Your prayers and your alms have ascended as a memorial before God.” 5 Now send men to Joppa for a certain Simon who is called Peter; 6 he is lodging with Simon, a tanner, whose

---

a Gk brothers
b Gk all of them
c The name Tabitha in Aramaic and the name Dorcas in Greek mean a gazelle house is by the seaside.” 7 When the angel who spoke to him had left, he called two of his slaves and a devout soldier from the ranks of those who served him, 8 and after telling them everything, he sent them to Joppa.

9 About noon the next day, as they were on their journey and approaching the city, Peter went up on the roof to pray. 10 He became hungry and wanted something to eat; and while it was being prepared, he fell into a trance. 11 He saw the heaven opened and something like a large sheet coming down, being lowered to the ground by its four corners. 12 In it were all kinds of four-footed creatures and reptiles and birds of the air. 13 Then he heard a voice saying, “Get up, Peter; kill and eat.” 14 But Peter said, “By no means, Lord; for I have never eaten anything that is profane or unclean.” 15 The voice said to him again, a second time, “What God has made clean, you must not call profane.” 16 This happened three times, and the thing was suddenly taken up to heaven.

17 Now while Peter was greatly puzzled about what to make of the vision that he had seen, suddenly the men sent by Cornelius appeared. They were asking for Simon’s house and were standing by the gate. 18 They called out to ask whether Simon, who was called Peter, was staying there. 19 While Peter was still thinking about the vision, the Spirit said to him, “Look, three men are searching for you. 20 Now get up, go down, and go with them without hesitation; for I have sent them.” 21 So Peter went down to the men and said, “I am the one you are looking for; what is the reason for your coming?” 22 They answered, “Cornelius, a centurion, an upright and God-fearing man, who is well spoken of by the whole Jewish nation, was directed by a holy angel to send for you to come to his house and to hear what you have to say.” 23 So Peter invited them in and gave them lodging.

The next day he got up and went with them, and some of the believers from Joppa accompanied him. 24 The following day they came to Caesarea. Cornelius was expecting them and had called together his relatives and close friends. 25 On Peter’s arrival Cornelius met him, and falling at his feet, worshiped him. 26 But Peter made him get up, saying, “Stand up; I am only a mortal.” 27 And as he talked with him, he went in and found that many had assembled; 28 and he said to them, “You yourselves know that it is unlawful for a Jew to associate with or to visit a Gentile; but God has shown me that I should not call anyone profane or unclean.

29 So when I was sent for, I came without objection. Now may I ask why you sent for me?” 30 Cornelius replied, “Four days ago at this very hour, at three o’clock, I was praying in my house when suddenly a man in dazzling clothes stood before me. 31 He said, ‘Cornelius, your prayer has been heard and your alms have been remembered before God. 32 Send therefore to Joppa and ask for Simon, who is called Peter; he is staying in the home of Simon, a tanner, by the sea.’ 33 Therefore I sent for you immediately, and you have been kind enough to come. So now all of us are here in the presence of God to listen to all that the Lord has commanded you to say.”

34 Then Peter began to speak to them: “I truly understand that God shows no partiality, 35 but in every nation anyone who fears him and does what is right is acceptable to him. 36 You know the message he sent to the people of Israel, preaching peace by Jesus Christ—he is Lord of all. 37 That message spread throughout Judea, beginning in Galila-

16.15n.,33). 9: Noon, the usual Roman time for luncheon. 14: Profane, only some animals might be eaten (Lev 11). 15: In Mk 7:14–19 Jesus declared all foods clean, but this statement is not included in Luke’s Gospel and Peter seems unaware of it. Some conditions regarding food will still apply at 15.20,29. 16: Three times, for emphasis and warning. 19–20: The Spirit’s message obliquely refers to Cornelius’s vision and is reminiscent of the coordinated visions of Ananias and Paul in ch 9. 23: Invited them in, Peter is prepared to associate with Gentiles. 28: You yourselves know, the audience is aware that association with Gentiles can be a cause of defilement for Jews (the centurion in Lk 7:6–7 seems to be sensitive to this). But God has shown me, Peter now understands the vision about food (vv. 11–17) to refer allegorically to people—i.e., defilement is no longer an issue. 30: See v. 31. 34: No partiality, lit., “God is no respecter of persons”; cf. Rom 2.10–11. 36–43: A synopsis of Luke’s Gospel. 36:
Now the apostles and the believers who were in Judea heard that the Gentiles had also accepted the word of God. So when Peter went up to Jerusalem, the circumcised believers criticized him, saying, “Why did you go to uncircumcised men and eat with them?” Then Peter began to explain it to them, step by step, saying, “I was in the city of Joppa praying, and in a trance I saw a vision. There was something like a large sheet coming down from heaven, being lowered by its four corners; and it came close to me.

As I looked at it closely I saw four-footed animals, beasts of prey, reptiles, and birds of the air. I also heard a voice saying to me, ‘Get up, Peter; kill and eat.’ But I replied, ‘By no means, Lord; for nothing profane or unclean has ever entered my mouth.’ But a second time the voice answered from heaven, ‘What God has made clean, you must not call profane.’ This happened three times; then everything was pulled up again to heaven.

At that very moment three men, sent to me from Caesarea, arrived at the house where we were. The Spirit told me to go with them and not to make a distinction between them and us. These six brothers also accompanied me, and we entered the man’s house. He told us how he had seen the angel standing in his house and saying, ‘Send to Joppa and bring Simon, who is called Peter; he will give you a message by which you and your entire household will be saved.’ And as I began to speak, the Holy Spirit fell upon them just as it had upon us at the beginning. And I remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said, ‘John baptized with water, but you will be baptized with the Holy Spirit.’

If then God gave them the same gift that he \[\text{Lord of all, both Jews and Gentiles. 38: God anointed Jesus, seems to refer to the baptism at Lk 3.22 (see also Lk 4.14); but note Lk 2.11; Acts 2.36n.; 3.20. 39: We are witnesses, also v. 41, see 1.8n.; 1.21–22; tree, 5.30n. 41: Jesus was seen only by those chosen (Lk 24.48; Acts 1.8,22). Ate and drank with him, 1.4n.; Lk 24.30–31,41–43. 42: Judge, 17.31. 43: All the prophets, Lk 24.25–27,44–47; forgiveness of sins, Lk 24.47; Acts 2.38; 13.26,39; through his name, 3.6. 44–48: The circumcised believers knew by the speaking in tongues (2.4–11) that the Holy Spirit fell upon the Gentiles before baptism (see 2.38n.).}\] gave us when we believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I that I could hinder God?”

18 When they heard this, they were silenced. And they praised God, saying, “Then God has given even to the Gentiles the repentance that leads to life.”

19 Now those who were scattered because of the persecution that took place over Stephen traveled as far as Phoenicia, Cyprus, and Antioch, and they spoke the word to no one except Jews. 20 But among them were some men of Cyprus and Cyrene who, on coming to Antioch, spoke to the Hellenists also, proclaiming the Lord Jesus. 21 The hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number became believers and turned to the Lord. 22 News of this came to the ears of the church in Jerusalem, and they sent Barnabas to Antioch. 23 When he came and saw the grace of God, he rejoiced, and he exhorted them all to remain faithful to the Lord with steadfast devotion; 24 for he was a good man, full of the Holy Spirit and of faith. And a great many people were brought to the Lord. 25 Then Barnabas went to Tarsus to look for Saul, and when he had found him, he brought him to Antioch. So it was that for an entire year they met with the church and taught a great many people, and it was in Antioch that the disciples were first called “Christians.”

27 At that time prophets came down from Jerusalem to Antioch. 28 One of them named Agabus stood up and predicted by the Spirit that there would be a severe famine over all the world; and this took place during the reign of Claudius. 29 The disciples determined that according to their ability, each would send relief to the believers living in Judea; 30 this they did, sending it to the elders by Barnabas and Saul.

12 About that time King Herod laid violent hands upon some who belonged to the church. 2 He had James, the brother of John, killed with the sword. 3 After he saw that it pleased the Jews, he proceeded to arrest Peter also. (This was during the festival of Unleavened Bread.) 4 When he had seized a Other ancient authorities read Greeks b Or were guests of c Gk brothers

will resurface in ch 15.

11.19–26: Mission to the Greeks in Antioch. The narrative now rejoins the mission initiated by the persecution following Stephen’s death (8.1,4). 19: Antioch on the Orontes River, capital of the Roman province of Syria, which included Galilee and Judea, and according to Josephus (J.W. 3.29), the third largest city (after Rome and Alexandria) in the Roman Empire. Antioch was a popular city name in Syria and Asia Minor, reflecting the rule of Antiochus I (whose epithet was “savior”), son of Seleucus I, one of the successors of Alexander the Great. 20: Cyrene, a great North African city (2.10; 6.9; 13.1; Lk 23.26), had a large Jewish colony. Hellenists (unlike 6.1 and 9.29) here apparently refers to non-Jewish, Greek-speaking residents of Antioch. 22–24: Barnabas came from Cyprus (4.36), and there were Cypriots in Antioch (v. 20). He investigates and expresses approval over the latest developments on behalf of Jerusalem (cf. 8.14–17; 11.1–18). Compare his description (v. 24) with that of Stephen (6.5). 25–26: Saul was in Tarsus (9.30), cf. Gal 1.21. An extended collaboration with Barnabas is initiated (see Gal 2.1,9,13; 1 Cor 9.6). Christians, a Latin word meaning “partisans of Christ,” perhaps at first a term of reproach. It occurs elsewhere in the New Testament only at 26.28 and 1 Pet 4.16. It appears to be a term gaining currency in Luke’s day that has been retrojected into the time portrayed by the narrative.

11.27–30: Antioch aids Jerusalem. 27: Prophets (13.1; 15.32) were numerous in the early church and in Acts characterize the last days (2.17–18). Here they predict the future (see 21.10). According to 1 Cor 14.3–4,31 they teach and build up the church. 28: Agabus, 21.10–11. The famine probably occurred in 47 CE; it was not worldwide (see Josephus, Ant. 20.51–53,101). The Roman emperor Claudius ruled 41–54 CE. 29: The relief operation resembles the arrangements for Paul’s collection (20.4n.; 1 Cor 16.2; 2 Cor 9.7); the days of selling all (2.44–45; 4.32–35) are gone. 30: Elders, as Christian leaders are first mentioned here (“old men” in 2.17 translates the same Greek word); their emergence may reflect synagogue practice. According to Gal 2.1–10, Paul’s second visit to Jerusalem coincided with the discussion narrated in Acts 15.1–29.

12.1–19: Persecution touches the apostles. 1: Herod Agrippa I, grandson of Herod the Great, nephew of Herod Antipas (4.27; 13.1; the Herod of Luke’s Gospel), was made king of Judea by Claudius in 41 CE. 2: An apostle, James the son of Zebedee, is martyred. No replacement is made (cf. 1.15–26). 3: Peter, like Jesus, is arrested at him, he put him in prison and handed him over to four squads of soldiers to guard him, intending to bring him out to the people after the Passover. 5 While Peter was kept in prison, the church prayed fervently to God for him.

6 The very night before Herod was going to bring him out, Peter, bound with two chains, was sleeping between two soldiers, while guards in front of the door were keeping watch over the prison. 7 Suddenly an angel of the Lord appeared and a light shone in the cell. He tapped Peter on the side and woke him, saying, “Get up quickly.” And the chains fell off his wrists. 8 The angel said to him, “Fasten your belt and put on your sandals.” He did so. Then he said to him, “Wrap your cloak around you and follow me.”

9 Peter went out and followed him; he did not realize that what was happening with the angel’s help was real; he thought he was seeing a vision. 10 After they had passed the first and the second guard, they came before the iron gate leading into the city. It opened for them of its own accord, and they went outside and walked along a lane, when suddenly the angel left him.

11 Then Peter came to himself and said, “Now I am sure that the Lord has sent his angel and rescued me from the hands of Herod and from all that the Jewish people were expecting.”

12 As soon as he realized this, he went to the house of Mary, the mother of John whose other name was Mark, where many had gathered and were praying. 13 When he knocked at the outer gate, a maid named Rhoda came to answer. 14 On recognizing Peter’s voice, she was so overjoyed that, instead of opening the gate, she ran in and announced that Peter was standing at the gate. 15 They said to her, “You are out of your mind!” But she insisted that it was so. They said, “It is his angel.”

16 Meanwhile Peter continued knocking; and when they opened the gate, they saw him and were amazed. 17 He motioned to them with his hand to be silent, and described for them how the Lord had brought him out of the prison. And he added, “Tell this to James and to the believers.” 18 Then he left and went to another place.

18 When morning came, there was no small commotion among the soldiers over what had become of Peter. 19 When Herod had searched for him and could not find him, he examined the guards and ordered them to be put to death. Then he went down from Judea to Caesarea and stayed there.

20 Now Herod was angry with the people of Tyre and Sidon. So they came to him in a body; and after winning over Blastus, the king’s chamberlain, they asked for a reconciliation, because their country depended on the king’s country for food. 21 On an appointed day Herod put on his royal robes, took his seat on the platform, and delivered a public address to them. 22 The people kept shouting, “The voice of a god, and not of a mortal!”

23 And immediately, because he had not given the glory to God, an angel of the Lord struck

---

a Gk He
b Gk brothers
c Gk he
him down, and he was eaten by worms and died.

But the word of God continued to advance and gain adherents. Then after completing their mission Barnabas and Saul returned to Jerusalem and brought with them John, whose other name was Mark.

Now in the church at Antioch there were prophets and teachers: Barnabas, Simeon who was called Niger, Lucius of Cyrene, Manaen a member of the court of Herod the ruler, and Saul. While they were worshiping the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said, “Set apart for me Barnabas and Saul for the work to which I have called them.” Then after fasting and praying they laid their hands on them and sent them off.

So, being sent out by the Holy Spirit, they went down to Seleucia; and from there they sailed to Cyprus. When they arrived at Salamis, they proclaimed the word of God in the synagogues of the Jews. And they had John also to assist them. When they had gone through the whole island as far as Paphos, they met a certain magician, a Jewish false prophet, named Bar-Jesus. He was with the proconsul, Sergius Paulus, an intelligent man, who summoned Barnabas and Saul and wanted to hear the word of God. But the magician Elymas (for that is the translation of his name) opposed them and tried to turn the proconsul away from the faith. But Saul, also known as Paul, filled with the Holy Spirit, looked intently at him and said, “You son of the devil, you enemy of all righteousness, full of all deceit and villainy, will you not stop making crooked the straight paths of the Lord? And now listen—the hand of the Lord is against you, and you will be blind for a while, unable to see the sun.” Immediately mist and darkness came over him, and he went about groping for someone to lead him by the hand. When the proconsul saw what had happened, he believed, for he was astonished at the teaching about the Lord.

Then Paul and his companions set sail from Paphos and came to Perga in Pamphylia. John, however, left them and returned to Jerusalem; but they went on from Perga and came to Antioch in Pisidia. And on the sabbath day they went into the synagogue and sat down. After the reading of the law and the prophets, the officials of the synagogue sent them a message, saying, “Brothers, if you have any word of exhortation for the people, give it.” So Paul stood up and with a gesture began to speak:

---

12.24–13.3: Commission at Antioch. 12.24: The attack on the church's leaders fails to stem growth. 25: Barnabas and Saul returned from Jerusalem to Antioch (see note a) after the relief visit (11.29–30). 13.1: Prophets and teachers were important leaders in the early church (see 11.27n.; 1 Cor 12.28; Eph 4.11). Manaen, Gk form of Heb Menahem. Herod the ruler, Herod Antipas (4.27; Lk 3.19; 8.3; 9.7,9; 13.31; 23.7–15), not Herod Agrippa (12.11n.). 2: As is usual in Acts the Holy Spirit initiates new developments. Set apart, cf. Rom 1.1; Gal 1.15. 3: Laid . . . hands, see 6.6n.

13.4–12: Cyprus. 4: Seleucia Pieria, Antioch's seaport, about 12 mi (20 km) west at the mouth of the Orontes River. 5: Salamis, important port and former capital city at the eastern end of Cyprus. Synagogues, there was a large Jewish population in Cyprus. According to Acts, Paul regularly begins mission work in a new place in the local synagogue (13.14; 14.1; 17.1,10,17; 18.4,19; 19.8; see 9.20n.; cf. Rom 1:16). John, see 12.12n. According to 11.19, missionaries had previously reached the island. 6: Paphos, capital of Cyprus, located in the extreme west. Magician, see 8.9n. Bar-Jesus, “son of Jesus [or Joshua].” 7: The island was a senatorial province ruled by a proconsul. Sergius Paulus, another Roman official favorable to Christianity (see 10.1n.). 8: Elymas does not mean “Bar-Jesus.” 9: Saul was his Jewish name, used up to this point to stress his origin; Paul was his Roman name, the one he was generally known by, and is used from now on in Acts as missionary activity aims at both Jews and Gentiles. 10–11: Compare Peter's rebuke of Simon (8.20–24).

13.13–52: Journey to Antioch of Pisidia and Iconium. The focus now clearly shifts to Paul as his first work in inner Asia Minor is depicted. 13: Perga is inland 8 mi (13 km) from Attalia (14.25), main seaport of Pamphylia, a small province south of the Taurus mountains, between Cilicia and Lycia. John . . . left, v. 5; see 15.38. 14: Strictly, Antioch near Pisidia, a Roman city and colony (see 11.19n.). Synagogue, v. 5n. 15: One lesson each from the law and the prophets was customary. 16: Gesture, an orator's move. Others who fear God, here and v. 26 probably equivalent to “devout converts” to Judaism in v. 43 (where “convert” is the Gk word for proselyte; see 6.5n.).
“You Israelites, and others who fear God, listen. The God of this people Israel chose our ancestors and made the people great during their stay in the land of Egypt, and with uplifted arm he led them out of it. For about forty years he put up with them in the wilderness. After he had destroyed seven nations in the land of Canaan, he gave them their land as an inheritance for about four hundred fifty years. After that he gave them judges until the time of the prophet Samuel. Then they asked for a king; and God gave them Saul son of Kish, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, who reigned for forty years. When he had removed him, he made David their king. In his testimony about him he said, ‘I have found David, son of Jesse, to be a man after my heart, who will carry out all my wishes.’ Of this man’s posterity God has brought to Israel a Savior, Jesus, as he promised; before his coming John had already proclaimed a baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel. And as John was finishing of Benjamin, who reigned for forty years. When he had removed him, he made David their king. In his testimony about him he said, ‘I have found David, son of Jesse, to be a man after my heart, who will carry out all my wishes.’ Of this man’s posterity God has brought to Israel a Savior, Jesus, as he promised; before his coming John had already proclaimed a baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel. And as John was finishing a  Gk Men, Israelites

b  Other ancient authorities read cared for 17–25: The survey of biblical history emphasizes the theme of fulfillment in the latter part of the speech (vv. 23,27,29,32,33). 18: Context requires the reading he put up with them in the wilderness with Deut 1.31 (note b). 19: Seven nations, Deut 7.1; Josh 3.10; 24.11. 20: Four hundred fifty years from the entrance into Canaan to the building of the Temple may be an approximation. Samuel, 1 Sam 4.1. 21: 1 Sam 8.5; 9.15–17. 22: Ps 89.20; 1 Sam 13.14. 23: Posterity, see Lk 3.31. Savior, see 5.31n. The promise is found in 2 Sam 7.12. 24: Lk 3.3. 25: The Baptist’s emphatic his work, he said, ‘What do you suppose that I am? I am not he. No, but one is coming after me; I am not worthy to untie the thong of the sandals⁴ on his feet.’

26 “My brothers, you descendants of Abraham’s family, and others who fear God, to us the message of this salvation has been sent. 27 Because the residents of Jerusalem and their leaders did not recognize him or understand the words of the prophets that are read every sabbath, they fulfilled those words by condemning him. 28 Even though they found no cause for a sentence of death, they asked Pilate to have him killed. 29 When they had carried out everything that was written about him, they took him down from the tree and laid him in a tomb. 30 But God raised him from the dead; 31 and for many days he appeared to those who came up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, and they are now his witnesses to the people. 32 And we bring you the good news that what God promised to our ancestors 33 he has fulfilled for us, their children, by raising Jesus; as also it is written in the second psalm, ‘You are my Son; today I have begotten you.’

34 As to his raising him from the dead, no more to return to corruption, he has spoken in this way, ‘I will give you the holy promises made to David.’ 35 Therefore he has also said in another psalm, ‘You will not let your Holy One experience corruption.’

36 For David, after he had served the purpose of God in his own generation, died,⁶ was laid beside his ancestors, and experienced corruption; 37 but he whom God raised up experienced no corruption. 38 Let it be known to you therefore, my brothers, that through this man forgiveness of sins is proclaimed to you; 39 by this Jesus⁴ everyone who believes is set free from all those sins⁵ from which you could not be freed by the law of Moses. 40 Beware, therefore, that what the prophets said does not happen to you:

41 ‘Look, you scoffers! Be amazed and perish, for in your days I am doing a work, a work that you will never believe, even if someone tells you.’

42 As Paul and Barnabas’ were going out, the people urged them to speak about these things again the next sabbath. 43 When the meeting of the synagogue broke up, many Jews and devout converts to Judaism followed Paul and Barnabas, who spoke to them and urged them to continue in the grace of God. 44 The next sabbath almost the whole city gathered to hear the word of the Lord.⁹ 45 But when the Jews saw the crowds, they were filled with jealousy; and blaspheming, they contradicted what was spoken by Paul. 46 Then both Paul and Barnabas spoke out boldly, saying, “It was necessary that the word of God should be spoken first to you. Since you reject it and judge yourselves to be unworthy of eternal life, we are now turning to the Gentiles. 47 For so the Lord has commanded us, saying, ‘I have set you to be a light for the Gentiles, so that you may bring salvation to the ends of the earth.’”

48 When the Gentiles heard this, they were glad and praised the word of the Lord; and as...
acts 14

14 The same thing occurred in Iconium, where Paul and Barnabas\(^a\) went into the Jewish synagogue and spoke in such a way that a great number of both Jews and Greeks became believers. \(^b\) But the unbelieving Jews stirred up the Gentiles and poisoned their minds against the brothers. \(^c\) So they shook the dust off their feet in protest against them, and went to Iconium. \(^d\) And the disciples were filled with joy and with the Holy Spirit.

many as had been destined for eternal life became believers. \(^49\) Thus the word of the Lord spread throughout the region. \(^50\) But the Jews incited the devout women of high standing and the leading men of the city, and stirred up persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and drove them out of their region. \(^51\) So they shook the dust off their feet in protest against them, and went to Iconium. \(^52\) And the disciples were filled with joy and with the Holy Spirit.

14.1–28: Ministry in the Iconium region and return to Antioch. 1: In spite of the announcement of 13.46, Paul and Barnabas again start at the Jewish synagogue. 2: 13.50n. 4: The Gk word apostles is used of Paul and Barnabas in Acts only here and in v. 14. Since the term otherwise is limited to the twelve, here the meaning may be “apostles (i.e., emissaries) of the church of Antioch,” the church that sent them (13.2–3). 6: Lystra, according to 16.1 the home of Timothy, was a Roman colony 24 mi (40 km) south-southeast of Iconium. Derbe, another town in Lycaonia 60 mi (96 km) southeast of Lystra. 7: In Acts persecution always leads to new opportunities. 8–18: Cf. 3.1–8. In this and other episodes in Acts Paul replicates the experiences of Peter. 11–12: According to a myth of this region, the gods Zeus and Hermes visited Baucis and Philemon in human form and rewarded their hospitality (Ovid, Metamorphoses, 8.618–724). Paul, the chief speaker, was hailed as the messenger of the gods, not the chief god. 14: Apostles, see 14.40. Tore their clothes, a sign of horror and dismay at what they looked upon as blasphemy (cf. Mk 14.63). 15–17: Cf. 17.22–31; 1 Thess 1.9–10. Paul (v. 15), like Peter (10.26), rejects worship of 19.8; 26.26; see 4.13n. 47: Isa 49.6; cf. Lk 2.32. 49: A typical summary that makes it clear that Acts claims only to be a partial report of the spread of Christianity; cf. 9.10n. 50: The scene depicted here (see 2 Tim 3.11) is repeated in subsequent accounts (see 14.2,19; 17.5,13). 51: They shook the dust off (18.6) to show that their responsibility ended (Lk 9.5; 10.11; Mt 10.14). Iconium, modern Konya, ca. 75 mi (120 km) southeast of Antioch.

a Gk they
b Gk he
c Or The priest of Zeus-Outside-the-City
d Gk Men

1946 | NEW TESTAMENT
supposing that he was dead. 20 But when the disciples surrounded him, he got up and went into the city. The next day he went on with Barnabas to Derbe.

21 After they had proclaimed the good news to that city and had made many disciples, they returned to Lystra, then on to Iconium and Antioch. 22 There they strengthened the souls of the disciples and encouraged them to continue in the faith, saying, “It is through many persecutions that we must enter the kingdom of God.” 23 And after they had appointed elders for them in each church, with prayer and fasting they entrusted them to the Lord in whom they had come to believe.

24 Then they passed through Pisidia and came to Pamphylia. 25 When they had spoken the word in Perga, they went down to Attalia.

26 From there they sailed back to Antioch, where they had been commended to the grace of God for the work that they had completed. 27 When they arrived, they called the church together and related all that God had done with them, and how he had opened a door of faith for the Gentiles. 28 And they stayed there with the disciples for some time.

15 Then certain individuals came down from Judea and were teaching the brothers, “Unless you are circumcised according to the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved.” 2 And after Paul and Barnabas had no small dissension and debate with them, Paul and Barnabas and some of the others were appointed to go up to Jerusalem to discuss this question with the apostles and the elders. 3 So they were sent on their way by the church, and as they passed through both Phoenicia and Samaria, they reported the conversion of the Gentiles, and brought great joy to all the believers. 4 When they came to Jerusalem, they were welcomed by the church and the apostles and the elders, and they reported all that God had done with them. 5 But some believers who belonged to the sect of the Pharisees stood up and said, “It is necessary for them to be circumcised and ordered to keep the law of Moses.”

6 The apostles and the elders met together to consider this matter. 7 After there had been much debate, Peter stood up and said to them, “My brothers, 8 you know that in the early days God made a choice among you, that I should be the one through whom the Gentiles would hear the message of the good news and become believers. 9 And God, who knows the human heart, testified to them by giving them the Holy Spirit, just as he did to us; 10 and in cleansing their hearts by faith he has made no distinction between them and us. 11 Now therefore why are you putting God to the test by placing on the neck of the disciples a yoke that neither our ancestors nor we have been able to bear? 12 On the contrary, we believe that we will be saved through the grace of the Lord Jesus, just as they will.”

12 The whole assembly kept silence, and listened to Barnabas and Paul as they told of all the a Or committed in the grace of God to the work

b Gk brothers
c Gk Men, brothers

New Testament | 1947
13 After they finished speaking, James replied, “My brothers, listen to me. Simeon has related how God first looked favorably on the Gentiles, to take from among them a people for his name. This agrees with the words of the prophets, as it is written,

16 ‘After this I will return, and I will rebuild the dwelling of David, which has fallen; from its ruins I will rebuild it, and I will set it up,

17 so that all other peoples may seek the Lord—even all the Gentiles over whom my name has been called.

18 Known to God from of old are all his works.’

19 Therefore I have reached the decision that we should not trouble those Gentiles who are turning to God, but we should write to them to abstain only from things polluted by idols and from fornication and from whatever has been strangled and from blood.

21 For in every city, for generations past, over in silence in Acts. 13: James, see 12.17n. 14: Simeon, the Semitic form of Peter’s given name, emphasizing connections with Judaism even as the church is becoming a mixed group (v. 19) of Jews and Gentiles (see 14.1; 17.4,11–12; 18.4,8; 19.10). 16–18: Am 9.11–12; Jer 12.15; Isa 45.21. 20: Things polluted by idols, i.e., food sacrificed to them—prohibiting by extension idolatry itself (note Paul’s more liberal stance in 1 Cor 10.27–29). Whatever has been strangled, i.e., meat not ritually butchered, which may mean the same thing as blood (omitted by some manuscripts), although the latter could mean murder. Suggested backgrounds for the items included in the “apostolic decree” include the so-called Noachian precepts (regulations to be observed by all peoples; see Gen 9.4–6) and the regulations for Gentiles living among Jews in Lev 17–18. The list may have a more practical function (avoid non–kosher food and fornication) or stipulate matters beyond compromise (idolatry, murder, and incest). 21: Moses, selections from the Torah (the first five books of the Bible), traditionally thought to have been Thus says the Lord, who has been making these things known from long ago."

Moses has had those who proclaim him, for he has been read aloud every sabbath in the synagogues.”

22 Then the apostles and the elders, with the consent of the whole church, decided to choose men from among their members and to send them to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas. They sent Judas called Barsabbas, and Silas, leaders among the brothers, with the following letter: “The brothers, both the apostles and the elders, to the believers of Gentile origin in Antioch and Syria and Cilicia, greetings. Since we have heard that certain persons who have gone out from us, though with no instructions from us, have said things to disturb you and have unsettled your minds, we have decided unanimously to choose representatives and send them to you, along with our beloved Barnabas and Paul, who have risked their lives for the sake of our Lord Jesus Christ. We have therefore sent Judas and Silas, who themselves will tell you the same things by word of mouth. For it has seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us to impose on you no further burden than these essentials: that you abstain from what has been sacrificed to idols and from blood and from what is strangled and from fornication. If you keep yourselves from these, you will do well. Farewell.”

So they were sent off and went down to Antioch. When they gathered the congregation together, they delivered the letter. When its members read it, they rejoiced at the exhortation. Judas and Silas, who were themselves prophets, said much to encourage and strengthen the believers. After they had been there for some time, they were sent off in peace by the believers to those who had sent them. But Paul and Barnabas remained in Antioch, and there, with many others, they taught and proclaimed the word of the Lord.

36 After some days Paul said to Barnabas, “Come, let us return and visit the believers in every city where we proclaimed the word of the Lord and see how they are doing.” Barnabas wanted to take with them John called Mark. But Paul decided not to take with them one who had deserted them in Pamphylia and had not accompanied them in the work. The disagreement became so sharp that they parted company; Barnabas took Mark with him and sailed away to Cyprus. But Paul chose Silas and set out, the believers commending him to the grace of the Lord.

written by Moses, read aloud in weekly Jewish services. The necessity of the decree (v. 20) is explained in terms of the pervasiveness of Jewish practices, which continued to be observed by Jewish Christians (cf. 21.20–25).

22: Silas may be the Silvanus of 2 Cor 1.19; 1 Thess 1.1; 2 Thess 1.1. He becomes a missionary companion of Paul at 15.40. 28: To the Holy Spirit and to us, see 5.3n. No further burden than these essentials, cf. Gal 2.10. 32: Prophets, 13.1n. 35: 11.26; 14.28.

15.36–16.5: Paul revisits the churches of the previous mission. 15.37–38: John called Mark . . . had deserted, see 12.12n.; 13.13. 39: Compare the disagreement here over John Mark with the report in Gal 2.11–13 that Barnabas disagreed with Paul over the legitimacy of Jews and Gentiles eating together. According to Acts, this problem had already been dealt with in 10.1–11.18, although the apostolic decree (15.20,29) may have been intended to make such meals acceptable for Jewish Christians. Barnabas and Mark revisit Cyprus (13.4–12), which had been omitted on the return journey to Antioch described in 14.24–26. 40: Paul now sets out as an “independent” missionary, accompanied by Silas (v. 22). Paul’s ties with Antioch may have been strained at this point (see Gal 2.11–14). 16.1: Derbe and . . . Lystra, 14.6n. Timothy (17.14–15; 18.5; 19.22; 20.4) was a more important companion of Paul than the picture in Acts suggests (see Rom 16.21; 1 Cor 16.10; 2 Cor 1.1,19; Phil 1.1; 1 Thess 1.1); he is referred to as Paul’s “child in the Lord” at 1 Cor 4.17. The pseudonymous letters 1 and 2 Timothy are ostensibly addressed...
Paula went on also to Derbe and to Lystra, the son of a Jewish woman who was a believer; but his father was a Greek. He was well spoken of by the believers in Lystra and Iconium. Paul wanted Timothy to accompany him; and he took him and had him circumcised because of the Jews who were in those places, for they all knew that his father was a Greek. As they went from town to town, they delivered to them for observance the decisions that had been reached by the apostles and elders who were in Jerusalem. So the churches were strengthened in the faith and increased in numbers daily.

They went through the region of Phrygia and Galatia, having been forbidden by the Holy Spirit to speak the word in Asia. When they had come opposite Mysia, they attempted to go into Bithynia, but the Spirit of Jesus did not allow them; so, passing by Mysia, they went down to Troas. During the night Paul had a vision: there stood a man of Macedonia pleading with him and saying, “Come over to Macedonia and help us.”

When he had seen the vision, we immediately tried to cross over to Macedonia, being convinced that God had called us to proclaim the good news to them.

We set sail from Troas and took a straight course to Samothrace, the following day to Neapolis, and from there to Philippi, which is a leading city of the district of Macedonia and a Roman colony. We remained in this city for some days. On the sabbath day we went outside the gate by the river, where we supposed there was a place of prayer; and we sat down and spoke to the women who had gathered there. A certain woman named Lydia, a worshiper of God, was listening to us; she was from the city of Thyatira and a dealer in purple cloth. The Lord opened her heart to listen eagerly to what was said by Paul. When she and her household were baptized, she urged us, saying, “If you have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come and stay at my home.” And she prevailed upon us.

a Gk He
b Gk brothers
c Other authorities read a city of the first district to him. Timothy’s mother (see 2 Tim 1.5) is said to be Jewish, while his father was a Greek. That Paul . . . had him circumcised seems unimaginable in view of passages such as 1 Cor 7.18 and Gal 5.2. Paul stresses in Gal 2.3 that Titus “was not compelled to be circumcised, though he was a Greek.” Timothy’s case might be different because his mother was Jewish (v. 1), yet the principle of matrilineal descent (the ethnicity of the child is determined by the mother) does not appear to have been in effect at this time. Luke may have allowed his theme of Paul’s faithfulness to the law in all respects (21.23–24; 22.3) to color the narrative here and refute the charge raised in 21.21 in advance. The decisions, the apostolic decree of 15.20. The apostles are mentioned here for the last time—their era is now over.

16.6–10: Directed by the Spirit through Asia Minor to Troas. Journey through the interior to the Aegean Sea. The region is probably the country northwest of Iconium where both Phrygians and Galatians lived. Asia, the Roman province of that name in western Asia Minor (6.9). Opposite Mysia, a northwestern part of the province of Asia; Bithynia was to its east. Spirit of Jesus, equivalent to the Holy Spirit in v. 6. Troas, on the western coast of Mysia. Macedonia, a Roman province in Europe including the cities of Philippi, Thessalonica, and Berea. The “we” passages (16.10–17; 20.5–15; 21.1–18; 27.1–28.16; see Introduction) begin here and bring additional vividness to the story.

16.11–40: Paul and Silas in Philippi. Samothrace, an island in the northern Aegean, midway between Troas and Neapolis, the seaport of Philippi. Philippa was a leading city, but not the capital, of Macedonia. It was populated by discharged soldiers who received grants of land and enjoyed the special civic rights that pertained to a Roman colony (freedom from taxation, Roman legal procedures). The Gk word normally rendered “prayer” in the New Testament can also mean a place of prayer, as here, which may or may not imply a building (synagogue). By the river, some evidence suggests that Diaspora synagogues were frequently located near water. As usual in Acts, Paul seeks out the Jewish community in a new place. Worshiper of God, the same word is used to describe proselytes in 13.43 but is applied to “women of high standing” in 13.50 in contradistinction to Jews. The term might simply describe Lydia as pious or suggest that she is a Jewish sympathizer. Thyatira (Rev 2.18–29), a city of Lydia, a country in western Asia Minor, was a center for the dyeing industry. She and her household were baptized, dependents followed the head of the household in religious matters (v. 31; 10.2; 1 Cor...
One day, as we were going to the place of prayer, we met a slave-girl who had a spirit of divination and brought her owners a great deal of money by fortune-telling. While she followed Paul and us, she would cry out, “These men are slaves of the Most High God, who proclaim to you a way of salvation.” She kept doing this for many days. But Paul, very much annoyed, turned and said to the spirit, “I order you in the name of Jesus Christ to come out of her.” And it came out at that very hour.

But when her owners saw that their hope of making money was gone, they seized Paul and Silas and dragged them into the marketplace before the authorities. When they had brought them before the magistrates, they said, “These men are disturbing our city; they are Jews and are advocating customs that are not lawful for us as Romans to adopt or observe.” The crowd joined in attacking them, and the magistrates had them stripped of their clothing and ordered them to be beaten with rods. After they had given them a severe flogging, they threw them into prison and ordered the jailer to keep them securely.

Following these instructions, he put them in the innermost cell and fastened their feet in the stocks.

About midnight Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns to God, and the prisoners were listening to them. Suddenly there was an earthquake, so violent that the foundations of the prison were shaken; and an earthquake, so violent that the ground shook. The jailer woke up and saw the prison doors wide open, he drew his sword and was about to kill himself, since he supposed that the prisoners had escaped. But Paul shouted in a loud voice, “Do not harm yourself, for we are all here.” The jailer called for lights, and rushing in, he fell down trembling before Paul and Silas. Then he brought them outside and said, “Sirs, what must I do to be saved?” They answered, “Believe in the Lord Jesus, and you will be saved, you and your household.” They spoke the word of the Lord to him and to all who were in his house. At the same hour of the night he took them and washed their wounds; then he and his entire family were baptized without delay. He brought them up into the house and set food before them; and he and his entire household rejoiced that he had become a believer in God.

When morning came, the magistrates sent the police, saying, “Let those men go.” And the jailer reported the message to Paul, saying, “The magistrates sent word to let you go; therefore come out now and go in peace.” But Paul replied, “They have beaten us in public, uncondemned, men who are Roman citizens, and have thrown us into prison; and now are they going to discharge us in secret? Certainly not! Let them come and take us out themselves.” The police reported these words to the magistrates, and they were afraid when they heard that they were Roman citizens; so they came and apologized to them. And they took them out and asked them to leave the city. After leaving the prison they went to Lydia’s home; and when a Other ancient authorities read to us
b Gk He
c Other ancient authorities read word of God
they had seen and encouraged the brothers and sisters there, they departed.

17 After Paul and Silas had passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where there was a synagogue of the Jews. And Paul went in, as was his custom, and on three sabbath days argued with them from the scriptures, explaining and proving that it was necessary for the Messiah to suffer and to rise from the dead, and saying, “This is the Messiah, Jesus whom I am proclaiming to you.” Some of them were persuaded and joined Paul and Silas, as did a great many of the devout Greeks and not a few of the leading women. But the Jews became jealous, and with the help of some ruffians in the marketplaces they formed a mob and set the city in an uproar. While they were searching for Paul and Silas to bring them out to the assembly, they attacked Jason’s house.

6 When they could not find them, they dragged Jason and some believers before the city authorities, shouting, “These people who have been turning the world upside down have come here also, and Jason has entertained them as guests. They are all acting contrary to the decrees of the emperor, saying that there is another king named Jesus.” The people and the city officials were disturbed when they heard this, and after they had taken bail from Jason and the others, they let them go.

10 That very night the believers sent Paul and Silas off to Beroea; and when they arrived, they went to the Jewish synagogue.

11 These Jews were more receptive than those in Thessalonica, for they welcomed the message very eagerly and examined the scriptures every day to see whether these things were so. Many of them therefore believed, including not a few Greek women and men of high standing. But when the Jews of Thessalonica learned that the word of God had been proclaimed by Paul in Beroea as well, they came there too, to stir up and incite the crowds. Then the believers immediately sent Paul away to the coast, but Silas and Timothy remained behind. Those who conducted Paul brought him as far as Athens; and after receiving instructions to have Silas and Timothy join him as soon as possible, they left him.

16 While Paul was waiting for them in Athens, he was deeply distressed to see that the city was full of idols. So he argued in the synagogue with the Jews and the devout persons, and also in the marketplace every day with those who happened to be there. Also some Epicurean and Stoic philosophers debated with him. Some said, “What does this babbler want to say?” Others said, “He seems to be a proclaimer of foreign divinities.” (This was because he was telling the good news about Jesus and the resurrection.) So they took him and brought

---

*Gk brothers
*b Gk they
*c Or the Christ
*d Gk politarchs
*e Or civic center; Gk agora him to the Areopagus and asked him, “May we know what this new teaching is that you are presenting?” It sounds rather strange to us, so we would like to know what it means.” Now all the Athenians and the foreigners living there would spend their time in nothing but telling or hearing something new.

Then Paul stood in front of the Areopagus and said, “Athenians, I see how extremely religious you are in every way. For as I went through the city and looked carefully at the objects of your worship, I found among them an altar with the inscription, ‘To an unknown god.’ What therefore you worship as unknown, this I proclaim to you. The God who made the world and everything in it, he who is Lord of heaven and earth, does not live in shrines made by human hands, nor is he served by human hands, as though he needed anything, since he himself gives to all mortals life and breath and all things. From one ancestor he made all nations to inhabit the whole earth, and he allotted the times of their existence and the boundaries of the places where they would live, so that they would search for God and perhaps grope for him and find him—though indeed he is not far from each one of us. For ‘In him we live and move and have our being’; as even some of your own poets have said, ‘For we too are his offspring.’

Since we are God’s offspring, we ought not to think that the deity is like gold, or silver, or stone, an image formed by the art and imagination of mortals. While God has overlooked the times of human ignorance, now he commands all people everywhere to repent, because he has fixed a day on which he will have the world judged in righteousness by a man whom he has appointed, and of this he has given assurance to all by raising him from the dead.”

When they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some scoffed; but others said, “We will hear you again about this.” At that point Paul left them. But some of them joined him and became believers, including Dionysius the Areopagite and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

After this Paul left Athens and went to Corinth. There he found a Jew named Aquila, a native of Pontus, who had recently

---

NOTES

1-2: The Areopagus hill west of the Acropolis. The request “May we know . . . ?” suggests a more relaxed setting for discussion, though allusions to Socrates before the Areopagus court are surely intended (see v. 34).

2: The curiosity of the Athenians was proverbial. Contrast the approach to Gentiles attributed to Paul in this speech with Rom 1:18–31.

22: Extremely religious, can be taken in a good or bad sense. It connects to “idols” in v. 16 and leads to v. 23. To an unknown god, such an inscription has not been found in Athens to date; the plural form is attested. The scene intends to illustrate the anxiety of the “extremely religious” (v. 22) lest the honor due to any deity be inadvertently omitted and gives Paul an opening to proclaim the Christian message.

24: God as the creator (14.15) is an idea common to Jews (Gen 1:1) and Greeks (e.g., Plato, Timaeus).

26: From one ancestor, he made all nations to inhabit the whole earth, and he allotted the times of their existence and the boundaries of the places where they would live, so that they would search for God and perhaps grope for him and find him—though indeed he is not far from each one of us. For ‘In him we live and move and have our being’; as even some of your own poets have said, ‘For we too are his offspring.’

29: Since we are God’s offspring, we ought not to think that the deity is like gold, or silver, or stone, an image formed by the art and imagination of mortals. While God has overlooked the times of human ignorance, now he commands all people everywhere to repent, because he has fixed a day on which he will have the world judged in righteousness by a man whom he has appointed, and of this he has given assurance to all by raising him from the dead.”

32: When they heard of the resurrection of the dead, some scoffed; but others said, “We will hear you again about this.” At that point Paul left them. But some of them joined him and became believers, including Dionysius the Areopagite and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

---

REFERENCES

Acts 17:18–31: Paul in Corinth. See 1 Cor 1–4 for Paul’s own account. Corinth, the old city was famous but was razed in 146 BCE by the Romans. It was refounded as a colony in 44 BCE by Julius Caesar, became the capital of the come from Italy with his wife Priscilla, because Claudius had ordered all Jews to leave Rome. Paul\(^a\) went to see them, \(^b\) and, because he was of the same trade, he stayed with them, and they worked together—by trade they were tentmakers. \(^4\) Every sabbath he would argue in the synagogue and would try to convince Jews and Greeks.

NEW TESTAMENT | 1953

\(^5\) When Silas and Timothy arrived from Macedonia, Paul was occupied with proclaiming the word, \(^b\) testifying to the Jews that the Messiah\(^c\) was Jesus. \(^6\) When they opposed and reviled him, in protest he shook the dust from his clothes\(^d\) and said to them, “Your blood be on your own heads! I am innocent. From now on I will go to the Gentiles.” \(^7\) Then he left the synagogue\(^e\) and went to the house of a man named Titius\(^f\) Justus, a worshiper of God; his house was next door to the synagogue.

\(^8\) Crispus, the official of the synagogue, became a believer in the Lord, together with all his household; and many of the Corinthians who heard Paul became believers and were baptized.

Chs 18–21: Third missionary journey of Paul.
and do not be silent; for I am with you, and no one will lay a hand on you to harm you, for there are many in this city who are my people.” He stayed there a year and six months, teaching the word of God among them.

12 But when Gallio was proconsul of Achaia, the Jews made a united attack on Paul and brought him before the tribunal. They said, “This man is persuading people to worship God in ways that are contrary to the law.” Just as Paul was about to speak, Gallio said to the Jews, “If it were a matter of crime or serious villainy, I would be justified in accepting the complaint of you Jews; but since it is a matter of questions about words and names and your own law, see to it yourselves; I do not wish to be a judge of these matters.” And he dismissed them from the tribunal.

17 Then all of them seized Sosthenes, the official of the synagogue, and beat him in front of the tribunal. But Gallio paid no attention to any of these things.

18 After staying there for a considerable time, Paul said farewell to the believers and sailed for Syria, accompanied by Priscilla and Aquila. At Cenchreae he had his hair cut, for he was under a vow. When they reached Ephesus, he left them there, but first he himself went into the synagogue and had a discussion with the Jews. When they asked him to stay longer, he declined; but on taking leave of them, he said, “If I will return to you, if God wills.” Then he set sail from Ephesus.

22 When he had landed at Caesarea, he went up to Jerusalem and greeted the church, and then went down to Antioch.

23 After spending some time there he departed and went from place to place through the region of Galatia and Phrygia, strengthening all the disciples.

24 Now there came to Ephesus a Jew named Apollos, a native of Alexandria. He was an eloquent man, well-versed in the scriptures. He had been instructed in the Way of the Lord; and he spoke with burning enthusiasm and taught accurately the things concerning Jesus, though he knew only the baptism of John. He began to speak boldly in the synagogue; but when Priscilla and Aquila heard him, they took him aside and explained the Way of God to him more accurately. And when he wished to cross over to Achaia, the believers encouraged him and wrote to the disciples to welcome him. On his arrival he greatly helped those who through grace had become believers, for he powerfully refuted the Jews in public, showing by the scriptures that the Messiah is Jesus.

household (16.15n.) illustrates the continued success of Paul’s mission among Jews (in spite of v. 6) in addition to Gentiles (many of the Corinthians . . . became believers). 12: L. Junius Gallio, older brother of the philosopher Seneca, proconsul of Achaia about 52 CE. The dating of Gallio’s proconsulship is crucial for the chronological reconstruction of Paul’s career. 13: The law, could mean the Jewish law (as Gallio takes it in v. 15) or Roman law, i.e., charges of sedition similar to the complaints raised in 16.21 and 17.7 (the latter would make more sense to present before a proconsul). 14–15: Gallio again voices one of the subthemes of the book: Christianity is not a cause of concern for Rome. Roman representatives tend to be either outwardly favorable (e.g., Cornelius, Sergius Paulus) or at worst indifferent to Christianity, suggesting that it need not be viewed as incompatible with Rome (see 10.1n.). 17: Sosthenes may be the one mentioned in 1 Cor 1.1, but the name is common.

18.18–23: End of the second missionary journey and beginning of the third. Paul returns to Antioch and goes back to Asia Minor. 18: Paul had his hair cut as a temporary nazirite vow (21.23–24; Num 6.1–21), but the rule was to cut the hair off at the end of the vow. Cenchreae, the eastern port of Corinth (Rom 16.1). 19: Ephesus, on the Aegean coast, was the capital of the Roman province of Asia. 22: Caesarea, see 8.40n. Jerusalem still appears as the mother church. Antioch, see 11.19n. 23: The region of Galatia and Phrygia, see 16.6n.

18.24–28: Apollos in Ephesus. 25: The Way, see 9.2n. Although he taught accurately, he had not received Christian baptism (13.25n.). 26: Speak boldly, 13.46n. It is not disclosed in what sense things were explained . . . more accurately. 27–28: For his activity in Corinth, see 1 Cor 1.12; 3.1–9, 21–23.
While Apollos was in Corinth, Paul passed through the interior regions and came to Ephesus, where he found some disciples. 2 He said to them, “Did you receive the Holy Spirit when you became believers?” They replied, “No, we have not even heard that there is a Holy Spirit.” 3 Then he said, “Into what then were you baptized?” They answered, “Into John’s baptism.” 4 Paul said, “John baptized with the baptism of repentance, telling the people to believe in the one who was to come after him, that is, in Jesus.” 5 On hearing this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. 6 When Paul had laid his hands on them, the Holy Spirit came upon them, and they spoke in tongues and prophesied—altogether there were about twelve of them.

8 He entered the synagogue and for three months spoke out boldly, and argued persuasively about the kingdom of God. 9 When some stubbornly refused to believe and spoke evil of the Way before the congregation, he left them, taking the disciples with him, and argued daily in the lecture hall of Tyrannus. 10 This continued for two years, so that all the residents of Asia, both Jews and Greeks, heard the word of the Lord.

11 God did extraordinary miracles through Paul, 12 so that when the handkerchiefs or aprons that had touched his skin were brought to the sick, their diseases left them, and the evil spirits came out of them. 13 Then some itinerant Jewish exorcists tried to use the name of the Lord Jesus over those who had evil spirits, saying, “I adjure you by the Jesus whom Paul proclaims.” 14 Seven sons of a Jewish high priest named Sceva were doing this. 15 But the evil spirit said to them in reply, “Jesus I know, and Paul I know; but who are you?” 16 Then the man with the evil spirit leaped on them, mastered them all, and so overpowered them that they fled out of the house naked and wounded. 17 When this became known to all residents of Ephesus, both Jews and Greeks, everyone was awestruck; and the name of the Lord Jesus was praised. 18 Also many of those who became believers confessed and disclosed their practices. 19 A number of those who practiced magic collected their books and burned them publicly; when the value of these books was calculated, it was found to come to fifty thousand silver coins. 20 So the word of the Lord grew mightily and prevailed.

21 Now after these things had been accomplished, Paul resolved in the Spirit to go through Macedonia and Achaia, and then to go on to Jerusalem. He said, “After I have gone there, I must also see Rome.” 22 So he sent two of his helpers, Timothy and Erastus, to Macedonia, while he himself stayed for some time longer in Asia.

23 About that time no little disturbance broke out concerning the Way. 24 A man named Demetrius, a silversmith who made a

---

19.1–41: Paul’s long ministry in Ephesus. Paul wrote 1 and 2 Corinthians during the period of more than two years (v. 10; cf. 20.31) portrayed here. 1: The interior regions of Asia Minor (18.23). Disciples elsewhere in Acts means Christians. 2: All who read the Jewish scriptures would know of a Holy Spirit (Ps 51.11; Isa 63.10,11). The reference may be to outward signs of the Spirit’s presence (v. 6; 10.44–48n.). 3: John’s baptism, 13.25n. 5–6: See 6.6n.; 8.17. 8: Synagogue, 13.5n. Kingdom of God, 1.3n. 9: The Way, v. 23; see 9.2n. Tyrannus, perhaps a local philosopher; the name appears in inscriptions in Ephesus. The hours mentioned in note a suggest the building was available to Paul during siesta time. 10: During Paul’s stay of two years . . . all the residents of Asia heard the word (note the churches of Rev 2–3). The mixed character of the audience (Jews and Greeks) continues to be noted (15.14n.). 12: Compare 5.15; on parallels between Peter and Paul, see 14.8–18n. 13: For Jewish exorcists, see Lk 11.19. For use of the name outside the circle of Jesus, see Mk 9.38–39. 14: Sceva, a high priest by this name is not known. 15–16: The story makes it clear that the name (v. 17; 3.6n.) does not belong to the realm of magic. On a number of occasions Acts attempts to distinguish Christian miracle working from the activities of religious charlatans and profiteers (8.18–24; 13.6–12; 16.16–19). 19: Ephesus was such a noted center of magic that magical books were often called “Ephesian Scripts.” 21: Must . . . see Rome, 23.11; 27.24; cf. Rom 1.13–15; 15.22–29. 22: A city treasurer named Erastus is mentioned at Rom 16.23; the city of his office is not named, but Romans was likely written in Corinth; the name also appears at 2 Tim 4.20 (“Erastus remained in Corinth”). A Corinthian silver shrines of Artemis, brought no little business to the artisans. 25 These he gathered together, with the workers of the same trade, and said, “Men, you know that we get our wealth from this business. 26 You also see and hear that not only in Ephesus but in almost the whole of Asia this Paul has persuaded and drawn away a considerable number of people by saying that gods made with hands are not gods. 27 And there is danger not only that this trade of ours may come into disrepute but also that the temple of the great goddess Artemis will be scorned, and she will be deprived of her majesty that brought all Asia and the world to worship her.”

28 When they heard this, they were enraged and shouted, “Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!” 29 The city was filled with the confusion; and people rushed together to the theater, dragging with them Gaius and Aristarchus, Macedonians who were Paul’s travel companions. 30 Paul wished to go into the crowd, but the disciples would not let him; 31 even some officials of the province of Asia, b who were friendly to him, sent him a message urging him not to venture into the theater. 32 Meanwhile, some were shouting one thing, some another; for the assembly was in confusion, and most of them did not know why they had come together. 33 Some of the crowd gave instructions to Alexander, whom the Jews had pushed forward. And Alexander motioned for silence and tried to make a defense before the people. 34 But when they recognized that he was a Jew, for about two hours all of them shouted in unison, “Great is Artemis of the Ephesians!”

But when the town clerk had quieted the crowd, he said, “Citizens of Ephesus, who is there that does not know that the city of the Ephesians is the temple keeper of the great Artemis and of the statue that fell from heaven? 36 Since these things cannot be denied, you ought to be quiet and do nothing rash. 37 You have brought these men here who are neither temple robbers nor blasphemers of our goddess. 38 If therefore Demetrius and the artisans with him have a complaint against anyone, the courts are open, and there are proconsuls; let them bring charges there against one another. 39 If there is anything further you want to know, it must be settled in the regular assembly. 40 For we are in danger of being charged with rioting today, since there is no cause that we can give to justify this commotion.” 41 When he had said this, he dismissed the assembly.

After the uproar had ceased, Paul sent for the disciples; and after encouraging them and saying farewell, he left for Macedonia. 2 When he had gone through those regions and had given the believers much encouragement, he came to Greece, 3 where he stayed for three months. He was about to set sail for Syria when a plot was made against him by the Jews, and so he decided to return through Macedonia. 4 He inscription mentions a Roman official (an aedile) by this name. 24: Shrines, apparently miniature temples for use in religious ceremonies or as souvenirs or amulets. Artemis, chief divinity of Ephesus; her temple was one of the seven wonders of the ancient world. 25: Wealth, the story joins others in which gain by religious means is criticized (see vv. 15–16n.). 29: The theater has been excavated and could seat at least 24,000. 31: Asiarchs (in note b) held office in a league of the cities of Asia and promoted the worship of the emperor. They were friendly to Paul and so portrayed the favorable disposition of high officials toward Christianity. Such acceptance by high-status individuals suggested to Christian readers that social respectability was not beyond their grasp (16.37–38n.). 35: Temple keeper, a designation assumed by Asiatic cities that had built a temple in honor of their patron god or the emperor. The statue that fell from heaven, apparently a meteorite. 36–40: An argument that Christians were entitled to due process and that the actions taken thus far were unwarranted is put into the mouth of the town clerk.

20.1–6: The last visit to Greece. 2: Through those regions, revisiting the churches of Philippi, Thessalonica, and Beroea (see 19.21). 3: Three months, at Corinth (see 2 Cor 12.14; 13.1; the problems evident in 2 Corinthians are not mentioned). A plot . . . by the Jews, 9.24; 20.19; 23.12. 4: Paul’s companions seem to be local representa-was accompanied by Sopater son of Pyrrhus from Beroea, by Aristarchus and Secundus from Thessalonica, by Gaius from Derbe, and by Timothy, as well as by Tychicus and Trophimus from Asia. They went ahead and were waiting for us in Troas; but we sailed from Philippi after the days of Unleavened Bread, and in five days we joined them in Troas, where we stayed for seven days.

On the first day of the week, when we met to break bread, Paul was holding a discussion with them; since he intended to leave the next day, he continued speaking until midnight.

There were many lamps in the room upstairs where we were meeting. A young man named Eutychus, who was sitting in the window, began to sink off into a deep sleep while Paul talked still longer. Overcome by sleep, Paul fell to the ground three floors below and was picked up dead. But Paul went down, and bending over him took him in his arms, and said, “Do not be alarmed, for his life is in him.” Then Paul went upstairs, and after he had broken bread and eaten, he continued to converse with them until dawn; then he left. Meanwhile they had taken the boy away alive and were not a little comforted.

We went ahead to the ship and set sail for Assos, intending to take Paul on board there; for he had made this arrangement, intending to go by land himself. When he met us in Assos, we took him on board and went to Mitylene. We sailed from there, and on the following day we arrived opposite Chios. The next day we touched at Samos, and the day after that we came to Miletus. For Paul had decided to sail past Ephesus, so that he might not have to spend time in Asia; he was eager to be in Jerusalem, if possible, on the day of Pentecost.

From Miletus he sent a message to Ephesus, asking the elders of the church to meet him. When they came to him, he said to them:

“You yourselves know how I lived among you the entire time from the first day that I set foot in Asia, serving the Lord with all humility and with tears, enduring the trials that came to me through the plots of the Jews. I did not shrink from doing anything helpful, proclaiming the message to you and teaching you publicly and from house to house, as I testified to both Jews and Greeks about repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus. And now, as a captive to the Spirit, I am on my way to Jerusalem, not knowing what will happen to me there, except that the Holy Spirit testifies to me in every city that imprisonment and persecutions are waiting for me. But I do not count my life of any value to myself, if only I may finish my course and the ministry that I received from the Lord Jesus, to testify to the good news of God’s grace.

“Now I know that none of you, among whom I have gone about proclaiming the word of life, may finish my course and the ministry that I have received from the Lord Jesus, to testify to the good news of God’s grace.

20.7–38: The raising of Eutychus and the speech to the Ephesian elders. 7: The first day of the week, Sunday. Break bread, see 2.42n.; 27.36–37. 9: Eutychus, a not uncommon name meaning “fortunate.” Three floors, a tenement-style building is pictured. 10: An understated miraculous resurrection (cf. 14.19–20). 13: Assos, a port town on the coast, southwest of Troas, opposite the northern end of the island of Lesbos. 14: Mitylene, capital city of Lesbos. 15: Chios, an island south of Lesbos. Samos, an island southwest of Chios. Miletus, an important port on the western coast of Asia Minor at the mouth of the Meander River. The “we” passages resume again at 21.1. 16: Sail past Ephesus, while on route from Chios to Samos. Pentecost, see 2.1–41n. 17: Elders, 14.23n. 18–35: Paul’s “farewell” address, the only speech in Acts explicitly addressed to Christians. It reviews Paul’s accomplishments as depicted in Acts and looks forward to paint a picture of the church in Luke’s day. 21: Paul’s mission has been consistently portrayed as directed to both Jews and Greeks. 24–25: Finish my course . . . testify, a premonition of...
ing the kingdom, will ever see my face again. 26 Therefore I declare to you this day that I am not responsible for the blood of any of you, 27 for I did not shrink from declaring to you the whole purpose of God. 28 Keep watch over yourselves and over all the flock, of which the Holy Spirit has made you overseers, to shepherd the church of God that he obtained with the blood of his own Son. 29 I know that after I have gone, savage wolves will come in among you, not sparing the flock. 30 Some even from your own group will come distorting the truth in order to entice the disciples to follow them. 31 Therefore be alert, remembering that for three years I did not cease night or day to warn everyone with tears.

32 And now I commend you to God and to the message of his grace, a message that is able to build you up and to give you the inheritance among all who are sanctified. 33 I coveted no one’s silver or gold or clothing. 34 You know for yourselves that I worked with my own hands to support myself and my companions. 35 In all this I have given you an example that by such work we must support the weak, remembering the words of the Lord Jesus, for he himself said, ‘It is more blessed to give than to receive.’”

36 When he had finished speaking, he knelt down with them all and prayed. 37 There was much weeping among them all; they embraced Paul and kissed him, 38 grieving especially because of what he had said, that they would not see him again. Then they brought him to the ship.

21 When we had parted from them and set sail, we came by a straight course to Cos, and the next day to Rhodes, and from there to Patara. 2 When we found a ship bound for Phoenicia, we went on board and set sail. 3 We came in sight of Cyprus; and leaving it on our left, we sailed to Syria and landed at Tyre, because the ship was to unload its cargo there. 4 We looked up the disciples and stayed there for seven days. Through the Spirit they told Paul not to go on to Jerusalem. 5 When our days there were ended, we left and proceeded on our journey; and all of them, with wives and children, escorted us outside the city. There we knelt down on the beach and prayed 6 and said farewell to one another. Then we went on board the ship, and they returned home.

7 When we had finished the voyage from Tyre, we arrived at Ptolemais; and we greeted the believers and stayed with them for one day. 8 The next day we left and came to Caesarea; and we went into the house of Philip the evangelist, one of the seven, and stayed with him. 9 He had four unmarried daughters who had the gift of prophecy. 10 While we were staying there for several days, a prophet named Agabus came down from Judea. 11 He came to us and took Paul’s belt, bound his own feet and hands with it, and said, “Thus says the Holy Spirit, ‘This is the way the Jews in Jerusalem will bind the man who owns this belt and will hand him over to the Gentiles.’” 12 When we heard this, we and a Other ancient authorities read of the Lord

b Or with his own blood; Gk with the blood of his Own c Other ancient authorities add and Myra d Or continued
e Gk brothers
f Gk four daughters, virgins.
the people there urged him not to go up to Jerusalem. 13 Then Paul answered, “What are you doing, weeping and breaking my heart? For I am ready not only to be bound but even to die in Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus.” 14 Since he would not be persuaded, we remained silent except to say, “The Lord’s will be done.”

15 After these days we got ready and started to go up to Jerusalem. 16 Some of the disciples from Caesarea also came along and brought us to the house of Mnason of Cyprus, an early disciple, with whom we were to stay.

17 When we arrived in Jerusalem, the brothers welcomed us warmly. 18 The next day Paul went with us to visit James; and all the elders were present. 19 After greeting them, he related one by one the things that God had done among the Gentiles through his ministry. 20 When they heard it, they praised God. Then they said to him, “You see, brother, how many thousands of believers there are among the Jews, and they are all zealous for the law.

21 They have been told about you that you teach all the Jews living among the Gentiles to forsake Moses, and that you tell them not to circumcise their children or observe the customs. 22 What then is to be done? They will certainly hear that you have come. 23 So do what we tell you. We have four men who are under a vow. 24 Join these men, go through the rite of purification with them, and pay for the shaving of their heads. Thus all will know that there is nothing in what they have been told about you, but that you yourself observe and guard the law. 25 But as for the Gentiles who have become believers, we have sent a letter with our judgment that they should abstain from what has been sacrificed to idols and from blood and from what is strangled and from fornication.”

26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day, having purified himself, he entered the temple with them, making public the completion of the days of purification when the sacrifice would be made for each of them.

27 When the seven days were almost completed, the Jews from Asia, who had seen him in the temple, stirred up the whole crowd. They seized him, shouting, “Fellow Israelites, help! This is the man who is teaching everyone everywhere against our people, our law, and this place; more than that, he has actually brought Greeks into the temple and has defiled this holy place.” 29 For they had previously seen Trophimus the Ephesian with him in the city, and they supposed that Paul had brought him into the temple. 30 Then all the city was aroused, and the people rushed together. They seized Paul and dragged him out of the temple, and immediately the doors were shut. 31 While they were trying to kill him, word came to the tribune of the cohort that all Jerusalem was in an uproar. 32 Immediately he took soldiers and centurions and ran down to them. When they saw the tribune and the soldiers, they stopped beating Paul. 33 Then the tribune came, arrested him, and ordered him to be a Other ancient authorities lack and from what is strangled

a symbolic act. The prediction is not strictly fulfilled in the chapters that follow. 12: V. 4. 14: Paul appears as a heroic figure, cf. Lk 22.42. 16: An early disciple, note Christianity in connection with Cyprus at 4.36; 11.19–20; 13.4–12.

21.17–26: Paul’s observance of Jewish tradition. 17–20: The Jerusalem church accepts Paul and his accomplishments as complementary to their own in a harmonious portrait of unity (cf. Gal 2). 18: James, see 12.17n.; the elders, 11.30n. The “we” passage stops here. 20: Thousands of believers, Acts represents the success of Christianity among Jews as phenomenal (cf. 6.7). Zealous for the law, see 11.2n.; 15.1n., 15.5n.; cf. Gal 2. 21: Moses, see 15.21n. The charge has been anticipated (16.3n.). The informants are not identified (see v. 28). 23–24: Paul can demonstrate his faithfulness to the law by undergoing purification for uncleanness with some others and paying the expenses upon their release from a nazirite vow (18.18n.). 25: He is told of the decree (15.20, 29) as though he had not heard of it (see 16.4).

21.27–40: Uproar in the Temple and arrest of Paul. Seized after a disturbance in the Temple, Paul begins his defense. 28: It was a capital offense for non-Jews to pass beyond the Court of the Gentiles; an inscription stating this has been discovered (cf. Josephus, J.W. 5.193–194; 6.125–126). 29: Trophimus, 20.4; 2 Tim 4.20. 31: A military tribune commanded a cohort (a detachment of 1,000 men); this would have been stationed in the citabound with two chains; he inquired who he was and what he had done. 34 Some in the crowd shouted one thing, some another; and as he could not learn the facts because of the uproar, he ordered him to be brought into the barracks. 35 When Paul came to the steps, the violence of the mob was so great that he had to be carried by the soldiers. 36 The crowd that followed kept shouting, “Away with him!”

37 Just as Paul was about to be brought into the barracks, he said to the tribune, “May I say something to you?” The tribune replied, “Do you know Greek? 38 Then you are not the Egyptian who recently stirred up a revolt and led the four thousand assassins out into the wilderness?” 39 Paul replied, “I am a Jew, from Tarsus in Cilicia, a citizen of an important city; I beg you, let me speak to the people.” 40 When he had given him permission, Paul stood on the steps and motioned to the people, saying:

22 “Brothers and fathers, listen to the defense that I now make before you.”

2 When they heard him addressing them in Hebrew, they became even more quiet. Then he said:

3 “I am a Jew, born in Tarsus in Cilicia, but brought up in this city at the feet of Gamaliel, educated strictly according to our ancestral law, being zealous for God, just as all of you are today. 4 I persecuted this Way up to the point of death by binding both men and women and putting them in prison, as the high priest and the whole council of elders can testify about me. From them I also received letters to the brothers in Damascus, and I went there in order to bind those who were there and to bring them back to Jerusalem for punishment.

6 “While I was on my way and approaching Damascus, about noon a great light from heaven suddenly shone about me. 7 I fell to the ground and heard a voice saying to me, ‘Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me?’ 8 I answered, ‘Who are you, Lord?’ Then he said to me, ‘I am Jesus of Nazareth whom you are persecuting.’ 9 Now those who were with me saw the light but did not hear the voice of the one who was speaking to me. 10 I asked, ‘What am I to do, Lord?’ The Lord said to me, ‘Get up and go to Damascus; there you will be told everything that has been assigned to you to do.’ 11 Since I could not see because of the brightness of that light, those who were with me took my hand and led me to Damascus.

12 “A certain Ananias, who was a devout man according to the law and well spoken of by all the Jews living there, came to me; and standing beside me, he said, ‘Brother Saul, regain your sight!’ In that very hour I regained my sight and saw him. 13 Then he said, ‘The God of our ancestors has chosen you to know his will, to see the Righteous One and to hear his own voice; for you will be his witness to all the world of what you have seen and heard. 14 And now why do you delay? Get up, be baptized, and have your sins washed away, calling on his name.’

17 “After I had returned to Jerusalem and while I was praying in the temple, I fell into a trance and saw Jesus saying to me, ‘Hurry del Antonia, which had access to the Temple courtyard (see Josephus, J.W. 5.244). 33: Paul’s case came into the hands of Roman, not Jewish, authorities. 36: Away with him, 22.22; cf. Lk 23.18. 38: The question in Greek may be: “Are you not the Egyptian?” Concerning the Egyptian, a pseudo-messiah who, with thousands of followers, had planned to take Jerusalem from the Romans, see Josephus, J.W. 2.261–263 (which puts the number at about 30,000); Ant. 20.169–172. 39: Paul gives assurances that he is not the Egyptian. Tarsus, 9.30n.

22.1–29: Defense in the Temple and Roman custody. 1: Defense is the principal theme of the next chapters (24.10; 25.8.16; 26.1–2). It has a clear function at the level of the narrative and also allows Luke to endorse Paul for readers who may have had questions about him. 3: Brought up, educated. Gamaliel, see 5.34n. Zealous, 21.20; in Gal 1.14 as a self-description of Paul. 4–21: Cf. 9.1–18; 26.9–18. 9: In 9.7 the companions heard the voice but saw no one. 14–15: What Ananias says here is roughly parallel to what the Lord tells him in 9.15. 17–21: The report of the vision is not given in the other conversion accounts. Paul’s commission to the Gentiles is signifi-
23 While Paul was looking intently at the council he said, “Brothers, up to this day I have lived my life with a clear conscience before God.” Then the high priest Ananias ordered those standing near him to strike him on the mouth.

At this Paul said to him, “God will strike you, you whitewashed wall! Are you sitting there to judge me according to the law, and yet in violation of the law you order me to be struck?” Those standing nearby said, “Do you dare to insult God’s high priest?” And Paul said, “I did not realize, brothers, that he was high priest; for it is written, ‘You shall not speak evil of a leader of your people.’” and get out of Jerusalem quickly, because they will not accept your testimony about me.’ And I said, ‘Lord, they themselves know that in every synagogue I imprisoned and beat those who believed in you. And while the blood of your witness Stephen was shed, I myself was standing by, approving and keeping the coats of those who killed him.’ Then he said to me, ‘Go, for I will send you far away to the Gentiles.’”

When Paul noticed that some were Sadducees and others were Pharisees, he called out in the council, “Brothers, I am a Pharisee, a son of Pharisees. I am on trial concerning the hope of the resurrection of the dead.”

When he said this, a dissension began between the Pharisees and the Sadducees, and the assembly was divided. (The Sadducees say that there is no resurrection, or angel, or spirit; but the Pharisees acknowledge all three.) Then a great clamor arose, and certain scribes of the Pharisees’ group stood up and contended, “We find nothing wrong with this man. What if a spirit or an angel has spoken to him?” When the dissension became violent, the tribune, fearing that they would tear Paul to pieces, ordered the soldiers to go down, take him by force, and bring him into the barracks.

Up to this point they listened to him, but then they shouted, “Away with such a fellow from the earth! For he should not be allowed to live.” And while they were shouting, throwing off their cloaks, and tossing dust into the air, the tribune directed that he was to be brought into the barracks, and ordered him to be examined by flogging, to find out the reason for this outcry against him. But when they had tied him up with thongs, Paul said to the centurion who was standing by, “Is it legal for you to fl og a Roman citizen who is uncondemned?”

When the centurion heard that, he went to the tribune and said to him, “What are you about to do? This man is a Roman citizen.”

The tribune answered, “It cost me a large sum of money to get my citizenship.” Paul said, “But I was born a citizen.” Immediately those who were about to examine him drew back from him; and the tribune also was afraid, for he realized that Paul was a Roman citizen and that he had bound him.

Since he wanted to find out what Paul was being accused of by the Jews, the next day he released him and ordered the chief priests and the entire council to meet. He brought Paul down and had him stand before them.

22 When Paul noticed that some were Sadducees and others were Pharisees, he called out in the council, “Brothers, I am a Pharisee, a son of Pharisees. I am on trial concerning the hope of the resurrection of the dead.”

When he said this, a dissension began between the Pharisees and the Sadducees, and the assembly was divided. (The Sadducees say that there is no resurrection, or angel, or spirit; but the Pharisees acknowledge all three.) Then a great clamor arose, and certain scribes of the Pharisees’ group stood up and contended, “We find nothing wrong with this man. What if a spirit or an angel has spoken to him?” When the dissension became violent, the tribune, fearing that they would tear Paul to pieces, ordered the soldiers to go down, take him by force, and bring him into the barracks.

a Or up for the lashes b Gk him
c Gk he
d Gk Men, brothers
e Gk concerning hope and resurrection
11 That night the Lord stood near him and said, “Keep up your courage! For just as you have testified for me in Jerusalem, so you must bear witness also in Rome.”

12 In the morning the Jews joined in a conspiracy and bound themselves by an oath neither to eat nor drink until they had killed Paul. 13 There were more than forty who joined in this conspiracy. 14 They went to the chief priests and elders and said, “We have strictly bound ourselves by an oath to taste no food until we have killed Paul. 15 Now then, you and the council must notify the tribune to bring him down to you, on the pretext that you want to make a more thorough examination of his case. And we are ready to do away with him before he arrives.”

16 Now the son of Paul’s sister heard about the ambush; so he went and gained entrance to the barracks and told Paul.

17 Paul called one of the centurions and said, “Take this young man to the tribune, for he has something to report to him.” 18 So he took him, brought him to the tribune, and said, “The prisoner Paul called me and asked me to bring this young man to you; he has something to tell you.” 19 The tribune took him by the hand, drew him aside privately, and asked, “What is it that you have to report to me?” 20 He answered, “The Jews have agreed to ask you to bring Paul down to the council tomorrow, as though they were going to inquire more thoroughly into his case. And we are ready now and are waiting for your consent.”

21 So the tribe dismissed the young man, ordering him, “Tell no one that you have informed me of this.”

22 Then he summoned two of the centurions and said, “Get ready to leave by nine o’clock tonight for Caesarea with two hundred soldiers, seventy horsemen, and two hundred spearmen. 24 Also provide mounts for Paul to ride, and take him safely to Felix the governor.” 25 He wrote a letter to this effect:

26 “Claudius Lysias to his Excellency the governor Felix, greetings. 27 This man was seized by the Jews and was about to be killed by them, but when I had learned that he was a Roman citizen, I came with the guard and rescued him. 28 Since I wanted to know the charge for which they accused him, I had him brought to their council. 29 I found that he was accused concerning questions of their law, but was charged with nothing deserving death or imprisonment. 30 When I was informed that there would be a plot against the man, I sent him to you at once, ordering his accusers also to state before you what they have against him.”

31 So the soldiers, according to their instructions, took Paul and brought him during the night to Antipatris. 32 The next day they let the horsemen go on with him, while they returned to the barracks. 33 When they came to Caesarea and delivered the letter to the governor, they presented Paul also before him. 34 On reading the letter, he asked what province he belonged to, and when he learned that he was from Cilicia, 35 he said, “I will give you a hearing when your accus-

a Other ancient authorities add Farewell

rescued from mob violence for a second time by an agent of Rome (21.33–36). 11: A vision (cf. 18.9–10) provides assurance that martyrdom will not occur in Jerusalem (21.13).

23.12–35: A plot to kill Paul results in his transfer to Caesarea, the seat of the Roman governor. 12: Conspiracy, 9.24; 20.19. 16: There is no other extant information about Paul’s family. The notion of Paul’s education in Jerusalem (22.3) could suggest that other family members were there. 17–22: The prisoner Paul’s remarkable access to the commanders shows some favoritism. 23: Caesarea, 8.40n. The number of soldiers emphasizes the danger faced. The Gk word translated spearmen is obscure. 24: Antonius Felix, procurator of Judea (ca. 52–56 ce), brother of Pallas, a favorite freedman of the emperor Claudius. 26: His Excellency, the same word used in addressing Theophilus (Lk 1.3). 27–30: The letter summarizes the preceding events and perhaps casts the tribune in a better light. As was the case with Jesus (Lk 23.4,14–16,20–25), Romans find no serious charges (v. 29; cf. 18.14–16). 31: Antipatris, a city in the Plain of Sharon on the main road to Caesarea. 35: Herod’s headquarters, a palace built by Herod the Great and occupied by the Roman governors in Palestine.
Five days later the high priest Ananias came down with some elders and an attorney, a certain Tertullus, and they reported their case against Paul to the governor. When Paul had been summoned, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying:

"Your Excellency, because of you we have long enjoyed peace, and reforms have been made for this people because of your foresight. We welcome this in every way and everywhere with utmost gratitude. But, to detain you no further, I beg you to hear us briefly with your customary graciousness. By examining him yourself you will be able to learn from him concerning everything of which we accuse him."

The Jews also joined in the charge by asserting that all this was true.

When the governor motioned to him to speak, Paul replied:

"I cheerfully make my defense, knowing that for many years you have been a judge over this nation. As you can find out, it is not more than twelve days since I went up to worship in Jerusalem. They did not find me disputing with anyone in the temple or stirring up a crowd either in the synagogues or throughout the city. Neither can they prove to you the charge that they now bring against me. But this I admit to you, that according to the Way, they call a sect, I worship the God of our ancestors, believing everything laid down according to the law or written in the prophets. I have a hope in God—a hope that they themselves also accept—that there will be a resurrection of both the righteous and the unrighteous. Therefore I do my best always to have a clear conscience toward God and all people. Now after some years I came to bring alms to my nation and to offer sacrifices. While I was doing this, they found me in the temple, completing the rite of purification, without any crowd or disturbance. But there were some Jews from Asia—they ought to be here before you to make an accusation, if they have anything against me. Let these men here tell what crime they had found when I stood before the council, unless it was this one sentence that I called out while standing before them, 'It is about the resurrection of the dead that I am on trial before you today.'"

But Felix, who was rather well informed about the Way, adjournd the hearing with the comment, "When Lysias the tribune comes down, I will decide your case." Then he ordered the centurion to keep him in custody, but let him have some liberty and not to prevent any of his friends from taking care of his needs.

Some days later when Felix came with his wife Drusilla, who was Jewish, he sent for Paul and heard him speak concerning faith in Christ Jesus. And as he discussed justice, self-control, and the coming judgment, Felix

24.1–27: Paul before Felix. The apostle denies the charges, and the governor postpones the case. 2–4: Tertullus begins the prosecution with the customary method of opening a speech with praise that is intended to attract the attention and good will of the one being addressed. 5: Agitator, a charge of political sedition (see 16.21; 17.7; 18.13) would be taken seriously by a Roman court. Sect, or party, is used in a bad sense here and at 24.14; 28.22; it is used of the Sadducees at 5.17. Nazarenes, the term otherwise used in the singular to identify Jesus (2.22; 3.6; 4.10; 6.14; 22.8) is here used in the plural to describe Christians for Christians. 6: Profane the temple, 21.28. 10: See 22.1n. 14: The Way (see 9.2n.) is compatible with the ancestral religion. 15: Resurrection, here general belief in resurrection as common ground (also v. 21). 16: Clear conscience, 20.20,27,33; 23.1. 17: To bring alms, may connect to 21.23–26 but is reminiscent of Paul's plan in Rom 15.25–29 to deliver the collection (see 11.29n.; 20.4n.). 23: Custody, perhaps protective custody. 24: Drusilla was the sister of Herod Agrippa II and Bernice (25.13); she had left her husband Azizus, king of Emesa, to marry Felix. 25–26: Cf. Mk 6.20. Felix embodbecame frightened and said, “Go away for the present; when I have an opportunity, I will send for you.” ²⁶ At the same time he hoped that money would be given him by Paul, and for that reason he used to send for him very often and converse with him.

²⁷ After two years had passed, Felix was succeeded by Porcius Festus; and since he wanted to grant the Jews a favor, Felix left Paul in prison.

Three days after Festus had arrived in the province, he went up from Caesarea to Jerusalem ² where the chief priests and the leaders of the Jews gave him a report against Paul. They appealed to him and requested, as a favor to them against Paul, ⁸ to have him transferred to Jerusalem. They were, in fact, planning an ambush to kill him along the way. ⁴ Festus replied that Paul was being kept at Caesarea, and that he himself intended to go there shortly. ⁵ “So,” he said, “let those of you who have the authority come down with me, and if there is anything wrong about the man, let them accuse him.” ⁶ After he had stayed among them not more than eight or ten days, he went down to Caesarea; the next day he took his seat on the tribunal and ordered Paul to be brought. ⁷ When he arrived, the Jews who had gone down from Jerusalem surrounded him, bringing many serious charges against him, which they could not prove. ⁸ Paul said in his defense, “I have in no way committed an offense against the law of the Jews, or against the temple, or against the emperor.” ⁹ But Festus, wishing to do the Jews a favor, asked Paul, “Do you wish to go up to Jerusalem and be tried there on these charges?” ¹⁰ Paul said, “I am appealing to the emperor’s tribunal; this is where I should be tried. I have done no wrong to the Jews, as you very well know. ¹¹ Now if I am in the wrong and have committed something for which I deserve to die, I am not trying to escape death; but if there is nothing to their charges against me, no one can turn me over to them. I appeal to the emperor.” ¹² Then Festus, after he had conferred with his council, replied, “You have appealed to the emperor; to the emperor you will go.” ¹³ After several days had passed, King Agrippa and Bernice arrived at Caesarea to welcome Festus. ¹⁴ Since they were staying there several days, Festus laid Paul’s case before the king, saying, “There is a man here who was left in prison by Felix. ¹⁵ When I was in Jerusalem, the chief priests and the elders of the Jews informed me about him and asked for a sentence against him. ¹⁶ I told them that it was not the custom of the Romans to hand over anyone before the accused had met the accusers face to face and had been given an opportunity to make a defense against the charge. ¹⁷ So when they met here, I lost no time, but on the next day took my seat on the tribunal and ordered the man to be brought. ¹⁸ When the accusers stood up, they did not charge him with any of the crimes that I was expecting. ¹⁹ Instead they had certain points of disagreement with him about their own religion and about a certain Jesus, who had died, but whom Paul asserted to be alive. ²⁰ Since I was at a loss how to investigate these questions, I asked whether he wished to go to Jerusalem and be tried there on these ³ A/ft er two years had passed, either from Felix’s appointment or Paul’s arrest. Porcius Festus, appointed procurator of Judea by the emperor Nero in 60 ce. ²⁵.1–12: Appeal to the emperor. Paul insists on a Roman trial, and Festus consents to send him to Rome. ³: See 23.12. ⁸: Paul maintains that he is both a good Jew and a good Roman citizen. ⁹: Favor, 24.27. ¹⁰: Paul fears being turned over to a Jewish court; therefore he insists on the emperor’s tribunal, i.e., trial according to Roman law. ¹¹–¹²: Paul’s appeal to the emperor becomes the mechanism that takes him to Rome (19.21; 23.11). Details of the law of appeals are unclear. ²⁵.13–26.32: Paul’s defense before Agrippa. Paul’s speech is intended to present a model defense of Christianity and allows for the pronouncement of a symbolic Roman acquittal. ²⁵.13: King Agrippa, Herod Agrippa II (ruled 53–ca. 93 ce), sided with the Romans in the First Jewish Revolt. He and his sister Bernice were children of Herod Agrippa I (12.1n.). ¹⁶: Roman judicial process is put in a good light. ¹⁸–²⁰: The accusers do not bring a
But when Paul had appealed to be kept in custody for the decision of his Imperial Majesty, I ordered him to be held until I could send him to the emperor." 22 Agrippa said to Festus, “I would like to hear the man myself.” “Tomorrow,” he said, “you will hear him.”

So on the next day Agrippa and Bernice came with great pomp, and they entered the audience hall with the military tribunes and the prominent men of the city. Then Festus gave the order and Paul was brought in. 24 And Festus said, “King Agrippa and all here present with us, you see this man about whom the whole Jewish community petitioned me, both in Jerusalem and here, shouting that he ought not to live any longer. 25 But I found that he had done nothing deserving death; and when he appealed to his Imperial Majesty, I decided to send him. 26 But I have nothing definite to write to our sovereign about him. Therefore I have brought him before all of you, and especially before you, King Agrippa, so that, after we have examined him, I may have something to write— for it seems to me unreasonable to send a prisoner without indicating the charges against him.”

Agrippa said to Paul, “You have permission to speak for yourself.” Then Paul stretched out his hand and began to defend himself:

“I consider myself fortunate that it is before you, King Agrippa, I am to make my defense today against all the accusations of the Jews, because you are especially familiar with all the customs and controversies of the Jews; therefore I beg of you to listen to me patiently. 4 All the Jews know my way of life from my youth, a life spent from the beginning among my own people and in Jerusalem. 5 They have known for a long time, if they are willing to testify, that I have belonged to the strictest sect of our religion and lived as a Pharisee. 6 And now I stand here on trial on account of my hope in the promise made by God to our ancestors, a promise that our twelve tribes hope to attain, as they earnestly worship day and night. It is for this hope, your Excellency, b that I am accused by Jews! 8 Why is it thought incredible by any of you that God raises the dead?

“Indeed, I myself was convinced that I ought to do many things against the name of Jesus of Nazareth. c 10 And that is what I did in Jerusalem; with authority received from the chief priests, I not only locked up many of the saints in prison, but I also cast my vote against them when they were being condemned to death. 11 By punishing them often in all the synagogues I tried to force them to blaspheme; and since I was so furiously enraged at them, I pursued them even to foreign cities.

12 “With this in mind, I was traveling to Damascus with the authority and commission of the chief priests, d when at midday along the road, your Excellency, I saw a light from heaven, brighter than the sun, shining around me and my companions. 14 When we had all fallen to the ground, I heard a voice saying to me in the Hebrew language, ‘Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me? It hurts you to kick against the goads.’ 15 I asked, ‘Who are you, Lord?’ The Lord answered, ‘I am Jesus whom you are persecuting. 16 Only in...
to you for this purpose, to appoint you to serve and testify to the things in which you have seen me and to those in which I will appear to you. 17 I will rescue you from your people and from the Gentiles—to whom I am sending you to open their eyes so that they may turn from darkness to light and from the power of Satan to God, so that they may receive forgiveness of sins and a place among those who are sanctified by faith in me.'

19 “After that, King Agrippa, I was not disobedient to the heavenly vision, but declared first to those in Damascus, then in Jerusalem and throughout the countryside of Judea, and also to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God and do deeds consistent with repentance. 20 For this reason the Jews seized me in the temple and tried to kill me. 21 To this day I have had help from God, and so I stand here, testifying to both small and great, saying nothing but what the prophets and Moses said would take place: 22 that the Messiah must suffer, and that, by being the first to rise from the dead, he would proclaim light both to our people and to the Gentiles.”

24 While he was making this defense, Festus exclaimed, “You are out of your mind, Paul! Too much learning is driving you insane!” 25 But Paul said, “I am not out of my mind, most excellent Festus, but I am speaking the sober truth. 26 Indeed the king knows about these things, and to him I speak freely; for I am certain that none of these things has escaped his notice, for this was not done in a corner. 27 King Agrippa, do you believe the prophets? I know that you believe.” 28 Agrippa said to Paul, “Are you so quickly persuading me to become a Christian?” 29 Paul replied, “Whether quickly or not, I pray to God that not only you but also all who are listening to me today might become such as I am—except for these chains.”

30 Then the king got up, and with him the governor and Bernice and those who had been seated with them; 31 and as they were leaving, they said to one another, “This man is doing nothing to deserve death or imprisonment.” 32 Agrippa said to Festus, “This man could have been set free if he had not appealed to the emperor.”

27 When it was decided that we were to sail for Italy, they transferred Paul and some other prisoners to a centurion of the Augustan Cohort, named Julius. 2 Embarking on a ship of Adramyttium that was about to set sail to the ports along the coast of Asia, we put to sea, accompanied by Aristarchus, a Macedonian from Thessalonica. 3 The next day we put in at Sidon; and Julius treated Paul kindly, and allowed him to go to his friends to be cared for. 4 Putting out to sea from there, we sailed under the lee of Cyprus, because the winds were against us. 5 After we had sailed across the sea that is off Cilicia and Pamphylia, we came to Myra in Lycia. 6 There the centurion found an Alexandrian ship bound for Italy and put us on board. 7 We sailed slowly for a number of days and arrived with difficulty off Cnidus, and as the wind was against us, we sailed under the lee of Crete off Salmone. 8 Sailing past it a Other ancient authorities read the things that you have seen

b Or the Christ
c Or Quickly you will persuade me to play the Christian this account does Paul’s commission on the road come directly from Jesus (cf. Gal 1:1); there is no mention of Ananias or Paul’s blindness. 20: Paul’s mission is universal, directed to both Jews and Greeks. 21: For this reason, i.e., inclusion of the Gentiles. 22–23: The prophets and Moses . . . the Messiah must suffer, 3.18n.; 10.43; 15.21n.; Lk 24.25–27,44–47. 27: See v. 3. 28: Christian, see 11.25–26n. 31: Nothing to deserve death or imprisonment, a further “acquittal” (25.25n.). 32: See 25.11–12n.

with difficulty, we came to a place called Fair Havens, near the city of Lasea.

9 Since much time had been lost and sailing was now dangerous, because even the Fast had already gone by, Paul advised them, 10 saying, “Sirs, I can see that the voyage will be with danger and much heavy loss, not only of the cargo and the ship, but also of our lives.” 11 But the centurion paid more attention to the pilot and to the owner of the ship than to what Paul said. 12 Since the harbor was not suitable for spending the winter, the majority was in favor of putting to sea from there, on the chance that somehow they could reach Phoenix, where they could spend the winter. It was a harbor of Crete, facing southwest and northwest.

13 When a moderate south wind began to blow, they thought they could achieve their purpose; so they weighed anchor and began to sail past Crete, close to the shore. 14 But soon a violent wind, called the northeaster, rushed down from Crete. 15 Since the ship was caught and could not be turned head-on into the wind, we gave way to it and were driven. 16 By running under the lee of a small island called Cauda we were scarcely able to get the ship’s boat under control. 17 After hoisting it up they took measures to underride the ship; then, fearing that they would run on the Syrtis, they lowered the sea anchor and so were driven. 18 We were being pounded by the storm so violently that on the next day they began to throw the cargo overboard, 19 and on the third day with their own hands they threw the ship’s tackle overboard. 20 When neither sun nor stars appeared for many days, and no small tempest raged, all hope of our being saved was at last abandoned.

a Gk it
b Other ancient authorities read Claudia c Gk helps and east of Fair Havens. 9: Sailing was . . . dangerous after September and ceased from mid-November until mid-March. The Fast, the Day of Atonement, in September or October. 16: Cauda, south of Crete. The ship’s boat (see vv. 30–32) was in tow. 17: The measures undertaken by the crew are not clear. The Syrtis, a dangerous shoal west of Cyrene on the north coast of Africa. Sea anchor, a conjecture for the Gk word meaning “vessel” or “implement,” i.e., a device to slow the ship. 18: Jon 1.5 and numerous Greek and Roman parallels (e.g., Josephus, J.W.) 21 Since they had been without food for a long time, Paul then stood up among them and said, "Men, you should have listened to me and not have set sail from Crete and thereby avoided this damage and loss. 22 I urge you now to keep up your courage, for there will be no loss of life among you, but only of the ship. 23 For last night there stood by me an angel of the God to whom I belong and whom I worship, 24 and he said, ‘Do not be afraid, Paul; you must stand before the emperor; and indeed, God has granted safety to all those who are sailing with you.’ 25 So keep up your courage, men, for I have faith in God that it will be exactly as I have been told. 26 But we will have to run aground on some island.’

27 When the fourteenth night had come, as we were drifting across the sea of Adria, about midnight the sailors suspected that they were nearing land. 28 So they took soundings and found twenty fathoms; a little farther on they took soundings again and found fifteen fathoms. 29 Fearing that we might run on the rocks, they let down four anchors from the stern and prayed for day to come. 30 But when the sailors tried to escape from the ship and had lowered the boat into the sea, on the pretext of putting out anchors from the bow, 31 Paul said to the centurion and the soldiers, “Unless these men stay in the ship, you cannot be saved.” 32 Then the soldiers cut away the ropes of the boat and set it adrift.

33 Just before daybreak, Paul urged all of them to take some food, saying, “Today is the fourteenth day that you have been in suspense and remaining without food, having eaten nothing. 34 Therefore I urge you to take some food, for it will help you survive; for none of you will lose a hair from your heads.” 35 After he had said this, he took bread; and giving thanks to God in the presence of all, he broke it and began to eat. 36 Then all of them were encouraged and took food for themselves. 37 (We were in all two hundred seventy-six persons in the ship.) 38 After they had satisfied their hunger, they lightened the ship by throwing the wheat into the sea.

39 In the morning they did not recognize the land, but they noticed a bay with a beach, on which they planned to run the ship ashore, if they could. 40 So they cast off the anchors and left them in the sea. At the same time they loosened the ropes that tied the steering-oars; then hoisting the foresail to the wind, they made for the beach. 41 But striking a reef, 42 they ran the ship aground; the bow stuck and remained immovable, but the stern was being broken up by the force of the waves. 43 The soldiers’ plan was to kill the prisoners, so that none might swim away and escape; 44 but the centurion, wishing to save Paul, kept them from carrying out their plan. He ordered those who could swim to jump overboard first and make for the land, and the rest to follow, some on planks and others on pieces of the ship. And so it was that all were brought safely to land.

28 After we had reached safety, we then learned that the island was called Malta. 2 The natives showed us unusual kindness. Since it had begun to rain and was cold, they kindled a fire and welcomed all of us around it. 3 Paul had gathered a bundle of brushwood and was putting it on the fire, when a viper, driven out by the heat, fastened itself on his hand. 4 When the natives saw the creature hanging from his hand, they said to one another, “This man must be a murderer; though he has escaped from the sea, justice has not allowed him to live.” 5 He, however, shook off the creature into the fire and suffered no harm. 6 They were expecting him to swell up a Other ancient authorities read seventy-six; others, about seventy-six b Gk place of two seas

1.280). 22: Cf. v. 10. 24: 23:11; 25:11–12. 27: The sea of Adria then included the central Mediterranean. 30: Escape of the crew is a popular motif found in Greco-Roman novels. 35–36: He took bread, gave thanks, and broke it, cf. Lk 22.19; 24.30,35 (see 2.42n.). The meal in which all partake has clear eucharistic overtones. 37: Two hundred seventy-six people on board is quite possible. 41: A reef, Gk “a place of two seas.” 42: The soldiers were responsible for the prisoners(see 12.19; 16.27). 43: The “good” centurion intervenes (see v. 31n.; 10.1n.).

28.1–10: Paul on Malta. Unharmed though bitten by a viper, Paul heals the father of Publius. 1: Malta, a significant island south of Sicily controlled by the Romans. 2: Natives (lit., “barbarians”), used of non-Greek or drop dead, but after they had waited a long time and saw that nothing unusual had happened to him, they changed their minds and began to say that he was a god.
Acts 28

1970 | NEW TESTAMENT

7 Now in the neighborhood of that place were lands belonging to the leading man of the island, named Publius, who received us and entertained us hospitably for three days.

8 It so happened that the father of Publius lay sick in bed with fever and dysentery. Paul visited him and cured him by praying and putting his hands on him. After this happened, the rest of the people on the island who had diseases also came and were cured. They bestowed many honors on us, and when we were about to sail, they put on board all the provisions we needed.

9 Three months later we set sail on a ship that had wintered at the island, an Alexandrian ship with the Twin Brothers as its figurehead. We put in at Syracuse and stayed there for three days; then we weighed anchor and came to Rhegium. After one day there a south wind sprang up, and on the second day we came to Puteoli.

10 There we found believers and were invited to stay with them for seven days. And so we came to Rome.

11 The believers from there, when they heard of us, came as far as the Forum of Appius and Three Taverns to meet us. On seeing them, Paul thanked God and took courage.

12 When we came into Rome, Paul was allowed to live by himself, with the soldier who was guarding him.

13 Three days later he called together the local leaders of the Jews. When they had assembled, he said to them, “Brothers, though I had done nothing against our people or the customs of our ancestors, yet I was arrested in Jerusalem and handed over to the Romans. When they had examined me, the Romans wanted to release me, because there was no reason for the death penalty in my case. But when the Jews objected, I was compelled to appeal to the emperor—even though I had no charge to bring against my nation. For this reason therefore I have asked to see you and speak with you, since it is for the sake of the hope of Israel that I am bound with this chain.” They replied, “We have received no letters from Judea about you, and none of the brothers coming here has reported or spoken anything evil about you. But we would like to hear from you what you think, with regard to this sect we know that everywhere it is spoken against.”

16 After they had set a day to meet with him, they came to him at his lodgings in great numbers. From morning until evening he explained the matter to them, testifying to the kingdom of God and trying to convince them about Jesus both from the law of Moses and from the prophets. Some were convinced by what he had said, while others refused to believe. So they disagreed with each other; and as they were leaving, Paul made one further statement: “The Holy Spirit was right in saying to your ancestors through the prophet Isaiah,

24 ‘Go to this people and say, You will indeed listen, but never understand, and you will indeed look, but never perceive.

4: Justice, here a deity. 5: Lk 10.19; Mk 16.18 (Ps 91.13). 7: Leading man, a local official on Malta. 8–9: Lk 4.38–40.

28.11–16: The journey to Rome. Paul goes by sea to Syracuse, Rhegium, and Puteoli, then by land to the capital. 11: Three months (see 27.9n.) would be too soon to have set sail but is just an approximation. The Twin Brothers, the Dioscuri, Castor and Pollux, patron deities of sailors. 12: Syracuse, capital city of the island of Sicily. 13: Rhegium, port city on the Italian coast opposite Sicily. Puteoli, modern Pozzuoli, on the north side of the Bay of Naples. 14: Believers, there are already Christians at Rome (see 18.2n.). 15: The Forum of Appius was 40 mi (65 km) from Rome, and the Three Taverns 30 mi (50 km), both on the Via Appia. 16: The “we” passages (16.10n.) end here. By himself, apparently in private quarters.

28.17–28: Paul and the Jews of Rome. 17: Even as a captive Paul sticks to the pattern of speaking to Jews first (9.20n.; 13.5n.; 17.2n.). 20: The hope of Israel is now bound up with Christianity. 23: Kingdom of God, 1.3n.; the prophets, 26.22–23n. 24: The reception is mixed as it has been all along (17.11–12n.). 26–27: Isa 6.9–10 is used 27 For this people's heart has grown dull, and their ears are hard of hearing,
and they have shut their eyes;
so that they might not look with their eyes,
and listen with their ears,
and understand with their heart and turn—
and I would heal them.'

28 Let it be known to you then that this salvation of God has been sent to the Gentiles; they will listen."\(^a\)

30 He lived there two whole years at his own expense\(^b\) and welcomed all who came to him, \(^{31}\)proclaiming the kingdom of God and teaching about the Lord Jesus Christ with all boldness and without hindrance.

\(^a\) Other ancient authorities add verse 29, And when he had said these words, the Jews departed, arguing vigorously among themselves

\(^b\) Or in his own hired dwelling

elsewhere to explain Jewish rejection of the gospel (see Mt 13.14–15; Jn 12.40; cf. Rom 9–11). 28: The “turn to the Gentiles” of 13.46; 18.6 is repeated. It is no more a final rejection than the previous instances were but may indicate the social reality of Luke’s day.

28.30–31: Conclusion. Though under house arrest (v. 16) Paul preached without hindrance for two whole years.
This page intentionally left blank
INTRODUCTION TO THE LETTERS/EPISTLES IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

CLASSIFICATION AND AUTHORSHIP OF THE NEW TESTAMENT LETTERS

Letters, or epistles, are the earliest documents in the New Testament and its most common literary form: Some scholars date 1 Thessalonians before 50 ce, about twenty years before Mark, the earliest of the Gospels, and there are twenty-one separate letters in the New Testament. Thirteen are from Paul or his missionary associates: Romans, 1 and 2 Corinthians, Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, Galatians, 1 and 2 Thessalonians, 1 and 2 Timothy, Titus, and Philemon. When the book of Hebrews was attributed to Paul, the number of Pauline letters in ancient manuscripts and lists came to fourteen. Another seven letters, which appear to be pseudonymously attributed to other apostles, round out the group: 1 and 2 Peter; 1, 2, and 3 John; James; and Jude. The Greek word epistole (“letter”) originally referred to an oral communication sent by messenger (Herodotus, Histories 4.10.1). Even in the New Testament period, the letter-carrier might be entrusted with crucial information about a letter’s content that was conveyed to its recipients orally. Paul often includes missionary associates in the greeting of his letters (1 Cor 1.1; 2 Cor 1.1; Phil 1.1; Col 1.1; 1 Thess 1.1; Philem 1). He omits them in Galatians, where he has no future plans to visit the region, and in Romans, addressed to a church he did not found. Ephesians lacks a specific destination in the best manuscripts and may be an exhortation sent to several churches in Asia Minor by a later disciple of Paul.

Several other Pauline epistles also differ in language and theological emphasis from the major Pauline letters. The Pastoral Epistles (1 and 2 Timothy and Titus; see p. 2084), addressed to his key assistants, treat them as youthful leaders of local churches. The Pastoral Epistles look to a future in which Christians are established in the larger society. While both 1 and 2 Thessalonians have as their principal theme the return of the Lord Jesus in the end time, the second letter seeks to moderate expectations that the last days are at hand. This change in eschatological perspective, as well as its warning against pseudo-Pauline writings, has led some scholars to conclude that 2 Thessalonians was written by a later disciple of Paul as well. Since Paul had a number of close associates in his missionary activities, it would not be surprising if they used a familiar medium, the apostolic letter, to continue dealing with concrete issues in the churches of the Pauline mission. Although many of the letters unquestionably by Paul are considerably longer than ordinary private letters, they address concrete situations in the churches.

Ephesians, however, lacks not only an address but also references to specific individuals or problems. Among the non-Pauline letters, Hebrews and James also appear to be tractates or general exhortations, rather than letters to specific communities. Jude addresses a sharp apocalyptic warning to Christians in general. First John speaks to concrete problems in its church circles, but lacks the form of a letter; 2 and 3 John are both personal letters, though addressed to different problems. First Peter uses the letter form as exhortation for suffering Christians in Asia Minor. Finally, 2 Peter appears to be the latest epistle in the New Testament. It contains a possible allusion to the Gospel account of the transfiguration of Jesus (1.16–18; see Mk 9.2–8) and refers to Christians who misinterpret Paul’s letters (3.15–16). Like 2 Timothy, 2 Peter is presented as the last testament of an apostle. It affirms the unity of apostolic teaching concerning the “day of the Lord” (3.1–14) against some who used Paul’s authority to deny that God would end the world.

WRITING AND SENDING LETTERS IN THE GRECO-ROMAN WORLD

Letters from Greco-Roman antiquity include imperial decrees addressed to subjects in a particular area, such as that by the Roman emperor Claudius to “the city of Alexandria” in Egypt in 41 ce concerning Jewish agitation for citizen rights; collections of philosophical letters by prominent figures like Cicero, Pliny, and Seneca; and hundreds of papyri from Egypt documenting the concerns of ordinary people. Royal diplomatic correspondence has its own formalities of language, which are echoed in the so-called letters that the heavenly Christ addresses to the angels of the churches in Revelation 2–3. Philosophical letters often use a highly formal rhetoric, which indicates that such letters were intended to be preserved for posterity. They are typically longer than private letters, which are generally described as “documentary” to distinguish them from such literary creations. Authors often retained copies of and revised literary correspondence before committing it to copying for posterity. Documentary letters existed only for one or more immediate purposes, such as dealing with problems at home, urging an absent husband or son to return, reporting on a military posting, pleading for legal redress, engaging in commerce, describing one’s circumstances to family or friends, and recommending the bearer of the letter to its recipient.
LETTERS

The existence of so many letters from private individuals does not necessarily imply a high rate of literacy among craftsmen, traders, or women. A letter could be dictated to a scribe who would be charged with the actual writing. Even those who could write often preferred to employ the services of a scribe (Rom 16.22; Gal 6.11). The letter-carrier or another party might read the letter at its destination and, depending upon the carrier’s relationship to the sender, might also interpret the content of the letter. Some documentary letters in Egypt suggest that after the letter had been read in Greek, it would have been translated into the local dialect so that the women in the sender’s audience could understand it.

The formal parts of an ancient letter—to be distinguished from other rhetorical patterns authors of literary epistles might use—are straightforward. The opening or superscription identifies sender(s) and recipient(s) and concludes with a greeting or salutation. Epithets, information about geographical locations, and terms of endearment often expand on individuals named. Paul regularly shifts to a Semitic form of salutation, “grace and peace,” expanded with reference to God and Christ Jesus (2 Cor 1.2). When his apostolic authority is an issue between himself and the recipients, that note may be attached as a self-designation (2 Cor 1.1; Rom 1.1–5, a community for which Paul is not a founding apostle). In ancient letters, the opening is often followed by a formal statement of the sender’s wish for the health of the recipients. Such formulas may also be used to close the letter. Another common formula expresses the sender’s prayer to the gods or thanksgiving on behalf of the recipients. In the Pauline letter type, this conventional way of opening a letter usually develops into a much longer thanksgiving or blessing section. That section often previews items from the body of the letter that follows.

After the opening formalities, the body of the letter states the actual business or request that is the reason for the letter. The sender may either give information about his own future travel plans or request it about others. Paul usually has such travel reports near the end of the body of the letter. Various formulas can be used to conclude the letter. Often greetings are given from or to others not mentioned in the body of the letter.

Once the letter was written, the sender had to find a person to deliver the letter to its recipient. Often the presence of someone who was on the way to the desired location provided an opportunity for writing. There was no guaranteed overnight delivery in antiquity! Even letters entrusted to friends for delivery had an uncertain fate. Under the best of circumstances a response was weeks or months away. The sender would ordinarily retain a copy, and some scholars have suggested that the first collection of Paul’s letters was due to the apostle’s own editing of his copies of Romans, 1 and 2 Corinthians, and Galatians. This hypothesis accounts for the start of the process of collecting and editing Pauline letters, but lacking any specific manuscript evidence, it remains speculative.
THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE ROMANS

NAME AND AUTHORSHIP
This letter is named for its recipients, the community of believers in Christ in the city of Rome. Although, because of its length, it is the first of the letters of Paul in the New Testament, Romans was probably the latest of Paul’s undisputed letters to be written (see “Letters/Epistles in the New Testament,” pp. 1973–74).

DATE OF COMPOSITION AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT
The letter was occasioned in part by circumstances in Rome during the reign of the emperor Nero (54–68 CE). Among those to whom Paul sends greetings in ch 16 are Prisca and Aquila, known from Acts 18.2 as among the Jews expelled from Rome by the emperor Claudius around 49 CE. Their presence in Rome at the time Paul writes may reflect Nero’s suspension of that edict (Suetonius, Life of Claudius 25.3; add to abbr list?). The recent return of Jews to the imperial capital, including Jewish believers in Christ like Prisca and Aquila, who had been driven out and probably lost property and community ties during their exile, may have aroused tensions within house groups (see 16.5n.) in which non-Judean (“Gentile”) believers had become predominant.

Paul’s appeal to Gentiles among the Roman faithful not to “boast” over Jews (11.13–36) comes at the end of chs 9–11, the climax of the letter. Paul’s argument responds to an incipient anti-Judaism, which was already established among Roman aristocrats and was beginning to emerge among Gentile believers as well. Given the horrors of an anti-Jewish pogrom in Alexandria in Egypt (38–41 CE), and even more recent market tax riots that had turned deadly in Puteoli, a city south of Rome, Paul was concerned to prevent in Rome the sort of civic disturbance in which the city’s minority Jewish population would be especially vulnerable. This danger may explain the notorious exhortation to “be subject to the governing authorities” (13.1–7n.). Similarly, Paul’s admonitions regarding the “weak in faith,” concerned with the observance of diet and special days (14.1–15.13), address tensions between Jews who retained their observance of the law and Gentile believers in Christ who did not.

CONTENTS AND STRUCTURE
The letter to the Romans contains the longest and most complex sustained argument in any of Paul’s letters even though it is addressed to believers in Christ whom he has never met (1.13). For these reasons the letter, especially chs 1–8, has often been read as Paul’s theological last will and testament, a reflection on and a summary of the gospel of salvation in Christ. It was also intended to persuade the faithful in Rome to support Paul’s intended mission to Spain (15.23–24).

Paul had more in view than creating a base for future missionary endeavors. He meant to proclaim to the faithful in Rome the gospel, “the power of God for salvation” (1.15–16; 15.18–19), and by so doing strengthen and encourage them (1.11–12). Romans is, like Paul’s other letters, an instrument of moral instruction and exhortation (see 15.14–15).

A dogmatically oriented reading of Romans has traditionally identified a “thesis” in 1.16–17, which is developed in proofs that all humanity has sinned (1.18–3.20) and that God nevertheless justifies human beings through faith, bringing freedom from sin, law, and death (3.21–8.39). On this reading, chs 9–11 have seemed somewhat tangential, as Paul defends his gospel from implications that in it God’s covenant with Israel is nulified. Chapters 12–15 are read as stereotyped exhortations with little bearing on the Roman situation (Paul’s declaration of confidence in 15.14 being taken at face value), followed by standard greetings in Rom 16.

A different outline follows if we take seriously the indications that chs 9–11 are the climax of the letter. Elements that ordinarily mark the beginning of a letter body appear first at 9:1: the disclosure formula, intensified by an oath, and an expression of deep pathos. The burden of argument in 9–11 is to warn the Gentile audience not to boast against an apparently vanquished Israel. But if these chapters are the letter’s climax, all that comes before can be seen as a long insinuatio—the “indirect approach” recommended when a speaker’s topic is controversial or unpopular (as we may imagine the status of Judeans under Roman rule had become, after recent events in Alexandria, Judea, and Rome itself). Readers may get a sense of the intended rhetorical effect if they first read 8.18–39—a familiar and much-treasured assurance of the love of God—then follow it immediately with 9.1–4, noticing how the testimony of the Spirit, the status of “children of God,” and the theme of separation from God play a role in both passages.

The “theme” of the letter is universal accountability to God’s justice, developed first in 1.18–2.16, then augmented rhetorically as Paul calls on a fellow Jew to agree that no one is free from God’s judgment (2.17–3.31). Abraham’s faithfulness makes him the ancestor of all the faithful, not Jews only (ch 4); salvation in Christ means more than exoneration, it means freedom from the power of sin (chs 5–6), and only on that basis is it freedom from law (ch 7). The exultant description of empowered life in the Spirit as children of God (ch 8) provides a rhetorical foil for the appeal on behalf of Israel, to whom that status first belongs (9.4–5). In this light, the hortatory chs 12–15 are directed to shape a life of respectful mutuality between Jews and Gentiles in Rome.

Interpretation and Guide to Reading

The theme of God’s “righteousness” (1.17) or “justice” (as the same Gk word is translated in 3.5) resonates throughout the letter. At stake is God’s faithfulness in the face of human faithlessness, as the rhetorical questions that punctuate the letter show (2.3–4, 21–23; 3.3, 7, 9, 27, 29; 4.1; 6.1–3, 15–16; 7.7, 13; 9.14, 19, 30; 11.1, 11). God’s justice is manifest in the uncompromising judgment of all impiety and wickedness, and also in unwavering loyalty to the covenant with Israel. Paul wants the faithful of Rome to respect God’s integrity in the salvation offered them through the faithful obedience of Jesus (5.6, 18–19; see 3.22, 26n.).

Paul is Christ’s apostle, obligated to “bring about the obedience of faith among all the Gentiles” (or “nations”), among whom he includes his Roman audience (1.1–6). He declares the gospel of God’s salvation to all who believe, Jews and Greeks alike, but “to the Jew first” (1.16). The priority of the Jews in God’s plan of salvation is an important theme in the letter (3.1–2; 9.1–4). Paul’s mission to Gentiles should provoke his fellow Jews to jealousy (11.13–14), perhaps by convincing them that the last days prophesied by Isaiah were at hand (see 15.12). At last, Paul declares, “all Israel will be saved” (11.26), and all the nations will join Israel in the worship of the one true God (15.7–13).

As he writes, the apostle is about to present to the “saints” in Jerusalem both monetary aid from churches in his mission field (15.25–27) and an embassy of Gentile converts (1 Cor 16.3–4; on the catastrophe of this Jerusalem mission, see Acts 21.27–30). Although the Roman believers have not had the opportunity to contribute to this collection, Paul asks for their prayers (15.30–32). He also invites his readers to participate in the “offering of the Gentiles” (15.15–16) by exhorting them to holy living, which he describes as their sacrificial offering to God (12.1–3; 15.7–9).

The theological convictions expressed in the Letter to the Romans resemble those in letters to congregations Paul himself had founded. Those who have been baptized into Christ must no longer let sin have dominion over them (6.1–14). They are no longer to live as the unbelieving world does (1.18–32), but to give “spiritual worship” to God through sobriety of thought and bodily purity (12.1–3). Just so Paul had reminded the Corinthians, Galatians, and Thessalonians that they must no longer live as “the Gentiles who do not know God,” having been sanctified by Christ (1 Cor 6.9–11; Gal 5.22–24; 1 Thess 4.1–5).

Universal accountability before God, Paul’s theme in the early chapters of the letter, is more specifically applied in chs 12–15. Rather than being a treatise on salvation in Christ, Romans is a sustained appeal for holy living, directed to Gentiles tempted to look down on their beleaguered Jewish neighbors, within the community of believers in Christ and without. The apostle’s call to realize in common life the justice of God which believers celebrate is the letter’s enduring legacy.

Neil Elliott
Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, called to be an apostle, set apart for the gospel of God, which he promised beforehand through his prophets in the holy scriptures, the gospel concerning his Son, who was descended from David according to the flesh and was declared to be Son of God with power according to the spirit of holiness by resurrection from the dead, Jesus Christ our Lord, through whom we have received grace and apostleship to bring about the obedience of faith among all the Gentiles for the sake of his name, including yourselves who are called to belong to Jesus Christ, whom I serve with my spirit by announcing the gospel that without ceasing I remember you always in my prayers, asking that by God's will I may somehow at last succeed in coming to you. For I am longing to see you so that I may share with you some spiritual gift to strengthen you—or rather so that we may be mutually encouraged by each other's faith, both yours and mine. I want you to know, brothers and sisters, that I have often intended to come to you (but thus far have been prevented), in order that I may reap some harvest among you as I have among the rest of the Gentiles. I am a debtor both to Greeks and to barbarians, both to the wise and to the foolish—hence my eagerness to proclaim the gospel to you also who are in Rome.

For I am not ashamed of the gospel; it is the power of God for salvation to everyone who has faith, to the Jew first and also to the Greek. For God, who has faith, to the Jew first and also to the Gentile, is my witness that without ceasing I remember you always in my prayers, asking that by God's will I may somehow at last succeed in coming to you. For I am longing to see you so that I may share with you some spiritual gift to strengthen you—or rather so that we may be mutually encouraged by each other's faith, both yours and mine. I want you to know, brothers and sisters, that I have often intended to come to you (but thus far have been prevented), in order that I may reap some harvest among you as I have among the rest of the Gentiles. I am a debtor both to Greeks and to barbarians, both to the wise and to the foolish—hence my eagerness to proclaim the gospel to you also who are in Rome.
For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and wickedness of those who by their wickedness suppress the truth. For what can be known about God is plain to them, because God has shown it to them. Ever since the creation of the world his eternal power and divine nature, invisible though they are, have been understood and seen through the things he has made. So they are without excuse; for though they knew God, they did not honor him as God or give thanks to him, but they became futile in their thinking, and their senseless minds were darkened. Claiming to be wise, they became fools; and they exchanged the glory of the immortal God for images resembling a mortal human being or birds or four-footed animals or reptiles.

Therefore God gave them up in the lusts of their hearts to impurity, to the degrading of their bodies among themselves, because they exchanged the truth about God for a lie and worshiped and served the creature rather than the Creator, who is blessed forever! Amen.

For this reason God gave them up to degrading passions. Their women exchanged natural intercourse for unnatural, and in the same way also the men, giving up natural intercourse with women, were consumed with passion for one another. Men committed shameful acts with men and received in their own persons the due penalty for their error.

And since they did not see fit to acknowledge God, God gave them up to a debased mind and to things that should not be done. They were filled with every kind of wickedness, evil, covetousness, malice. Full of envy, murder, strife, deceit, craftiness, they are gossips, slanderers, God-haters, insolent, haughty, boastful, inventors of evil, rebellious toward parents, foolish, heartless, ruthless. They know God’s decree, that those who practice such things deserve to die—but they not only do them but even applaud others who practice them.

Therefore you have no excuse, whoever you are, when you judge others; for in passing judgment on another you condemn yourself, because you, the judge, are doing the very same things. You say, “We know...”

[Notes: a Or The one who is righteous through faith will live b Or God-hated c Gk lacks You say] that God’s judgment on those who do such things is in accordance with truth.” 3 Do you imagine, whoever you are, that when you judge those who do such things and yet do them yourself, you will escape the judgment of God? 4 Or do you despise the riches of his kindness and forbearance and patience? Do you not realize that God’s kindness is meant to lead you to repentance? 5 But by your hard and impenitent heart you are storing up wrath for yourself on the day of wrath, when God’s righteous judgment will be revealed. 6 For he will repay according to each one’s deeds: 7 to those who by patiently doing good seek for glory and honor and immortality, he will give eternal life; 8 while for those who are self-seeking and who obey not the truth of God, they will be condemned. 9 There will be anguish and distress for everyone who does evil, the Jew first and also the Greek, 10 but glory and honor and peace for everyone who does good, the Jew first and also the Greek. 11 For God shows no partiality. 12 All who have sinned apart from the law will also perish apart from the law, and all who have sinned under the law will be judged by the law. 13 For it is not the hearers of the law who are righteous in God’s sight, but the doers of the law who will be justified. 14 When Gentiles, who do not possess the law, do instinctively what the law requires, these, though not having the law, are a law to themselves. 15 They show that what the law requires is written on their hearts, to which their own conscience also bears witness; and their conflicting thoughts will accuse or perhaps excuse them 16 on the day when, according to my gospel, God, through Jesus Christ, will judge the secret thoughts of all. 17 But if you call yourself a Jew and rely on the law and boast of your relation to God 18 and know his will and determine what is best because you are instructed in the law, 19 and if you are sure that you are a guide to the blind, a light to those who are in darkness, 20 a corrector of the foolish, a teacher of children, having in the law the embodiment of knowledge and truth, 21 you, then, that teach others, will you not teach yourself? While you preach against stealing, do you steal? 22 You that forbid adultery, do you commit adultery? You that abhor idols, do you rob temples? 23 You that boast in the law, do you dishonor God by breaking the law? 24 For, God will have mercy on some by exempting them from punishment (2.4). 2: You say, these words, lacking in Gk, have been added to express one interpretation of this passage as a “trap” for “the Jew,” who judges those indicted in 1:18–22. Jews are not clearly addressed before 2.17. Here, any are condemned who know that God’s judgment . . . is in accordance with truth, yet do the very same things they condemn in others (2.13). 4: Do you despise . . . kindness, the question is rhetorical. Paul warns the baptized not to presume God’s grace in 6.15. 5: Day of wrath, the time of divine judgment (see Isa 2.12n.; 13.9,13; Lam 2.1; 1 Thess 1.10; etc.), understood in early Christian thought to be imminent and universal (e.g., 13.12; 2 Pet 3.10). God’s punishment of sin coheres with God’s righteousness (see 1.17–18). 6–11: Judgment according to one’s works: see 2 Cor 11.15; in Jas 2.14–26 the Gk word “erga,” translated deeds here, is “works.” 9–10: The Jew is first in salvation (1.16; 3.1–2), therefore also in responsibility. Anguish and distress, eschatological woe (2 Cor 4.8). 11: No partiality, Deut 10.17; 2 Chr 19.7. No discrimination compromises God’s justice. 12: Apart from the law, or “in a lawless manner”; under the law, or “while living within the law.” The translation given here implies a distinction between Gentiles and Jews. Paul’s larger point is that all shall be judged by the same standard: doing what the law requires (v. 15). 13: Hearers and doers, Mt 7.21; Jas 1.22–25. Doers of the law . . . will be justified, see 3.20n. 14–15: Ancient Judaism acknowledged righteous Gentiles who did “by nature” what the law requires, lit., “the work of the law.” For Paul, those who walk according to the Spirit fulfill the law’s “just requirement” (8.4). 15: Their own conscience also bears witness, thus they acknowledge the validity of God’s law. A similar argument appears in 7:14–22.

2.17–29: Does a Jew relieve one from accountability to God? Paul makes his point through imaginary conversation with a Jew (the diatribe style). 17: Although vv. 17–24 have often been read as an “indictment” of the Jew, Paul considers Israel’s privileges real (see 3.1–9; 9.1–4). Boast, Paul warns repeatedly against groundless boasting before God (see 2.23; 3.27; 4.5; 5.1–3.11; 11.17–20). 21–23: Will you not teach yourself? Paul interrogates an imaginary witness, whose testimony leads to the conclusions in vv. 25–29. Israel’s covenantal privileges do not lessen accountability before God. 22: Do you rob temples? While the Torah forbade idolatry, Jews in Paul’s day were careful not to desecrate shrines to other gods (Philo, De Conf. Ling. 163; Josephus, Ap. 269; Ant. 4.207).
as it is written, “The name of God is blasphemed among the Gentiles because of you.”

25 Circumcision indeed is of value if you obey the law; but if you break the law, your circumcision has become uncircumcision. 26 So, if those who are uncircumcised keep the requirements of the law, will not their uncircumcision be regarded as circumcision? 27 Then those who are physically uncircumcised but keep the law will condemn you that have the written code and circumcision but break the law. 28 For a person is not a Jew who is one outwardly, nor is true circumcision something external and physical. 29 Rather, a person is a Jew who is one inwardly, and real circumcision is a matter of the heart—it is spiritual and not literal. Such a person receives praise not from others but from God.

3 Then what advantage has the Jew? Or what is the value of circumcision?

2 Much, in every way. For in the first place the Jews[a] were entrusted with the oracles of God. 3 What if some were unfaithful? Will their faithlessness nullify the faithfulness of God? 4 By no means! Although everyone is a liar, let God be proved true, as it is written, “So that you may be justified in your words, and prevail in your judging.”

5 But if our injustice serves to confirm the justice of God, what should we say? That God is unjust to inflict wrath on us? (I speak in a human way.) 6 By no means! For then how could God judge the world? 7 But if through my falsehood God’s truthfulness abounds to his glory, why am I still being condemned as a sinner? 8 And why not say (as some people slander us by saying that we say), “Let us do evil so that good may come”? Their condemnation is deserved!

9 What then? Are we any better off?c No, not at all; for we have already charged that all, both Jews and Greeks, are under the power of sin, 10 as it is written:

“There is no one who is righteous, not even one;

11 there is no one who has understanding, there is no one who seeks God.

12 All have turned aside, together they have become worthless; there is no one who shows kindness, there is not even one.”

13 “Their throats are opened graves; they use their tongues to deceive.”

“The venom of vipers is under their lips.”

14 “Their mouths are full of cursing and bitterness.”

15 “Their feet are swift to shed blood; ruin and misery are in their paths, and the way of peace they have not known.”

16 “There is no fear of God before their eyes.”

19 Now we know that whatever the law says, it speaks to those who are under the law, so that every mouth may be silenced, and the whole world may be held accountable to God. 20 For “no human being will be justified in his sight” by deeds prescribed by the law, for through the law comes the knowledge of sin.

21 But now, apart from law, the righteousness of God has been disclosed, and is attested by the law and the prophets, 22 the righteousness of God through faith in Jesus Christ 23 for all who believe. For there is no distinction, 23 since all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God; 24 they are now justified by his grace as a gift, through the faith of Jesus Christ, 25 whom God put forward as a sacrifice of atonement by his blood, effective through faith. He did this to show his righteousness, because in by his blood, effective through faith. He did this to show his righteousness, because in his divine forbearance he had passed over the sins previously committed; 26 it was to prove at the present time that he himself is righteous and that he justifies the one who has faith in Jesus. 27 Then what becomes of boasting? It is excluded. By what law? By that of works? No, but by the law of faith. 28 For we hold that a person is justified by faith apart from works prescribed by the law. 29 Or is God the God of Jews only? Is he not the God of Gentiles also? Yes, of Gentiles also, 30 since God is one; and he will justify the circumcised on the ground of faith and the uncircumcised through that same faith. 31 Do we then overthrow the law by this faith? By no means! On the contrary, we uphold the law.

4 What then are we to say was gained by 4 Abraham, our ancestor according to the flesh? 2 For if Abraham was justified by works, he has something to boast about, but not before God. 3 For what does the scripture say? “Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness.” 4 Now to one who works, wages are not reckoned as a gift but as something due. 5 But to one who without works trusts him who justifies the one who has faith in Jesus.

2 Or through the faith of Jesus Christ
3 Or a place of atonement
4 Or who has the faith of Jesus
5 Other ancient authorities read say about fies the ungodly, such faith is reckoned as righteousness. 6 So also David speaks of the blessedness of those to whom God reckons righteousness apart from works:

7 “Blessed are those whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered; 8 blessed is the one against whom the Lord will not reckon sin.”

9 Is this blessedness, then, pronounced only on the circumcised, or also on the uncircumcised? We say, “Faith was reckoned to him who was not circumcised (Gen 15.6), before he was circumcised; it was not after, but before he was circumcised. 10 He received the sign of circumcision as a seal of the righteousness that he had by faith while he was still uncircumcised. The purpose was to make him the ancestor of all who believe without being circumcised and who thus have righteousness reckoned to them, 11 and likewise the ancestor of the circumcised who are not only circumcised but who also follow the example of the faith that our ancestor Abraham had before he was circumcised.

12 For the promise that he would inherit the world did not come to Abraham or to his descendants through the law but through the righteousness of faith. 13 If it is the adherents of the law who are to be the heirs, faith is null and the promise is void. 14 For the law brings wrath; but where there is no law, neither is there violation.

15 For this reason it depends on faith, in order that the promise may rest on grace and be guaranteed to all his descendants, not only to the adherents of the law but also to those who share the faith of Abraham (for he is the father of all of us, 16 as it is written, “I have made you the father of many nations”)—in the presence of the God in whom he believed, who gives life to the dead and calls into existence the things that do not exist. 18 Hoping against hope, he believed that he would become “the father of many nations,” according to what was said, “So numerous shall your descendants be.” 19 He did not weaken in faith when he considered his own body, which was already as good as dead (for he was about a hundred years old), or when he considered the barrenness of Sarah’s womb. 20 No distrust made him waver concerning the promise of God, but he grew strong in his faith as he gave glory to God, 21 being fully convinced that God was able to do what he had promised. 22 Therefore his faith was reckoned to him as righteousness.

a Other ancient authorities lack already b Gk Therefore it

the ungodly, Paul shares his contemporaries’ view that God had called Abraham out of idolatry (see Gen 12.1–4; 13.4; 17.9–14, 22–27). Abraham’s faithful response stands in contrast with the “ungodliness” of the Greco-Roman world (1.18) and provides the prototype for God’s justification of the ungodly through Christ’s death (5.6). 6–8: Paul quotes Ps 32.1–2 (LXX) to introduce the theme of blessedness (Gen 12.2–3; Gal 3.8). 9–12: Abraham was justified (Gen 15.6) before he was circumcised (Gen 17.24), on account of his faith; therefore he could be ancestor of both circumcised (Gen 12.2; 15.13–14) and uncircumcised (Gen 17.5; see v. 17). 12: The faith that . . . Abraham had, his faithful response to God (vv. 5, 7). 13–15: God’s promise comes through the righteousness of faith, or “faithful righteousness,” like that of Abraham (vv. 16, 20), not through the law. 14: The adherents of the law, compare “hearers of the law” in 2.13. Faith is null and the promise is void, if God’s blessing included only those who had already performed the law they possessed (3.3–4; 9.6–9). 15: The law brings wrath, Paul may have in mind the solemn curses pronounced on the disobedient in Lev 26 and Deut 28. But where there is no law . . . violation, Abraham did not stand under the law when he responded to God in faith.

4.16–25: Inclusion in the heritage of Abraham’s faith. 16: Not only . . . but also, Jews and Gentiles alike inherit God’s promise as they share the faith of Abraham. 17: Gen 17.5. Abraham’s faith in God’s promise despite his own “dead” body (v. 19) is an example for all those who trust God who raised Jesus . . . from the dead (v. 24). God’s power to call into existence the things that do not exist is a key theme in the letter (v. 24; 6.4–5; 9.11–17; 8.11; 9.25–26; 11.5). Contrast Abraham’s faith with those who refuse to acknowledge God through creation (1.20–22). 18: Gen 15.5. Hoping against hope, see 8.24–25. 19: See Gen 17.17. 20–21: God’s ability to do what he had promised is at stake throughout Romans, especially regarding Israel (3.3–4; 9.6). Gave glory to God, again Abraham is contrasted with the ungodly of 1.21–24; see 15.9–12. 22–23: Gen 15.6.
his sake alone, but for ours also. It will be reckoned to us who believe in him who raised Jesus our Lord from the dead, who was handed over to death for our trespasses and was raised for our justification.

Therefore, since we are justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have obtained access by his blood, will we be saved through him surely, having been reconciled, will we be saved by his life. But more than that, we even boast in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received reconciliation.

Therefore, just as sin came into the world through one man, and death came through sin, and so death spread to all because all have sinned—sin was indeed in the world before the law, but sin is not reckoned when there is no law. Yet death exercised dominion from Adam to Moses, even over those whose sins were not like the transgression of Adam, who is a type of the one who was to come.

But the free gift is not like the trespass. For if the many died through the one man’s trespass, much more surely have the grace of God and the free gift in the grace of the one man, Jesus Christ, abounded for the many.

And the free gift is not like the effect of the one man’s sin. For the judgment following one trespass brought condemnation, but the free gift following many trespasses brings justification. If, because of the one man’s trespass, death exercised dominion through... that one, much more surely will those who receive the abundance of grace and the free gift of righteousness exercise dominion in life through the one man, Jesus Christ.

18 Therefore just as one man’s trespass led to condemnation for all, so one man’s act of righteousness leads to justification and life for all. 19 For just as by the one man’s disobedience the many were made sinners, so by the one man’s obedience the many will be made righteous. 20 But law came in, with the result that the trespass multiplied; but where sin increased, grace abounded all the more, 21 so that, just as sin exercised dominion in death, so grace might also exercise dominion through justification leading to eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

6 What then are we to say? Should we continue in sin in order that grace may abound? 2 By no means! How can we who died to sin go on living in it? 3 Do you not know that all of us who have been baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death? 4 Therefore we have been buried with him by baptism into death, so that, just as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, so we too might walk in newness of life.

5 For if we have been united with him in a death like his, we will certainly be united with him in a resurrection like his. 6 We know that our old self was crucified with him so that the body of sin might be destroyed, and we might no longer be enslaved to sin. 7 For whoever has died is freed from sin. 8 But if we have died with Christ, we believe that we will also live with him. 9 We know that Christ, being raised from the dead, will never die again; death no longer has dominion over him. 10 The death he died, he died to sin, once for all; but the life he lives, he lives to God. 11 So you also must consider yourselves dead to sin and alive to God in Christ Jesus.

12 Therefore, do not let sin exercise dominion in your mortal bodies, to make you obey their passions. 13 No longer present your members to sin as instruments of wickedness, but present yourselves to God as those who have been brought from death to life, and present your members to God as instruments of righteousness.

14 For sin will have no dominion over you, since you are not under law but under grace.

15 What then? Should we sin because we are not under law but under grace? By no means! 16 Do you not know that if you present yourselves to anyone as obedient slaves, you are slaves of the one whom you obey, either of sin, which leads to death, or of obedience, which leads to righteousness?

17 But thanks be to God that you, having once been slaves of sin, have become obedient from the heart to the form of teaching to which you were entrusted, 18 and that you, having been set free from sin, have become slaves of righteousness. 19 I am speaking in human terms because of your natural limitations. For just as you once presented your members as slaves to impurity and to greater and greater iniquity, so now present your members as slaves to righteousness for sanctification.

20 When you were slaves of sin, you were free in regard to righteousness. 21 So what advantage did you then get from the things of which you now are ashamed? The end of those things is death. 22 But now that you have been freed from sin and enslaved to God, the advantage you get is sanctification. The end is eternal life. 23 For the wages of sin is death, but the free gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord.

Do you not know, brothers and sisters— for I am speaking to those who know the law—that the law is binding on a person only during that person’s lifetime? 2 Thus a married woman is bound by the law to her husband as long as he lives; but if her husband dies, she is discharged from the law concerning the husband. Accordingly, she will be called an adulteress if she lives with another man while her husband is alive. But if her husband dies, she is free from that law, and if she marries another man, she is not an adulteress.

4 In the same way, my friends, you have died to the law through the body of Christ, so that you may belong to another, to him who has been raised from the dead in order that we may bear fruit for God. 5 While we were living in the flesh, our sinful passions, aroused by the law, were at work in our members to bear fruit for death. 6 But now we are discharged from the law, dead to that which held us captive, so that we are slaves not under the old written code but in the new life of the Spirit.

7 What then should we say? That the law is sin? By no means! Yet, if it had not been for the law, I would not have known sin. I would not have known what it is to covet if the law had not said, “You shall not covet.” 8 But sin, seizing an opportunity in the commandment, produced in me all kinds of covetousness. Apart from the law sin lies dead. 9 I was once alive apart from the law, but when the commandment came, sin revived and I died, and the very commandment that promised life proved to be death to me. 10 For sin, seizing an opportunity in the commandment, deceived me and through it killed me. 11 So the law is holy, and the commandment is holy and just and good.

12 Did what is good, then, bring death to me? By no means! It was sin, working death in me through what is good, in order that sin might be shown to be sin, and through the commandment might become sinful beyond measure.

a Gk the weakness of your flesh
b Gk brothers
For we know that the law is spiritual; but I am of the flesh, sold into slavery under sin.\(^a\) I do not understand my own actions. For I do not do what I want, but I do the very thing I hate.\(^b\) Now if I do what I do not want, I agree that the law is good.\(^c\) But in fact it is no longer I that do it, but sin that dwells within me.\(^d\) For I know that nothing good dwells within me, that is, in my flesh. I can will what is right, but I cannot do it.\(^e\) For I do not do the good I want, but the evil I do not want is what I do.\(^f\) Now if I do what I do not want, it is no longer I that do it, but sin that dwells within me.

21So I find it to be a law that when I want to do what is good, evil lies close at hand.\(^g\) For I delight in the law of God in my inmost self,\(^h\) but I see in my members another law at war with the law of my mind, making me captive to the law of sin that dwells in my members.\(^i\) Wretched man that I am! Who will rescue me from this body of death?\(^j\) Thanks be to God through Jesus Christ our Lord!

So then, with my mind I am a slave to the law of God, but with my flesh I am a slave to the law of sin.

8 There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus.\(^k\) For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus has set you\(^l\) free from the law of sin and of death.\(^m\) For God has done what the law, weakened by the flesh, could not do: by sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and to deal with sin,\(^n\) he condemned sin in the flesh,\(^o\) so that the just requirement of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not according to the flesh but according to the Spirit.\(^p\) For those who live according to the flesh set their minds on the things of the flesh, but those who live according to the Spirit set their minds on the things of the Spirit.\(^q\) To set the mind on the flesh is death, but to set the mind on the Spirit is life and peace.\(^r\) For this reason the mind that is set on the flesh is hostile to God; it does not submit to God's law—indeed it cannot,\(^s\) and those who are in the flesh cannot please God.

9 But you are not in the flesh; you are in the Spirit,\(^t\) since the Spirit of God dwells in you. Anyone who does not have the Spirit of Christ does not belong to him.\(^u\) But if Christ is in you, though the body is dead because of sin, the Spirit is life because of righteousness. If the Spirit of him who raised Jesus from the dead dwells in you, he who raised Christ from the dead will give life to your mortal bodies also through his Spirit that dwells in you.

So then, brothers and sisters, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live according to the flesh— if you live according to the flesh, you will die; but if by the Spirit you put to death the deeds of the body, you will live. For all who are led by the Spirit of God are children of God. For you did not receive a spirit of slavery to fall back into fear, but you received a spirit of adoption. When we cry, “Abba! Father!” it is that very Spirit bearing witness with our spirit that we are children of God, and if children, then heirs, heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ—if, in fact, we suffer with him so that we may also be glorified with him.

I consider that the sufferings of this present time are not worth comparing with the glory about to be revealed to us. For in this present age we groan inwardly, longing to be clothed with our bodies for redemption. But if the Spirit of who raised Jesus from the dead dwells in you, he who raised Christ by the Spirit: Those who live according to the Spirit (or by “faith,” i.e., faithfulness, 4.12,16) are the heirs of the promises given to Abraham, even if not his descendants according to the flesh (4.11–14; Gal 4.5–7). Abba, an Aramaic word which Jesus may have used in his own prayer (Mk 14.36), was retained in prayer by early Christians (Gal 4.6).: if . . . we suffer, the tension between suffering and hope in the glory to come (5.3–5) is characteristic of life during “this present time” (v. 18; 12.12; 1 Cor 4.8–13).

8.18–39: Suffering, and hope in God’s promise. God’s purposes toward his children are much greater than the circumstances of this present time would indicate. This theme is crucial in chs 9–11. 19–22: Paul shares an apocalyptic viewpoint that the present age is evil (see Gal 1.4), having been subjected by God to malevolent spiritual forces (v. 20; 1 Cor 15.20–28; Phil 3.21). Creation itself will participate in the liberation of the children of God. 22: Groaning in labor pains, a frequent apocalyptic metaphor (2 Esd 4.42; 10.5–14; Mt 24.8; Mk 13.8). The inner testimony of the Spirit (vv. 16,26–27) is experienced as intense yearning and hope (5.1–5). Adoption, lit., “sonship,” see 9.4n. 26–27: If we “groan inwardly” (v. 23), it is because of the Spirit at work in our prayers, interceding for the saints. This dramatic language is resumed in 9.1–3. 28–30: The alternative translations in the footnote represent the reading in the earliest manuscript. Paul means, not that all circumstances of this life are good for us (the lament in 8.36 is genuine), but that amid all these things God’s purpose prevails. Those who are called, preeminently Israel (9.4; 11.2); also all those who are “the children of the promise,” including Gentiles.
called according to his purpose.

30 For those whom he foreknew he also predestined to be conformed to the image of his Son, in order that he might be the firstborn within a large family.

31 And those whom he predestined he also called; and those whom he called he also justified; and those whom he justified he also glorified.

32 What then are we to say about these things? If God is for us, who is against us?

33 He who did not withhold his own Son, but gave him up for all of us, will he not with him also give us all things?

34 Who will bring any charge against God’s elect? It is God who justifies.

35 Who is to condemn? It is Christ who justifies.

36 Who is to separate us from the love of Christ? Will hardship, or distress, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?

37 No, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him who loved us.

38 For I am convinced that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor rulers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height, nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord.

9 I am speaking the truth in Christ—I am not lying; my conscience confirms it by the Holy Spirit—

2 I have great sorrow and unceasing anguish in my heart.

3 For I could wish that I myself were accursed and cut off from Christ for the sake of my own people, my kindred according to the flesh.

4 They are Israelites, and to them belong the adoption, the glory, the covenants, the giving of the law, the worship, and the promises; to them belong the patriarchs, and from them, according to the flesh, comes the Messiah, who is over all, God blessed forever.

5 It is not as though the word of God had failed. For not all Israelites truly belong to (9.8,23–26). Conformed to the image of his Son, Phil 3.21; 2 Cor 4.4. Christ the firstborn, 1 Cor 15.20; Col 1.18. 31–39: Previous assurances of God’s love (5.1–11) are reaffirmed; despite all present adversities, God’s purpose will prevail. 34: The heavenly Christ intercedes for us, as in vv. 26–27 the Spirit intercedes for the saints. 35–36: Hardship or sword, very real afflictions, as Israel’s experience testifies; Ps 44.22 is quoted.

Chapters 9–11: The certainty of God’s purposes toward Israel. The preceding argument reaches its climax in these extraordinary chapters, which combine earnest emotional appeal (9.1–5; 10.1–2), exegetical argument (9.6–11.12), the stylized dialogue of the diatribe (9.14,19–21,30–32; 10.14,18; 11.1,4,7,11; see 2.17–29n.), and the stark pronouncement style of the prophets (11.25–27). The dramatic contrast in tone between chs 8 and 9, and the continuity of theme across chs 8–11, confirm Paul’s overarching purpose.

Despite present appearances, God has not abandoned promises made to Israel (9.6; 11.1,11–12,29). The same power that raised Jesus Christ from the dead (10.6–9) can restore Israel as well (11.15,23).

9.1–5: Paul’s anguish for Israel is deeply personal—he speaks of his own people (v. 3)—yet also grounded in God’s promises (v. 4). 1: A solemn oath, confirmed by the Spirit (8.16,23,26–27). 2–3: Paul’s willingness to be cut off from Christ for the sake of Israel is especially poignant after the assurance in 8.39. 4: To them belong the adoption, lit., “sonship.” The same Gk word appeared in 8.15,23. Paul’s point is not that the people of Israel are more “naturally” God’s children (vv. 6–9; 4.11–12), but that their “sonship” (see Ex 4.22–23; Hos 11.1) is prior to that of the Gentiles called in Christ (11.17–24). The glory, Ex 16.10, 24.16–17. The covenants, plural because several are recorded in scripture (Gen 15.8; 17.2,7,9; Ex 2.24; 24.8). Giving of the law, Israel’s privilege (2.17–20). The worship, Israel’s covenant obligation (Ex 3.12; 4.23; 40.16–33; 1 Kings 8.54–66). The promises, of the land (see Gen 15.7; Ex 6.8), or more broadly “the world” (4.13). 5: The patriarchs, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, see Ex 2.24. According to the flesh, see 1.3; 15.8–9. Messiah . . . God blessed forever, whether Christ is called God here depends on the punctuation inserted (see textual note e). Similar Gk phrases are translated as spontaneous praise to God in 1.25; 11.36; 16.25–27.

1988 | NEW TESTAMENT
Israel, 7 and not all of Abraham’s children are his true descendants; but “It is through Isaac that descendants shall be named for you.” 8 This means that it is not the children of the flesh who are the children of God, but the children of the promise are counted as descendants. 9 For this is what the promise said, “About this time I will return and Sarah shall have a son.” 10 Nor is that all; something similar happened to Rebecca when she had conceived children by one husband, our ancestor Isaac. 11 Even before they had been born or had done anything good or bad (so that God’s purpose of election might continue, 12 not by works but by his call) she was told, “The elder shall serve the younger.” 13 As it is written, “I have loved Jacob, but I have hated Esau.”

14 What then are we to say? Is there injustice on God’s part? By no means! 15 For he says to Moses,

“I will have mercy on whom I have mercy, and I will have compassion on whom I have compassion.”

16 So it depends not on human will or exertion, but on God who shows mercy. 17 For the scripture says to Pharaoh, “I have raised you up for the very purpose of showing my power in you, so that my name may be proclaimed in all the earth.” 18 So then he has mercy on whomever he chooses, and he hardens the heart of whomever he chooses.

19 You will say to me then, “Why then does he still find fault? For who can resist his will?”

20 But who indeed are you, a human being, to argue with God? Will what is molded say to the one who molds it, “Why have you made me like this?” 21 Has the potter no right over the clay, to make out of the same lump one object for special use and another for ordinary use? 22 What if God, desiring to show his wrath and to make known his power, has endured with much patience the objects of wrath that are made for destruction; 23 and what if he has done so in order to make known the riches of his glory for the objects of mercy, which he has prepared beforehand for glory— 24 including us whom he has called, not from the Jews only but also from the Gentiles? 25 As indeed he says in Hosea,

“Those who were not my people I will call ‘my people,’ and her who was not beloved I will call ‘beloved.’”

26 “And in the very place where it was said to them, ‘You are not my people,’ there they shall be called children of the living God.”

27 And Isaiah cries out concerning Israel, “Though the number of the children of Israel were like the sand of the sea, only a remnant of them will be saved; 28 for the Lord will... execute his sentence on the earth quickly and decisively.” 3⁰ And as Isaiah predicted, “If the Lord of hosts had not left survivors to us, we would have fared like Sodom and been made like Gomorrah.”

3¹ What then are we to say? Gentiles, who did not strive for righteousness, have attained it, that is, righteousness through faith; 3² but Israel, who did strive for the righteousness that is based on the law, did not succeed in fulfilling that law. 3³ Why not? Because they did not strive for it on the basis of faith, but as if it were based on works. They have stumbled, 3⁴ as it is written, “See, I am laying in Zion a stone that will make people stumble, a rock that will make them fall, and whoever believes in him will not be put to shame.”

10 Brothers and sisters, 4 my heart’s desire and prayer to God for them is that they may be saved. 5 I can testify that they have a zeal for God, but it is not enlightened. ³ For, being ignorant of the righteousness that comes from God, and seeking to establish their own, they have not submitted to God’s righteousness. 4 For Christ is the end of the law so that there may be righteousness for everyone who believes.

5 Moses writes concerning the righteousness that comes from the law, that “the person who does these things will live by them.” 6 But the righteousness that comes from faith says, “Do not say in your heart, ‘Who will ascend into heaven?’” (that is, to bring Christ down) 7 “or ‘Who will descend into the abyss?’” (that is, to bring Christ up from the dead). 8 But what does it say?

“The word is near you, on your lips and in your heart” (that is, the word of faith that we proclaim); 9 because⁶ if you confess with your lips that Jesus is Lord and believe in your heart that God raised him from the dead, you will be saved. ¹⁰ For one believes with the heart and so is justified, and one confesses with the mouth and so is saved. ¹¹ The scripture says, “No one who believes in him will be put to shame.” ¹² For there is no distinction between Jew and Greek; the same Lord is Lord of all and is generous to all who call on him. ¹³ For, “Everyone who calls on the name of the Lord shall be saved.” ¹⁴ But how are they to call on one in whom they have not believed? And how are they a Other ancient authorities read for he will finish his work and cut it short in righteousness, because the Lord will make the sentence shortened on the earth

b Or descendants; Gk seed
c Or trusts in it
d Gk Brothers
e Or namely, that to believe in one of whom they have never heard? And how are they to hear without someone to proclaim him? 15 And how are they to proclaim him unless they are sent? As it is written, “How beautiful are the feet of those who bring good news!” 16 But not all have obeyed the good news; 17 for Isaiah says, “Lord, who has believed our message?” 18 So faith comes from what is heard, and what is heard comes through the word of Christ. 19 But I ask, have they not heard? Indeed they have; for “Their voice has gone out to all the earth, and their words to the ends of the world.” 20 Again I ask, did Israel not understand? First Moses says, “I will make you jealous of those who are not a nation; with a foolish nation I will make you angry.” 21 Then Isaiah is so bold as to say, “I have been found by those who did not seek me; I have shown myself to those who did not ask for me.” 22 But of Israel he says, “All day long I have held out my hands to a disobedient and contrary people.” 11 I ask, then, has God rejected his people? By no means! I myself am an Israelite, a descendant of Abraham, a member of the tribe of Benjamin. 2 God has not rejected his people whom he foreknew. Do you not know what the scripture says of Elijah, how he pleads with God against Israel? 3 “Lord, they have killed your prophets, they have demolished your altars; I alone am left, and they are seeking my life.” 4 But what is the divine reply to him? “I have kept for myself seven thousand who have not bowed the knee to Baal.” 5 So too at the present time there is a remnant, chosen by grace. 6 But if it is by grace, it is no longer on the basis of works, otherwise grace would no longer be grace. 7 What then? Israel failed to obtain what it was seeking. The elect obtained it, but the rest were hardened, 8 as it is written, “God gave them a sluggish spirit, eyes that would not see and ears that would not hear, down to this very day.” 9 And David says, “Let their table become a snare and a trap, a stumbling block and a retribution for them; 10 let their eyes be darkened so that they cannot see, and keep their backs forever bent.” 11 So I ask, have they stumbled so as to fall? By no means! But through their stumbling salvation has come to the Gentiles, so as to make Israel jealous. 12 Now if their stumbling means riches for the world, and if their defeat means riches for Gentiles, how much more will their full inclusion mean! 13 Now I am speaking to you Gentiles. Inasmuch then as I am an apostle to the Gentiles, to Israel continues as good news is preached to them. 15: Isa 52.17. 16: Isa 53.1. But not all have obeyed, the disobedience of some in Israel does not alter God’s faithfulness (see 3.3). Good news, the same word is elsewhere translated “gospel”; see 1.16n. 18: Ps 19.4. 19: Deut 32.21. Israel’s disobedience does not indicate God’s failure; to the contrary, God’s purpose is to make Israel jealous. 20–21: See 11.11–12. The Gentiles are the “foolish nation” (Deut 32.21), those who did not seek me (Isa 65.1–2). All day long, Paul emphasizes God’s persistent faithfulness to a disobedient Israel. 11.1–12: God has preserved a remnant. 1: Paul himself is evidence that God has not rejected his people. 2–5: The divine reply to the prophet Elijah was a rebuke for presuming he alone was left (1 Kings 19.10,18). Similarly, the remnant in Paul’s day does not exhaust God’s gracious purpose (see vv. 12,15,25–27). 7–12: Astonishingly, Paul concludes Israel failed (9.31–10.4) because they were hardened by God (9.18). 8: Isa 29.10; Deut 29.4; cf. Isa 6.10. 9–10: Ps 69.22–23. 11–12: Previous rhetorical questions concerned God’s righteousness or faithfulness (3.3,29; 9.14,19); now Paul asks about God’s faithfulness to the covenant with Israel. The obedience of the Gentiles will make Israel jealous (see 10.19–20). Their full inclusion, see vv. 15,26.
I glorify my ministry in order to make my own people jealous, and thus save some of them. For if their rejection is the reconciliation of the world, what will their acceptance be but life from the dead? If the part of the dough offered as first fruits is holy, then the whole batch is holy; and if the root is holy, then the branches also are holy.

But if some of the branches were broken off, and you, a wild olive shoot, were grafted in their place to share the rich root of the olive tree, do not boast over the branches. If you do boast, remember that it is not you that support the root, but the root that supports you. You will say, “Branches were broken off so that I might be grafted in.” That is true. They were broken off because of their unbelief, but you stand only through faith. So do not become proud, but stand in awe.

For if God did not spare the natural branches, perhaps he will spare the natural branches, perhaps he will not spare you. Note then the kindness and the severity of God: severity toward those who have fallen, but God's kindness toward you, provided you continue in his kindness; otherwise you also will be cut off. And even those of Israel, if they do not persist in unbelief, will be grafted in, for God has the power to graft them in again. For if you have been cut from what is by nature a wild olive tree and grafted, contrary to nature, into a cultivated olive tree, how much more will these natural branches be grafted back into their own olive tree.

So that you may not claim to be wiser than you are, brothers and sisters. I want you to understand this mystery: a hardening has come upon part of Israel, until the full number of the Gentiles has come in. And so all Israel will be saved; as it is written, “Out of Zion will come the Deliverer; he will banish ungodliness from Jacob.” “And this is my covenant with them, when I take away their sins.”

As regards the gospel they are enemies of God for your sake; but as regards election they are beloved, for the sake of their ancestors; for the gifts and the calling of God are irrevocable. Just as you were once disobedient to God but have now received mercy because of their disobedience, so they have now been disobedient in order that, by the mercy shown to you, they too may now...
Receive mercy. 32 For God has imprisoned all in disobedience so that he may be merciful to all.

33 O the depth of the riches and wisdom and knowledge of God! How unsearchable are his judgments and how inscrutable his ways!

34 “For who has known the mind of the Lord?
Or who has been his counselor?”
35 “Or who has given a gift to him, to receive a gift in return?”
36 For from him and through him and to him are all things. To him be the glory forever. Amen.

12  I appeal to you therefore, brothers and sisters, by the mercies of God, to present your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God, which is your spiritual worship. 2 Do not be conformed to this world, but be transformed by the renewing of your minds, so that you may discern what is the will of God—what is good and acceptable and perfect.

3 For by the grace given to me I say to everyone among you not to think of yourself more highly than you ought to think, but to think with sober judgment, each according to the measure of faith that God has assigned. 4 For as in one body we have many members, and not all the members have the same function, so we, who are many, are one body in Christ, and individually we are members one of another. 6 We have gifts that differ according to the grace given to us: prophecy, in proportion to faith; 7 ministry, in ministering: the teacher, in teaching; 8 the exhorter, in exhortation; the giver, in generosity; the leader, in diligence; the compassionate, in cheerfulness.

9 Let love be genuine; hate what is evil, hold fast to what is good; 10 love one another with mutual affection; outdo one another in showing honor. 11 Do not lag in zeal, be ardent in spirit, serve the Lord. 12 Rejoice in hope, be patient in suffering, persevere in prayer. 13 Contribute to the needs of the saints; extend hospitality to strangers.

14 Bless those who persecute you; bless and do not curse them. 15 Rejoice with those who rejoice, weep with those who weep. 16 Live in harmony with one another; do not be haughty, but associate with the lowly; 17 do not claim to be wiser than you are. 18 Do not repay anyone evil for evil, but take thought for what is noble in the sight of all. 19 If it is possible, so far as it depends on you, live peaceably with all. 20 Beloved, never avenge yourselves, but leave room for the wrath of God; 21 for it is written, “Ven-

a Gk brothers
b Or reasonable
c Gk age d Or what is the good and acceptable and perfect will of God
e Other ancient authorities read serve the opportune time f Or give yourselves to humble tasks
g Gk the wrath
Let every person be subject to the governing authorities; for there is no authority except God, that is, those that exist have been instituted by God. Therefore whoever resists authority resists what God has appointed, and those who resist will incur punishment. For rulers are not a terror to good conduct, but to bad. Do you wish to have no fear of the authority? Then do what is right, and you will receive its approval; for it is God’s servant for your good. But if you do what is wrong, you should be afraid, for the authority does not bear the sword in vain! It is the servant of God to execute wrath on the wrongdoer. Therefore one must be subject, not only because of wrath but also because of conscience. For the same reason you also pay taxes, for the authorities are God’s servants, busy with this very thing. Pay to all what is due them—taxes to whom taxes are due, revenue to whom revenue is due, respect to whom respect is due, honor to whom honor is due.

Owe no one anything, except to love one another; for the one who loves another has fulfilled the law. The commandments, “You shall not commit adultery; You shall not murder; You shall not steal; You shall not covet”; and any other commandment, are summed up in this word, “Love your neighbor as yourself.” Love does no wrong to a neighbor; therefore, love is the fulfilling of the law.

Besides this, you know what time it is, how it is now the moment for you to wake from sleep. For salvation is nearer to us now than when we became believers; the night is far gone, the day is near. Let us then lay aside the works of darkness and put on the armor of light. Let us live honorably as in the day, not in reveling and drunkenness, not in debauchery and licentiousness, not in quarreling and jealousy. Instead, put on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh, to gratify its desires.

Welcome those who are weak in faith, but not for the purpose of quarreling over opinions. Some believe in eating 32.35. Wrath, see 2.5n. 20: To heap burning coals ... makes enemies feel ashamed and perhaps remorseful (Prov 25.21–22). 21: Mt 5.39.

---

13.1–7: Subjection to governing authorities. Sometimes read as Paul’s “theology of the state,” these verses stand in tension with his view elsewhere of the “rulers of this age” (1 Cor 2.6–8; 15.24–26; 1 Thess 5.13–19), and with his own willingness to suffer punishment from civil authorities (2 Cor 11.23,25–27). These teaching appears conventional (Wis 6.1–3; 1 Pet 2.13–17; 3.13), and there are other attitudes to civil authorities in the New Testament (Acts 5.29; Rev 13.7,11–18). These verses may have had a very specific application (see the Introduction). 1: Empires rise and fall by the will of God (Isa 10.5–6; Jer 27.4–8,11; Dan 3.28–32). Instituted, lit., “put in their place”; the Gk word is related to the word translated be subject. 2: Do not resist authority; contrast 12.2. Resists what God has appointed, 8.7; 9.19. 3–4: The proper role of civil authorities; Paul was aware they could act otherwise. God’s servant, a title applied to the Babylonian king Nebuchadrezzar (Jer 27.6), as well as to many leaders of Israel. The authority may punish; the individual Christian may not (12.19–21). The sword, a symbol of power over life and death (see 8.35). Paul’s remark is in some tension with claims, current at the time, that the emperor Nero did not need the sword to rule. Wrath, elsewhere usually “the wrath of God” (1.18; 2.5; 5.9). 5–6: Proper civil behavior is motivated both by fear of “wrath” (but see v. 3) and conscience. 6–7: Taxes, the Roman tribute (as in Mt 22.21; Mk 12.17; Lk 20.25), from which Roman citizens were exempt. Revenue, commercial taxes. Respect, lit., “fear”; the same word is translated “terror” in v. 3. The one to whom respect, or fear, is due may be God alone (1 Pet 2.17).

13.8–14: Other exhortations. 8–10: Love fulfills the law, 2.14; 8.4; 12.9; Mt 22.39–40; Mk 12.31; Gal 5.14; Jas 2.8; 1 Jn 4.11; 9: Ex 20.13–17; Deut 5.17–21; Lev 19.18. 11–14: Imminent salvation, i.e., the return of Christ, makes it urgent to wake to holy and honorable living (1 Thess 5.1–11; Eph 5.8–18). 14: Put on the Lord Jesus, an early metaphor based in the practice of receiving a new garment after baptism (Gal 3.27).

14.1–15.13: Exhortations regarding those considered “weak.” The observance of special days (14.5–6) and a anything, while the weak eat only vegetables. 3 Those who eat must not despise those who abstain, and those who abstain must not pass judgment on those who eat; for God has welcomed them. 4 Who are you to pass judgment on servants of another? It is before their own lord that they stand or fall. And they will be upheld, for the Lord is able to make them stand.

5 Some judge one day to be better than another, while others judge all days to be alike. Let all be fully convinced in their own minds. 6 Those who observe the day, observe it in honor of the Lord. Also those who eat, eat in honor of the Lord, since they give thanks to God; while those who abstain, abstain in honor of the Lord and give thanks to God.

7 We do not live to ourselves, and we do not die to ourselves. 8 If we live, we live to the Lord, and if we die, we die to the Lord; so then, whether we live or whether we die, we are the Lord’s. 9 For to this end Christ died and lived again, so that he might be Lord of both the dead and the living.

10 Why do you pass judgment on your brother or sister? Or you, why do you despise your brother or sister? For we will all stand before the judgment seat of God. 11 For it is written, “As I live, says the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall give praise to God.”

12 So then, each of us will be accountable to God. 13 Let us therefore no longer pass judgment on one another, but resolve instead never to put a stumbling block or hindrance in the way of another. 14 I know and am persuaded in the Lord Jesus that nothing is unclean in itself; but it is unclean for anyone who thinks it unclean. 15 If your brother or sister is being injured by what you eat, you are no longer walking in love. Do not let what you eat cause the ruin of one for whom Christ died. 16 So do not let your good be spoken of as evil. 17 For the kingdom of God is not food and drink but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit. 18 The one who thus serves Christ is acceptable to God and has human approval. 19 Let us then pursue what makes for peace and for mutual upbuilding. 20 Do not, for the sake of food, destroy the work of God. Everything is indeed clean, but it is wrong for you to make others fall by what you eat; 21 it is good not to eat meat or drink wine or do anything that makes your brother or sister stumble. 22 The faith that you have, have as your own conviction before God. Blessed are those who have no reason to condemn themselves because of what they approve. 23 But those who have doubts are condemned if they eat, because they do not act from faith.

kosher diet (vv. 2,14n.) are marks of Jewish observance. They were also objects of ridicule among some Roman satirists, being seen as superstition on the part of the weak. Paul warns against such disparaging judgments (v. 3). 14.1–12: Tolerance for others’ observance. 1–2: Those who eat only vegetables are most likely keeping kosher by avoiding “unclean” meat (v. 14), or meat “sacrificed to idols” (Acts 15.29; 1 Cor 8.1; Dan 1.3–16; Esth 3.28; 14.17; Jdt 12.1–2). Paul calls them weak in faith, not because they adhere to the Torah (see vv. 4,6; 7.12), but perhaps because they are scandalized by Gentile believers who eat nonkosher food (vv. 13,15,20), or because the circumstances of Jews in Rome had been so clearly reduced in the eyes of their neighbors in the wake of the edict of Claudius (see Introduction). 4: The Lord is able, 11.23. 5–9: Jews and Gentiles can, each in their own way, live in honor of the Lord. 11: Isa 45.23. 13–23: Freedom is not license to give offense. 13: Stumbling block... hindrance, 9.32–33; 1 Cor 8.9. 14: Nothing is unclean in itself, lit., “common,” as opposed to “clean” (v. 20; 1 Macc 1.47,62; Mk 7.19; Acts 10.14; 11.8). For the observant, however, nonkosher food is unclean. 17: The kingdom of God, a rare phrase in Paul’s letters (1 Cor 4.20; 6.9–10). 19: Peace... mutual upbuilding, 1 Cor 14.3–5,12,26. 20–23: Faith does not allow one to violate the conscience of others, e.g., by encouraging them to act against their...
for whatever does not proceed from faith is sin.
15 We who are strong ought to put up with the failings of the weak, and not to please ourselves. 2 Each of us must please our neighbor for the good purpose of building up the neighbor. 3 For Christ did not please himself; but, as it is written, “The insults of those who insult you have fallen on me.” 4 For whatever was written in former days was written for our instruction, so that by steadfastness and by the encouragement of the scriptures we might have hope. 5 May the God of steadfastness and encouragement grant you to live in harmony with one another, in accordance with Christ Jesus, 6 so that together you may with one voice glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. 7 Welcome one another, therefore, just as Christ has welcomed you, for the glory of God. 8 For I tell you that Christ has become a servant of the circumcised on behalf of the Gentiles, 9 and in order that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy. As it is written, “Therefore I will confess you among the Gentiles, and sing praises to your name”; 10 and again he says, “Rejoice, O Gentiles, with his people”; 11 and again, “Praise the Lord, all you Gentiles, and let all the peoples praise him”; 12 and again Isaiah says, “The root of Jesse shall come, the one who rises to rule the Gentiles; in him the Gentiles shall hope.” 13 May the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, so that you may abound in hope by the power of the Holy Spirit. 14 I myself feel confident about you, my brothers and sisters, that you yourselves are full of goodness, filled with all knowledge, and able to instruct one another. 15 Nevertheless on some points I have written to you rather boldly by way of reminder, because of the grace given me by God to be a minister of Christ Jesus to the Gentiles in the priestly service of the gospel of God, so that the offering of the Gentiles may be acceptable, sanctified by the Holy Spirit. 16 In Christ Jesus, then, I have reason to boast of my work for God. 17 For I will not venture to speak of anything except what Christ has accomplished through me to win obedience from the Gentiles, by word and deed, 18 by the power of signs and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God, 19 so that from Jerusalem and as far around as Illyricum I have fully proclaimed the good news of Christ. 20 Thus I make it my ambition to proclaim the good news, not where Christ has already been named, so that conscience. 15.1–13: Christ’s example. 1: We who are strong, lit., “powerful,” a term that could connote status in Roman society. Paul does not speak of the strong “in faith” (in contrast to the weak in faith in 14.1). Put up with the failings of the weak, lit., “sustain the powerless in their weaknesses” (see Gal 6.2). 2–3: Ps 69.9 is read in terms of Christ’s humbling himself (Phil 2.5–8; 2 Cor 8.9). 4: See 4.23–25; 1 Cor 9.10. 5–6: The goal of Paul’s exhortation is that Gentiles and Jews should with one voice glorify. . . God. 8: Christ came to confirm the promises given to Israel (9.3–5). 9: Ps 18.49. 10: Deut 32.43. 11: Ps 117.1. 12: Isa 11.10. (The Gk word for Gentiles in vv. 9–12 is translated “nations” in the biblical passages that Paul quotes.)

15.14–32: The letter’s argument brought to a close. 14–16: Despite confidence in the Romans (1.8,11,12), Paul has written boldly, compelled by the grace given him (1.5). 16: Minister . . . priestly service, Paul will present a holy offering to God, i.e., the Gentile believers themselves (1.9; 12.2). Paul may have in mind Isaiah’s prophecies of the “wealth of the nations” being brought to Israel (Isa. 60.4–7; 11; see 66.20); his language also echoes imperial language about the “gifts of the peoples” being brought before Caesar. 17–32: The broader context of Paul’s apostolate. As at the letter’s beginning (1.1–15), Paul links his letter to the Romans with his work for God. 19: Signs and wonders, 1 Cor 12.10; 2 Cor 12.12; Gal 3.5. Illyricum, a Roman province on the east coast of the Adriatic.
I do not build on someone else’s foundation, 21 but as it is written, “Those who have never been told of him shall see, and those who have never heard of him shall understand.”

22 This is the reason that I have so often been hindered from coming to you. 23 But now, with no further place for me in these regions, I desire, as I have for many years, to come to you 24 when I go to Spain. For I do hope to see you on my journey and to be sent on by you, once I have enjoyed your company for a little while. 25 At present, however, I am going to Jerusalem in a ministry to the saints; 26 for Macedonia and Achaia have been pleased to share their resources with the poor among the saints at Jerusalem. 27 They were pleased to do this, and indeed they owe it to them; for if the Gentiles have come to share in their spiritual blessings, they ought also to be of service to them in material things. 28 So, when I have completed this, and have delivered to them what has been collected, 29 I will set out by way of you to Spain; 30 and I know that when I come to you, I will come in the fullness of the blessing of Christ. 31 I appeal to you, brothers and sisters, by our Lord Jesus Christ and by the love of the Spirit, to join me in earnest prayer to God on behalf of the saints, and that my ministry to Jerusalem may be acceptable to the saints, so that by God’s will I may come to you with joy and be refreshed in your company. 33 The God of peace be with all of you. Amen.

16 I commend to you our sister Phoebe, a deacon of the church at Cenchreae, 2 so that you may welcome her in the Lord as is fitting for the saints, and help her in whatever she may require from you, for she has been a benefactor of many and of myself as well. 3 Greet Prisca and Aquila, who work with me in Christ Jesus, 4 and who risked their necks for my life, to whom not only I give thanks, but also all the churches of the Gentiles. 5 Greet also the church in their house. Greet my beloved Epaenetus, who was the first convert of the church in Asia for Christ. 6 Greet Mary, who has worked very hard among you. 7 Greet Andronicus and Junia, my relatives who were in prison with me; they are prominent among the apostles, and they were in Christ before I was. 8 Greet Ampliatus, my beloved in the Lord.

---

a Gk have sealed to them this fruit
b Other ancient authorities add of the gospel
c Gk brothers
d Other ancient authorities read my bringing of a gift
e One ancient authority adds 16.25-27 here
f Or minister
g Gk first fruits
h Or Junias; other ancient authorities read Julia i Or compatriots

---

Sea, mentioned only here in the New Testament. Good news, see 1.16n. 21: Isa 52.15. 22–29: Travel plans and further requests. 23: No further place, Paul sees himself as a herald more than a pastor. 24: Paul says nothing now of wishing to “proclaim the gospel” to the Romans (1.10–15); perhaps this letter has done that. 25–29: The ministry to the saints, the collection mentioned in 1 Cor 16.1–4; 2 Cor 8–9; Gal 2.10. 26: Macedonia and Achaia, Roman provinces in Greece. 30–33: Apprehensions regarding Jerusalem. The Roman faithful may participate in the “offering of the Gentiles” (v. 16) through their own holiness (12.2) and their earnest prayer for Paul. The unbelievers in Judea, perhaps Jews who have not believed in Jesus (see 9.1–5; 10.1–2,14) who are the ultimate targets of his work (11.13–14). On the fate of this ministry to Jerusalem, see Acts 21.7–28.31.

16.1–23: A recommendation and greetings. Some early manuscripts do not include 16.1–24; these verses nevertheless appear to be an authentic part of the letter (see also vv. 25–27n.). 1–2: Paul commends Phoebe, an officer of a church in Cenchreae near Corinth (Acts 18.18), to the hospitality and support of the Roman believers, thus honoring his obligations to her as his benefactor. On the early Christian office of deacon, see Phil 1.1; 1 Tim 3.8,12; Titus 1.9. 3–16: A list of greetings shows Paul’s personal connections with the Roman community. Most of the individuals named are mentioned only here; a number are Hebrew names. 3–4: Prisca and Aquila, identified in Acts 18.2 as exiles from Rome, now returned (1 Cor 16.19; 2 Tim 4.19). 5: Congregations of believers in Christ first met in private homes, or in common areas in the upper floors of apartment buildings. 7: Junia, a woman; many manuscripts read “Junias,” an otherwise unattested male Latin name; our earliest manuscript reads “Julia.” Relatives, fellow Jews (vv. 11,21; 9.3). The apostles, Paul uses the term to mean more than the twelve (see 1 Cor
9 Greet Urbanus, our co-worker in Christ, and my beloved Stachys. 10 Greet Apelles, who is approved in Christ. Greet those who belong to the family of Aristobulus. 11 Greet my relative Herodion. Greet those in the Lord who belong to the family of Narcissus. 12 Greet those workers in the Lord, Tryphaena and Tryphosa. Greet the beloved Persis, who has worked hard in the Lord. 13 Greet Rufus, chosen in the Lord; and greet his mother—a mother to me also. 14 Greet Asyncritus, Phlegon, Hermes, Psomias, Hermas, and the brothers and sisters who are with them. 15 Greet Philologus, Julia, Nereus and his sister, and Olympas, and all the saints who are with them. 16 Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the churches of Christ greet you.

17 I urge you, brothers and sisters, to keep an eye on those who cause dissensions and offenses, in opposition to the teaching that you have learned; avoid them. 18 For such people do not serve our Lord Christ, but their own appetites, and by smooth talk and flattery they deceive the hearts of the simple-minded. 19 For while your obedience is known to all, so that I rejoice over you, I want you to be wise in what is good and guileless in what is evil. 20 The God of peace will shortly crush Satan under your feet. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

21 Timothy, my co-worker, greets you; so do Lucius and Jason and Sosipater, my relatives.

22 I Tertius, the writer of this letter, greet you in the Lord.

23 Gaius, who is host to me and to the whole church, greets you. Erastus, the city treasurer, and our brother Quartus, greet you.

25 Now to God who is able to strengthen you according to my gospel and the proclamation of Jesus Christ, according to the revelation of the mystery that was kept secret for long ages but is now disclosed, and through the prophetic writings is made known to all the Gentiles, according to the command of the eternal God, to bring about the obedience of faith— to the only wise God, through Jesus Christ, to whom be the glory forever! Amen.

15.5,7; Phil 2.25). 13: A mother to me also, an expression of affection. 16: A holy kiss, a regular part of worship in the early church (1 Cor 16.20; 2 Cor 13.12; 1 Thess 5.26; 1 Pet 5.14).

16.17–20: A warning. Those who cause dissensions, otherwise unidentified, are clearly less central to the letter’s purpose than those referred to in 1 Cor 5.1–13 or Gal 1.8–9; 6.17. The teaching, 6.17. 19: 1.8. 20: A concluding blessing (1 Cor 16.23; 1 Thess 5.28). 21: Timothy, introduced in Acts 16.1–3. 22: Tertius wrote down the letter as Paul dictated it; cf. 1 Cor 16.21n.; 1 Pet 5.12. 23: Gaius, perhaps the same person mentioned in 1 Cor 1.14.

16.25–27: A concluding blessing, appearing in different ancient manuscripts after 14.23 or 15.33, or missing altogether. Many scholars consider these verses an addition by later scribes and editors. 25: My gospel, 2.16. The proclamation, the Gk “kerygma” is another word for “gospel”; see 1 Cor 1.21–24. 25–26: Mystery, 11.25–27. The obedience of faith, 1.5.
THE FIRST LETTER OF PAUL TO THE CORINTHIANS

NAME AND AUTHORSHIP
The letter is named for its recipients, the community of believers in Christ in the Greek city of Corinth (see map 14 in the color map section at the end of the volume). Scholars agree that Paul was its author.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT
First Corinthians affords an unparalleled glimpse into the life of an early Christian community in a Greco-Roman city. The richness of this portrait both reflects the ethical challenges faced by converts rooted in Greco-Roman polytheism, and signals intense experimentation with their new social identity discovered in Messiah Jesus.

Paul’s Corinth was a Roman city, refounded by order of Julius Caesar in 44 BCE after its brutal destruction by Mummius in 146 BCE. Caesar populated the colony with numerous freedmen and legionary veterans, but the ethnic mix was more diverse by Paul’s day, including Syrians and Egyptians, along with Greeks who had immigrated from surrounding cities. The first-century CE Jewish philosopher Philo speaks of a sizeable Jewish community in Corinth (cf. Acts 18.4,7). Corinth rapidly regained its ancient prosperity owing to its favorable location. By 27 BCE, Corinth was already the capital of the senatorial province of Achaia and the judicial seat of the Roman proconsul (see Acts 18.12). Sharp contrasts between rich and poor were apparent in this flourishing commercial center. But opportunities for social advancement also existed: even freedmen held civic office (see Rom 16.23b), something uncommon elsewhere. The Isthmian Games, hosted by Corinth every two years, drew large crowds. The theater, rehabilitated by the emperor Augustus in the late first century BCE, held more than fifteen thousand spectators. Cynic philosophers like Demetrius, a friend of the Roman thinker Seneca, frequented Corinth. The city was sacred to the goddess Aphrodite, protector of prostitutes, whose famous sanctuary stood on the Acrocorinth, the acropolis. The temple of Asclepius, the god of healing, had extensive dining facilities. Inscriptions and dedications attest to the importance of the worship of the Roman emperor. Paul’s choice of this bustling cosmopolis as one of the principal centers of his missionary activity reveals the global reach of his missionary ambition.

The account of Paul’s activity in Corinth in Acts 18.1–18 is incomplete and anecdotal, but can be supplemented by information from Paul’s letters. Upon arrival in Corinth, Paul found lodging with Aquila and his wife Priscilla, both Jews and of the same trade as Paul. Paul preached in the synagogue every sabbath; were among those whom Paul tried to persuade. In response to opposition from some Jews, Paul withdrew from the synagogue and began preaching in the house of a “godfearer” named Titius Justus. Paul names Stephanas and his household as the first converts of the Roman province of Achaia in southern Greece (1 Cor 16.15; 1.16). The author of Acts attributes sensational importance to the conversion of the synagogue president Crispus: “Many of the Corinthians who heard Paul became believers and were baptized” (Acts 18.8). As Paul represents it, most of his converts were lower class, lacking in education, wealth, and birth (1 Cor 1.26–28). But Paul also baptized a few elite persons, such as Gaius (1.14), who eventually became the “host . . . to the whole church” (Rom 16.23). After Paul left Corinth, confusion arose among the new converts regarding boundaries between the church and the larger society, prompting Paul to write the letter on association with “immoral” persons and “idolaters,” to which reference is made in 1 Cor 5.9–10. While Paul was in Ephesus, the Corinthians sent him a letter, seeking his advice on several issues, including marriage, food sacrificed to idols, spiritual gifts, and other matters (7.1; 8.1; 12.1; 16.1,12). At some point after Paul’s founding visit, another Christian teacher visited Corinth, an Alexandrian Jew named Apollos, “an eloquent man, well-versed in the scriptures” (Acts 18.24). Apollos made a strong impression upon the Corinthians, especially upon the elite who valued proficiency in philosophy and rhetoric. Factions formed within the church, with members declaring support for one teacher or another (1 Cor 1.10–12; 3.4).

LITERARY HISTORY
Most scholars view the writing known as 1 Corinthians as a single, unified composition. But its abrupt transitions, frequent changes of theme, and generally loose construction have raised questions about its integ-
Assigning portions of 1 Corinthians to separate letters would be justified only if the passages in question presupposed different situations. This appears possible in three instances: Paul's attitude toward the schisms (contrast 11.18–19 with 1.10–12), Paul's advice on food sacrificed to idols (contrast 10.1–11.1 with 8.1–13), and Paul's announcement of his travel plans (contrast 16.5–9 with 4.17–21). Hence, some scholars have divided 1 Corinthians into three letters, composed in the following order: Letter A, On Association with the Immoral and Idolaters (10.1–22; 6.12–20; 10.23–11.34); Letter B, In Response to the Corinthians' Questions (7–9; 12–16); Letter C, Counsel of Concord (1.1–6.11).

The strongest argument for the unity of the present text derives from rhetorical analysis, which identifies 1 Corinthians as a deliberative appeal for concord (1.1–4.21), with advice on divisive issues organized under subheadings (5.1–16.24). Yet a single letter may not be consistent with the several occasions and sources of information evident in the text: an anonymous report (11.18), the Corinthians' letter (7.1), a visit by Stephanas (16.17), and a report from “Chloe's people” (1.11).

INTERPRETATION
In 1 Corinthians Paul shows remarkable familiarity with the culture of his converts and his facility with its forms of discourse: for example, ch 7 shows Paul conversant with Cynic-Stoic views of marriage (like those of Musonius and Epictetus); 9.24–27 employs an athletic metaphor from the Isthmian Games; ch 13 praises agape (“love”), a Christian counterpart to the praise of eros (“sexual love”) in Plato's Symposium; ch 15 offers a reasoned proof of the resurrection of the body, analogous to philosophical arguments for the immortality of the soul in Plato (Phaedrus) and Cicero (Tusculan Disputations); chs 1–4 utilize the rhetoric and arguments of Greco-Roman politics. In several passages, Paul addresses a group whose opinions on a variety of subjects—eating meat sacrificed to idols, the financial support of missionaries, speaking in tongues, the resurrection of the dead, going to court before unbelievers—diverge sharply from his own. The attitudes of this minority group (“the strong”) correlate with those held by persons of high social status and education.

First Corinthians demonstrates Paul's capacity, even in this early period, to think through the social and ethical implications of the new being “in Christ”: for example, his exhortation to share with the have-nots at the communal meal, so as to “discern the body” of Christ (11.17–34); and his insight into the paradoxical power of “the word of the cross” to call, redeem, and sanctify the low and despised of this world, “the nothings and nobodies”—a radical statement in the history of Western thought.

Laurence L. Welborn
1 Paul, called to be an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, and our brother Sosthenes,

2 To the church of God that is in Corinth, to those who are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, together with all those who in every place call on the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, both their Lord and ours:

3 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 I give thanks to my God always for you because of the grace of God that has been given you in Christ Jesus, for in every way you have been enriched in him, in speech and knowledge of every kind—just as the testimony of Christ has been strengthened among you—so that you are not lacking in any spiritual gift as you wait for the revealing of our Lord Jesus Christ. He will also strengthen you to the end, so that you may be blameless on the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 God is faithful; by him you were called into the fellowship of his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord.

10 Now I appeal to you, brothers and sisters, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that all of you be in agreement and that there be no divisions among you, but that you be united in the same mind and the same purpose. For it has been reported to me by Chloe’s people that there are quarrels among you, my brothers and sisters. What I mean is that each of you says, “I belong to Paul,” or “I belong to Apollos,” or “I belong to Cephas,” or “I belong to Christ.” Has Christ been divided? Has the existence of a “Christ-party.”

1.1–3: Prescript and Greeting. The prescript of Paul’s letters has the same form found in many papyrus letters of antiquity: the names of the sender and the addressees, with a short greeting. 1: “Paulos” is the Greek form of a Latin surname or cognomen (“Paulus”), meaning “small, of little significance,” perhaps a self-deprecatory nickname expressing the apostle’s sense of humility. Paul’s sense of being called as an apostle is vividly described in Gal 1.15–16. Christ is not part of the proper name of Jesus, but is the Greek translation of Heb “mashiah,” “the anointed,” that is, the Messiah; Paul is the emissary of Messiah Jesus. It is not certain whether Sosthenes named here as a Christian brother is the same person as the synagogue president of Acts 18.17. 2: Church of God (Gk “ekklesia theou”) may be a translation of Heb “qahal Yahweh” (“assembly of Yahweh”) expressing a sense of divine election; but “ekklesia” was the designation of the city “assembly” of Corinth, so that church of God may have evoked a sense of belonging to an alternative community. 2b: This phrase is likely an addition to the prescript, which seeks to make Paul’s advice applicable to all those who in every place call on the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, an indication that the original letter has been edited. 3: The greeting grace and peace derives from older Jewish formulas (see Apoc. Bar. 78.2), but embodies the essence of Paul’s own experience of God in Christ.

1.4–9: Thanksgiving. The thanksgiving is a standard feature of the prescripts of Paul’s letters, comparable to the assurance of prayer for the addressees of other ancient letters. 4: Paul gives thanks for the grace of God given to the Corinthians, not for their “labor of love” as in 1 Thess 1.3. 5: Because speech and knowledge are attainments of which the Corinthians are proud (1.17; 8.1–2; 13.1–2), Paul’s selective mention of these gifts has an ironic quality, enhanced by the hyperbolic phrases, in every way...of every kind. 8: Paul’s assurance that God will strengthen the Corinthians contains a mild reproach of their instability. The day of our Lord is an apocalyptic term for the Second Coming of Christ, the day of judgment; see 3.13; 4.5.

1.10–17: Divisions in the church. Paul describes the situation in the church of Corinth in terms like those used by political orators to characterize conflicts within city-states: divisions and quarrels are synonyms for discord, and Paul’s appeal to be in agreement and be united in the same mind and the same purpose echoes the language of speeches on concord. 11: While Chloe, who is mentioned only here in the New Testament, may not have lived in Corinth, Paul’s mention of her name without introduction indicates that she and her people (probably slaves) were known to the Corinthians. 12: Paul caricatures the Corinthians’ partisanship using slogans like those shouted by fans of star performers in the amphitheater. Apollos, from Alexandria in Egypt, was an eloquent early Christian preacher according to Acts 18.24–28; see also 1 Cor 3.4–6; 4.6; 16.12. Cephas, the Aramaic form of Peter’s name. The climactic slogan, I belong to Christ, is added for ironic effect, and does not indicate the existence of a “Christ-party.” 13: Paul’s rhetorical question, Has Christ been divided? uses a verb related to a divided? Was Paul crucified for you? Or were you baptized in the name of Paul? 14 I thank God that I baptized none of you except Crispus and Gaius, 15 so that no one can say that you were baptized in my name. 16 (I did baptize also the household of Stephanas; beyond that, I do not know whether I baptized anyone else.) 17 For Christ did not send me to baptize but to proclaim the gospel, and not with eloquent wisdom, so that the cross of Christ might not be emptied of its power.

18 For the message about the cross is foolishness to those who are perishing, but to us who are being saved it is the power of God. 19 For it is written, “I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and the discernment of the discerning I will thwart.”

20 Where is the one who is wise? Where is the scribe? Where is the debater of this age? Has not God made foolish the wisdom of the world? 21 For since, in the wisdom of God, the world did not know God through wisdom, God decided, through the foolishness of our proclamation, to save those who believe. 22 For Jews demand signs and Greeks desire wisdom, 23 but we proclaim Christ crucified, a stumbling block to Jews and foolishness to Gentiles, 24 but to those who are the called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God. 25 For God’s foolishness is wiser than human wisdom, and God’s weakness is stronger than human strength.

26 Consider your own call, brothers and sisters: 26 not many of you were wise by human standards, 27 but God chose what is foolish in the world to shame the wise; God chose what is weak in the world to shame the strong; 28 God chose what is low and despised in the world, things that are not, to reduce to nothing things that are, 29 so that no one might boast in the presence of common Greek term for “party”: “Has the body of Christ been split into parties?” 14: Paul’s thanksgiving that he baptized none . . . except Crispus and Gaius has a note of irony which suggests that Crispus and Gaius may have been involved in forming factions. Crispus is the former synagogue president (Acts 18.8), while Gaius is described as “the host to the whole church” (Rom 16.23); both are evidently of the highest social standing in the church. 16: Paul employs the device of a feigned lapse of memory to separate Stephanas, his strongest supporter (see 16.15–18), from Crispus and Gaius. 17: Paul formulates his commission as an apostle antithetically: not to baptize but to proclaim. The negative definition of the style and content of Paul’s preaching (not with eloquent wisdom) suggests how the Corinthians have found Paul’s proclamation deficient.

1.18–2.5: The folly of the message about the cross. Paul acknowledges that his preaching is foolishness to the educated elite, but asserts that God has confounded the wisdom of this world. 18: Paul provocatively reduces the content of the gospel to a single, shameful event—the cross. Greek “moria” (foolishness) has a social stigma that does not attach to English “folly”: better, “a vulgar joke.” 19: Isa 29.14 (LXX). This text is particularly apt, since it critiques those who take pride in wisdom and foretells the creation of a new order in which the deaf will hear and the blind will see. 20: Paul’s rhetorical questions mock the educated elite by means of culturally specific titles of dignity: the Jewish scribe is not merely a skilled copyist but an expert in the scriptures; the debater is a philosophical researcher highly esteemed in the Hellenic world. 21: Paul shapes a playful contrast between two types of wisdom: on the one hand, a divine attribute; on the other, a human attainment (cf. Sir 1.9–10; Wis 7; 8). 22: The desire for wisdom among the Greeks was proverbial: see Herodotus 4.77.1. 23: The first-century BCE orator Cicero attests the constraint upon discourse about the cross among persons of higher social class: “The mere mention of the word ‘cross’ is shameful to a Roman citizen and a free man” (Pro Rabirio 5.16).

24–25: In substantiation of the paradox of the crucified Christ as the power and wisdom of God, Paul employs phrases that sound positively blasphemous—God’s foolishness . . . God’s weakness. 26–31: Paul expounds the social consequences of the divine reversal of wisdom and foolishness. The terms used by Paul to describe the makeup of the community are those employed by Greek writers to designate the major class divisions in civil strife: wise, powerful, and of noble birth are euphemisms for “the rich,” while “the poor” are the foolish, weak, and low (born). Paul offers a radical explanation of why the majority of those who have been “called” by the gospel of the crucified are persons lacking in education, wealth, and birth: God chose (repeated three times for
God. 30 He is the source of your life in Christ Jesus, who became for us wisdom from God, and righteousness and sanctification and redemption, 31 in order that, as it is written, “Let the one who boasts, boast in the Lord.”

2 When I came to you, brothers and sisters, I did not come proclaiming the mystery of God to you in lofty words or wisdom. 2 For I decided to know nothing among you except Jesus Christ, and him crucified. 3 And I came to you in weakness and in fear and in much trembling. 4 My speech and my proclamation were not with plausible words of wisdom, 5 but with a demonstration of the Spirit and of power, 6 so that your faith might rest not on human wisdom but on the power of God.

6 Yet among the mature we do speak wisdom, though it is not a wisdom of this age or of the rulers of this age, who are doomed to perish. 7 But we speak God's wisdom, secret and hidden, which God decreed before the ages for our glory. 8 None of the rulers of this age understood this; for if they had, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory. 9 But, as it is written, “What no eye has seen, nor ear heard, nor the human heart conceived, what God has prepared for those who love him”—

10 these things God has revealed to us through the Spirit; for the Spirit searches everything, even the depths of God. 31 For what human being knows what is truly human except the human spirit that is within? So also no one comprehends what is truly God's except the Spirit of God. 12 Now we have received not the spirit of the world, but the Spirit that is from God, so that we may understand the gifts bestowed on us by God. 13 And we speak of these things in words not taught by human wisdom but taught by the Spirit, interpreting spiritual things to those who are spiritual.

14 Those who are unspiritual do not receive the gifts of God's Spirit, for they are foolishness to them, and they are unable to understand them because they are spiritually discerned. 15 Those who are spiritual discern all things, and they are themselves subject to no one else's scrutiny.

16 “For who has known the mind of the Lord so as to instruct him?” But we have the mind of Christ.

a Or of
b Gk brothers
c Other ancient authorities read testimony
d Other ancient authorities read the persuasiveness of wisdom
e Or interpreting spiritual things in spiritual language, or comparing spiritual things with spiritual f Or natural emphasis). 31: Jer 9.23. 2.1–5: Paul's concession that he did not preach in lofty words or wisdom is a rejoinder to an anticipated objection against his assertion that the crucified Christ is the wisdom of God: “But little wisdom or eloquence was apparent when you came preaching among us!” Paul adopts the persona of the befuddled orator from comedy and mime in order to establish that, despite his stammering weakness, the message about Christ is the power of God. Paul's choice of terms belonging to the technical vocabulary of Hellenistic rhetoric (lofty words, plausible words, demonstration, power) makes a contrast between his proclamation and that of missionary rivals who have made use of the art of rhetoric. 2: Paul's use of the perfect participle, crucified, to describe more precisely the Christ whom he proclaims is a provocation to the elite: Paul insists that the present significance of Christ, even after his resurrection, consists in nothing other than that he is the crucified.

3 And so, brothers and sisters, I could not speak to you as spiritual people, but rather as people of the flesh, as infants in Christ. I fed you with milk, not solid food, for you were not ready for solid food. Even now you are still not ready, for you are still of the flesh. For as long as there is jealousy and quarreling among you, are you not of the flesh, and behaving according to human inclinations? For when one says, “I belong to Paul,” and another, “I belong to Apollos,” are you not merely human?

⁵What then is Apollos? What is Paul? Servants through whom you came to believe, as the Lord assigned to each. I planted, Apollos watered, but God gave the growth. So neither the one who plants nor the one who waters is anything, but only God who gives the growth. The one who plants and the one who waters have a common purpose, and each will receive wages according to the labor of each. For we are God’s servants, working together; you are God’s field, God’s building.

¹⁰According to the grace of God given to me, like a skilled master builder I laid a foundation, and someone else is building on it. Each builder must choose with care how to build on it. For no one can lay any foundation other than the one that has been revealed with fire, and the fire will test what anyone builds on the foundation with gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw—anyone builds on the foundation with gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, straw—the work of each builder will become visible, for the Day will disclose it, because it will be revealed with fire, and the fire will test what sort of work each has done. If what has been built on the foundation survives, the builder will receive a reward. If the work is burned up, the builder will suffer loss; the builder will be saved, but only as through fire.

¹⁶Do you not know that you are God’s temple and that God’s Spirit dwells in you? If anyone destroys God’s temple, God will destroy that person. For God’s temple is holy, and you are that temple.

¹⁸Do not deceive yourselves. If you think that you are wise in this age, you should become fools so that you may become wise. For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it is written, “He catches the wise in their craftiness,” and again, “The Lord knows the thoughts of the wise, that they are futile.”

²¹So let no one boast about human leaders. For all things are yours, whether Paul or Apollos or Cephas or the world or life or death or the present or the future—all belong to you, and you belong to Christ, and Christ belongs to God.

4 Think of us in this way, as servants of Christ and stewards of God’s mysteries. Moreover, it is required of stewards that they be found trustworthy. But with me it is a very small thing that I should be judged by you or by any human court. I do not even judge myself. I am not aware of anything against myself, but I am not thereby acquit-

---

3.1–4.21: Apostles as servants of the Lord. 3.1–4: Paul chides the Corinthians in a derisive manner for their spiritual immaturity. 1: Paul’s description of the Corinthians as infants uses a metaphor from political rhetoric, comparing the factious with quarrelsome children. 4: The reduction in the number of slogans from the four of 1.12 to two, “I belong to Paul,” “I to Apollos,” suggests that Apollos is the focus of the Corinthians’ partisanship.

3.5–4.5: In a series of well-constructed metaphors, Paul portrays himself and Apollos as farm workers (3.6–9), construction laborers (3.9–15), and household stewards (4.1–5), in order to emphasize collegiality against partisanship, and to diminish the importance attributed to them. 3.5: Both Paul and Apollos have been assigned positions as servants by the Lord. 6: The one who planted has priority over the one who has watered, and a greater claim upon the produce. 10: Paul is a skilled master builder (Gk “sophos architekton,” a technical term of construction work) who has laid the foundation of the community, while Apollos is, figuratively, one of the anonymous workers (someone) who has added something to the structure. 13: The Day, the day of judgment; see 1.8n. 15: The expression as through fire is a common Greek idiom describing a narrow escape from danger: as the fire ignites, the workers escape from the penalty to be imposed upon their shoddy construction by running through the walls of the burning building. 19: Job 5.12–13. 20: Ps 94.11. 22: Paul . . . Apollos . . . Cephas, see 1.12n. 4.3: Paul’s indifference to the possibility that he may be judged by the Corinthians employs a Greek verb (“anakrinein”) with a technical usage for the preliminary examination of political leaders to establish their 4.6-13: Application. 6: Paul makes clear that he has been teaching with the aid of figures of speech applied to himself and Apollos (see 1.12n.). “Nothing beyond what is written” is a maxim of uncertain origin whose meaning must be pertinent to the following clause, so that none of you will be puffed up. 7-8: With mounting sarcasm, Paul mocks the pretensions of leading figures in the Corinthian church (king was the client’s term for a rich patron). Paul ironically reminds these patrons that everything they have (spiritually) they have received as a gift; they have nothing of which to boast. 9-13: Paul expounds the consequences of the message about the cross for himself and his colleagues, who have conformed their lives to the fate of the crucified Christ; they are fools (Gk “moroi”) in a spectacle (Gk “theatron”) exhibited by God. Paul’s vocabulary is explicitly theatrical: like the poor fools in the mime, Paul and his colleagues are weak, hungry, poorly clothed, beaten (literally, “given the knuckle-sandwich”), etc. 13: Rubbish and dregs were the worst terms of abuse in Greek, originally applied to those unfortunate persons, mostly paupers and the deformed, who were put to death for the purifying of the city, because life was assumed to be a burden for them.

4.14-21: Admonition. Paul portrays himself as a solicitous father, the Corinthians as unruly children, and other ministers of the gospel as guardians (Gk “paidagogoi”). That Paul is not altogether pleased with the performance of the guardians is suggested by his hyperbolic reference to their number, ten thousand, and by the need for parental intervention. If the Corinthians will not accept instruction from faithful Timothy (see Acts 18.5), Paul will come with his stick (Gk “rabdos”), standard equipment of the fool in the mime. Paul’s warning to the Corinthians is imbued with an ironic consciousness of the possibility of his own discomfiture.

5: Sexual immorality among you, and of a kind that is not found even among pagans; for a man is

a Gk brothers
b Or Who makes you different from another?
c Or am sending

ted. It is the Lord who judges me. Therefore do not pronounce judgment before the time, before the Lord comes, who will bring to light the things now hidden in darkness and will disclose the purposes of the heart. Then each one will receive commendation from God.

I have applied all this to Apollos and myself for your benefit, brothers and sisters, so that you may learn through us the meaning of the saying, “Nothing beyond what is written,” so that none of you will be puffed up in favor of one against another. For who sees anything different in you? What do you have that you did not receive? And if you received it, why do you boast as if it were not a gift? Already you have all you want! Already you have become rich! Quite apart from us you have become kings! Indeed, I wish that you had become kings, so that we might be kings together! We are weak, hungry, poorly clothed, beaten and homeless, and we grow weary from the work of our own hands. When reviled, we bless; when persecuted, we endure; when slandered, we speak kindly. We have become like the rubbish of the world, the dregs of all things, to this very day.

I am not writing this to make you ashamed, but to admonish you as my beloved children. For though you might have ten thousand guardians in Christ, you do not have many fathers. Indeed, in Christ Jesus I became your father through the gospel. I appeal to you, then, be imitators of me. For this reason I sent you Timothy, who is my beloved and faithful child in the Lord, to remind you of my ways in Christ Jesus, as I teach them everywhere in every church. But some of you, thinking that I am not coming to you, have become arrogant. But I will come to you soon, if the Lord wills, and I will find out not the talk of these arrogant people but their power. For the kingdom of God depends not on talk but on power. What would you prefer? Am I to come to you with a stick, or with love in a spirit of gentleness?
living with his father’s wife. 2 And you are arrogant! Should you not rather have mourned, so that he who has done this would have been removed from among you?

3 For though absent in body, I am present in spirit; and as if present I have already pronounced judgment in the name of the Lord Jesus on the man who has done such a thing. 4 When you are assembled, and my spirit is present with the power of our Lord Jesus, 5 you are to hand this man over to Satan for the destruction of the flesh, so that his spirit may be saved in the day of the Lord.

6 Your boasting is not a good thing. Do you not know that a little yeast leavens the whole batch of dough? 7 Clean out the old yeast so that you may be a new batch, as you really are a thing.

9 I wrote to you in my letter not to associate with sexually immoral persons—10 not at all meaning the immoral of this world, or the greedy and robbers, or idolaters, since you would then need to go out of the world. 11 But now I am writing to you not to associate with anyone who bears the name of brother or sister 12 who is sexually immoral, or greedy, or is an idolater, reviler, drunkard, or robber. Do not even eat with such a one. 13 For what have I to do with judging those outside? Is it not those who are inside that you are to judge? 13 God will judge those outside. “Drive out the wicked person from among you.”

6 When any of you has a grievance against another, do you dare to take it to court before the unrighteous, instead of taking it before the saints? 2 Do you not know that the saints will judge the world? And if the world is to be judged by you, are you incompetent to try trivial cases? 3 Do you not know that we are to judge angels—to say nothing of ordinary matters? 4 If you have ordinary cases, then, do you appoint as judges those who have no standing in the church? 5 I say this to your shame. Can it be that there is no one among you wise enough to decide between one believer 6 and another, 6 but a believer 6 goes to court against a believer—and before unbelievers at that?

a Or on the man who has done such a thing in the name of the Lord Jesus
b Other ancient authorities add Jesus
c Gk brother

Paul accurately reports that sexual relations with one’s stepmother were prohibited by biblical law (Lev 18.7–8; 20.11; Deut 22.30) as well as by Roman law; according to the Institutes of Gaius, “neither can I marry her who has aforetime been my mother-in-law or stepmother.” 2 That the church had taken no disciplinary action suggests that the sinner was a person of high social status. 3–5: While it is not clear precisely what was involved in the execution of this sentence, Paul’s language (hand this man over to Satan) indicates a punishment that was drastic and permanent, such as excommunication. 5 Flesh for Paul does not refer to the human body but to an instinct toward sin, a way of life unredeemed by the spirit and oriented toward worldly advantages. The day of the Lord, see 1.8n. 6–8: Paul’s metaphor compares immorality in the community with old yeast which must be cleansed from the house in preparation for the Jewish festival of Passover, when only unleavened bread was to be eaten (Ex 12.15–20). 7: Paul nowhere else describes Christ as our paschal lamb; but cf. Jn 1.29; 19.36; Rev 5.12. 9–13: Clarifying a misunderstanding. 9: Defenders of the unity of 1 Corinthians assume that the letter to which Paul refers has been lost. But would the Corinthians have treated one of Paul’s letters with such disregard? Alternatively, the letter may be preserved in 1 Cor 10.1–22; 6.12–20; 10.23–11.34, passages which discuss association with the immoral and idolaters; see further Introduction, pp. 1999–2000. 13: Drive out the wicked person, following the instructions of Deut 13.5; 17.7; etc.

6.1–11: Lawsuits between believers. Someone dares to do what should be unthinkable for a Christian: to take another Christian to court before the unrighteous. 1: The phrase has a grievance against another employs a technical expression of legal proceedings frequently attested in Greek sources. In general, only persons of more than moderate wealth had access to the courts. 2: For the idea that the saints (the believers) will judge the world, see Dan 7.22 (LXX); Wis 3.8; Rev 3.21; 20.4. 3: That the angels themselves are subject to judgment, see Jude 6; 2 Pet 2.4. 4: The lawsuits in question seem to have been ordinary civil cases, concerned with money or property.
In fact, to have lawsuits at all with one another is already a defeat for you. Why not rather be wronged? Why not rather be defrauded? But you yourselves wrong and defraud—and believers at that.

Do you not know that wrongdoers will not inherit the kingdom of God? Do not be deceived! Fornicators, idolaters, adulterers, male prostitutes, sodomites, thieves, the greedy, drunkards, revilers, robbers—none of these will inherit the kingdom of God. And this is what some of you used to be. But you were washed, you were sanctified, you were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God.

“All things are lawful for me,” but not all things are beneficial. “All things are lawful for me,” but I will not be dominated by anything. “Food is meant for the stomach and the stomach for food,” and God will destroy both one and the other. The body is meant not for fornication but for the Lord, and the Lord for the body. And God raised the Lord and will also raise us by his power.

Do you not know that your bodies are members of Christ? Should I therefore take the members of Christ and make them members of a prostitute? Never! Do you not know that whoever is united to a prostitute becomes one body with her? For it is said, “The two shall be one flesh.” But anyone united to the Lord becomes one spirit with him. Shun fornication! Every sin that a person commits is outside the body; but the fornicator sins against the body itself. Or do you not know that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit within you, which you have from God, and that you are not your own? For you were bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body.

Now concerning the matters about which you wrote: “It is well for a man not to touch a woman.” But because of cases of sexual immorality, each man should have his own wife and each woman her own husband. The quotation may extend to the word other.

The resurrection of Jesus signals that the body is not meant for corruption but for more life. Paul appeals to his characteristic idea of the church as the body of Christ (see 12.12–14,27) in order to exclude the possibility of contact with a dangerous polluting agent, the prostitute. Cf. 10.14 (5.9). That the fornicator sins against himself, against his own person (reflected in his body), is an idea with Stoic parallels. Like the community as a whole (cf. 3.16), each believer is a temple of the Holy Spirit. Paul draws upon the custom of sacred manumission: the slave whose freedom was bought with a price with money previously deposited in the temple treasury was regarded as the property of the god.

7: Paul’s advice resembles that of Jesus in Mt 5.39–40; Lk 6.28–30: nonresistance. 9–11: Catalogues of vices and virtues are known from Jewish and Greek writers, especially the Stoic philosophers. Male prostitutes (Gk “malakoi,” lit., “soft men”) were boys and men sodomized by other males, while sodomites (Gk “arsenokoitai,” lit., “men who bed males”; a word first found here and based on LXX Lev 18.22; 20.13) were men who exercised the dominant role, pederasts.

6.12–20: Christians going to prostitutes. The abrupt beginning of 6.12, and differences of tone and content with 6.1–6.11, suggest that this paragraph originally belonged not here, but possibly between 10.22 and 10.23, with which 6.12–20 has much in common: in both passages, the temptation to immorality is strong and Christians are urged to “flee” (6.18; 10.8,14); in both passages, Paul quotes the Corinthian slogan, “All things are lawful for me” (6.12; 10.23). 12: Paul quotes a slogan of the Corinthians, a proud boast of freedom, asserting liberation from cultural taboos. Paul counters by insisting upon the mutually beneficial as the criterion of moral judgment.

13: Another slogan of the Corinthians, with a background in Cynic philosophy. Paul counters by affirming God’s power over the body. 14: The resurrection of Jesus signals that the body is not meant for corruption but for more life. 15: Paul appeals to his characteristic idea of the church as the body of Christ (see 12.12–14,27) in order to exclude the possibility of contact with a dangerous polluting agent, the prostitute. 16: Gen. 2.24. 18: Cf. 10.14 (5.9). That the fornicator sins against himself, against his own person (reflected in his body), is an idea with Stoic parallels. 19: Like the community as a whole (cf. 3.16), each believer is a temple of the Holy Spirit. 20: Paul draws upon the custom of sacred manumission: the slave whose freedom was bought with a price with money previously deposited in the temple treasury was regarded as the property of the god.

7.1–40: Marriage and sexual relations. In response to the Corinthians’ questions, Paul rethinks the most basic relationships with which the Corinthians had asked Paul in their letter; see also 7.25; 8.1; 12.1; 16.1; 16.12. The words “It is well for a man not to touch a woman” are a quotation from the Corinthians’ letter. Touch is an idiom for “have sex with.” The quotation may be an expression of extreme asceticism, or may represent an ironic retort by those who claimed freedom from conventional morality (6.12n.) to Paul’s warning against immorality in his previous letter.
husband should give to his wife her conjugal rights, and likewise the wife to her husband. 4 For the wife does not have authority over her own body, but the husband does; likewise the husband does not have authority over his own body, but the wife does. 5 Do not deprive one another except perhaps by agreement for a set time, to devote yourselves to prayer, and then come together again, so that Satan may not tempt you because of your lack of self-control. 6 This I say by way of concession, not of command. 7 I wish that all were as I myself am. But each has a particular gift from God, one having one kind and another a different kind.

8 To the unmarried and the widows I say that it is well for them to remain unmarried as I am. 9 But if they are not practicing self-control, they should marry. For it is better to marry than to be aflame with passion.

10 To the married I give this command—not I but the Lord—that the wife should not separate from her husband (but if she does separate, let her remain unmarried or else be reconciled to her husband), and that the husband should not divorce his wife.

11 To the rest I say—I and not the Lord—that if any believer has a wife who is an unbeliever, she should not divorce him, and that the unbeliever should not divorce her. 12 And if any woman has a husband who is an unbeliever, and he consents to live with her, she should not divorce him. 13 For the unbelieving husband is made holy through his wife, and the unbelieving wife is made holy through her husband. Otherwise, your children would be unclean, but as it is, they are holy. 14 But if the unbelieving partner separates, let it be so; in such a case the brother or sister is not bound. It is to peace that God has called you. 15 Wife, for all you know, you might save your husband. Husband, for all you know, you might save your wife.

16 However that may be, let each of you lead the life that the Lord has assigned, to which God called you. This is my rule in all the churches. 17 Was anyone at the time of his call already circumcised? Let him not seek to remove the marks of circumcision. Was anyone at the time of his call uncircumcised? Let him not seek circumcision.

18 Circumcision is nothing, and uncircumcision is nothing, but what counts is keeping the command of God. 19 Anyone who belongs to Christ has become a new person. The old self, with its practices, has been disposed of; it is gone—in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet. For the trumpet will sound, the dead will be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed. 20 For this perishable body must put on the imperishable, and this mortal body must put on immortality. 21 When the perishable has been clothed with the imperishable, and the mortal with the immortal, then we shall have been set free from sin. 22 Law under which Jesus in Mk 10.2–12; Mt 5.31–32; 19:3–9. Paul has formulated the command of Jesus in accordance with Roman law under which the wife could divorce her husband; according to biblical law, divorce was initiated only by the husband (Deut 24:1). To separate is a technical term for divorce in Greek sources. 12–16: Paul offers advice to Christ-believers in mixed marriages. The advice is naturally offered on Paul's own authority, because such marriages were not envisioned by Jesus. If the non-Christian is sympathetically disposed to live with the believer, there should be no divorce. 14: Paul's statement rests upon the notion that “holiness,” like “uncleanness,” is a quality transferable within relationships; cf. 1 Clem 46.2. 15: For peace as the goal of Christian life, see 2 Cor 13:11; Rom 14.17. 16: The term save is used here in the sense of conversion; cf. 1 Pet 3:1–2. 17–24: Paul inserts a paragraph enunciating his general rule in all the churches, of which the preceding advice on marriage has been a special application: the call of God does not remove a Christian from his or her situation in society, but intensifies obedience to God in the midst of life. 18: Paul envisions cases of a Jewish convert who might seek to remove the marks of circumcision, and of a Gentile convert who might seek circumcision, motivated by a desire...
For whoever was called in the Lord as a slave is a freed person belonging to the Lord, just as whoever was free when called is a slave of Christ. You were bought with a price; do not become slaves of human masters. In whatever condition you were called, brothers and sisters, there remain with God.

Now concerning virgins, I have no command of the Lord, but I give my opinion as one who by the Lord’s mercy is trustworthy.

I think that, in view of the impending crisis, it is well for you to remain as you are. You remain in the condition in which you were called.

Were you a slave when called? Do not seek to be free. Are you free from a wife? Do not seek a wife. But if you marry, you do not sin, and if a virgin marries, she does not sin. Yet those who marry will experience distress in this life, and I would spare you that. I mean, brothers and sisters, the appointed time has grown short; from now on, let even those who have wives be as though they had none, and those who mourn as though they were not mourning, and those who rejoice as though they were not rejoicing, and those who buy as though they had no possessions, and those who deal with the world as though they had no dealings with it. For the present form of this world is passing away.

1 Cor 7:19: Paul insists that circumcision and uncircumcision amount to nothing; what matters is keeping the commandments of God; cf. Gal 5.6; 6.15; Rom 2.25–26. Paul plays provocatively with the word “calling” to indicate that something has been added to every condition, by virtue of which the Christian can remain in his or her calling, yet with a higher vocation. 21: A slave should not be concerned about his condition. But what if he is able to become free? Paul’s advice has puzzled interpreters; the Greek literally reads “rather make use of” (the words “your present condition now more than ever” have been supplied by the NRSV translators), with the verb lacking an object in the Greek text, and either “slavery” or “freedom” must be supplied to complete the meaning. The context argues for the former, as indicated by the qualifying phrases even if and now more than ever (lit., “rather”); thus, even if a slave has the resources to purchase his freedom, he should rather make use of his present condition. But there may be a critique of slavery implicit in Paul’s choice of the verb make use of: the Christian vocation is exercised by use, not by possession. 22: The calling in the Lord results in a status reversal: the Christian slave has become a freed person of Christ, while the free man has become a slave of Christ. Paul’s thought moves beyond the Stoic consolation of “inner freedom” and implies changes in social relationship and behavior; see Philm 16. As was the custom in sacred manumission, where the god bought the Corinthians with a price, whether slave or free, so that they should no longer enslave themselves to human masters. 25–38: Whether virgins should marry must have been a question raised in the Corinthians’ letter to Paul, as indicated by the recurrence of the formula now concerning (see 7.11n.). Paul acknowledges that the advice that follows is his own opinion, since he has no command of the Lord; cf. 7.10,12. The impending crisis refers to the tribulations expected to occur in the last days before the Second Coming; see also vv. 29,31. What kind of “bond” is envisioned? Not, evidently, the bond of marriage, but a pledge to preserve the virginity of the young woman, to which the man addressed by Paul has committed himself. Paul reassures the man and his betrothed that the decision to marry is no sin, should they prove incapable of keeping their pledge to virginity. Paul shares his belief about the foreshortening of time as justification for urging an adjustment in social, emotional, and economic relations. The participle that Paul chooses (grown short) to describe what has happened to time in the Christ-event is from a verb used elsewhere in Greek literature of the furling of a ship’s sails, of the folding of a bird’s wings, of curtains gathered together. An apocalyptic parallel to Paul’s account of life according to the principle of as though . . . not is found in 2 Esd 16.41b–44: “Let the one who buys like the one who will lose; . . . those who marry, like those who will have no children.” But there are important differences: for Paul, the eschatological rupture occurs in the present, and is imminent to every action, whereas 2 Esdras distinguishes present from
1 Corinthians 8

32 I want you to be free from anxieties. The unmarried man is anxious about the affairs of the Lord, how to please the Lord; but the married man is anxious about the affairs of the world, how to please his wife, and his interests are divided. And the unmarried woman and the virgin are anxious about the affairs of the Lord, so that they may be holy in body and spirit; but the married woman is anxious about the affairs of the world, how to please her husband. 35 I say this for your own benefit, not to put any restraint upon you, but to promote good order and unhindered devotion to the Lord.

36 If anyone thinks that he is not behaving properly toward his fiancée, if his passions are strong, and so it has to be, let him marry as he wishes; it is no sin. Let them marry.

37 But if someone stands firm in his resolve, being under no necessity but having his own desire under control, and has determined in his own mind to keep her as his fiancée, he will do well. 38 So then, he who marries his fiancée does well; and he who refrains from marriage will do better.

39 A wife is bound as long as her husband lives. But if the husband dies, she is free to marry anyone she wishes, only in the Lord. 40 But in my judgment she is more blessed if she remains as she is. And I think that I too have the Spirit of God.

8 Now concerning food sacrificed to idols: we know that “all of us possess knowledge.” Knowledge puffs up, but love builds up. 2 Anyone who claims to know something does not yet have the necessary knowledge; 3 but anyone who loves God is known by him.

4 Hence, as to the eating of food offered to idols, we know that “no idol in the world really exists,” and that “there is no God but one.” 5 Indeed, even though there may be so-called gods in heaven or on earth—as in fact there are many gods and many lords—yet for us there is one God, the Father, from whom are all things and for whom we exist, and one Lord, Jesus Christ, through whom are all things and through whom we exist.

a Gk virgin
b Gk falls asleep

future, and distributes the crisis across different actions. 32–35: Paul wants his converts to be free from anxieties. Epictetus counseled the ideal Cynic to avoid the distractions of marriage; but the goal of Paul’s advice is not philosophical self-mastery, but unhindered devotion to the Lord. 36–38: Paul gives particular consideration to a situation which posed a special danger: when the desires of those who have pledged themselves to celibacy threaten to get out of control. In advising marriage in this case, Paul is not compromising his preference for the unmarried state. In Paul’s hierarchy of virtue, marriage is good, but celibacy is better. 39–40: The freedom of a Christian widow to remarry is affirmed, with one proviso: that she marry a fellow Christian. Yet Paul judges the widow to be more blessed who remains unmarried.

8.1–13: Eating food offered to idols. 1 The formula now concerning (see 7.11) indicates that this matter had been raised in the Corinthians’ letter to Paul. The background was apparently this: Paul’s advice in a previous letter (cf. 1 Cor 5.9) to shun the worship of idols (see 1 Cor 10.14–22) proved confusing and difficult for some to follow. What if one were invited to dine in the banquet hall of a sacred precinct? To decline such invitations would be socially disadvantageous (cf. 1 Cor 5.10). In reply, Paul quotes repeatedly from the Corinthians’ letter (8.1,4,8), permitting a detailed reconstruction of the social location and religious beliefs of the disputants. “All of us possess knowledge” is a quotation from the Corinthians’ letter. The content of their knowledge is quoted in 8.4: “No idol . . . really exists.” As a consequence, eating idol meat is a matter of indifference: “We are no worse off,” etc. (8.8; but also see further, below). Perhaps the “strong” represented it as their duty to build up the conscience of the “weak,” so that they would not cling to superstitions and scruples (8.10). In seeking to identify the “strong” and the “weak,” one should bear in mind that the poor seldom had meat as part of their diet, except when it was distributed at public religious festivals, whereas the rich could afford to buy meat in the market, and would have received invitations to dine in temples, owing to their social status. 1: Paul counters the emphasis upon religious knowledge by exposing its tendency to self-inflation; love (Gk “agape”) is the constructive force of Christian community, praised in ch 13. 3: Cf. Rom 8.28–30; Gal 4.9; 1 Cor 13.12. 4: The Corinthians’ knowledge that “no idol in the world really exists” is grounded in the monotheistic faith to which they have been converted; cf. Deut 4.35; 6.4; Wis 7.17; 13.1; 15.2–3. 5: Paul acknowledges not that many gods exist, but that
It is not everyone, however, who has this knowledge. Since some have become so accustomed to idols until now, they still think of the food they eat as food offered to an idol; and their conscience, being weak, is defiled. Food will not bring us close to God. We are no worse off if we do not eat, and no better off if we do. But take care that this liberty of yours does not somehow become a stumbling block to the weak. For if others see you, who possess knowledge, eating in the temple of an idol, might they not, since their conscience is weak, be encouraged to the point of eating food sacrificed to idols? So by your knowledge those weak believers for whom Christ died are destroyed. But when you thus sin against members of your family, and wound their conscience when it is weak, you sin against Christ. Therefore, if food is a cause of their falling, I will never eat meat, so that I may not cause one of them to fall.

Am I not free? Am I not an apostle? Have I not seen Jesus our Lord? Are you not my work in the Lord? If I am not an apostle to others, at least I am to you; for you are the seal of my apostleship in the Lord. This is my defense to those who would examine me. Do we not have the right to our food and drink? Do we not have the right to be accompanied by a believing wife, as do the other apostles and the brothers of the Lord and Cephas? Or is it only Barnabas and I who have no right to refrain from working for a living? Who at any time pays the expenses for doing military service? Who plants a vineyard and does not eat any of its

they are worshiped as such by others. Paul quotes an early Christian confession; cf. Rom 11.36; Col 1.15–16. Paul confronts the “strong” with the reality that some do not share their enlightened attitude toward the gods. Those who have been accustomed to idols until now must be Gentiles rather than Jews. The Greek word translated conscience does not correspond to the modern conception of an internal guide to moral conduct in the future, but denotes a past misdeed which causes pain. The “strong” have asserted that their consumption of idol meat did not convict them of any wrongdoing, and have alleged that the conscience of other Christians is weak for harboring such scruples. Paul appropriates the term conscience from the “strong” and uses it to express his own true concern that someone for whom the so-called gods (v. 5) have existence might be defiled by eating food offered to an idol. The entire verse is another quotation from the Corinthians’ letter, despite the NRSV’s punctuation. The Greek word translated liberty has a meaning closer to “authority” or “right,” as in 9.4–6,12,18. The situation envisioned here is illustrated by the temple of Asclepius at Corinth, which had three dining rooms on the east side of the courtyard. Paul formulates a radical conclusion regarding the relationship between knowledge and love: the proper object of religious concern is not an abstract truth about God, but those weak believers for whom Christ died. Paul formulates a general principle of Christian ethics: self-limiting regard for others.

9.1–27: Paul’s defense of his means of subsistence, with implications for his legitimacy as an apostle. As if to illustrate the principle of renunciation articulated in 8.13, Paul launches into a spirited defense of his decision not to accept financial support from some at Corinth. The background of the controversy was as follows. While Paul was resident in Corinth, he provided for his own needs by working with his hands (Acts 18.1–3). When other apostles and evangelists subsequently arrived, they accepted patronage from wealthy persons. In retrospect, Paul’s refusal of support appeared questionable. Did Paul know he was not entitled to support because he was not really an apostle? Moreover, labor of the sort by which Paul sustained himself was viewed as degrading by persons of high social status. These doubts and questions must have found expression in the Corinthians’ letter to Paul. Am I not free? Paul responds to the insinuation that he is not “free” to evangelize because he is a “slave” of his labor. An apostle . . . seen Jesus; cf. 15.8; Gal 1.11–17. Defense, (Gk “apologia”) a speech of defense before a court. On plans to examine Paul, see the allusion in 4.3–4. The brothers of the Lord are Jesus’ brothers; cf. Mk 6.3; Gal 1.19. Cephas, the Aramaic form of Peter’s name. Barnabas was Paul’s first colleague in mission; see Gal.2.1–10; Acts 9.27; 11.25–26; 13–14. Why does Paul multiply examples of the exercise of a privilege fruit? Or who tends a flock and does not get any of its milk?

8 Do I say this on human authority? Does not the law also say the same? 9 For it is written in the law of Moses, “You shall not muzzle an ox while it is treading out the grain.” Is it for oxen that God is concerned? 10 Or does he not speak entirely for our sake? It was indeed written for our sake, for whoever plows should plow in hope and whoever threshes should thresh in hope of a share in the crop.

If we have sown spiritual good among you, is it too much if we reap your material benefits? 12 If others share this rightful claim on you, do not we still more?

Nevertheless, we have not made use of this right, but we endure anything rather than put an obstacle in the way of the gospel of Christ. 13 Do you not know that those who are employed in the temple service get their food from the temple, and those who serve at the altar share in what is sacrificed on the altar? 14 In the same way, the Lord commanded that those who proclaim the gospel should get their living by the gospel.

15 But I have made no use of any of these rights, nor am I writing this so that they may be applied in my case. Indeed, I would rather die than that—no one will deprive me of my ground for boasting! 16 If I proclaim the gospel, this gives me no ground for boasting, for an obligation is laid on me, and woe to me if I do not proclaim the gospel! 17 For if I do this of my own will, I have a reward; but if not of my own will, I am entrusted with a commission. 18 What then is my reward? Just this: that in my proclamation I may make the gospel free of charge, so as not to make full use of my rights in the gospel.

19 For though I am free with respect to all, I have made myself a slave to all, so that I might win more of them. 20 To the Jews I became as a Jew, in order to win Jews. To those under the law I became as one under the law (though I myself am not under the law) so that I might win those under the law. 21 To those outside the law I became as one outside the law (though I am not free from God’s law but am under Christ’s law) so that I might win those outside the law. 22 To the weak I became weak, so that I might win the weak. I have become all things to all people, that I might by all means save some. 23 I do it all for the sake of the gospel, so that I may share in its blessings.

24 Do you not know that in a race the runners all compete, but only one receives the prize? Run in such a way that you may win it. 25 Athletes exercise self-control in all things; they do it to receive a perishable wreath, but we an imperishable one. 26 So I do not run aimlessly, nor do I box as though beating the air; 27 but I punish my body and enslave it, so that after proclaiming to others I myself should not be disqualified.

(by the soldier, the planter, the herder, the priest) about which the Corinthians are in agreement, when it is not his exercise of the privilege which is in dispute, but his renunciation of it? For the key to Paul’s argumentative strategy, see note on vv. 12b–14 below. 9: Deut. 25.4. 12b–14: Paul cleverly reinterprets the Lord’s command as a right of which he has not made use. Paul’s critics may have pointed out that, by working as a craftsman, Paul had violated the norms of Christian mission—that those who proclaim the gospel should get their living by the gospel. 14: What the Lord commanded refers to a saying like that attributed to Jesus in Lk 10.7. 15: Against those who find his occupation shameful, Paul asserts that it has provided him with ground for boasting; see also 2 Cor 11.7–10. 16: Paul represents his preaching as an obligation (lit., “necessity”), not a choice; cf. Rom 1.14–15. 17–18: By means of a series of well-chosen economic terms, Paul reverses the values of the Corinthian patrons: reward is literally “wages”; commission (Gk “oikonomia”) is the work of a household-manager; free of charge is a characteristic of benefactors. Paul’s point is that evangelists who accept financial support are mere hirelings, whereas he is the true benefactor of the community. 19–23: Paul portrays himself as a populist leader who identifies with the interests of the common people. Paul justifies his self-lowering action for the sake of the gospel: by making himself a slave to all, he hopes to save some. Paul’s upper-class critics may have regarded him as a demagogue, but the poor and weak would have found his self-presentation appealing. 24–27: In an extended metaphor, Paul compares himself to an athlete in training for the games. His renunciation of financial support should be understood as a form of discipline, an exercise of self-control. 25: The perishable wreath may allude specifically to the winner’s crown of the Isthmian Games, which was made of withered celery.)
I do not want you to be unaware, brothers and sisters,⁴ that our ancestors were all under the cloud, and all passed through the sea, ² and all were baptized into Moses in the cloud and in the sea, ³ and all ate the same spiritual food, ⁴ and all drank the same spiritual drink. For they drank from the spiritual rock that followed them, and the rock was Christ. ⁵ Nevertheless, God was not pleased with most of them, and they were struck down in the wilderness.

Now these things occurred as examples for us, so that we might not desire evil as they did. ⁷ Do not become idolaters as some of them did; as it is written, “The people sat down to eat and drink, and they rose up to play.” ⁸ We must not indulge in sexual immorality as some of them did, and twenty-three thousand fell in a single day. ⁹ We must not put Christ to the test, as some of them did, and were destroyed by serpents. ¹⁰ And do not complain as some of them did, and were destroyed by the destroyer. ¹¹ These things happened to them to serve as an example, and they were written down to instruct us, on whom the ends of the ages have come. ¹² So if you think you are standing, watch out that you do not fall. ¹³ No testing has overtaken you that is not common to everyone. God is faithful, and he will not let you be tested beyond your strength, but with the testing he will also provide the way out so that you may be able to endure it.

¹⁴ Therefore, my dear friends, ⁶ flee from the worship of idols. ¹⁵ I speak as to sensible people; judge for yourselves what I say. ¹⁶ The cup of blessing that we bless, is it not a sharing in the blood of Christ? The bread we break, is it not a sharing in the body of Christ? ¹⁷ Because there is one bread, we who are many are one body, for we all partake of the one bread. ¹⁸ Consider the people of Israel; ⁴ are not those who eat the sacrifices

¹⁰.1–22: Warning against participation in the worship of idols. Paul’s demand for a complete break with polytheistic sacrificial rituals is significantly more rigorous than his advice on food offered to idols in ch 8, suggesting that this passage belonged (with 6.12–20) to the letter on association with the immoral and idolaters mentioned in 5.9–10. Paul’s admonition takes the form of a typological interpretation of Israel’s Exodus and wilderness traditions, encouraging the Corinthians to see the danger to their community through the prism of Israel’s calamitous idolatry. ¹: The expression “our ancestors” reckons Gentile Christians as belonging to Israel. For Israel under the cloud, see Ps 105.39; Wis 10.17; 19.7; on passage through the sea, cf. Ex 14.21–22. ²: Paul typologically constructs Israel’s Exodus experience as prefiguring Christian baptism. ³–⁴: Spiritual food refers to the “manna” of Ex 16.15; cf. Ps 78.24–25; spiritual drink is the water struck from the rock by Moses in Ex 17.6; Num 20.7–11; cf. Ps 78.15–16. The tradition that the rock followed Israel through the wilderness is found in Tg. Ps.-j. on Num 20:19. In a stunning typological substitution, Paul explains that the rock was Christ. Using a similar hermeneutical maneuver, the first-century ce Jewish interpreter Philo equates the “rock” with “wisdom” and “manna” with the divine “logos.” ⁵: For the divine punishment of the wilderness generation, see Num 14.29–30; Jude 5; Heb 3.17. ⁶: Paul suggests that evil desire is the root of idolatry and immorality; for the background, see Num 11.4–6; Ps 106.14–15. ⁷: Paul quotes Ex 32.6, the only scripture cited explicitly in ch 10, because it epitomizes Paul’s concern with idolatry and immorality among the Corinthians. ⁸: For the close connection of idolatry with sexual immorality, see T. Reuben 4. On the twenty-three thousand who died by the plague, cf. Num 25.1–9. ⁹: That Israel put God to the test, see Ps 78.18; for destroyed by serpents, see Num 21.6. ¹⁰: Num. 16.41,49. ¹¹: Paul discerns a deeper “typological” purpose in the things that happened to Israel. Paul’s capacity to grasp such correspondences depends upon his eschatological perspective. ¹²–¹³: Paul reassures the Corinthians that God will provide the way out of the temptation to participate in polytheistic rituals. ¹⁴: Paul formulates the point of the preceding typological interpretation as an urgent injunction; cf. the similarly formulated warning in 6.18. ¹⁵–²²: To dissuade the Corinthians from participating in polytheistic rituals, Paul develops an argument that he hopes will appeal to the sensible. The argument rests upon the assumption that religious “fellowship” (Gk “koinonia”) is mutually exclusive. ¹⁶: The elasticity of the Greek phrase translated sharing in allows both for the social concept “fellowship with” and for the sacramental idea of “participation in” the blood . . . the body of Christ. ¹⁷: More than an act of communal sharing, Christians become one body through partaking of the one bread; cf. 12.13. ²⁰:
partners in the altar? 19 What do I imply then? That food sacrificed to idols is anything, or that an idol is anything? 20 No, I imply that what pagans sacrifice, they sacrifice to demons and not to God. I do not want you to be partners with demons. 21 You cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of demons. You cannot partake of the table of the Lord and the table of demons. 22 Or are we provoking the Lord to jealousy? Are we stronger than he?

23 “All things are lawful,” but not all things are beneficial. “All things are lawful,” but not all things build up. 24 Do not seek your own advantage, but that of the other. 25 Eat whatever is sold in the meat market without raising any question on the ground of conscience, 26 for “the earth and its fullness are the Lord’s.” 27 If an unbeliever invites you to a meal and you are disposed to go, eat whatever is set before you without raising any question on the ground of conscience. 28 But if someone says to you, “This has been offered in sacrifice,” then do not eat it, out of consideration for the one who informed you, and for the sake of conscience— 29 I mean the other’s conscience, not your own. For why should my liberty be subject to the judgment of someone else’s conscience? 30 If I partake with thankfulness, why should I be denounced because of that for which I give thanks?

31 So, whether you eat or drink, or whatever you do, do everything for the glory of God. 32 Give no offense to Jews or to Greeks or to the church of God, 33 just as I try to please everyone in everything I do, not seeking my own advantage, but that of many, so that they may be saved. 1 Be imitators of me, as I am of Christ.

2 I commend you because you remember me in everything and maintain the traditions just as I handed them on to you. 3 But I want you to understand that Christ is the head of every man, and the husband is the head of his wife, 4 and God is the head of Christ. 5 Any man who prays or prophesies with something on his head disgraces his head, 6 but any woman who prays or prophesies with her head unveiled disgraces her head—it is one and the same thing as having her head shaved. 6 For if a woman will not veil herself, a The same Greek word means man or husband b Or head of the woman

Cf. Deut 32.17. 21: Greek papyri furnish examples of invitations to dine upon the “couch” of deities such as lord Sarapis. 22: Cf. Deut 32.19,21.

10.23–11.1: Limits upon religious exclusivity. Paul anticipates objections to his advice to shun idolatry and deals with two ambiguous cases; on the meaning of “conscience,” see 8.7n. 23: As in 6.12, Paul quotes a Corinthian slogan and counters with consideration of what is beneficial and edifying. 25: Should all meat sold in the market be regarded as idol meat? The question was relevant, because meat markets were often located in the vicinity of temples. 27: The meal is presumably in the private home of an unbeliever. 29b–30: Because these questions stand in tension with what precedes and follows, some interpreters regard them as the objections of an imaginary interlocutor, while others suggest that they originated as a marginal gloss by one of the “strong” who read Paul’s letter. 31–33: Paul foregoes consideration of further cases and formulates a general rule of conduct.

11.2–16: Hairstyles in the assembly. The point at issue is difficult to determine. Paul seems to insist that charismatic women leaders wear the veil, in accordance with Jewish custom. But v. 15 allows that women have their hair as a covering. Hence, some interpreters construe unveiled (vv. 5,13) more generally as “uncovered,” in reference to the loose, disheveled hair of women in the ecstatic worship of Dionysus. But there is little support for this in the text. More interesting than what Paul argues for is what he does not argue against—the Spirit-filled leadership of women. It is assumed that women will pray and prophesy in the worship assembly (v. 5). 2: A problematic beginning: How will Paul maintain the traditions in the face of the new social identity given in Christ (cf. Gal 3.28)? 3–7: Paul argues on the basis of a hierarchy of being: God, Christ, man, woman. 4: Jewish men in the time of Paul did not wear a head-covering; see Gen. Rab. 17.8. 5–6: On the potential disgrace of a woman unveiled in public, see the comment of Plutarch on Roman custom: “It is more usual for women to go forth in public with their heads covered and men with their heads uncovered” (Quaestiones Romanae 267a). For Paul’s assumption that it is disgraceful for a woman to have her hair cut short, it may be relevant that Roman then she should cut off her hair; but if it is disgraceful for a woman to have her hair cut off or to be shaved, she should wear a veil.

7 For a man ought not to have his head veiled, since he is the image and reflection of God; but woman is the reflection of man. 8 Indeed, man was not made from woman, but woman from man. 9 Neither was man created for the sake of woman, but woman for the sake of man. 10 For this reason a woman ought to have a symbol of authority on her head, because of the angels. 11 Nevertheless, in the Lord woman is not independent of man or man independent of woman. 12 For just as woman came from man, so man comes through woman; but all things come from God. 13 Judge for yourselves: is it proper for a woman to pray to God with her head unveiled? 14 Does not nature itself teach you that if a man wears long hair, it is degrading to him, but if a woman has long hair, it is her glory? For her hair is given to her for a covering. 15 But if anyone is disposed to be contentious—we have no such custom, nor do the churches of God.

16 Now in the following instructions I do not commend you, because when you come together as a church, I hear that there are divisions among you; and to some extent I believe it. 17 Indeed, there have to be factions among you, for only so will it become clear who among you are genuine. 18 For, to begin with, when you come together as a church, I hear that there are divisions among you; and to some extent I believe it. 19 Indeed, there have to be factions among you, for only so will it become clear who among you are genuine. 20 When you come together, it is not really to eat the Lord's supper. 21 For when the time comes to eat, each of you goes ahead with his own supper, and one goes hungry and another becomes drunk. 22 What! Do you not have homes to eat and drink in? Or do you show contempt for the church of God and humility to those who have nothing? What should I say to you? Should I commend you? In this matter I do not commend you!

23 For I received from the Lord what I also handed on to you, that the Lord Jesus on the night when he was betrayed took a loaf of bread, 24 and when he had given thanks, he broke it and said, “This is my body that is for you. Do this in remembrance of me.” 25 In the same way he took the cup also, after supper, portraiture generally depicts women with long hair braided and wound up around their heads. 7: See Gen 1.27. 8–9: An argument from the order of creation; see Gen 2.18–23. 10: The angels are probably the “sons of God” in Gen 6.2 who had intercourse with mortal women and fathered a race of giants. Like other Jewish writers of the period (e.g., T. Reuben 5.6), Paul evidently fears that the angels will be aroused to lust by the sight of exposed women. 11–12: Nevertheless indicates that Paul breaks off the preceding argument and moves on to emphasize what is important: in the Lord there is mutuality and reciprocity between woman and man. 13–16: Paul’s argument having collapsed, he hands the decision over to the Corinthians, invoking a Stoic argument from nature and finally appealing to custom.

11.17–34: Divisions at the Lord’s Supper. A gulf between the “haves” and the “have-nots” emerged at the very place where the Corinthians should have been most capable of discerning the unity of the body of Christ—at the Lord’s Supper. According to the conventions of Greco-Roman dinner parties, the host apportioned the fare according to the status of his guests, reserving the best food and wine for his social equals and intimate friends. 18: The phrase come together as a church designates the weekly assembly of all the Christians of Corinth (cf. 14.23; 16.2), a larger gathering of the several subgroups, or “house churches,” for the purpose of eating the Lord’s Supper. The whole church evidently met in the home of a wealthy member, such as Gaius (Rom 16.23). 19: Paul’s assertion that there have to be factions may reflect an apocalyptic belief about the tribulation expected in the last days, but also may be meant ironically. 20–21: The contrast between the Lord’s supper and “the private supper” (NRSV: your own supper) makes clear how Paul sees the problem: the privatization of a meal intended for the community. The Greek verb translated goes ahead is ambiguous: it may suggest that some (the leisure class) began to eat before others (slaves, laborers) had arrived, but also that some selfishly ate their food while others looked on. In any case, the result is that one goes hungry and another becomes drunk. 22: Paul’s question Do you not have homes? is heavy with irony against the proprietary class. 23–26: Paul reminds the Corinthians of the act of self-giving, which established the basis of their fellowship, on the basis of early saying, “This cup is the new covenant in my blood. Do this, as often as you drink it, in re-membrance of me.” 26 For as often as you eat this bread and drink the cup, you proclaim the Lord’s death until he comes.

27 Whoever, therefore, eats the bread or drinks the cup of the Lord in an unworthy manner will be answerable for the body and blood of the Lord. 28 Examine yourselves, and only then eat of the bread and drink of the cup. 29 For all who eat and drink⁴ without discerning the body,⁵ eat and drink judgment against themselves. 30 For this reason many of you are weak and ill, and some have died.⁶ 31 But if we judged ourselves, we would not be judged. 32 But when we are judged by the Lord, we are disciplined⁷ so that we may not be condemned along with the world.

33 So then, my brothers and sisters,⁧ when you come together to eat, wait for one another. 34 If you are hungry, eat at home, so that when you come together, it will not be for your condemnation. About the other things I will give instructions when I come.

12 Now concerning spiritual gifts,⁨ brothers and sisters, I do not want you to be uninformed. 2 You know that when you were pagans, you were enticed and led astray to idols that could not speak. ³ Therefore I want you to understand that no one speaking by the Spirit of God ever says “Let Jesus be cursed!” and no one can say “Jesus is Lord” except by the Holy Spirit.

⁴ Now there are varieties of gifts, but the same Spirit; ⁵ and there are varieties of services, but the same Lord; ⁶ and there are varieties of activities, but it is the same God who activates all of them in everyone. ⁷ To each is given the manifestation of the Spirit for the common good. ⁸ To one is given through the Spirit the utterance of wisdom, and to another the utterance of knowledge according to the same Spirit, ⁹ to another faith by the same Spirit, to another gifts of healing by the one Spirit, ¹⁰ to another the working of miracles, to another prophecy, to another the discernment of spirits, to another various kinds of tongues, to another the interpretation of tongues. ¹¹ All these are activated by one and the same Spirit, who allotst o each one individually just as the Spirit chooses.

a Other ancient authorities add in an unworthy manner, b Other ancient authorities read the Lord’s body
c Gk fallen asleep
d Or When we are judged, we are being disciplined by the Lord
e Gk brothers
f Or spiritual persons tradition; cf. Mk 14.12–25. 25: Paul’s reference to the cup, after supper presupposes that a full meal was served between the bread and the wine. 26: Until he comes, see 1.8n. 29: What is meant by discerning the body—the eucharistic bread as Christ’s body, or the gathered church as Christ’s body, or perhaps both? 33–34: Paul’s counsel that the Corinthians wait for one another implies sharing, so as to alleviate the hunger and humiliation of those who have nothing (vv. 21–22).

12–14: On spiritual gifts. Paul counters an overemphasis upon glossolalia (speaking in tongues). Judging from the amount of space devoted to the subject, the gift of tongues must have been highly prized among the Corinthians. Not everyone in the church spoke in tongues (12.30); those who had the gift may have looked down upon those who did not. Paul does not deny the power of speaking in tongues, but interprets that power by ordering the gifts from the greatest (love) to the least (tongues), while affirming that all are necessary for the body of Christ. 12.1: The formula now concerning (see 7.1n.) indicates that a question about spiritual gifts had been raised in the Corinthians’ letter. 3: Paul establishes criteria to determine whether a person is speaking by the Spirit of God. Did someone in the church at Corinth actually say “Jesus be cursed!” in an ecstatic trance? Did the Corinthians hesitate to expel this person because of an overvaluation of spiritual gifts? 4–11: Paul affirms the diversity of gifts within unity. 7: The guiding principle should be the common good. 8–11: The nine named gifts are ranked: first wisdom, last tongues. 12–26: Paul’s metaphor of the church as a body is derived from Greco-Roman political discourse, where the figure functioned to urge concord. In the well-known fable of Menenius Agrippa, the Roman senator compared a strike by the common people to a revolt of the hands, mouth, and teeth against the belly, resulting in the death of the body. In ancient politics, the body analogy was essentially conservative, portraying the established order as “natural.” Paul uses the metaphor subversively
12 For just as the body is one and has many members, and all the members of the body, though many, are one body, so it is with Christ. 13 For in the one Spirit we were all baptized into one body—Jews or Greeks, slaves or free—and we were all made to drink of one Spirit.

14 Indeed, the body does not consist of one member but of many. 15 If the foot would say, “Because I am not a hand, I do not belong to the body,” that would not make it any less a part of the body. 16 And if the ear would say, “Because I am not an eye, I do not belong to the body,” that would not make it any less a part of the body. 17 If the whole body were an eye, where would the hearing be? If the whole body were hearing, where would the sense of smell be? 18 But as it is, God arranged the members in the body, each one of them, as he chose. 19 If all were a single member, where would the body be? 20 As it is, there are many members, yet one body. 21 The eye cannot say to the hand, “I have no need of you,” nor again the head to the feet, “I have no need of you.” 22 On the contrary, the members of the body that seem to be weaker are indispensable, 23 and those members of the body that we think less honorable we clothe with greater honor, and our less respectable members are treated with greater respect; 24 whereas our more respectable members do not need this. But God has so arranged the body, giving the greater honor to the inferior member, 25 that there may be no dissension within the body, but the members may have the same care for one another. 26 If one member suffers, all suffer together with it; if one member is honored, all rejoice together with it.

27 Now you are the body of Christ and individually members of it. 28 And God has appointed in the church first apostles, second prophets, third teachers; then deeds of power, then gifts of healing, forms of assistance, forms of leadership, various kinds of tongues. 29 Are all apostles? Are all prophets? Are all teachers? Do all work miracles? 30 Do all possess gifts of healing? Do all speak in tongues? Do all interpret? 31 But strive for the greater gifts. And I will show you a still more excellent way.

13 If I speak in the tongues of mortals and of angels, but do not have love, I am a noisy gong or a clanging cymbal. 2 And if I have prophetic powers, and understand all mysteries and all knowledge, and if I have all faith, so as to remove mountains, but do not have love, I am nothing. 3 If I give away all my possessions, and if I hand over my body so that I may boast, 4 but do not have love, I gain nothing.

4 Love is patient; love is kind; love is not envious or boastful or arrogant 5 or rude.

---

13:1–13: Praise of love. In the context of chs 12–14, Paul’s encomium of love serves to devalue the gift of tongues by showing the Corinthians a “more excellent way.” Yet, ch 13 is self-contained, and the transitions from 12.31 to 13.1 and from 13.13 to 14.1 are weak, so that some scholars conjecture that ch 13 was conceived and written earlier and independently (possibly as an essay for Paul’s school in Ephesus; cf. Acts 19.9) and reused here because of its relevance. With Paul’s speech in praise of love, compare Plato Symp. 197c–e. 1–3: The gifts are nothing without love. 1: Tongues of mortals refers to human speech; tongues of angels refers to glossolalia; cf. T. Job 48–52; 2 Cor 12.4. Paul’s comparative terms, noisy gong and clanging cymbal, are derived from ancient religious rituals; such sounds lack the warmth of love. 3: If the alternative reading my body to be burned (textual note a) is adopted, Paul is probably referring to the notorious Indian philosophers (“gymnosophists”) who im-
It does not insist on its own way; it is not irritable or resentful; it does not rejoice in wrongdoing, but rejoices in the truth. It bears all things, believes all things, hopes all things, endures all things.

8 Love never ends. But as for prophecies, they will come to an end; as for tongues, they will cease; as for knowledge, it will come to an end. 9 For we know only in part, and we prophesy only in part; but when the complete comes, the partial will come to an end. 10 When I was a child, I spoke like a child, I thought like a child, I reasoned like a child; when I became an adult, I put an end to childish ways.

11 For now we see in a mirror, dimly, but then we will see face to face. Now I know only in part; then I will know fully, even as I have been fully known. 12 And now faith, hope, and love abide, these three; and the greatest of these is love.

13 Therefore, one who speaks in a tongue should pray for the power to interpret. 14 For if I pray in a tongue, my spirit prays but my mind is unproductive. 15 What should I do then? I will pray with the spirit, but I will pray with the mind also; I will sing praise with the spirit, but I will sing praise with the mind also. 16 Otherwise, if you say a blessing with the spirit, how can anyone in the position of an outsider say the “Amen” to your thanksgiving, since the outsider does not know what you are saying? 17 For you may give

1 Corinthians 14

14 Pursue love and strive for the spiritual gifts, and especially that you may prophesy. 2 For those who speak in a tongue do not speak to other people but to God; for nobody understands them, since they are speaking mysteries in the Spirit. 3 On the other hand, those who prophesy speak to other people for their upbuilding and encouragement and consolation. 4 Those who speak in a tongue build up themselves, but those who prophesy build up the church. 5 Now I would like all of you to speak in tongues, but even more to prophesy. One who prophesies is greater than one who speaks in tongues, unless someone interprets, so that the church may be built up.

6 Now, brothers and sisters, if I come to you speaking in tongues, how will I benefit you unless I speak to you in some revelation or knowledge or prophecy or teaching? 7 It is the same way with lifeless instruments that produce sound, such as the flute or the harp. If they do not give distinct notes, how will anyone know what is being played? 8 And if the bugle gives an indistinct sound, who will get ready for battle? 9 So with yourselves; if in a tongue you utter speech that is not intelligible, how will anyone know what is being said? For you will be speaking into the air.

10 There are doubtless many different kinds of sounds in the world, and nothing is without sound. 11 If then I do not know the meaning of a sound, I will be a foreigner to the speaker and the speaker a foreigner to me. 12 So with yourselves; since you are eager for spiritual gifts, strive to excel in them for building up the church.

a Gk in a riddle
b Gk brothers
Thanksgiving and Fellowship (14:1–26)

In this section, Paul instructs the Corinthians on the proper use of the gift of tongues. He emphasizes the importance of speaking in a way that builds up the community, rather than dominating it with self-centered expressions.

1. Thanksgiving: Paul gives thanks for the Corinthians' gift of tongues (14:1). He acknowledges that they have been given the gift of speaking in other languages, but he reminds them that the primary purpose of this gift is to build up the community (14:5).

2. Criteria for using tongues: Paul provides several criteria for using the gift of tongues. These include being skilled in speaking, being instructed in the church, and speaking in a way that is beneficial to the community (14:2–6).

3. Interpretation: Paul emphasizes the importance of interpretation in the use of tongues. If there is no interpreter present, the speaker should not speak in tongues (14:7–12).

4. Orderly procedure: Paul specifies that only two or three should speak in tongues at a time, and that the speaker should not speak in tongues without first asking for guidance (14:26–28).

5. Comparison with prophecy: Paul compares the use of tongues with prophecy and explains that prophecy is more important because it is understood by all in the community (14:29–35).

6. Conclusion: Paul concludes by reminding the Corinthians of the importance of the community's unity and mutual regard (14:33–35).

The Resurrection of the Dead (15:1–58)

In this section, Paul addresses the Corinthians' concern about the resurrection of the dead. He presents a reasoned proof of the resurrection of the dead, using various sources and arguments to demonstrate its truth.

1. The evidence for the resurrection: Paul presents evidence from the Old Testament, the law, and the prophets to support the concept of the resurrection (15:1–11).

2. The importance of the resurrection: Paul explains that the resurrection is central to the Christian faith and that its failure to convince could disrupt the flow of the argument (15:12–14).

3. The justification for hope: Paul argues that the resurrection of the dead is the justification for the hope of believers (15:17–28).

4. The end of suffering: Paul describes the joy and peace that will result from the resurrection and the end of suffering (15:29–34).

5. The future of believers: Paul explains that believers will be raised to eternal life and that their resurrected bodies will be like Christ's (15:35–58).

This section provides a powerful and reasoned defense of the resurrection of the dead, a key doctrine of the Christian faith.
received, in which also you stand, ² through which also you are being saved, if you hold firmly to the message that I proclaimed to you—unless you have come to believe in vain.

³ For I handed on to you as of first importance what I in turn had received: that Christ died for our sins in accordance with the scriptures, ⁴ and that he was buried, and that he was raised on the third day in accordance with the scriptures, ⁵ and that he appeared to Cephas, then to the twelve. ⁶ Then he appeared to more than five hundred brothers and sisters at one time, most of whom are still alive, though some have died. ⁷ Then he appeared to James, then to all the apostles. ⁸ Last of all, as to one untimely born, he appeared also to me. ⁹ For I am the least of the apostles, unfit to be called an apostle, because I persecuted the church of God. ¹⁰ But by the grace of God I am what I am, and his grace toward me has not been in vain. On the contrary, I worked harder than any of them—though it was not I, but the grace of God that is with me. ¹¹ Whether then it was I or they, so we proclaim and so you have come to believe.

¹² Now if Christ is proclaimed as raised from the dead, how can some of you say there is no resurrection of the dead? ¹³ If there is no resurrection of the dead, then Christ has not been raised; ¹⁴ and if Christ has not been raised, then our proclamation has been in vain and your faith has been in vain. ¹⁵ We are even found to be misrepresenting God, because we testified of God that he raised Christ—whom he did not raise if it is true that the dead are not raised. ¹⁶ For if the dead are not raised, then Christ has not been raised. ¹⁷ If Christ has not been raised, your faith is futile and you are still in your sins. ¹⁸ Then those also who have died in Christ have perished. ¹⁹ If for this life only we have hoped in Christ, we are of all people most to be pitied.

²⁰ But in fact Christ has been raised from the dead, the first fruits of those who have died. ²¹ For since death came through a human being, the resurrection of the dead has also come through a human being; ²² for as all die in Adam, so all will be made alive in Christ. ²³ But each in his own order: Christ the first fruits, then at his coming those who belong to Christ. ²⁴ Then comes the end, when he hands over the kingdom to God the Father, after he has destroyed every ruler and every authority and power. ²⁵ For he must reign until he has put all his enemies under his feet. ²⁶ The last enemy to be destroyed is death. ²⁷ For “God has put all things in subjection under his feet.” But when it says,
“All things are put in subjection,” it is plain that this does not include the one who put all things in subjection under him. 28 When all things are subjected to him, then the Son himself will also be subjected to the one who put all things in subjection under him, so that God may be all in all.

29 Otherwise, what will those people do who receive baptism on behalf of the dead? If the dead are not raised at all, why are people baptized on their behalf?

30 And why are we putting ourselves in danger every hour? 31 I die every day! That is as certain, brothers and sisters, as certain, brothers and sisters, as my boasting of you—a boast that I make in Christ Jesus our Lord. 32 If with merely human hopes I fought with wild animals at Ephesus, what would I have gained by it? If the dead are not raised,

“Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die.”

33 Do not be deceived:

“Bad company ruins good morals.”

34 Come to a sober and right mind, and sin no more; for some people have no knowledge of God. I say this to your shame.

35 But someone will ask, “How are the dead raised? With what kind of body do they come?” 36 Fool! What you sow does not come to life unless it dies. 37 And as for what you sow, you do not sow the body that is to be, but a bare seed, perhaps of wheat or of some other grain. 38 But God gives it a body as he has chosen, and to each kind of seed its own body. 39 Not all flesh is alike, but there is one flesh for human beings, another for animals, another for birds, and another for fish. 40 There are both heavenly bodies and earthly bodies, but the glory of the heavenly is one thing, and that of the earthly is another. 41 There is one glory of the sun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the stars; indeed, star differs from star in glory.

42 So it is with the resurrection of the dead. What is sown is perishable, what is raised is imperishable. 43 It is sown in dishonor, it is raised in glory. It is sown in weakness, it is raised in power. 44 It is sown a physical body, it is raised a spiritual body. If there is a physical body, there is also a spiritual body. 45 Thus it is written, “The first man, Adam, became a living being”; the last Adam became a life-giving spirit. 46 But it is not the spiritual that is first, but the physical, and then the spiritual. 47 The first man was from the earth, a man of dust; the second man is from heaven. 48 As was the man of dust, so are those who are of the dust; and as is the man of heaven, so are those who are of heaven. 49 Just as we have borne the image of the man of dust, we will also bear the image of the man of heaven.

50 What I am saying, brothers and sisters, is this: flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God, nor does the perishable inherit the imperishable. 51 Listen, I will tell you a mystery! We will not all die, but we... will all be changed, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet. For the trumpet will sound, and the dead will be raised imperishable, and we will be changed. For this perishable body must put on imperishability, and this mortal body must put on immortality. When this perishable body puts on imperishability, and this mortal body puts on immortality, then the saying that is written will be fulfilled:

“Death has been swallowed up in victory.”

The sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, who gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Therefore, my beloved, be steadfast, immovable, always excelling in the work of the Lord, because you know that in the Lord your labor is not in vain.

16 Now concerning the collection for the saints: you should follow the directions I gave to the churches of Galatia. On the first day of every week, each of you is to put aside and save whatever extra you earn, so that collections need not be taken when I come. And when I arrive, I will send any whom you approve with letters to take your gift to Jerusalem. If it seems advisable that I should go also, they will accompany me.

5 I will visit you after passing through Macedonia—for I intend to pass through Macedonia—and perhaps I will stay with you or even spend the winter, so that you may send me on my way, wherever I go. I do not want to see you now just in passing, for I hope to spend some time with you, if the Lord permits. But I will stay in Ephesus until Pentecost, for a wide door for effective work has opened to me, and there are many adversaries.

10 If Timothy comes, see that he has nothing to fear among you, for he is doing the work of the Lord just as I am; therefore let no one despise him. Send him on his way in peace, so that he may come to me; for I am expecting him with the brothers.

12 Now concerning our brother Apollos, I strongly urged him to visit you with the other brothers, but he was not at all willing to come now. He will come when he has the opportunity.

13 Keep alert, stand firm in your faith, be courageous, be strong. Let all that you do be done in love.

15 Now, brothers and sisters, you know that members of the household of Stephanas were the first converts in Achaia, and they...

---

Gk beloved brothers
Or it was not at all God's will for him
Gk brothers

---
have devoted themselves to the service of the saints; I urge you to put yourselves at the service of such people, and of everyone who works and toils with them. I rejoice at the coming of Stephanas and Fortunatus and Achaicus, because they have made up for your absence; for they refreshed my spirit as well as yours. So give recognition to such persons.

The churches of Asia send greetings. Aquila and Prisca, together with the church in their house, greet you warmly in the Lord. All the brothers and sisters send greetings. Greet one another with a holy kiss.

I, Paul, write this greeting with my own hand. Let anyone be accursed who has no love for the Lord. Our Lord, come! The grace of the Lord Jesus be with you. My love be with all of you in Christ Jesus.

saints (i.e., the believers) employs some of the same vocabulary used by Paul in describing the charitable collection in 16.1; 2 Cor 8.4; 9.1. Fortunatus (“Lucky”) and Achaicus (“the Achaian”) are probably Stephanas’s slaves or freedmen; their names indicate servile origins. On Aquila and Prisca in Asia (Minor), see Acts 18.2,18–21,26. The holy kiss was a form of early Christian greeting; cf. 1 Thess 5.26; Rom 16.16; 1 Pet 5.14.

Up to this point Paul had been dictating the letter; now he adds a few words in his own hand. Our Lord, come! An early Christian prayer, in Aramaic, expressing hope in an imminent Second Coming of Christ; cf. Rev 22.20.
THE SECOND LETTER OF PAUL TO THE CORINTHIANS

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, HISTORICAL CONTEXT
See the Introduction to 1 Corinthians.

LITERARY HISTORY
Second Corinthians switches topics and tone rapidly. After a conciliatory passage and before finishing his travelogue (2.5–13), Paul shifts into a self-defense (2.14–5.21) based on an exegetical discussion of Moses’ veil in Exodus 34 (3.1–18) and ending in an anxious appeal for reconciliation (6.1–13; 7.2–4 [6.14–7.1 appears to be parenthetical]). Thereupon the travelogue resumes, picking up where it left off at 2.13, and Paul again sounds a conciliatory tone by expressing his complete confidence in the Corinthians (7.5–16). Two chapters (8 and 9) follow on the collection for the poor of Jerusalem that may well be separate solicitation letters. A highly charged polemical section, dripping with sarcasm and irony (10.1–13.10), concludes the letter. These considerations have convinced many scholars that 2 Corinthians is a composite of different letters, even if their precise extent and relative chronology are uncertain (see notes on 2.13; 6.14–7.1; 8.1–9.15; 10.1–18).

Nevertheless, because some motifs occur throughout the letter, some scholars do not subscribe to a partition theory. The relationship between affliction and consolation, for example, first raised in 1.3–11, is the backbone of the arguments in 4.7–10; 4.16–5.10; and 12.7–10. The twin themes of boasting and confidence intimated in 1.12–14 feature prominently in 3.4–18; 8.1–7.24; 9.1–5; and all of chs 10–13. The paradox of power in weakness informs the whole letter: Weakness, not extravagant power, authenticates true ministry, so much so that Paul would allow himself to boast only of his afflictions and sufferings (4.7–5.10; 11.23b–33; 12.1–10). Even if 2 Corinthians is a composite, the different letters were composed within a brief period to deal with specific controversial issues.

CONTENTS AND INTERPRETATION
Paul has a running dispute with the Corinthians over money. He rejects the congregation’s patronage by refusing remuneration (1 Cor 9; 2 Cor 11.7,9; 12.16), but he is willing to accept gifts from their rivals in Macedonia (2 Cor 11.8–9; Phil 4.15–18). When he asks the Corinthians to contribute to the collection for Jerusalem (see notes on 8.1–9.15), a project Paul accepted at the Jerusalem meeting (Gal 2.10) and subsequently took to Galatia and Corinth (1 Cor 16.1–4), he and his companion are accused of being “crafty” and “deceitful” (2 Cor 12.16–18).

The arrival of outside missionaries (10.13–15; 11.4) makes a bad situation worse. These opponents of Paul, derisively called “super-apostles” (11.5; 12.11), “false apostles” (11.13), even “Satan’s ministers” (11.15), boast of their Jewish credentials (11.22), their spiritual prowess manifested in ecstasies and visions (12.1) and in performing miracles (12.12), weighty recommendation (3.1; 5.12), and elegant speech (11.6). They also appear willing to accept Corinthian patronage (2.17). All of these qualities are perceived to be lacking in Paul (10.1–2,10).

Sensing he is on the verge of losing control of the congregation, Paul visits Corinth a second time, with disastrous results. A member of the congregation grievously offends him (2.5–6), and he departs from Corinth deeply hurt. After this “painful visit” (2.1; 7.2), Paul writes a “letter of tears” (2.4; 7.8), a letter that is either lost or partially preserved in chs 10–13. Despite or perhaps because of its severity, the letter succeeds in bringing the majority of the congregation back to Paul (7.6–7). Relieved at the resolution of the conflict, Paul resumes the collection and sends ahead of his third visit a delegation headed by Titus (8.6,16–24) with a solicitation letter (chs 8–9, which may also be a composite of two separate letters). In Rom 15.26, Paul writes, from Corinth, that he is about to embark on a journey to Jerusalem to deliver the collection from “Macedonia and Achaia.” So he appears to have brought the project, finally, to a successful conclusion.

READING GUIDE
The letter is best read straight through, but one can note at various points where shifts in tone or subject occur, and therefore where different letters may have been joined together.

Sze-kar Wan
1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, and Timothy our brother,
To the church of God that is in Corinth, including all the saints throughout Achaia:
2 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and the God of all consolation, who consoles us in all our affliction, so that we may be able to console those who are in any affliction with the consolation with which we ourselves are consoled by God. For just as the sufferings of Christ are abundant for us, so also our consolation is abundant through Christ.

4 If we are being afflicted, it is for your consolation and salvation; if we are being consoled, it is for your consolation, which you experience when you patiently endure the same sufferings that we are also suffering. Our hope for you is unshaken; for we know that as you share in our sufferings, so also you share in our consolation.

5 Indeed, this is our boast, the testimony of our conscience: we have behaved in the world with frankness and godly sincerity, not by earthly wisdom but by the grace of God—and all the more toward you. For we do not want you to be unaware, brothers and sisters, of the affliction we experienced in Asia; for we were so utterly, unbearably crushed that we despaired of life itself. Indeed, we felt that we had received the sentence of death so that we would rely not on ourselves but on God who raises the dead. He who rescued us from so deadly a peril will continue to rescue us; on him we have set our hope that he will rescue us again, as you also join in helping us by your prayers, so that many will give thanks on our behalf for the blessing granted us through the prayers of many.

6 Indeed, this is our boast, the testimony of our conscience: we have behaved in the world with frankness and godly sincerity, not by earthly wisdom but by the grace of God—and all the more toward you. For we

---

a  Gk brothers
b  Other ancient authorities read your c  Other ancient authorities read holiness

1.1–2.13: Opening.
1.1–2: Salutation. A standard part of Paul’s letters; see 1 Cor 1.1; Phil 1.1; Philem 1. 1: An apostle was a special emissary, but Paul reminds the Corinthians that he was appointed by (lit., “through”) the will of God. Cf. Rom 1.1; 1 Cor 1.1; Gal 1.1. For Paul’s self-understanding of his call to be an apostle, see Gal 1.10–17 but also Rom 1.1–6; 1 Cor 9.15–11. Timothy, along with Silvanus, was with Paul at the founding of the Corinthian congregation (v. 19; Acts 18.5) and acted as Paul’s representative when troubles broke out (1 Cor 4.17; 16.10–11; cf. also Acts 19.22). Elsewhere Paul calls Timothy “my beloved child” (1 Cor 4.17), but here he calls him brother, a sign of respect. Elsewhere in 2 Cor the plural “churches” is used; the singular here, the church of God, is a collective designation of all the congregations in Corinth. Saints refers not to an elite group of believers but to followers of Christ set apart by God. Achaia, the Roman senatorial province of which Corinth was the capital. 2: Grace to you and peace from God . . . , a standard greeting found in all of Paul’s letters except 1 Thess 1.1, where a short form is used.

1.3–7: Paul blesses God for rescuing him and consoling his affictions. Not the standard thanksgiving that reinforces Paul’s relationship with the recipients (e.g., Phil 1.3–11; 1 Thess 1.2–10), but a blessing in the Jewish liturgical tradition that emphasizes the attributes of God. Paul chooses the latter, partly because his relationship with the Corinthians is strained, and partly because he wants to introduce the themes of affliction and consolation that are repeated at key points in the letter (see Introduction). 3–4: Calling God Father of mercies is common in Jewish worship; see Rom 12.1; Phil 2.1. So that we may be able to console . . . , whatever Paul experienced is for the sake of the Corinthians. 5–7: Paul invites the Corinthians to be partners in suffering by noting believers’ identification with the sufferings of Christ, which are abundant for us; see 4.10–11; Phil 3.10–11.

1.8–11: God delivers Paul. In recounting God’s deliverance, Paul stresses the Corinthians’ participation in his ministry. 8: Asia, a Roman senatorial province in modern-day western Turkey that included Ephesus. 9: There is no consensus on what this ordeal was; possibilities include imprisonment (Phil 1.19–24) and the event behind “I fought with wild animals at Ephesus” (1 Cor 15.32).

1.12–2.13: Paul stresses his bond with the Corinthians. Paul recounts his past dealings with the Corinthians in hopes of cementing his relationship with them.

1.12–14: Paul claims his conduct is a basis of solidarity. 12: Boast or confidence is a prominent theme in Paul’s letters (e.g., 1 Thess 2.19) but especially in the Corinthian correspondence; “sure” (2 Cor 1.15); “confidence” (3.4; 8.22); “boldness” (3.12; 10.2); “frankly” (6.11); “boasting” (9.2–3; 1 Cor 9.15). It is used here as a synonym of con-write you nothing other than what you can read and also understand; I hope you will understand until the end—\(^a\) as you have already understood us in part—that on the day of the Lord Jesus we are your boast even as you are our boast.

\(^{15}\) Since I was sure of this, I wanted to come to you first, so that you might have a double favor;\(^b\) \(^{16}\) I wanted to visit you on my way to Macedonia, and to come back to you from Macedonia and have you send me on to Judea. \(^{17}\) Was I vacillating when I wanted to do this? Do I make my plans according to ordinary human standards,\(^b\) ready to say “Yes, yes” and “No, no” at the same time? \(^{18}\) As surely as God is faithful, our word to you has not been “Yes and No.” For this reason it is through him it is always “Yes.”

\(^{20}\) For in him every one of God’s promises is a “Yes.” For this reason it is through him that we say the “Amen,” to the glory of God.

\(^{21}\) But it is God who establishes us with you in Christ and has anointed us,\(^b\) that we say the “Amen,” to the glory of God.

English Standard Version

2 Corinthians 2

15 Since I was sure of this, I wanted to come to you first, so that you might have a double favor;\(^a\) \(^{16}\) I wanted to visit you on my way to Macedonia, and to come back to you from Macedonia and have you send me on to Judea. \(^{17}\) Was I vacillating when I wanted to do this? Do I make my plans according to ordinary human standards,\(^b\) ready to say “Yes, yes” and “No, no” at the same time? \(^{18}\) As surely as God is faithful, our word to you has not been “Yes and No.” \(^{19}\) For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, whom we proclaimed among you, Silvanus and Timothy and I, was not “Yes and No”; but in him it is always “Yes.”

\(^{20}\) For in him every one of God’s promises is a “Yes.” For this reason it is through him that we say the “Amen,” to the glory of God.

\(^{21}\) But it is God who establishes us with you in Christ and has anointed us,\(^b\) by putting his seal on us and giving us his Spirit in our hearts as a first installment.

\(^{22}\) But I call on God as witness against me: it was to spare you that I did not come again to Corinth. \(^{23}\) I do not mean to imply that we lord it over your faith; rather, we are workers with you for your joy, because you stand firm in the faith. \(^{1}\) So I made up my mind not to make you another painful visit. \(^{2}\) For if I cause you pain, who is there to make me glad but the one whom I have pained? \(^{3}\) And I wrote as I did, so that when I came, I might not suffer pain from those who should have made me rejoice; for I am confident about all of you, that my joy would be the joy of all of you. \(^{4}\) For I wrote you out of much distress and anguish of heart and with many tears, not to cause you pain, but to let you know the abundant love that I have for you.

\(^{5}\) But if anyone has caused pain, he has caused it not to me, but to some extent—not...
to exaggerate it—to all of you. 6 This punishment by the majority is enough for such a person; 7 so now instead you should forgive and console him, so that he may not be overwhelmed by excessive sorrow. 8 So I urge you to reaffirm your love for him. 9 I wrote for this reason: to test you and to know whether you are obedient in everything. 10 Anyone whom you forgive, I also forgive. What I have forgiven, if I have forgiven anything, has been for your sake in the presence of Christ. 11 And we do this so that we may not be outwitted by Satan; for we are not ignorant of his designs.

12 When I came to Troas to proclaim the good news of Christ, a door was opened for me in the Lord; 13 but my mind could not rest because I did not find my brother Titus there. So I said farewell to them and went on to Macedonia.

14 But thanks be to God, who in Christ always leads us in triumphal procession, and through us spreads in every place the fragrance that comes from knowing him. 15 For we are the aroma of Christ to God among those who are being saved and among those who are perishing; 16 to the one a fragrance from death to death, to the other a fragrance from life to life. Who is sufficient for these things? 17 For we are not peddlers of God’s word like so many, 4 but in Christ we speak as persons of sincerity, as persons sent from God and standing in his presence.

Are we beginning to commend ourselves again? Surely we do not need, as some do, letters of recommendation to you or from you, do we? 2 You yourselves are our letter, written on our hearts, to be known and read by all; 3 and you show that you are a letter of Christ, prepared by us, written not with ink but with the Spirit of the living God, not on tablets of stone but on tablets of human hearts.

4 Such is the confidence that we have through Christ toward God. 5 Not that we are a a Other ancient authorities read like the others

b Other ancient authorities read your
Now the Lord is the Spirit, and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom. And all of us, with unveiled faces, seeing the glory of the Lord as though reflected in a mirror, are being transformed into the same image from one degree of glory to another; for this comes from the Lord, the Spirit.

Therefore, since it is by God’s mercy that we are engaged in this ministry, we do not lose heart. We have renounced the shameful things that one hides; we refuse to practice cunning or to falsify God’s word; but by the open statement of the truth we commend ourselves to the conscience of everyone in the sight of God. And even if our gospel is veiled, it is veiled to those who are perishing. In their case the god of this world has blinded the minds of the unbelievers, to keep them from seeing the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God. For we do not proclaim ourselves; we proclaim Jesus Christ as Lord and ourselves as your slaves for Jesus’ sake. For it is the God who said, “Let light shine out of darkness,” who has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

resurrected life from death (Rom 4.17; 8.11; 1 Cor 15.22,36,45; Gal 3.21; cf. also Jn 5.21; 6.63; 1 Pet 3.18), its opposite, the letter, i.e., the written code, must mean death. The letter/Spirit contrast in this context does not mean literal versus inner meaning. New covenant, not of letter but of spirit, refers to two competing interpretations of Jeremiah’s “new covenant.” 7–11: The controlling imagery is Moses’ changed countenance in Ex 34.29–35, which Paul interprets using a rabbinic method of argumentation, from the lesser to the greater. 7: Ministry of death, the fading glory of the old covenant. 12: Boldness connotes fearlessness of appearing before God in the end time; see v. 4 and 1.12–14n. 13: Paul interprets the veil of Moses as covering up the transitory nature of the glory that was being set aside, lit., “abolished.” 14–15: The veil becomes a metaphor for lack of enlightenment. Old covenant refers not to the Hebrew Bible in general but to the Sinai covenant (Ex 24.7) or to the law (2 Chr 34.30), i.e., the written code as such. 15: Moses here refers to the Torah, the law or teaching of Moses that forms the first part of the Jewish scriptures, the first five books of the Bible; see 2 Chr 25.4; Mk 12.26; Acts 15.21. 16: Paul modifies Ex 34.34 by removing “Moses” and changing “removed” to “is removed,” resulting in the Lord removing the veil, with contrast to the veiled “minds” in vv. 14–15. 17: Paul hastens to add that “the Lord” of the biblical text refers to the Spirit, which guarantees freedom. 18: Glory of the Lord parallels the Lord, the Spirit (also vv. 16–17). Being transformed refers to a fundamental change in those who remove their veils. Image, see Rom 8.29; 1 Cor 15.49; Col 3.10. From one degree of glory to another reflects belief in the Greco-Roman world that an encounter with the divine transforms the beholder into its image.
7 But we have this treasure in clay jars, so that it may be made clear that this extraordinary power belongs to God and does not come from us. 8 We are afflicted in every way, but not crushed; perplexed, but not driven to despair; 9 persecuted, but not forsaken; struck down, but not destroyed; 10 always carrying in the body the death of Jesus, so that the life of Jesus may also be made visible in our bodies.

11 For while we live, we are always being given up to death for Jesus’ sake, so that the life of Jesus may be made visible in our mortal flesh. 12 So death is at work in us, but life in you.

13 But just as we have the same spirit of faith that is in accordance with scripture—“I believed, and so I spoke”—we also believe, because we know that the one who raised the Lord Jesus will raise us also with Jesus, and will bring us with you into his presence. 14 Yes, everything is for your sake, so that grace, as it extends to more and more people, may increase thanksgiving, to the glory of God.

15 So we do not lose heart. Even though our outer nature is wasting away, our inner nature is being renewed day by day. 16 For this slight momentary affliction is preparing us for an eternal weight of glory beyond all measure, 17 because we look not at what can be seen but at what cannot be seen; for what can be seen is temporary, but what cannot be seen is eternal.

5 For we know that if the earthly tent we live in is destroyed, we have a building from God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens. 2 For in this tent we groan, longing to be clothed with our heavenly dwelling—3 if indeed, when we have taken it off we will not be found naked. 4 For while we are still in this tent, we groan under our burden, because we wish not to be unclothed but to be further clothed, so that what is mortal may be swallowed up by life. 5 He who has prepared us for this very thing is God, who has given us the Spirit as a guarantee.

6 So we are always confident; even though we know that while we are at home in the body we are away from the Lord—7 for we walk by faith, not by sight. 8 Yes, we do have confidence, and we would rather be away from the body and at home with the Lord. 9 So whether we are at home or away, we make it our aim to please him. 10 For all of us must appear before the judgment seat of Christ, so that each may receive recompense for what has been done in the body, whether good or evil.

11 Therefore, knowing the fear of the Lord, we try to persuade others; but we ourselves are well known to God, and I hope that we are also well known to your consciences. 12 We are not commending ourselves to you again, but giving you an opportunity to boast about us, so that you may be able to answer those who boast in outward appearance and not in the heart. 13 For if we are beside ourselves, it is for God; if we are

4.7–5.10: Ministry of hardship. Affliction and consolation, first raised in 1.3–11, are elaborated: Weakness points to God’s empowering presence. 4.7: Clay jars, once broken, cannot be mended but must be thrown away. The contrast with treasure demonstrates God’s power. 8–9: Catalogue of hardships formulated as antithetical pairs to show the incomparable power of God’s glory. See also 6.4–10; 11.23–27; 12.10; Rom 8.35,38–39; 1 Cor 4.11–13; Phil 4.12. The Stoics used catalogues of hardship to demonstrate their indifference to adversity, but for Paul adversity demonstrates the unworthiness of the vessels and the overcoming of adversity documents the power of God. 10–11: Carrying . . . the death of Jesus, the death of Jesus is replicated in Paul’s bodily sufferings, with the result that the life of Jesus may also be made visible; cf. Gal 2.20. 13: Ps 116.10. 4.16–5.10: Paul uses the dualistic language current in Hellenistic thought to express the tension between present afflictions and ongoing renewal. 4.16: Lose heart, see v. 1. The outer nature that is wasting away is the part that undergoes sufferings and hardships (vv. 8–9) and carries the death of Jesus (vv. 10–11). The inner nature is the part that is being renewed daily; cf. Rom 12.2. 18: Temporary and eternal represent not consecutive but overlapping eras. 5.1: Paul continues the temporary/permanent contrast with one between earthly tent, a reference to the body (see Wis 9.15), and building from God, which is eternal in the heavens. 5. Guarantee, see 1.22n. 6–8: While . . . in the body we are away from the Lord, see Phil 1.21,23; the body is a barrier to being with Christ more perfectly. 10: See Rom 14.10.

5.11–6.10: Ministry of reconciliation. 5.11–13: Paul recalls his relationship to the Corinthians. 11: Consciences, see 1.12n.; 4.2. 12: Commending, see 3.1n. Boast, see 1.12n. and 3.12n. Those who boast in outward appearance in our right mind, it is for you. 14 For the love of Christ urges us on, because we are convinced that one has died for all; therefore all have died. 15 And he died for all, so that those who live might live no longer for themselves, but for him who died and was raised for them.

16 From now on, therefore, we regard no one from a human point of view;⁴ even though we once knew Christ from a human point of view, we know him no longer in that way. 17 So if anyone is in Christ, there is a new creation: everything old has passed away; see, everything has become new! 18 All this is from God, who reconciled us to himself through Christ, and has given us the ministry of reconciliation; 19 that is, in Christ God was reconciling the world to himself,⁶ not counting their trespasses against them, and entrusting the message of reconciliation to us. 20 So we are ambassadors for Christ, since God is making his appeal through us; we entreat you on behalf of Christ, be reconciled to God. 21 For our sake he made him to be sin who knew no sin, so that in him we might become the righteousness of God.

As we work together with him,⁵ we urge you also not to accept the grace of God in vain. 2 For he says, “At an acceptable time I have listened to you, and on a day of salvation I have helped you.”

See, now is the acceptable time; see, now is the day of salvation! ³ We are putting no obstacle in anyone’s way, so that no fault may be found with our ministry, ⁴ but as servants of God we have commended ourselves in every way: through great endurance, in afflictions, hardships, calamities, ⁵ beatings, imprisonments, riots, labors, sleepless nights, hunger; ⁶ by purity, knowledge, patience, kindness, holiness of spirit, genuine love, ⁷ truthful speech, and the power of God; with the weapons of righteousness for the right hand and for the left; ⁸ in honor and dishonor, in ill repute and good repute. We are treated as impostors, and yet are true; ⁹ as unknown, and yet are well known; as dying, and see—we are alive; as punished, and yet not killed; ¹⁰ as sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing everything.

¹¹ We have spoken frankly to you Corinthians; our heart is wide open to you. ¹² There is no restriction in our affections, but only in a

² Gk according to the flesh

⁴ Or God was in Christ reconciling the world to himself

⁶ Gk As we work together

6–7: Summary of defense. 2: Isa 49.8. ⁴–⁵: Catalogue of hardships; see 4.8–⁹n. ⁶–⁷: Catalogue of virtues; see Gal 5.22–23; Phil 4.8. ⁸–¹⁰: These seven contrasting pairs, impostors, and yet are true . . . having nothing, and yet possessing everything, are not paradoxes to show the imperturbability of an ideal sage (as in Stoic philosophy), but antitheses answering charges against Paul. This is a summary of his self-defense that began in 2.14. From a human point of view (5.16), Paul and his co-workers might be accused of being impostors, unknown, etc., but in the context of the new creation (5.17), they are really true, known, etc.
yours. ³³ In return—I speak as to children—open wide your hearts also.

¹⁴ Do not be mismatched with unbelievers. For what partnership is there between righteousness and lawlessness? Or what fellowship is there between light and darkness? ¹⁵ What agreement does Christ have with Beliar? Or what does a believer share with an unbeliever? ¹⁶ What agreement has the temple of God with idols? For we are the temple of the living God; as God said, “I will live in them and walk among them, and I will be their God, and they shall be my people.” ¹⁷ Therefore come out from them, and be separate from them, says the Lord, and touch nothing unclean; then I will welcome you, ¹⁸ and I will be your father, and you shall be my sons and daughters, says the Lord Almighty.”

7 Since we have these promises, beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from every defilement of body and of spirit, making holiness perfect in the fear of God.

² Make room in your hearts for us; we have wronged no one, we have corrupted no one, we have taken advantage of no one. ³ I do not say this to condemn you, for I said before that you are in our hearts, to die together and to live together. ⁴ I often boast about you; I have great pride in you; I am filled with consolation; I am overjoyed in all our affliction.

⁵ For even when we came into Macedonia, our bodies had no rest, but we were afflicted in every way—disputes without and fears within. ⁶ But God, who consoles the downcast, consoled us by the arrival of Titus, ⁷ and not only by his coming, but also by the consolation with which he was consoled about you, as he told us of your longing, your mourning, your zeal for me, so that I rejoiced still more. ⁸ For even if I made you sorry with my letter, I do not regret it (though I did regret it, for I see that I grieved you with that letter, though only briefly). ⁹ Now I rejoice, not because you were grieved, but because your grief led to repentance; for you felt a godly grief, so that you were not harmed in any way by us. ¹⁰ For godly grief produces a repentance that leads to salvation and brings no regret, but worldly grief produces death. ¹¹ For see what earnestness this godly grief has produced in you, what eagerness to clear yourselves, what indignation, what alarm, what longing, what zeal, what punishment! At every point you have proved yourselves guiltless in the matter. ¹² So although I wrote to you, it was not on account of the one who did the wrong, nor on account of the one who

---

6.11–7.4: Final appeal to the Corinthians. 6.11–13: Frankly, see 1.12n. 6.14–7.1: An abrupt interruption of Paul’s appeal in the present context, since 7.2–4 more naturally follows 6.11–13. This passage contains many words used nowhere else by Paul; the stark dualism is also uncharacteristic of him. 14: Mismatched, lit., “misyoked,” used only here in the New Testament; see Lev 19.19. Partnership (used only here in the New Testament), fellowship, and “share” (v. 15) are synonyms meaning “association” in general. Righteousness and lawlessness, see Rom 6.19, where the second word is translated “iniquity.” Light and darkness (see Rom 2.19; 13.12; 1 Cor 4.5; 1 Thess 5.4–5) also undergirds the imagery of 4.3–6, where the same contrast between “believers” and unbelievers (v. 15) is also found. 15: Beliar, another name for Satan; see 2.11n. 16a: Temple of the living God, see 1 Cor 3.16. 16b–18: A chain of citations from Lev 26.12; Ezek 37.27; Isa 52.11; 2 Sam 7.14; Isa 43.6 to show separation from defilement. 7.1: Defilement, used only here in the New Testament. Body and spirit are not set in opposition here; contrast Gal 5.16–26. Fear of God, see 5.11. 7.2–4: Resumption of appeal in 6.11–13. 3: Die . . . live, Paul reverses the traditional declaration of friendship, “live . . . die,” to emphasize his bond with the Corinthians through identification with Christ’s death and life. 4: Boast, see 1.12–14n. and 3.12n. Consolation . . . affliction, see 1.3–7n. All three themes are introduced in 1.3–14.

7.5–16: Resumption of travelogue (2.12–13). “Afflicted” (v. 5), “consoles” (vv. 6,7,13), “boasting” (v. 14 twice), “confidence” (v. 16), introduced in 1.3–14, are recapitulated throughout this passage; see notes there, and also 7.4n. 6–8: Titus (see 2.13n.) brought news that Paul’s letter (see 2.3–4n.) had been received favorably; see 2.5–11.
was wronged, but in order that your zeal for us might be made known to you before God.
13 In this we find comfort.

In addition to our own consolation, we rejoiced still more at the joy of Titus, because his mind has been set at rest by all of you.
14 For if I have been somewhat boastful about you to him, I was not disgraced; but just as everything we said to you was true, so our boasting to Titus has proved true as well.
15 And his heart goes out all the more to you, as he remembers the obedience of all of you, and how you welcomed him with fear and trembling. I rejoice, because I have complete confidence in you.

8 We want you to know, brothers and sisters, about the grace of God that has been granted to the churches of Macedonia;
1 for during a severe ordeal of affliction, their abundant joy and their extreme poverty have overflowed in a wealth of generosity on their part.
2 For, as I can testify, they voluntarily gave according to their means, and even beyond their means, begging us earnestly for the privilege of sharing in this ministry to the saints— and this, not merely as we expected; they gave themselves first to the Lord and, by the will of God, to us, so that we might urge Titus that, as he had already made a beginning, so he should also complete this generous undertaking among you.
3 Now as you excel in everything—in faith, in speech, in knowledge, in utmost eagerness, and in our love for you—so we want you to excel also in this generous undertaking.

4 I do not say this as a command, but I am testing the genuineness of your love against the earnestness of others.
5 For you know the generous act of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, so that by his poverty you might become rich.
6 And in this matter I am giving my advice: it is appropriate for you who began last year not only to do something but even to desire to do something— now finish doing it, so that your eagerness may be matched by completing it according to your means.
7 For if the eagerness is there, the gift is acceptable according to what one has—not according to what one does not have.
8 I do not mean that there should be relief for others and pressure on you, but it is a question of a fair balance between your present abundance and their need, so that their abundance may be for your need, in order that there may be a fair balance.
9 As it is written, “The one who had much did not have too much,

10: The one who did the wrong, the offender mentioned in 2.6. The one who was wronged, Paul himself.
11: Confidence concludes the narrative of vv. 5–16 and anticipates the appeal for the collection in chs 8–9.

8.1–9.15: The collection for the Jerusalem church was meant not only to bring relief to its economic plight but also to show unity between it and the often well-to-do, urban, largely Gentile congregations in the Diaspora; see Gal 2.10; 1 Cor 16.1–4; Rom 15.25–27. Chapters 8 and 9 are probably two separate letters to two different regions in Achaia; see 9.2n.

8.1–24: Letter of appeal to the Corinthians for the collection. 1–7: The Macedonian churches as an example of generosity. 1: Grace (Gk “charis”), used ten times in chs 8–9 to describe the collection, translated in 8.4 as “privilege”; in 8.6,7,19 as “generous undertaking”; in 8.9 as “generous act”; in 8.16 as “thanks”; in 9.8 as “blessing”; in 9.15 as “thanks.” Other words used in this connection: Gk “eulogia,” “bountiful gift” and “voluntary gift” (9.5); “bountifully” (9.6 twice); “ministry” (Gk “leitourgia”), 9.12; “sharing” (Gk “koinonia”), 8.4; 9.13. This attests to the rich theological significance Paul attaches to the collection. Macedonia, see 1.16n. Paul principally has the Philippian and Thessalonian churches in mind, but see 9.2. 2: Severe ordeal, possibly the same event as in Phil 1.29–30. 4: Sharing (Gk “koinonia”), used here to describe the collection (as also in 9.13 and Rom 15.26), also refers to participation in the Eucharist (1 Cor 10.16) and in Christ’s suffering (Phil 3.10); see 8.1n. Saints, here and in 9.1,12, refers to the Jerusalem believers. 6: Titus, see 2.13n.; 8.16–24. 8–15: There should be a fair balance between those who have more and those who have less. 9: A close parallel of though he was rich, . . . he became poor is 5.21, “He made him into sin who knew no sin . . .”; see also Phil 2.6–8. 15: “The one . . . too little,” Ex 16.18.
this case, so that you may be ready, as I said you would be; otherwise, if some Macedonians come with me and find that you are not ready, we would be humiliated—to say nothing of you—in this undertaking. So I thought it necessary to urge the brothers to go on ahead to you, and arrange in advance for this bountiful gift that you have promised, so that it may be ready as a voluntary gift and not as an extortion.

6 The point is this: the one who sows sparingly will also reap sparingly, and the one who sows bountifully will also reap bountifully. Each of you must give as you have made up your mind, not reluctantly or under compulsion, for God loves a cheerful giver.

8 And God is able to provide you with every blessing in abundance, so that by always having enough of everything, you may share abundantly in every good work. As it is written,

“He scatters abroad, he gives to the poor; his righteousness endures forever.”

10 He who supplies seed to the sower and bread for food will supply and multiply your seed for sowing and increase the harvest of your righteousness.

You will be enriched in every way for your great generosity, which will produce thanksgiving to God through us; for the rendering of this ministry not only supplies the needs of the brothers in order that our boasting about you may not prove to have been empty in the sight of others.

20 We intend that no one should blame us about this generous gift that we are administering, and to show our goodwill. We intend that no one should blame us about this generous gift that we are administering, for we intend to do what is right not only in the Lord’s sight but also in the sight of others. And with them we are sending our brother whom we have often tested and found eager in many matters, but who is now more eager than ever because of his great confidence in you. As for Titus, he is my partner and co-worker in your service; as for our brothers, they are messengers of the churches, the glory of Christ. Therefore openly before the churches, show them the proof of your love and of our reason for boasting about you.

9 Now it is not necessary for me to write you about the ministry to the saints, for I know your eagerness, which is the subject of my boasting about you to the people of Macedonia, saying that Achaia has been ready since last year; and your zeal has stirred up most of them. But I am sending the brothers in order that our boasting about you may not prove to have been empty in the heart of Titus the same eagerness for you that I myself have. For he not only accepted our appeal, but since he is more eager than ever, he is going to you of his own accord.

16 But thanks be to God who put in the heart of Titus the same eagerness for you that I myself have. For he not only accepted our appeal, but since he is more eager than ever, he is going to you of his own accord.

18 With him we are sending the brother who is famous among all the churches for his proclaiming the good news; and not only that, but he has also been appointed by the churches to travel with us while we are administering this generous undertaking for the glory of the Lord himself and to show our goodwill.

We intend that no one should blame us about this generous gift that we are administering, and to show our goodwill.
of the saints but also overflows with many thanksgivings to God. Through the testing of this ministry you glorify God by your obedience to the confession of the gospel of Christ and by the generosity of your sharing with them and with all others, while they long for you and pray for you because of the surpassing grace of God that he has given you. Thanks be to God for his indescribable gift!

10 I myself, Paul, appeal to you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ—I who am humble when face to face with you, but bold toward you when I am away!—I ask that when I am present I need not show boldness by daring to oppose those who think we are acting according to human standards. Indeed, we live as human beings, but we do not wage war according to human standards; for the weapons of our warfare are not merely human, but they have divine power to destroy strongholds. We destroy arguments and every proud obstacle raised up against the knowledge of God, and we take every thought captive to obey Christ. We are ready to punish every disobedience when your obedience is complete.

10.1–18: Paul attacks his opponents. The ironic and polemical tone of chs 10–13 contrasts sharply with that of the preceding chapters. Paul no longer refers to his opponents obliquely (see 2.17n.; 5.12n.), but pointedly. For these reasons, many scholars think that chs 10–13 are part of another letter (see Introduction). 1–6: His opponents criticize Paul for lack of power, but Paul insists on demonstrating power through weakness; see 4.7–12n.; 11.30 (summarizing 11.21b–29); 12.9–10 (summarizing 12.1–8); 1 Cor 1.17–25. 1: Meekness and gentleness of Christ, the self-emptying state of Christ as depicted in 8.9; Phil 2.6–8. 2: Those who think… when I am away, alludes to the charge against him; see also v. 10. 3: Base or humiliated. 4: Those who think…, opponents whom Paul addresses throughout the letter only in the third person; see 10.10–11.12; 11.5.12–15. 5–5: Not merely human, but divine power, Paul admits that he and those like him live as human beings, but his weapons have superhuman power. We destroy arguments, the opponents are characterized as debaters; see also 1 Cor 1.10–20. Wage war, destroy, and take captive, warfare imagery applied to the religious debate. 6: Paul hopes that the Corinthians’ obedience may be complete. Paul’s threat of “punishment” here is in marked contrast to his commendation of the Corinthians in 7.15 for obedience at the receipt of that letter, lending support to chs 10–13 belonging to a different letter. 7–11: Paul answers specific charges. 7: Just as you belong to Christ, so also do we, answers the opponents’ boasting that they “belong to Christ.” 8: Boast, Paul normally boasts of the Corinthians; see 1.12n., 3.12n., but here he boasts of himself, but only by claiming authority as their founder. The proper content of boasting is a bone of contention in chs 10–13. Building you up… tearing you down, cf. Jer 1.10; Eccl 3.9–11: Letters answers direct charges by the opponents (v. 10) that his personal appearances and speech, unlike his weighty letter, are unimpressive. “His speech contemptible,” see 11.6. 12–18: The proper way to boast is within one’s territory. 12: We do not dare to classify or compare, standard rhetorical device of calling attention to one’s praiseworthy acts in comparison with persons of superiority. Paul denounces the practice here but overstepping our limits when we reached you; we were the first to come all the way to you with the good news\(^a\) of Christ. 15 We do not boast beyond limits, that is, in the labors of others; but our hope is that, as your faith increases, our sphere of action among you may be greatly enlarged. 16 so that we may proclaim the good news\(^a\) in lands beyond you, without boasting of work already done in someone else's sphere of action. 17 “Let the one who boasts, boast in the Lord.” 18 For it is not those who commend themselves that are approved, but those whom the Lord com-

11 I wish you would bear with me in a little foolishness. Do bear with me! 2 I feel a divine jealousy for you, for I promised you in marriage to one husband, to present you as a chaste virgin to Christ. 3 But I am afraid that as the serpent deceived Eve by its cunning, your thoughts will be led astray from a sincere and pure devotion to Christ. 4 For if someone comes and proclaims another Jesus than the one we proclaimed, or if you receive a different spirit from the one you received, or a different gospel from the one you accepted, you submit to it readily enough. 5 I think that I am not in the least inferior to these super-apostles. 6 I may be untrained in speech, but not in knowledge; certainly in every way and in all things we have made this evident to you.

7 Did I commit a sin by humbling myself so that you might be exalted, because I proclaimed God’s good news\(^b\) to you free of charge? 8 I robbed other churches by accepting support from them in order to serve you. 9 And when I was with you and was in need, I did not burden anyone, for my needs were supplied by the friends\(^d\) who came from Macedonia. So I refrained and will continue to refrain from burdening you in any way. 10 As the truth of Christ is in me, this boast of mine will not be silenced in the regions of Achaia. 11 And why? Because I do not love you? God knows I do!

12 And what I do I will also continue to do, in order to deny an opportunity to those who want an opportunity to be recognized as our

\(^a\) Or the gospel
\(^b\) Other ancient authorities lack and pure
\(^c\) Gk the gospel of God
\(^d\) Gk brothers

parodies it later in his fool’s speech; see 11.21b–12.10. 13–16: Field (v. 13), lit., “(measure of) rule (Gk ‘kanon’)” (also vv. 15,16), probably refers to the proper jurisdiction, i.e., the Gentiles, assigned to Paul and Barnabas at the Jerusalem meeting (Gal 2.9). Paul reminds his Corinthian hearers that he founded the congregation legitimately, without boasting of work already done in someone else’s sphere of action (v. 16, “kanon”). It is a polemic against the opponents whom Paul accuses of overstepping their bounds, going back on the Jerusalem agreement. In lands beyond you, indication that Paul had hoped to use Corinth as a base for further missionary work. If Rom 15.23–24,28 is any indication, a trip to Spain is in view. 17: Jer 9.23–24, also cited in 1 Cor 1.31.

11.1–12.10: A fool’s speech. Paul parodies his opponents’ penchant for comparison right after criticizing them for doing the same (10.12).

11.1–15: Appeal to the Corinthians as a fool. 1: Foolishness (Gk “aphrosyne”) is the opposite of “moderation” or “sober-mindedness” (Gk “sophrosyne”); see “madman” (Gk “paraphronon”), 11.23; 1 Cor 1–3 uses different words for “foolishness” (Gk “moria,” “moros”), whose opposite is “wisdom” (Gk “sophia”). 2: I promised you in marriage, Paul presents himself as father of the bride, that is, he is the founder of the Corinthian congregation; see 1.19. 3: Serpent, Satan; see 2.11; 11.14; 1 Cor 7.5. Deceived Eve, Gen 3.13. In connection with “marriage” and “virginity” (v. 2), Paul is probably thinking of the Jewish tradition that Satan sexually seduced Eve (see 2 Enoch 31.6). 4–5: Another, different spirit, different gospel, reminiscent of language in Gal 1.6–9; see 10.13–16n. 6: Untrained in speech, see 10.10. 7: Humbling myself, lit., “debasings myself”; see also 12.21; Phil 4.12. The adjective is used in 10.1. Christ is said to be “debased” in Phil 2.8. Since Greco-Roman philosophers viewed craftsmen as debased, Paul’s use of the word might refer to his continual activity as a craftsman (see 1 Cor 4.12; 1 Thess 2.9) to support himself. 9: I did not burden anyone, see 12.13; 1 Cor 9 for Paul’s refusal to accept support from the Corinthians; see 1 Thess 2.9; Phil 4.16,18, for Macedonian support. In the Roman world, accepting support was to place the recipient (client) under the immediate obligation of the benefactor (patron). By not accepting Corinthian support, Paul is refusing the Corinthians the status and authority of patronage; by accepting Macedonian support, Paul is seen as slighting the Corinthian congregation; and by pursuing the collection at equals in what they boast about. 13 For such boasters are false apostles, deceitful workers, disguising themselves as apostles of Christ. 14 And no wonder! Even Satan disguises himself as an angel of light. 15 So it is not strange if his ministers also disguise themselves as ministers of righteousness. Their end will match their deeds.

16 I repeat, let no one think that I am a fool; but if you do, then accept me as a fool, so that I too may boast a little. 17 What I am saying in regard to this boastful confidence, I am saying not with the Lord’s authority, but as a fool; 18 since many boast according to human standards, 4 I will also boast. 19 For you gladly put up with fools, being wise yourself! 20 For you put up with it when someone makes slaves of you, or preys upon you, or takes advantage of you, or puts on airs, or gives you a slap in the face. 21 To my shame, I must say, we were too weak for that!

But whatever anyone dares to boast of—I am speaking as a fool—I also dare to boast of that. 22 Are they Hebrews? So am I. Are they Israelites? So am I. Are they descendants of Abraham? So am I. 23 Are they ministers of Christ? I am talking like a madman—I am a better one: with far greater labors, far more imprisonments, with countless floggings, and often near death. 24 Five times I have received from the Jews the forty lashes minus one. 25 Three times I was beaten with rods. Once I received a stoning. Three times I was shipwrecked; for a night and a day I was adrift at sea; 26 on frequent journeys, in danger from rivers, danger from bandits, danger from my own people, danger from Gentiles, danger in the city, danger in the wilderness, danger at sea, danger from false brothers and sisters; 27 in toil and hardship, through many a sleepless night, hungry and thirsty, often without food, cold and naked. 28 And, besides other things, I am under daily pressure because of my anxiety for all the churches. 29 Who is weak, and I am not weak? Who is made to stumble, and I am not indignant?

30 If I must boast, I will boast of the things that show my weakness. 31 The God and Father of the Lord Jesus (blessed be he forever!) knows that I do not lie. 32 In Damascus, the governor under King Aretas guarded the city of Damascus in order to seize me, but I was let down in a basket through a window in the wall, and escaped from his hands.

12 It is necessary to boast; nothing is to be gained by it, but I will go on to visions and revelations of the Lord. 2 I know a person in Christ who fourteen years ago was caught up to the third heaven—whether in the body or out of the body I do not know; God knows. 3 And I know that such a person—whether in the body or out of the body I do not know;

the same time, Paul could be accused of being unscrupulous; see 12.14–18n. 12–15: Characterization of Paul’s opponents. Satan, see 2.11n.

11.16–12.10: Paul compares himself to his opponents. 16–33: Paul lists his hardships as validation of his apostolic authenticity. 16: Fool, see 11.11n. 17–18: Boast according to human standards, a different type of boasting from that of 1.12–14 and much closer to the boasting of 10.8. 22: Hebrews . . . Israelites . . . descendants of Abraham, suggests that they boast of their Jewish pedigree. Paul is proud of his Jewish heritage, ready to declare it unflinchingly whenever the situation calls for it; see Rom 9.4; 11.1; Gal 1.13; Phil 3.5. 23a: Madman, see 11.11n. 23b–27: Catalogue of hardships used ironically to show the extreme affl ictions and weakness of Paul; see notes on 1.3–7; 4.8–9; 10.1. Little is known about details of these hardships. 24: Forty lashes minus one, see Deut 25.3. 32–33: See Acts 9.23–25. Damascus, site of Paul’s first contact with the Jesus movement. Aretas IV ruled the Nabateans from 9 BCE until his death ca. 41 CE. The Nabateans took control of Damascus in 37 CE, soon after which Paul escaped from the city in a basket.

12.1–10: Paul relates an out-of-body experience, since his opponents have claimed such experiences as validation of their spiritual prowess; see 5.13n. 1: Visions and revelations, extrasensory events that endow the seer with power and status; see v. 7; 1 Cor 9.1; 15.5–8; Gal 1.12; 2.1–2. 2–3: I know a person (also v. 5), an oblique reference to himself, following the apocalyptic convention of anonymous authorship; see vv. 7–9. Third heaven,
God knows—⁴ was caught up into Paradise and heard things that are not to be told, that no mortal is permitted to repeat. ⁵ On behalf of such a one I will boast, but on my own behalf I will not boast, except of my weaknesses. ⁶ But if I wish to boast, I will not be a fool, for I will be speaking the truth. But I refrain from it, so that no one may think better of me than what is seen in me or heard from me, ⁷ even considering the exceptional character of the revelations. Therefore, to keep⁸ me from being too elated, a thorn was given me in the flesh, a messenger of Satan to torment me, to keep me from being too elated. ⁹ Three times I appealed to the Lord about this, that it would leave me, but he said to me, “My grace is sufficient for you, for power made perfect in weakness.” So, I will boast all the more gladly of my weaknesses, so that the power of Christ may dwell in me. ¹⁰ Therefore I am content with weaknesses, insults, hardships, persecutions, and calamities for the sake of Christ; for whenever I am weak, then I am strong.

¹¹ I have been a fool! You forced me to it. Indeed you should have been the ones commending me, for I am not at all inferior to these super-apostles, even though I am nothing. ¹² The signs of a true apostle were performed among you with utmost patience, signs and wonders and mighty works. ¹³ How have you been worse off than the other churches, except that I myself did not burden you? Forgive me this wrong!

¹⁴ Here I am, ready to come to you this third time. And I will not be a burden, because I do not want what is yours but you; for children ought not to lay up for their parents, but parents for their children. ¹⁵ I will most gladly spend and be spent for you. If I love you more, am I to be loved less? ¹⁶ Let it be assumed that I did not burden you. Nevertheless (you say) since I was crafty, I took you in by deceit. ¹⁷ Did I take advantage of you through any of those whom I sent to you? ¹⁸ I urged Titus to go, and sent the brother with him. Titus did not take advantage of you, did he? Did we not conduct ourselves with the same spirit? Did we not take the same steps?

¹⁹ Have you been thinking all along that we have been defending ourselves before you? We are speaking in Christ before God. Everything we do, beloved, is for the sake of building you up. ²⁰ For I fear that when I come, I may find you not as I wish, and that you may find me not as you wish; I fear that there may perhaps be quarreling, jealousy, anger, selfishness, slander, gossip, conceit, and disorder. ²¹ I fear that when I come again, my God may humble me before you, and that I may have to mourn over many who previously sinned and have not repented of the impurity, sexual immorality, and licentiousness that they have practiced.

Other ancient authorities read To keep
Other ancient authorities lack to keep me from being too elated
Other ancient authorities read my power

i.e., Paradise (v. 4), where according to mystical Judaism one is granted a vision of the blessed. in the body or out of the body, an ecstatic experience. ⁴ Not to be told, esoteric knowledge not to be divulged to the uninitiated. ⁷ Nature of the thorn is unknown. ⁹ Sufficient (Gk “arkein”), a different word from that of 2.6,16; 3.5–6 and a cognate of “enough” of 9.8 (see note there). Unlike the Hellenistic ideal of sufficiency that transcends hardships regardless of one’s circumstance (see 9.8), Paul accepts these hardships as real, because in their weakness they ironically manifest the power of God; see 10.11. ¹⁰ Whenever I am weak, then I am strong, Paul informs his hearers he is equally endowed with extravagant power, but he subordinates it to weaknesses, insults, hardships, persecutions, and calamities. ¹¹–¹³: Conclusion of the fool’s speech. ¹¹ Super-apostles, see 10.2n. Commending, see 3.1n. ¹²: Paul is not above telling the Corinthians that he too has performed miracles. ¹³: See 11.9n.

12.14–13.10: Paul prepares for a third visit. 12.14–18: Paul answers charges that he has been enriching himself through the collection (chs 8–9). 14: Third visit (also v. 21; 13.1), see 2.1n. for the “painful visit,” Paul’s second to Corinth. I will not be a burden, see 11.9n. Parents, for Paul as father to his converts, see 11.2. ¹⁶ (You say) . . . I took you in by deceit, some Corinthians evidently accused Paul of skimming the collection funds. ¹⁸: Titus was sent to oversee the collection in 8.6,16,23; see also 2.13n. The brother is the “brother” sent by Paul to accompany Titus in 8.22–23 and not the “brother” elected by the congregations in 8.18. ¹⁹–21: Paul warns the Corinthians to repent before his third visit. ¹⁹: Building you up, see 10.8, 13.10. ²⁰–²¹: Catalogue of vices, see Rom 1.29–31;
This is the third time I am coming to you. “Any charge must be sustained by the evidence of two or three witnesses.”

I warned those who sinned previously and all the others, and I warn them now while absent, as I did when present on my second visit, that if I come again, I will not be lenient—since you desire proof that Christ is speaking in me. He is not weak in dealing with you, but is powerful in you.

For he was crucified in weakness, but lives by the power of God. For we are weak in him, but in dealing with you we will live with him by the power of God.

Examine yourselves to see whether you are living in the faith. Test yourselves. Do you not realize that Jesus Christ is in you?—unless, indeed, you fail to meet the test! I hope you will find out that we have not failed.

But we pray to God that you may not do anything wrong—not that we may appear to have met the test, but that you may do what is right, though we may seem to have failed. For we cannot do anything against the truth, but only for the truth.

For we rejoice when we are weak and you are strong. This is what we pray for, that you may become perfect. So I write these things while I am away from you, so that when I come, I may not have to be severe in using the authority that the Lord has given me for building up and not for tearing down.

Finally, brothers and sisters, farewell.

Put things in order, listen to my appeal, agree with one another, live in peace; and the God of love and peace will be with you.

Greet one another with a holy kiss. All the saints greet you.

The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Spirit be with all of you.

---

13:13; 1 Cor 5.10–11; 6.9–10; Gal 5.19–21. 21: Ironic use of humble, here meaning “humiliate”; see 11.7n. 13.1–10: Previously mentioned themes are resumed in a severe warning of harsh discipline. 1: Third visit, see 12.14n. “Any . . . witnesses,” Deut 19.15. 3–4: Christ . . . is not weak . . . but is powerful, the weak/powerful paradox summarized; see 10.1n.; 12.10n. 10: Strong warning while away, so that Paul will not have to resort to severe discipline, precisely what the opponents accused Paul of doing (10.10–11). Paul reminds the Corinthians that this is so for the purpose of building up, not tearing down; see 10.8; 12.19.

13.11–13: Final benediction. 11: Finally, a standard device to conclude a discussion. Farewell (or “rejoice”) . . . put . . . listen . . . agree . . . live . . . , a series of parting exhortations. 12: Holy kiss, see Rom 16.16; 1 Cor 16.20; 1 Thess 5.26. 13: A full triadic benediction found nowhere else in Paul’s letters.
This page intentionally left blank
THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE GALATIANS

NAME, DATE, AND AUTHORSHIP
The addressees of the Letter to the Galatians are an unspecified number of “the churches of Galatia” (1.2), a Roman province in central Asia Minor where, according to Acts, Paul had preached (Acts 13.14–14.23; cf. 16.6; 18.23). Although Galatians follows the form of a letter to specific churches, there are no references to individuals and little information about Paul’s mission in the region. Rather, the letter is Paul’s defense of his Gentile mission as a whole and the understanding of the law on which it is based.

The date of the letter’s composition is not given. It was written some time between the late 40s and mid 50s CE. Paul would develop his views on the law further in the Letter to the Romans. Paul’s authorship is generally accepted by modern scholars.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT
By the middle of the first century CE, although the early Christian movement was still connected to Judaism, an increasing number of its members were Gentiles. The tireless missionary activity of Paul, who saw himself as the apostle to the Gentiles (1.16), had fostered this development. Inevitably the question arose of what relationship Gentile Christians should have toward Judaism. One critical issue concerned the law of Moses. Should Gentile Christians convert to Judaism in the process of becoming Christians? Were they required to observe the Jewish law, at least in part? The Letter to the Galatians belongs to this controversy, and in it Paul states a position on the Jewish law, which was to have far-reaching consequences.

CONTENTS AND INTERPRETATION
Prior to writing Galatians, Paul had been involved in discussions of Gentile observance of the law with the leaders of the Jerusalem church (2.1–10). This meeting may be identical with the council at Jerusalem, reported in Acts 15.1–29. Paul’s account of his visit to Jerusalem is very different from the one in Acts. In Galatians Paul insists that no demand was made for Gentiles to observe the law. Subsequently, a conflict in Antioch ensued over table fellowship of Jews and Gentiles (2.11–14). Paul names as his opponents in Antioch “certain people . . . from James,” the brother of Jesus (1.19) and leader of the Jerusalem church, and “the circumcision faction,” but it is unclear whether the two groups are the same. Nonetheless, they persuaded the rest of the Jews, including Peter and Barnabas, to break off table fellowship with Gentile believers. Paul repeats his accusation against Peter that Peter himself no longer observed Jewish law and customs, yet he could be pressured to impose them on Gentiles.

In the confrontation with Peter, Paul had held that the demands of the Jewish law were an unnecessary burden for Gentiles when even Jewish Christians did not always observe them (2.11–14). Now he argues that the observance of the Jewish law by Gentile Christians is incompatible with acceptance of the gospel (2.15–21). Paul does not address the question of whether Jewish Christians should still keep the law. In an allegorical argument based upon the story of Hagar and Sarah (4.21–31; see Gen 16; 21.1–21) Paul suggests that the Sinai covenant and the community based upon the observance of the law is at odds with the authentic Israel, the community united with the one true heir of Abraham, Jesus Christ (3.16). Earlier in the letter Paul spoke about the law as a provisional measure, a means to discipline those who would inherit Abraham’s promise (3.24; cf. 4.1–6). These passages imply that Judaism is redundant, perhaps even an obstacle to God’s plan for human salvation. Paul does not draw this conclusion, and in Romans 9–11 he explicitly rebuts it. Paul agrees that Peter and James are “entrusted with the gospel to the circumcised” (2.7–8), and observance of the law was preserved at this time in Jewish Christian communities.

The context of Paul’s formulations was a bitter struggle with opponents in Galatia. The content and sharp polemics of the letter were worked out in reply to what Paul knew of his opponents’ teaching and of their attacks upon him. Despite the efforts of scholars to identify and reconstruct the arguments of Paul’s opponents, they remain a shadowy group. Most commentators describe them as Judaizers because they insisted on circumcision. Whether they belonged to the same opposition that Paul had faced in Antioch or during his visit to the Jerusalem leaders (the “false believers” in 2.4) cannot be decided from Paul’s letter. We also have no evidence that they were missionaries sent by the Jerusalem church and representing James, notwithstanding Paul’s earlier conflict in Antioch. Nevertheless, the effect of their controversy with Paul is unmistakable. The opposition forced him to develop a defense of his mission to the Gentiles, which would provide the rationale for a later Christianity independent of its Jewish roots. In recent decades a more careful reading of ancient Jewish literature, supplemented by the discovery of new texts, notably those of the sect of Qumran, has undermined earlier understandings of ancient Judaism as a legalistic religion. We can now see that Paul was participating in internal Jewish debates about the nature and role of the law.
Galatians 1

Toward the end of the letter Paul turns to moral exhortation (5.13–6.10) so that his position on the law does not leave the Galatians without ethical guidance. Christian freedom from the law is based on living in the realm of the Spirit. The Spirit is a connecting thread between Paul’s law-free gospel and his vision of Christian behavior, between faith and love (5.5–6,18,22–25.).

Sheila Briggs

1 Paul an apostle—sent neither by human commission nor from human authorities, but through Jesus Christ and God the Father, who raised him from the dead—² and all the members of God’s family³ who are with me,

To the churches of Galatia:
³ Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ, ⁴ who gave himself for our sins to set us free from the present evil age, according to the will of our God and Father, ⁵ to whom be the glory forever and ever. Amen.

⁶ I am astonished that you are so quickly deserting the one who called you in the grace of Christ and are turning to a different gospel—⁷ not that there is another gospel, but there are some who are confusing you and want to pervert the gospel of Christ.

⁸ But even if we or an angel⁹ from heaven should proclaim to you a gospel contrary to what we proclaimed to you, let that one be accursed! ⁹ As we have said before, so now I repeat, if anyone proclaims to you a gospel contrary to what you received, let that one be accursed!

¹ Gk all the brothers

² Or a messenger

1.1–5: The salutation, in which Paul stresses his apostolic authority. 1: Apostle, both a witness (Acts 1.22) and a proclaimer (1 Cor 12.28) of the resurrection of Jesus. Paul’s apostleship results directly from his experience of the risen Christ. 2: Churches of Galatia, the plural indicates that Paul was addressing several Christian communities; the specific locations are uncertain. Galatia, around modern Ankara in Turkey, was a region named after and occupied by a people of Celtic origins. But Galatia also gave its name to the larger Roman province that extended to the south, to the cities of Iconium, Lystra, and Derbe, where Paul and Barnabas also founded churches (Acts 14.1–23). First-century Jews considered Galatia as coextensive with the ancient land of the descendants of Gomer (Gen 10.2) and also understood it as encompassing the broader area of the Roman province. 3: Grace . . . peace, the combined Greek and Hebrew greeting that Paul typically used (e.g., Rom 1.7; 1 Cor 1.3; 2 Cor 1.2). 4: Gave himself for our sins, in sacrificial death (Mk 10.45) as a sin offering (Lev 4–5). Paul repeats this central early Christian tradition (see also 2.20; 1 Tim 2.6). The present evil age implies that there is another age, the “age to come” in Jewish apocalyptic thought (see also 2 Thess 2.7–8). Christ’s death, therefore, cancels believers’ sin and delivers them for this messianic era.

1.6–2.14: A recapitulation of Paul’s life and ministry.

1.6–9: Paul rebukes the Galatians. Unlike Paul’s other letters (Rom 1.8–15; 1 Cor 1.4–9), he does not offer thanksgiving for those addressed. Instead he immediately upbraids them for deserting the one who called you—not Paul here, but God or God through Christ. The new teaching that the Galatians have accepted is a different gospel and not compatible with Paul’s instruction. 8–9: Paul’s opponents may have held that their teaching had been revealed by an angel from heaven, a common claim in Judaism (reflected in 3.19) and also in folk religions of Asia Minor, spread throughout Galatia. In any case, Paul’s revelation comes from a higher source than any angel, Jesus Christ (1.11). Accursed, an anathema using a double curse for emphasis.

1.10–12: Paul states the defense of his gospel. His position is not based on expediency: He does not reject

2042 | NEW TESTAMENT
Am I now seeking human approval, or God’s approval? Or am I trying to please people? If I were still pleasing people, I would not be a servant of Christ.

For I want you to know, brothers and sisters, that the gospel that was proclaimed by me is not of human origin; for I did not receive it from a human source, nor was I taught it, but I received it through a revelation of Jesus Christ.

You have heard, no doubt, of my earlier life in Judaism. I was violently persecuting the church of God and was trying to destroy it. I advanced in Judaism beyond many among my people of the same age, for I was far more zealous for the traditions of my ancestors. But when God, who had set me apart before I was born and called me to be a servant of Christ, revealed his Son to me, so that I might proclaim him among the Gentiles, I did not confer with any human being, nor did I go up to Jerusalem to those who were already apostles before me, but I went away at once into Arabia, and afterwards I returned to Damascus.

Then after three years I did go up to Jerusalem to visit Cephas and stayed with him fifteen days; but I did not see any other apostle except James the Lord’s brother. In what I am writing to you, before God, I do not lie! Then I went into the regions of Syria and Cilicia, and I was still unknown by sight to the churches of Judea that are in Christ; they only heard it said, “The one who formerly was persecuting us is now proclaiming the faith he once tried to destroy.” And they glorified God because of me.

Then after fourteen years I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, taking Titus along with me. I went up in response to a revelation. Then I laid before them (though only in a private meeting with the acknowledged leaders) the gospel that I proclaim among the Gentiles, in order to make sure that I was not running, or had not run, in vain. But even Titus, who was with me, was a servant of Christ.

The purpose of this autobiographical sketch is to state the facts, as Paul saw them, of how he became the apostle to the Gentiles.

1.13–24: Paul’s conversion, early life in the church, and defense of his apostleship. 13–14: Persecuting the church of God, see Acts 8.3; 9.21; 22.4. Paul insists that he was an exemplary Jew (Acts 22.3; Phil 3.4–6) who was zealous for the traditions of my ancestors, i.e., for the Jewish law, including its oral traditions, which were upheld in Pharisaic Judaism (Phil 3.5–6). 15–16: Paul’s conversion occurs as a direct result of divine intervention without human mediation in order to fulfill God’s plan of revealing Christ to the Gentiles. Set . . . born, like a prophet in the Hebrew Bible (Isa 49.1; Jer 1.5). To me (lit., “in me”), links the ideas that Christ is revealed to Paul and through Paul to the Gentiles. 17: Arabia, the Nabatean kingdom in Transjordan, of which the capital was Petra. Damascus is recorded in Acts 9.8–25 as the place where Paul went immediately after his conversion; see also 2 Cor 11.32–33. 18: It is unclear whether the three years are to be counted from Paul’s call or from his return to Damascus. Cephas is the Aramaic equivalent of “Peter” (Gk “Petros”; both names mean “rock”) and the form of the name favored by Paul. 19: James the brother of Jesus (Mk 6.3; Mt 13.55; 1 Cor 15.7) who became a leading member of the Jerusalem church (Acts 11.14; 15.13; 21.18–19). 21: Syria had Antioch as its capital, and the chief city of Cilicia on the southeast coast of Asia Minor was Paul’s hometown of Tarsus. 22–23: Cf. Acts 9.26–30, which gives a different account of all these events.

2.1–10: Paul meets with the Jerusalem leaders. It is difficult to determine the relationship of the visit of Paul and Barnabas to Jerusalem, reported here, with the account of their visit in Acts 15.1–29. If the same events are being described, then we have two radically different versions. 1: It is unclear whether the fourteen years are to be counted from his call or his first Jerusalem visit (1.18). Barnabas, a Jewish Christian and Paul’s co-missionary, who participated in the mission to Antioch and brought Paul there (see Acts 4.36; 9.27; 11.22–30; 13.1–15.41). Titus, a Greek, possibly converted by Paul himself, who also becomes Paul’s co-missionary. 3–5: Paul’s opponents, not compelled to be circumcised, though he was a Greek. 4 But because of false believers a secretly brought in, who slipped in to spy on the freedom we have in Christ Jesus, so that they might enslave us— 5 we did not submit to them even for a moment, so that the truth of the gospel might always remain with you.

6 And from those who were supposed to be acknowledged leaders (what they actually were makes no difference to me; God shows no partiality)—those leaders contributed nothing to me. 7 On the contrary, when they saw that I had been entrusted with the gospel for the uncircumcised, just as Peter had been entrusted with the gospel for the circumcised 8 (for he who worked through Peter making him an apostle to the circumcised also worked through me in sending me to the Gentiles), a Gk false brothers

the false believers, both in this earlier conflict and in Galatia, claim that conversion to Judaism is a precondition for membership in the Christian community and therefore demand Titus’s circumcision. 6–9: Uncircumcised . . . circumcised, Gentiles and Jews. Paul asserts that the Jerusalem leaders agreed with him in distinguishing between their mission to their fellow Jews and his to the Gentiles, thus conceding his apostolic authority over the latter. The division of labor may not have been so sharply defined (Acts 10). John, probably the apostle (Acts 9 and when James and Cephas and John, who were acknowledged pillars, recognized the grace that had been given to me, they gave to Barnabas and me the right hand of fellowship, agreeing that we should go to the Gentiles and they to the circumcised. 10 They asked only one thing, that we remember the poor, which was actually what I was eager to do.

11 But when Cephas came to Antioch, I opposed him to his face, because he stood self-condemned; 12 for until certain people came from James, he used to eat with the Gentiles. But after they came, he drew back and kept himself separate for fear of the circumcision faction. 13 And the other Jews joined him in this hypocrisy, so that even Barnabas was led astray by their hypocrisy. 14 But when I saw that they were not acting consistently with the truth of the gospel, I said to Cephas before them all, “If you, though a Jew, live like a Gentile and not like a Jew, how can you compel the Gentiles to live like Jews?”

15 We ourselves are Jews by birth and not Gentile sinners; 16 yet we know that a person is justified not by the works of the law but through faith in Jesus Christ. 17 And we have come to believe in Christ Jesus, so that we might be justified by faith in Christ, and not by doing the works of the law, because no one will be justified by the works of the law. 18 But if, in our effort to be justified in Christ, we ourselves have been found to be sinners, is Christ then a servant of sin? Certainly not! 19 For through the law I died to the law, so that I might live to God. I have been crucified with

---

3–4. 10: Paul organized a collection among the churches he founded to be sent to Jerusalem (Acts 11.29–30; 24.17; Rom 15.25–29; 1 Cor 16.1–3, 2 Cor 8.1–9.15). The poor may be a religious expression which identified the Jerusalem Christians as the righteous, humble ones of God (Lk 1.48; Mt 5.5), a usage which we also find in the contemporary Jewish sect of Qumran (1QpHab 12.2–6). It could also be a reference to the physical neediness of the community after the famine of 46/48 CE (Josephus, Ant. 20.51).

2.11–14: Paul’s confrontation with Peter at Antioch. Some interpreters of the Jewish law, e.g., rabbis in the more liberal school of Hillel, allowed the table fellowship of Jew and non-Jew at the time of Paul. It was possible for Jews to observe dietary and purity laws while eating with Gentiles. Biblical stories of Jews refusing to eat Gentile food take place in hostile or foreign environments where the observance of the dietary laws could not be guaranteed (Dan 1.8–16; Tob 1.10–13; Jdt 10.5). Sharing, or not sharing, a meal was a strong indication of acceptance or nonacceptance (Acts 10.14; 11.3,8). 12: The people . . . from James, messengers from the Jerusalem apostle who insisted on a stricter interpretation of the law, forbidding such table fellowship. 14: Paul attacks Peter’s behavior because it might compel the Gentiles to live like Jews. Although the ban on table fellowship did not prohibit Gentiles from being members of the Christian community, it could have relegated those who did not choose full conversion to Judaism to second-class status.

2.15–21: Jews and Gentiles are both justified through Christ. Paul states his basic principle: Trusting in Christ, including the sacrifice of his death, is what makes one righteous. 15: Gentile sinners, Gentiles were sinners in Jewish eyes because they were idolaters, i.e., adherents of non-Jewish religions. 16: Works of the law, the exact meaning of this phrase is much debated. In this context it certainly refers to practices such as dietary laws and sabbath observance that marked Jewish identity. But it might also include the ethical as well as the ritual requirements of the law, or it might characterize the particular standard of observance being advocated by Paul’s opponents as a condition of belonging to the Christian community. Faith in Jesus Christ stresses the believer’s trust in Christ. The alternative translation (textual notes d and e), faith of Jesus Christ, emphasizes the saving effect of Jesus’ obedience, culminating in his death on the cross. 17: Paul gives an ironic presentation of an objection to his view. If we who are seeking justification in Christ are, in the view of our opponents, sinners, i.e., living like Gentiles (see vv. 14–15), then does that mean that Christ works for sin? The implication is that for a Christian failure to observe the law is not sin. 18: Things, i.e., observance of the law as the only path to righteousness. 19: Through the law I died to the law, a summary statement of arguments that Paul will make in
You foolish Galatians! Who has bewitched you? It was before your eyes that Jesus Christ was publicly exhibited as crucified! 2 The only thing I want to learn from you is this: Did you receive the Spirit by doing the works of the law or by believing what you heard? 3 Are you so foolish? Having started with the Spirit, are you now ending with the flesh? 4 Did you experience so much for nothing—if it really was for nothing. 5 Well then, does God supply you with the Spirit and work miracles among you by your doing the works of the law, or by your believing what you heard?

6 Just as Abraham “believed God, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness,” 7 so, you see, those who believe are the descendants of Abraham. 8 And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, declared the gospel beforehand to Abraham, saying, “All the Gentiles shall be blessed in you.” 9 For this reason, those who believe are blessed with Abraham who believed.

10 For all who rely on the works of the law are under a curse; for it is written, “Cursed is everyone who does not observe and obey all the things written in the book of the law.” 11 Now it is evident that no one is justified before God by the law; for “The one who is righteous will live by faith.” 12 But the law does not rest on faith; on the contrary, “Whatever the works of the law will live by them.” 13 Christ redeemed us from the curse of the law by becoming a curse for us—for it is written, “Cursed is everyone who hangs on a tree”— 14 in order that in Christ Jesus the blessing of Abraham might come to the Gentiles, so that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

15 Brothers and sisters, I give an example from daily life: once a person’s will has been set, he or she does not revoke it to acquire a new will. 16 The will acts when the testator is dead; thus the death of the testator brings about the effectiveness of the will. 17 In the same way Christ died for us, so we are supposed to live not for ourselves, but for him who for our sake died and was raised. 18 If we value our life along with Christ, then it follows that we will also value our life in line with Christ’s sufferings, so that our life may also prove to be dead to sin, but alive to God through Jesus Christ. 19 So, if you died with Christ, why do you still live as though you belonged to the world and subject to its dominion? 20 And it is no longer I who live, but it is Christ who lives in me. And the life I now live in the flesh I live by faith in the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me. 21 I do not nullify the grace of God; for if justification comes through the law, then Christ died for nothing.

ch 3–4. Crucified with Christ, see 5.24; 6.14; Rom 6.5–11; 2 Cor 4.7–12. 20: Christ who lives in me, see Rom 8.9–11; 2 Cor 13.5; Col 1.27. Give himself for me, see 1.4n.

3.1–5: Paul’s challenge to the Galatians. Paul asks the Galatians whether they received the gift of the Spirit through fulfilling practices of Jewish law, or through accepting the gospel preached by Paul (believing what you heard, vv. 2, 5). 1: Jesus Christ was publicly exhibited as crucified, a reference to the graphic description of the crucifixion in Paul’s preaching. 3: Ending with the flesh, an ablative reference to circumcision. The opposition of Spirit and flesh is an important theme in Paul (4.29; 5.16–25; 6.8; Rom 8.1–12; 3.1; 1 Cor 15.35–55; Phil 3.2–6). 5: Miracles are associated with apostolic preaching and the presence of the Spirit (Rom 15.19; 1 Cor 12.10; 2 Cor 12.12).

3.6–14: Abraham the model for Christian faith. Paul contrasts the believer, whose exemplar is Abraham and who is justified by faith, with those who seek justification through performing the practices of the Jewish law. 6: Gen 15.6; see also Rom 4.3. Paul again uses Abraham as a model of faith in Rom 4. 8: Gen 12.3; 18.18; 22.18. 10: Deut 27.36. In Paul’s time the general Jewish view was that perfect fulfillment of the law was not a requirement of belonging to God’s covenant people but observance of the law expressed faithfulness to God’s covenant. 11: Hab 2.4; Rom 1.17. 12: Lev 18.5; see also Rom 10.5. 13: Deut 21.23 concerns execution by hanging but the Jewish sect at Qumran had apparently already interpreted it to include crucifixion (11QT Temple 64.12). Paul takes tree as a reference to Jesus’ cross.

3.15–18: The inheritance of Abraham. Paul argues that Christ is the one heir of Abraham and that what was promised to Abraham cannot be inherited through the law. 15: Will, the Gk means “covenant” as well as a person’s document of bequest (see textual note g). 16: Offspring, lit., “seed” (see textual notes a and b on this verse). Paul uses the same Greek word as the Septuagint (LXX) text of God’s promises to Abraham in Genesis (Gen 12.7; 15.5; 17.8; 22.17). Paul contrasts the singular seed in the text with the common (and in his view mistaken) inter-been ratified, no one adds to it or annuls it.

16 Now the promises were made to Abraham and to his offspring;¹ it does not say, “And to offsprings,”¹² as of many; but it says, “And to your offspring,”¹ that is, to one person, who is Christ. ¹⁷ My point is this: the law, which came four hundred thirty years later, does not annul a covenant previously ratified by God, so as to nullify the promise. ¹⁸ For if the inheritance comes from the law, it no longer comes from the promise; but God granted it to Abraham through the promise.

19 Why then the law? It was added because of transgressions, until the offspring¹ would come to whom the promise had been made; and it was ordained through angels by a mediator. ²⁰ Now a mediator involves more than one party; but God is one. ²¹ Is the law then opposed to the promises of God? Certainly not! For if a law had been given that could make alive, then righteousness would indeed come through the law. ²² But the scripture has imprisoned all things under the power of sin, so that what was promised through faith in Jesus Christ⁴ might be given to those who believe.

²³ Now before faith came, we were imprisoned and guarded under the law until faith would be revealed. ²⁴ Therefore the law was our disciplinarian until Christ came, so that we might be justified by faith. ²⁵ But now that faith has come, we are no longer subject to a disciplinarian, ²⁶ for in Christ Jesus you are all children of God through faith. ²⁷ As many of you as were baptized into Christ have clothed yourselves with Christ. ²⁸ There is no longer Jew or Greek, there is no longer slave or free, there is no longer male and female; for all of you are one in Christ Jesus. ²⁹ And if you belong to Christ, then you are Abraham’s offspring,¹ heirs according to the promise.

4 My point is this: heirs, as long as they are minors, are no better than slaves, though they are the owners of all the property; ² but they remain under guardians and trustees until the date set by the father. ³ So with us; while we were minors, we were enslaved to a  Gk seed

b  Gk seeds
c  Or through the faith of Jesus Christ

pretation of it as a plural, seeds. 17: Paul follows the Septuagint, not the Hebrew, text of Ex 12.40 by including within the four hundred thirty years not only the Israelite sojourn in Egypt but also the earlier period in Canaan.

3.19–25: The purpose of the law of Moses. The law does not replace God’s promise to Abraham but is a temporary means of discipline for God’s people. 19: Added because of transgressions allows several interpretations. It can mean to make aware of sin (Rom 3.20; 7.7). It can also carry the further sense of restraining transgressions (vv. 23–25). The phrase can also signify that the law provoked sin (Rom 5.20; 7.7–12). Ordained through angels reflects a later Jewish belief that the law was delivered on Sinai not directly from God but by angels; see Deut 33.2 (Septuagint); Acts 7.38,53; Heb 2.2, also Jub. 1.26–2.1. A mediator, Moses (see Lev 26.46; Num 36.13). 20: An obscure verse that links monotheism with there being no need for a mediator of God’s promise. 22: Faith in Jesus Christ stresses the believer’s faith as necessary for obtaining the promise, while the alternative, faith of Jesus Christ (see textual note c), emphasizes Jesus’ faith as that which grants the promise; see 2.16n. 24–25: Disciplinarian, the slave who accompanied a boy to school and who often harshly punished the boy for his behavior.

3.26–29: Baptism into Christ. Through baptism believers are incorporated into Christ, abolishing social distinctions, and are made with him the offspring of Abraham and heirs to the promise. 26: Paul is likely here quoting from an early Christian baptismal formula. 26: Christians are adopted children of God and therefore co-heirs with Christ (Rom 8.14–17). 27: Baptism unites the believer with Christ (Rom 6.3–11). Clothed . . . with Christ, see Rom 13.14; Col 3.10. 28: A similar erasure of social distinctions is proclaimed in 1 Cor 12.13; Col 3.11, where baptismal formulas also seem to be quoted, but without the phrase male and female. That phrase is taken from Gen 1.27. 29: Christ alone is Abraham’s offspring or seed (see 3.16n.) but now includes all those united in baptism with him.

4.1–7: Christ brings believers into their inheritance as adopted children of God. 1: After a father’s death the guardian took over the father’s virtually unlimited power over minor children in the ancient family. 3: Elemental spirits of the world refers probably to cosmic powers that dominate human beings (see also 4.8; Col 2.8,20). The phrase (alternatively translated as rudiments, textual note a on this verse) can also denote the four elements (earth, air, fire, water), which in Paul’s time were seen as controlling human destiny. The rudiments can addition-the elemental spirits of the world. But when the fullness of time had come, God sent his Son, born of a woman, born under the law, in order to redeem those who were under the law, so that we might receive adoption as children. And because you are children, God has sent the Spirit of his Son into our hearts, crying, “Abba! Father!” So you are no longer a slave but a child, and if a child then also an heir, through God. 8 Formerly, when you did not know God, you were enslaved to beings that by nature are not gods. Now, however, that you have come to know God, or rather to be known by God, how can you turn back again to the weak and beggarly elemental spirits? How can you want to be enslaved to them again? You are observing special days, and months, and seasons, and years. I am afraid that my work for you may have been wasted. 12 Friends, I beg you, become as I am, for I also have become as you are. You have done me no wrong. You know that it was because of a physical infirmity that I first announced the gospel to you; though my condition put you to the test, you did not scorn or despise me, but welcomed me as an angel of God, as Christ Jesus.

What has become of the good-will you felt? For I testify that, had it been possible, you would have torn out your eyes and given them to me. Have I now become your enemy by telling you the truth? They make much of you, but for no good purpose; they want to exclude you, so that you may make much of them. It is good to be made much of for a good purpose at all times, and not only when I am present with you. My little children, for whom I am again in the pain of childbirth until Christ is formed in you. I wish I were present with you now and could change my tone, for I am perplexed about you.

Tell me, you who desire to be subject to the law, will you not listen to the law? For it is written that Abraham had two sons, one by a slave woman and the other by a free woman. One, the child of the slave, was born according to the flesh; the other, the child of the free woman, was born through the promise. Now this is an allegory: these women are two covenants. One woman, in fact, is Hagar, from Mount Sinai, bearing children for slavery. Now Hagar is Mount Sinai in Arabia and corresponds to the present Jerusalem, for she is in slavery with her a Or the rudiments

b Other ancient authorities read your c Aramaic for Father
d Other ancient authorities read an heir of God through Christ e Or beggarly rudiments
f Gk Brothers
g Other ancient authorities read For Sinai is a mountain in Arabia ally be the basic principles of a philosophy or code (see Heb 5.12). 4: Born of a woman, born under the law stresses Jesus’ human and Jewish birth, seen by Paul as the enslaved human condition, in contrast to the freedom Christ brings to those adopted as God’s children. 6: Abba, see textual note c and Mk 14.36; Rom 8.15.

4.8–11: The Galatians slip back into bondage. Paul brands the Galatians’ observance of the law as equivalent to a return to their pre-Christian enslavement. 9: Elemental spirits, see 4.3n. 10: The Galatians are observing the Jewish calendar.

4.12–20: Paul reminds the Galatians of their close relationship to him. 13: Paul may be alluding to one or both visits he made to Galatia as mentioned in Acts 16.6; 18.23. The infinitive is not known; efforts to identify it as eye trouble, based on v. 15, may be based on too literal a reading. The adverb first can also be translated as “formerly.” They, i.e., Paul’s opponents, may have threatened to exclude from the Christian community Gentiles who did not follow their example of observing the law. 19: Paul uses as a metaphor of his apostolic activity a mother giving birth. Elsewhere Paul calls the members of the churches he founded his “children” (1 Cor 4.14; 2 Cor 6.13; 1 Thess 2.11).

4.21–5.1: The allegory of Hagar and Sarah. 4.21: The law in the Hebrew Bible comprises the first five books, the Pentateuch or Torah. 22–23: Gen 16.1–4,15; 21.1–7. 24: Allegory, literally, “these things are spoken allegorically.” Paul takes the Genesis story and sees some of its elements as substitutes in the past for how the covenant is being fulfilled in his own day. These women are two covenants, i.e., Hagar represents those descendants of Abraham who observe the law and Sarah those who through Christ are the true heirs to God’s promise to Abraham. 25: Now Hagar is Mount Sinai in Arabia, see textual note g. Paul is unique in identifying Hagar directly children. 26 But the other woman corresponds to the Jerusalem above; she is free, and she is our mother. 27 For it is written, “Rejoice, you childless one, you who bear no children, burst into song and shout, you who endure no birth pangs; for the children of the desolate woman are more numerous than the children of the one who is married.”

28 Now you, my friends, are children of the promise, like Isaac. 29 But just as at that time the child who was born according to the flesh persecuted the child who was born according to the Spirit, so it is now also. 30 But what does the scripture say? “Drive out the slave and her child; for the child of the slave will not share the inheritance with the child of the free woman.”

So then, friends, we are children, not of the slave but of the free woman. 1 For freedom Christ has set us free. Stand firm, therefore, and do not submit again to a yoke of slavery.

2 Listen! I, Paul, am telling you that if you let yourselves be circumcised, Christ will be of no benefit to you. 3 Once again I testify to every man who lets himself be circumcised that he is obliged to obey the entire law. 4 You who want to be justified by the law have cut yourselves off from Christ; you have fallen away from grace. 5 For through the Spirit, by faith, we eagerly wait for the hope of righteousness. 6 For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision nor uncircumcision counts for anything; the only thing that counts is faith working through love.

7 You were running well; who prevented you from obeying the truth? 8 Such persuasion does not come from the one who calls you. 9 A little yeast leavens the whole batch of dough. 10 I am confident about you in the Lord that you will not think otherwise. But whoever it is that is confusing you will pay the penalty. 11 But my friends, why am I still being persecuted if I am still preaching circumcision? In that case the offense of the cross has been removed. 12 I wish those who unsettle you would castrate themselves!

13 For you were called to freedom, brothers and sisters; only do not use your freedom as an opportunity for self-indulgence, but through love become slaves to one another.

14 For the whole law is summed up in a single commandment, “You shall love your neighbor as yourself.”

15 If, however, you bite and devour one another, take care that you are not consumed by one another.
Live by the Spirit, I say, and do not gratify the desires of the flesh. For what the flesh desires is opposed to the Spirit, and what the Spirit desires is opposed to the flesh; for these are opposed to each other, to prevent you from doing what you want. But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not subject to the law. Now the works of the flesh are obvious: fornication, impurity, licentiousness, idolatry, sorcery, enmities, strife, jealousy, anger, quarrels, dissensions, factions, envy, drunkenness, carousing, and things like these. I am warning you before: those who do such things will not inherit the kingdom of God.

By contrast, the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, generosity, faithfulness, gentleness, and self-control. There is no law against such things. And those who belong to Christ Jesus have crucified the flesh with its passions and desires. If we live by the Spirit, let us also be guided by the Spirit. Let us not become conceited, competing against one another, envying one another.

My friends, if anyone is detected in a transgression, you who have received the Spirit should restore such a one in a spirit of gentleness. Take care that you yourselves are not tempted. Bear one another’s burdens, and in this way you will fulfill the law of Christ. For if those who are nothing think they are something, they deceive themselves. All must test their own work; then that work, rather than their neighbor’s work, will become a cause for pride. For all must carry their own loads.

Those who are taught the word must share in all good things with their teacher. Do not be deceived; God is not mocked, for you reap whatever you sow. If you sow to your own flesh, you will reap corruption from the flesh; but if you sow to the Spirit, you will reap eternal life from the Spirit. So let us not grow weary in doing what is right, for we will reap at harvest time, if we do not give up. So then, whenever we have an opportunity, let us work for the good of all, and especially for those of the family of faith.

See what large letters I make when I am writing in my own hand! It is those who want to make a good showing in the flesh that try to compel you to be circumcised—only that they may not be persecuted for the cross of Christ. Even the circumcised do not themselves obey the law, but they want you to be circumcised so that they may boast about your flesh. May I never boast of anything except the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by which the world has been crucified to me, and I to the world. For neither circumcision noruncircumcision is anything; but a new creation is everything! As for those who will... follow this rule—peace be upon them, and mercy, and upon the Israel of God.

17 From now on, let no one make trouble for me; for I carry the marks of Jesus branded on my body.

18 May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit, brothers and sisters.\(^a\) Amen.

\(^a\) Gk brothers
THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE EPHESIANS

NAME
This letter is named for its recipients, the Christian community in the city of Ephesus, a major city on the Aegean coast of Asia Minor, where Paul spent a considerable amount of time (Acts 18–19). However, some early manuscripts of Ephesians, as well as some early Christian writers, lack the opening reference to Ephesus in 1.1 (see note a), and since the text does not seem to address problems specific to a single congregation, some scholars think that Ephesians was a circular letter sent to a number of churches, perhaps in Asia Minor. Others, noting the similarities to the letter to the Colossians, believe the original audience was the churches of Hierapolis and Laodicea (see Col 4.13,16).

AUTHORSHIP, LITERARY HISTORY, AND DATE
Significant contrasts between Ephesians and the letters certainly ascribed to Paul raise questions about the identity of its author. Many important terms in Ephesians are not used by Paul elsewhere (e.g., “heavenly places,” “dividing wall,” “fellow citizen”), and some of Paul’s characteristic terms and emphases either are given new meaning (e.g., “mystery,” “church”) or are completely absent (e.g., “the Jews,” “justify”). In addition, the verbose rhetorical style of Ephesians, especially the use of complex, long sentences (many of which have been divided in the NRSV), is not characteristic of Paul. Theological differences are also evident, especially Ephesians’ emphasis on believers’ present salvation (1.3–12; 2.4–10) and the use of household rules as ethical teaching (5.22–6.9). Because of these differences, many scholars hold that Ephesians was written in the late first century by a Jewish-Christian admirer of Paul who sought to apply Paul’s thought to the situation of the church in his own day. A minority of scholars hold that Paul composed this letter at the end of his career while imprisoned, probably in Rome. This position attributes different theological emphases to developments in Paul’s thinking and the situation addressed.

There are many verbal parallels between the letters to the Ephesians and the Colossians, as the following list shows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>EPHESIANS</th>
<th>COLOSSIANS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1.1–2</td>
<td>1.1–2</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.15–16</td>
<td>1.3–4,9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.6</td>
<td>3.6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.18–20</td>
<td>3.16–17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.22</td>
<td>3.18</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>5.25</td>
<td>3.19</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.1</td>
<td>3.20</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.5–9</td>
<td>3.22–25; 4.1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.18–20</td>
<td>4.2–4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.21–22</td>
<td>4.7–8</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

These close connections, along with others given in the annotations, suggest a literary relationship between the two letters. If Paul was the author of both, they likely would have been written at the same time, probably in the late 50s; if Ephesians was written by a later follower of Paul, then it seems he drew upon the already established authority of the letter to the Colossians and modeled his work on it. Possible allusions to other Pauline letters such as Romans and 1 Corinthians are not as close as those to Colossians.

2052 | NEW TESTAMENT
Establishing a historical context for Ephesians has proven extremely difficult. In contrast to many of Paul's letters and even to Colossians, Ephesians contains few hints of specific events or issues that might have triggered its composition. Since unity between Jews and Gentiles within the church is a major theme, some scholars believe that the text is meant to address the alienation of Jewish Christians from their Gentile counterparts, either in theory or arising from a conflict in the churches of Asia Minor. Other scholars suggest external events, such as Roman persecution, as the impetus for the letter's composition. A more fruitful approach may be to employ a rhetorical analysis, paying close attention to how the author presents himself and his readers, especially his desire for their maturity as believers. This approach reveals that the author sees his readers as deficient in a number of key areas, including knowledge of God's plan for salvation, the power of the Spirit, and the purpose of the church as the body of Christ.

GUIDE TO READING

The first chapter of Ephesians introduces nearly all the theological ideas and themes developed in the letter. The first section (1.3–14) gives a sweeping overview of God's plan for salvation, while the second (1.15–23) focuses upon how this plan should be realized in believers' lives. Readers may find it helpful to keep this passage in mind as they read the rest of Ephesians and to note how subsequent passages fill out the meaning of its poetic evocation.

Jennifer K. Berenson
1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God,
   To the saints who are in Ephesus and are faithful in Christ Jesus:
   Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us in Christ with every spiritual blessing in the heavenly places, just as he chose us in Christ before the foundation of the world to be holy and blameless before him in love. He destined us for adoption as his children through Jesus Christ, according to the good pleasure of his will, to the praise of his glorious grace that he lavished on us. With all wisdom and insight he has made known to us the mystery of his will, according to the riches of his grace he has freely bestowed on us in the Beloved.

Apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

To the saints who are in Ephesus and are faithful in Christ Jesus:

Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us in Christ with every spiritual blessing in the heavenly places, just as he chose us in Christ before the foundation of the world to be holy and blameless before him in love. He destined us for adoption as his children through Jesus Christ, according to the good pleasure of his will, to the praise of his glorious grace that he lavished on us. With all wisdom and insight he has made known to us the mystery of his will, according to the riches of his grace that he lavished on us. With all wisdom and insight he has made known to us the mystery of his will, according to the riches of his grace that he lavished on us. With all wisdom and insight he has made known to us the mystery of his will, according to the riches of his grace that he lavished on us. With all wisdom and insight he has made known to us the mystery of his will, according to the riches of his grace that he lavished on us.

In Christ we have also obtained an inheritance, having been destined according to his counsel and will, to the purpose of him who accomplishes all things according to his counsel and will, so that we, who were the first to set our hope on Christ, might live for the praise of his glory.

In him you also, when you had heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation, and had believed in him, were marked with the seal of the promised Holy Spirit; this is the pledge of our inheritance toward redemption as God’s own people, to the praise of his glory.

I have heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus and your love toward all the saints, and for this reason I do not cease to give thanks for you as I remember you in my prayers. I pray that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give you a spirit of wisdom and revelation as you come to know him, so that, with the eyes of your heart enlightened, you may know what is the hope to which he has called you, what are the riches of all the glory of his inheritance in his people, to the praise of his glorious grace that he lavished on us.

The extended praise of God is based on a traditional Jewish form of worship that enumerates God's actions on behalf of Israel (1 Kings 8.56; Lk 1.68–75). In Christ, a theme throughout this section, indicating Christ's mediation of divine blessings. In the heavenly places, anticipates the letter’s interest in heavenly realities accessible in the present. Chose us, the language of Israel’s election as God’s people (Deut 7.6–8) is used here for Christian believers. Before the foundation . . . to be holy and blameless, God’s election of and care for believers extends from before creation through the coming judgment. Adoption, a privileged status allowing intimacy and full inheritance rights (see 1.11–14; Rom 8.15–17; Gal 4.5). Beloved, a title for Christ; cf. “beloved son,” Mk 1.11; Col 1.3. Redemption, the first hint of opposition to God’s plan (see Col 1.14n. and Eph 1.13; 2.2; 5.9–17). His blood, Christ’s sacrificial death brings divine forgiveness for moral failures. Mystery, the previously hidden plan of God, which here encompasses all creation (Dan 2.17–30; Rom 8.18–23; cf. Eph 3.1–6; Col 1.26–27). God’s plan culminates in the unification of the cosmos under and through Christ (1.20–22; cf. Col 1.15–20).

You, Gentiles, have also been included in God’s blessings. According to Paul the promise of the Spirit came through Abraham (Gal 3.14,22); the Spirit is also associated with the prophet Joel (Joel 2.28–32; Acts 2.14–21) and Jesus’ promise (Lk 24.49; Jn 14.26; Acts 1.4–5). Seal, a mark of ownership and protection; see also 4.30. Pledge, the same Gk word is translated “first installment” in 2 Cor 1.22.

Thanksgiving prayer for wisdom and power (cf. Col 1.3–14). Faith . . . love, two central Christian virtues (1 Cor 13.13; 1 Thess 5.8; Col 1.3–5). 17–18: Hope, the third virtue, is here not just eschatological, but also the ability to understand (wisdom, revelation, enlightened) God’s purposes and how to live rightly in response (cf. 4.18).
of his glorious inheritance among the saints,
and what is the immeasurable greatness of his power for us who believe, according to the working of his great power. 20 God put this power to work in Christ when he raised him from the dead and seated him at his right hand in the heavenly places, far above all rule and authority and power and dominion, and above every name that is named, not only in this age but also in the age to come.
And he has put all things under his feet and has made him the head over all things for the church, which is his body, the fulness of him who fills all in all.

2 You were dead through the trespasses and sins in which you once lived, following the course of this world, following the ruler of the power of the air, the spirit that is now at work among those who are disobedient. 3 All of us once lived among them in the passions of our flesh, following the desires of flesh and senses, and we were by nature children of wrath, like everyone else. 4 But God, who is rich in mercy, out of the great love he has for us who believe, according to his glorious inheritance among the saints,
and what is the immeasurable greatness of his power for us who believe, according to the working of his great power. 20 God put this power to work in Christ when he raised him from the dead and seated him at his right hand in the heavenly places, far above all rule and authority and power and dominion, and above every name that is named, not only in this age but also in the age to come.
And he has put all things under his feet and has made him the head over all things for the church, which is his body, the fulness of him who fills all in all.

19–20: An emphatic assertion that God’s power is available to believers to live out their calling (cf. 2.6; 3.7,16,20). At his right hand, a common early Christian description, dependent on Ps 110.1, of Christ’s exaltation (Acts 2.34–35; Rom 8.34; Col 3.1; Heb 8.1). 21: Rule . . . dominion, hostile spiritual powers subjected to Christ (Col 1.16; cf. 1 Cor 15.20–28). Name, see Phil 2.9. 22: Under his feet, see Ps 8:6; 1 Cor 15.27; cf. Ps 110.1. 22–23: Head . . . body, see Col 1.18n. Scholars disagree on the origin of the head-body metaphor developed here (see also Eph 4.12,15–16), which is found in various forms of cosmic speculation in Hellenistic, Jewish, and Gnostic thought. 23: Fullness, the church expresses God’s power and presence to the world or perhaps the church has been completed by Christ (3.19; Col 1.19n.; 2.9–10; see also Jer 23.24).

2.1–10: The old life contrasted with the new (cf. Col 1.21–23). 1–5: Formerly both Gentile (you) and Jewish (all of us) Christians habitually sinned and lacked God’s protection and blessings (were dead/children of wrath). 2: Course, literally “age,” a reference to the present as a limited period in which human life is pervaded and perverted by the devil (the ruler . . . air; 6.10–17; see also Rom 6.12–13). 3: Children of wrath, those who will be punished at the future judgment (1 Thess 5.4–10). 5,8: By grace . . . saved, deliverance to a new life is due solely to God’s mercy and benevolence (1.7). 5–6: Made us alive . . . raised us . . . seated us, believers have been exalted like Christ himself (1.20). 9: Works, individual achievement (your own doing, v. 8), not “works of the law” as in Gal 2.16. 10: Good works, the ethical way of life imperative in God’s plan is emphasized here (1.4; 1 Tim 6.18; Titus 2.14; 3.8). Prepared beforehand, see 1.4.

2.11–22: The unity of Jews and Gentiles in the church. 11: The uncircumcision, a derogatory term for Gentiles. The circumcision, Jews, but often used for those who required all believers to obey the law of Moses (Acts 10.45; Gal 2.12; Col 4.11; cf. Phil 3.3). 12–13: You were . . . But now, another contrast of old and new (2.1–5), focused on the Gentiles’ plight as aliens and strangers from Israel and God. 12: Covenants of promise, God promised Abraham (Gen 15.18; 17.2–8), Israel/Jacob (Gen 28.13–15), and David (2 Sam 7; Ps 89) his presence and protection (see Ps 105). 13: Far off . . . brought near, Christ’s death reconciles Gentiles with God (v. 17; cf. Isa... into one and has broken down the dividing wall, that is, the hostility between us. 15 He has abolished the law with its commandments and ordinances, that he might create in himself one new humanity in place of the two, thus making peace, 16 and might reconcile both groups to God in one body through the cross, thus putting to death that hostility through it. 17 So he came and proclaimed peace to you who were far off and peace to those who were near; 18 for through him both of us have access in one Spirit to the Father.

19 So then you are no longer strangers and aliens, but you are citizens with the saints and also members of the household of God, 20 built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, with Christ Jesus himself as the cornerstone. 21 In him the whole structure is joined together and grows into a holy temple in the Lord; 22 in whom you also are built together spiritually into a dwelling place for God.

3 This is the reason that I Paul am a prisoner for 6 Christ Jesus for the sake of you Gentiles—2 for surely you have already heard of the commission of God’s grace that was given me for you, 3 and how the mystery was made known to me by revelation, as I wrote above in a few words, 4 a reading of which will enable you to perceive my understanding of the mystery of Christ. 5 In former generations this mystery 6 was not made known to humankind, as it has now been revealed to his holy apostles and prophets by the Spirit:

6 that is, the Gentiles have become fellow heirs, members of the same body, and sharers in the promise in Christ Jesus through the gospel.

7 Of this gospel I have become a servant according to the gift of God’s grace that was given me by the working of his power.

8 Although I am the very least of all the saints, this grace was given to me to bring to the Gentiles the news of the boundless riches of Christ, 9 and to make everyone see what is the plan of the mystery hidden for ages in God who created all things; 10 so that through the church the wisdom of God in its rich variety might now be made known to the rulers and authorities in the heavenly places. 11 This was in accordance with the eternal purpose that he has carried out in Christ Jesus our Lord, 12 in whom we have access to God in boldness and confidence through faith in him. 13 I pray therefore that you may not lose heart over my sufferings for you; they are your glory.
I therefore, the prisoner in the Lord, beg you to lead a life worthy of the calling to which you have been called, ² with all humility and gentleness, with patience, bearing with one another in love, ³ making every effort to maintain the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. ⁴ There is one body and one Spirit, just as you were called to the one hope of your calling, ² one Lord, one faith, one baptism, ⁶ one God and Father of all, who is above all and through all and in all. ⁷ But each of us was given grace according to the measure of Christ’s gift. ⁸ Therefore it is said, “When he ascended on high he made captivity itself a captive; he gave gifts to his people.” ⁹ (When it says, “He ascended,” what does it mean but that he had also descended into the lower parts of the earth? ¹⁰ He who descended is the same one who ascended far above all the heavens, so that he might fill all things.) ¹¹ The gifts he gave were that some would be apostles, some prophets, some evangelists, some pastors and teachers, ¹² to equip the saints for the work of ministry, for building up the body of Christ, ¹³ until all of us come to the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, to maturity, to the measure of the full stature of Christ. ¹⁴ We must no longer be children, tossed to and fro and blown about by every wind of doctrine, by people’s trickery, by their craftiness in deceitful scheming. ¹⁵ But speaking the truth in love, we must grow up in every way into him who is the head, into Christ, ¹⁶ from whom the whole body, joined and knit together by every ligament with which it is equipped, as each part is working properly, promotes the body’s growth in building itself up in love. ¹⁷ Now this I affirm and insist on in the Lord: you must no longer live as the Gentiles live, in the futility of their minds. ¹⁸ They are darkened in their understanding, alienated from the life of God because of their ignorance and hardness of heart. ¹⁹ They have lost all sensitivity and have abandoned themselves to licentiousness, greedy to practice every kind of impurity. ²⁰ That is not the way you learned Christ! ²¹ For surely you have heard about him a 3.14–21: Prayer for the church to live up to its destiny. ¹⁴–¹⁵: Father . . . family, a play on words in Greek (“pater,” “patria,” see note b); God is the Father (creator and ruler) of all nations and spiritual powers. ¹⁶–¹⁸: The author returns to themes found in 1.15–20. ¹⁸–¹⁹: Breadth, length, height, depth, the dimensions of God’s wisdom or Christ’s love; in either case emphasizing immensity. ¹⁹: Filled with all the fullness. ¹.²³n. ²⁰–²¹: A doxology celebrating God’s ability to accomplish his plan for the church through the Spirit’s power.

4.1–6: Ethical exhortation. ⁴.¹–¹⁶: Appeal for unity amid diversity. ¹: This exhortation balances the divine calling with human responsibility. ²–³: See a similar list of virtues in Gal 5.22–23. ³: Unity and peace, made possible by Christ (2.11–22), must be consciously maintained. ⁴–⁶: Seven bases of unity. ⁸–¹¹: Ps 68.18 is interpreted as revealing Christ’s exaltation over the spiritual powers (1.20–22) and gifts of leadership for the church. ⁹: Lower parts of the earth, either the earth itself or Hades. ¹²: To equip the saints, literally, “for the completion of the saints.” For the work of ministry, highlighting the purpose of Christian leadership. ¹⁴: Wind of doctrine, Jas 1.6; Jude 12,13. ¹⁵: A vision of the church as an organic, interrelated whole, whose goal is to reflect fully its head, Christ (2.20–22).

and were taught in him, as truth is in Jesus.
22 You were taught to put away your former way of life, your old self, corrupt and deluded by its lusts, ²³and to be renewed in the spirit of your minds, ²⁴and to clothe yourselves with the new self, created according to the likeness of God in true righteousness and holiness.

25 So then, putting away falsehood, let all of us speak the truth to our neighbors, for we are members of one another. ²⁶Be angry but do not sin; do not let the sun go down on your anger, ²⁷and do not make room for the devil.

²⁸Thieves must give up stealing; rather let them labor and work honestly with their own hands, so as to have something to share with the needy. ²⁹Let no evil talk come out of your mouths, but only what is useful for building up, ³⁰as there is need, so that your words may give grace to those who hear. ³¹And do not grieve the Holy Spirit of God, with which you were marked with a seal for the day of redemption. ³²Put away from you all bitterness and wrath and anger and wrangling and slander, together with all malice, ³³and be kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, as God in Christ has forgiven you. ³⁴Therefore be imitators of God, as beloved children, ³⁵and live in love, as Christ loved us ³⁶and gave himself up for us, a fragrant offering and sacrifice to God.

But fornication and impurity of any kind, ³⁸or one who is greedy (that is, an idolater), has no inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God.

³⁹So then, putting away falsehood, let all of us speak the truth to our neighbors, for we are members of one another.

40 The subordination of wives is legitimized by an ancient text, possibly influenced by the form of traditional household rules. ⁴¹Some feminist scholars see this call to mutual subjection as a principle that moderates the subordination of wives prescribed by the conventional household code that follows; others fault the author for failing to challenge female subordination in any significant way.

4²–33: Rules for household relationships (cf. Col 3.18–4.1). On the form of these rules, see Col 3.18–4.1n. ⁴²–33: Relations between wives and husbands. The subordination of wives to husbands is legitimized by an ancient text, possibly influenced by the form of traditional household rules.
head of the church, the body of which he is the Savior. Just as the church is subject to Christ, so also wives ought to be, in everything, to their husbands.

Husbands, love your wives, just as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her, in order to make her holy by cleansing her with the washing of water by the word, so as to present the church to himself in splendor, without a spot or wrinkle or anything of the kind—yes, so that she may be holy and without blemish. In the same way, husbands should love their wives as they do their own bodies. He who loves his wife loves himself. For no one ever hates his own body, but he nourishes and tenderly cares for it, just as Christ does for the church, because we are members of his body. “For this reason a man will leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two will become one flesh.” This is a great mystery, and I am applying it to Christ and the church. Each of you, however, should love his wife as himself, and a wife should respect her husband.

Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right. “Honour your father and mother”—this is the first commandment with a promise: “so that it may be well with you and you may live long on the earth.”

And, fathers, do not provoke your children to anger, but bring them up in the discipline and instruction of the Lord. Slaves, obey your earthly masters with fear and trembling, in singleness of heart, as you obey Christ; not only while being watched, and in order to please them, but as slaves of Christ, doing the will of God from the heart. Render service with enthusiasm, as to the Lord and not to men and women, knowing that whatever good we do, we will receive the same again from the Lord, whether we are slaves or free.

And, masters, do the same to them. Stop threatening them, for you know that both of you have the same Master in heaven, and with him there is no partiality.

Finally, be strong in the Lord and in the strength of his power. Put on the whole armor of God, so that you may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For our struggle is not against enemies of blood and flesh, but against the rulers, against the authorities, against the cosmic powers of this present darkness, against the spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly places. Therefore take up the whole armor of God, so that you may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil.

25: Be subject, accept a position of subordination to the husband’s authority.
26: The marriage relationship is to be modeled on that between Christ and the church, in which the church’s purity was achieved through Christ’s death and continual care.
27: “In the heavenly places.”
28: “In the heavenly places.”
29: “In the heavenly places.”
30: “In the heavenly places.”
31: “In the heavenly places.”
32: “In the heavenly places.”
33: “In the heavenly places.”
34: “In the heavenly places.”
able to withstand on that evil day, and having done everything, to stand firm.

14 Stand therefore, and fasten the belt of truth around your waist, and put on the breastplate of righteousness.

15 As shoes for your feet put on whatever will make you ready to proclaim the gospel of peace.

16 With all of these, take the shield of faith, with which you will be able to quench all the flaming arrows of the evil one.

17 Take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.

18 Pray in the Spirit at all times in every prayer and supplication. To that end keep alert and always persevere in supplication for all the saints.

19 Pray also for me, so that when I speak, a message may be given to me to make known with boldness the mystery of the gospel,

20 for which I am an ambassador in chains. Pray that I may declare it boldly, as I must speak.

21 So that you also may know how I am and what I am doing, Tychicus will tell you everything. He is a dear brother and a faithful minister in the Lord.

22 I am sending him to you for this very purpose, to let you know how we are, and to encourage your hearts.

23 Peace be to the whole community, and love with faith, from God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

24 Grace be with all who have an undying love for our Lord Jesus Christ.

---

That evil day, all Christian existence is situated within an ongoing spiritual conflict (5.16).

14: Truth, 4.15,25. Righteousness, here appropriate Christian behavior. 15: Gospel of peace, 2.14–18. 17: Salvation, deliverance from evil powers. The sword, the only offensive weapon mentioned, is the proclamation of the gospel. 20: In chains, see 3.1; 4.1.

6.21–24: Epilogue (Cf. Col 4.7–8). 21: Tychicus, Paul's associate; see Acts 20.4; Col 4.7; 2 Tim 4.12. 23: Whole community, the Greek “brothers” (note c) includes both men and women. 24: Undying, the final words of the letter are “in immortality,” perhaps instead pointing toward God’s unending grace in the age to come.
THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE PHILIPPIANS

NAME AND AUTHORSHIP
The letter to the Philippians is one of the richest of Paul’s letters and has never been seriously questioned as genuine. Philippi was a major city of Macedonia in northern Greece and a Roman colony on the Via Egnatia, the Roman road linking Byzantium in the East to the western coast of Macedonia, from which ships could easily reach Italy. The Christian community in Philippi was the westernmost Pauline church at the time of its founding (Acts 16.11–13). The mutual affection between Paul and the Philippians is evident in the letter and contrasts with the problems Paul faced in other churches.

DATE AND PLACE OF COMPOSITION
Except that Paul was in prison and awaiting trial at the time of writing (1.2–26), it is impossible to speak confidently of the time and place of the writing of this letter. Because of references to the imperial guard or praetorium (1.13) and to the emperor’s household (4.22), and also because the situation reflected in the letter bears some resemblance to that described at the end of Acts, the traditional date of the letter has been during Paul’s imprisonment at Rome (about 61–63 ce). The indications are by no means conclusive, however, and more recently some scholars have thought that the place of composition is perhaps Caesarea before Paul’s arrival in Rome (Acts 24–26) or Ephesus at an earlier stage in Paul’s career, especially because of the several goings and comings between Paul and Philippi implied in the letter (2.19, 25–26; 4.10,18) that seem to be inconsistent with the great distance from Philippi to Rome. The terms referring to the emperor’s household were also used for provincial government centers and the imperial civil service outside Rome. Elsewhere Paul notes an unhappy situation in Ephesus (1 Cor 15.32) and in the Roman province of Asia, of which Ephesus was a major center (2 Cor 1.8), and in Acts 20.16 he bypasses Ephesus on his way south down the coast. These indicators suggest an Ephesian imprisonment and the occasion of the letter.

The immediate occasion of Paul’s writing was the return to Philippi of Epaphroditus (2.25–30), who was sent by the Philippian church with gifts for Paul (4.18), and who then became seriously ill while staying with him. Paul took this opportunity to thank them for their gifts and to set their mutual difficulties in a wider framework by describing his and their situation in light of the reality of Christ.

STRUCTURE AND INTERPRETATION
The letter follows the usual pattern of Paul’s letters, but some abrupt changes of topic (especially between 3.1 and 2, and 4.3 and 4), in addition to the fact that an early Christian writer (Polycarp, Philippians 2.3) speaks of “letters” of Paul to the Philippians, have led some scholars to conclude that our present Philippians is composed of as many as three letters that Paul wrote to Philippi. Many scholars, however, find that Philippians is a coherent whole as it stands. After the greeting (1.1–2) and thanksgiving (1.3–11), Paul lays out the situation (1.12–26) and exhorts the community to unity (1.27–4.3) with many arguments, including proposing Christ (2.5–11), Timothy and Epaphroditus (2.19–30), and himself (3.4–14) as models of self-giving for the good of the whole. He thanks them for their recent gift (4.10–20) and concludes the letter (4.21–23).

Paul writes from prison uncertain of the outcome for himself (1.12–26). The themes of opposition and the possibility of death are therefore prominent. Yet in the midst of suffering and uncertainty, the theme of joy emerges quite clearly and remarkably (1.4,18,25; 2.2,17–18,28; 4.4,10). The Philippians too are experiencing opposition (1.29), but Paul’s major concern is to bring them together and thus to overcome the threat of internal disharmony. In keeping with that purpose, he uses a hymnic passage that celebrates the self-emptying of Christ even to death, for which God bestowed on him the name of “Lord,” the “name above all names” (2.6–11). The hymn was probably composed by a prior author, perhaps originally in Aramaic, and was known to both Paul and the Philippians. Here it serves as the prime example of why they should be willing also to empty themselves of their own opinions. The example of Paul himself follows and supports the argument (3.4–16). Paul offers both Christ and himself as examples of courage and self-surrender in the face of suffering and death. Thus he exhorts the Philippians to turn away from partisan interest to unity.

Carolyn Osiek

1 Paul and Timothy, servants of Christ Jesus,
   To all the saints in Christ Jesus who are in Philippi, with the bishops and deacons:

   2 Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

   3 I thank my God every time I remember you, constantly praying with joy in every one of my prayers for all of you, because of your sharing in the gospel from the first day until now. I am confident of this, that the one who began a good work among you will bring it to completion by the day of Jesus Christ. It is right for me to think this way about all of you, because you hold me in your heart, for all of you share in God's grace with me, both in my imprisonment and in the defense and confirmation of the gospel. For God is my witness, how I long for all of you with the compassion of Christ Jesus.

   9 And this is my prayer, that your love may overflower more and more with knowledge and full insight to help you to determine what is best, so that in the day of Christ you may be pure and blameless, having produced the harvest of righteousness that comes through Jesus Christ for the glory and praise of God.

   10 I want you to know, beloved, that what has happened to me has actually helped to spread the gospel, so that it has become known throughout the whole imperial guard and to everyone else that my imprisonment is for Christ; and most of the brothers and sisters, having been made confident in the Lord by my imprisonment, dare to speak the word with greater boldness and without fear.

   11 Some proclaim Christ from envy and rivalry, but others from goodwill. These proclaim Christ out of love, knowing that I have been put here for the defense of the gospel; the others proclaim Christ out of selfish ambition, not sincerely but intending to increase my suffering in my imprisonment.

   12 What does it matter? Just this, that Christ is proclaimed in every way, whether out of false motives or true; and in that I rejoice.

   Yes, and I will continue to rejoice, for I know that through your prayers and the help of the Spirit of Jesus Christ this will turn out for my deliverance. It is my eager expectation and hope that I will not be put to shame in any way, but that by my speaking with all boldness, Christ will be exalted now as always in my body, whether by life or by death.

   14 If I am to live in the flesh, that means fruit-

1.1–2: Salutation. 1: Bishops and deacons, the alternate translation overseers and helpers is preferable. These functions are not yet the church offices that they will later become.

1.3–11: Thanksgiving. A common feature of a Pauline letter. 5: Sharing, “koinônia,” an important Pauline concept (2.1; 3.10; 4.15) that was key to his understanding of Christian unity. From the first day, when Paul first preached at Philippi (Acts 16.12). 6: The day of Jesus Christ, when he will return and the present age will end (2.16; see 1 Cor 1.8; cf. 2 Thess 2.3 and 2 Pet 3.10). 10: Rom 2.18.

1.12–26: Paul's situation in chains. 13: Paul is confined in some Roman administrative center, where he has had the opportunity to preach the gospel. 15–18: Not all Christian preachers agreed with Paul or liked him; this is clear in Galatians and 1 and 2 Corinthians (especially 2 Cor 10–13), and here Paul questions their motives. Accusations against opponents was a common rhetorical tactic. 19: This will turn out for my deliverance, quoting Job 13.16. 21–24: His life is not his own but is given over to Christ, so that he is indifferent to the outcome of life or death; nevertheless, his death would mean loss to his churches.
ful labor for me; and I do not know which I prefer. 23 I am hard pressed between the two: my desire is to depart and be with Christ, for that is far better; 24 but to remain in the flesh is more necessary for you. 25 Since I am convinced of this, I know that I will remain and continue with all of you for your progress and joy in faith, 26 so that I may share abundantly in your boasting in Christ Jesus when I come to you again.

27 Only, live your life in a manner worthy of the gospel of Christ, so that, whether I come and see you or am absent and hear about you, I will know that you are standing firm in one spirit, striving side by side with one mind for the faith of the gospel, 28 and are in no way intimidated by your opponents. For them this is evidence of their destruction, but of your salvation. And this is God’s doing. 29 For he has graciously granted you the privilege not only of believing in Christ, but of suffering for him as well—30 since you are having the same struggle that you saw I had and now hear that I still have.

If then there is any encouragement in Christ, any consolation from love, any sharing in the Spirit, any compassion and sympathy, 2 make my joy complete: be of the same mind, having the same love, being in full accord and of one mind. 3 Do nothing from selfish ambition or conceit, but in humility regard others as better than yourselves. 4 Let each of you look not to your own interests, but to the interests of others. 5 Let the same mind be in you that was in Christ Jesus, 6 who, though he was in the form of God, did not regard equality with God as something to be exploited, 7 but emptied himself, taking the form of a slave, being born in human likeness. And being found in human form, 8 he humbled himself and became obedient to the point of death—even death on a cross.

9 Therefore God also highly exalted him and gave him the name that is above every name, 10 so that at the name of Jesus every knee should bend, in heaven and on earth and under the earth,

11 and every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

12 Therefore, my beloved, just as you have always obeyed me, not only in my presence, but much more now in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling;

13 for it is God who is at work in you, enabling you both to will and to work for his good pleasure.

14 Do all things without murmuring and arguing, 15 so that you may be blameless and innocent, children of God without blemish in the midst of a crooked and perverse generation, in which you shine like stars in the world. 16 It is by your holding fast to the word of life that I can boast on the day of Christ that I did not run in vain or labor in vain. 17 But even if I am being poured out as a libation over the sacrifice and the offering of your faith, I am glad and rejoice with all of you— 18 and in the same way you also must be glad and rejoice with me.

19 I hope in the Lord Jesus to send Timothy to you soon, so that I may be cheered by news of you.

20 I have no one like him who will be

1.27–4.4: Appeal to unity, to be followed by examples. 2.1–18: First example: self-emptying of Christ. 6: In the form of God, equality with God, may refer to divine status, or simply preexistence as a heavenly being (Dan 7.14), or Adam’s original immortality (Wis 2.23–24), which Christ renounced by becoming subject to death. 7: But emptied himself, the extreme limit of self-denial. 8: Mt 26.39; Jn 10.18; Rom 5.19; Heb 5.8; 12.2. 9: Exalted, in raising him from the dead. The name . . . above every name is Lord. 10–11: Cf. Isa 45.23. 12: With fear and trembling, a frequent biblical expression (Ex 15.16; Deut 2.25; Ps 2.11; Isa 19.6; 4 Macc 4.10) that had become commonplace (1 Cor 2.3; 2 Cor 11.6). 15: Shine like stars, Dan 12.3. 16: Day of Christ, see 1.6n. 17: Paul’s possible death is compared to a temple sacrifice.

genuinely concerned for your welfare. 21 All of them are seeking their own interests, not those of Jesus Christ. 22 But Timothy’s worth you know, how like a son with a father he has served with me in the work of the gospel. 23 I hope therefore to send him as soon as I see how things go with me; 24 and I trust in the Lord that I will also come soon.

25 Still, I think it necessary to send to you Epaphroditus—my brother and co-worker and fellow soldier, your messenger and minister to my need; 26 for he has been longing for all of you, and has been distressed because you heard that he was ill. 27 He was indeed so ill that he nearly died. But God had mercy on him, and not only on him but on me also, so that I would not have one sorrow for him, and not only on him but on all of you, and has been distressed because you heard that he was ill. 28 He was indeed so ill that he nearly died. But God had mercy on him, and not only on him but on me also, so that I would not have one sorrow after another. 29 I am the more eager to send him, therefore, in order that you may rejoice with all joy, and honor such people, 30 because he came close to death for the work of Christ, risking his life to make up for those services that you could not give me.

3 Finally, my brothers and sisters, rejoice in the Lord.

To write the same things to you is not troublesome to me, and for you it is a safeguard. 2 Beware of the dogs, beware of the evil workers, beware of those who mutilate the flesh. 3 For it is we who are the circumcision, who worship in the Spirit of God and boast in Christ Jesus and have no confidence in the flesh— even though I, too, have reason for confidence in the flesh.

If anyone else has reason to be confident in the flesh, I have more: circumcised on the eighth day, a member of the people of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew born of Hebrews; as to the law, a Pharisee; as to zeal, a persecutor of the church; as to righteousness under the law, blameless.

Yet whatever gains I had, these I have come to regard as loss because of Christ. 8 More than that, I regard everything as loss because of the surpassing value of knowing Christ Jesus my Lord. For his sake I have suffered the loss of all things, and I regard them as rubbish, in order that I may gain Christ and be found in him, not having a righteousness of my own that comes from the law, but one that comes through faith in Christ, the righteousness from God based on faith. 10 I want to know Christ and the power of his resurrection and the sharing of his sufferings by becoming like him in his death, if somehow I may attain the resurrection from the dead.

12 Not that I have already obtained this or have already reached the goal, but I press on to make it my own, because Christ Jesus has made me his own. 13 Beloved, I do not consider that I have made it my own;\(a\) but this one thing I do: forgetting what lies behind and straining forward to what lies ahead, 14 I press on toward the goal for the prize of the heavenly\(b\) call of God in Christ Jesus.

15 Let those of us then who are mature be of the same mind; and if you think differently about anything, this too God will reveal to you.\(c\) Only let us hold fast to what we have attained.

16 Brothers and sisters,\(d\) join in imitating me, and observe those who live according to the example you have in us.\(e\) For many live as enemies of the cross of Christ; I have often told you of them, and now I tell you even with tears.\(f\) Their end is destruction; their god is the belly; and their glory is in their shame; their minds are set on earthly things.

17 But our citizenship\(g\) is in heaven, and it is from there that we are expecting a Savior, the Lord Jesus Christ.\(h\) He will transform the body of our humiliation that it may be conformed to the body of his glory,\(i\) by the power that also enables him to make all things subject to himself.\(j\) Therefore, my brothers and sisters, whom I love and long for, my joy and crown, stand firm in the Lord in this way, my beloved.

18 I urge Euodia and I urge Syntyche to be of the same mind in the Lord.\(k\) Yes, and I ask you also, my loyal companion,\(l\) help these women, for they have struggled beside me in the work of the gospel, together with Clement and the rest of my co-workers, whose names are in the book of life.

19 Rejoice\(m\) in the Lord always; again I will say, Rejoice.\(n\) Let your gentleness be known to everyone. The Lord is near.

20 Do not worry about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God.\(o\) And the peace of God, which surpasses all understanding, will guard your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus.

21 Finally, beloved,\(p\) whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is pleasing, whatever is commendable, if there is any excellence and if there is anything worthy of praise, think about\(q\) these things. Keep on doing the things that you have learned and received and heard and seen in me, and the God of peace will be with you.

22 I rejoice\(r\) in the Lord greatly that now at last you have revived your concern for me; indeed, you were concerned for me, but had no opportunity to show it.\(s\) Not that I am referring to being in need; for I have learned to be content with whatever I have.\(t\) I know what it is to have little, and I know what it is to have plenty. In any and all circumstances I have learned the secret of being well-fed and of going hungry, of hav-

\(a\) Other ancient authorities read my own yet

\(b\) Gk upward

\(c\) Gk Brothers

\(d\) Or commonwealth

\(e\) Or our humble bodies

\(f\) Or his glorious body

\(g\) Gk my brothers

\(h\) Or loyal Syzygus

\(i\) Or Farewell

\(j\) Gk brothers

\(k\) Gk take account of \(l\) Gk I rejoiced

\(m\) Gk lacks to show it finishing post, and the award to the winner (see 2.16; 1 Cor 9.24–27). 18–19: Many live as enemies of the cross of Christ, presumably professing Christians who cannot accept Paul’s theology of the cross. 20: Our citizenship, our ultimate political loyalty and real homeland, contrasting with the status of most of the Philippians as Roman citizens. 21: Rom 8.23; 1 Cor 15.47–57; 2 Cor 5.1–5; Col 3.1–4. 4.1: 1 Thess 2.19–20. A crown was often awarded to the winner of a race (see 3.12–14n.).

4.2–9: Heart of the problem. 2: Euodia . . . Syntyche, two women leaders in the Philippian church, most likely heads of house-churches and therefore among the overseers and helpers (1:1) whose disagreement has had a disastrous effect on the church; the factions into which they have broken are the major concern of the letter. 3: My loyal companion, an unknown but influential figure who could serve as mediator between the two. Less likely, the Greek word for companion may be understood as a proper name, Syzygus. Book of life, a book kept by God containing names of those to be saved (Ps 69.28; Dan 12.1; Lk 10.20; Rev 3.5; etc.).

4.10–20: Acknowledgment of their gifts. 11: Content, Paul here expresses the Stoic ideal of indifference, but Philippians 4

13 I can do all things through him who strengthens me. 14 In any case, it was kind of you to share my distress.

15 You Philippians indeed know that in the early days of the gospel, when I left Macedonia, no church shared with me in the matter of giving and receiving, except you alone. 16 For even when I was in Thessalonica, you sent me help for my needs more than once. 17 Not that I seek the gift, but I seek the profit that accumulates to your account. 18 I have been paid in full and have more than enough; I am fully satisfied, now that I have received from Epaphroditus the gifts you sent, a fragrant offering, a sacrifice acceptable and pleasing to God. 19 And my God will fully satisfy every need of yours according to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus. 20 To our God and Father be glory forever and ever. Amen.

21 Greet every saint in Christ Jesus. The friends who are with me greet you. 22 All the saints greet you, especially those of the emperor’s household.

23 The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit.

a Gk brothers
b Other ancient authorities add Amen

with new motivation because of Christ. 15–16: Macedonia, Thessalonica, according to Acts 17.1, Paul had gone to Thessalonica in Greece immediately after his stay in Philippi. 15,17,18: Giving and receiving, profit . . . account, paid in full, a series of business terms used metaphorically here and in other contexts of friendship. 18: Fragrant offering, Gen 8.21; Ex 29.18; Ezek 20.41.

4.21–23: Conclusion. 22: The emperor’s household, members of the imperial civil service who are believers where Paul is confined. This need not be in Rome, but wherever there was a Roman administrative center.
THE LETTER OF PAUL TO THE COLOSSIANS

NAME
This letter is named for its recipients, the Christian community in the city of Colossae (1.2), a community that had been founded by a Colossian associate of Paul named Epaphras (1.7–8; 4.12–13). Colossae, once a thriving town on the Lycus River in the Roman province of Asia, fell into decay after an earthquake ca. 60 CE; the site has not yet been excavated.

AUTHORSHIP AND DATE
Despite its similarity to the undisputed letters of Paul in structure, language, and theology, the letter to the Colossians lacks some central Pauline terms, uses new theological vocabulary, and is composed in a more elevated, liturgical style. Two theological differences stand out: first, the vision of believers’ present lives as almost completely transformed by Christ’s death and resurrection (3.1–4), instead of Paul’s usual tension between the partial experience of salvation in the present and the future resurrection that ushers in the full enjoyment of Christ’s benefits (e.g., Rom 6.4); second, the use of household rules to define ethical norms (3.18–4.1), which is more characteristic of other post-Pauline literature, such as Ephesians, the Pastoral Letters, and 1 Peter, than of Paul’s own ethical instructions on similar themes (e.g., 1 Cor 7). Such differences have led some scholars to conclude that Colossians was written in Paul’s name by one of his disciples—either during Paul’s lifetime or shortly after his death (ca. 65 CE)—in order to authorize the application of Paul’s thought to a new situation. Other scholars, noting its close similarities to the letter to Philemon, think the letter was written by Paul himself while imprisoned (4.3,10,18) at Rome near the end of his life, and attribute theological contrasts to shifts in Paul’s thinking and the particular situation addressed in the letter. Colossians also has significant similarities to Ephesians and was probably used as a model by the author of that letter (see p. 2053).

HISTORICAL CONTEXT
Although the letter begins with a highly complimentary description of the Colossians’ lives, unnamed teachers pose a threat to their faith. The lack of an independent description of these teachings makes their precise identification difficult. It appears that these teachings advocated observance of Jewish rituals and pursuit of mystical experiences through asceticism (2.8–23) and that they are best understood as a form of Jewish apocalyptic mysticism, although some scholars have preferred to see a synthesis of Judaism with proto-Gnostic thought, local Phrygian religious practices, or Hellenistic philosophy. The attractiveness of Jewish elements in this spirituality reflects the ongoing close connections between Jewish and Christian communities; the polemical tone of this letter (for instance, “empty deceit, according to human tradition,” 2.8), however, represents an emerging first-century Christian ambivalence toward Judaism among non-Jewish believers. This tension is exemplified in Colossians where a Jewish eschatological outlook and moral commitments are central to the author’s Christian vision, and yet Jewish practices, including celebrating holy days and observing dietary laws, are rejected as incompatible with Christ.

STRUCTURE AND INTERPRETATION
Colossians follows the usual structure of a Pauline letter (see p. 1973), beginning with a greeting (1.1–2), an introductory thanksgiving (1.3–8) and prayer (1.9–14), and ending with greetings and instructions (4.7–18). The body of the letter includes both a theological argument (2.6–23) and ethical instructions (3.1–4.6). The basis of the theological argument is presented in 1.12–2.5. In the elevated words of an early Christian hymn, Christ is praised as the supreme power over the cosmos and the church (1.15–20). Although demonic forces enslaved humanity in the past, Christians have been freed from their influence, forgiven through Christ’s death, and made full citizens of the kingdom of Christ, to whom they now owe complete allegiance (1.12–14,21–23). Christ’s identity as the perfect revelation of God (1.19; 2.9–10) and as the single source of wisdom about how to live rightly (1.9–10; 2.2–3) is emphasized. The main theological argument focuses on the change in believers’ existence achieved
Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, ²To the saints and faithful brothers and sisters in Christ in Colossae:

Grace to you and peace from God our Father.

³In our prayers for you we always thank God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, for we have heard of your faith in Christ Jesus and of the love that you have for all the saints, ⁵because of the hope laid up for you in heaven. You have heard of this hope before in the word of the truth, the gospel that has come to you. Just as it is bearing fruit and growing in the whole world, so it has been bearing fruit among yourselves from the day you heard it and truly comprehended the grace of God. 7This you learned from Epaphras, our beloved fellow servant.
²²He is a faithful minister of Christ on your behalf, and he has made known to us your love in the Spirit.
³³For this reason, since the day we heard it, we have not ceased praying for you and asking that you may be filled with the knowledge of God’s will in all spiritual wisdom and understanding, so that you may lead lives worthy of the Lord, fully pleasing to him, as you bear fruit in every good work and as you grow in the knowledge of God.

1.1–2: Salutation. 1: Apostle . . . by the will of God, see 1.25; Rom 1.1n. Timothy, Paul’s fellow missionary and emissary (Philem 1; 2 Cor 11; Phil 1.1; 2.19–24). Brother indicates a bond of affection and loyalty. 2: Saints, literally “holy ones,” refers to all believers. Brothers and sisters, the Greek “brothers” (see note a) includes both men and women. Grace . . . peace, a common Pauline greeting drawing upon and transforming conventional Greek (grace) and Hebrew (peace) salutations.

1.3–8: Thanksgivings for prior obedience. 3–5: Faith, hope, and love, a summary of Christian virtues (1 Cor 13.13; 1 Thess 5.8). 4: Faith, here allegiance or loyalty. 5: Gospel, in general, proclamation of good news, as of a military victory; here referring to Christ’s victory over death and cosmic powers (see 2.15). 6: The whole world, hyperbole for all the Christian communities in Roman cities. 7: Epaphras, founder of the church in Colossae (4.12–13; Phil 23).

1.9–14: Prayer for future growth in knowledge (v. 9), moral maturity (v. 10), and endurance (v. 11). 9: Spiritual be made strong with all the strength that comes from his glorious power, and may you be prepared to endure everything with patience, while joyfully giving thanks to the Father, who has enabled you to share in the inheritance of the saints in the light. He has rescued us from the power of darkness and transferred us into the kingdom of his beloved Son, in whom we have redemption, the forgiveness of sins.

He is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of all creation; for in him all things in heaven and on earth were created, things visible and invisible, whether thrones or dominions or rulers or powers—all things have been created through him and for him.

He himself is before all things, and in him all things hold together. He is the head of the body, the church; he is the beginning, the firstborn from the dead, so that he might have first place in everything. For in him all the fullness of God was pleased to dwell, and through him God was pleased to reconcile to himself all things, whether on earth or in heaven, by making peace through the blood of his cross.

And you who were once estranged and hostile in mind, doing evil deeds, he has now reconciled in his fleshly body through death, so as to present you holy and blameless and irreproachable before him—provided that you continue securely established and steadfast in the faith, without shifting from the hope promised by the gospel that you heard, which has been proclaimed to every creature under heaven. I, Paul, became a servant of this gospel.

I am now rejoicing in my sufferings for your sake, and in my flesh I am completing what is lacking in Christ’s afflictions for the sake of his body, that is, the church. I became its servant according to God’s commission that was given to me for you, to make the word of God fully known, the mystery that has been hidden throughout the ages and generations but has now been revealed to his saints. To them God chose to make known how great among the Gentiles are the riches of the glory of this mystery, which is Christ in you, the hope of glory. It is he whom we proclaim, warning everyone and teaching everyone in all wisdom, so that we Wisdom and understanding, a major theme of the letter (1.25–28; 2.2–4,9–15). 12–14: Perhaps a fragment of a baptismal hymn. 12–13: Light . . . darkness, apocalyptic imagery for the opposing domains of God and malevolent spiritual beings (see 1.16n.; 1 Thess 5.5). 12: Inheritance, a metaphor for God’s blessings based on Israel’s inheritance of the land as a gift of God. 14: Redemption, release from slavery to demonic powers.

1.15–20: The supremacy of Christ over the cosmos (vv. 15–17) and the church (vv. 18–20), expressed as a hymn in which Jesus’ relationship to creation is based on the Jewish figure Wisdom/Sophia (Prov 8; Sir 24; Wis 6–9; see also Jn 1.1–18; Phil 2.6–11). 15: Image, the perfect, visible manifestation of God. Firstborn expresses priority and supremacy. 16: Thrones . . . powers, hostile spiritual beings (1.13; 2.15; Eph 6.12). 18: Head, ruling authority or originator; see Eph 1.22; 5.23. The body, the church, both terms stem from ancient political discourse for a community assembly and its unity and coherence; see Rom 12.4–5; 1 Cor 12.27. See also Eph 1.22–23n. Firstborn from the dead, the first of those to be resurrected from the dead (1 Cor 15.20,23; Acts 26.23; Rev 1.5). 19: Fullness of God, the power and presence of God in Christ (see also 1.29; 2.9–10). 20: Reconcile . . . making peace, the enshrinement of humanity to demonic powers is presupposed here (1.13–14; 2.15).

1.21–23: Assurance and warning. 21: Hostile in mind, doing evil deeds, interrelated aspects of the former life (Rom 1.18–32). 22: Fleshy body, an emphatic contrast with Christ’s heavenly origins (2.11; cf. 1.15–17). To present you . . . before him, reconciliation is completed by Christ’s approval at the eschatological judgment (v. 28). 23: Concern for continued allegiance to Christ is the motivation for the letter (see 2.6–20).

1.24–2.5: Paul’s mission and pastoral commitment. 1.24: Sufferings, imprisonment (4.3,10,18) and hardships experienced while preaching the gospel (2 Cor 4.7–12; 11.23–28). Completing . . . afflictions, not a denigration of Christ’s death but a reflection of the belief that God’s people must suffer before the culmination of history (1 Cor 4.9; Rev 6.9–11). 26–27: Mystery, the previously hidden plan of God; here, the gospel proclaimed to Genmay present everyone mature in Christ. 29 For this I toil and struggle with all the energy that he powerfully inspires within me.

2 For I want you to know how much I am struggling for you, and for those in Laodi-cea, and for all who have not seen me face to face. 3 I want their hearts to be encouraged and united in love, so that they may have all the riches of assured understanding and have the knowledge of God’s mystery, that is, Christ himself, 4 in whom are hidden all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. 5 I am saying this so that no one may deceive you with plausible arguments. 6 For though I am absent in body, yet I am with you in spirit, and I rejoice to see your morale and the firmness of your faith in Christ.

6 As you therefore have received Christ Jesus the Lord, continue to live your lives in him, 7 rooted and built up in him and established in the faith, just as you were taught, abounding in thanksgiving.

8 See to it that no one takes you captive through philosophy and empty deceit, according to human tradition, according to the elemental spirits of the universe, and not according to Christ. 9 For in him the whole fullness of deity dwells bodily, and you have come to fullness in him, who is the head of every ruler and authority. 10 In him also you were circumcised with a spiritual circumcision, by putting off the body of the flesh in the circumcision of Christ; 11 when you were buried with him in baptism, you were also raised with him through faith in the power of God, who raised him from the dead. 12 And when you were dead in trespasses and the uncircumcision of your flesh, God made you alive together with him, when he forgave us all our trespasses, 13 erasing the record that stood against us with its legal demands. He set this aside, nailing it to the cross. 14 He disarmed the rulers and authorities and made a public example of them, triumphing over them in it.

15 Therefore do not let anyone condemn you in matters of food and drink or of observing festivals, new moons, or sabbaths.

16 These are only a shadow of what is to come, but the substance belongs to Christ. 17 Do not let anyone disqualify you, insisting on self-abasement and worship of angels, dwelling on visions, puffed up without cause by a shadow of what is to come, but the substance belongs to Christ. 18 Do not let anyone disqualify you, insisting on self-abasement and worship of angels, dwelling on visions, puffed up without cause by a shadow of what is to come, but the substance belongs to Christ. 19 Do not let anyone disqualify you, insisting on self-abasement and worship of angels, dwelling on visions, puffed up without cause by a shadow of what is to come, but the substance belongs to Christ.
human way of thinking, a and not holding fast to the head, from whom the whole body, nourished and held together by its ligaments and sinews, grows with a growth that is from God.

20 If with Christ you died to the elemental spirits of the universe, b why do you live as if you still belonged to the world? Why do you submit to regulations, 21 “Do not handle, Do not taste, Do not touch”? 22 All these regulations refer to things that perish with use; they are simply human commands and teachings. 23 These have indeed an appearance of wisdom in promoting self-imposed piety, humility, and severe treatment of the body, but they are of no value in checking self-indulgence. c

3 So if you have been raised with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated at the right hand of God. d Set your minds on things that are above, not on things that are on earth, e for you have died, and your life is hidden with Christ in God. f When Christ who is your life is revealed, then you also will be revealed with him in glory.

5 Put to death, therefore, whatever in you is earthly: fornication, impurity, passion, evil desire, and greed (which is idolatry). 6 On account of these the wrath of God is coming on those who are disobedient. 7 These are the ways you also once followed, when you were living that life. 8 But now you must get rid of all such things—anger, wrath, malice, slander, and abusive language from your mouth. 9 Do not lie to one another, seeing that you have stripped off the old self with its practices 10 and have clothed yourselves with the new self, which is being renewed in knowledge according to the image of its creator. 11 In that renewal 12 there is no longer Greek and Jew, circumcised and uncircumcised, barbarian, Scythian, slave and free; but Christ is all and in all! 12 As God’s chosen ones, holy and beloved, clothe yourselves with compassion, kindness, humility, meekness, and patience. 13 Bear with one another and, if anyone has a complaint against another, forgive each other; just as the Lord 1 has forgiven you, so you also must forgive. 14 Above all, clothe yourselves with love, which binds everything together in perfect harmony. 15 And let the peace of Christ rule in your hearts, to which indeed you were called in the one body. And be thankful. 16 Let of God or to revering angels. 19: Head, body, see 1.18n. 20: Died to the elemental spirits, no longer under their authority (vv. 8–15). As if . . . world, see 2.11; 3.1–3. 21: Jewish purity regulations. 22: See Mk 7.7,19. 23: They are of no value, the criticism is either that such practices do not address the author’s moral concerns (3.5,8) or that they inappropriately focus on the body.

3.1–4.6: Ethical implications. 3.1–4: Maintain a heavenly perspective. 1: Raised, 2.12. Seated, see Eph 1.19–20. 1–2: Seek . . . above . . . set . . . above, commands to orient one’s life around the heavenly reality of Christ’s exaltation and authority. 3: Died, see 2.20. Hidden, not disclosed to outsiders, but already revealed to believers (1.26; 2.3). 4: Is revealed, to all at the eschatological judgment (1 Cor 2.6–16).

3.5–11: Reject sins of previous life. 5: Put to death, vehemently refuse to engage in. Fornication . . . evil desire, inappropriate sexual behavior. Idolatry, often linked with sexual sins in Jewish thought (Hos 4.12–19; Rom 1.23–27; 1 Cor 10.7–8). 6: Wrath, God’s eschatological judgment. 8: Anger . . . abusive language, a list of vices commonly condemned in antiquity (cf. 1 Cor 6.9; Gal 5.19–21). 9–10: Old self . . . new self, another contrast emphasizing the new act of creation (image of its creator recalls Gen 1.26–27) brought about by baptism (2.12). Stripped off . . . clothed, metaphor for adopting a new way of life (3.12–14; Eph 4.22–24). 11: An eloquent rejection of privileges based on ethnicity and socioeconomic status; cf. the additional abrogation of a gender hierarchy in Gal 3.28. Barbarian . . . Scythian, shorthand in antiquity for uncultured peoples.

the word of Christ dwell in you richly; teach and admonish one another in all wisdom; and with gratitude in your hearts sing psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs to God. And whatever you do, in word or deed, do everything in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him.

Children, obey your parents in everything, as is fitting in the Lord. Fathers, love your wives and never treat them harshly. Wives, be subject to your husbands, as the Lord Christ. Husbands, love your earthly masters as done for the Lord and not for your reward; you serve the Lord. You will receive the inheritance as your reward. Slaves, obey your earthly masters in everything, not only while being watched and in order to please them, but wholeheartedly, fearing the Lord. Whatever your task, put yourselves into it, as done for the Lord and not for your masters, since you know that from the Lord you will receive the inheritance as your reward; you serve the Lord Christ. For the wrongdoer will be paid back for whatever wrong has been done, and there is no partiality. Masters, treat your slaves justly and fairly, for you know that you also have a Master in heaven.

Devote yourselves to prayer, keeping alert in it with thanksgiving. At the same time pray for us as well that God will open to us a door for the word, that we may declare the mystery of Christ, for which I am in prison, so that I may know how you are doing. Other ancient authorities read of the Lord. Other ancient authorities read to the Lord. In Greek the same word is used for master and Lord. Gk not for men. Or you are slaves of, or be slaves of. Or opportunity. Gk slave. Other ancient authorities read that I may know how you are.

Let your speech always be gracious, seasoned with salt, so that you may know how you ought to answer everyone.

Tychicus will tell you all the news about me; he is a beloved brother, a faithful minister, and a fellow servant in the Lord. I have sent him to you for this very purpose, so that you may know how we are and that he may encourage your hearts; he is coming with Onesimus, the faithful and beloved brother, who is one of you. They will tell you about everything here.

Aristarchus my fellow prisoner greets you, as does Mark the cousin of Barnabas, concerning whom you have received instructions—if he comes to you, welcome him. And Jesus who is called Justus greets you. These are the only ones of the circumcision among my co-workers for the kingdom of God, and they have been a comfort to me. Epaphras, who is one of you, a servant of Christ Jesus, greets you. He is always wrestling in his prayers on your behalf, so that you may stand mature and strong in the faith.
fully assured in everything that God wills.

13 For I testify for him that he has worked hard for you and for those in Laodicea and in Hierapolis. 14 Luke, the beloved physician, and Demas greet you. 15 Give my greetings to the brothers and sisters in Laodicea, and to Nympha and the church in her house.

16 And when this letter has been read among you, have it read also in the church of the Laodiceans; and see that you read also the letter from Laodicea. 17 And say to Archippus, “See that you complete the task that you have received in the Lord.”

18 I, Paul, write this greeting with my own hand. Remember my chains. Grace be with you.

a Gk brothers
b Other ancient authorities add Amen
THE FIRST LETTER OF PAUL TO THE THESALONIANS

NAME AND CANONICAL STATUS
This letter is named for its recipients, the Christian community in Thessalonica in Macedonia in northern Greece. The title is not an original part of the text itself, but was added when the letters of Paul were copied and collected together. The title in the earliest Greek manuscripts is the simple form “To the Thessalonians 1.” From the second century on this letter has been accepted as part of the collection of letters of Paul within what became the New Testament canon.

AUTHORSHIP, DATE, AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT
Like 2 Thessalonians, 1 Thessalonians identifies its senders as Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy (1.1), though Paul is clearly the leading author (see 2.18; 3.1–5; 5.27). Its authenticity as a genuine letter of Paul is seldom questioned.

First Thessalonians is widely regarded as Paul's earliest letter, written from Corinth during his founding mission there; Athens, mentioned in 1 Thess 3:1, has sometimes been seen as the letter's place of origin, especially by early Christian interpreters. Acts 17–18 records Paul’s visits to Thessalonica and then, via Athens, to Corinth. The date of the letter therefore corresponds with Paul’s Corinthian mission, usually dated about 49–51 CE, but sometimes earlier, between 41–44 CE. Thessalonica was the capital of the Roman province of Macedonia, while Corinth lay farther south in the province of Achaia. Both cities were located on important land and sea routes; Paul’s mission focused on such urban centers.

LITERARY HISTORY, STRUCTURE, AND CONTENTS
It has sometimes been argued that the letter as we now have it is composed of earlier letters, later woven into one. Some sections of the letter (especially 2.14–16) have been proposed as later additions to the text. Most scholars, however, agree that what we have is a single letter, not a composite.

The structure and contents of 1 Thessalonians may be outlined as follows:

1.1 Opening greeting
1.2–10 Opening thanksgiving and remembrance of the Thessalonians’ response to the gospel
2.1–12 Recalling the conduct of Paul and his co-workers toward the Thessalonians, despite hardships
2.13–16 The Thessalonians’ response to the gospel, and their hardships
2.17–3.13 Paul’s desire to see the Thessalonians, and Timothy’s good report about them
4.1–12 Ethical instructions on the Christian life
4.13–5.11 Teaching about the fate of those who have died and about the coming day of the Lord
5.12–24 Practical instruction about life in the church
5.25–28 Closing greeting

INTERPRETATION
A pastoral letter of encouragement and exhortation, 1 Thessalonians reflects a warm and affectionate relationship between Paul and the Christians at Thessalonica. Unlike some other letters of Paul, it is not concerned to combat what Paul sees as false teaching or immoral conduct. The first three chapters recall the enthusiastic response of the Thessalonians to the gospel, and the mutual affection between them and the apostolic missionaries. Both groups have faced hardships but have remained faithful. Paul longs to visit them again and is heartened by the good reports of their “faith and love” (3.6) that Timothy has brought. The last two chapters are more focused on instruction, but even here Paul is concerned to commend the Thessalonians’ good conduct (4.1,9). The main issue addressed in these chapters is Thessalonian worries about those who have died. Paul seeks to reassure and comfort them, while also exhorting them to readiness for the coming day of salvation. This instruction about the coming of the Lord, and the salvation of believers both living and dead, has been influential in the development of doctrine concerning the nature of Christian hope and future expectation.

GUIDE TO READING

It is important to read this text as a letter, appreciating its origins in the relationship between the apostolic missionaries and the community they founded. Paul expresses a warm parental and pastoral concern for his converts. The theme of imitation is significant: the Thessalonians have suffered, yet have remained faithful and joyful, a pattern found in other churches (2.14), in Paul, and in the Lord himself (1.6). The teaching on the coming of the Lord and the fate of believers needs to be interpreted in the context of lively early Christian belief: the return of Christ was expected very soon. Consequently this first generation of converts had to face the question of why some of their number had died before the day of salvation had arrived. A significant issue for contemporary Christian readers is what kind of expectation is appropriate now, two thousand years later.

David G. Horrell

1 Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy,
To the church of the Thessalonians in God
the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ:
Grace to you and peace.

² We always give thanks to God for all of you and mention you in our prayers, constantly ³ remembering before our God and Father your work of faith and labor of love and steadfastness of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ.
⁴ For we know, brothers and sisters, beloved by God,
that he has chosen you,
⁵ because our message of the gospel came to you not in word only, but also in power and in the Holy Spirit and with full conviction; just as you know what kind of persons we proved to be among you for your sake. ⁶ And you became imitators of us and of the Lord, in spite of persecution you received the word with joy inspired by the Holy Spirit, ⁷ so that you became an example to all the believers in Macedonia and in Achaia. ⁸ For the word of the Lord has sounded forth from you not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but in every place your faith in God has become known, so that we have no need to speak about it. ⁹ For the people of those regions report about us what kind of welcome we had among you, and how you turned to God from idols, to serve a living and true God, ¹⁰ and to

---

a Gk brothers
b Gk For they

1.1: Greeting. The opening follows the basic pattern of ancient Greek letters, listing the senders and recipients and expressing a greeting. Silvanus is the Latin form of Silas, one of Paul’s companions (Acts 15.22,40; 17.1). Timothy was also a co-worker with Paul and an important emissary (3.2,6; cf. 1 Cor 16.10–11; Phil 2.19–24). Church: the Greek word “ekklesia” refers to an assembly, originally of citizens in the city-state. The phrase grace and peace reflects both Greek and Jewish forms of greeting.

1.2–10: Opening thanksgiving. Greek letters typically opened with a prayer or an expression of thanks for the health of the recipients. Paul and his coauthors express their thanks for the Thessalonians’ response to the gospel. ³: Faith . . . love . . . hope, cf. 5.8; 1 Cor 13.13. ⁴: Brothers and sisters, the Greek word “adelphoi” refers to all members of the community; this is Paul’s most common way of addressing recipients of his letters and suggests that they form a family of siblings. This and other descriptions—especially chosen—draw on biblical terms for the people of Israel (Deut 7.6–7; 14.2). ⁵: The presentation of the gospel involved not only words but also deeds that demonstrated the Spirit’s power (cf. Rom 15.19; 2 Cor 12.12). ⁶–⁸: The Thessalonians have experienced persecution or suffering, though the precise cause or nature of this suffering is not made clear (cf. 2.14; 3.3–4,7); their faithful perseverance in this marks them as imitators of Paul and of the Lord. In turn they have become an example, or role model, for Christians elsewhere in Macedonia and Achaia, the two Roman provinces in Greece (see Introduction). ⁹–¹⁰: A summary of what the Thessalonians’ response to the gospel meant. Turned . . . from idols indicates that the converts were Gentiles. The expectation of salvation on the imminent day of judgment is also evident.

2.1–12: The conduct of Paul and his co-workers. ¹–⁸: This description emphasizes the integrity and pastoral wait for his Son from heaven, whom he raised from the dead—Jesus, who rescues us from the wrath that is coming.

2 You yourselves know, brothers and sisters, that our coming to you was not in vain, but though we had already suffered and been shamefully mistreated at Philippi, as you know, we had courage in our God to declare to you the gospel of God in spite of great opposition. For our appeal does not spring from deceit or impure motives or trickery, but just as we have been approved by God to be entrusted with the message of the gospel, even so we speak, not to please mortals, but to please God who tests our hearts. As you know and as God is our witness, we never came with words of flattery or with a pretext for greed; nor did we seek praise from mortals, whether from you or from others, though we might have made demands as apostles of Christ. But we were gentle among you, like a nurse tenderly caring for her own children. So deeply do we care for you that we are determined to share with you not only the gospel of God but also our own selves, because you have become very dear to us.

9 You remember our labor and toil, brothers and sisters; we worked night and day, so that we might not burden any of you while we proclaimed to you the gospel of God. You are witnesses, and God also, how pure, upright, and blameless our conduct was toward you believers. As you know, we dealt with each one of you like a father with his children, urging and encouraging you and pleading that you lead a life worthy of God, who calls you into his own kingdom and glory.

13 We also constantly give thanks to God for this, that when you received the word of God that you heard from us, you accepted it not as a human word but as what it really is, God’s word, which is also at work in you believers. For you, brothers and sisters, became imitators of the churches of God in Christ Jesus that are in Judea, for you suffered the same things from your own compatriots as they did from the Jews, who killed both the Lord Jesus and the prophets, and drove us out; they displease God and oppose everyone by hindering us from speaking to the Gentiles so that they may be saved. Thus they have constantly been filling up the measure of their sins; but God’s wrath has overtaken them at last.

17 As for us, brothers and sisters, when, for a short time, we were made orphans by the strong and afflicting Satan, the adversary, who deceives and tempts (1 Cor 7.5; 2 Cor 2.11; 11.14), A crown is the laurel wreath won by an athlete. The coming concern of Paul and his fellow missionaries. 2: Despite opposition (Gk “agon,” meaning “contest”), they struggled on. On the mistreatment at Philippi, see Acts 16.19–40. 3–6: Other traveling missionaries might do things from baser motives (cf. 2 Cor 2.17; 11.20; Did. 11–12). 7: Like a nurse, a wet nurse or nursing mother, a striking image of care for children (cf. v. 7; 1 Cor 4.15; 2 Cor 12.14). 12: Paul’s main aim as founding father of the community is to enable the Thessalonians to lead a life worthy of God (see 4.1–12).

2.13–16: The Thessalonians’ response to the gospel, and their hardships. The opposition the Thessalonians have encountered from their non-Christian neighbors (primarily Gentiles) is paralleled with Jewish opposition to the Christian movement in Judea, and more generally to the prophets that God had sent (see Lk 11.47; 13.34; Acts 7.52). This opposition has brought God’s wrath upon the perpetrators: Paul apparently has in mind a judgment of particular Jews at some specific time, perhaps their expulsion from Rome in 41 or 49 CE.

2.17–3.13: Paul’s desire to see the Thessalonians and Timothy’s good report about them. The strong and affectionate bond between Paul and the Thessalonians is again clearly displayed. 2.18: Satan, the adversary, who deceives and tempts (1 Cor 7.5; 2 Cor 2.11; 11.14). 19: A crown is the laurel wreath won by an athlete. The coming our Lord Jesus at his coming? Is it not you?
3 Yes, you are our glory and joy!

Therefore when we could bear it no longer, we decided to be left alone in Athens; and we sent Timothy, our brother and co-worker for God in proclaiming the gospel of Christ, to strengthen and encourage you for the sake of your faith, so that no one would be shaken by these persecutions. Indeed, you yourselves know that this is what we are destined for. In fact, when we were with you, we told you beforehand that we were to suffer persecution; so it turned out, as you know. For this reason, when I could bear it no longer, I sent to find out about your faith; I was afraid that somehow the tempter had tempted you and that our labor had been in vain.

But Timothy has just now come to us from you, and has brought us the good news of your faith and love. He has told us also that you always remember us kindly and long to see us—just as we long to see you. For this reason, brothers and sisters, during all our distress and persecution we have been encouraged about you through your faith.

Now may our God and Father himself and our Lord Jesus direct our way to you. And may the Lord make you increase and abound in love for one another and for all, just as we abound in love for you. And may he so strengthen your hearts in holiness that you may be blameless before our God and Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus with all his saints.

Finally, brothers and sisters, we ask and urge you in the Lord Jesus that, as you learned from us how you ought to live and to please God (as, in fact, you are doing), you should do so more and more. For you know what instructions we gave you through the Lord Jesus. For this is the will of God, your sanctification: that you abstain from fornication; that each one of you know how to control your own body in holiness and honor, not with lustful passion, like the Gentiles who do not know God; that no one wrong or exploit a brother or sister in this matter, because the Lord is an avenger in all these things, just as we have already told you beforehand and solemnly warned you. For God did not call us to impurity but in holiness. Therefore whoever rejects this rejects not human authority but God, who also gives his Holy Spirit to you.

Now concerning love of the brothers and sisters, you do not need to have anyone write to you, for you yourselves have been taught by God to love one another; and indeed you do love all the brothers throughout Macedonia. But we urge you, beloved, to do so more and more, to aspire to live quietly, to mind your own affairs, and to work with your hands, as we directed you, so that you may behave...
properly toward outsiders and be dependent on no one.

13 But we do not want you to be uninformed, brothers and sisters, about those who have died, so that you may not grieve as others do who have no hope. 14 For since we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so, through Jesus, God will bring with him those who have died. 15 For this we declare to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, who are left until the coming of the Lord, will by no means precede those who have died. 16 For the Lord himself, with a cry of command, with the archangel’s call and with the sound of God’s trumpet, will descend from heaven, and the dead in Christ will rise first. 17 Then we who are alive, who are left, will be caught up in the clouds together with them to meet the Lord in the air; and so we will be with the Lord forever.

Therefore encourage one another with these words.

Now concerning the times and the seasons, brothers and sisters, you do not need to have anything written to you. 2 For you yourselves know very well that the day of the Lord will come like a thief in the night. 3 When they say, “There is peace and security,” then sudden destruction will come upon them, as labor pains come upon a pregnant woman, and there will be no escape! 4 But you, beloved, are not in darkness, for that day to surprise you like a thief; 5 for you are all children of light and children of the day; we are not of the night or of darkness. 6 So then let us not fall asleep as others do, but let us keep awake and be sober; 7 for those who sleep sleep at night, and those who are drunk get drunk at night. 8 But since we belong to the day, let us be sober, and put on the breastplate of faith and love, and for a helmet the hope of salvation. 9 For God has destined us not for wrath but for obtaining salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, 10 who died for us, so that whether we are awake or asleep we may live with him. 11 Therefore encourage one another and build up each other, as indeed you are doing.

But we appeal to you, brothers and sisters, to respect those who labor among you, and have charge of you in the Lord and admonish you; 13 esteem them very highly in love because of their work. Be at peace among yourselves. 14 And we urge you, beloved, to admonish the idlers, encourage the fainthearted, help the weak, be patient with all of them. 15 See that none of you repays evil for evil, but always seek to do good to one another and to all. 16 Rejoice always, 17 pray without ceasing, give thanks in all circumstances; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you. 19 Do not quench the Spirit.

4.13–5.11: Teaching about the fate of those who have died and about the coming day of the Lord. Paul seeks to comfort and encourage his readers. The dead are not lost but will rise first (cf. 1 Cor 15.12–22). The imagery here (clouds, angels, trumpets, the thief in the night) is similar to that found in Mt 23.30–43, and may reflect knowledge of this traditional material; see also Isa 27.13; Zeph 1.16. 4.15 By the word of the Lord may indicate that this teaching stems from Jesus. 17: We who are alive, Paul expects the end to come while he and some of his Thessalonian addressees are still living. Caught up . . . in the air: the basis for belief among some Christians in the Rapture, the physical ascension of those still living at the parousia; Paul’s main point is reassurance that both living and dead will be with the Lord forever. 5.3: Peace and security may specifically target the achievements of the Roman empire (the “pax Romana”), with a warning of sudden destruction. 5: The contrasts of light and darkness are found also in the Dead Sea scrolls (1Q5 1.9–10; 3.20–21). 6–8: For the imagery of staying armed and awake, see Rom 13.11–13; Eph 6.13–17.

5.12–24: Practical instruction about life in the church. 12–13: There are clearly some who exercise leadership in the church. 14: Idlers, refusal to work may be a problem in the community (cf. 4.11; 2 Thess 3.6–12), though the word here (Gk “ataktos”) means disorderly or undisciplined. 15: This verse is similar to Rom 12.17 and 1 Pet 3.9, as prophets, but test everything; hold fast to what is good; abstain from every form of evil.

23 May the God of peace himself sanctify you entirely; and may your spirit and soul and body be kept sound and blameless at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. 24 The one who calls you is faithful, and he will do this.

25 Beloved, pray for us.

26 Greet all the brothers and sisters with a holy kiss. 27 I solemnly command you by the Lord that this letter be read to all of them.

28 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

---

a Gk despise prophecies
b Or complete
c Gk Brothers
d Gk brothers
e Gk to all the brothers
f Other ancient authorities add Amen

5.25–28: Closing greeting. 26: The holy kiss became an established greeting in the Pauline churches (see Rom 16.16; 1 Cor 16.20; 2 Cor 13.12; also 1 Pet 5.14). To all of them, that is, to the whole community, which may have included several house churches. 28: This closing became a standard ending in Paul’s letters (e.g., Rom 16.20; 1 Cor 16.23); a fuller and now liturgical form occurs in 2 Cor 13.13.
THE SECOND LETTER OF PAUL TO THE THESSALONIANS

NAME AND CANONICAL STATUS
As with 1 Thessalonians, the name was given to the letter when Pauline letters were copied and collected together. The title in the earliest Greek manuscripts is the simple form: “To the Thessalonians 2.”

From the second century on this letter has been uncontroversially accepted as part of the collection of letters of Paul within what became the New Testament canon.

AUTHORSHIP, DATE, AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT
Second Thessalonians has a close relationship to 1 Thessalonians; in terms of both structure and content it has much in common with the first letter. One such similarity is the identification of the authors as Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy (1.1). Again, a single authorial voice, that of Paul, is dominant (2.5; 3.17). However, since the nineteenth century the authenticity of this letter has been seriously challenged, and modern commentators are divided over whether this letter is genuinely from Paul himself or was composed by a later follower to correct misunderstandings of Paul’s teaching. The main reasons some scholars doubt the letter’s authenticity are: its close relationship to 1 Thessalonians (which it may be imitating); its more formal, impersonal style; the hints that inauthentic letters of Paul are in circulation, coupled with the attempt to stress this letter’s genuineness (2.2; 3.17); and its distinctive eschatological outlook.

Dating the letter depends on decisions about its authorship. If it is by Paul, it was probably written shortly after 1 Thessalonians and addressed to the same group of churches in Thessalonica. If it is a letter written in Paul’s name by someone else, then it probably dates from the late first (or perhaps early second) century CE and may not even have been intended specifically for Thessalonica. Rather, it was intended to clarify and correct a reading of 1 Thessalonians by Christians whom the author regarded as in error.

LITERARY HISTORY, STRUCTURE, AND CONTENTS
As with 1 Thessalonians, so this letter has sometimes been seen as a compilation of more than one original letter. However, it was most likely composed as a single letter in the form we have it now.

The structure and content of 2 Thessalonians may be outlined as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Section</th>
<th>Content</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1.1–2</td>
<td>Opening greeting</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1.3–12</td>
<td>Opening thanksgiving and prayer</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.1–12</td>
<td>Warning and instruction about the coming of Christ</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.13–17</td>
<td>Further thanksgiving and prayer</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.1–5</td>
<td>A request for prayer</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.6–16</td>
<td>Warning and instruction about believers who are unruly and idle</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.17–18</td>
<td>Closing greeting</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

INTERPRETATION
Second Thessalonians has generally been interpreted as a follow-up letter to 1 Thessalonians. It repeats some of the material from 1 Thessalonians, though it casts it in a somewhat more formal way (compare, e.g., 1.3 and 1 Thess 1.2). Like 1 Thessalonians, 2 Thessalonians encourages Christians facing suffering and hardship (1.4–6; 2.13–15; 3.3–5,13). More evident in 2 Thessalonians, though, is a concern to address problems in the churches. There are two in particular, which may be linked, since one is primarily a doctrinal issue, the other a behavioral one. The doctrinal issue concerns those who say “that the day of the Lord is already here” (2.2); the behavioral issue concerns those who refuse to work and are (in the author’s view, at least) causing trouble (3.6–12). It is possible that a belief that the final day had already come (cf. 2 Tim 2.18) led people to abandon their normal daily commitments. The author addresses the problem of this false eschatological belief by describing a series
Paul, Silvanus, and Timothy,
To the church of the Thessalonians in God
our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ:
² Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.
³ We must always give thanks to God for you, brothers and sisters, as is right, because your faith is growing abundantly, and the love of every one of you for one another is increasing. ⁴ Therefore we ourselves boast of you among the churches of God for your steadfastness and faith during all your persecutions and the afflictions that you are enduring.
⁵ This is evidence of the righteous judgment of God, and is intended to make you worthy of the kingdom of God, for which you are also suffering.
⁶ For it is indeed just of God to repay with affliction those who afflict you, ⁷ and to give relief to the afflicted as well as to us, when the Lord Jesus is revealed from heaven with his mighty angels ⁸ in flaming fire, inflicting vengeance on those who do not know God and on those who do not obey the gospel of our Lord Jesus. ⁹ These will suffer the punishment of eternal destruction, separated from the presence of the Lord and from the glory of his might, ¹⁰ when he comes to be glorified by his saints and to be marveled at on that day among all who have believed, because our testimony to you was believed. ¹¹ To this end we always pray for you, asking that our God will make you worthy of his call and will fulfill by his power every good resolve and work of faith, ¹² so that the name of our Lord Jesus may be glorified in you, and you in him, according to the grace of our God and the Lord Jesus Christ.

2 As to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ and our being gathered together to him, we beg you, brothers and sisters, not to be a Other ancient authorities read the

b Gk brothers

1.1–2: Greeting. The opening of the letter is identical to that of 1 Thessalonians, apart from the longer phrase at the end of the greeting; see 1 Thess 1.1n.
1.3–12: Opening thanksgiving and prayer. One long sentence in Greek, these verses begin with a thanksgiving for the believers’ faith and then speak of their vindication and the punishment awaiting unbelievers before ending with a prayer. 3–4: The thanksgiving echoes the content of 1 Thess 1.2–10, mentioning persecutions and afflictions and the faith, love, and steadfastness (cf. “steadfastness of hope” in 1 Thess 1.3), which the readers have shown. 5–10: The focus here is on the affliction God will cause to those who currently afflict you, that is, the Christian readers of the letter. Imagery drawn from biblical descriptions of the coming day of judgment, referring to God, is here used to depict the Lord Jesus at his coming (cf. Zech 14.5; Isa 66.15–16). Compare the depictions of judgment and punishment in Jude 5–16 and 2 Pet 2.4–22, though there the focus is on false teachers; here the focus is those who do not believe. 10: Saints, Christian believers.
2.1–12: Warning and instruction about the coming of Christ. The writer is concerned to refute the idea that the day of the Lord (cf. Isa 13.6; Joel 2.1; Am 5.18) has already come, and to set out a sequence of events that... quickly shaken in mind or alarmed, either by spirit or by word or by letter, as though from us, to the effect that the day of the Lord is already here. 3 Let no one deceive you in any way; for that day will not come unless the rebellion comes first and the lawless one\(^d\) is revealed, the one destined for destruction. 4 He opposes and exalts himself above every so-called god or object of worship, so that he takes his seat in the temple of God, declaring himself to be God. 5 Do you not remember that I told you these things when I was still with you? 6 And you know what is now restraining him, so that he may be revealed when his time comes. 7 For the mystery of lawlessness is already at work, but only until the one who now restrains it is removed. 8 And then the lawless one will be revealed, whom the Lord Jesus\(^c\) will destroy\(^d\) with the breath of his mouth, annihilating him by the manifestation of his coming. 9 The coming of the lawless one is apparent in the working of Satan, who uses all power, signs, lying wonders, 10 and every kind of wicked deception for those who are perishing, because they refused to love the truth and so be saved. 11 For this reason God sends them a powerful delusion, leading them to believe what is false, 12 so that all who have not believed the truth but took pleasure in unrighteousness will be condemned.

13 But we must always give thanks to God for you, brothers and sisters\(^b\) beloved by the Lord, because God chose you as the first fruits\(^f\) for salvation through sanctification by the Spirit and through belief in the truth. 14 For this purpose he called you through our proclamation of the good news,\(^g\) so that you may obtain the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. 15 So then, brothers and sisters,\(^e\) stand firm and hold fast to the traditions that you were taught by us, either by word of mouth or by our letter.

16 Now may our Lord Jesus Christ himself and God our Father, who loved us and through grace gave us eternal comfort and good hope, 17 comfort your hearts and strengthen them in every good work and word.

3 Finally, brothers and sisters,\(^e\) pray for us, so that the word of the Lord may spread rapidly and be glorified everywhere, just as it is among you, 2 and that we may be rescued from wicked and evil people; for not all have faith. 3 But the Lord is faithful; he will strengthen you and guard you from the evil one.\(^h\) 4 And we have confidence in the Lord concerning you, that you are doing and will go on doing the things that we command. 5 May the Lord direct your hearts

---

\(a\) Gk the man of lawlessness; other ancient authorities read the man of sin \\
\(b\) Gk the son of destruction \\
\(c\) Other ancient authorities lack Jesus \\
\(d\) Other ancient authorities read consume \\
\(e\) Gk brothers \\
\(f\) Other ancient authorities read from the beginning \\
\(g\) Or through our gospel \\
\(h\) Or from evil
2 thessalonians 3

a Gk brothers
b Gk from every brother who is c Other ancient authorities read you
d Gk Brothers
e Gk a brother
f Other ancient authorities add Amen

to the love of God and to the steadfastness of Christ.

6 Now we command you, beloved,⁸ in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, to keep away from believers who are⁹ living in idleness and not according to the tradition that they received from us. ⁷ For you yourselves know how you ought to imitate us; we were not idle when we were with you, ⁸ and we did not eat anyone's bread without paying for it; but with toil and labor we worked night and day, so that we might not burden any of you. ⁹ This was not because we do not have that right, but in order to give you an example to imitate. ¹⁰ For even when we were with you, we gave you this command: Anyone unwilling to work should not eat. ¹¹ For we hear that some of you are living in idleness, mere busybodies, not doing any work. ¹² Now such persons we command and exhort in the Lord Jesus Christ to do their work quietly and to earn their own living. ¹³ Brothers and sisters,⁴ do not be weary in doing what is right.

¹⁴ Take note of those who do not obey what we say in this letter; have nothing to do with them, so that they may be ashamed. ¹⁵ Do not regard them as enemies, but warn them as believers.⁶ ¹⁶ Now may the Lord of peace himself give you peace at all times in all ways. The Lord be with all of you.

¹⁷ I, Paul, write this greeting with my own hand. This is the mark in every letter of mine; it is the way I write. ¹⁸ The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with all of you.

see Mt 6.13. 5: Of God . . . of Christ, in both cases the construction is ambiguous: it could mean the believers’ love for God and steadfastness in following Christ, or God’s love and Christ’s own steadfastness. Perhaps both meanings are intended here.

3.6–16: Warning and instruction about believers who are unruly and idle. Here the writer confronts the issue of those who refuse to work and urges the readers to shun those who refuse to follow his teaching. 6: In idleness (here and in v. 11) translates the Greek adverb "ataktos," which essentially means being disorderly (see 1 Thess 5.14n.). Clearly here the main way this is evident is in some people's refusal to work (see vv. 7–12). This conduct may perhaps have been motivated by the belief that the day of the Lord had already come (see 2.1–12n.). The tradition, cf. 2.15, though here the word is singular, and refers specifically to the pattern of conduct of Paul and his associates. 7–10: This pattern (cf. 1 Thess 2.9) is now held up as a model to imitate. On the apostles’ right to support, see 1 Cor 9.4–15, and on the problem of some taking advantage of such support, see Did. 11–12. 12: Cf. 1 Thess 4.11. 14–15: A strong warning to heed this teaching; nonetheless, the purpose of shunning the disobedient is that they may be won back, not excluded forever (cf. Jude 22–23).

3.17–18: Closing greeting. 17: The opening phrase is identical to that in 1 Cor 16.21 and Col 4.18; see also Gal 6.11. Here, however, the second sentence reflects a perceived need to stress the authenticity of the letter (cf. note on 2.2). 18: See 1 Thess 5.28n.
INTRODUCTION TO THE PASTORAL EPISTLES

The term “Pastoral Epistles” has been applied, since the eighteenth century, to the three letters from Paul to his two co-workers and envoys, Timothy and Titus. The name reflects the central concern in these three epistles for the internal life, governance, and behavior of Christian communities and their members. Scholars have long debated whether these letters were written by the apostle Paul himself, or by a later disciple who sought to provide guidance for Pauline churches in new times and places. While most scholars today regard them as pseudepigraphical (that is, ascribed to the authority of a major figure but not actually written by him, a custom well attested in ancient literature), there is not complete unanimity on the question.

The conclusion that these three epistles were not written by Paul is based upon literary, historical, and theological criteria. First and Second Timothy and Titus share a common Greek vocabulary and style that diverges in many ways from the other Pauline epistles. Historically, the Pastoral Epistles presume an institutionalized leadership in local communities and internal dissent over faith and practice, which better fits a period late in the first or early in the second century CE when Paul was no longer alive. It is possible to see how some passages may have been written to explain or definitively interpret passages in the authentic letters already in circulation (such as 1 Tim 2.9–19; cf. 1 Cor 14.33–36). Theologically these letters minimize or lack characteristic Pauline themes (such as justification by faith, and the church as the body of Christ) in favor of a new emphasis on adherence to tradition and regulation as signs of the Christian piety they seek to inculcate in their readers. Although Timothy and Titus had been Paul’s trusted co-workers for decades, the first letter to Timothy and the letter to Titus present the recipients as needing basic instructions for community leadership. Second Timothy is less concerned with regulating the life of the Christian communities than Titus and 1 Timothy. It has been described as a “testament,” the last words of the apostle to a close associate. It looks forward to the difficulties facing Timothy and others after Paul’s death with foreboding, and bears some similarity to the genuine Philippians in this regard.

Recent challenges to the pseudepigraphical nature of all three letters have come from scholars who argue that each should be judged separately, that the letters contain fragments of original Pauline material, or that the very concept of “authorship” of a Pauline letter requires nuance, given that Paul used secretaries and served as a member of a cooperative missionary team. Neither is there scholarly unanimity about which other letters are certainly authentic nor which parts of those are most tellingly “Pauline” for comparison with these epistles. Each reader should consider the evidence about the authorship of the Pastoral Epistles cumulatively, first as a question of historical fact—did Paul write them or not? Then, and separately, one should reflect on the interpretative and theological implications of such a decision, for the denial of Pauline authorship may or may not entail a loss of authoritative status for that document within a particular religious community.

Regardless of authorship, the Pastoral Epistles share a common rhetorical strategy: Each is addressed to a single individual among Paul’s co-workers but also has in mind a wider circle of readers. In each the author presents himself as a Paul who speaks in the epistolary medium as an unambiguously authoritative figure of the past to church leaders and members of later generations who did not know him personally.

Margaret M. Mitchell
THE FIRST LETTER OF PAUL TO TIMOTHY

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, AND BACKGROUND

This letter is named for its recipient, Paul’s “loyal child” Timothy (1.2); for further information on Timothy, see the Introduction to 2 Timothy, p. 2091. The letter presents Paul as a wise and sure teacher who hands on to his student his deposit of tradition, his “sound teaching” (1.10; 4.6), so that this fixed legacy will be passed down with fidelity to the next generation. (On the authorship and date of this letter, see p. 2084.) The text presents a vision of household ethics that brings together instructions on Christian “godliness” (or “piety”; 2.2) for the individual with a church order of regulations and qualifications for various roles (bishops, deacons, widows, elders) in the church, designated “the household of God” (3.15). This advice is set in a dual context formed, positively, by the warmly remembered relationship between Paul and Timothy, and, negatively, by the frequent allusions to purveyors of alternate teachings in or near Timothy’s church in Ephesus.

STRUCTURE

After an epistolary prescript (1.1–2) the author launches (without the customary thanksgiving) into the body of the letter, which is roughly arranged with alternating sections of contrast between true and false teaching (1.3–2.15; 4.1–5.2; 6.2b–21a) and instructions for church order and governance, understood as the means for living in the church of God (3.1–16; 5.3–6.2a). The letter concludes with summary exhortations to Timothy to guard this tradition with which he has been entrusted (6.11–21). As with all Pauline letters a final benediction (6.21) seals the letter, perhaps in anticipation of liturgical use.

INTERPRETATION AND GUIDE TO READING

Although the author names two of his Christian opponents (1.20), exactly what they taught, and why, is only hazily sketched here in vituperative terms: They have “deviated” from the truth (1.6); they have “suffered shipwreck in the faith” (1.19). No definitive reconstruction is possible from these verbal assaults, but it seems that these opponents have some connection with Judaism and Torah observance, “myths and endless genealogies” (1.4), and ascetic practices, such as rejecting marriage and abstaining from certain foods (4.3). Recent research has suggested a link between the Christians whom this author opposes and those who held to traditions found in the later apocryphal Acts of Paul and Thecla, which validates women’s ministries and claimed Paul as the champion of an ascetic and celibate lifestyle. In this view, 1 Timothy is a kind of “corrective composition” whose author is seeking to “fix” Paul’s authentic legacy for an early second-century audience.

In the authorial rhetoric of this text, at times Timothy is directly addressed, but more often he recedes into the background, and the author speaks to a more universal audience. As ethical instruction (parenesis), 1 Timothy is cast in characteristic forms of Greco-Roman moral exhortation, such as Seneca’s Moral Epistles and the pseudepigraphical Socratic and Neopythagorean letters. These include letters between friends or teachers and students about progress in the ethical life, lists of virtues and vices, and contrasts between illustrious examples and notorious counterexamples. Likewise, the content is in many ways similar to moralizing literature of the time, with emphasis on decorum and decency, on the hierarchical, orderly disposition of the patriarchal household, on reliable speech, and against accumulation of wealth. But the letter’s theological universe, which is punctuated by shorthand terminology and quotations from established traditions, is distinctly Christian.

Margaret M. Mitchell
Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the command of God our Savior and of Christ Jesus our hope, to Timothy, my loyal child in the faith: Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

I urge you, as I did when I was on my way to Macedonia, to remain in Ephesus so that you may instruct certain people not to teach any different doctrine, and not to occupy themselves with myths and endless genealogies that promote speculations rather than the divine training that is known by faith. But the aim of such instruction is love that comes from a pure heart, a good conscience, and sincere faith. Some people have deviated from these and turned to meaningless talk, desiring to be teachers of the law, without understanding either what they are saying or the things about which they make assertions.

Now we know that the law is good, if one uses it legitimately. This means understanding that the law is laid down not for the innocent but for the lawless and disobedient, for the godless and sinful, for the unholy and profane, for those who kill their father or mother, for murderers, for the fornicators, sodomites, slave traders, liars, perjurers, and whatever else is contrary to sound teaching that conforms to the glorious gospel of the blessed God, which he entrusted to me.

I am grateful to Christ Jesus our Lord, who has strengthened me, because he judged me faithful and appointed me to his service, even though I was formerly a blasphemer, a persecutor, and a man of violence. But I received mercy because I had acted ignorantly in unbelief, and the grace of our Lord overflowed for me with the faith and love that are in Christ Jesus.

The saying is sure and worthy of full acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners—of whom I am the foremost.

But for that very reason I received mercy, so that in me, as the foremost, Jesus Christ might display the utmost patience, making me an example to those who would come to believe in him for eternal life. To the King of the ages, immortal, invisible, the only God, be honor and glory forever and ever. Amen.

I am giving you these instructions, Timothy, my child, in accordance with the prophecies made earlier about you, so that by following them you may fight the good fight, having faith and a good conscience. By rejecting conscience, certain persons have suffered shipwreck in the faith; among them are Hymenaeus and Alexander, whom

1.1–2: Epistolary prescript: sender, addressees, and salutation, following the typical form of a Pauline letter (see Phil 1.1–3), with the addition of mercy in the greeting (cf. 2 Tim 1.2).

1.3–2.15: The contrast of true and false teaching (part one).

1.3–11: Opening warning against false teachers, in place of a thanksgiving formula (cf. Philem 4–9), signaling the urgency of the problem, as the author sees it. 3: Instruct, the author’s main purpose (1.5,18; 4.11; 5.7; 6.13,17). 4: Myths and endless genealogies, uncertain, but probably speculations on biblical texts (cf. 4.7; Titus 1.14; 3.9). Divine training, or “plan,” or “stewardship.” 5: Love ... conscience ... faith, for Paul’s usual triad of faith, love, and hope (1 Thess 1.3; 5.8; 1 Cor 13.13). 6: Deviated, see 6.21n. 7: The law, presumably the Torah. 9–10: Implicitly, a stereotypical depiction of the false teachers as ethically depraved; cf. other catalogues of vice in Rom 1.29–31; 1 Cor 5.11; 6.9–10; Gal 5.19–21.

1.12–20: Contrasting portraits of faithfulness and faithlessness. 12–17: A portrait of Paul, the blasphemer transformed into the faithful proclaimer (cf. the different portrayals in Paul’s letters [1 Cor 15.8–10; Gal 1.13–24; Phil 3.5–11], and in Acts 9). 15: The saying is sure, a favored formula in the Pastoral letters (see 3.1; 4.9; 2 Tim 2.11; Titus 3.8). 17: Theology cast as doxology (cf. 6.15–16). 18: Prophecies, see 4.14. 19: Conscience, the seat of self-awareness of guilt or innocence (a key theme; see 1.5; 3.9; 4.2; 2 Tim 1.3; Titus 1.15). 20: Hymenaeus (unknown apart from here and 2 Tim 2.17) and Alexander (likely to be identified with “Alexander the coppersmith” in 2 Tim 4.14; perhaps Acts 19.33), characterized as blasphemers (cf. 1.13). Turned over to Satan, for correction or possibly for punishment (cf. 1 Cor 5.5). Satan or the devil is mentioned frequently in the Pastoral letters; see 3.6,7; 5.15; 2 Tim 2.26.

2.1–8: Instruction on prayer. 1–3: Accommodation with worldly authorities urged for the sake of peace for the church (see Rom 13.1–7). The irenic tone circumvents the difficult question of the limits of Christian acqui-
1 Timothy 3

2 First of all, then, I urge that supplications, prayers, intercessions, and thanksgivings be made for everyone, for kings and all who are in high positions, so that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and dignity. This is right and is acceptable in the sight of God our Savior, who desires everyone to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth. For there is one God; there is also one mediator between God and humankind, Christ Jesus, himself human, who gave himself a ransom for all—this was attested at the right time. For this I was appointed a herald and an apostle (I am telling the truth, I am not lying), a teacher of the Gentiles in faith and truth. I desire, then, that in every place the men should pray, lifting up holy hands without anger or argument; also that the women should dress themselves modestly, with full submission, not greedy for money, but with good works, as is proper for women who profess reverence for God. Let a woman learn in silence with full submission. I permit no woman to teach or to have authority over a man; she is to keep silent.

3 The saying is sure: whoever aspires to the office of bishop desires a noble task. Now a bishop must be above reproach, married only once, temperate, sensible, respectable, hospitable, an apt teacher, not a drunkard, not violent but gentle, not quarrelsome, and not a lover of money. He must manage his own household well, keeping his children submissive and respectful in every way—for if someone does not know how to manage his own household, how can he take care of God’s church? He must not be a recent convert, or he may be puffed up with conceit and fall into the condemnation of the devil. Moreover, he must be well thought of by outsiders, so that he may not fall into disgrace and the snare of the devil.

Deacons likewise must be serious, not double-tongued, not indulging in much wine, not greedy for money; they must hold fast to the mystery of the faith with a clear conscience to an emperor who was honored as a god by daily worship and oaths of allegiance. Godliness, or "piety" ("eusebeia"), a predominant concern of the Pastoral epistles (3.16, translated "religion"; 4.7,8; 6.3,5,6; 2 Tim 3:5; Titus 1:1). The rationale given for such prayer is both strategic (2.2b) and theological (2.3–7): 4: Strong emphasis on God as universal savior (cf. 4.10). Knowledge of the truth, as found in the gospel proclamation (see 2 Tim 2.25; 3.7; Titus 1.1). 5: One God . . . one mediator, a reformulation of the Shema (see Deut 6.4–9n.; cf. 1 Cor 8.6; Eph 4.5–6). 7: The title herald, although sometimes implied (e.g., 2 Cor 4.5; 5.20), is not found in the undisputed letters of Paul (unlike apostle); cf. 2 Tim 1.11.

2.9–15: The proper demeanor of faithful women. The author objects to the current practice of women holding leadership and teaching positions because it threatens conventional domestic order (also 5.3–16). 9: Dress themselves modestly, a standard concern of Stoic and other Hellenistic moralists. And decently, Gk "sophrosune" ("moderation"), one of the four cardinal virtues of Greek philosophical thought. 11–12: Very similar to the contested passage 1 Cor 14.34–35 (see note there). 13–14: A "strong" reading of Gen 2–3 assigning all the blame to the woman (contrast Rom 5.12–21). 15: She will be saved through childbearing, a soteriology (theology of salvation) at odds with Paul’s justification by faith (Gal 2.16; Rom 1.16–17). Modesty, Gk "sophrosune"; see 2.9n.

3.1–16: Living in the church of God (part one). Qualifications for prospective bishops (3.1–7) and deacons (3.8–13), already established ecclesial offices (contrast 1 Cor 12.28; Phil 1.1n.). 1.2: Bishop, Gk "episkopos"); "overseer," one who looks after church affairs (see note e). 5: God’s church (cf. v. 15, “the household of God”), the church is en-science. And let them first be tested; then, if they prove themselves blameless, let them serve as deacons. Women likewise must be serious, not slanderers, but temperate, faithful in all things. Let deacons be married only once, and let them manage their children and their households well; for those who serve well as deacons gain a good standing for themselves and great boldness in the faith that is in Christ Jesus.

I hope to come to you soon, but I am writing these instructions to you so that, if I am delayed, you may know how one ought to behave in the household of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and bulwark of the truth. Without any doubt, the mystery of our religion is great: He was revealed in flesh, vindicated in spirit, seen by angels, proclaimed among Gentiles, believed in throughout the world, taken up in glory.

Now the Spirit expressly says that in later times some will renounce the faith by paying attention to deceitful spirits and teachings of demons, through the hypocrisy of liars whose consciences are seared with a hot iron. They forbid marriage and demand abstinence from foods, which God created to be received with thanksgiving; for it is sanctified by God’s word and by prayer. If you put these instructions before the brothers and sisters, you will be a good servant of Christ Jesus, nourished on the words of the faith and of the sound teaching that you have followed. Have nothing to do with profane myths and old wives’ tales. Train yourself in godliness, for, while physical training is of some value, godliness is valuable in every way, holding promise for both the present life and the life to come. The saying is sure and worthy of full acceptance. For to this end we toil and struggle, because we have our hope set on the living God, who is the Savior of all people, especially of those who believe.

These are the things you must insist on and teach. Let no one despise your youth, but set the believers an example in speech and conduct, in love, in faith, in purity. Until I arrive, give attention to the public reading of scripture, to exhorting, to teaching. Do not neglect the gift that is in you, which was given to you through prophecy with the laying on of hands by the council of elders. Put these things into practice, devote yourself to them, so that all may see your progress. Pay close attention to yourself and to your teaching; continue in these things, for in doing this you will save both yourself and your hearers.

visioned as an orderly patriarchal Greco-Roman household. Women deacons (but see note a for the ambiguity), such as Phoebe (Rom 16:1). Women deacons are intended, the short treatment may be due to the author’s anxiety about female leadership (see 2.9–15; 5.3–16). If I am delayed, you may know how one ought to behave in the household of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and bulwark of the truth. Without any doubt, the mystery of our religion is great: He was revealed in flesh, vindicated in spirit, seen by angels, proclaimed among Gentiles, believed in throughout the world, taken up in glory.

4 Now the Spirit expressly says that in later times some will renounce the faith by paying attention to deceitful spirits and teachings of demons, through the hypocrisy of liars whose consciences are seared with a hot iron. They forbid marriage and demand abstinence from foods, which God created to be received with thanksgiving by those who believe and know the truth. For everything created by God is good, and nothing is to be rejected, provided it is received with thanksgiving; for it is sanctified by God’s word and by prayer. If you put these instructions before the brothers and sisters, you will be a good servant of Christ Jesus, nourished on the words of the faith and of the sound teaching that you have followed. Have nothing to do with profane myths and old wives’ tales. Train yourself in godliness, for, while physical training is of some value, godliness is valuable in every way, holding promise for both the present life and the life to come. The saying is sure and worthy of full acceptance. For to this end we toil and struggle, because we have our hope set on the living God, who is the Savior of all people, especially of those who believe.

These are the things you must insist on and teach. Let no one despise your youth, but set the believers an example in speech and conduct, in love, in faith, in purity. Until I arrive, give attention to the public reading of scripture, to exhorting, to teaching. Do not neglect the gift that is in you, which was given to you through prophecy with the laying on of hands by the council of elders. Put these things into practice, devote yourself to them, so that all may see your progress. Pay close attention to yourself and to your teaching; continue in these things, for in doing this you will save both yourself and your hearers.

a Or Their wives, or Women deacons
b Gk husbands of one wife c Gk Who; other ancient authorities read God; others, Which d Or justified
e Or by the Spirit
f Or the last
g Gk brothers
h Or deacon
i Other ancient authorities read suffer reproach
j Gk to the reading
k Gk by the presbytery
Do not speak harshly to an older man, but speak to him as to a father, to younger men as brothers, to older women as mothers, to younger women as sisters—with absolute purity.

Honor widows who are really widows.

If a widow has children or grandchildren, they should first learn their religious duty to their own family and make some repayment to their parents; for this is pleasing in God’s sight. The real widow, left alone, has set her hope on God and continues in supplications and prayers night and day; but the widow who lives for pleasure is dead even while she lives.

Give these commands as well, so that they may be above reproach. And whoever does not provide for relatives, and especially for family members, has denied the faith and is worse than an unbeliever.

Let a widow be put on the list if she is not less than sixty years old and has been married only once; she must be well attested for her good works, as one who has brought up children, shewn hospitality, washed the saints’ feet, helped the afflicted, and devoted herself to doing good in every way. But refuse to put younger widows on the list; for when their sensual desires alienate them from Christ, they want to marry, and so they incur condemnation for having violated their first pledge.

Besides that, they learn to be idle, gadding about from house to house; and they are not merely idle, but also gossips and busybodies, saying what they should not say. So I would have younger widows marry, bear children, and manage their households, so as to give the adversary no occasion to revile us.

If any have already turned away to follow Satan. If any believing woman has relatives who are really widows, let her assist them; let the church not be burdened, so that it can assist those who are real widows.

Let the elders who rule well be considered worthy of double honor, especially those who labor in preaching and teaching; for the scripture says, “You shall not muzzle an ox while it is treading out the grain,” and, “The laborer deserves to be paid.” Never accept any accusation against an elder except on the evidence of two or three witnesses.

As for those who persist in sin, rebuke them in the presence of all, so that the rest also may stand in fear. In the presence of God and of Christ Jesus and of the elect angels, I warn you to keep these instructions without prejudice, doing nothing on the basis of partiality. Do not ordain anyone hastily, and do not participate in the sins of others; keep yourself pure.

No longer drink only water, but take a little wine for the sake of your stomach and your frequent ailments.

The sins of some people are conspicuous and precede them to judgment, while the sins of others follow them there. So also good works are conspicuous; and even when they are not, they cannot remain hidden.

Let all who are under the yoke of slavery regard their masters as worthy of all honor, so that the name of God and the teaching may not be blasphemed. Those who have believing masters must not be disrespectful to them on the ground that they are members of the church, rather they must serve them.
all the more, since those who benefit by their service are believers and beloved.a

Teach and urge these duties. 3 Whoever teaches otherwise and does not agree with the sound words of our Lord Jesus Christ and the teaching that is in accordance with godliness, 4 is conceited, understanding nothing, and has a morbid craving for controversy and for disputes about words. From these come envy, dissension, slander, base suspicions, 5 and wrangling among those who are deprived in mind and bereft of the truth, imagining that godliness is a means of gain. 6 Of course, there is great gain in godliness combined with contentment; 7 for we brought nothing into the world, so that 8 we can take nothing out of it; but if we have food and clothing, we will be content with these. 9 But those who want to be rich fall into temptation and are trapped by many senseless and harmful desires that plunge people into ruin and destruction. 10 For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil, and in their eagerness to be rich some have wandered away from the faith and pierced themselves with many pains. 11 But as for you, man of God, shun all this; pursue righteousness, godliness, faith, love, endurance, gentleness. 12 Fight the good fight of the faith; take hold of the eternal life, to which you were called and for which you made 4 the good confession in the presence of many witnesses. 13 In the presence of God, who gives life to all things, and of Christ Jesus, who in his testimony before Pontius Pilate made the good confession, I charge you 14 to keep the commandment without spot or blame until the manifestation of our Lord Jesus Christ, 15 which he will bring about at the right time—he who is the blessed and only Sovereign, the King of kings and Lord of lords. 16 It is he alone who has immortality and dwells in unapproachable light, whom no one has ever seen or can see; to him be honor and eternal dominion. Amen. 17 As for those who in the present age are rich, command them not to be haughty, or to set their hopes on the uncertainty of riches, but rather on God who richly provides us with everything for our enjoyment. 18 They are to do good, to be rich in good works, generous, and ready to share, 19 thus storing up for themselves the treasure of a good foundation for the future, so that they may take hold of the life that really is life. 20 Timothy, guard what has been entrusted to you. Avoid the profane chatter and contradictions of what is falsely called knowledge; 21 by professing it some have missed the mark as regards the faith.
Grace be with you.e

---

6.2b–21: The contrast of true and false teaching (part three). 3–5: A portrait of the unsound teacher, with many resonances to 1.3–11. 6–10: The catchword gain leads to a favorite philosophical and biblical (Job 1.21; Eccl 5.15) commonplace about the false security of riches (taken up again in 6.17–19). 6: Contentment (also v. 8), “autarkia,” a Stoic term meaning “self-sufficiency.” 11–12: Fight the good fight, compare 1.18 and 2 Tim 4.7. 13: Pontius Pilate, the only New Testament reference to the Roman governor of Judea (see Mt 27.2; Lk 3.1) outside the Gospels and Acts. The good confession, see Jn 18.33–38, but cf. Mt 27.11–13. 14: Commandment, a reference to the testimony in this letter, or perhaps the same as the “good confession” in v. 12, the vow Timothy made at his ordination. Manifestation (lit., “epiphany”), a reference to the Second Coming (a favored term in the Pastorals: 2 Tim 1.10; 4.1,8; Titus 2.13). 15–16: A hymn to the sovereignty of God as all-powerful, immortal, and invisible (Ex 33.20; Rom 1.23; Col 1.15; Jn 1.18), 19: The treasure, for the theme, see Mt 6.19–20; Lk 12.21; 2 Esd 7.77.

6.20–21: Timothy the guardian of the true teaching. 20: What has been entrusted to you (lit., “the deposit”), the teachings in this letter, seen as a vaccination against false teaching. What is falsely called knowledge, perhaps a reference to Gnostics, religious persons who claimed sole possession of divine insight based on a complex dualistic cosmology, mythology, and anthropology. 21: Missed the mark, a characterization of all opponents, which frames the letter (see also 1.6, “have deviated from,” more literally, “being off the mark,” and 2 Tim 2.18).

6.21b: Concluding benediction.
THE SECOND LETTER OF PAUL TO TIMOTHY

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, AND BACKGROUND

The second letter addressed to Paul’s “beloved child” Timothy, despite its similarities in address and diction, has a more personal tone than the first. (On the authorship and date of this letter, see p. 2084.) Less concerned with church order and roles, here Paul is portrayed as near death. In testamentary fashion the apostle hands on to his spiritual heir, Timothy, the wisdom accumulated through a life of mission, ministry, and, above all, suffering for the gospel. The letter is set within a carefully scripted historical scenario marked by Paul’s imminent death and Timothy’s bereavement, at a time of distortions to the apostle’s “sound teaching” (1.13; see 4.3).

Timothy is named as co-sender of six Pauline letters (2 Cor 1.1; Phil 1.1; Col 1.1; 1 Thess 1.1; 2 Thess 1.1; Philem 1). They present Timothy as one of his most loyal disciples (Phil 2.19–22), who acted as a trusted delegate to churches (1 Thess 3.2–6; 1 Cor 4.17, “beloved and faithful child”; 16.10). According to Acts 16, Timothy’s mother was Jewish and his father Greek. That later account imagines that Paul had him circumcised in the face of anticipated Jewish hostility (an event not corroborated in Paul’s epistles). This letter sketches Timothy’s life in broad strokes, from his early immersion in the scriptures (2 Tim 3.15) and matrilineal Christian pedigree (1.5), to his authorization for ministry by the laying on of Paul’s hands (1.6), and his present ecclesiastical challenges. Most prominent in the letter, however, is the detailed and moving portrait of Paul, imprisoned for the gospel in Rome (1.8,16–17; 2.9), and forsaken by even his close friends (1.15; 4.10,16), yet empowered by his Lord not only to endure suffering and death but to celebrate it as the fitting culmination to a life of ministry and service (4.6–8,17–18).

STRUCTURE AND INTERPRETATION

The theme of 2 Timothy is announced in 1.8: Timothy and all who follow him should not be ashamed of the gospel or its representative, Paul, but should stand in fidelity to them, even to the point of suffering. Second Timothy follows a regular epistolary structure with an opening prescript (1.1–2), thanksgiving (1.3–7), body (1.8–4.18), greetings and closing (4.19–22). Timothy is urged to contemplate the positive example of Paul (1.8–14) and the negative one afforded by those who deserted Paul in time of need (1.15–18). The essential principle of the argument is appeal to example (Paul as one who suffered for the gospel: 1.12; 2.9–10; 3.11; 4.6–7, 16–18), and call for imitation, by Timothy (2.3; 4.5), and by all readers through him (see especially 2.11–12). Further, the exhortation to Timothy to be strong and teach others correctly (2.1–13) is contrasted with false teachers who must be contended with (2.14–26), for, as expected at the end time, signs of their appearance are already here (3.1–9). But Timothy is to follow in Paul’s footsteps (3.10–4.5). These exhortations culminate in the depiction of the dying apostle’s reflections on his life and its imminent conclusion (4.6–8; cf. Phil 1.12–26). The letter ends on a hopeful note as the imprisoned Paul exults in divine deliverance (both past and future) and issues spirited directives for the ministry, including a future visit from Timothy (4.8–18).

Margaret M. Mitchell
1 Paul, an apostle of Christ Jesus by the will of God, for the sake of the promise of life that is in Christ Jesus,

2To Timothy, my beloved child:
Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Lord.

3I am grateful to God—whom I worship with a clear conscience, as my ancestors did—when I remember you constantly in my prayers night and day. 4 Recalling your tears, I long to see you so that I may be filled with joy. 5 I am reminded of your sincere faith, a faith that lived first in your grandmother Lois and your mother Eunice and now, I am sure, lives in you. 6 For this reason I remind you to rekindle the gift of God that is within you through the laying on of my hands; 7 for God did not give us a spirit of cowardice, but rather a spirit of power and of love and of self-discipline.

8Do not be ashamed, then, of the testimony about our Lord or of me his prisoner, but join with me in suffering for the gospel, relying on the power of God, 9 who saved us and called us with a holy calling, not according to our works but according to his own purpose and grace. This grace was given to us in Christ Jesus before the ages began, 10 but it has now been revealed through the appearing of our Savior Christ Jesus, who abolished death and brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. 11 For this gospel I was appointed a herald and an apostle and a teacher, 12 and for this reason I suffer as I do. But I am not ashamed, for I know the one in whom I have put my trust, and I am sure that he is able to guard until that day what I have entrusted to him. 13 Hold to the standard of sound teaching that you have heard from me, in the faith and love that are in Christ Jesus. 14 Guard the good treasure entrusted to you, with the help of the Holy Spirit living in us.

15 You are aware that all who are in Asia have turned away from me, including Phygelus and Hermogenes. 16 May the Lord grant mercy to the household of Onesiphorus, because he often refreshed me and was not ashamed of my chain; 17 when he arrived in Rome, he eagerly searched for me and found me 18 —may the Lord grant that he will find mercy from the Lord on that day! And you know very well how much service he rendered in Ephesus.

2 You then, my child, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus; 2 and what you have heard from me through many witnesses entrust to faithful people who will be able to teach others as well. 3 Share in suffering like a good soldier of Christ Jesus. 4 No one serving in the army gets entangled in everyday affairs; the soldier’s aim is to please the enlisting officer. 5 And in the case of an athlete, no one is crowned without competing according to the rules. 6 It is the farmer who does the a Other ancient authorities add of the Gentiles b Or what has been entrusted to me

c Or promptly work who ought to have the first share of the crops. 7 Think over what I say, for the Lord will give you understanding in all things.

8 Remember Jesus Christ, raised from the dead, a descendant of David—that is my gospel, 9 for which I suffer hardship, even to the point of being chained like a criminal. But the word of God is not chained. 10 Therefore I endure everything for the sake of the elect, so that they may also obtain the salvation that is in Christ Jesus, with eternal glory. 11 The saying is sure:

If we have died with him, we will also live with him;

12 if we endure, we will also reign with him; if we deny him, he will also deny us;

13 if we are faithless, he remains faithful—for he cannot deny himself.

14 Remind them of this, and warn them before God that they are to avoid wrangling over words, which does no good but only ruins those who are listening. 15 Do your best to present yourself to God as one approved by him, a worker who has no need to be ashamed, rightly explaining the word of truth. 16 Avoid profane chatter, for it will lead people into more and more impiety, 17 and their talk will spread like gangrene. Among them are Hymenaeus and Philetus, 18 who have swerved from the truth by claiming that the resurrection has already taken place. They are upsetting the faith of some. 19 But God’s firm foundation stands, bearing this inscription: “The Lord knows those who are his,” and, “Let everyone who calls on the name of the Lord turn away from wickedness.”

20 In a large house there are utensils not only of gold and silver but also of wood and clay, some for special use, some for ordinary. 21 All who cleanse themselves of the things I have mentioned will become special utensils, dedicated and useful to the owner of the house, ready for every good work. 22 Shun youthful passions and pursue righteousness, faith, love, and peace, along with those who call on the Lord from a pure heart. 23 Have nothing to do with stupid and senseless controversies; you know that they breed quarrels. 24 And the Lord’s servant must not be quarrelsome but kindly to everyone, an apt teacher, patient, 25 correcting opponents with gentleness. God may perhaps grant that they will repent and come to know the truth, 26 and that they may escape from the snare of the devil, having been held captive by him to do his will.

3 You must understand this, that in the last days distressing times will come.

2 For people will be lovers of themselves, lovers of money, boasters, arrogant, abusive, disobedient to their parents, ungrateful, unholy, 3 inhuman, implacable, slanderers, profiliates, brutes, haters of good, 4 treacherous, reckless, swollen with conceit, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God, 5 holding to the outward form of godliness but denying its power. Avoid them! 6 For among them are a Other ancient authorities read the Lord

b Gk of these things
c Gk slave
d Or by him, to do his (that is, God’s) will the cost of securing divine favor. 8: Another encapsulation of the gospel (cf. Rom 1.3). 11: The saying is sure, see 1 Tim 1.15n. 11–13: A series of parallel clauses, suggesting to some scholars a quotation from a hymn. Died with him . . . live with him, Rom 6.5–11; 2 Cor 5.14–15. Reign with him, in glory at the end-time (1 Cor 4.8). Deny him, Mt 10.33; Mk 8.38; 1 Jn 2.22–23.

2.14–26: Strategies for proper combat with false teachers. 14: wrangling over words, Gk “logomachia,” a special concern of the Pastoral epistles (see 1 Tim 6.4). 17: Hymenaeus, 1 Tim 1.20. Philetus, otherwise unknown. Gangrene, the opposite of “healthy” teaching (see 1.3n.). 18: Swerved from the truth, see 1 Tim 6.21n. The resurrection has already taken place, a glimpse at the eschatology of the opponents, though not the theology behind it. They apparently spiritualized the future apocalyptic hope of resurrection, believing it to be a present reality. 19: God’s firm foundation (cf. 1 Tim 6.19), as known in scripture. This inscription, a quotation from Num 16.5; the second sentence has resonances with Isa 26.13; Job 36.10; Sir 17.26. 20–21: Utensils . . . some for special use, some for ordinary (lit., “some for honor, some for dishonor”), contrast Rom 9.19–23. 23: Stupid and senseless controversies, see 1 Tim 6.4; Titus 3.9. 26: Held captive, “captured and kept alive” (the same verb is used in Lk 5.10).

3.1–9: End-time now: a close-up picture of the opposition. 1: The last days, seen as both future and already those who make their way into households and captivate silly women, overwhelmed by their sins and swayed by all kinds of desires, who are always being instructed and can never arrive at a knowledge of the truth. As Jannes and Jambres opposed Moses, so these people, of corrupt mind and counterfeit faith, also oppose the truth. But they will not make much progress, because, as in the case of those two men, their folly will become plain to everyone.

Now you have observed my teaching, my conduct, my aim in life, my faith, my patience, my love, my steadfastness, my persecutions, and my suffering the things that happened to me in Antioch, Iconium, and Lystra. What persecutions I endured! Yet the Lord rescued me from all of them. Indeed, all who want to live a godly life in Christ Jesus will be persecuted. But wicked people and impostors will go from bad to worse, deceiving others and being deceived. But as for you, continue in what you have learned and firmly believed, knowing from whom you learned it, and how from childhood you have known the sacred writings that are able to instruct you for salvation through faith in Christ Jesus. All scripture is inspired by God and is useful for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for training in righteousness, so that everyone who belongs to God may be proficient, equipped for every good work.

In the presence of God and of Christ Jesus, who is to judge the living and the dead, and in view of his appearing and his kingdom, I solemnly urge you: proclaim the message; be persistent whether the time is favorable or unfavorable; convince, rebuke, and encourage, with the utmost patience in teaching. For the time is coming when people will not put up with sound doctrine, but having itching ears, they will accumulate for themselves teachers to suit their own desires, and will turn away from listening to the truth and wander away to myths. As for you, always be sober, endure suffering, do the work of an evangelist, carry out your ministry fully.

As for me, I am already being poured out as a libation, and the time of my departure has come. I have fought the good fight, I have finished the race, I have kept the faith. From now on there is reserved for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, will give me on that day, and not only to me but also to all who have longed for his appearing.

Do your best to come to me soon, for Demas, in love with this present world, has deserted me and gone to Thessalonica; Crescens has gone to Galatia, Titus to Dalmatia. Only Luke is with me. Get Mark and bring him with you, for he is useful in my ministry. I have sent Tychicus to Ephesus.

When you come, bring the cloak that I left

---

a Gk lacks two men
b Or Every scripture inspired by God is also c Other ancient authorities read Gaul

---

2 TIMOTHY 4

---

2094 | NEW TESTAMENT
with Carpus at Troas, also the books, and above all the parchments. 14 Alexander the coppersmith did me great harm; the Lord will pay him back for his deeds. 15 You also must beware of him, for he strongly opposed our message.

16 At my first defense no one came to my support, but all deserted me. May it not be counted against them! 17 But the Lord stood by me and gave me strength, so that through me the message might be fully proclaimed and all the Gentiles might hear it. So I was rescued from the lion’s mouth. 18 The Lord will rescue me from every evil attack and save me for his heavenly kingdom. To him be the glory forever and ever. Amen.

19 Greet Prisca and Aquila, and the household of Onesiphorus. 20 Erastus remained in Corinth; Trophimus I left ill in Miletus. 21 Do your best to come before winter. Eubulus sends greetings to you, as do Pudens and Linus and Claudia and all the brothers and sisters. 22 The Lord be with your spirit. Grace be with you.

a Gk all the brothers
b The Greek word for you here is plural. Other ancient authorities add Amen

Tyhicus, see Col 4.7; cf. Eph 6.21–22; Acts 20.4; Titus 3.12. 13: Troas, ancient Troy, the departure point from Asia to Europe (2 Cor 2.12–13; Acts 16.8–12). Carpus is mentioned only here. The books, and above all the parchments, a suggestive reference, but what is being referred to is unknown. 14: Alexander, see 1 Tim 1.20n. 16: My first defense, formal “apology” against judicial charges. 17: The Lord . . . gave me strength, as he will Timothy (2.1; also 1 Tim 1.12). Rescued from the lion’s mouth, Ps 21.22 (LXX); Dan 6.21; 1 Macc 2.60.

4.19–21: Epistolary Greetings. 19: Prisca and Aquila, prominent missionary team, who were close to Paul (Rom 16.3; 1 Cor 16.19; Acts 18.2,18). Onesiphorus, 1.16–17. 20: Erastus, the city-treasurer of Corinth (Rom 16.23; cf. Acts 19.22). Trophimus, Acts 20.4; 21.29. 21: All of these people who are with Paul (despite 4.11!) are found only here. Come before winter, while a sea voyage is possible.

4.22: Concluding benediction.
THE LETTER OF PAUL TO TITUS

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, AND BACKGROUND

This letter, which has many similarities to 1 Timothy, is named for its recipient, Paul's envoy and co-worker Titus. It is cast as a reminder and incitement to Titus to complete his mission on Crete (1.5). Acts and the other Pauline letters do not mention any apostolic mission on this, the largest of the Aegean islands and home to a large Jewish community. Those who argue that the letter is genuine contend that such a mission could have taken place after Paul’s imprisonment at Rome recounted in Acts 28, while those who regard it as pseudepigraphical (see further Introduction to the Pastoral Epistles, p. 2084) think the author has chosen Crete as a locale representing quintessential disobedience (1.12), or because of a later tradition associating Titus with the island.

Although Titus is not mentioned in Acts, Paul's letters provide information about a co-worker named Titus. According to Gal 2.3 Titus was a Gentile who accompanied Paul to the conference with the Jerusalem apostles, where Titus served as a litmus test for the acceptability of uncircumcised Gentile converts. Titus played a crucial role in the pastoral ministry to Corinth, first as a key administrator of the collection for the church in Jerusalem (2 Cor 8.6,16–17,23; 12.18), and later as Paul’s diplomatic envoy who successfully brokered a reconciliation between the apostle and the Corinthian church, which had harbored doubts about Paul’s legitimacy and financial reliability (2 Cor 2.13; 7.6–7,13–16).

STRUCTURE AND INTERPRETATION

The letter to Titus is framed as a commissioning letter. After the usual epistolary prescript (1.1–4, which is expanded with a theological creed), the body of the letter focuses on Titus's dual commission to correct things on Crete and to appoint elders (1.5–16). The basis for his ministry follows in sections devoted to the submission expected of various groups in the church (2.1–10), the theological basis for pious living (2.11–15), and a final section bringing the two themes—submission and good works—together (3.1–11). The letter concludes with a discussion of travel plans (3.12–13), a final exhortation to good works (3.14), epistolary greetings (3.15a), and a benediction (3.15b).

Paul delegates two tasks to Titus, under the heading of “putting things in order” (1.5): exhorting the faithful in sound teaching (1.9,13; 2.1–2,8), and refuting the opposition (2.2,15; cf. 1.9). The mainstay of sound teaching, as the author defines it, is strict maintenance of a patriarchal church order and the proper submission it demands (2.5,9; 3.1; contrast the characterization of the opponents as “insubordinate” or “rebellious” in 1.6,10). This ethic of the “household code” as applied to the Christian house church reflects the wider cultural context of the Greco-Roman world and is characteristic of the Pastoral epistles. The second task, the refutation of opponents (fellow Christians of Jewish background who adhere to the requirements of the law of Moses, the Torah, such as dietary laws), is addressed by the author in a negative fashion, through sharp invective and ridicule (1.10–16; 2.8; 3.9–11) rather than theological debate, which the author appears to eye largely with suspicion (1.13–14; 3.9–11).

GUIDE TO READING

Though short, this letter is theologically packed, requiring readers to pause and reconstruct the underlying gospel narrative and theological concepts, which the author often invokes by terse shorthand. Passages such as 1.1–3; 2.11–14; and 3.4–7 allow for instructive comparison with other tight Pauline formulations (see Gal 4.1–11; Rom 3.21–26; 2 Tim 1.9–10), so the theology constructed here can be appreciated both for its distinctiveness and for its continuity with earlier traditions.

Margaret M. Mitchell
Paul, a servant of God and an apostle of Jesus Christ, for the sake of the faith of God's elect and the knowledge of the truth that is in accordance with godliness, in the hope of eternal life that God, who never lies, promised before the ages began— in due time he revealed his word through the proclamation with which I have been entrusted by the command of God our Savior,

To Titus, my loyal child in the faith we share:

Grace and peace from God the Father and Christ Jesus our Savior.

I left you behind in Crete for this reason, so that you should put in order what remained to be done, and should appoint elders in every town, as I directed you: someone who is blameless, married only once, whose children are believers, not accused of debauchery and not rebellious. For a bishop, as God's steward, must be blameless; he must not be arrogant or quick-tempered or addicted to wine or violent or greedy for gain; but he must be hospitable, a lover of goodness, prudent, upright, devout, and self-controlled. He must have a firm grasp of the word that is trustworthy in accordance with the teaching, so that he may be able both to preach with sound doctrine and to refute those who contradict it.

There are also many rebellious people, idle talkers and deceivers, especially those of the circumcision, they must be silenced, since they are upsetting whole families by teaching for sordid gain what it is not right to teach. It was one of them, their very own prophet, who said,

“Cretans are always liars, vicious brutes, lazy gluttons.”

That testimony is true. For this reason rebuke them sharply, so that they may become sound in the faith, not paying attention to Jewish myths or to commandments of those who reject the truth. To the pure all things are pure, but to the corrupt and unbelieving nothing is pure. Their very minds and consciences are corrupted. They profess to know God, but they deny him by their actions. They are detestable, disobedient, unfit for any good work.

But as for you, teach what is consistent with sound doctrine. Tell the older men to be temperate, serious, prudent, and sound in faith, in love, and in endurance. Likewise, tell the older women to be reverent in behavior, not to be slanderers or slaves to drink; they are to teach what is good, so that they may encourage the young women to love their husbands, to love their children, to be self-controlled, chaste, good managers of the household, kind, being submissive to their husbands, so that the word of God may not be discredited.

---

a Gk slave

b Other ancient authorities read Grace, mercy,

c Gk husband of one wife

d Or an overseer

---

1.1–4: Epistolary prescript, sender, addressee, and salutation with theological expansion reminiscent of Rom 1.2–6 (cf. 1 Cor 2.7; Col 1.26; 2 Tim 1.10). 2: God, who never lies, cf. v. 12. Before the ages began, see 2 Tim 1.9; cf. Jn 1.2–3. 3: God our Savior (also 2.10; 3.4; 1 Tim 1.1; 2.3; 4.10). 4: Christ Jesus our Savior (also 2.13; 3.6; 2 Tim 1.10).

1.5–16: Titus’s commission in Crete. 5–7: Elders . . . bishop, here apparently regarded as synonymous or at least overlapping categories (cf. 1 Tim 3.1–7; 5.17–20). 6: Rebellious, lit., “insubordinate” (also 1.10). 7: Steward, manager of the household (cf. 1 Cor 4.1–2). 9: Sound doctrine, the reliable tradition the Pastoral epistles pass on; see 1 Tim 4.6.n. 10: Those of the circumcision, Jewish Christians who teach adherence to Torah, the law of Moses (see Gal 2.12), including dietary laws (see v. 15). 11: Upsetting whole families, lit., “households,” the basic unit of civic and church life. 12: Invective against opponents supported by a hexameter from the Cretan poet Epimenides (ca. 600 bce). 13: Sound in the faith, having a “healthy” faith (also 2.2; see 1 Tim 4.6.n.). 14: Jewish myths, probably speculations on biblical texts; see 3.9; 1 Tim 1.4; 4.7. 15: Cf. Rom 14.14. 16: Good work, see 2.7; 14.3.1,8,14 (also 3.8n.).

2.1–10: The proclamation of sound teaching in submission. A catalogue of virtues reflecting and inscribing the hierarchical order of the Greco-Roman household (v. 2, older men; vv. 3–5 women, older and younger; vv. 6–8 younger men; vv. 9–10, slaves). 2: Faith . . . love . . . endurance, a variation on Paul’s usual triad of faith, love, and hope (1 Cor 13.13; 1 Thess 1.3; 5.8; cf. 1 Tim 1.5). 5: Being submissive, the author seeks to rein in the insubor-
Likewise, urge the younger men to be self-controlled. 7 Show yourself in all respects a model of good works, and in your teaching show integrity, gravity, and sound speech that cannot be censured; then any opponent will be put to shame, having nothing evil to say of us.

9 Tell slaves to be submissive to their masters and to give satisfaction in every respect; they are not to talk back, 10 not to pilfer, but to show complete and perfect fidelity, so that in everything they may be an ornament to the doctrine of God our Savior.

11 For the grace of God has appeared, bringing salvation to all, training us to renounce impiety and worldly passions, and in the present age to live lives that are self-controlled, upright, and godly, 12 while we wait for the blessed hope and the manifestation of the glory of our great God and Savior, Jesus Christ. 13 He it is who gave himself for us that he might redeem us from all iniquity and purify for himself a people of his own who are zealous for good deeds.

15 Declare these things; exhort and reprove with all authority. Let no one look down on you.

Remind them to be subject to rulers and authorities, to be obedient, to be ready for every good work, to speak evil of no one, to avoid quarreling, to be gentle, and to show every courtesy to everyone. 3 For we ourselves were once foolish, disobedient, led astray, slaves to various passions and pleasures, passing our days in malice and envy, despicable, hating one another. 4 But when the goodness and loving kindness of God our Savior appeared, 5 he saved us, not because of any works of righteousness that we had done, but according to his mercy, through the water 6 of rebirth and renewal by the Holy Spirit. 6 This Spirit he poured out on us richly through Jesus Christ our Savior, so that, having been justified by his grace, we might become heirs according to the hope of eternal life. 8 The saying is sure.

I desire that you insist on these things, so that those who have come to believe in God may be careful to devote themselves to good works; these things are excellent and profitable to everyone. 9 But avoid stupid controversies, genealogies, dissensions, and quarrels about the law, for they are unprofitable and worthless. 10 After a first and second admonition, have nothing more to do with anyone who causes divisions, since you know that such a person is perverted and sinful, being self-condemned.

12 When I send Artemas to you, or Tychicus, do your best to come to me at Nicopolis, for I have decided to spend the winter there.

---

a Or has appeared to all, bringing salvation
b Or of the great God and our Savior
c Gk commandment
d Gk washing
13 Make every effort to send Zenas the lawyer and Apollos on their way, and see that they lack nothing. 14 And let people learn to devote themselves to good works in order to meet urgent needs, so that they may not be unproductive.

15 All who are with me send greetings to you. Greet those who love us in the faith. Grace be with all of you.\textsuperscript{a}

\textsuperscript{a} Other ancient authorities add \textit{Amen}

3.14: Concluding exhortation to good works.
3.15a: Epistolary greetings.
3.15b: Concluding benediction.
THE LETTER OF PAUL TO PHILEMON

NAME AND AUTHORSHIP
This enigmatic letter is named for its first-named recipient, Philemon. It is a piece of the apostle Paul's business correspondence, a curious but intentional blend of personal and public appeal, addressed to three individuals (Philemon, Apphia, and Archippus) and to the church that meets in one of their houses (v. 2).

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS
The structure of Philemon is straightforward. After the epistolary prescript (vv. 1–3) and thanksgiving (vv. 4–7), which praise Philemon for his past benefactions, in the epistolary body (vv. 8–22) Paul makes a fresh request for the present situation involving Philemon's slave Onesimus through various forms of subtle and not-so-subtle appeal, ending with the suggestion that he will soon visit Philemon (v. 22). He closes the letter with epistolary greetings from missionary co-workers that accent the public arena of Philemon's decision (vv. 23–24), and a final benediction (v. 25).

INTERPRETATION AND GUIDE TO READING
The letter shows Paul's epistolary style at its best and employs a subtle rhetoric to make a request of one of the recipients—probably Philemon. The exact nature of the request is the basis for the enigma that the letter to Philemon represents.

In order to interpret this letter, one must reconstruct the situation it presupposes, but to do so the reader must depend upon the letter itself. Paul writes this letter from prison (vv. 1,9–10; a location is not specified), where he has been joined by someone named Onesimus, whom Paul has converted to the gospel there (v. 10). This Onesimus, who is the slave of Philemon (v. 16), is the object of Paul's appeal (v. 10). While the circumstances that led to Onesimus's encounter with Paul are not described in the letter, two quite different possibilities suggest themselves: Either Onesimus ran away from his master, perhaps after causing him some financial loss (vv. 15,18), or Onesimus was sent by his owner to serve Paul in prison (v. 13), much as Epaphroditus was sent to Paul in prison by the Philippians (Phil 2.25–30). The advantage of the latter possibility is that it explains how Onesimus came to be in prison with Paul, whereas the former option must explain why a slave would run away to a prison. Perhaps Onesimus, according to legal precedent, sought out a friend of his master's to act as an intermediary in a dispute between himself and his owner. The precise occasion of the letter is the moment of Paul's sending Onesimus back to his master (v. 12). The letter will accompany Onesimus and register a plea on his behalf (v. 10).

What is Paul asking Philemon to do? Because Paul formulates his request in intentionally vague and rhetorical terms, a definitive judgment is hard to make. Readers should explore at least three possible interpretations: (1) Paul is asking Philemon to receive Onesimus back as a slave and forgive whatever transgressions he had committed (vv. 17–18); (2) Paul is asking Philemon to send Onesimus back to continue serving the apostle's physical needs while in prison (vv. 13–14); (3) Paul is strongly hinting that Philemon should not only receive Onesimus back but grant this new Christian brother his freedom (vv. 16,21). Each of these options has some grounding in the text, and which one the reader adopts depends upon which verses are thought to be the focal point of the argument and upon how one assesses Paul's tone at various points. One thing, however, is certain about this letter: Paul engages in full-strength arm-twisting of Philemon to do his "good deed" (v. 14). But the final decision of what to do is left up to Philemon himself—in the context of a host of on-lookers among his fellow Christians! One of the most remarkable things about this letter is that it was preserved and ultimately incorporated into the canonical collection of Paul's letters. This may be a hint that Philemon's ultimate decision answered Paul's request.

This letter has played a role in the history of Christian social ethics disproportionate to its size. The adequacy of Paul's attitude and actions toward the institution of slavery, both in his context and as a legacy for Christian social thought, continues to be debated.

Margaret M. Mitchell

2100  NEW TESTAMENT
Paul, a prisoner of Christ Jesus, and Timothy our brother, to Philemon our dear friend and co-worker, to Apphia our sister, to Archippus our fellow soldier, and to the church in your house:

Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ.

When I remember you in my prayers, I always thank my God because I hear of your love for all the saints and your faith toward the Lord Jesus. I pray that the sharing of your faith may become effective when you perceive all the good that we may do for Christ. I have indeed received much joy and encouragement from your love, because the hearts of the saints have been refreshed through you, my brother.

For this reason, though I am bold enough in Christ to command you to do your duty, yet I would rather appeal to you on the basis of love—and I, Paul, do this as an old man, according to the way I have been a prisoner of Christ Jesus.

I am appealing to you for my child, Onesimus, whose father I have become during my imprisonment. Formerly he was useless to you, but now he is indeed useful both to you and to me. I am sending him, that is, my own heart, back to you. I wanted to keep him with me, so that he might be of service to me in your place during my imprisonment for the gospel: but I preferred to do nothing without your consent, in order that your good deed might be voluntary and not something forced. Perhaps this is the reason he was separated from you for a while, so that you might have him back forever, no longer as a slave but more than a slave, a beloved brother—especially to me but how much more to you, both in the flesh and in the Lord.

So if you consider me your partner, welcome him as you would welcome me. If he has wronged you in any way, or owes you anything, charge that to my account. I, Paul, am writing this with my own hand: I will repay it. I say nothing about your owing me even your own self. Yes, brother, let me have this benefit from you in the Lord! Re-

1–3: Epistolary prescript (senders, addressees, and salutation), with each sender and recipient carefully designated. 1: Timothy, see Introduction to 2 Timothy. 2: Our sister, fellow Christian. Apphia, named only here. Archippus, see Col 4.17. And to the church in your house, Paul puts Philemon’s decision in a more public context.

4–7: Thanksgiving for Philemon’s past good deeds. In vv. 4–22a Paul uses the singular address (you). Because he calls him “brother” in v. 20, it must refer either to Philemon or Archippus; tradition and current scholarship almost unanimously choose Philemon, on the grounds that he is the first named. 4: Remember you in my prayers, cf 2 Tim 1.3. 7: Hearts, “splanchna,” lit., “inner organs,” refers to the emotional center of a person (see vv. 12, 20).

8–22: Paul’s appeal for another good deed from Philemon. 10: Whose father I have become, lit., “whom I begot” to new life in the gospel (cf. 1 Cor 4.15). 11: Useful (“eu-chrestos”) is a double pun, referring both to Onesimus’s name (see textual note a) and his identity in Christ (“eu-Christos” = “good in Christ”). 14: Voluntary, Paul does not command (cf. v. 8), but prefers to persuade. 15: Was separated, a perhaps deliberately vague reference to Onesimus’s absence. 16: No longer as a slave, finally the problem is stated: status dissonance (i.e., when a person occupies two or more social positions simultaneously). What happens when a slave of a Christian master becomes a Christian? Some scholars take Paul to mean the slave stops being a slave by becoming a brother, but others think Paul considers the new status of brother as relativizing, but not changing, the slave’s station in the world. In the flesh and in the Lord, in the world and in the church. 17–19: Partner, charge . . . to my account, repay, business terminology signaling Paul’s financial obligations to Philemon. Writing this with my own hand, cf. 1 Cor 16.21; Gal 6.11. Owning me even your own self, Philemon’s spiritual obligation to the one who converted him. 21: More than I say, a mere commonplace or a diplomatically framed hint to release him from slavery? 22b: Your prayers, in the plural. Paul here joins the co-recipients (v. 2) with him in registering his plea to Philemon.
fresh my heart in Christ. 21 Confident of your obedience, I am writing to you, knowing that you will do even more than I say.

22 One thing more—prepare a guest room for me, for I am hoping through your prayers to be restored to you.

23 Epaphras, my fellow prisoner in Christ Jesus, sends greetings to you,⁠a 24 and so do Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, and Luke, my fellow workers.

25 The grace of the Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit.⁠b a Here you is singular

b Other ancient authorities add Amen

23–24: Greetings, the same five people are named in Col 4.10–14. Epaphras, Col 1.7; 4.12.
25: Concluding benediction.
THE LETTER TO THE HEBREWS

NAME AND AUTHORSHIP

During the collection of the New Testament books into a canon, the Letter to the Hebrews got its name from its implied addressees, the “Hebrews.” Although the text itself does not name its addressees, its emphasis on Jewish scripture and ritual in making its argument may have suggested the title. By the end of the second century CE Hebrews began to be attributed to Paul. In the earliest collection of Paul’s letters (P46) this one followed Paul’s letter to the Romans. In the canon lists of the fourth century it was included with the Pauline letters. Consequently, the name “Paul” came to be used for the author of the work, appearing first in the Vulgate. The title “The Epistle of Paul to the Hebrews” reflects the authority attained by both the figure of Paul the apostle as author and the literary genre of the letter.

Despite the traditional attribution to Paul, early church writers questioned its authorship. Clement, Tertullian, and Origen acknowledged differences in style and theology between Hebrews and Paul’s own letters. Clement argued that Luke had translated Paul’s Hebrew original into Greek, while Origen suggested that a disciple of Paul wrote the letter based on Paul’s notes. Modern interpreters have suggested other authors, including Apollos and Priscilla (see Acts 18.24–26). There is not sufficient evidence to identify any person named in the New Testament as the author; thus it is held to be anonymous.

DATE

Like the name of the author, the precise date of Hebrews cannot be determined. Because the argument depends on Jewish liturgical practice, some scholars argue that it must have been written before the destruction of the Temple in Jerusalem in 70 CE. The work alludes to the rites as described in scripture, however, and does not presume knowledge of current practice in the Temple. Composed after the first generation of Christian leaders, but not later than the mid-90s when Hebrews is quoted in 1 Clement, the work is to be dated somewhere between 60 and 90 CE.

CONTENT, GENRE, AND STRUCTURE

Hebrews addresses an audience of both Jewish and Gentile background that has suffered hardship and persecution (10.32). Some may have renounced their faith (2.3; 6.4–6; 12.25). The work is written to encourage and exhort them to ongoing confidence and faith. The author grounds the argument in scripture and argues that Jesus is superior to earlier Jewish traditions. Because of its highly structured exegetical and exhortatory style, and the author’s claim to present a “word of exhortation” (13.32), the literary genre of Hebrews is best described as an early Christian sermon, rather than a letter. Typical features of letters, such as opening and closing greetings, make the work resemble a letter. Images, themes, and motifs anticipate and reinforce each other as the argument unfolds. The structure falls into four main sections. Chapters 1.1–4.13 explore the word of God spoken through the Son; chs 4.14–10.31 interpret Jesus as the eternal high priest against the background of the Israelite priesthood. The third part, 10.32–12.29, describes faith as insight into a heavenly world of reality. Chapter 13 gives practical advice and greetings.

GUIDE TO READING

Because so many of the standard historical introductory questions about Hebrews are uncertain, Hebrews is best read by leaving those questions open and exploring the work as a distinctive Christian writing. In a manner unique among New Testament books, the sermon develops the image of Christ as the great high priest who fulfills and completes the Jewish system of sacrifice. It interprets the significance of Jesus Christ and his death in categories of ritual and sacrifice familiar to both its author and its audience. Ancient readers could appreciate the sophisticated rhetorical style, follow the repetition and development of images and vocabulary, and understand the logic of the author’s argument in the context of Platonic and allegorical interpretation and of other early Christian language. Reading with particular attention to repetition and patterns of imagery and to the allusions to scripture and liturgy will help the contemporary reader to appreciate the sermon’s rhetorical effectiveness to strengthen flagging faith and encourage hope in God’s promised salvation.

Cynthia Briggs Kittredge
Long ago God spoke to our ancestors in many and various ways by the prophets, but in these last days he has spoken to us by a Son, whom he appointed heir of all things, through whom he also created the worlds. He is the reflection of God’s glory and the exact imprint of God’s very being, and he sustains all things by his powerful word. When he had made purification for sins, he sat down at the right hand of the Majesty on high, having become as much superior to angels as the name he has inherited is more excellent than theirs.

For to which of the angels did God ever say, “You are my Son; today I have begotten you”? Or again, “I will be his Father, and he will be my Son”? And again, when he brings the firstborn into the world, he says, “Let all God’s angels worship him.”

But of the Son he says, “Your throne, O God, is forever and ever, and the righteous scepter is the scepter of your kingdom.”

You have loved righteousness and hated wickedness; therefore God, your God, has anointed you with the oil of gladness beyond your companions.”

And, “In the beginning, Lord, you founded the earth, and the heavens are the work of your hands; they will perish, but you remain; they will all wear out like clothing; like a cloak you will roll them up, and like clothing they will be changed. But you are the same, and your years will never end.”

But to which of the angels has he ever said, “Sit at my right hand until I make your enemies a footstool for your feet”?

Are not all angels spirits in the divine service, sent to serve for the sake of those who are to inherit salvation?

Therefore we must pay greater attention to what we have heard, so that we do not drift away from it. For if the message declared through angels was valid, and every transgression or disobedience received a just penalty, how can we escape if we neglect so great a salvation? It was declared at first through the Lord, and it was attested to us by those who heard him, while God added his testimony by signs and wonders and various miracles, and by gifts of the Holy Spirit, distributed according to his will.

5 Now God did not subject the coming world, about which we are speaking, to angels. But someone has testified somewhere, “What are human beings that you are mindful of them, or mortals, that you care for them? You have made them for a little while lower than the angels; you have crowned them with glory and honor because of the suffering of death, so that by the grace of God he might taste death for everyone.

10 It was fitting that God, for whom and through whom all things exist, in bringing many children to glory, should make the pioneer of their salvation perfect through sufferings. For the one who sanctifies and those who are sanctified all have one Father. For this reason Jesus is not ashamed to call them brothers and sisters, saying, “I will proclaim your name to my brothers and sisters,” in the midst of the congregation I will praise you.”

13 And again, “I will put my trust in him.” And again, “Here am I and the children whom God has given me.”

14 Since, therefore, the children share flesh and blood, he himself likewise shared the same things, so that through death he might destroy the one who has the power of death, that is, the devil, and free those who all their lives were held in slavery by the fear of death. For it is clear that he did not come to help angels, but the descendants of Abraham. Therefore he had to become like his brothers and sisters in every respect, so that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest in the service of God, to make a sacrifice of atonement for the sins of the people. Because he himself was tested by what he suffered, he is able to help those who are being tested.

a Gk he
b Gk What is man that you are mindful of him?
c Gk or the son of man that you care for him? In the Hebrew of Psalm 8.4-6 both man and son of man refer to all humankind
d Or them only a little lower e Other ancient authorities add and set them over the works of your hands f Or who was made a little lower g Other ancient authorities read apart from God h Gk are all of one i Gk brothers

the message of salvation he brought than the law of Moses, which came through the angels. 2: The message declared through angels, see Acts 7.53; Gal 3.19; Josephus, Ant. 15.5.3. 3: Attested to us by those who heard, the message has come to this community through an earlier generation. 4: Signs and wonders, see Acts 2.43; 15.12; cf. Deut 6.22. Miracles, see Acts 8.13; 19.11; cf. Ps 105.27. Gifts of the Holy Spirit, see 1 Cor 12.4-11.

2.5–18: Jesus’ exaltation through abasement. 5: The coming world, the age to come. 6–9: Quoting Ps 8.4–6, the author interprets the verses as referring to Jesus, the human being. Unlike the original psalm which said that God created human beings “a little lower than the angels,” the author understands that Jesus the human being is superior to angels but was made for a little while lower than them in his death (cf. Phil 2.6–11). 10–18: Jesus shares humanity with all human beings (children, lit., “sons”). In order to liberate his brothers and sisters from slavery to the power of death, Jesus had to share their human experience in every respect. 10: The expression, make . . . perfect, is characteristic of this letter (5.9; 7.19,28; 9.9; 10.1,14; 11.40; 12.23) and means “to make complete, to bring to maturity.” Christ as pioneer goes before and points out the way to his followers (12.2); the same Gk word is translated “author” (Acts 3.15) and “leader” (Acts 5.31). 12: Ps 22.22. 13: Isa 8.17–18. 14: See Wis 2.24; Rom 6.23. 17: As high priest the Son is both merciful (cf. 5.2–3) and faithful (cf. 3.2,6), to make a sacrifice of Therefore, brothers and sisters, holy partners in a heavenly calling, consider that Jesus, the apostle and high priest of our confession, was faithful to the one who appointed him, just as Moses also “was faithful in all God’s house.” Yet Jesus is worthy of more glory than Moses, just as the builder of a house has more honor than the house itself. (For every house is built by someone, but the builder of all things is God.) Now Moses was faithful in all God’s house as a servant, to testify to the things that would be spoken later. Christ, however, was faithful over God’s house as a son, and we are his house if we hold firm the confidence and the pride that belong to hope.

Therefore, as the Holy Spirit says, “Today, if you hear his voice, do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion, as on the day of testing in the wilderness, where your ancestors put me to the test, though they had seen my works for forty years.

Therefore I was angry with that generation, and I said, ‘They always go astray in their hearts, and they have not known my ways.’ As in my anger I swore, ‘They will not enter my rest.’”

Take care, brothers and sisters, that none of you may have an evil, unbelieving heart that turns away from the living God. But exhort one another every day, as long as it is called “today,” so that none of you may be hardened by the deceitfulness of sin. For we have become partners of Christ, if only we hold our first confidence firm to the end.

As the Holy Spirit says, “Today, if you hear his voice, do not harden your hearts as in the rebellion.”

Now who were they who heard and yet were rebellious? Was it not all those who left Egypt under the leadership of Moses? But with whom was he angry forty years? Was it not those who sinned, whose bodies fell in the wilderness? And to whom did he swear that they would not enter his rest, if not to those who were disobedient?

So we see that they were unable to enter because of unbelief.

Therefore, while the promise of entering his rest is still open, let us take care that none of you should seem to have failed to reach it. For indeed the good news came to us just as to them; but the message they heard did not benefit them, because they atonement continually for sins that bring death and the fear of it to God’s people (vv. 14–15).

1: Holy partners, the readers or hearers are addressed in terms that remind them of their position and responsibility in sharing in a heavenly calling, as Jesus is in the heavens. As apostle, Jesus is the one sent by God to humankind; as high priest, he is their representative before God. The author first refers to what Jesus and Moses have in common: faithfulness to their respective tasks. Was faithful in all God’s house alludes to the Septuagint (LXX) version of Num 12.7–8. 3–5: As to position, Christ (a “son,” v. 6) is superior to Moses (a servant in God’s house; Num 12.7). 6: We are his house, the community of faithful believers. That belong to hope, hope is a key theme in the sermon (see 6.11,18; 7.19; 10.23).

3.1–6: Comparison of Jesus and Moses. The author argues for Jesus’ superiority to Moses, who, like the angels, is another intermediary of God’s word or law. 1: Holy partners, the readers or hearers are addressed in terms that remind them of their position and responsibility in sharing in a heavenly calling, as Jesus is in the heavens. As apostle, Jesus is the one sent by God to humankind; as high priest, he is their representative before God. 2: The author first refers to what Jesus and Moses have in common: faithfulness to their respective tasks. Was faithful in all God’s house alludes to the Septuagint (LXX) version of Num 12.7–8. 3–5: As to position, Christ (a “son,” v. 6) is superior to Moses (a servant in God’s house; Num 12.7). 6: We are his house, the community of faithful believers. That belong to hope, hope is a key theme in the sermon (see 6.11,18; 7.19; 10.23).

3.7–4.13: Entering God’s rest. The author makes an extended commentary on Ps 95.7–11 and applies it to the lives of the audience. 3.8: Rebellion and testing are translations of the Hebrew names Meribah and Massah in Ps 95.8 (Ex 17.1–7; Num 20.1–13; Deut 33.8). 11: My rest, the possession of the promised land of Canaan. 13: The deceitfulness of sin, disobedience (Num 14.1–4,34,41), leading to apostasy or renunciation of faith. 15: Ps 95.7. 16–19: A series of questions refers to Israel, those who left Egypt under the leadership of Moses and who did not enter the rest. The unbelief of the Israelites will be compared with the necessary faithfulness of the Christian community.

4.1–13: The faithfulness required of Christians. 1: God’s promise, which must be fulfilled, remains for faith-were not united by faith with those who listened.⁴ For we who have believed enter that rest, just as God⁵ has said,

“As in my anger I swore,

‘They shall not enter my rest,’”

though his works were finished at the foundation of the world.⁴ For in one place it speaks about the seventh day as follows, “And God rested on the seventh day from all his works.”⁵ And again in this place it says, “They shall not enter my rest.”⁶ Since therefore it remains open for some to enter it, and those who formerly received the good news failed to enter because of disobedience,⁷ again he sets a certain day—“today”—saying through David much later, in the words already quoted, “Today, if you hear his voice, do not harden your hearts.”

⁸ For if Joshua had given them rest, God⁹ would not speak later about another day.

⁹ So then, a sabbath rest still remains for the people of God;¹⁰ for those who enter God’s rest also cease from their labors as God did from his.¹¹ Let us therefore make every effort to enter that rest, so that no one may fall through such disobedience as theirs.

¹² Indeed, the word of God is living and active, sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing until it divides soul from spirit, joints from marrow; it is able to judge the thoughts and intentions of the heart.¹³ And before him no creature is hidden, but all are naked and laid bare to the eyes of the one to whom we must render an account.

¹⁴ Since, then, we have a great high priest who has passed through the heavens, Jesus, the Son of God, let us hold fast to our confession.¹⁵ For we do not have a high priest who is unable to sympathize with our weaknesses, but we have one who in every respect has been tested as we are, yet without sin.¹⁶ Let us therefore approach the throne of grace with boldness, so that we may receive mercy and find grace to help in time of need.

⁵ Every high priest chosen from among mortals is put in charge of things pertaining to God on their behalf, to offer gifts and sacrifices for sins.² He is able to deal gently with the ignorant and wayward, since he himself is subject to weakness;³ and because of this he must offer sacrifice for his own sins as well as for those of the people.⁴ And one does not presume to take this honor, but takes it only when called by God, just as Aaron was.

⁵ So also Christ did not glorify himself in becoming a high priest, but was appointed by the one who said to him,
“You are my Son, today I have begotten you”; 6 as he says also in another place, “You are a priest forever, according to the order of Melchizedek.”

7 In the days of his flesh, Jesus* offered up prayers and supplications, with loud cries and tears, to the one who was able to save him from death, and he was heard because of his reverent submission. 8 Although he was a Son, he learned obedience through what he suffered; 9 and having been made perfect, he became the source of eternal salvation for all who obey him, 10 having been designated by God a high priest according to the order of Melchizedek.

11 About this⁹ we have much to say that is hard to explain, since you have become dull in understanding. 12 For though by this time you ought to be teachers, you need someone to teach you again the basic elements of the oracles of God. You need milk, not solid food; 13 for everyone who lives on milk, being still an infant, is unskilled in the word of righteousness. 14 But solid food is for the mature, for those whose faculties have been trained by practice to distinguish good from evil.

Therefore let us go on toward perfection,⁷ leaving behind the basic teaching about Christ, and not laying again the foundation: repentance from dead works and faith toward God, instruction about baptisms, laying on of hands, resurrection of the dead, and eternal judgment. ⁸ And we will do⁹ this, if God permits. ⁴ For it is impossible to restore again to repentance those who have once been enlightened, and have tasted the heavenly gift, and have shared in the Holy Spirit, ⁹ and have tasted the goodness of the word of God and the powers of the age to come, ⁰ and then have fallen away, since on their own they are crucifying again the Son of God and are holding him up to contempt. ⁷ Ground that drinks up the rain falling on it repeatedly, and that produces a crop useful to those for whom it is cultivated, receives a blessing from God. ⁸ But if it produces thorns and thistles, it is worthless and on the verge of being cursed; its end is to be burned over.

⁹ Even though we speak in this way, beloved, we are confident of better things in your case, things that belong to salvation. ¹⁰ For God is not unjust; he will not overlook your work and the love that you showed for his name⁶ in serving the saints, as you still do. ¹¹ And we want each one of you to show the

a Gk he
b Or him
c Or toward maturity
d Other ancient authorities read let us do e Gk for his name pointed by God (cf. Lk 3.22). 6: The author quotes Ps 110.4. According to the order of Melchizedek is interpreted to mean “like” Melchizedek. The sermon will return to this element in 7.1–22. 7–9: The author refers to an example of Jesus’ sharing human weakness and suffering in order to show how that makes him a source of salvation for human beings. 7: Traditionally, this verse has been understood to refer to Gethsemane (Mk.14.32–42 and parallels). However, the description resembles the portrayal of the typical Jewish hero, such as Abraham or Moses, who prays loudly to God for deliverance (2 Macc 11.6; Philo, Rer. div. her. 19). 10: Melchizedek, see 7.1–10n. Although simply called a “priest according to the order of Melchizedek” in the psalm citation, the author elaborates that Jesus is a “high priest according to the order of Melchizedek.”

5.11–6.20: Exhortation to hope. The author’s tone shifts from critical to complimentary in this hortatory passage. The community is encouraged to move forward, first toward perfection (6.1), then to seize the hope set before us (6.18). 5.12–14: Common in Hellenistic rhetoric, the comparison between milk as rudimentary teaching and solid food as more advanced teaching is used to encourage the community to move beyond basic teachings (cf. 1 Cor 3.1–2). 6.1: Dead works, “works that lead to death” or “sin.” 2: Baptisms, ritual washings used in both Jewish and Christian practice (see 9.10). Laying on of hands was a ritual of commissioning (see Acts 6.6; 8.17–19; 9.17; 13.3; 1 Tim 4.14; 2 Tim 1.6). Teaching about resurrection of the dead would have been accepted by both Jews and Christians. The author understands all these as “basic teaching,” while the priesthood of Christ is the more advanced teaching explored by the sermon. 4–6: Those who have fallen away cannot be restored to repentance; they therefore share in crucifying . . . the Son of God. These verses describe the dire consequence for one who loses hope and falls away. 7–8: Thorns and thistles could refer to the curse of Gen 3.18; the blessings of the Promised Land require fidelity to God’s covenant (Deut 11.11; 28.1–5). 9–12: The author reassures the audience.
same diligence so as to realize the full assurance of hope to the very end, so that you may not become sluggish, but imitators of those who through faith and patience inherit the promises.

13 When God made a promise to Abraham, because he had no one greater by whom to swear, he swore by himself,

14 saying, “I will surely bless you and multiply you.” And thus Abraham, having patiently endured, obtained the promise.

16 Human beings, of course, swear by someone greater than themselves, and an oath given as confirmation puts an end to all dispute.

17 In the same way, when God desired to show even more clearly to the heirs of the promise the unchangeable character of his purpose, he guaranteed it by an oath,

18 so that through two unchangeable things, in which it is impossible that God would prove false, we who have taken refuge might be strongly encouraged to seize the hope set before us.

19 We have this hope, a sure and steadfast anchor of the soul, a hope that enters the inner shrine behind the curtain,

20 where Jesus, a forerunner on our behalf, has entered, having become a high priest forever according to the order of Melchizedek.

7 This “King Melchizedek of Salem, priest of the Most High God, met Abraham as he was returning from defeating the kings and blessed him”; and to him Abraham apportioned “one-tenth of everything.” His name, in the first place, means “king of righteousness”; next he is also king of Salem, that is, “king of peace.” Without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days nor end of life, but resembling the Son of God, he remains a priest forever.

4 See how great he is! Even Abraham the patriarch gave him a tenth of the spoils.

5 And those descendants of Levi who receive the priestly office have a commandment in the law to collect tithes from the people, that is, from their kindred, though these also are descended from Abraham.

6 But this man, who does not belong to their ancestry, collected tithes from Abraham and blessed him who had received the promises. It is beyond dispute that the inferior is blessed by the superior. In the one case, tithes are received by those who are mortal; in the other, by one of whom it is testified that he lives.

9 One might even say that Levi himself, who receives tithes, paid tithes through Abraham, for he was still in the loins of his ancestor when Melchizedek met him.

10 Now if perfection had been attainable through the levitical priesthood—for the people received the law under this priest-

a Gk he
b Other ancient authorities lack Even c Or a tenth
d Gk brothers

that they are not among those who are lost. 10: Saints, fellow Christians. 13–18: As a basis for hope, the author refers to God’s promise to Abraham that he would bless Abraham’s descendants (Gen 22.16–18). The promise made to Abraham applies to all Christians. 18: Two unchangeable things, God’s promise and God’s oath. 19–20: The author summarizes the theme of hope and introduces the next topic: a priest like Melchizedek and the entry of the priest into the holy of holies. 19: The inner shrine, the holy of holies (9.3) of the tabernacle, behind the curtain or veil (Ex 26.31–35), restricted to the high priest alone (Lev 16.2). 20: As forerunner, however, Jesus goes ahead on behalf of human beings. Melchizedek, here the author picks up the argument of 5.10.

7.1–28: The priesthood of Melchizedek and the levitical priesthood compared. Having referred to Ps 110.4 (see 5.6,10; 6.20), the author proceeds to show how Christ is a priest according to the order of (“like”) Melchizedek. The Dead Sea Scrolls give evidence of Jewish speculation on Melchizedek as an angelic, heavenly figure who rescues the righteous (1QMelch). 1–10: From Gen 14.17–20 the author deduces that the mysterious priest-king Melchizedek was greater than either Abraham or his descendant, Levi. 3: Without father, without mother, without genealogy, the Bible makes no mention of Melchizedek’s ancestors, birth, and death. 5: See Num 18.21–24; Deut 26.12. 8: Those who are mortal, the levitical priests (Num 18). One who lives, Melchizedek, whose death is not recorded.

7.11–25: The levitical priesthood is inadequate because it is provisional and temporary (vv. 11–14). On the other hand, a priest resembling Melchizedek is eternal (Ps 110.4), and the office is neither inherited nor trans-Furthermore, the former priests were many in number, because they were prevented by death from continuing in office;
but he holds his priesthood permanently, because he continues forever. Consequently he is able for all time to save⁴ those who approach God through him, since he always lives to make intercession for them.

For it was fitting that we should have such a high priest, holy, blameless, undefiled, separated from sinners, and exalted above
the heavens. Unlike the other high priests, he has no need to offer sacrifices day after day, first for his own sins, and then for those of the people; this he did once for all when he offered himself. For the law appoints as high priests those who are subject to weakness, but the word of the oath, which came later than the law, appoints a Son who has been made perfect forever.

Now the main point in what we are saying is this: we have such a high priest, one who is seated at the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens, a minister in the sanctuary and the true tent that the Lord, and not any mortal, has set up.
For every high priest is appointed to offer gifts and sacrifices; hence it is necessary for this priest also to have something to offer. Now if he were on earth, he would not be a priest at all, since there are priests who offer gifts according to the law. They offer worship in mitted (vv. 15–19). Unlike the levitical priests, Jesus was appointed with a divine oath (v. 17; Ps 110:4); furthermore, being immortal, Jesus holds his priesthood permanently (vv. 20–25). 14: From Judah, Jesus, as a descenddant of David, belonged to the tribe of Judah (1 Chr 2.3–15; Sir 45.25). 17: Ps 110.2. 20: Oath, see 6.17. 21: Ps 110.4.

25: Christ’s intercession, see 9.24.

8.26–28: Summary of the merits of the high priest, Jesus the Son of God. The theme of perfection and completeness concludes this section (see also vv. 11,19). The law has been incapable of bringing the priesthood to perfection because the Israelite priests were mortal (vv. 23–24). The author has established the eternal character of Christ’s priesthood.

8.1–6: Old and new ministry. The author asserts that Christians have an eternal high priest who has been exalted into heaven (1.3). Christ exercises his priestly ministry only in heaven, since on earth he is not a Levite, and therefore not a priest. 4–5: The author refers to the scripture that describes these rituals rather than to the Jewish practice of his day. 5: Ex 25.40. Popular Platonic ideas of the time held that true realities existed in the heavenly world, while earthly ones were copies or shadows of the real. The author argues that Christ’s ministry is superior because it takes place in that true heavenly world.
a sanctuary that is a sketch and shadow of the heavenly one; for Moses, when he was about to erect the tent, was warned, “See that you make everything according to the pattern that was shown you on the mountain.” But Jesus has now obtained a more excellent ministry, and to that degree he is the mediator of a better covenant, which has been enacted through better promises. For if that first covenant had been faultless, there would have been no need to look for a second one.

God finds fault with them when he says: “The days are surely coming, says the Lord, when I will establish a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah; not like the covenant that I made with their ancestors, on the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt; for they did not continue in my covenant, and so I had no concern for them, says the Lord.

This is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, says the Lord: I will put my laws in their minds, and write them on their hearts, and I will be their God, and they shall be my people. And they shall not teach one another or say to each other, ‘Know the Lord,’ for they shall all know me, from the least of them to the greatest. For I will be merciful toward their iniquities, and I will remember their sins no more.”

In speaking of “a new covenant,” he has made the first one obsolete. And what is obsolete and growing old will soon disappear. Now even the first covenant had regulations for worship and an earthly sanctuary. For a tent was constructed, the first one, in which were the lampstand, the table, and the bread of the Presence; this is called the Holy Place. Behind the second curtain was a tent called the Holy of Holies. In it stood the golden altar of incense and the ark of the covenant overlaid on all sides with gold, in which there were a golden urn holding the manna, and Aaron’s rod that budded, and the tablets of the covenant; above it were the cherubim of glory overshadowing the mercy seat. Of these things we cannot speak now in detail.

Such preparations having been made, the priests go continually into the first tent to carry out their ritual duties; but only the high priest goes into the second, and he but once a year, and not without taking the blood that he offers for himself and for the sins committed unintentionally by the people. By this the Holy Spirit indicates that the way into the sanctuary has not yet been disclosed as long as the first tent is still standing. This is a symbol of the present time, during which gifts and sacrifices are offered that cannot perfect the conscience of the worshiper, but deal only with food and drink and various baptisms, regulations for the body imposed until the time comes to set things right.

8.7–13: Old and new covenant. The announcement of a “new covenant” in Jer 31.31–34 causes a comparison with the old covenant, with Moses on Mount Sinai. Jer 31.31–34 is quoted and commented upon here and in 9.15–20 and 10.9–18. 13: The old covenant will be replaced by the new.

9.1–10: The earthly sanctuary. The author describes the wilderness tabernacle of Ex 25–26 and its ritual.

8: Or tabernacle
b Gk he
c Gk He
d Gk the presentation of the loaves e Or the place of atonement
f Gk parable
But when Christ came as a high priest of the good things that have come, through the greater and perfect \(^b\) tent \(^c\) (not made with hands, that is, of not of this creation), \(^d\) he entered once for all into the Holy Place, not with the blood of goats and calves, but with his own blood, thus obtaining eternal redemption. \(^e\) For if the blood of goats and bulls, with the sprinkling of the ashes of a heifer, sanctifies those who have been defiled so that their flesh is purified, how much more will the blood of Christ, who through the eternal Spirit \(^f\) offered himself without blemish to God, purify our conscience from dead works to worship the living God!

For this reason he is the mediator of a new covenant, so that those who are called may receive the promised eternal inheritance, because a death has occurred that may receive the promised eternal inheritance. \(^g\) For Christ did not enter a sanctuary made by human hands, a mere copy of the true one, but he entered into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God on our behalf. \(^h\) Nor was it to offer himself again and again, as the high priest enters the Holy Place year after year with blood that is not his own; \(^i\) for then he would have had to suffer again and again since the foundation of the world. But as it is, he has appeared once for all at the end of the age to remove sin by the sacrifice of himself. \(^j\) And just as it is appointed for mortals to die once, and after that the judgment, \(^k\) so Christ, having been offered once to bear the sins of many, will appear a second time, not to deal with sin, but to save those who are eagerly waiting for him.

Since the law has only a shadow of the good things to come and not the true form of these realities, \(^l\) it can never, by the same sacrifices that are continually

---

9.11–28: The sacrifice of Christ. The author applies the categories of priestly ministry, covenant, and sanctuary ritual to the saving death of Christ. Christ’s death is interpreted as the one effective sacrifice that atones for the sins of humanity (vv. 14,26,28). 12–13: The day of atonement ritual (Lev 16.1–19), the sacrifice of the red heifer (Num 19.1–10), and the sacrificial ratification of the Sinai covenant (Ex 24.3–8) all have to do with the shedding of blood and contribute to the imagery of this argument. 14: The eternal Spirit, the spiritual aspects of Christ’s sacrifice. 15–17: Shifts between meanings of Gk “diatheke” from “covenant” to “will”; see note f. Cf. Gal 3.15–18. 18: Ex 24.3–8. The blood with which Moses seals the covenant will be associated with Jesus’ death. 19: Scarlet wool and hyssop, cf. Lev 14.4; Num 19.6. 20: Ex 24.8. 28: The sins of many, Isa 53.12; Mk 10.45. A second time, a reference to the Second Coming of Christ is not wholly consistent with the understanding that Christ has entered into heaven and made salvation available in the present (v. 11).

10.1–18: Old and new sacrifice. The author summarizes the comparison between Christ’s sacrifice and Israelite ritual. Evidence is found in scripture both for the limitations of the ritual and for the meaning of the word spoken in the Son. 1: The shadow of the law is understood to be inferior to the true form that is in the future.
offered year after year, make perfect those who approach. 2 Otherwise, would they not have ceased being offered, since the worshipers, cleansed once for all, would no longer have any consciousness of sin? 3 But in these sacrifices there is a reminder of sin year after year. 4 For it is impossible for the blood of bulls and goats to take away sins. 5 Consequently, when Christ came into the world, he said, “Sacrifices and offerings you have not desired, but a body you have prepared for me;

in burnt offerings and sin offerings
you have taken no pleasure.
7 Then I said, ‘See, God, I have come to do your will, O God’
(in the scroll of the book it is written of me).”

8 When he said above, “You have neither desired nor taken pleasure in sacrifices and offerings and burnt offerings and sin offerings” (these are offered according to the law), 9 then he added, “See, I have come to do your will.” He abolishes the first in order to establish the second. 10 And it is by God’s will that we have been sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.

11 And every priest stands day after day at his service, offering again and again the same sacrifices that can never take away sins. 12 But when Christ had offered for all time a single sacrifice for sins, “he sat down at the right hand of God,” 13 and since then has been waiting “until his enemies would be made a footstool for his feet.” 14 For by a single offering he has perfected for all time those who are sanctified. 15 And the Holy Spirit also testifies to us, for after saying,

16 “This is the covenant that I will make with them after those days, says the Lord: I will put my laws in their hearts, and I will write them on their minds,”

he also adds,

“I will remember their sins and their lawless deeds no more.”

18 Where there is forgiveness of these, there is no longer any offering for sin.

19 Therefore, my friends, since we have confidence to enter the sanctuary by the blood of Jesus, 20 by the new and living way that he opened for us through the curtain (that is, through his flesh), 21 and since we have a great priest over the house of God, 22 let us approach with a true heart in full assurance of faith, with our hearts sprinkled clean from an evil conscience and our bodies washed with pure water. 23 Let us hold fast to the confession of our hope without wavering, for he who has promised is faithful. 24 And let us consider how to provoke one another to love and good deeds, 25 not neglecting to meet together, as is the habit of some, but encouraging one another, and all the more as you see the Day approaching.

26 For if we willfully persist in sin after having received the knowledge of the truth, there no longer remains a sacrifice for sins, 27 but a fearful prospect of judgment, and a fury of

4–9: The proof for the idea that it is impossible for animal sacrifices to take away sins is found in interpretation of Ps 40.6–8 (Septuagint) in which the speaker is understood to be Christ. 8: 1 Sam 15.22; Ps 50.8–15; Isa 1.10–17; Jer 7.21–26; Hos 6.6. 10: Sanctified, ceremonially cleansed and perfected through Christ’s blood (10.29). 12–13: Ps 110.1. 15–18: The Holy Spirit is understood to be speaking a paraphrase of Jer 31.33–34. The new covenant assures full and final forgiveness of sins.

10.19–31: Exhortations and warnings. Compare the exhortation in 4.14–16. 20: That he opened for us through the curtain (that is, through his flesh), perhaps the curtain symbolizes Jesus’ physical existence, which separates the holy of holies from the outer sanctuary; or the physical existence of Jesus symbolizes the path of access to God. The flesh of Jesus is the means for approaching God. 22–25: Three privileges and duties of Christians: Let us approach God in faith and worship (vv. 22,25); let us hold fast the public confession of our hope (v. 23); let us consider how we can help others in love (v. 24). 23: Confession of our hope, the basic attitude of Christians. In Hebrews, faith undergirds hope (see 3.6; 6.11,18; 7.19). 25: The Day of Christ’s Second Coming, see 9.28n. 26:
fire that will consume the adversaries. 28 Anyone who has violated the law of Moses dies without mercy “on the testimony of two or three witnesses.” 29 How much worse punishment do you think will be deserved by those who have spurned the Son of God, profaned the blood of the covenant by which they were sanctified, and outraged the Spirit of grace? 30 For we know the one who said, “Vengeance is mine, I will repay.” And again, “The Lord will judge his people.” 31 It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

32 But recall those earlier days when, after you had been enlightened, you endured a hard struggle with sufferings, sometimes being publicly exposed to abuse and persecution, 33 sometimes being partners with those so treated. 34 For you had compassion for those who were in prison, and you cheerfully accepted the plundering of your possessions, knowing that you yourselves possessed something better and more lasting. 35 Do not, therefore, abandon that confidence of yours; it brings a great reward.

11 Now faith is the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen. 2 Indeed, by faith* our ancestors received approval. 3 By faith we understand that the worlds were prepared by the word of God, so that what is seen was made from things that are not visible. 4 By faith Abel offered to God a more acceptable* sacrifice than Cain’s. Through this he received approval as righteous, God himself giving approval to his gifts; he died, but through his faith* he still speaks. 5 By faith Enoch was taken so that he did not experience death; and “he was not found, because God had taken him.” For it was attested before he was taken away that “he had pleased God.” 6 And without faith it is impossible to please God, for whoever would approach him must believe that he exists and that he rewards those who seek him. 7 By faith Noah, warned by God about events as yet unseen, respected the warning and built an ark to save his household; by this he condemned the world and became an heir to the righteousness that is in accordance with faith.

8 By faith Abraham obeyed when he was called to set out for a place that he was to receive as an inheritance; and he set out, not knowing where he was going. 9 By faith he stayed for a time in the land he had been promised, as in a foreign land, living in tents, as did Isaac and Jacob, who were heirs with him of the same promise. 10 For he looked forward to the city that has foundations, whose architect and builder is God. 11 By faith he received power of procreation, even Solemn warning about deliberate sin (see 5.2; 6.4–6). 28: Paul uses this citation to make a different point in Rom 12.19. Deut 17.2–6. 30: Deut 32.35–36; Ps 135.14.

10.32–12.29: The power of faith.

11.1–12.2: A cloud of witnesses to faith. A series of examples of models of faith from the Hebrew Bible, culminating in the example of Jesus in 12.1–2. 11.1: The Gk word translated assurance has an objective quality and might be translated “reality.” Likewise, conviction has the connotation of “evidence.” The people of faith who follow all possess insight into the reality of the invisible divine world. 3: Ps 33.6; Wis 9.1. 4: Gen 4.3–10. 5: Gen 5.21–24. 6: A general axiom referring to the existence and moral government of God. 7: Noah, Gen 6.13–22. Righteousness, Gen 15.6. 8–9: Gen 12.1–8. 10: The city, the heavenly Jerusalem. Foundations, contrasted with tents (v. 9). 11: In some manuscripts, Sarah is the subject of the sentence: “By faith, Sarah received the power of procreation . . .” Sarah’s faith in the unseen is parallel to Abraham’s, and she is one of the heroic people of though he was too old—and Sarah herself was barren—because he considered him faithful who had promised. Therefore from one person, and this one as good as dead, descendants were born, “as many as the stars of heaven and as the innumerable grains of sand by the seashore.”

2114 | NEW TESTAMENT

13 All of these died in faith without having received the promises, but from a distance they saw and greeted them. They confessed that they were strangers and foreigners on the earth, for people who speak in this way make it clear that they are seeking a homeland. If they had been thinking of the land that they had left behind, they would have had opportunity to return. But as it is, they desire a better country, that is, a heavenly one. Therefore God is not ashamed to be called their God; indeed, he has prepared a city for them.

17 By faith Abraham, when put to the test, offered up Isaac. He who had received the promises was ready to offer up his only son, of whom he had been told, “It is through Isaac that descendants shall be named for you.” He considered the fact that God is able even to raise someone from the dead—a figure of speech, he did receive him back.

By faith Isaac invoked blessings for the future on Jacob and Esau.

By faith Jacob, when dying, blessed each of the sons of Joseph, “bowing in worship over the top of his staff.”

By faith Joseph, at the end of his life, made mention of the exodus of the Israelites and gave instructions about his burial.

By faith Moses was hidden by his parents for three months after his birth, because they saw that the child was beautiful; and they were not afraid of the king’s edict.

By faith Moses, when he was grown up, refused to be called a son of Pharaoh’s daughter, choosing rather to share ill-treatment with the people of God than to enjoy the fleeting pleasures of sin. He considered abuse suffered for the Christ to be greater wealth than the treasures of Egypt, for he was looking ahead to the reward. By faith he left Egypt, unafraid of the king’s anger; for he persevered as though he saw him who is invisible. By faith he kept the Passover and the sprinkling of blood, so that the destroyer of the firstborn would not touch the firstborn of Israel.

By faith the people passed through the Red Sea as if it were dry land, but when the Egyptians attempted to do so they were drowned. By faith the walls of Jericho fell after they had been encircled for seven days. By faith Rahab the prostitute did not perish with those who were disobedient, because she had received the spies in peace.

And what more should I say? For time would fail me to tell of Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, of David and Samuel and the prophets—33 who through faith conquered kingdoms, administered justice, obtained promises, shut the mouths of lions, quenched raging fire, escaped the edge of the sword, won strength out of weakness, became mighty in war, put foreign armies to flight. Women received their dead by resurrection. Others were tortured, refusing to accept release, in order to obtain a better resurrection. Others suffered mocking and flogging, and even chains and imprisonment. They were stoned to death, burned, stung with scorpions, Consomméd with thirsty, flogged, killed with sharp-edged instruments, and a Or By faith Sarah herself, though barren, received power to conceive, even when she was too old, because she considered him faithful who had promised.

---

b Gk his bones
c Other ancient authorities add By faith Moses, when he was grown up, killed the Egyptian, because he observed the humiliation of his people (Gk brothers)
d Or the Messiah
e Or because
f Gk would not touch them
g Or unbelieving

---

they were sawn in two, a they were killed by the sword; they went about in skins of sheep and goats, destitute, persecuted, tormented— of whom the world was not worthy. They wandered in deserts and mountains, and in caves and holes in the ground.

Yet all these, though they were commended for their faith, did not receive what was promised, 40 since God had provided something better so that they would not, apart from us, be made perfect.

12 Therefore, since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses, let us also lay aside every weight and the sin that clings so closely, b and let us run with perseverance the race that is set before us, c looking to Jesus the pioneer and perfecter of our faith, who for the sake of d the joy that was set before him endured the cross, disregarding its shame, and has taken his seat at the right hand of the throne of God.

Consider him who endured such hostility against himself from sinners, d so that you may not grow weary or lose heart. 4 In your struggle against sin you have not yet resisted to the point of shedding your blood. 5 And you have forgotten the exhortation that addresses you as children—

“My child, do not regard lightly the discipline of the Lord, or lose heart when you are punished by him; for the Lord disciplines those whom he loves, and chastises every child whom he accepts.”

Endure trials for the sake of discipline. God is treating you as children; for what child is there whom a parent does not discipline? e If you do not have that discipline in which all children share, then you are illegitimate and not his children. f Moreover, we had human parents to discipline us, and we respected them. Should we not be even more willing to be subject to the Father of spirits and live? g For they disciplined us for a short time as seemed best to them, but he disciplines us for our good, in order that we may share his holiness. h Now, discipline always seems painful rather than pleasant at the time, but later it yields the peaceful fruit of righteousness to those who have been trained by it.

Therefore lift your drooping hands and strengthen your weak knees, i and make straight paths for your feet, so that what is lame may not be put out of joint, but rather be healed.

Pursue peace with everyone, and the holiness without which no one will see the Lord. j See to it that no one fails to obtain the grace of God; that no root of bitterness springs up and causes trouble, and through it many become defiled. k See to it that no one becomes like Esau, an immoral and godless person, who sold his birthright for a single meal. l You know that later, when he wanted to inherit the blessing, he was rejected, for he found no chance to repent, m even though he sought the blessing n with tears.

---

12.1–2: Jesus, the ultimate example of faith. Jesus is the supreme model of faith in God and an example for those who follow him. 1: Witnesses, those mentioned in ch 11. 2: Pioneer and perfecter, see 2.10n.

12.3–17: The discipline of God. The author develops the metaphors of the athletic contest or race (vv. 1,12–13), the father disciplining his children (vv. 5–11), and the “bitter root” (v. 15). 5–8: Prov 3.11–12. In the family structure of the ancient world, the father’s (parent’s) obligation to punish sons (children) and so recognize their legitimacy is the background of the comparison between suffering and discipline from God. Illegitimate children were not disciplined. The author understands the scripture to be speaking to Christians as “sons” or “children” of the Father (cf. 5.8). All . . . share, namely, all children of God (v. 6). 9: Father of spirits, God is traditionally understood to have power over the world of spirits (see Num 16.22; Rev 22.6). 12: Isa 55.3. 14–17: The necessity of peace and purity. 15: Root of bitterness, Deut 29.18 (Septuagint). 16: Gen 25.29–34. 17: Gen 27.30–40.

12.18–29: Mount Sinai and Mount Zion contrasted. 18–19: Something that can be touched, Mount Sinai (Ex
18 You have not come to something that can be touched, a blazing fire, and darkness, and gloom, and a tempest, and the sound of a trumpet, and a voice whose words made the hearers beg that not another word be spoken to them. (For they could not endure the order that was given, “If even an animal touches the mountain, it shall be stoned to death.”) Indeed, so terrifying was the sight that Moses said, “I tremble with fear.” But you have come to Mount Zion and to the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to innumerable angels in festal gathering, and to the assembly of the firstborn who are enrolled in heaven, and to God the judge of all, and to the spirits of the righteous made perfect, and to Jesus, the mediator of a new covenant, and to the sprinkled blood that speaks a better word than the blood of Abel. See that you do not refuse the one who is speaking; for if they did not escape when they refused the one who warned them on earth, how much less will we escape if we reject the one who warns from heaven! At that time his voice shook the earth; but now he has promised, “Yet once more I will shake not only the earth but also the heaven.” This phrase, “Yet once more,” indicates the removal of what is shaken—that is, created things—so that what cannot be shaken may remain. Therefore, since we are receiving a kingdom that cannot be shaken, let us give thanks, by which we offer to God an acceptable worship with reverence and awe; for indeed our God is a consuming fire.

Let mutual love continue. Do not neglect to show hospitality to strangers, for by doing that some have entertained angels without knowing it. Remember those who are in prison, as though you were in prison with them; those who are being tortured, as though you yourselves were being tortured. Let marriage be held in honor by all, and let the marriage bed be kept undefiled; for God will judge fornicators and adulterers. Keep your lives free from the love of money, and be content with what you have; for he has said, “I will never leave you or forsake you.” So we can say with confidence, “The Lord is my helper; I will not be afraid. What can anyone do to me?” Remember your leaders, those who spoke the word of God to you; consider the outcome of their way of life, and imitate their faith. Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today and forever. Do not be carried away by all kinds of strange teachings; for it is well for the heart to be strengthened by grace, not by regulations about food, which have not benefited those who observe them. We have an altar from which those who officiate in the tent have no right to eat. For the bodies of those animals whose blood is brought into the sanctuary by the high priest as a sacrifice for sin are burned outside the camp. Therefore Jesus also suffered outside the city gate in order to sanctify the people by his own blood. Let us then go to him outside the camp and bear the abuse he endured. For here we have no lasting city, but we are looking for the city that is to come. Through him, then, let us continually offer a sacrifice of praise to God, that is, the fruit of grace, which is effective.

a Other ancient authorities read a mountain
b Or angels, and to the festal gathering and assembly
c Gk were in the body
d Gk not by foods
e Or tabernacle

13.1–25: Practical instructions to the community and greetings.

13.1–17: The sermon concludes with specific ethical exhortation to show mutual love. 2: Entertained angels, Gen 18.1–8; 19.1. 3: Mt 25.35–46; 5: Josh 1.5; Ps 118.6. 7: Your leaders, former leaders who proclaimed God’s word to the community in the past. 9: Whether regulations about food refers to Jewish food laws or ritual dining practices is not clear. The author contrasts these to grace, which is effective. 11: Lev 16.27. Cf. Col 2.16,20–23. 12: As the sacrificed animals are burned outside the camp, so Jesus died outside the gate of Jerusalem (Jn 19.20).
lips that confess his name. 16 Do not neglect to do good and to share what you have, for such sacrifices are pleasing to God.

17 Obey your leaders and submit to them, for they are keeping watch over your souls and will give an account. Let them do this with joy and not with sighing—for that would be harmful to you.

18 Pray for us; we are sure that we have a clear conscience, desiring to act honorably in all things. 19 I urge you all the more to do this, so that I may be restored to you very soon.

20 Now may the God of peace, who brought back from the dead our Lord Jesus, the great shepherd of the sheep, by the blood of the eternal covenant, 21 make you complete in everything good so that you may do his will, working among us\textsuperscript{a} that which is pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom be the glory forever and ever. Amen.

22 I appeal to you, brothers and sisters,\textsuperscript{b} bear with my word of exhortation, for I have written to you briefly. 23 I want you to know that our brother Timothy has been set free; and if he comes in time, he will be with me when I see you. 24 Greet all your leaders and all the saints. Those from Italy send you greetings. 25 Grace be with all of you.\textsuperscript{c}

\textsuperscript{a} Other ancient authorities read you \textsuperscript{b} Gk brothers
\textsuperscript{c} Other ancient authorities add Amen
THE LETTER OF JAMES

NAME
The letter of James gets its name from the epistolary opening (1.1) that identifies the author by the Greek “Iako-bos” (from the common Jewish name “Jacob”) translated into English as “James.”

CANONICAL STATUS
The early fourth-century CE church historian Eusebius noted that the letter found slow acceptance into the Christian canon despite the fact that it was “regularly used in very many churches” as one of the “general epistles” (Hist. eccl. 2.23; 3.25). The Muratorian Canon (late second century) does not mention James, but the letter was included in Bishop Athanasius’s influential canon list ca. 367 CE. Its canonicity was then largely secure until the Protestant Reformation in the sixteenth century when Martin Luther moved it (along with Hebrews, Jude, and Revelation) to the end of the New Testament; in Luther’s view it lacked essential elements of the gospel. But John Calvin and Philip Melanchthon, like the Council of Trent (1546), defended both the canonical status and theological value of the letter.

AUTHORSHIP
From among the several individuals named “James” who figure prominently in the early church, Christian tradition has held that the opening salutation refers to the brother of Jesus (Mt 13.55; Mk 6.3; Gal 1.19) and who was a leader in the Jerusalem church (Gal 2.9; Acts 15.13). Yet scholars have challenged this identification since antiquity. Those who defend the tradition argue that only such a well-known figure could refer to himself as James without an additional epithet, and that the absence of any biographical details differs significantly from other works considered pseudepigraphical (cf. 2 Tim 4.9–18). Modern critics of authenticity often cite doubts voiced in the early church: indications the letter dates to after James’s martyrdom (ca. 62 CE), and a Greek literary style well beyond the likely capabilities of a Galilean villager. Recent commentators have suggested that material originating from James was reworked by a disciple after his martyrdom to create the letter as we know it. However, it remains possible that the author was an otherwise unknown James only later identified with Jesus’ brother.

DATE AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT
The letter offers no decisive clues as to the time of its composition. If the specific language that a person is “not [justified] by faith alone” (2.24) is a direct response to Paul’s assertion in Romans 3.28, it must be dated sometime later than ca. 57 CE. First Clement (ca. 95 CE), which shows some evidence of dependence on the text of James (compare 1 Clem. 30.3; 31.2 with Jas 2.14–26; 1 Clem. 29.1; 30.1–5 with Jas. 4.1–10), sets a latest possible date.

There are likewise no solid indications of the historical context that prompted the letter. The symbolic nature of addressing the recipients as the “twelve tribes” (see 1.1n.) raises the possibility that the language of “Dispersion” (1.1) is likewise symbolic (note the conclusion regarding the need to bring back anyone who “wanders from the truth,” 5.19–20; but cf. 1 Pet 1.1). Certainly the choice of these particular images together with the esteem for the “law” (Gk “nomos,” corresponding to Heb “torah”; 1.25; 2.8–12; 4.11), the reference to their “assembly” by Gk “synagoges” (lit., “synagogue”; 2.2), and the use of many examples from, as well as the style of, the Septuagint (LXX) convince most interpreters the letter was directed to ethnic Jews who believed Jesus was the Messiah/Christ (1.1; 2.1). Yet even these indicators are ambiguous. The Septuagint was scripture for both ethnically Gentile and Jewish Christian communities. Such writers as Ignatius, Hermas, Justin, Origen, and Eusebius used the terms “synagoges” and “ekklesia” (“church”) both in parallel and interchangeably for exclusively Gentile communities well after the first century. Though each factor may be inconclusive taken by itself, their cumulative presence in a letter by an author named Jacob/James makes it very likely the letter is the product of Jewish Christianity.

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS
Although the letter was once thought to be a loosely organized collection of teachings similar to the book of Proverbs, recent literary analyses using both ancient and modern approaches have converged on an un-
James, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ,
To the twelve tribes in the Dispersion:
Greetings.

² My brothers and sisters, whenever you face trials of any kind, consider it nothing but joy,³ because you know that the testing of your faith produces endurance;⁴ and let endurance have its full effect, so that you may be mature and complete, lacking in nothing.⁵ If any of you is lacking in wisdom, ask God, who gives to all generously and ungrudgingly, and it will be given you.⁶ But ask in faith, never doubting, for the one who doubts is like a wave of the sea, driven and tossed by the wind;⁷,⁸ for the doubter, being double-minded and unstable in every way, must not expect to receive anything from the Lord.⁹ Let the believer who is lowly boast in being raised up,¹⁰ and the rich in being brought low, because the rich will disappear like a flower in the field.¹¹ For the sun rises with its scorching heat and withers the field; its flower falls, and its beauty perishes. It is the same way with the rich; in the midst of a busy life, they will wither away.

1.1: Salutation. Servant of God and ... Christ, a unique dual designation in the New Testament, where identifications of people as either “servant of God” (Titus 1.1; 1 Pet 2.16; Rev 7.3), “of Christ” (Rom 1.1; Eph 6.6; Jude 1), or “of the Lord” (2 Tim 2.24) are common. Twelve tribes, symbolic reference to the church as a new Israel (cf. Rev 7.4–8). Dispersion, scattered either geographically (cf. 1 Pet 1.1) or symbolically (5.19–20n.).

1.2–11: Trials and wisdom. 2: Trials, or “temptations” as in 1.12 (Gk “peirasmos”). Consider, in Greek, either a command or statement of usual practice (“you considered”). 3: You know ... produces endurance, common teaching of Jewish wisdom tradition (cf. Rom 5.3–4). 4–5: Lacking in nothing ... lacking in wisdom, suggests against their view that wisdom is a gift from God rather than learned through “trials” (cf. 1 Kings 3). 6: Ask in faith, trusting God to give the “gift” (1.17) rather than “temptation” (1.13–14). 7–8: Double-minded, not knowing what God will do. 9–11: Reversal of fortunes between poor and rich (2.5; 5.1–3; cf. 1 Sam 2.7; Lk 6.20–26).
12 Blessed is anyone who endures temptation. Such a one has stood the test and will receive the crown of life that the Lord^a has promised to those who love him. 13 No one, when tempted, should say, “I am being tempted by God”; for God cannot be tempted by evil and he himself tempts no one. 14 But one is tempted by one’s own desire, being lured and enticed by it; 15 then, when that desire has conceived, it gives birth to sin, and that sin, when it is fully grown, gives birth to death. 16 Do not be deceived, my beloved. 17 Every generous act of giving, with every perfect gift, is from above, coming down from the Father of lights, with whom there is no variation or shadow due to change. 18 In fulfillment of his own purpose he gave us birth by the word of truth, so that we would become a kind of first fruits of his creatures. 19 You must understand this, my beloved, let everyone be quick to listen, slow to speak, slow to anger; 20 for your anger does not produce God’s righteousness. 21 Therefore rid yourselves of all sordidness and rank growth of wickedness, and welcome with meekness the implanted word that has the power to save your souls. 22 But be doers of the word, and not merely hearers who deceive themselves. 23 For if any are hearers of the word and not doers, they are like those who look at themselves in a mirror; 24 for they look at themselves and, on going away, immediately forget what they were like. 25 But those who look into the perfect law, the law of liberty, and persevere, being not hearers who forget but doers who act—they will be blessed in their doing.

26 If any think they are religious, and do not bridle their tongues but deceive their hearts, their religion is worthless. 27 Religion that is pure and undefiled before God, the Father, is this: to care for orphans and widows in their distress, and to keep oneself unstained by the world.

2 My brothers and sisters,^b do you with your acts of favoritism really believe in our glorious Lord Jesus Christ?^c For if a person with gold rings and in fine clothes comes into your assembly, and if a poor person in dirty clothes also comes in,^d and if you take notice of the one wearing the fine clothes and say, “Have a seat here, please,” while to the one who is poor you say, “Stand there,” or, “Sit at my feet,”^e have you not made distinctions among yourselves, and become judges with evil thoughts? 4 have you not made distinctions among yourselves, and become judges with evil thoughts? 5 Listen, my beloved brothers and sisters. Has not God chosen the poor in the world to be rich in faith and to be heirs of the kingdom that he has promised to those who love him? 6 But you have dishonored the poor. Is it not the rich who oppress you? Is it not they who drag you into not they who blaspheme the excellent name that was invoked over you?
James 3

You do well if you really fulfill the royal law according to the scripture, “You shall love your neighbor as yourself.” But if you show partiality, you commit sin and are convicted by the law as transgressors. For whoever keeps the whole law but fails in one point has become accountable for all of it. For the one who said, “You shall not commit adultery,” also said, “You shall not murder.” Now if you do not commit adultery but if you murder, you have become a transgressor of the law.

So speak and so act as those who are to be judged by the law of liberty. For judgment will be without mercy to anyone who has shown no mercy; mercy triumphs over judgment.

What good is it, my brothers and sisters, if you say you have faith but do not have works? Can faith save you? If a brother or sister is naked and lacks daily food, and you do not supply their bodily needs, what is the good of that?

So faith by itself, if it has no works, is dead. But if you show mercy, you senseless person, that faith apart from works is barren?

Was not our ancestor Abraham justified by works when he offered his son Isaac on the altar? You see that faith was active along with his works, and faith was brought to completion by the works.

Thus the scripture was fulfilled that says, “Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned to him as righteousness,” and he was called the friend of God. You see that a person is justified by works and not by faith alone. Likewise, was not Rahab the prostitute also justified by works when she welcomed the messengers and sent them out by another road?

For just as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is also dead.

Not many of you should become teachers, my brothers and sisters, for you know that we who teach will be judged with greater strictness. For all of us make many mistakes. Anyone who makes no mistakes in speaking is perfect, able to keep the whole body in check with a bridle. If we put bits into the mouths of horses to make them obey us, we guide their whole bodies. Or look at ships: though they are so large that it takes strong winds to drive them, yet they are guided by a very small rudder wherever the will of the pilot directs. So also the tongue is a small member, yet it boasts of great exploits.

How great a forest is set ablaze by a small fire! And the tongue is a fire. The tongue is placed among our members as a world of iniquity; it stains the whole body, sets on fire the cycle of nature, and is itself set on fire

a Gk brothers
b Or wheel of birth

2.14–26: Faith and works. 14: Works, or “deeds,” which may avoid overstating differences between James and Paul (see Introduction). Can faith save, i.e., faith only spoken about but not acted on cannot make one spiritually alive (see 2.17,26). 16: Keep warm and eat in Greek are passive verbs (“be warm and well fed”), expressing what one wants and expects God to do. Stating God’s desire for the needy, they fail to act on it (cf. 1.22). 18: James rejects separating faith and works, insisting on a both/and relationship between them. 21–22: Abraham’s works in offering Isaac (see Gen 22.1–19) may bring his faith . . . to completion by showing absolute trust in God’s promise that Isaac was the heir (cf. Heb 11.17–19). 23: Quoting Gen 15.6. Friend of God, contrast 4.4. 25: Rahab also acted on faith in God’s promise (Josh 2.8–13; cf. Heb 11.31).

3.1–18: Proper use of speech is teaching God’s wisdom. 1: Judged with greater strictness, both for consistency between words and actions, and for mercy toward others (2.12–13). 2: Perfect, or “mature” as in 1.4 (Greek “teleios”). 3–4: Bits and rudder exercise control far beyond what might be expected from their size because they express the will of the pilot or rider. 5: The tongue likewise expresses the person’s will and directs one’s actions (Lk 6.45). 6: Tongue is . . . set on fire by hell, destructive impact of will and actions opposed to God’s will (cf.

2122 | NEW TESTAMENT
by hell. 7 For every species of beast and bird, of reptile and sea creature, can be tamed and has been tamed by the human species, 8 but no one can tame the tongue—a restless evil, full of deadly poison. 9 With it we bless the Lord and Father, and with it we curse those who are made in the likeness of God. 10 From the same mouth come blessing and cursing. My brothers and sisters, 11 does a spring pour forth from the same opening both fresh and brackish water? 12 Can a fig tree, my brothers and sisters, yield olives, or a grapevine yield figs? No more can salt water yield fresh.

13 Who is wise and understanding among you? Show by your good life that your works are done with gentleness born of wisdom. 14 But if you have bitter envy and selfish ambition in your hearts, do not be boastful. 15 Such wisdom does not come down from above, but is earthly, unspiritual, devilish. 16 For where there is envy and selfish ambition, there will also be disorder and wickedness of every kind. 17 But the wisdom from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, willing to yield, full of mercy and good fruits, without a trace of partiality or hypocrisy. 18 And a harvest of righteousness is sown in peace for those who make peace.

Those conflicts and disputes among you, where do they come from? Do they not come from your cravings that are at war within you? 2 You want something and do not have it; so you commit murder. And you covet something and cannot obtain it; so you engage in disputes and conflicts. You do not have, because you do not ask. 3 You ask and do not receive, because you ask wrongly, in order to spend what you get on your pleasures. 4 Adulterers! Do you not know that friendship with the world is enmity with God? Therefore whoever wishes to be a friend of the world becomes an enemy of God. 5 Or do you suppose that it is for nothing that the scripture says, “God yearns jealously for the spirit that he has made to dwell in us”? 6 But he gives all the more grace; therefore it says, “God opposes the proud, but gives grace to the humble.” 7 Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. 8 Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, you sinners, and purify your hearts, you double-minded. 9 Lament and mourn and weep. Let your laughter be turned into mourning and your joy into dejection. 10 Humble yourselves before the Lord, and he will exalt you.

11 Do not speak evil against one another, brothers and sisters. 9 Whoever speaks evil against another or judges another, speaks evil against the law and judges the law; but if you judge the law, you are not a doer of the law but a judge. 12 There is one lawgiver and judge who is able to save and to destroy. So who, then, are you to judge your neighbor?

13 Come now, you who say, “Today or tomorrow we will go to such and such a town and spend a year there, doing business and making money.” 14 Yet you do not even know what tomorrow will bring. What is your life? For you are a mist that appears for a little while and then vanishes. 15 Instead you ought to say, “If the Lord wishes, we will live and do this or that.” 16 As it is, you boast in your arrogance; all such boasting is evil. 17 Anyone, then, who knows the right thing to do and fails to do it, commits sin.

Come now, you rich people, weep and wail for the miseries that are coming to you. 2 Your riches have rotted, and your clothes are moth-eaten. 3 Your gold and silver have rusted, and their rust will be evidence against you, and it will eat your flesh like fire. You have laid up treasure for the last days. 4 Listen! The wages of the laborers who mowed your fields, which you kept back by fraud, cry out, and the cries of the harvesters have reached the ears of the Lord of hosts.

You have lived on the earth in luxury and in pleasure; you have fattened your hearts in a day of slaughter. 6 You have condemned and murdered the righteous one, who does not resist you.

7 Be patient, therefore, beloved, until the coming of the Lord. The farmer waits for the precious crop from the earth, being patient with it until it receives the early and the late rains. 8 You also must be patient. Strengthen your hearts, for the coming of the Lord is near. 9 Beloved, do not grumble against one another, so that you may not be judged. See, the Judge is standing at the doors! 10 As an example of suffering and patience, beloved, take the prophets who spoke in the name of the Lord. 11 Indeed we call blessed those who showed endurance. You have heard of the endurance of Job, and you have seen the purpose of the Lord, how the Lord is compassionate and merciful.

12 Above all, my beloved, do not swear, either by heaven or by earth or by any other oath, but let your “Yes” be yes and your “No” be no, so that you may not fall under condemnation.

13 Are any among you suffering? They should pray. Are any cheerful? They should sing songs of praise. 14 Are any among you sick? They should call for the elders of the church and have them pray over them, Repentance in anticipation of the great reversal at the last day (see 1.9–10). 11: Not a doer of the law but a judge, the law properly rules over the readers (2.8; cf. 1.25). 12: God is able to save by changing one’s will (1.18,21) or to destroy by being left to one’s “desire . . . sin . . . [and] death” (1.14–15).

4.13–5.9: Coming judgment. 4.14: You do not . . . know, Christ’s return “is near” (5.8–9), but the precise time is unknown (Mk 13.32). Mist that . . . vanishes, the impermanence of this age and its ways of life (1.11). 15: If the Lord wishes, actions are properly determined by God’s will and word (1.22). 17: Theologically termed “sins of omission” arising from failing to do what one knows God desires (2.16n.). 5.2–4: Gold and silver have rusted, while these metals do not rust or corrode, the imagery suggests deterioration (rotted, moth-eaten; cf. Mt 6.19–21) from lack of use by both the rich and those from whom they have been kept back by fraud (cf. 2.15–16). Wages were to be paid daily according to Jewish law (Deut 24.14–15). 6: Condemned and murdered the righteous one, possibly a reference to Jesus’ crucifixion but more likely to the general mistreatment of the poor by the rich as elsewhere in the letter (2.6b–7; 5.4; cf. Sir 34.26–27). 7: Precious crop, possibly a sign of hope that repentance by the rich may yet lead to their inclusion in the spiritual harvest (5.19–20; cf. Mt 9.37–38).

5.10–20: Closing exhortations. The letter ends with brief exhortations to fulfill responsibilities to other members of the community. 10–11: As in 1.2–5 and 1.12–18, God’s purpose during times of endurance is not to put people through “trials” or “temptations” but to be compassionate and merciful. 12: If one’s actions are consistent with one’s words there will be no need for an oath (cf. Mt 5.33–37). 13–16: Both prayer and praise are here placed anointing them with oil in the name of the Lord. 15 The prayer of faith will save the sick, and the Lord will raise them up; and anyone who has committed sins will be forgiven.

16 Therefore confess your sins to one another, and pray for one another, so that you may be healed. The prayer of the righteous is powerful and effective. 17 Elijah was a human being like us, and he prayed fervently that it might not rain, and for three years and six months it did not rain on the earth. 18 Then he prayed again, and the heaven gave rain and the earth yielded its harvest.

19 My brothers and sisters, if anyone among you wanders from the truth and is brought back by another, 20 you should know that whoever brings back a sinner from wandering will save the sinner's soul from death and will cover a multitude of sins.

\[a \text{ Gk My brothers} \]
\[b \text{ Gk his} \]

in communal context. 15: Will save . . . will raise, these verbs can refer both to temporal physical healing and to spiritual salvation and resurrection at the end of the age; given other uses of save in the letter (1.21; 2.14; 4.12; 5.20), James probably intends both senses in this context. 17–18: Since Elijah (1 Kings 17; 18.41–45) was like us, he is a typical rather than extraordinary example (but see Jesus' remarks at Lk 4.25–27). 19–20: From wandering, lit., “from the error of his way,” recalling Rahab’s actions in saving herself and the messengers (2.25). Sinner’s, lit., “his,” referring either to one who wanders from the truth or whoever brings back the wanderer. If Rahab provides the pattern, the ambiguity may be deliberate and express James’s understanding of what the letter has accomplished.
THE FIRST LETTER OF PETER

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, AND DATE

The First Letter of Peter presents itself as a pastoral letter written by the apostle Peter from “Babylon,” where he is accompanied by Silvanus (= Silas) and Mark (5.12–13), to churches in five provinces of Asia Minor (1.1). Since it is addressed to churches in a large area, it was placed among the Catholic (or general) Letters, and its canonical status was never disputed, in contrast to 2 Peter.

Some scholars still treat Simon Peter as the letter’s author, with Silvanus as secretary (5.12); others consider Silvanus as the actual author, who wrote at Peter’s instruction. However, the situation that the letter indirectly describes points to a time after Peter’s death. Its language, style, content, and thought-world seem inappropriate to Peter, a Galilean fisherman and missionary to the Jews (Gal 2.9). The sophisticated Greek prose, the lack of references to the life and teaching of the earthly Jesus, the Christological emphasis on the cosmic Christ, and the address to Gentile Christians who had previously lived a sinful, idolatrous life (1.14, 18, 21; 2.1, 9–11, 25; 4.3) all point to a later disciple of Peter writing in the name of the revered apostle. Thus most scholars interpret the document as a letter from the last decade of the first century CE, written in Peter’s name to support the claim that its teaching represented the apostolic faith.

HISTORICAL CONTEXT

The letter itself claims to be written by a presbyter (elder; 5.1) of the Roman church—the “Babylon” of 5.13 was a common cryptogram for Rome at the end of the first century (cf., e.g., Rev 17.5, 9; 18.2,10,21). The references to Silvanus and Mark, both known companions of Paul (1 Thess 1.1; Philem 24), are part of a literary picture that combines elements of Pauline tradition with the figure of Peter. First Peter contains numerous points of contact with Paul’s letters (compare, e.g. 2.1–5 and Rom 12.1; 2.7–10 and Rom 9–11; 2.13–14 and Rom 13.1–7). The Pauline letter form itself, including its distinctive structure and expressions, is adopted by 1 Peter (see 1.1–2n.; 4.10n.). The letter thus represents the combination of Pauline and Petrine traditions in the church of Rome at the end of the first century, set forth in a pastoral letter to churches struggling in difficult social situations.

STRUCTURE

The structure of First Peter represents an adaptation of the Pauline letter form: epistolary greeting (1.1–2); thanksgiving (1.3–12); the body of the letter (1.13–5.11) portraying the new identity of the people of God (1.13–2.10), Christian conduct in the given structures of society (2.11–3.12), and responsible suffering in the face of society (3.13–5.11); epistolary conclusion (5.12–14).

CONTENTS AND INTERPRETATION

First Peter is a real letter, a cohesive composition, and not, as some scholars have thought, a baptismal homily to which epistolary elements were added secondarily. The letter addresses a critical situation in the lives of the recipients, who once participated in the social and cultural life of their communities, but since their conversion to Christ are marginalized and abused. The society to which they once belonged now considers them an unwelcome, even dangerous sectarian movement (cf. Acts 28.22—“the sect everywhere spoken against”). While Christians are called to suffer “for the name” (4.15–16), the abuse is mostly verbal (2.22–23; 3.9–12,16). The positive attitude toward the state (2.13–17) suggests that there is as yet no overt government persecution, except perhaps for occasional arbitrary acts by subordinate officials. First Peter offers realistic encouragement and instruction to Christians attempting to live faithfully in such a situation.

The author does not present a programmatic theological essay, but the instructions he gives are based on theological reflection, expressed indirectly by the narrative world the letter projects: God created the world (4.19), God chose an elect people (2.9–10), God sent the Christ who was rejected by humans but exalted by God (2.4), God sent the Spirit and Christian evangelists who established a new people of God and converted the addressees (1.12), and God will send Christ in the near future to conduct the final judgment (1.7,13; 4.7). Christians live their lives in the time between Christ’s resurrection and return. The Christological pattern of suffering and rejection is foundational for the ethic 1 Peter commends: just as Christ was misunderstood and suffered... unjustly for the sake of others, so Christians are now called to follow “in his steps” (2.21). Just as all Christians are instructed to respect the government authorities (2.13–17), so the most vulnerable Christians, slaves of unbelieving masters and wives of unbelieving husbands, are instructed to fit uncomplainingly into the given structures of society as a testimony to the faith (2.18–3.6). Such behavior may convert the oppressor (3.1–2), but if not it is still following the example set by Christ and will be vindicated soon at the last judgment (4.5–7).

M. Eugene Boring

Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ,
To the exiles of the Dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, 2 who have been chosen and destined by God the Father and sanctified by the Spirit to be obedient to Jesus Christ and to be sprinkled with his blood:

May grace and peace be yours in abundance. ³ Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ! By his great mercy he has given us a new birth into a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, ⁴ and into an inheritance that is imperishable, undefiled, and unfading, kept in heaven for you, ⁵ who are being protected by the power of God through faith for a salvation ready to be revealed in the last time. ⁶ In this you rejoice, ⁷ even if now for a little while you have had to suffer various trials, ⁸ so that the genuineness of your faith—being more precious than gold that, though perishable, is tested by fire—may be found to result in praise and glory and honor when Jesus Christ is revealed. ⁹ Although you have not seen him, you love him; and even though you do not see him now, you believe in him and rejoice with an indescribable and glorious joy, ⁹ for you are receiving the outcome of your faith, the salvation of your souls. ¹⁰ Concerning this salvation, the prophets who prophesied of the grace that was to be yours made careful search and inquiry, ¹¹ inquiring about the person or time that the Spirit of Christ within them indicated when it testified in advance to the sufferings destined for Christ and the subsequent glory. ¹² It was revealed to them that they were serving not themselves but you, in regard to the things that have now been announced to you through those who brought you good news by the Holy Spirit sent from heaven—things into which angels long to look! ¹³ Therefore prepare your minds for action; ¹⁴ discipline yourselves; set all your hope on the grace that Jesus Christ will bring you when he is revealed. ¹⁵ Like obedient children, do not be conformed to the desires that you formerly had in ignorance. ¹⁶ Instead, as

¹.1–2: Salutation. The author adapts the form used by Paul (see Rom 1.1–7n.). ¹: An apostle is an authorized representative. Exiles of the Dispersion, applying images of Israel to Christians (see Jas 1.1n.). Pontus . . . Bithynia, Roman provinces in Asia Minor. ²: A proto-Trinitarian formula. Obedience and being sprinkled with his blood are covenant language (see Ex 24.3–8).

¹.3–12: Thanksgiving. As in 2 Cor 1.3 and Eph 1.3, the customary thanksgiving (see Rom 1.8–15n.) becomes a doxological expression of praise that constitutes the theological basis for the imperatives to follow. ³: Hope expresses the present confidence in the reality of future redemption founded on the resurrection of Jesus Christ. New birth is related to baptism (see 1.23; 2.2; 3.20–22; John 3.3–5). ⁵: Salvation ready to be revealed at the end time. The present experience has a future consummation. The believer does not go “up” to heaven, but “forward” to the future reward to be revealed at the last time. ¹²: The readers’ Christian lives, though beset with difficulties (1.6; 2.19–24; 3.14–15; 4.12–19; 5.10) represent the climax of God’s plan for the ages, which even the prophets and the angels could only long to share.

¹.13–5.11: Body of the letter, a unified whole, although incorporating elements of earlier biblical and Christian tradition.

¹.13–2.10: The new identity as the elect and holy people of God. The preceding indicative statements of God’s mighty acts lead to imperatives for the Christian life. ¹.13: In the Greek text, the first imperative in the he who called you is holy, be holy yourselves in all your conduct; it is written, “You shall be holy, for I am holy.”

If you invoke as Father the one who judges all people impartially according to their deeds, live in reverent fear during the time of your exile. You know that you were ransomed from the futile ways inherited from your ancestors, not with perishable things like silver or gold, but with the precious blood of Christ, like that of a lamb without defect or blemish. He was destined before the foundation of the world, but was revealed at the end of the ages for your sake. Through him you have come to trust in God, who raised him from the dead and gave him glory, so that your faith and hope are set on God.

Now that you have purified your souls by your obedience to the truth so that you have genuine mutual love, love one another from the heart. You have been born anew, not of perishable but of imperishable seed, through the living and enduring word of God.

For “All flesh is like grass and all its glory like the flower of grass. The grass withers, and the flower falls, but the word of the Lord endures forever.” That word is the good news that was announced to you.

Rid yourselves, therefore, of all malice, and all guile, insincerity, envy, and all slander. Like newborn infants, long for the pure, spiritual milk, so that by it you may grow into salvation—if indeed you have tasted that the Lord is good.

Come to him, a living stone, though rejected by mortals yet chosen and precious in God’s sight, and like living stones, let yourselves be built into a spiritual house, to be a holy priesthood, to offer spiritual sacrifices acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. For it stands in scripture: “See, I am laying in Zion a stone, a cornerstone chosen and precious; and whoever believes in him will not be put to shame.” To you then who believe, he is precious; but for those who do not believe, “The stone that the builders rejected has become the very head of the corner,” and “A stone that makes them stumble, and a rock that makes them fall.” They stumble because they disobey the word, as they were destined to do. But you are a chosen race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, God’s own people, in order that you may proclaim the mighty acts of him who called you out of darkness into his marvelous light.

Once you were not a people, but now you are God’s people; once you had not received mercy, but now you have received mercy.

Beloved, I urge you as aliens and exiles to abstain from the desires of the flesh that letter is the command to hope for Christ’s triumphant appearance. The second imperative to be holy means to live a life set apart for God’s service, though in the midst of the world. Quoting Lev 11.44–45; 19.2; 20.7. The third imperative is to live in reverent fear of God rather than of the oppressive culture (cf. 2.17; 3.14). Lamb without . . . blemish, see Ex 12.5; Lev 23.12; Num 6.14; etc. Christian faith is theocentric, in God who has acted definitively in Christ. The fourth imperative is the command of love, unselfish caring for others (see Mt 22.34–40; Rom 13.8–10; 1 Cor 13). The fifth imperative is to long for the means of spiritual nourishment so that they may grow (2.2). After the new birth comes nurture that leads to maturity. Ps 3.4.8:Ps 118.22; Isa 28.16; Mt 21.42. The imagery shifts from birth and growth to the construction of a spiritual house (temple) and then to a holy priesthood. The images of the Christian life are communal rather than individualistic. Isa 28.16 7:Ps 118.22 8: Isa 8.14–15. 9–10: Hos 2.23; Ex 19.6. Chosen race . . . royal priesthood . . . holy nation . . . God’s own people, biblical language for Israel is applied to the readers, who were formerly Gentiles (1.18).
wage war against the soul. 12 Conduct yourselves honorably among the Gentiles, so that, though they malign you as evildoers, they may see your honorable deeds and glorify God when he comes to judge. 13 For the Lord’s sake accept the authority of every human institution, whether of the emperor as supreme, or of governors, as sent by him to punish those who do wrong and to praise those who do right. 14 For it is God’s will that by doing right you should silence the ignorance of the foolish. 15 As servants of God, live as free people, yet do not use your freedom as a pretext for evil. 16 Honor everyone. Love the family of believers. Fear God. Honor the emperor.

18 Slaves, accept the authority of your masters with all deference, not only those who are kind and gentle but also those who are harsh. 19 For it is a credit to you if, being aware of God, you endure pain while suffering unjustly. 20 If you endure when you are beaten for doing wrong, what credit is that? But if you endure when you do right and suffer for it, you have God’s approval. 21 For to this you have been called, because Christ also suffered for you, leaving you an example, so that you should follow in his steps.

22 “He committed no sin, and no deceit was found in his mouth.” 23 When he was abused, he did not return abuse; when he suffered, he did not threaten; but he entrusted himself to the one who judges justly. 24 He himself bore our sins in his body on the cross, so that, free from sins, we might live for righteousness; by his wounds you have been healed. 25 For you were going astray like sheep, but now you have returned to the shepherd and guardian of your souls.

2.11–12: Christian existence and conduct in society. Cf. Col 3.18–4.1; Eph 5.22–6.9; Titus 2.1–10; 1 Tim 2–3; 5.1–3. The Roman empire, the institution of slavery, and the patriarchal family are accepted as the present order of things that is soon to pass away (see 1.17; 2.11; 4.7). 2.11–12: Christian conduct within social structures is to be a testimony to others. 13–17: Instructions to all on the proper attitude to God, the state, and each other. Governors, of provinces of the Roman empire. 17: Cf. Rom 13.7. 18–25: Instructions to slaves, leading to more general comments addressed to a wider audience (cf. 3.8–12n.). Though resembling the typical household codes of Hellenistic moralists, the author’s instruction is based on the example of Christ who suffered unjustly, in words that reflect the suffering servant of Isa 53.5–12. 22: Isa 53.9. 3.1–7: Instructions to wives and husbands. 1: Unbelieving husbands may be converted without preaching or argument by the Christian example of their wives; cf. 1 Cor 7.12–16. 6: See Gen 18.12 (where NRSV translates the word for “lord” as “husband”). 8–12: Concluding instructions to all. The more vulnerable members of the church, slaves and wives, are examples of the conduct let them keep their tongues from evil and their lips from speaking deceit;
11 let them turn away from evil and do good; let them seek peace and pursue it.

12 For the eyes of the Lord are on the righteous, and his ears are open to their prayer. But the face of the Lord is against those who do evil."

13 Now who will harm you if you are eager to do what is good? 14 But even if you do suffer for doing what is right, you are blessed. Do not fear what they fear, 15 and do not be intimidated, 16 but in your hearts sanctify Christ as Lord. Always be ready to make your defense to anyone who demands from you an accounting for the hope that is in you; 17 yet do it with gentleness and reverence. 18 Keep your conscience clear, so that, when you are maligned, those who abuse you for your good conduct in Christ may be put to shame. 19 For it is better to suffer for doing good, if suffering should be God’s will, than to suffer for doing evil.

18 For Christ also suffered for sins once for all, the righteous for the unrighteous, in order to bring you to God. He was put to death in the flesh, but made alive in the spirit, 20 in which he went and made a proclamation to the imprisoned evil spirits 21 after his resurrection to announce his own victory (cf. Gen 6.1–4 as interpreted in 1 Enoch 10.4–6). The picture is unrelated to 4.6 and the “descent to the world of the dead” of the Apostles’ Creed. 20: Noah, see Gen 6–8. Eight persons, Noah and his wife, and his three sons and their wives. 22: See Eph 1.20; Heb 1:3.

4 Since therefore Christ suffered in the flesh, arm yourselves also with the same intention (for whoever has suffered in the flesh has finished with sin), 2 so as to live for the rest of your earthly life no longer by human desires but by the will of God. 3 You have already spent enough time in doing what the Gentiles like to do, living in licentiousness, passions, drunkenness, revels, carousing, and lawless idolatry. 4 They are surprised that you no longer join them in the same excesses of dissipation, and so they blaspheme. 5 But they will have to give an accounting to him who stands ready to judge the living and the dead.

7 The end of all things is near; therefore be serious and discipline yourselves for the sake of your prayers. 8 Above all, maintain constant love for one another, for love covers a mul-

4.1–6: Application to the Christian life. 3: As in 2.9–10, the church is the continuing people of God, and outsiders are Gentiles. 6: The dead are probably Christians who heard the gospel while they were alive.

4.7–11: Eschatological exhortation. 9: Cf. Heb 13.2; 3 Jn 5–8. 10: Gift is the distinctive Pauline word “chatitude of sins. 9 Be hospitable to one another without complaining. 10 Like good stewards of the manifold grace of God, serve one another with whatever gift each of you has received. 11 Whoever speaks must do so as one speaking the very words of God; whoever serves must do so with the strength that God supplies, so that God may be glorified in all things through Jesus Christ. To him belong the glory and the power forever and ever. Amen.

12 Beloved, do not be surprised at the fiery ordeal that is taking place among you to test you, as though something strange were happening to you. 13 But rejoice insofar as you are sharing Christ’s sufferings, so that you may also be glad and shout for joy when his glory is revealed. 14 If you are reviled for the name of Christ, you are blessed, because the spirit of glory, which is the Spirit of God, is resting on you. 15 But let none of you suffer as a murderer, a thief, a criminal, or even as a mischief maker. 16 Yet if any of you suffers as a Christian, do not consider it a disgrace, but glorify God because you bear this name. 17 For the time has come for judgment to begin with the household of God; if it begins with us, what will be the end for those who do not obey the gospel of God? 18 And ‘If it is hard for the righteous to be saved, what will become of the ungodly and the sinners?’”

19 Therefore, let those suffering in accordance with God’s will entrust themselves to a faithful Creator, while continuing to do good.

5 Now as an elder myself and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, as well as one who shares in the glory to be revealed, I exhort the elders among you 2 to tend the flock of God that is in your charge, exercising the oversight, not under compulsion but willingly, as God would have you do it—not for sordid gain but eagerly. 3 Do not lord it over those in your charge, but be examples to the flock. 4 And when the chief shepherd appears, you will win the crown of glory that never fades away. 5 In the same way, you who are younger must accept the authority of the elders. 6 And all of you must clothe yourselves with humility in your dealings with one another, for “God opposes the proud, but gives grace to the humble.” 7 Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, so that he may exalt you in due time. 8 Cast all your anxiety on him, because he cares for you. 9 Discipline yourselves, keep alert. Like a roaring lion your adversary the devil prowls around, looking for someone to devour. 10 Resist him, steadfast in your faith, for you know that your brothers and sisters in all the world are undergoing the same kinds of suffering. 11 And after you have suffered for a little while, the God of all grace, who has called you to his eternal glory in Christ, will himself restore, support, strengthen, and establish you. 12 To him be the power forever and ever. Amen.

12 Through Silvanus, whom I consider a faithful brother, I have written this short letter to encourage you and to testify that this is the true grace of God. Stand fast in it. 13 Your sister church in Babylon, chosen together with you, sends you greetings; and so does my son Mark. 14 Greet one another with a kiss of love.

Peace to all of you who are in Christ.

risma,” found outside the Pauline tradition only here in the New Testament.

5.1–11: Concluding exhortation. 1: Elders, church officials (Acts 14.23; 20.17–38; Jas 5.14; 2 Jn 1; 3 Jn 1). 5: Prov 3.34.

5.12–14: Conclusion of the Letter. Silvanus and Mark were companions of Paul (Acts 15.22; 2 Cor 1.19; Phil 24). Babylon was a cryptic name for Rome (Rev 17.1).

NEW TESTAMENT | 2131
THE SECOND LETTER OF PETER

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, AND DATE
Like 1 Peter, 2 Peter is named for its supposed author, Simon Peter, the most prominent figure among the twelve apostles of Jesus. But there is little historical or literary evidence to connect the author of this letter either to Simon Peter or to the author of 1 Peter. The author wrote in the name of Peter, not to transmit a particular form of tradition associated with him, but to defend the common apostolic tradition of the church against a challenge to that tradition. Such pseudepigraphical attribution is frequent in the Bible and in other ancient literatures. The writer takes pains to appeal to the teaching of the apostles (3.2), explicitly including Paul’s letters as apostolic (3.15–16). Second Peter was likely written from Rome at the end of the first century CE or the beginning of the second, and is probably the latest book of the New Testament.

CANONICAL STATUS
The place of this letter among the Catholic Epistles (those addressed to all Christians rather than to specific churches or individuals) was contested in the early church, and it was excluded from Syriac translations until the fourth century CE, when it became widely accepted. Its canonicity was again challenged during the Reformation.

LITERARY FORM AND BACKGROUND
Second Peter has the typical form of a letter (see p. 1973), except that it lacks the customary final greeting. It also has characteristics of a testament, the last words of advice and warning given by a patriarch to his children before his death; see especially 1.12–14, and compare Paul’s final address to the elders of the church in Ephesus (Acts 20.17–35). Testaments are usually a third-person narrative, and conclude with an account of the patriarch’s death; 2 Peter, however, is presented as a first-person, written delivery of the final words of Peter to all who share his faith (1.1). The writer uses a rhetorical style, characterized by grandiose language, and draws on a rich cultural heritage, including the Hebrew Bible, Jewish exegetical traditions, Hellenistic philosophical speculation, traditions about Jesus, a collection of Paul’s letters, and the letter of Jude.

Second Peter has a direct literary relationship to the letter of Jude. Its author freely borrowed the language and content of the letter to Jude, as these parallels show:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>2 Peter</th>
<th>Jude</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>2.1</td>
<td>4</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.4</td>
<td>6</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.6</td>
<td>7</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.10a</td>
<td>7–8</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.10b–11</td>
<td>8–9</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.12</td>
<td>10</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.13</td>
<td>12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.15</td>
<td>11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.17</td>
<td>12–13, 16</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.2</td>
<td>17</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3.3</td>
<td>18</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

CONTENTS AND INTERPRETATION
Second Peter is characterized by an apocalyptic vision of this world as corrupt—because of lust (1.4)—and bound for destruction. It urges the reader to escape by means of the knowledge of Christ and of God and to pursue virtues based on the all-sufficient promises and gifts of God and achieved through knowledge and remembering (1.1–11). The goal is to participate in the divine nature (1.4) and to enter the eternal kingdom (1.11).
1 Simeon⁴ Peter, a servant⁵ and apostle of Jesus Christ,
To those who have received a faith as precious as ours through the righteousness of our God and Savior Jesus Christ:⁶ ² May grace and peace be yours in abundance in the knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord. ³ His divine power has given us everything needed for life and godliness, through the knowledge of him who called us by his own glory and goodness. ⁴ Thus he has given us, through these things, his precious and very great promises, so that through them you may escape from the corruption that is in the world because of lust, and may become participants of the divine nature. ⁵ For this very reason, you must make every effort to support your faith with goodness, and goodness with knowledge, ⁶ and knowledge with self-control, and self-control with endurance, and endurance with godliness, ⁷ and godliness with mutual affection, and mutual affection with love. ⁸ For if these things are yours and are increasing among you, they keep you from being ineffective and unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. ⁹ For anyone who lacks these things is short-sighted and blind, and is forgetful of the cleansing of past sins. ¹⁰ Therefore, brothers and sisters,⁹ be all the more eager to confirm your call and election, for if you do this, you will never stumble. ¹¹ For in this way, entry into the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ will be richly provided for you. ¹² Therefore I intend to keep on reminding you of these things, though you know them already and are established in the truth that has come to you. ¹³ I think it right, as long as I am in this body, ¹⁴ to refresh your memory,

These exhortations are based on the authority of Peter’s final testament (1:12–15); the heavenly voice (1:16–18); and scripture (1:19–21). Chapter 2 is a warning against false teachers whose condemnation is contrasted with the salvation of the righteous. The writer’s opponents are characterized using language drawn from the letter of Jude and from polemical arguments against Epicurean philosophy. One cannot infer details about the identity of the “false teachers” (2:1) beyond noting that the writer found appropriate ammunition in these two sources.

Chapter 3 warns against denying the future coming of the Lord and twisting the meaning of Paul’s letters. As in earlier Jewish traditions, the flood in the time of Noah is seen as an earlier, lesser destruction of the earth which anticipated the ultimate final destruction. As the flood was followed by a restoration of life on earth, so there will be “new heavens and a new earth, where righteousness is at home” (3:13). Those who await these events should abstain from the defilement of the world, avoid being led astray by the error of the lawless, and grow in grace and knowledge.

Patrick A. Tiller

1.1–2: Salutation, see Rom 1.1–7n. 1: Simeon is Peter’s Hebrew name, which more frequently occurs as Simon (e.g., Mt 4.18).
1.3–11: Opening exhortation. The major themes of the letter are introduced: knowledge of God and of Jesus, effort (variously translated as “be eager,” “make every effort,” or “strive”), stability (confirm), godliness, corruption, lust, and remembering. The readers should exchange this corrupt world (1:4; cf. 2.20) for the eternal kingdom (1:11) by means of the knowledge of God (1.3), the promises of God (1.4), and earnest moral striving (1.5–7). 4: The divine nature refers primarily to immortality, which is the opposite of corruption.
1.12–21: Three solemn appeals. The writer uses Peter’s final words before his death, the Transfiguration of Jesus, and prophetic scripture to reinforce the reliability of the message. 12–15: The reference to Peter’s death transforms the letter into a kind of testament in which a dying person gives ethical advice and warnings to his 14 since I know that my death will come soon, as indeed our Lord Jesus Christ has made clear to me. 15 And I will make every effort so that after my departure you may be able at any time to recall these things.

16 For we did not follow cleverly devised myths when we made known to you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we had been eyewitnesses of his majesty. 17 For he received honor and glory from God the Father when that voice was conveyed to him by the Majestic Glory, saying, “This is my Son, my Beloved, with whom I am well pleased.” 18 We ourselves heard this voice come from heaven, while we were with him on the holy mountain.

19 So we have the prophetic message more fully confirmed. You will do well to be attentive to this as to a lamp shining in a dark place, until the day dawns and the morning star rises in your hearts. 20 First of all you must understand this, that no prophecy of scripture is a matter of one’s own interpretation, 21 because no prophecy ever came by human will, but men and women moved by the Holy Spirit spoke from God. 2

But false prophets also arose among the people, just as there will be false teachers among you, who will secretly bring in destructive opinions. They will even deny the Master who bought them—bringing swift destruction on themselves. 2 Even so, many will follow their licentious ways, and because of these teachers the way of truth will be maligned. 3 And in their greed they will exploit you with deceptive words. Their condemnation, pronounced against them long ago, has not been idle, and their destruction is not asleep.

4 For if God did not spare the angels when they sinned, but cast them into hell and committed them to chains of deepest darkness to be kept until the judgment; 5 and if he did not spare the ancient world, even though he saved Noah, a herald of righteousness, with seven others, when he brought a flood on a world of the ungodly; 6 and if by turning the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah to ashes he condemned them to extinction and made them an example of what is coming to the ungodly; 7 and if he rescued Lot, a righteous man greatly distressed by the licentiousness of the lawless (for that righteous man, living among them day after day, was tormented in his righteous soul by their lawless deeds that he saw and heard), 8 then the Lord knows how to rescue the godly from trial, and to keep the unrighteous under punishment until the day of judgment 10—especially those who were to be ungodly.
who indulge their flesh in depraved lust, and who despise authority.

Bold and willful, they are not afraid to slander the glorious ones, whereas angels, though greater in might and power, do not bring against them a slanderous judgment from the Lord. These people, however, are like irrational animals, mere creatures of instinct, born to be caught and killed. They slander what they do not understand, and when those creatures are destroyed, they also will be destroyed, suffering the penalty for doing wrong. They count it a pleasure to revel in the daytime. They are bLOTS and blemishes, reveling in their dissipation while they feast with you. They have eyes full of adultery, insatiable for sin. They entice unsteady souls. They have hearts trained in greed. Accursed children! They have left the straight road and have gone astray, following the road of Balaam son of Beor, who loved the wages of doing wrong, but was rebuked for his own transgression; a speechless donkey spoke with a human voice and restrained the prophet’s madness.

These are waterless springs and mists driven by a storm; for them the deepest darkness has been reserved. For they speak bombastic nonsense, and with licentious desires of the flesh they entice people who have just escaped from those who live in error. They promise freedom, but they themselves are slaves of corruption; for people are slaves to whatever masters them. For if, after they have escaped the defilements of the world through the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, they are again entangled in them and overpowered, the last state has become worse for them than the first. For it would have been better for them never to have known the way of righteousness than, after knowing it, to turn back from the holy commandment that was passed on to them. It has happened to them according to the true proverb, “The dog turns back to its own vomit,” and, “The sow is washed only to wallow in the mud.”

This is now, beloved, the second letter I am writing to you; in them I am trying to arouse your sincere intention by reminding you that you should remember the words spoken in the past by the holy prophets, and the commandment of the Lord and Savior spoken through your apostles. First of all you must understand this, that in the last days scoffers will come, scoffing and indulging their own lusts and saying, “Where is the promise of his coming? For ever since our ancestors died, all things continue as they were from the beginning of creation!” They deliberately ignore this fact, that by the word of God heavens existed long ago and an earth judgment from (or before) the Lord. 15–16: The account of Balaam’s sin (see Num 22.7,21–35), as in Jude, is taken directly from postbiblical Jewish traditions, which uniformly make Balaam a greedy villain. 17–18: The seemingly excessive piling up of accusations functions as the necessary and proportionate response to the dangers inherent in their false teachings. 19: Slaves of corruption, compare Rom 6.6,16; 8.21; John 8.34. 21: Mt 12.45; Lk 11.26. 22: The first quotation is from Prov 26.11; the second is from an unknown source.

3.1–13: A defense of the expectation of the coming of Christ. The most troublesome of the false teachings is that the present world will continue eternally. These scoffers were predicted long ago by the prophets and by the Lord. Furthermore, from God’s point of view, the delay is not long at all, and it is motivated by God’s patience and desire for repentance. 3: Indulging their own lusts, if there is no judgment, then one may do as one pleases. 5–13: The flood (Gen 6–8) destroyed the first world and made way for the present one. In the same way, fire will destroy the present world, and a third world will replace it. The destruction of the earth by fire, a concept well known in Jewish tradition, is here described in the language of Stoic philosophical speculation. 4: Our ancestors are probably the biblical patriarchs since Adam. 5: They deliberately ignore in contrast to the repeated exhortation to remember (1.9,12–15; 3.1–2.8). On creation by God’s word, and an original watery state, see Gen was formed out of water and by means of water, through which the world of that time was deluged with water and perished. But by the same word the present heavens and earth have been reserved for fire, being kept until the day of judgment and destruction of the godless.

But do not ignore this one fact, beloved, that with the Lord one day is like a thousand years, and a thousand years are like one day. The Lord is not slow about his promise, as some think of slowness, but is patient with you, not wanting any to perish, but all to come to repentance. But the day of the Lord will come like a thief, and then the heavens will pass away with a loud noise, and the elements will be dissolved with fire, and the earth and everything that is done on it will be disclosed.

Since all these things are to be dissolved in this way, what sort of persons ought you to be in leading lives of holiness and godliness, waiting for and hastening the coming of the day of God, because of which the heavens will be set ablaze and dissolved, and the elements will melt with fire? But, in accordance with his promise, we wait for new heavens and a new earth, where righteousness is at home.

Therefore, beloved, while you are waiting for these things, strive to be found by him at peace, without spot or blemish; and regard the patience of our Lord as salvation. So also our beloved brother Paul wrote to you according to the wisdom given him, speaking of this as he does in all his letters. There are some things in them hard to understand, which the ignorant and unstable twist to their own destruction, as they do the other scriptures. You therefore, beloved, since you are forewarned, beware that you are not carried away with the error of the lawless and lose your own stability. But grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To him be the glory both now and to the day of eternity. Amen.
THE FIRST LETTER OF JOHN

NAME
Ancient manuscripts title this work “the first letter of John” even though its literary form is not that of an ancient letter (see pp. 1973-74). Its author provides no greeting or conclusion in which he identifies himself or its recipients. Yet repeated references to writing (1.4; 2.1,7–8,12–14,21,26) and the two letters attributed to the same author (2–3 John) provided early scribes with the title.

CANONICAL STATUS AND AUTHORSHIP
First John opens with echoes of the prologue to the Gospel of John (compare 1.1–4 and Jn 1.1–18) and focuses its ethical teaching on the love command, which Jesus gives his disciples at the Last Supper in the Gospel (Jn 13.31–35; 1 Jn 3.11–17,23; 4.7–21). It came into the Christian canon as an authoritative interpretation of the Gospel.

The anonymous voice of 1 John was identified with the author of the Fourth Gospel by the end of the second century ce (Eusebius, Hist. eccl. iii.39.17; Muratorian Canon, lines 26–31; Irenaeus, Adv. Haer. 3.16.5). Since the Gospel was attributed to the apostle John, the son of Zebedee, early Christians concluded that he had composed 1 John near the end of his long life (Jn 21.22–23). Modern scholars have a more complex view of the development of the Johannine community and its writings. The opening verses of 1 John employ a first person plural “we” as witnesses to the truth revealed in Jesus (1.1–4). That “we” probably refers to a circle of teachers faithful to the apostolic testimony of the Beloved Disciple and evangelist. A prominent member of that group composed this introduction.

DATE AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT
The earliest allusions to 1 John occur in the mid-second century ce (Polycarp, To the Philippians 6.3; 7.1; compare 1 Jn 4.2–3; also used by Papias according to Eusebius, Hist. eccl. iii. 36,1–2). Irenaeus (ca. 180 ce) cites 1 John explicitly. The date of 1 John depends upon its relationship to the Gospel of John. Its author employs language, images, and themes evocative of the Gospel but does not cite it as a text. Therefore it is possible to imagine that the Gospel as we know it had not yet taken its final form when 1 John was written. A date around 100 ce is plausible. Other scholars focus on the fact that 1 John appears less theologically developed than the Gospel in some respects. Attributes such as “light” and “life” are associated with God rather than the Son. Concern for forgiveness of sin and salvation in the final judgment has not been transformed by the Gospel’s picture of the presence of eternal life in the believer. They conclude that 1 John should be dated earlier than the Gospel.

Although theological differences make 1 John appear to be earlier, the author’s concerns suggest a historical context later than that of the Gospel. Jews and their hostility to faith in Jesus as Son of God, a major element in the Gospel (see Jn 9.13–41; 10.31–39), have disappeared from the discussion. So have references to the Hebrew Bible. Instead, the community has been shaken by schism (1 Jn 2.18–19). Those who have departed from the fellowship are said to be denying the reality of Jesus’ coming in the flesh (1.1–4; 4.1–3) and the saving significance of the death (“blood”) of Jesus (5.6). In addition, 1 John describes a communal discipline of prayer for members who sin (5.16–17). Therefore 1 John speaks to a historical setting later than the Gospel. A community that had been unified through a period of persecution by Jewish authorities has split over interpretation of Jesus and salvation. Its author seeks to reassure readers that they possess the truth revealed through Jesus.

LITERARY HISTORY
The rhetorical power of 1 John stems from its appeals to received tradition shared by the author and his readers. The phrase “what was from the beginning” (1.1) not only imitates the Gospel opening (Jn 1.1) but the teaching that follows (2.7,21,24; 3.11). Since 1 John does not speak to specific details of the readers’ situation as letters usually do, or develop a sustained theological argument as Paul does in his letters, some scholars suggest that it was assembled from earlier written traditions. Often a core that concludes at 2.29 is thought to have been... supplemented with the homiletic reflections on love and polemic against dissidents in the remaining chapters. First John 5.13 concludes the work in a fashion similar to the Gospel. Therefore 1 John 5.14–21 appear to be an epilogue added to the completed work.

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS

First John lacks a clearly defined structure that carries its argument from the opening witness to the shared tradition (1.1–4) to the concluding statement of purpose (5.13) and appended remarks (5.14–21). Fellowship with the author and other Johannine witnesses requires belief in the teachings presented, which alternate between truths about the coming of Jesus and ethical exhortation focused on holiness and love within the community. Both aspects of the tradition are threatened by dissidents, who are characterized as “antichrists” emblematic of the evils predicted for the last days (4.1–6). The author often concludes one reflection and begins the next in the same sentence, so it is not entirely clear how to divide the units that comprise the work even when looking at verbal clues such as “I am writing” or “this is the message” or direct address to the readers such as “little children” or “beloved.” The outline in the annotations is based on thematic shifts. Another proposal finds a repetition of the macrostructure of the Gospel in 1 John: prologue (1.1–4; Jn 1.1–18); God’s light, truth, and life present in darkness (1.5–2.29; Jn 1.19–12.50); the Father’s beloved children, the love command, and Spirit abiding with the community (3.1–5.12; Jn 13.1–17.26); blood and water at the cross (5.6–8; Jn 19.34–35); conclusion (5.13; Jn 20.31) and epilogue (5.14–21; Jn 21).

INTERPRETATION

First John speaks only indirectly about the views of dissidents as denying truths about Jesus as messiah (2.22–23), as coming in the flesh (4.2), and as bringing salvation through his death (5.6). The author treats their departure from the communion of Johannine believers as a violation of the love command equivalent to Cain murdering his brother (3.11–12). In addition, 1 John corrects false understandings of sin, holiness, and forgiveness (1.5–2.6). Christians are reminded that their obligation to love one another is grounded not only in God’s command (2.7–17) but in God’s nature as love (4.7–12). At least some readers need to be reassured about their salvation on the day of judgment (3.18–24). The community is encouraged to rely on the Spirit it has received from God (2.26–27). Interpreters face the problem of how to fit these varied concerns into a framework. Should they all be considered as responses to the false teaching of dissidents? Or is the author speaking to diverse concerns? In the latter perspective, the schism may be viewed as a crisis that had undermined confidence in other areas that had not been challenged by the false teachers.

Even if the false teachers had claimed the Spirit as basis for an interpretation of Jesus that in some way denied his humanity and his saving death, it remains difficult to decide how to situate such claims theologically. Irenaeus employed 1 John to refute the sharp divide between the Jesus of the Gospels and the Savior/Christ of various Gnostic teachers. Some scholars see the opponents of 1 John in the figure of Cerinthus (ca. 100 CE). He argued that the divine Christ descended upon the righteous man, Jesus, at his baptism and bestowed the Spirit, enabling Jesus to work miracles. Jesus also revealed a previously unknown Father, the true God superior to the creator of Genesis 1. Since the divine cannot suffer, Christ departed from Jesus prior to his death on the cross (see Irenaeus, Adv. Haer. 1.26.1). Such a theological position suits the hints that false teachers deny that Jesus is a messiah in the flesh as well as the comment that they accept a coming in water (= baptism) as salvific but not “water and blood” (= cross). But if 1 John had a Gnostic such as Cerinthus in view, one would expect some opposition to the depiction of God as “unknown Father” distinct from the creator. If the opponents cannot be identified with a known group or teaching, then the best one can say is that their views about Jesus and salvation were presented as teaching based on the Fourth Gospel.

Even without quoting the Gospel, the thick texture of Johannine allusions in 1 John provides its readers with an authentic understanding of the evangelist’s message. But since the most important part of the Gospel for readers of 1 John is the Farewell Discourses (Jn 13–17), their emphasis on unity (15.1–10; 17.6–19) must have heightened the crisis of faith posed by a schism. Did the breakup among believers undermine the promise of eternal life through union with the Father and Son at the heart of their faith? First John replies by denying that those who left ever really belonged to the community. Their departure broke the mutual bond of love that lies at the heart of its union with God. The author also retrieved an apocalyptic tradition depicting the rise of false prophets, schism, and even false messiahs in a satanic attempt to delude the righteous in the last days (2.22;
We declare to you what was from the beginning, what we have heard, what we have seen with our eyes, what we have looked at and touched with our hands, concerning the word of life—
² this life was revealed, and we have seen it and testify to it, and declare to you the eternal life that was with the Father and was revealed to us—
³ we declare to you what we have seen and heard so that you also may have fellowship with us; and truly our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ.
⁴ We are writing these things so that our joy may be complete.
⁵ This is the message we have heard from him and proclaim to you, that God is light and in him there is no darkness at all.
⁶ If we say that we have fellowship with him while we are walking in darkness, we lie and do not do what is true;
⁷ but if we walk in the light as he himself is in the light, we have fellowship with one another, and the blood of Jesus his Son cleanses us from all sin.
⁸ If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us.
⁹ If we confess our sins, he who is faithful and just will forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness.
¹⁰ If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word is not in us.

2 My little children, I am writing these things to you so that you may not sin. But if anyone does sin, we have an advocate with

1.1–4: Introduction. 1–2: From the beginning echoes the opening of John’s Gospel (Jn 1.1–18) in which Jesus is the Word made flesh, life, and light. Here beginning refers to the beginning of Christian faith. We, teachers in the community, charged with handing on the tradition. Heard, seen, looked at, touched insist on the human reality of the Son against false teachers (see Introduction). 3–4: Fellowship with the Father and Son and abiding joy are signs of genuine Christian community in the Johannine tradition (Jn 15.11; 17.13).

1.5–10: Holiness in the community. 5: Light is a common symbol for the holiness and perfection of God (Ps 4.6; Isa 60.1–2). God’s light guides the righteous (Ps 27.1). 6–7: No one can claim fellowship with God who does not follow God’s commands (Jn 3.19; 1 Jn 2.11). Christians do not claim to be perfect. Jesus’ death has brought forgiveness of sins (cf. Rev 1.5; 5.9). 8–10: False teachers, who reject the saving death of Jesus (see Introduction), may have claimed that true believers were sinless. Such teaching makes God a liar (v. 10). The wicked have false views about God and sin (Ps 53).

2.1–6: Christ our advocate. 1–2: A similar image of the risen Christ interceding for believers describes Christ as high priest in Heb 4.15–5.4. Here Christ is the advocate, who defends the faithful in the divine court (for the
the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous; 2 and he is the atoning sacrifice for our sins, and not for ours only but also for the sins of the whole world.

3 Now by this we may be sure that we know him, if we obey his commandments. 4 Whoever says, “I have come to know him,” but does not obey his commandments, is a liar, and in such a person the truth does not exist; 5 but whoever obeys his word, truly in this person the love of God has reached perfection. By this we may be sure that we are in him: 6 whoever says, “I abide in him,” ought to walk just as he walked.

7 Beloved, I am writing you no new commandment, but an old commandment that you have had from the beginning; the old commandment is the word that you have heard. 8 Yet I am writing you a new commandment that is true in him and in you, because 9 the darkness is passing away and the true light is already shining. 10 Whoever says, “I am in the light,” while hating a brother or sister, 11 is still in the darkness.

12 Whoever loves a brother or sister 12 lives in the light, and in such a person there is no cause for stumbling. 13 But whoever hates another believer is in the darkness, walks in the darkness, and does not know the way to go, because the darkness has brought on blindness.

13 I am writing to you, fathers, because you know him who is from the beginning. I am writing to you, young people, because you have conquered the evil one. 14 I write to you, children, because you know the Father. I write to you, fathers, because you know him who is from the beginning. I write to you, young people, because you are strong and the word of God abides in you, and you have overcome the evil one.

15 Do not love the world or the things in the world. The love of the Father is not in those who love the world; 16 for all that is in the world—the desire of the flesh, the desire of the eyes, the pride in riches—comes not from the Father but from the world. 17 And the world and its desire are passing away, but those who do the will of God live forever.

18 Children, it is the last hour! As you have heard that antichrist is coming, so now many antichrists have come. From this we know that it is the last hour.

Holy Spirit as advocate see Jn 14.15–16). 3–5: Knowledge of God requires obedience to God’s commandments (cf. Ezek 36.26–27). 6: Jesus exemplifies the love which is God’s commandment (Jn 13.1; 15.11–13).

2.7–11: The love commandment. 7: I am writing you repeats 2.1. Fidelity to Christ’s new commandment to love one another (Jn 13.34) is freedom from sin. 8: The true light is already shining echoes the portrayal of Jesus as light of the world in the Gospel (Jn 8.12; 9.5; 12.35–36).

2.12–17: Victory over evil. 12–14: A rhythmic series of phrases reminds all from the youngest (or newest) members to the most senior (little children . . . fathers . . . young people) that they share Christ’s victory over the world and its ruling power, the evil one (see Jn 12.31; 16.11,33b). 15–17: Jesus came to save the world (2.2; Jn 3.16), but the world also represents false values, love of wealth or honor, and passions that separate people from God and one another (3.17).

2.18–29: Victory over false teaching. 18–23: Many antichrists have come refers to the secessionists as agents of the evil one, trying to deceive God’s people (v. 18; 4.1–3). The appearance of such false prophets signals the last hour in apocalyptic texts (Mt 24.4–5.24; CD 5.20; T. Moses 7.4; Rev 20.10). The term “antichrist” occurs in the New Testament only in 1–2 John. It may be a variant of the “false messiah” (Gk “pseudochristos”) in the Synoptic apocalypse (Mk 13.22; Mt 24.24). The figure of an opponent of God who arises in the last days combines the image of the mythical chaos monster defeated by God (Isa 27.1; 51.9; Ps 74.13; Job 26.12), the figure of Satan as an angelic adversary (Zech 3.1; Dan 12.1; Jub. 1.20; 1QS 1.18; 3.20–21), a human ruler who embodies evil out from us, but they did not belong to us; for if they had belonged to us, they would have remained with us. But by going out they made it plain that none of them belongs to us. 20 But you have been anointed by the Holy One, and all of you have knowledge. 21 I write to you, not because you do not know the truth, but because you know it, and you know that no lie comes from the truth. 22 Who is the liar but the one who denies that Jesus is the Christ? 23 This is the antichrist, the one who denies the Father and the Son. 24 No one who denies the Son has the Father; everyone who confesses the Son has the Father also. 25 Let what you heard from the beginning abide in you. If what you heard from the beginning abides in you, then you will abide in the Son and in the Father. 26 And this is what he has promised us, eternal life.

26 I write these things to you concerning those who would deceive you. 27 As for you, the anointing that you received from him abides in you, and so you do not need anyone to teach you. But as his anointing teaches you about all things, and is true and is not a lie, and just as it has taught you, abide in him. 28 And now, little children, abide in him, so that when he is revealed we may have confidence and not be put to shame before him at his coming.

29 If you know that he is righteous, you may be sure that everyone who does right has been born of him. 30 See what love the Father has given us, that we should be called children of God; and that is what we are. The reason the world does not know us is that it did not know him. 31 Beloved, we are God’s children now; what we will be has not yet been revealed. What we do know is this: when he is revealed, we will be like him, for we will see him as he is. 32 And all who have this hope in him purify themselves, just as he is pure.

3 Everyone who commits sin is guilty of lawlessness; sin is lawlessness. 4 You know that he was revealed to take away sins, and in him there is no sin. 5 No one who abides in him sins; no one who sins has either seen him or known him. 6 Little children, let no one deceive you. Everyone who does what is right is righteous, just as he is righteous. 7 Everyone who commits sin is a child of the devil; for the devil has been sinning from the beginning. The Son of God was revealed for this purpose, to destroy the works of the devil. 8 Those who have been born of God do not sin, because God’s seed abides in them; they cannot sin, because they have been born of God. 9 The children of God and the children of the devil are revealed in this way: all who do not do what is right are not from God, nor are those who do not love their brothers and sisters.

10 For this is the message you have heard from the beginning, that we should love one another. 11 We must not be like Cain who was from the evil one and murdered his brother. And why did he murder him? Because his own deeds were evil and his brother’s righteous. 12 Do not be astonished, brothers and sisters, that the world hates you. 13 We know that we have passed from death to life because we love one another. Whoever does not love abides in death.

_Dan 8.25; Ezek 38.1; 39.6; 2 Macc 9.12; 2 Esd 5.6–13_, and the false prophet (Deut 13.2–6; 18.30). 24–27: The Holy Spirit (“the Holy One,” v. 20) present within the community (“anointing that you received”) enables believers to distinguish true faith from lies about Jesus (Jn 14.26; 16.13). 28–29: _At his coming_ refers to Christ coming in judgment. Those who remain true to the Johannine teaching have nothing to fear (cf. Jn 3.36).

3.1–10: God’s children are holy. 1–3: As God’s children, believers become like Christ (Jn 1.12–13; 13.15–16; 17.16–19). 4–6: Jesus’ coming has taken away the sin of those who remain faithful (1.5–2.2), 7–8: Those who are deceived about sin (2.1) become children of the devil (cf. Jn 8.44). 9–10: God’s seed, the Holy Spirit (2.26–27), and mutual love (Jn 13.35) distinguish God’s children.

3.11–18: Moral examples. 11: See 2.7. 12: Cain shows that hating a brother leads to murder (Gen 4.8). 13–14: Though righteous like Abel, believers should expect to be hated by outsiders (Jn 15.18–19). 15: The phrase, _do..._ a brother or sister are murderers, and you know that murderers do not have eternal life abiding in them. 16 We know love by this, that he laid down his life for us—and we ought to lay down our lives for one another. 17 How does God’s love abide in anyone who has the world’s goods and sees a brother or sister in need and yet refuses help?

18 Little children, let us love, not in word or speech, but in truth and action. 19 And by this we will know that we are from the truth and will reassure our hearts before him 20 whenever our hearts condemn us; for God is greater than our hearts, and he knows everything. 21 Beloved, if our hearts do not condemn us, we have boldness before God; 22 and we receive from him whatever we ask, because we obey his commandments and do what pleases him.

23 And this is his commandment, that we should believe in the name of his Son Jesus Christ and love one another, just as he has commanded us. 24 All who obey his commandments abide in him, and he abides in them. And by this we know that he abides in us, by the Spirit that he has given us.

4 Beloved, do not believe every spirit, but test the spirits to see whether they are from God; for many false prophets have gone out into the world. 2 By this you know the Spirit of God: every spirit that confesses that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh is from God, 3 and every spirit that does not confess Jesus is not from God. This is the spirit of the antichrist, of which you have heard that it is coming; and now it is already in the world. 4 Little children, you are from God, and have conquered them; for the one who is in you is greater than the one who is in the world. 5 They are from the world; therefore what they say is from the world, and the world listens to them. 6 We are from God. Whoever knows God listens to us, and whoever is not from God does not listen to us. From this we know the spirit of truth and the spirit of error.

7 Beloved, let us love one another, because love is from God; everyone who loves is born of God and knows God. 8 Whoever does not love does not know God, for God is love. 9 God’s love was revealed among us in this way: God sent his only Son into the world so that we might live through him. 10 In this is love, not that we loved God but that he loved us and sent his Son to be the atoning sacrifice for our sins. 11 Beloved, since God loved us so much, we also ought to love one another. 12 No one has ever seen God; if we love one another, God lives in us, and his love is perfected in us.

13 By this we know that we abide in him and he in us, because he has given us of his Spirit. 14 And we have seen and do testify that the Father has sent his Son as the Savior of the world. 15 God abides in those who confess that Jesus is the Son of God, and they abide in God. 16 So we have known and believe the love that God has for us.

not have eternal life abiding in them, invites readers to apply this lesson to the secessionists. Their break with the community is equivalent to murder (4.5; cf. Mt 5.21–22). 16–18: Jesus’ death is the supreme example of love (Jn 13.1; 15.9,13).

4.1–6: Testing spirits. 1–3: Since false teachers can appear genuine (cf. Mt 7.15–23), Christians must test such persons by their faith in Jesus (cf. 1 Cor 12.1–3). The dissidents changed the Johannine tradition by denying that Christ has come in the flesh (4.6). 4–6: The Holy Spirit verifies 1 John as testimony to the true Johannine tradition (cf. Jn 16.13–14). 5: The world listens could imply that the dissident teachers enjoy more success than the Johannine circle (cf. Jn 15.19).

4.7–21: God’s love as the basis of salvation. 7–9: Believers are to imitate the love God has shown in sending the Son to give life (3.16–22; Jn 3.16). 10–12: God’s love has been shown in the death of Jesus (Jn 13.1). It is the basis of the love command (Jn 15.12–13). 12: See Jn 1.18; 6.46. 13–16a: See 3.23–24. 14: See Jn 4.42. 16b–18: God is love (4.8; cf. Rom 8.32,39; 1 Cor 13.11). When Christian life corresponds to the nature of God (1.5–7), there is no
God is love, and those who abide in love abide in God, and God abides in them. 17 Love has been perfected among us in this: that we may have boldness on the day of judgment, because as he is, so are we in this world.

18 There is no fear in love, but perfect love casts out fear; for fear has to do with punishment, and whoever fears has not reached perfection in love. 19 We love because he first loved us. 20 Those who say, “I love God,” and hate their brothers or sisters, are liars; for those who do not love a brother or sister whom they have seen, cannot love God whom they have not seen. 21 The commandment we have from him is this: those who love God must love their brothers and sisters also.

5 Everyone who believes that Jesus is the Christ 4 has been born of God, and everyone who loves the parent loves the child. 2 By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and obey his commandments. 3 For the love of God is this, that we obey his commandments. And his commandments are not burdensome, 4 for whatever is born of God conquers the world. And this is the victory that conquers the world, our faith. 5 Who is it that conquers the world but the one who believes that Jesus is the Son of God?

6 This is the one who came by water and blood, Jesus Christ, not with the water only but with the water and the blood. And the Spirit is the one that testifies, for the Spirit is the truth. 7 There are three that testify: the Spirit and the water and the blood, and these three agree. 9 If we receive human testimony, the testimony of God is greater; for this is the testimony of God that he has testified to his Son. 10 Those who believe in the Son of God have the testimony in their hearts. Those who do not believe in God 7 have made him a liar by not believing in the testimony that God has given concerning his Son. 11 And this is the testimony: God gave us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. 12 Whoever has the Son has life; whoever does not have the Son of God does not have life.

13 I write these things to you who believe in the name of the Son of God, so that you may know that you have eternal life.

14 And this is the boldness we have in him, that if we ask anything according to his will, he hears us. 15 And if we know that he hears us in whatever we ask, we know that we have obtained the requests made of him. 16 If you see your brother or sister committing what is not a mortal sin, you will ask, and God 6 will give life to such a one—to those whose sin is not mortal. There is sin that is mortal; I do not wish to speak of it.

reason to fear God's judgment (2.1–6,28; 3.18–20). 19: 4,7,11. 20: Love shown to others demonstrates true knowledge and love for God (2.3–11; 3.23–24). 21: Those who love God must love their brothers and sisters also.

5.1–13: Concluding appeal to keep the true faith. 1–3: Belief in Jesus as the messiah (the Christ) (4.2–3; Jn 1.12–13; 20.31) and mutual love (4.20–21; Jn 13.35) are the hallmarks of the true Johannine community. 2: We know that we love the children of God, when we love God and obey his commandments. 3: For the love of God is this, that we obey his commandments. And his commandments are not burdensome, for whatever is born of God conquers the world. And this is the victory that conquers the world, our faith.

5.14–21: Epilogue. Sin and forgiveness in the community. 14–15: God's children can be certain that God will hear their prayers (3.21–22; Jn 14.14–16; 15.16; 16.23–24; Mt 18.19–20). 16–17: Communal prayer can elicit God's forgiveness and restore sinners (2.1–2; Mt 18.15–20; Jas 5.15b,19–20). To those whose sin is not mortal distinguishes a category of sin that cannot be forgiven. Elsewhere such sin is denying that God's Spirit is working through Jesus (Mk 3.28–30) or apostasy (Heb 6.4–6). Here the expression probably refers to those who have separated not say that you should pray about that. 17 All wrongdoing is sin, but there is sin that is not mortal.

18 We know that those who are born of God do not sin, but the one who was born of God protects them, and the evil one does not touch them. 19 We know that we are God’s children, and that the whole world lies under the power of the evil one. 20 And we know that the Son of God has come and has given us understanding so that we may know him who is true; a and we are in him who is true, in his Son Jesus Christ. He is the true God and eternal life.

21 Little children, keep yourselves from idols. b

---

a Other ancient authorities read know the true God
b Other ancient authorities add Amen

themselves from the Johannine community. They no longer dwell with God or have the Spirit (2.19–25). 18: See 3.8–10. 19: See 2.12–15; 5.4–5. 20: Him who is true probably refers to the knowledge of the true God as some manuscripts suggest (see textual note a and cf. Jn 1.18; 14.7,9–10). Knowledge of the true God (Father and Son) confers eternal life (Jn 17.3). 21: In a general sense, keep yourselves from idols probably refers to the false gods of non-Christian neighbors (Jn 10.14). Traveling missionaries were to reject non-Christian hospitality (3 Jn 7). In this context, the phrase may refer to association with the secessionists and their teaching (2 Jn 7–9).
THE SECOND LETTER OF JOHN

NAME
Titled “the second (letter) of John” in ancient codices, this short letter belonged to a collection led by 1 John.

CANONICAL STATUS AND AUTHORSHIP
By the fourth century CE (Eusebius, Hist. eccl. ii.23.25) three Johannine “letters” along with four others said to be written by apostles were included in the canon as “catholic” or universal. Some second-century Christians identified the “elder” (v. 1) with the apostle John, the son of Zebedee, considered the author of the Gospel and 1 John (cf. Peter as “fellow elder” in 1 Pet 5.1). However, Papias distinguished between John, the disciple, and another, the “elder.” Most contemporary scholars identify the elder as the Johannine teacher who composed 1 John.

DATE AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT
Since 2 John refers to dissident teaching like that opposed in 1 John, it must have been written during the crisis provoked by the schism in the Johannine churches (ca. 100 CE). Because the elder warns the recipients against receiving dissident teachers, some scholars date 2 John earlier than the definitive break in 1 John. Others hold that the schism that had occurred in the city from which the elder writes (Ephesus) had not yet occurred in outlying regions.

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS
Second John follows the conventions of a private letter: opening greeting identifies sender, addressees (vv. 1–3); letter body, beginning with an expression of joy at how recipients are faring, and concluding with future plans (vv. 4–12); final greeting from sender and associates to recipients (v. 13).

INTERPRETATION AND GUIDE TO READING
The letter opens with a summary of the mutual love that was the hallmark of Johannine Christians (Jn 13.34–35). It serves the ancient rhetorical standard of enlisting the goodwill of an audience at the beginning of a speech. The business of the letter follows, a warning against false teachers and the demand that no one associate with them in any way (vv. 7–11).

The elder’s harsh treatment of false teachers strikes modern readers as contradicting the earlier teaching on mutual love. If 2 John was written when the full impact of the schism described in 1 John was being felt, this requirement could be viewed differently. To the elder it appeared necessary to quarantine other churches against this disease. Some scholars think that a copy of 1 John was sent along with this letter.

Pheme Perkins
The elder to the elect lady and her children, whom I love in the truth, and not only I but also all who know the truth, because of the truth that abides in us and will be with us forever:

Grace, mercy, and peace will be with us from God the Father and from Jesus Christ, the Father's Son, in truth and love.

I was overjoyed to find some of your children walking in the truth, just as we have been commanded by the Father. But now, dear lady, I ask you, not as though I were writing you a new commandment, but one we have had from the beginning, let us love one another. And this is love, that we walk according to his commandments; this is the commandment just as you have heard it from the beginning—you must walk in it.

Many deceivers have gone out into the world, those who do not confess that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh; any such person is the deceiver and the antichrist! Be on your guard, so that you do not lose what we have worked for, but may receive a full reward. Everyone who does not abide in the teaching of Christ, but goes beyond it, does not have God; whoever abides in the teaching has both the Father and the Son. Do not receive into the house or welcome anyone who comes to you and does not bring this teaching; for to welcome is to participate in the evil deeds of such a person.

Although I have much to write to you, I would rather not use paper and ink; instead I hope to come to you and talk with you face to face, so that our joy may be complete.

The children of your elect sister send you their greetings.

¹¹ The elder to the elect lady and her children, whom I love in the truth, and not only I but also all who know the truth, because of the truth that abides in us and will be with us forever:

3 Grace, mercy, and peace will be with us from God the Father and from Jesus Christ, the Father's Son, in truth and love.

4 I was overjoyed to find some of your children walking in the truth, just as we have been commanded by the Father. But now, dear lady, I ask you, not as though I were writing you a new commandment, but one we have had from the beginning, let us love one another. And this is love, that we walk according to his commandments; this is the commandment just as you have heard it from the beginning—you must walk in it.

7 Many deceivers have gone out into the world, those who do not confess that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh; any such person is the deceiver and the antichrist! Be on your guard, so that you do not lose what we have worked for, but may receive a full reward. Everyone who does not abide in the teaching of Christ, but goes beyond it, does not have God; whoever abides in the teaching has both the Father and the Son. Do not receive into the house or welcome anyone who comes to you and does not bring this teaching; for to welcome is to participate in the evil deeds of such a person.

Although I have much to write to you, I would rather not use paper and ink; instead I hope to come to you and talk with you face to face, so that our joy may be complete.

The children of your elect sister send you their greetings.

¹¹ The elder to the elect lady and her children, whom I love in the truth, and not only I but also all who know the truth, because of the truth that abides in us and will be with us forever:

3 Grace, mercy, and peace will be with us from God the Father and from Jesus Christ, the Father's Son, in truth and love.

4 I was overjoyed to find some of your children walking in the truth, just as we have been commanded by the Father. But now, dear lady, I ask you, not as though I were writing you a new commandment, but one we have had from the beginning, let us love one another. And this is love, that we walk according to his commandments; this is the commandment just as you have heard it from the beginning—you must walk in it.

7 Many deceivers have gone out into the world, those who do not confess that Jesus Christ has come in the flesh; any such person is the deceiver and the antichrist! Be on your guard, so that you do not lose what we have worked for, but may receive a full reward. Everyone who does not abide in the teaching of Christ, but goes beyond it, does not have God; whoever abides in the teaching has both the Father and the Son. Do not receive into the house or welcome anyone who comes to you and does not bring this teaching; for to welcome is to participate in the evil deeds of such a person.

Although I have much to write to you, I would rather not use paper and ink; instead I hope to come to you and talk with you face to face, so that our joy may be complete.

The children of your elect sister send you their greetings.
THE THIRD LETTER OF JOHN

NAME
The title given in ancient manuscripts identifies this private letter with 1–2 John, which circulated more widely.

CANONICAL STATUS AND AUTHORSHIP
Though included in canon lists of the fourth century CE, 3 John was not widely used, perhaps because it is addressed to an individual, not a church. Identification of the “elder” (v. 1) with the author of 2 John is supported by the nearly identical concluding verses of the two letters. In antiquity 1–3 John were attributed to the apostle John, the son of Zebedee, as was the Gospel. Modern scholars distinguish the author of 1–3 John from the evangelist.

DATE AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT
The social setting of Johannine churches presumed in 2 and 3 John is similar, although there is no hint of the secessionist controversy in the latter. The “elder” lives in a church (possibly at Ephesus) with ties to other house churches in the surrounding region. Christian missionaries depended upon the hospitality of house churches when they traveled (cf. Rom 16.1–2). Diotrephes, apparently the head of such a church, had refused to receive emissaries associated with the elder. This letter seeks such support from another Christian in the same region, Gaius.

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS
Third John follows the model of the ancient letter: an opening greeting from sender to recipient followed by the health wish (vv. 1–4); letter body (vv. 3–12); conclusion with travel plans and additional greetings (vv. 13–15). Rhetorically the body opens with praise for the recipient’s well-known hospitality to traveling Christians (vv. 5–8) before addressing the business at hand (vv. 9–12).

INTERPRETATION AND GUIDE TO READING
In ancient diplomacy, refusing hospitality to an envoy was an insult to the sender. Third John does not indicate what led Diotrephes to prohibit members of his house church from having anything to do with persons sent by the elder (vv. 9–10). Some interpreters have seen a dispute between the elder, a teacher in the Johannine school, and an emerging monarchic episcopacy. Others propose that the elder is on the receiving end of the policy he had proposed to exclude false teachers in 2 John 10–11. From the letter itself, one can only infer that Gaius has no personal relationship with Diotrephes and that when Diotrephes rejected envoys from the elder, he was refusing to participate in their mission.

Whatever the basis for Diotrephes’ lack of hospitality, 3 John provides a glimpse into the early Christian mission ca. 100 CE. Personal networks of hospitality maintained by traveling envoys linked small house church communities together. Travelers preferred the hospitality of believers to that of outsiders (v. 7).

Pheme Perkins
The elder to the beloved Gaius, whom I love in truth.

Beloved, I pray that all may go well with you and that you may be in good health, just as it is well with your soul. I was overjoyed when some of the friends arrived and testified to your faithfulness to the truth, namely how you walk in the truth. I have no greater joy than this, to hear that my children are walking in the truth.

Beloved, you do faithfully whatever you do for the friends, even though they are strangers to you; they have testified to your love before the church. You will do well to send them on in a manner worthy of God; for they began their journey for the sake of Christ, accepting no support from non-believers. Therefore we ought to support such people, so that we may become co-workers with the truth.

I have written something to the church; but Diotrephes, who likes to put himself first, does not acknowledge our authority. So if I come, I will call attention to what he is doing in spreading false charges against us. And not content with those charges, he refuses to welcome the friends, and even prevents those who want to do so and expels them from the church.

Beloved, do not imitate what is evil but imitate what is good. Whoever does good is from God; whoever does evil has not seen God. Everyone has testified favorably about Demetrius, and so has the truth itself. We also testify for him, and you know that our testimony is true.

I have much to write to you, but I would rather not write with pen and ink; instead I hope to see you soon, and we will talk together face to face.

Peace to you. The friends send you their greetings. Greet the friends there, each by name.

1–4: Letter opening and health wish. This secular opening (contrast 2 Jn 1–3) indicates that this is a private letter, not a communication read to an assembled church (contrast Philem 1–3). My children is the elder’s designation for Christians in fellowship with his teaching (1 Jn 2.1).

5–12: Letter body. 5–8: Rhetorically the elder enlists the good will of Gaius, whom he does not know personally, by praising the reputation he has gained among traveling missionaries for hospitality. The axiom that such hospitality gains a share in the good work of evangelization was common in early Christianity (see Phil 4.10–20; Mt 10.40–42). 9–11: The elder asks Gaius to supply his associates with the hospitality that Diotrephes has recently refused. Does not acknowledge our authority is diplomatic language for not receiving the envoy sent by an authority. It does not mean that the elder once had direct authority over Diotrephes or that house church. 12: A note of recommendation for Demetrius, who may have carried the letter (cf. Rom 16.1–2).

\(\text{a} \quad \text{Gk brothers}\)

\(\text{b} \quad \text{Gk for the sake of the name}\)

\(\text{c} \quad \text{Gk the Gentiles}\)

\(\text{d} \quad \text{Gk lacks for him}\)
THE LETTER OF JUDE

NAME, AUTHORSHIP, AND DATE
This letter is named for its author Jude, identified in v. 1 as the brother of James, who was Jesus’ brother and leader of the Jerusalem church (Gal 1.19). The author himself is not identified either as Jesus’ brother (see Mt 13.55; Mk 6.3) or as Judas Thomas (Jesus’ twin in the Syrian Acts of Thomas), as might be expected if the attribution to Jude were a later claim to Jude’s authority. This may indicate that the letter was written by Jude. On the other hand, attribution of authorship to a major figure is well attested in the Bible and in other ancient literature. The date of composition is uncertain. It must be earlier than 2 Peter, which uses Jude (see p. 2132). The reference to “the predictions of the apostles” (v. 17) suggests a period when the apostles were a well-known group from the past. If so, a date late in the first century CE is likely, although some scholars have dated the letter as early as the 50s.

CANONICAL STATUS
The place of this letter among the Catholic Epistles (those addressed to all Christians rather than to specific churches or individuals) was contested in the early church, and it was excluded from Syriac translations until the fourth century CE, when it became widely accepted. Its canonicity was again challenged during the Reformation.

LITERARY FORM AND BACKGROUND
Jude has the typical form of a letter (see p. 1973), except that it lacks the customary final greeting. It uses a variety of biblical and nonbiblical sources; prominent among the latter is 1 Enoch, a collection of apocalyptic writings attributed to Enoch (Gen 5.21–24) but written from the third century BCE to the first century CE. The author of the letter considered these writings to be authoritative, but it would be anachronistic to suppose that he considered them canonical.

Nothing can be known about the specific occasion for which the letter was written, or about the identity of the author’s opponents since they are described in standard language taken from polemical rhetoric.

CONTENTS AND INTERPRETATION
The purpose of the letter is to encourage those to whom it is addressed “to contend for the faith” by maintaining moral purity against those who “pervert the grace of our God into licentiousness” (vv. 3–4). The rhetorical strategy is to warn people of God’s judgment on the lustful, blasphemous, arrogant, greedy, rebellious opponents and to contrast it with the mercy of God for those who remain loyal to the faith as delivered by the apostles.

The letter is organized in concentric circles. It begins with a standard letter greeting and ends with an elaborate and beautiful prayer (vv. 24–25). Within these two formal elements are two exhortations: one to “contend for the faith” (v. 3), and one to keep oneself “in the love of God” (v. 21) and have “mercy” on others who are erring (vv. 22–23). Between these two exhortations, a series of biblical and nonbiblical stories and prophecies are presented as evidence of the error and eventual doom of the opponents. This material incorporates an interpretation of selected judgment scenes from Genesis and Exodus (vv. 5–8) with a note on Michael the archangel (vv. 9–10), an interpretation of selected errors from Genesis and Numbers (vv. 11–13), an application of the prophecy of 1 Enoch 1.9 to the opponents (vv. 14–16), and an application of apostolic prophecy (vv. 17–19). In each case the transition from citation to interpretation is marked by the word “these” as subject of the sentence: “these dreamers” (v. 8); “these people” (v. 10); “these” (vv. 12,16).

Patrick A. Tiller
JUDE

1 Jude, a servant of Jesus Christ and brother of James,
To those who are called, who are beloved in God the Father and kept safe for Jesus Christ:

2 May mercy, peace, and love be yours in abundance.

3 Beloved, while eagerly preparing to write to you about the salvation we share, I find it necessary to write and appeal to you to contend for the faith that was once for all entrusted to the saints. 4 For certain intruders have stolen in among you, people who long ago were designated for this condemnation as ungodly, who pervert the grace of our God into licentiousness and deny our only Master and Lord, Jesus Christ.

5 Now I desire to remind you, though you are fully informed, that the Lord, who once for all saved a people out of the land of Egypt, afterward destroyed those who did not believe. 6 And the angels who did not keep their own position, but left their proper dwelling, he has kept in eternal chains in deepest darkness for the judgment of the great day. 7 Likewise, Sodom and Gomorrah and the surrounding cities, which, in the same manner as they, indulged in sexual immorality and pursued unnatural lust, serve as an example by undergoing a punishment of eternal fire.

8 Yet in the same way these dreamers also defile the flesh, reject authority, and slander the glorious ones. 9 But when the archangel Michael contended with the devil and disputed about the body of Moses, he did not dare to bring a condemnation of slander against him, but said, “The Lord rebuke you!” 10 But these people slander whatever they do not understand, and they are destroyed by those things that, like irrational animals, they know by instinct. 11 Woe to them! For they go the way of Cain, and abandon themselves to Balaam’s error for the sake of gain, and perish in Korah’s rebellion. 12 These are blemishes on your love-feasts, while they feast with you without fear, feeding themselves. They are waterless clouds carried along by the winds; autumn trees without fruit, twice dead, up-rooted; wild waves of the sea, casting up the foam of their own shame; wandering stars, servants of darkness for the judgment of the great day.

1–2: Salutation. See Rom 1.1–7n.
3–4: Occasion. The writer writes in response to what he considers to be a dangerous level of moral failure on the part of some leaders in the church. Saints, “holy ones,” consecrated to God. The immoral behavior of the intruders is presumably the basis of the charge that they deny Jesus.

5–8: Three examples of judgment. God judged the Israelites who went out of Egypt with Moses (v. 5; see Num 14.20–23) but did not believe, angels (v. 6; see Gen 6.1–4; 1 Enoch 6–16) who left their own position, and Sodom and Gomorrah (Gen 19) for their sexual immorality. 8: These dreamers will suffer a similar fate for their similar misdeeds. The intruders apparently claim to experience revelatory dreams. The authority that they despise may be either God’s authority or angelic authorities. The glorious ones are probably angelic dignitaries.

9–10: A further example of the impropriety of slander. According to nonbiblical Jewish tradition, when the archangel Michael was about to bury the body of Moses, Satan accused Moses of being a murderer, not worthy of an honorable burial. Michael sent Satan off with the words, “May the Lord rebuke you” (Zech 3.2).

11–13: Three examples of error. Cain the murderer: Gen 4.8; Heb 11.4; 1 Jn 3.12. Balaam who prophesied for gain: Num 22; Rev 2.14 (see 2 Pet 2.15n.). Korah who rebelled: Num 16. Similarly, the opponents lead their followers astray for gain and rebel against the (apostolic) leadership of the church. 12: That they participate in their love-feasts (see 1 Cor 11.20–21n.) shows that they are members of the group. The author calls them intruders (v. 4) because their membership is illegitimate. Metaphors of blemishes, shepherds (see note k and Ezek 34.2,10), clouds (see Prov 25.14), trees, waves, and stars illustrate their uselessness, destructiveness, and selfishness. 13: In the for whom the deepest darkness has been reserved forever.

14 It was also about these that Enoch, in the seventh generation from Adam, prophesied, saying, “See, the Lord is coming with ten thousands of his holy ones, to execute judgment on all, and to convict everyone of all the deeds of ungodliness that they have committed in such an ungodly way, and of all the harsh things that ungodly sinners have spoken against him.” 16 These are grumblers and malcontents; they indulge their own lusts; they are bombastic in speech, flattering people to their own advantage.

17 But you, beloved, must remember the predictions of the apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ; for they said to you, “In the last time there will be scoffers, indulging their own ungodly lusts.” 19 It is these worldly people, devoid of the Spirit, who are causing divisions. 20 But you, beloved, build yourselves up on your most holy faith; pray in the Holy Spirit; keep yourselves in the love of God; look forward to the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ that leads to eternal life. 22 And have mercy on some who are wavering; save others by snatching them out of the fire; and have mercy on still others with fear, hating even the tunic defiled by their bodies.

24 Now to him who is able to keep you from falling, and to make you stand without blemish in the presence of his glory with rejoicing, to the only God our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord, be glory, majesty, power, and authority, before all time and now and forever. Amen.

books of Enoch, wandering stars (planets) were understood to be disobedient angels. For Jude the phrase serves as a metaphor for the activity of the opponents.

14–16: A prophecy of judgment. 1 Enoch 1.9.

17–19: An apostolic prophecy. See 2 Thess 2.3; 1 Tim 4.1; 2 Tim 3.1; 4.3 for similar prophetic announcements.

20–23: Exhortations. 20–21: The promised encouragement “to contend for the faith” (v. 3) consists of traditional Christian ethical teaching. Jude incorporates a Trinitarian formula. 22–23: The difficulties in interpreting these verses have given rise to several scribal simplifications that reduce the three clauses to two: to have mercy on some by rescuing them from fire (by getting them to repent; cf. Zech 3.24) and to have mercy on others with fear (of being corrupted oneself).

This page intentionally left blank
THE REVELATION TO JOHN

NAME
The Revelation to John is also known as the Apocalypse or the Apocalypse of John, from the Greek word meaning “disclosure” or “unveiling.” While the book presents itself as a work of prophecy (1.3; 22.10), it has lent its name to a literary genre, the “apocalypse,” that characterizes a range of Jewish and Christian writings that first appeared about 250 BCE.

CANONICAL STATUS
With its vivid visions of the consummation of God’s divine plan of judgment and salvation, the book of Revelation brings the canon of the New Testament to a close. While the book of Revelation is not the only early Christian apocalypse, it is the only one that was included in the canon of the New Testament. The question of whether it should be considered canonical was a matter of some controversy in the early centuries of Christianity. Eusebius of Caesarea (ca. 263–339 CE), for example, writes that some reject Revelation but that others accept it as genuine (Hist. eccl. 3.25.4–5). The third-century writer Dionysius of Alexandria maintained that the book of Revelation could be considered orthodox only if it is read allegorically. Dionysius also recognized that the book of Revelation could not have been written by the same John to whom the Gospel according to John was attributed.

AUTHORSHIP
Unlike other Jewish and Christian apocalypses, which are pseudonymous, with their authors writing in the name of some revered figure from antiquity, the author of the book of Revelation identifies himself by name as John (1.1,4,9; 22.8). While some ancient authorities (e.g., Justin, Dialogue with Trypho 81.4) suggested that this is the apostle John, the son of Zebedee (see Mk 3.17), internal evidence from the book itself is inconclusive. The author’s familiarity with the Jerusalem Temple and its rituals, the depth of his knowledge of the Hebrew Bible (of the 405 verses in Revelation, some 275 include allusions to passages in the Hebrew Bible, or to its Greek translation, the Septuagint), as well as his adoption of a literary genre that was familiar in Palestinian Judaism, combine to suggest that the John of Revelation may have been a Palestinian Jewish Christian who fled to the Diaspora as a consequence of the First Jewish Revolt against the Romans (66–73 CE). His self-identification to the “seven churches that are in Asia” (1.4) as “your brother who share with you in Jesus the persecution and the kingdom and the patient endurance” (1.9) suggests that he was well known to his audience, probably because he exercised a prophetic ministry among them (see 22.9). He mentions the twelve apostles as figures from the past (21.14), and does not refer to himself as one of them. The traditional identification of the John of the book of Revelation with the apostle of the same name is thus highly questionable, as is the connection of the John of the book of Revelation with the Gospel According to John or with the Letters of John.

DATE OF COMPOSITION AND HISTORICAL CONTEXT
There have been two main positions regarding the date of the book of Revelation. The first is that the book was composed between 64 and 70 CE, prior to the destruction of the Temple in 70 CE and prompted by the persecution of Christians toward the end of the reign of the Roman emperor Nero (54–68 CE). The second view is that while the book of Revelation draws on traditional material and on sources written prior to the fall of Jerusalem in 70 CE (e.g., chs. 11 and 12), it probably reached its final form toward the end of the reign of the Roman emperor Domitian (81–96 CE). The book is addressed to “the seven churches that are in Asia” (1.4), Christian communities in the Roman proconsular province of Asia, located in the western portion of present-day Turkey (see map on p. 2157). The book demonstrates its author’s familiarity with the specific situation of each of the seven churches, beginning with Ephesus, the city that was the administrative capital of the province. The seven cities were complex and diverse in economic, social, political, and religious terms. Whether or not Christians faced organized and widespread persecutions sanctioned by Roman imperial authorities at the time the book was written, Christians in the province of Asia were living under the threat of serious oppression, facing the danger of being “slaughtered for the word of God and the testimony they had given” (6.9). One such victim is Antipas, identified by name in the message to the church at Pergamum (2.13). John himself establishes his solidarity with his audience, sharing with them “the perrevocation and the kingdom and the patient endurance” (1.9), finding himself on the island of Patmos “because of the word of God and the testimony of Jesus” (1.9). According to many commentators, including a number of early Christian writers (e.g., Eusebius, Hist. eccl. 3.18), John had been exiled to Patmos by Roman imperial authorities as a penalty for his testimony to Jesus. However, others suggest that John went to Patmos to spread the word of God.

A variety of voices and viewpoints competed for the attention of the late first-century Christians to whom the book of Revelation was originally addressed. John exhorts them to stand firm in their convictions, to resist “with patient endurance” (2.2,19; 3.10) and at any cost the overwhelming pressures to accommodation and compromise with the dominant culture. The destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans in 70 ce gave John ample cause to identify Rome as Babylon, recalling the Babylonian destruction of Jerusalem in 586 bce. The breadth and depth of Rome's political and economic power found religious expression in the widespread worship of the emperor in the provinces of Asia, with temples built in honor of the emperor and of Rome personified as the goddess Roma. The book of Revelation takes sides in a battle over sovereignty, where the Roman emperor competes with God and Christ in a contest for the allegiance of the faithful. Warning that those who worship the emperor, symbolized by “the beast” (13.1–10), will suffer ultimate defeat, the book urges its audience to “hold fast to the faith of Jesus” (14.12) and thereby to share in the paradoxical victory of his death and resurrection.

LITERARY HISTORY

Interpreters of the book of Revelation through the centuries have puzzled over how to explain the many parallel passages and apparent repetitions throughout the book. The number seven, for example figures prominently throughout the book as a way of ordering the sequence of the book’s visionary narratives: seven seals, seven bowls, seven trumpets. Some authors understand this as a matter of recapitulation, that is, the repeated description of the same events from several different vantage points. Thus, the series of seven trumpets (8.16–9.21; 11.14–19) and seven bowls (16:1–21), for example, furnish two parallel perspectives on God's cataclysmic judgment against the world and its inhabitants. Others have sought to unravel the complex literary structure of the Apocalypse by appealing to source theories, arguing that the book is a composite that reflects significant editorial work by its final author, who drew on earlier material, including some written sources.

STRUCTURE AND CONTENTS

The structure of the book of Revelation is widely debated among scholars, yet there is general agreement that it involves a series of parallel, interconnected, and yet ever progressing sections. It begins with a prologue (1.1–3), an epistolary salutation (1.4–8), and an inaugural vision (1.9–20), which are followed by messages to each of the seven churches (2.1–3.22). There follows (4.1–5.14) a vision of God enthroned and of Jesus depicted as a Lamb, who receives the seven-sealed scroll from the hand of God. A series of sevenfold visions commences at 6.1, beginning with the opening of each of the seven seals (6.1–8.5), followed by the sounding of each of seven trumpets (8.6–11.19). The sounding of the seventh trumpet is followed by the vision of the woman, the child, and the dragon (12.1–17), the vision of the two beasts (13.1–18), a threefold vision of the victory, and vindication of the faithful (14.1–20). These are followed by a final sevenfold series, the outpouring of the bowls of divine wrath (16.1–21). 17.1–18.24 presents the vision of the fall of Babylon, followed by the great doxology of 19.1–10 that also looks forward to the eschatological victory (19.11–21), the defeat of Satan (20.1–10), the last judgment (20.11–15), and the vision of the new Jerusalem (21.1–22.5). The book concludes with an epilogue (22.6–21).

INTERPRETATION

Over the centuries, the book of Revelation has been interpreted from a wide variety of approaches, ranging from literal readings of the book as predictive prophecy to readings that recognize in its utopian language the promise of hope in the midst of contemporary situations of suffering and oppression. There have been three main tendencies in the interpretation of Revelation: historical, prophetic-predictive, and symbolic. According to those who interpret the book historically, Revelation refers to events that took place during the first century ce. The prophetic-predictive tendency in the interpretation of the book reads Revelation for clues about the future, especially with regard to God’s impending judgment on the world. Those who focus on symbolic interpretations of the book understand the Apocalypse neither as a window to the past nor as a visionary presentation of what is yet to come in the future, but as a work that speaks to readers of every time and place to offer them the vision of a universe symbolically transformed.
The revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave him to show his servants what must soon take place; he made it known by sending his angel to his servant John, who testified to the word of God and to the testimony of Jesus Christ, even to all that he saw.

Blessed is the one who reads aloud the words of the prophecy, and blessed are those who hear and who keep what is written in it; for the time is near.

John to the seven churches that are in Asia:
Grace to you and peace from him who is and who was and who is to come, and from the seven spirits who are before his throne, and from Jesus Christ, the faithful witness, the firstborn of the dead, and the ruler of the kings of the earth.

1.1–3: The prologue. This revelation came from God through Jesus Christ and was communicated to John by an angel (referred to again in 22.16). 1: Revelation (Gk “apokalypsis”; see Dan 2.28–30,45), a literary form in which a vision from God, often under the guidance of an angel or other heavenly messenger, communicates in symbolic language God’s hidden plan for history. Apocalypses also include visions of the heavenly world. 3: Blessed is . . . , the first of seven beatitudes in the book of Revelation (cf. 14.13; 16.15; 19.9; 20.6; 22.7,14) is pronounced on the reader of this prophetic book and on those who hear it read and who heed its message. In antiquity, texts were commonly read aloud even among those who were literate. The time is near (repeated in 22.10) motivates obedience by announcing the imminence of the end-time.

1.4–8: Epistolary salutation to seven representative churches in the Roman province of Asia (in western Asia Minor). Seven, a number associated with heavenly realities, suggests the divine authority of the message delivered by John. 4: Grace . . . and peace (see 2 Thess 1.2), combining the conventional Greek and Hebrew salutations, though John offers not his own greetings but those of God; is . . . was . . . to come, lit., “the being . . . the was . . . the coming.” The seven spirits are either a symbolic reference to the manifold energies of the spirit of God (Isa 11.2), or a reference to the seven principal angels of God (Tob 12.15; 1 Enoch 20.1–8). Seven, the number of completion (of a ritual in Lev 4.6; of divine punishment in Lev 26.27–28) or wholeness, is the most important symbolic number in the book of Revelation. 5: Faithful witness, Jesus testifies to the truth (Jn 18.37) and is the
To him who loves us and freed us from our sins by his blood, and made us to be a kingdom, priests serving his God and Father, to him be glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen.

Look! He is coming with the clouds; every eye will see him, even those who pierced him; and on his account all the tribes of the earth will wail. So it is to be. Amen.

“I am the Alpha and the Omega,” says the Lord God, who is and who was and who is to come, the Almighty.

I, John, your brother who share with you in Jesus the persecution and the kingdom and the patient endurance, was on the island called Patmos because of the word of God and the testimony of Jesus.

I was in the spirit on the Lord’s day, and I heard behind me a loud voice like a trumpet saying, “Write in a book what you see and send it to the seven churches, to Ephesus, to Smyrna, to Pergamum, to Thyatira, to Sardis, to Philadelphia, and to Laodicea.”

Then I turned to see whose voice it was that spoke to me, and on turning I saw seven golden lampstands, and in the midst of the lampstands I saw one like the Son of Man, clothed with a long robe and with a golden sash across his chest. His head and his hair were white as white wool, white as snow; his eyes were like a flame of fire, his feet were like burnished bronze, refined as in a furnace, and his voice was like the sound of many waters. In his right hand he held seven stars, and from his mouth came a sharp, two-edged sword, and his face was like the sun shining with full force.

When I saw him, I fell at his feet as though dead. But he placed his right hand on me, saying, “Do not be afraid; I am the first and the last, and the living one. I was dead, and see, I am alive forever and ever; and I have the keys of Death and of Hades. Now write what you have seen, what is, and what is to take place after this. As for the mystery of the seven stars that you saw in my right hand, and the seven golden lampstands: model for Christians who died as “witnesses” (2.13; 11.7; 17.6). Firstborn . . . ruler of the kings, Ps 119.27. He loves continually; he freed us once for all by his death (Rom 6.10). Kingdom, priests, the vocation promised to Israel (Ex 19.6; Isa 61.6) is extended to the followers of Jesus (1 Pet 2.9). Glory and dominion, Dan 7.14. 7: Dan 7:13; Zech 12.10–12. So it is to be. Amen, a formal affirmation of this prophetic oracle announcing the coming of Christ. Alpha and Omega, the first and last letters of the Greek alphabet (like “A” and “Z” in English); hence, the beginning and end of all things (see v. 17; 22.13; Isa 44.6; 48.12).

1.9–20: Inaugural vision and commission on Patmos, a small island in the Aegean Sea where John found himself (see Introduction), ca. 55 mi (90 km) southwest of Ephesus (see map on p. 2157). In the spirit, in a state of prophetic ecstasy, a state of altered consciousness (also 4.2; Ezek 2.2). The Lord’s day, the weekly day of Christian worship, Sunday. The seven churches, see 2.1–3.22. 12–16: In the midst of the churches (see v. 20) stands the exalted Christ, whose royalty, eternity, wisdom, and immutability are suggested by means of symbols; the effect is that of terrifying majesty (compare v. 17 with Isa 6.5). Seven golden lampstands, reminiscent of those that stood in the wilderness tabernacle and in the Jerusalem Temple (cf. Zech 4.1–14). Son of Man (cf. 14.14; Mk 2.10), a title Jesus used of himself, had two meanings: (1) a typical human being in accordance with a common extended meaning of “son of” (see Mt 5.45); (2) a reference to the heavenly figure of Dan 7.13–14 who was to embody God’s rule over the nations. Golden sash, Dan 10.5; white . . . snow, Dan 7.10; eyes . . . fire, Dan 10.6; feet . . . bronze, Dan 10.6; sound of many waters, a frequent accompaniment of divine appearance; see Ps 29.3; 93.4; Ezek 1.24; 43.2; cf. Dan 10.6. The figure is a combination of attributes of the heavenly messenger from Dan 10 and the Ancient One from Dan 7. From his mouth came a sharp, two-edged sword (cf. 19.15,21), the word of God (Isa 49.2; cf. Heb 4.12). Hades, used here with its synonym Death, is the abode of the dead; Jesus has the keys to release those confined within its gates (Mt 16.18; Jn 5.25–29). Mystery, hidden meanings that human beings cannot grasp without the assistance of divine revelation (Rev 1.20; 10.7; 17.5,7; Dan 2.29,45). Angel guardians are assigned to the seven churches, as also to nations (Dan 10.20–21; 12.1) and individuals (Dan 11.1).
the seven stars are the angels of the seven churches, and the seven lampstands are the seven churches.

2 “To the angel of the church in Ephesus write: These are the words of him who holds the seven stars in his right hand, who walks among the seven golden lampstands:

² “I know your works, your toil and your patient endurance. I know that you cannot tolerate evildoers; you have tested those who claim to be apostles but are not, and have found them to be false. ³ I also know that you are enduring patiently and bearing up for the sake of my name, and that you have not grown weary. ⁴ But I have this against you, that you have abandoned the love you had at first. ⁵ Remember then from what you have fallen; repent, and do the works you did at first. If not, I will come to you and remove your lampstand from its place, unless you repent.

⁶ Yet this is to your credit: you hate the works of the Nicolaitans, which I also hate.

⁷ Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches. To everyone who conquers, I will give permission to eat from the tree of life that is in the paradise of God.

8 And to the angel of the church in Smyrna write: These are the words of the first and the last, who was dead and came to life:

9 “I know your affliction and your poverty, even though you are rich. I know the slander on the part of those who say that they are Jews and are not, but are a synagogue of Satan. 10 Do not fear what you are about to suffer. Beware, the devil is about to throw some of you into prison so that you may be tested, and for ten days you will have affliction. Be faithful until death, and I will give you the crown of life. 11 Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches. Whoever conquers will not be harmed by the second death.

12 And to the angel of the church in Pergamum write: These are the words of him who has the sharp two-edged sword:

13 “I know where you are living, where Satan’s throne is. Yet you are holding fast to my name, and you did not deny your faith in me even in the days of Antipas my witness, my faithful one, who was killed among you, where Satan lives. 14 But I have a few things against you: you have some there who hold to the teaching of Balaam, who taught Balak to put a stumbling block before the people of Israel, so that they would eat food sacrificed to idols and practice fornication. 15 So you also have some who hold to the teaching of the Nicolaitans. 16 Repent then. If not, I will come to you soon and make war against them with the sword of my mouth. 17 Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches. To everyone who conquers I will give some of the hidden manna, and I will give a white stone, and on the white stone is written a new name that no one knows except the one who receives it.

18 And to the angel of the church in Thyatira write: These are the words of the Son of God, who has eyes like a flame of fire, and whose feet are like burnished bronze:

19 “I know your works—your love, faith, service, and patient endurance. I know that your last works are greater than the first. 20 But I have this against you: you tolerate that woman Jezebel, who calls herself a prophet and teaches and leads astray my servants. She also allows her sons to commit fornication, and to eat food sacrificed to idols. 21 I will throw her into a bed of torment, where she will be tormented with fire. 22 Those whom you love I will judge. They are false teachers, who seduced my servants. 23 I will make those who love her suffer bitterly. I will remove her children from her, because they are children of fornication. 24 But those在外的人 will overcome by faith. I will give to each of you a crown of life. 25 But as for the rest of you,站起吧！taste and see that the Lord is good. The one who overcomes will inherit all things, and I will be his God, and he will be my son. 26 But as for the rest of you,站起吧！taste and see that the Lord is good. The one who overcomes will inherit all things, and I will be his God, and he will be my son.

The second message, sent to Smyrna, commends the church for its perseverance amid affliction and poverty. Smyrna (modern Izmir) was a port city 30 mi (50 km) north of Ephesus. 8: Isa 44.6; 48.12. 9: Rich, in spiritual things. Those who say that they are Jews and are not, this accusation reflects struggles over identity, with some groups rejecting the claims to Jewish identity made by other groups. The word translated “Jew” (Gk “loudaios”) could refer both to someone from Judea, and to an adherent of Judaism whether from birth or by conversion. Synagogue of Satan (cf. 3-9) likewise reflects significant tensions (cf. Jn 8.44; 1QH 2.22 refers to apostate Jews as “a congregation of Belial”). Synagogue can refer to a congregation or to a meeting place for a congregation. 10: Ten days, a limited period of trial (Dan 1.12). Crown of life, the reward of eternal life (Jas 1.12; 1 Pet 5.4). 11: The second death, the final condemnation of the unfaithful (20.14).

The third message is sent to Pergamum, a noted center of Roman emperor worship ca. 60 mi (80 km) north of Smyrna. 12: Sharp two-edged sword, 1.16n. 13: Where Satan’s throne is, in contrast to the throne of God in ch 4, this may be a reference either to the temple of the Roman emperor or to the monumental altar of Zeus, both at Pergamum. Antipas is otherwise unknown; he is the only martyr named in the book. 14-15: The teaching of Balaam, here the author vilifies an opponent by comparing him to the diviner Balaam of Num 22.5-24.25. After Balaam’s oracles, the Israelites engaged in both sexual relations with outsiders and the worship of foreign gods (see Num 25). To eat food sacrificed to idols meant either to participate in ritual banquets or to purchase and then consume meat that had been sacrificed in the temples of Pergamum (1 Cor 8; 10). Practice fornication here is meant metaphorically, with sexual misconduct symbolizing religious infidelity (Wis 14.12). 15: Nicolaitans, see v. 6n. 17: Hidden manna, eschatological nourishment from heaven (Ex 16.33–34; Ps 78.24). White, the color symbolizing victory and joy. A new name, Isa 62.2.

The fourth message is sent to Thyatira, a commercial center renowned for its many trade guilds, ca. 70 mi (110 km) north-northeast of Ephesus. Lydia, one of Paul’s converts, was a dealer in purple cloth from continuous vigilance. Tree of life, Gen 2.9; 3.24; cf. Rev 22.2,14.
and is teaching and beguiling my servants\(^4\) to practice fornication and to eat food sacrificed to idols. \(21\) I gave her time to repent, but she refuses to repent of her fornication. \(22\) Beware, I am throwing her on a bed, and those who commit adultery with her I am throwing into great distress, unless they repent of her doings; \(23\) and I will strike her children dead. And all the churches will know that I am the one who searches minds and hearts, and I will give to each of you as your works deserve. \(24\) But to the rest of you in Thyatira, who do not hold this teaching, who have not learned what some call ‘the deep things of Satan,’ to you I say, I do not lay on you any other burden; \(25\) only hold fast to what you have until I come. \(26\) To everyone who conquers and continues to do my works to the end, I will give authority over the nations; \(27\) to rule\(^b\) them with an iron rod, as when clay pots are shattered—

28 even as I also received authority from my Father. To the one who conquers I will also give the morning star. \(29\) Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches.

3 “And to the angel of the church in Sardis write: These are the words of him who has the seven spirits of God and the seven stars:

“I know your works; you have a name of being alive, but you are dead. \(2\) Wake up, and strengthen what remains and is on the point of death, for I have not found your works perfect in the sight of my God. \(3\) Remember then what you received and heard; obey it, and repent. If you do not wake up, I will come like a thief, and you will not know at what hour I will come to you. \(4\) Yet you have still a few persons in Sardis who have not soiled their clothes; they will walk with me, dressed in white, for they are worthy. \(5\) If you conquer, you will be clothed like them in white robes, and I will not blot your name out of the book of life; I will confess your name before my Father and before his angels. \(6\) Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches.

7 “And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write:

These are the words of the holy one, the true one, who has the key of David, who opens and no one will shut, who shuts and no one opens:

8 “I know your works. Look, I have set before you an open door, which no one is able to shut. I know that you have but little power, and yet you have kept my word and have not denied my name. \(9\) I will make those of the synagogue of Satan who say that they

\(\text{a}\) Gk slaves
\(\text{b}\) Or to shepherd

Thyatira (Acts 16.14–15). \(18\) Dan 10.6. \(20\) That woman Jezebel, who calls herself a prophet, John’s characterization of a female opponent at Thyatira, here identified contemptuously with the Phoenician wife of King Ahab, the queen who worshiped Baal and who opposed the prophet Elijah (1 Kings 16.31; 19.1–2). \(22\) I am throwing her on a bed, punishment with serious sickness is threatened for the Thyatiran Jezebel. Those who commit adultery with her are those who are complicit in her worship of other gods. In the Hebrew Bible marital infidelity is a frequent metaphor for worship of gods other than the Lord (Deut 31.16; Judg 2.17; 1 Chr 5.25; Jer 3.6–11); see also vv. 14–15n. \(23\) Her children, those who follow her teachings. \(24\) Deep things of Satan, a sarcastic reference to her teachings (contrast 1 Cor 2.10). \(26–27\) The conquerors will share in Jesus’ rule (Ps 2.8–9). \(28\) The morning star is Jesus himself (22.16; cf. Num 24.17).

3.1–6: The fifth message is sent to Sardis, a prosperous city ca. 55 mi (85 km) northeast of Ephesus that had been the capital of the kingdom of Lydia. \(1\) Seven spirits, see 1.4n. Seven stars, 1.20. You have a name, its commitment in faith was only nominal. \(3\) Received and heard, the gospel. Like a thief, just when unexpected (16.15; Mt 24.42–44; 1 Thess 5.2). 4–5: Soiled . . . white, not impurity/purity, but surrender/conquest (see 2.17n.). White robes are a frequent image; see 3.18; 4.4; 6.11; 7.9; 19.14; cf. Zech 3.3–5. 5: Book of life, the register of God containing the names of the redeemed (13.8; 17.8; 20.12,15; Ex 32.32; Ps 69.28; Dan 12.1; Mal 3.16; Lk 10.20).

3.7–13: The sixth message is sent to Philadelphia, a small town 80 mi (50 km) southeast of Sardis. \(7\) Key of David, a symbol of authority (Isa 22.22). \(8\) An open door, of opportunity (1 Cor 16.9; 2 Cor 2.12). \(9\) Synagogue of Satan, see 2.9n. On tension between Christians and Jews in Philadelphia see Ignatius, Philad. 6.1. Bow down are Jews and are not, but are lying—I will make them come and bow down before your feet, and they will learn that I have loved you. 10 Because you have kept my word of patient endurance, I will keep you from the hour of trial that is coming on the whole world to test the inhabitants of the earth. 11 I am coming soon; hold fast to what you have, so that no one may seize your crown. 12 If you conquer, I will make you a pillar in the temple of my God; you will never go out of it. I will write on you the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, the new Jerusalem that comes down from my God out of heaven, and my own new name. 13 Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches.

14 “And to the angel of the church in Laodicea write: The words of the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the origin of God’s creation:

15 “I know your works; you are neither cold nor hot. I wish that you were either cold or hot. 16 So, because you are lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I am about to spit you out of my mouth. 17 For you say, ‘I am rich, I have prospered, and I need nothing.’ You do not realize that you are wretched, pitiable, poor, blind, and naked. 18 Therefore I counsel you to buy from me gold refined by fire so that you may be rich; and white robes to clothe you and to keep the shame of your nakedness from being seen; and salve to anoint your eyes so that you may see. 19 I reprove and discipline those whom I love. Be earnest, therefore, and repent. 20 Listen! I am standing at the door, knocking; if you hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to you and eat with you, and you with me. 21 To the one who conquers I will give a place with me on my throne, just as I myself conquered and sat down with my Father on his throne. 22 Let anyone who has an ear listen to what the Spirit is saying to the churches.”

4 After this I looked, and there in heaven a door stood open! And the first voice, which I had heard speaking to me like a trumpet, said, “Come up here, and I will show you what must take place after this.” 2 At once I was in the spirit, and there in heaven stood a throne, with one seated on the throne!

3 The name of the city of my God, signifying citizenship in the new Jerusalem; see 21.2,10.

4 The faithful and true witness, 1.5. The list of titles may derive from a Greek translation of Isa 65.16. The origin of God’s creation, Jesus Christ is the principle and source of all creation (Jn 1.3; Col 1.15,18). 15–16: Their lukewarm commitment is nauseating: spit you out of my mouth. 17: Complacent and self-satisfied, they are spiritually poverty-stricken (Hos 12.8). 18: Buy from me gold refined by fire, an idiom for removing sin from one’s life (Job 23.10; Prov 27.21). A commercial transaction is used here as a metaphor for accepting salvation. Eyes, Laodicea was noted for its manufacture of a medication for ophthalmic disorders. 19: God’s chastening has beneficent motives (Prov 3.12; Heb 12.5–11). 20: An invitation to participate in the messianic banquet in the coming age (cf. Mt 26.29). 21: A place with me, a promise of reigning with Jesus in glory (22.5; Lk 22.30).
and in front of the throne burn seven flaming torches, which are the seven spirits of God; and in front of the throne there is something like a sea of glass, like crystal.

Around the throne, and on each side of the throne, are four living creatures, full of eyes in front and behind: the first living creature like a lion, the second living creature like an ox, the third living creature like a human face, and the fourth living creature like a flying eagle. And the four living creatures, each of them with six wings, are full of eyes all around and inside. Day and night without ceasing they sing,

“Holy, holy, holy, the Lord God the Almighty, who was and is and is to come.”

And whenever the living creatures give glory and honor and thanks to the one who is seated on the throne, who lives forever and ever, the twenty-four elders fall before the one who is seated on the throne and worship the one who lives forever and ever; they cast their crowns before the throne, singing,

“You are worthy, our Lord and God, to receive glory and honor and power, for you created all things, and by your will they existed and were created.”

Then I saw in the right hand of the one seated on the throne a scroll written on the inside, and sealed with seven seals; and I saw a mighty angel proclaiming with a loud voice, “Who is worthy to open the scroll and break its seals?” And no one in heaven or on earth or under the earth was able to open the scroll or to look into it. And I began to weep bitterly because no one was found worthy to open the scroll or to look into it. Then one of the elders said to me, “Do not weep. See, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has conquered, so that he can open the scroll and its seven seals.”

Then I saw between the throne and the four living creatures and among the elders a Lamb standing as if it had been slaughtered, having seven horns and seven eyes, which are the seven spirits of God sent out into all the earth. He went and took the scroll from the right hand of the one who was seated on the throne. When he had taken the scroll, the four living creatures and the twenty-four elders fell before the Lamb, each holding a harp and golden bowls full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints. They sing a new song:

“You are worthy to take the scroll and to open its seals, for you were slaughtered and by your blood you ransomed for God saints from every tribe and language and people and nation; you have made them to be a kingdom and priests serving our God, and they will reign on earth.”

And I began to weep bitterly because no one was found worthy to open the scroll or to look into it. Then one of the elders said to me, “Do not weep. See, the Lion of the tribe of Judah, the Root of David, has conquered, so that he can open the scroll and its seven seals.” Then I saw in the right hand of the one seated on the throne a scroll written on the inside and on the back, sealed with seven seals; and I saw a mighty angel proclaiming with a loud voice, “Who is worthy to open the scroll and break its seals?”

mastery of God (Ex 19.16; Ezek 1.13; Rev 11.19). Seven flaming torches, Zech 4.2–3. Seven spirits, 1.4. 6: A sea of glass, Ex 24.10; Ezek 1.22. Four living creatures, heavenly beings representing humankind and all animals (Ezek 1.5,10). Full of eyes, symbolizing unceasing watchfulness (Ezek 1.18). 8: Six wings . . . “Holy, holy, holy,” Isa 6.2–3. 10: Cast their crowns, an act of homage and submission, acknowledging that all power comes from God. 11: Our Lord and God, titles that were also attributed to the Roman emperor (Suetonius, Domitian 13). 5:1: A scroll, containing the divine plan of judgment and salvation (Ezek 2.9–10). Sealed, therefore both unalterable and unknown to others (Dan 12.4). 3–5: No created being is worthy to carry out God’s plan; only the messiah can do so. Lion of . . . Judah, Gen 49.9–10. Root of David, Isa 11.1,10. Has conquered, the paradoxical victory of the cross and resurrection (Jn 16.33). 6–9: The Lamb . . . slaughtered, the crucified messiah, a reference to Jesus’ death, by which God’s purposes contained in the scroll are accomplished (Isa 53.7; Jn 1.29,36; 1 Pet 1.19). Seven horns, fullness of power (Deut 33.17; Ps 89.17; Dan 7.7–8.24; 1 Enoch 80.6–12.37). Seven eyes, Zech 3.9; 4.10; 2 Chr 16.9. Seven spirits, 1.4. 8: Harp and golden bowls, objects used in worship. The prayers of the saints on earth are joined with the worship rendered to the Lamb by the heavenly creatures. 9–10: A new song is sung because Jesus by his death has inaugurated a new era (14.3). New hymns of praise mark and celebrate special occasions (Ps 33.3; 40.3; 96.1; 98.1; 144.9; 149.1; Isa 42.10). The Lamb is adored in terms similar to the adoration rendered to God (4.11). A kingdom and priests, see 6.1–17: The opening of the first six seals of the scroll, and the enactment of what is written in it.

6.1–8: Four seals of destruction. 1: Come! Addressed successively to each of the four riders (Zech 6.1–8) who accomplish God's purposes. 2: The white horse symbolizes a conquering power that none can resist; in 19.11–13 the reference is to Jesus. The crown given to the rider as he is sent forth suggests a guarantee of victory. 4: The red horse symbolizes war and bloodshed. Permitted to take peace from the earth, effectively annulling the “pax Romana,” the self-congratulatory designation of Roman imperial rule as “the Roman peace.” 5: The black horse symbolizes famine, which follows upon war. 6: A quart of wheat . . . three quarts of barley, sold at exorbitantly inflated prices because of war and famine (cf. 2 Kings 6.24–25). The prohibition against harming the olive oil and the wine (neither olive trees nor grape vines are newly planted each year) suggests that the famine is limited. 8: The pale green horse symbolizes pestilence and death. Hades, the Greek god of the underworld; cf. 1.18. A fourth part indicates wide but not total devastation. Pestilence, Ex 9.3; 2 Sam 24.13; Ezek 5.12. Wild animals, Ezek 6.17; 29.5; 33.27.

6.9–8.1: Three seals of judgment.

6.9–11: The fifth seal describes the appeal for divine justice and retribution by the martyrs (v. 10), and the heavenly response to their plea (v. 11). 9: The souls of the martyrs are said to be under the altar because they had been martyred for the sake of Jesus (2.10; Mt 24.9; Phil 2.17; 2 Tim 4.6). 10: How long? is a cry for divine vindication uttered by those who have suffered unbearable oppression (e.g., Ps 6.3; 13.2; 90.13; Zech 1.12–16). Avenge robe and told to rest a little longer, until the number would be complete both of their fellow servants\(^a\) and of their brothers and sisters,\(^b\) who were soon to be killed as they themselves had been killed.

¹² When he opened the sixth seal, I looked, and there came a great earthquake; the sun became black as sackcloth, the full moon became like blood, ¹³ and the stars of the sky fell to the earth as the fig tree drops its winter fruit when shaken by a gale. ¹⁴ The sky vanished like a scroll rolling itself up, and every mountain and island was removed from its place. ¹⁵ Then the kings of the earth and the magnates and the generals and the rich and the powerful, and everyone, slave and free, hid in the caves and among the rocks of the mountains, ¹⁶ calling to the mountains and rocks, “Fall on us and hide us from the face of the one seated on the throne and from the wrath of the Lamb; ¹⁷ for the great day of their wrath has come, and who is able to stand?”

After this I saw four angels standing at the four corners of the earth, holding back the four winds of the earth so that no wind could blow on earth or sea or against any tree. ² I saw another angel ascending from the rising of the sun, having the seal of the living God, and he called with a loud voice to the four angels who had been given power to damage earth and sea, ³ saying, “Do not damage the earth or the sea or the trees, until we have marked the servants\(^a\) of our God with a seal on their foreheads.”

⁴ And I heard the number of those who were sealed, one hundred forty-four thousand, sealed out of every tribe of the people of Israel:

⁵ From the tribe of Judah twelve thousand sealed, from the tribe of Reuben twelve thousand, from the tribe of Gad twelve thousand, ⁶ from the tribe of Asher twelve thousand, from the tribe of Naphtali twelve thousand, from the tribe of Manasseh twelve thousand, ⁷ from the tribe of Simeon twelve thousand, from the tribe of Levi twelve thousand, from the tribe of Issachar twelve thousand, from the tribe of Zebulun twelve thousand, from the tribe of Joseph twelve thousand, from the tribe of Benjamin twelve thousand sealed.

⁹ After this I looked, and there was a great multitude that no one could count, from every nation, from all tribes and peoples and languages, standing before the throne and before the Lamb, robed in white, with palm branches in their hands. ¹⁰ They cried out in a loud voice, saying, “Salvation belongs to our God who is seated on the throne, and to the Lamb!”

¹¹ And all the angels stood around the throne and around the elders and the four living creatures, and they fell on their faces before the throne and worshiped God, singing, "Our blood, God is the one who takes up the cause of those killed for the sake of justice (Ps 78.1–10 [LXX]). ¹¹: White robe, see 2.17n.; 3.4–5n.; 7.9n.

6.12–17: The opening of the sixth seal unleashes a great earthquake, and its catastrophic effects on the cosmos and on human society are described. ¹²: Black as sackcloth . . . , Joel 2.30–31. ¹³–¹⁴: Isa 34.4; Mk 13.25. ¹⁵–¹⁷: All classes of society seek to escape from the wrath of God (Isa 2.10,19). ¹⁶: Fall on us, Hos 10.8; Lk 23.30. ¹⁷: The great day of their wrath, the time of judgment (Joel 2.11).

7.1–17: An interlude between the sixth and seventh seals: two visions that provide the promise of divine protection for the faithful during the time of tribulation (vv. 1–8) and assurance of ultimate salvation (vv. 9–17). ¹: The four winds are destructive forces to be unleashed by God (Jer 49.36). They correspond to the four horsemen in 6.1–8 (see Zech 6.5). ³: A seal (Ezek 9.4–6) marks those under God’s protection. Seals were used to signify ownership or authorship. ⁴: The symbolic number 144,000, which is the square of 12 multiplied by 1,000, has been interpreted variously as a reference to: the faithful remnant of Israel; the church; the martyrs; the remnant of Christians who survive the eschatological turmoil; all the redeemed (14.1,3). Every tribe, but the tribes of Dan and Ephraim are not mentioned. ⁹: A great multitude (see Dan 7.14), in contrast with the 144,000 in v. 4 (5.9).
“Amen! Blessing and glory and wisdom and thanksgiving and honor and power and might be to our God forever and ever! Amen.”

13 Then one of the elders addressed me, saying, “Who are these, robed in white, and where have they come from?” I said to him, “Sir, you are the one that knows.” Then he said to me, “These are they who have come out of the great ordeal; they have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.

15 For this reason they are before the throne of God, and worship him day and night within his temple, and the one who is seated on the throne will shelter them.

16 They will hunger no more, and thirst no more; the sun will not strike them, nor any scorching heat;

17 for the Lamb at the center of the throne will be their shepherd, and he will guide them to springs of the water of life, and God will wipe away every tear from their eyes.”

8 When the Lamb opened the seventh seal, there was silence in heaven for about half an hour. And I saw the seven angels who stand before God, and seven trumpets were given to them.

3 Another angel with a golden censer came and stood at the altar; he was given a great quantity of incense to offer with the prayers of all the saints on the golden altar that is before the throne. And the smoke of the incense, with the prayers of the saints, rose before God from the hand of the angel. Then the angel took the censer and filled it with fire from the altar and threw it on the earth; and there were peals of thunder, rumblings, flashes of lightning, and an earthquake.

6 Now the seven angels who had the seven trumpets made ready to blow them.

7 The first angel blew his trumpet, and there came hail and fire, mixed with blood, and they were hurled to the earth; and a third of the earth was burned up, and a third of the trees were burned up, and all green grass was burned up.

8 The second angel blew his trumpet, and something like a great mountain, burning with fire, was thrown into the sea. A third of the sea became blood, a third of the living creatures in the sea died, and a third of the ships were destroyed.

10 The third angel blew his trumpet, and a great star fell from heaven, blazing like a torch, and it fell on a third of the rivers and on the springs of water.

12 The fourth angel blew his trumpet, and a third of the sun was struck, and a third of the moon, and a third of the stars, so that a third of their light was darkened; a third of

White robes and palm branches symbolize righteousness and victory (see 3.4–5n.; Dan 11.35). 12: A sevenfold ascription of praise to God. 14: The blood of the Lamb cleanses from sin (Jn 1.29; 1 Jn 1.7); in the symbolism of the book, blood (violent death) can make robes . . . white (lead to victory); cf. Isa 1.18. 15: Before the throne of God, in God’s presence because of their faithfulness. Their ceaseless worship takes place in God’s temple in heaven. Shelter them, lit., “spread his tabernacle over them.” 16: Isa 49.10; Ps 121.6. 17: A paradox: The Lamb is a shepherd (Ps 23.1–2; Ezek 34.23–24; Jn 10.11). Springs of . . . life, 21.6; 22.1,17; Jn 4.10; 7.37. Wipe away every tear, 21.4; Isa 25.8.

8.1–5: The seventh seal is opened. The opening of the last of the seven seals (5.1; 6.1) leads to an awesome and reverent silence, as response to divine judgment (Hab 3.3–6; Zech 2.13–3.2). A return to “primeval silence” prior to the judgment appears in 2 Esd 7.30. 2: The seven angels stand before God ready to do God’s will (Tob 12.15). 3: Incense . . . prayers, Ps 141.2. 5: Ezek 10.2. The earthquake announces the divine judgment about to be executed.

8.6–9.21: The first six trumpets unleash new convulsions of nature, patterned after the plagues inflicted on Egypt in the book of Exodus (Ex 7.14–10.23).

8.6–13: Four trumpets of destruction. 7: Hail and fire, Ex 9.23–25; both destroyers of crops. A third, the devastation wrought by the trumpet plagues is not total. 9: Ex 7.20. 11: Wormwood, a bitter herb, poisons the waters into which it falls (Jer 9.15; 23.15). It is associated with the constellation Scorpio. 12: Ex 10.21–22; cf. Joel 3.15;
9 And the fifth angel blew his trumpet, and I saw a star that had fallen from heaven to earth, and he was given the key to the shaft of the bottomless pit; 2 he opened the shaft of the bottomless pit, and from the shaft rose smoke like the smoke of a great furnace, and the sun and the air were darkened with the smoke from the shaft. 3 Then from the smoke came locusts on the earth, and they were given authority like the authority of scorpions of the earth. 4 They were told not to damage the grass of the earth or any green growth or any tree, but only those people who do not have the seal of God on their foreheads. 5 They were allowed to torture them for five months, but not to kill them, and their torture was like the torture of a scorpion when it stings someone. 6 And in those days people will seek death but will not find it; they will long to die, but death will flee from them. 7 In appearance the locusts were like horses equipped for battle. On their heads were what looked like crowns of gold; their teeth like lions’ teeth; 9 they had scales like iron breastplates, and the noise of their wings was like the noise of many chariots with horses rushing into battle. 10 They have tails like scorpions, with stingers, and in their tails is their power to harm people for five months. 11 They have as king over them the angel of the bottomless pit; his name in Hebrew is Abaddon, and in Greek he is called Apollyon. 12 The first woe has passed. There are still two woes to come. 13 Then the sixth angel blew his trumpet, and I heard a voice from the four corners of the golden altar before God, 14 saying to the sixth angel who had the trumpet, “Release the four angels who are bound at the great river Euphrates.” 15 So the four angels were released, who had been held ready for the hour, the day, the month, and the year, to kill a third of humankind. 16 The number of the troops of cavalry was two hundred million; I heard their number. 17 And this was how I saw the horses in my vision: the riders wore breastplates the color of fire and of sapphire and of sulfur; the heads of the horses were like lions’ heads, and fire and smoke

Am 8.9. 13: An eagle announces impending judgment. The threefold woe refers to the plagues unleashed at the sounding of the next three trumpets.

9.1–11.19: Three trumpets of woe.

9.1–12: The plague of monstrous locusts, which combine the terrors of evil spirits and of invading cavalry (perhaps a reference to the Parthians, an Iranian dynasty that ruled from Mesopotamia to India, at war with the Romans from the first century BCE to the second century CE). 1: A star . . . fallen from heaven, a heavenly being, possibly an angel, identified by name in v. 11 (cf. Isa 14.12; Lk 10.18). The bottomless pit is the underworld, the abyss from which the beast arises (11.7; 17.8). 3: Locusts, Ex 10.12–15; cf. Joel 1.4. 4: God’s servants are not to be harmed (7.3). 5: Five months, while this might be a reference to the life cycle of locusts, which are hatched in spring and live until the end of summer, the more likely significance of this time period is symbolic, indicating the limited time span of this plague. 6: Will seek death, in utter despair because of the torments (cf. Job 3.21). 7–10: These are monstrous locusts, described in anthropomorphic terms (as in Joel 1 and 2), combining human features with the features of other creatures into a terrifying composite. Teeth like lions’, Joel 1.6; iron breastplates, of a soldier or war horse (Job 39.19–20; Tg. Nah. 3.17, compares armor of Assyrian soldiers to locusts).

11: The name Abaddon, which means “Destruction,” is a name for Sheol, the abode of the dead (see Job 26.6; Prov 15.11); here, as in Job 28.22, it is personified.

9.13–21: The plague of monstrous cavalry. 14: The Euphrates marked the eastern border of the Roman Empire, where invasion by its Parthian enemies threatened. 16–19: These fire-breathing, lion-headed, serpent-tailed monsters are composite creatures, like the fire-breathing Chimera of Greek and Roman mythology. Also and sulfur came out of their mouths. 18 By these three plagues a third of humankind was killed, by the fire and smoke and sulfur coming out of their mouths. 19 For the power of the horses is in their mouths and in their tails; their tails are like serpents, having heads; and with them they inflict harm.

20 The rest of humankind, who were not killed by these plagues, did not repent of the works of their hands or give up worshiping demons and idols of gold and silver and bronze and stone and wood, which cannot see or hear or walk. 21 And they did not repent of their murders or their sorceries or their fornication or their thefts.

10 And I saw another mighty angel coming down from heaven, wrapped in a cloud, with a rainbow over his head; his face was like the sun, and his legs like pillars of fire. 2 He held a little scroll open in his hand. Setting his right foot on the sea and his left foot on the land, 3 he gave a great shout, like a lion roaring. And when he shouted, the seven thunders sounded. 4 And when the seven thunders had sounded, I was about to write, but I heard a voice from heaven saying, “Seal up what the seven thunders have said, and do not write it down.” 5 Then the angel whom I saw standing on the sea and the land raised his right hand to heaven

6 and swore by him who lives forever and ever, who created heaven and what is in it, the earth and what is in it, and the sea and what is in it: “There will be no more delay, 7 but in the days when the seventh angel is to blow his trumpet, the mystery of God will be fulfilled, as he announced to his servants the prophets.” 8 Then the voice that I had heard from heaven spoke to me again, saying, “Go, take the scroll that is open in the hand of the angel who is standing on the sea and on the land.” 9 So I went to the angel and told him to give me the little scroll; and he said to me, “Take it, and eat; it will be bitter to your stomach, but sweet as honey in your mouth.” 10 So I took the little scroll from the hand of the angel and ate it; it was sweet as honey in my mouth, but when I had eaten it, my stomach was made bitter.

11 Then they said to me, “You must prophesy again about many peoples and nations and languages and kings.”

11 Then I was given a measuring rod like a staff, and I was told, “Come and measure the temple of God and the altar and those who worship there, 2 but do not measure the court outside the temple; leave that out, for it is given over to the nations, and they will trample over the holy city for forty-two months. 3 And I will grant my two witnesses authority to prophesy for one thousand two hundred sixty days, wearing sackcloth.”

see the description of conquering soldiers in Jer 46.2–23. 20–21: The trumpet plagues fail to provoke the repentance that is their purpose. Compare the hardness of Pharaoh’s heart despite the plagues (Ex 8.15,19). 20: Idols, Dan 5.23. 21: Murders . . . thefts, sins associated with the idolatrous worship of other gods, Wis 12.3–6.

10.1–11.13: An interlude between the sixth and seventh trumpets; two visions (10.1–11 and 11.1–13) present a renewal of John’s prophetic commission (10.1–11) and describe what becomes of the two prophetic witnesses in the holy city (11.1–13).

10.1–11: The commission renewed. 1: Another mighty angel, in addition to the mighty angel in 5.2. 2: The little scroll is distinct from the seven-sealed scroll in the right hand of God in 5.1. This scroll is in the angel’s left hand, since in 10.5 he raises his right hand to heaven to swear an oath (Dan 12.7). Sea and land indicate the scope of the angel’s authority. 4: John is prohibited from disclosing what the seven thunders have said, but he “must prophesy again” (v. 11) after eating the little scroll. 6: There will be no more delay in the accomplishment of God’s will—the sounding of the seventh trumpet is imminent. 7: The mystery of God, Rom 16.25–26; Eph 1.9; 3.3–9; Col 1.26–27. His servants the prophets, Am 3.7. 8–10: Ezek 2.9–3.3. 10: Sweet, because it contains God’s words; bitter because it involves God’s terrible judgments (Ezek 2.10). 11: You must, an inescapable obligation, in accord with the divine will, prophesy again; the second part of the book (chs 12–22) contains these prophecies. Peoples and nations and languages and kings (Dan 3.4,7 [LXX]; 7:14; Rev 5.9; 7:9) suggests the broad range of John’s prophetic activity.

11.1–13: The measuring of the temple and the two witnesses. 1: The symbolic act of the measurement of the sanctuary and those who worship there emphasizes the protection and preservation of the faithful who are within

⁹ Gk slaves
4 These are the two olive trees and the two lampstands that stand before the Lord of the earth. 5 And if anyone wants to harm them, fire pours from their mouth and consumes their foes; anyone who wants to harm them must be killed in this manner. 6 They have authority to shut the sky, so that no rain may fall during the days of their prophesying, and they have authority over the waters to turn them into blood, and to strike the earth with every kind of plague, as often as they desire.

7 When they have finished their testimony, the beast that comes up from the bottomless pit will make war on them and conquer them and kill them, 8 and their dead bodies will lie in the street of the great city that is prophetically6 called Sodom and Egypt, where also their Lord was crucified. 9 For three and a half days members of the peoples and tribes and languages and nations will gaze at their dead bodies and refuse to let them be placed in a tomb; 10 and the inhabitants of the earth will gloat over them and celebrate and exchange presents, because these two prophets had been a torment to the inhabitants of the earth.

11 But after the three and a half days, the breath of life from God entered them, and they stood on their feet, and those who saw them were terrified. 12 Then they heard a loud voice from heaven saying to them, “Come up here!” And they went up to heaven in a cloud while their enemies watched them.

13 At that moment there was a great earthquake, and a tenth of the city fell; seven thousand people were killed in the earthquake, and the rest were terrified and gave glory to the God of heaven.

14 The second woe has passed. The third woe is coming very soon.

15 Then the seventh angel blew his trumpet, and there were loud voices in heaven, saying, “The kingdom of the world has become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Messiah, and he will reign forever and ever.”

16 Then the twenty-four elders who sit on their thrones before God fell on their faces and worshiped God, 17 singing, “We give you thanks, Lord God Almighty, who are and who were, for you have taken your great power and begun to reign.

18 The nations raged, but your wrath has come, and the time for judging the dead, for rewarding your servants, the prophets and saints and all who fear your name, both small and great, and for destroying those who destroy the earth.”

(a as in Zech 2.1–5; cf. Ezek 40.3–42.20). 2: The court outside, the court of the Gentiles. The holy city, Jerusalem (Neh 11.1; Isa 52.1; Mt 4.5; 27.53). Forty-two months = 1,260 days (v. 3) = 3 1/2 years, a number that symbolizes the period of eschatological tribulation (Dan 7.25; 9.27; 12.7,11–12). As half of seven, the number of completeness, it also symbolizes radical incompleteness. 3: Although the two witnesses are unnamed here, they may be prophetic figures who were expected to return in the end-time, possibly Enoch (Gen 5.24) and Elijah (2 Kings 2.11; Mal 4.5), or Moses (Deut 18.15,18) and Elijah. They are clothed in sackcloth, a sign that their prophetic message was a call to repentance. 4: Two olive trees, supplying oil for the lamps in the temple (Zech 4.3–14). 6: Shut the sky, cause a drought, as did Elijah (1 Kings 17.1). Authority over the waters . . . , as did Moses and Aaron (Ex 7.17–21). 7: The beast, 13.1; 17.8. The bottomless pit, see 9.1n. Will make war on them, Dan 7.21. 8: The great city is identified here prophetically, i.e., allegorically or spiritually rather than literally by its proper name. While the majority of scholars identify this city as Jerusalem, others suggest that the city is Rome, as is Babylon in 17.1–6. The name Sodom, applied to Jerusalem in Isa 1.10; Jer 23.14; Ezek 16.46–56, alludes to that city’s legendary wickedness (Gen 10.20–19.29). Egypt is associated with idolatry and is the land from which God delivered the enslaved people of Israel. Where also their Lord was crucified, Jerusalem. 10: The prophets had been a torment, preaching an unpopular message of repentance. 11–12: The witnesses are resuscitated (cf. Ezek 37.5,10) and taken to heaven (2 Kings 2.11). 12: Come up here, 4.1. 13: Gave glory to the God of heaven, a positive outcome of the great earthquake.

11.14–19: The seventh trumpet announces (v. 15) the consummation of God’s reign (10.7). 16: Elders, 4.4n.
19 Then God’s temple in heaven was opened, and the ark of his covenant was seen within his temple; and there were flashes of lightning, rumblings, peals of thunder, an earthquake, and heavy hail.

12 A great portent appeared in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun, with the moon under her feet, and on her head a crown of twelve stars. 2 She was pregnant and was crying out in birth pangs, in the agony of giving birth. 3 Then another portent appeared in heaven: a great red dragon, with seven heads and ten horns, and seven diadems on his heads. 4 His tail swept down a third of the stars of heaven and threw them to the earth. Then the dragon stood before the woman who was about to bear a child, so that he might devour her child as soon as it was born. 5 And she gave birth to a son, a male child, who is to rule all the nations with a rod of iron. But her child was snatched away and taken to God and to his throne; 6 and the woman fled into the wilderness, where she has a place prepared by God, so that there she can be nourished for one thousand two hundred sixty days.

7 And war broke out in heaven; Michael and his angels fought against the dragon. The dragon and his angels fought back, 8 but they were defeated, and there was no longer any place for them in heaven. 9 The great dragon was thrown down, that ancient serpent, who is called the Devil and Satan, the deceiver of the whole world—he was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were thrown down with him.

10 Then I heard a loud voice in heaven, proclaiming, a song of triumph.

17–18: A song of triumph. 19: Divine self-revelation concludes the vision of the seven trumpets and introduces the vision of ch 12. The ark of [the] covenant was constructed according to divine instruction at Mount Sinai (Ex 25.10–16) and eventually installed in the innermost room of the Temple by Solomon (1 Kings 8.1–12). It was presumably destroyed when the Babylonians captured Jerusalem in 586 BCE (but see 2 Macc 2.4–8).

12.1–17: The vision of the woman, the child, and the dragon is rich in symbolism drawn from mythological traditions found in ancient Babylonia, Egypt, Greece, and Rome, as well as in the Hebrew Bible. One well-known version of the story tells of the goddess Leto, pregnant with Apollo, who is menaced by the dragon Python, who pursues her because he knows that Apollo is destined to kill him (Hyginus, Fabulae 140). Here this material is reinterpreted in terms of Jewish traditions and expectations as the story of the birth of the messiah. 1: A great portent, a sign or omen in heaven that points to a momentous event on earth; see v. 3; 15.1; cf. Lk 21.11; Didache 16.6. The woman is unnamed, and her precise identity is uncertain. Many scholars understand her as the symbolic representation of Israel, from whom the messiah is born (v. 5); the twelve stars thus refer to the twelve tribes. Patristic and medieval Christian interpreters most often took her to be Mary, or sometimes the church. Elements of her description are characteristic of several ancient goddesses. 2: The dragon, identified in v. 9 as “the Devil” and “Satan,” is Leviathan, the great sea monster of Canaanite tradition and of the Hebrew Bible (Job 40.25; Isa 27.1), one specification of the primeval watery chaos. Seven heads and ten horns, 13.1; 17.3; cf. Ps 74.13–14. These details are probably drawn from Dan 7.1–8, where they represent various empires and rulers; it is unclear what they symbolize here; cf. 17.9–10. 4: A third of the stars, a proportion analogous to the destruction caused by the trumpet plagues (8.7–9.19; Dan 8.10). Throw them to the earth, Dan 8.20. 5: Rule . . . with a rod of iron, an allusion to Ps 2.9, originally concerning the king of Israel, and interpreted as referring to a future anointed ruler or messiah (Psalms of Solomon 17.23–24). The messianic child is snatched away and taken to God: The resurrection and exaltation of Jesus denies the demonic dragon victory over its prey.

6: The wilderness is a place where God provides refuge and sustenance amidst adversity (e.g., Gen 21.14–21; Deut 8.15–16; 29.5; 32.10; 1 Kings 17.1–2). One thousand, two hundred sixty days, the equivalent of “a time, and times, and half a time” (v. 14), “forty-two months” (11.2; 13.5), amounts to three and a half years. This symbolic number suggests a period of time limited by divine design. 7–12: The war in heaven and its outcome offers, in symbolic language, the reason for the persecution and oppression of believers (v. 17). 7: Michael, an archangel and the champion of Israel (Dan 10.13,21; 12.1; Jude 9) engages in combat against the dragon and his angels (Dan 10.20). 8: Defeated . . . in heaven, see 9.1–2. Both passages may allude to Isa 14.12–20. 9: Lk 10.18. That ancient serpent, see Gen 3.1–7; Isa 27.1. Satan means adversary, accuser (see Job 1.6–12; 2.1–7; Zech 3.1–2). The deceiver, 20.10. 10: The accuser,
“Now have come the salvation and the power and the kingdom of our God and the authority of his Messiah," for the accuser of our comrades has been thrown down, who accuses them day and night before our God.

11 But they have conquered him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony, for they did not cling to life even in the face of death.

12 Rejoice then, you heavens and those who dwell in them! But woe to the earth and the sea, for the devil has come down to you with great wrath, because he knows that his time is short!”

13 So when the dragon saw that he had been thrown down to the earth, he pursued the woman who had given birth to the male child. 14 But the woman was given the two wings of the great eagle, so that she could fly from the serpent into the wilderness, to her place where she is nourished for a time, and times, and half a time. 15 Then from his mouth the serpent poured water like a river after the woman, to sweep her away with the flood. 16 But the earth came to the help of the woman; it opened its mouth and swallowed the river that the dragon had poured from his mouth. 17 Then the dragon was angry with the woman, and went off to make war on the rest of her children, those who keep the commandments of God and hold the testimony of Jesus.

18 Then the dragon took his stand on the sand of the seashore. 1 And I saw a beast rising out of the sea, having ten horns and seven heads; and on its horns were ten diadems, and on its heads were blasphemous names. 2 And the beast that I saw was like a leopard, its feet were like a bear's, and its mouth was like a lion's mouth. And the dragon gave it its power and his throne and great authority. 3 One of its heads seemed to have received a death-blow, but its mortal wound had been healed. In amazement the whole earth followed the beast. 4 They worshiped the dragon, for he had given his authority to the beast, and they worshiped the beast, saying, “Who is like the beast, and who can fight against it?”

5 The beast was given a mouth uttering haughty and blasphemous words, and it was allowed to exercise authority for forty-two months. 6 It opened its mouth to utter blasphemies against God, blaspheming his name and his dwelling, that is, those who dwell in heaven. 7 Also it was allowed to make war on the saints and to conquer them. 8 It was given authority over every tribe and people and language and nation, and all the inhabitants of the earth will worship it, everyone whose

as in Job 1.9–11. 11: They have conquered, the paradoxical victory of the crucified Jesus (see 5.6–9n.) and of the martyrs, who were faithful unto death. 12: Rejoice, Ps 96.11; Isa 49.13. 14: Eagle, Ex 19.4; Deut 32.11. A time . . . half a time, see v. 6n. 15: Water . . . flood, the chaos of the primeval sea monster (Isa 27.1; Ps 74.13; see 12.3n.). 16: Earth helps the woman, as in Ex 15.12 the earth swallows up the pursuing Egyptian armies. 17: The frustrated dragon redirects its anger toward the rest of the woman’s children, namely, those who keep the commandments . . . and hold the testimony of Jesus (14.12).

12.18–13.18: The two beasts. 13.1–10: The beast from the sea combines the powers of the four beasts of Dan 7 and represents the Roman Empire, incited by the dragon (v. 2) to oppress the saints (v. 7). 1–2: Based on Dan 7.1–7; see also 12.3n. The sea, primeval chaos. Blasphemous names, Roman emperors were deified, and worshiped as gods. 3: Death-blow, perhaps an allusion to the assassination of Julius Caesar in 44 BCE, or a reference to the belief that the emperor Nero, who committed suicide in 68 CE, would be restored to life and rule (see 17.8n.). The mortal wound (to the beast as a whole) did not destroy the empire. Amazement, as of one astonished by a remarkable victory or portent (Jdt 11.16; 2 Esd 12.3). 5: The sovereignty of God, even amid the oppression of the faithful, is implied by the use of passive verbs here and in vv. 7,10,14,15 (cf. 6.4; see 17.17n.). Forty-two months, see name has not been written from the foundation of the world in the book of life of the Lamb that was slaughtered.a

9 Let anyone who has an ear listen:
10 If you are to be taken captive, into captivity you go;
if you kill with the sword, with the sword you must be killed.
Here is a call for the endurance and faith of the saints.

11 Then I saw another beast that rose out of the earth; it had two horns like a lamb and it spoke like a dragon. 12 It exercises all the authority of the first beast on its behalf, and it makes the earth and its inhabitants worship the first beast, whose mortal wound had been healed. 13 It performs great signs, even making fire come down from heaven to earth in the sight of all; 14 and by the signs that it is allowed to perform on behalf of the beast, it deceives the inhabitants of earth, telling them to make an image for the beast that had been wounded by the sword and yet lived; 15 and it was allowed to give breath to the image of the beast so that the image of the beast could even speak and cause those who would not worship the image of the beast to be killed. 16 Also it causes all, both small and great, both rich and poor, both free and slave, to be marked on the right hand or the forehead, 17 so that no one can buy or sell who does not have the mark, that is, the name of the beast or the number of its name. 18 This calls for wisdom: let anyone with understanding calculate the number of the beast, for it is the number of a person. Its number is six hundred sixty-six.b

14 Then I looked, and there was the Lamb, standing on Mount Zion! And with him were one hundred forty-four thousand who had his name and his Father’s name written on their foreheads. 2 And I heard a voice from heaven like the sound of many waters and like the sound of loud thunder; the voice I heard was like the sound of harpists playing on their harps, 3 and they sing a new song before the throne and before the four living creatures and before the elders. No one could learn that song except the one hundred forty-four thousand who have been redeemed from the earth. 4 It is these who have not defiled themselves with women, for they are virgins; these follow the Lamb, standing on Mount Zion!

11.2n. B: From the foundation of the world, this phrase would most naturally qualify slaughtered (see textual note a). A name can be removed from the book of life (3.5n.); later, judgment seems to depend on one’s conduct of life (20.12). The translation here is a harmonization with 17.8. 10: Jer 15.2; 43.11; Mt 26.52. 11–18: The beast from the earth, associated with the false prophet (16.13; v. 19), enforces emperor worship (v. 12) and produces great signs (v. 13) or portents to deceive the people (v. 14); cf. Mt 24.24; 2 Thess 2.9–10. 14: The image, a statue of the deified emperor. 16–17: Marked in imitation of the sealing of God’s servants (7.2–4). The mark of the beast (also 14.9,11; 16.2; 19.20; 20.4) is different from the seal of God with which the faithful are identified (7.3; 9.4). Those who do not bear the mark of the beast suffer economic oppression. Right hand . . . forehead, phylacteries or “tephillin” were worn on the left arm and forehead (Ep. Arist. 159; Josephus, Ant. 4.213). Egyptian Jews were branded by Ptolemy IV (3 Macc 2.28–29). 18: This calls for wisdom, Dan 12.10. The number of a person can be understood either as a number that stands for a specific person, or as a number that can be calculated by human beings, not a hidden number known only to God (cf. 21.17). In the ancient practice of gematria, the numerical equivalents of the letters of the Hebrew or Greek alphabets were added together, and the resulting sum was seen as giving a clue to the nature of the name. Thus the number of the beast (666) is the sum of the separate letters of its name. Of countless explanations, the most probable is “Neron Caesar” (in Hebrew letters), i.e., Emperor Nero, which, if spelled without the final “n”, also accounts for the variant reading, 616 (see textual note e). The number six represents what falls short of the number of completeness, seven.

14.1–20: A series of three visions intended to reassure the faithful of ultimate victory and vindication. 1–5: The Lamb and those redeemed from the earth; as in 7.4, the one hundred forty-four thousand is a symbolic expression. 1: Mount Zion, Jerusalem, the center of God’s eschatological reign (Heb 12.22). Written on their foreheads, 7.3n.; 22.4. 2: Many waters, see 1.15n. 3: They, the one hundred forty-four thousand. New song, 5.8–10.

2170 | NEW TESTAMENT
the wrath of her fornication. 6Then I saw another angel flying in midheaven, with an eternal gospel to proclaim to those who live on the earth—to every nation and tribe and language and people. 7He said in a loud voice, “Fear God and give him glory, for the hour of his judgment has come; and worship him who made heaven and earth, the sea and the springs of water.”

8Then another angel, a second, followed, saying, “Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great! She has made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.”

9Then another angel, a third, followed them, crying with a loud voice, “Those who worship the beast and its image, and receive a mark on their foreheads or on their hands, 10they will also drink the wine of God’s wrath, poured unmixed into the cup of his anger, and they will be tormented with fire and sulfur in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb. 11And the smoke of their torment goes up forever and ever. There is no rest day or night for those who worship the beast and its image and for anyone who receives the mark of its name.”

12Here is a call for the endurance of the saints, those who keep the commandments of God and hold fast to the faith of Jesus.

13And I heard a voice from heaven saying, “Write this: Blessed are the dead who from now on die in the Lord.” “Yes,” says the Spirit, “they will rest from their labors, for their deeds follow them.”

14Then I looked, and there was a white cloud, and seated on the cloud was one like the Son of Man, with a golden crown on his head, and a sharp sickle in his hand. 15Another angel came out of the temple, calling with a loud voice to the one who sat on the cloud, “Use your sickle and reap, for the hour to reap has come, because the harvest of the earth is fully ripe.” 16So the one who sat on the cloud swung his sickle over the earth, and the earth was reaped.

17Then another angel came out of the temple in heaven, and he too had a sharp sickle. 18Then another angel came out from the altar, the angel who has authority over fire, and he called with a loud voice to him who had the sharp sickle, “Use your sharp sickle and gather the clusters of the vine of the earth, for its grapes are ripe.” 19So the angel swung his sickle over the earth and gathered the vintage of the earth, and he threw it into the great wine press of the wrath of God. 20And the wine press was trodden outside the city, and blood flowed from the wine press, as

Throne, 4:2n. Four living creatures, 4:6n. 4: They are virgins, a characterization of the 144,000 that perhaps should be understood metaphorically in terms of the sexual abstinence required before contact with the divine (Ex 19:15; Deut 23:10–14) and of warriors before battle (1 Sam 21:5; 2 Sam 11:9–13). These follow the Lamb, who is their shepherd (7:17). First fruits, Ex 23:19. No lie, cf. Zeph 3:13. 6–13: Three angels announce the coming judgment. 6: Flying in midheaven, 8:13. Eternal gospel, the message or proclamation that follows in v. 7, an announcement that God’s judgment is imminent. 7: Fear God, 15:4; Deut 10:12–15. Judgment, 16:7; 18:10; 19:2. Worship acknowledges God’s cosmic sovereignty as Creator. 8: Fallen, fallen is Babylon (Isa 21:9) the great (Dan 4:30), an anticipation of 18.2. Babylon is a symbolic name for Rome (2 Esd 3:1–2). The association of the two is based on the destruction of Jerusalem by Babylon in 586 BCE and by Rome in 70 CE. The wine of the wrath, 18:3; Jer 51:9–11: The sentence pronounced against those who worship the beast will be worse than what is suffered by those who do not worship it or bear its mark (13:15–17). 10: Wine of God’s wrath, Jer 25:15–16; 51:7. Unmixed, not diluted and therefore more potent (see 3 Macc 5:2). Wine was often mixed with water before being drunk. Fire and sulfur (19:20; 20:10; 21:8) are instruments of divine punishment (Gen 19:24; Ps 11:6; Ezek 38:22). Holy angels, Mk 8:38. 11: Smoke, 18:9,18; 19:3. 12: An exhortation to perseverance addressed to those against whom the dragon goes to make war in 12.17. 13: Blessed, see 1:1n. A promise assured by the Spirit. Their deeds, 2:2,19; 3:1–2.15. 14–20: The eschatological harvest, the final judgment of God (Joel 3:13), involves the ingathering of the saints by one like the Son of Man (vv. 14–16) and the assembling of the wicked for destruction (vv. 17–20). 14: White cloud. . . Son of Man, Dan 7:13; Mt 24:30; Mk 14:62. 15–16: A grain harvest. 18–20: A scene of the grape harvest and winemaking. 20: Metaphorically, wine is frequently associated with blood (Gen 49:11; Deut 32:14; Sir 39:26; 1 Macc 6:34). Here high as a horse’s bridle, for a distance of about two hundred miles.\(^a\)

15 Then I saw another portent in heaven, great and amazing: seven angels with seven plagues, which are the last, for with them the wrath of God is ended.\(^b\)

And I saw what appeared to be a sea of glass mixed with fire, and those who had conquered the beast and its image and the number of its name, standing beside the sea of glass with harps of God in their hands.\(^c\)

And they sing the song of Moses, the servant\(^d\) of God, and the song of the Lamb:

“Great and amazing are your deeds, Lord God the Almighty!
Just and true are your ways, King of the nations!\(^e\)

Lord, who will not fear and glorify your name?
For you alone are holy.
All nations will come and worship before you, for your judgments have been revealed.”

After this I looked, and the temple of the tent of witness in heaven was opened, and out of the temple came the seven angels with the seven plagues, robed in pure bright linen, with golden sashes across their chests. Then one of the four living creatures gave the seven angels seven golden bowls full of the wrath of God, who lives forever and ever; and the temple was filled with smoke from the glory of God and from his power, and no one could enter the temple until the seven plagues of the seven angels were ended.

Then I heard a loud voice from the temple telling the seven angels, “Go and pour out on the earth the seven bowls of the wrath of God.”

So the first angel went and poured his bowl on the earth, and a foul and painful sore came on those who had the mark of the beast and who worshiped its image.

The second angel poured his bowl into the sea, and it became like the blood of a corpse, and every living thing in the sea died.

The third angel poured his bowl into the rivers and the springs of water, and they became blood. And I heard the angel of the waters say, “You are just, O Holy One, who are and were, because they shed the blood of saints and prophets, you have given them blood to drink. It is what they deserve!”

And I heard the altar respond, “Yes, O Lord God, the Almighty, your judgments are true and just!”

The fourth angel poured his bowl on the sun, and it was allowed to scorch people with fire; they were scorched by the fierce heat, but they cursed the name of God, who had authority over these plagues, and they did not repent and give him glory.

the enormous quantity of blood suggests the vast extent of the divine judgment (cf. Isa 63.3–6). Mention of the horse’s bridle here foreshadows the combat in 19.11–21.

15.1–16.21: The seven bowls of the wrath of God.

15.1–8: The preparation for judgment. 1: Portent, a third heavenly sign (see 12.1n.,3). The wrath of God, 14.10; 15.1; 16.1; 19.15. Is ended, accomplished or come to its fulfillment. 15.2–4: Vision of the victorious martyrs in heaven (8.3–5). 2: Sea of glass, see 4.6n. 3: Song of Moses, Ex 15.1–18; Deut 32. 5: The temple of the tent of witness, the heavenly counterpart of the tent of witness that accompanied Israel’s journey through the desert (Num 9.15). Was opened, cf. 11.19. On opening the heavenly gates as a prelude to judgment, see 3 Macc 6.18–19. In Rome, the Temple of Janus was opened as a prelude to war (Virgil, Aeneid 1.294). 7: Golden bowls, libation vessels used in religious rituals. 8: Smoke, Ex 19.18; 40.34–35; Isa 6.1–4; cf. 1 Kings 8.10–11.

16.1–21: The pouring of the bowls (cf. chs 8–9, and the plagues inflicted on Egypt, Ex 7–12). 2: A foul and painful sore, Ex 9.8–12. 3–4: 8.8–9; Ex 7.14–24. 5–6: A judgment doxology. 5: The angel that has control of the waters, implying a worldview in which different angels preside over different elements of the cosmos (1 En. 60.10–22; Rev 7.1–2, winds; Rev 14.18, fire). 6: Divine retribution (Isa 49.26). Blood to drink, cf. 17.6. 7: The al-
The fifth angel poured his bowl on the throne of the beast, and its kingdom was plunged into darkness; people gnawed their tongues in agony, and cursed the God of heaven because of their pains and sores, and they did not repent of their deeds.

The sixth angel poured his bowl on the great river Euphrates, and its water was dried up in order to prepare the way for the kings from the east. And I saw three foul spirits like frogs coming from the mouth of the dragon, from the mouth of the beast, and from the mouth of the false prophet. These are demonic spirits, performing signs, who go abroad to the kings of the whole world, to assemble them for battle on the great day of God the Almighty. (“See, I am coming like a thief! Blessed is the one who stays awake and is clothed, not going about naked and exposed to shame.”) And they assembled them at the place that in Hebrew is called Harmagedon.

The seventh angel poured his bowl into the air, and a loud voice came out of the temple, saying, “It is done!” And there came flashes of lightning, rumblings, peals of thunder, and a violent earthquake, such as had not occurred since people were upon the earth, so violent was that earthquake. The great city was split into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell. God remembered great Babylon and gave her the wine-cup of the fury of his wrath. And every island fled away, and no mountains were to be found; and huge hailstones, each weighing about a hundred pounds, dropped from heaven on people, until they cursed God for the plague of the hail, so fearful was that plague.

Then one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls came and said to me, “Come, I will show you the judgment of the great whore who is seated on many waters, with whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and with the wine of whose fornication the inhabitants of the earth have become drunk.” So he carried me away in the Spirit into a wilderness, and I saw a woman sitting on a scarlet beast that was full of blasphemous names, and it had seven heads and ten horns. The woman was clothed in purple and scarlet, and adorned with gold and jewels and pearls, holding in her hand a golden cup full of abominations and the impurities of her fornication; and on her forehead was written a name, a mystery: “Babylon the great, mother of whores and of earth’s abominations.” And I saw that the woman was drunk with the blood of the a Gk and keeps his robes b Gk weighing about a talent

---

c Or in the Spirit saints and the blood of the witnesses to Jesus.

When I saw her, I was greatly amazed. 7 But the angel said to me, “Why are you so amazed? I will tell you the mystery of the woman, and of the beast with seven heads and ten horns that carries her. 8 The beast that you saw was, and is not, and is about to ascend from the bottomless pit and go to destruction. And the inhabitants of the earth, whose names have not been written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, will be amazed when they see the beast, because it was and is not and is to come.

9 “This calls for a mind that has wisdom: the seven heads are seven mountains on which the woman is seated; also, they are seven kings, 10 of whom five have fallen, one is living, and the other has not yet come; and when he comes, he must remain only a little while. 11 As for the beast that was and is not, it is an eighth but it belongs to the seven, and it goes to destruction. 12 And the ten horns that you saw are ten kings who have not yet received a kingdom, but they are to receive authority as kings for one hour, together with the beast. 13 These are united in yielding their power and authority to the beast; 14 they will make war on the Lamb, and the Lamb will conquer them, for he is Lord of lords and King of kings, and those with him are called and chosen and faithful.”

15 And he said to me, “The waters that you saw, where the whore is seated, are peoples and multitudes and nations and languages. 16 And the ten horns that you saw, they and the beast will hate the whore; they will make her desolate and naked; they will devour her flesh and burn her up with fire. 17 For God has put it into their hearts to carry out his purpose by agreeing to give their kingdom to the beast, until the words of God will be fulfilled. 18 The woman you saw is the great city that rules over the kings of the earth.”

After this I saw another angel coming down from heaven, having great authority; and the earth was made bright with his splendor. 2 He called out with a mighty voice, “Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great! It has become a dwelling place of demons, a haunt of every foul spirit, a haunt of every foul bird, a haunt of every foul and hateful beast. 3 For all the nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth have grown rich from the power of her luxury.”

4 Then I heard another voice from heaven saying, “Come out of her, my people, so that you do not take part in her sins, and so that you do not share in her plagues; 5 for her sins are heaped high as heaven, and God has remembered her iniquities. 6 Render to her as she herself has rendered, Ezek 39.19. Persecution took the form of exile (1.9), imprisonment (2.10), or death (2.10,13; 11.3). 8: The beast now represents the Roman emperor Nero, who was expected to return to life and power (v. 11). Was and is not and is to come, a parody of the designation of God in 1.4,8. Book of life, see 3.5n. 9: This calls for a mind that has wisdom, like the formula in 13.18, this expression introduces the interpretation of the symbolism of the preceding verses. The seven mountains are the seven hills of Rome. The seven kings are Roman emperors (cf. Dan 11.2; 2 Esd 12.22–26), which interpreters have identified with various emperors from Julius Caesar to Domitian. 12: Ten horns represent subordinate or client rulers (Dan 7.7–8). 14: The eschatological victory of Jesus Christ. Lord of lords and king of kings, 19.16. 16: Ezek 23.26–29. 17: The ten kings are unwitting instruments of God’s will, fulfilling the divine plan (compare the passive verbs in 6.4; see 13.5n.). 18: An explicit identification of the woman of v. 1 as the great city, i.e., Rome.

and repay her double for her deeds; mix a double draught for her in the cup she mixed.

7 As she glorified herself and lived luxuriously, so give her a like measure of torment and grief.

Since in her heart she says, ‘I rule as a queen; I am no widow, and I will never see grief,’

8 therefore her plagues will come in a single day— pestilence and mourning and famine—and she will be burned with fire; for mighty is the Lord God who judges her.”

9 And the kings of the earth, who committed fornication and lived in luxury with her, will weep and wail over her when they see the smoke of her burning; 10 they will stand far off, in fear of her torment, and say, “Alas, alas, the great city, Babylon, the mighty city! For in one hour your judgment has come.”

11 And the merchants of the earth weep and mourn for her, since no one buys their cargo anymore, 12 cargo of gold, silver, jewels and pearls, fine linen, purple, silk and scarlet, all kinds of scented wood, all articles of ivory, all articles of costly wood, bronze, iron, and marble, 13 cinnamon, spice, incense, myrrh, frankincense, wine, olive oil, choice flour and wheat, cattle and sheep, horses and chariots, slaves—and human lives.

14 “The fruit for which your soul longed has gone from you, and all your dainties and your splendor are lost to you, never to be found again!”

15 The merchants of these wares, who gained wealth from her, will stand far off, in fear of her torment, weeping and mourning aloud, 16 “Alas, alas, the great city, clothed in fine linen, in purple and scarlet, adorned with gold, with jewels, and with pearls! 17 For in one hour all this wealth has been laid waste!” And all shipmasters and seafarers, sailors and all whose trade is on the sea, stood far off and cried out as they saw the smoke of her burning, “What city was like the great city?”

19 And they threw dust on their heads, as they wept and mourned, crying out, “Alas, alas, the great city, where all who had ships at sea grew rich by her wealth! For in one hour she has been laid waste.”

20 Rejoice over her, O heaven, you saints and apostles and prophets! For God has given judgment for you against her.

21 Then a mighty angel took up a stone like a great millstone and threw it into the sea, saying, “With such violence Babylon the great city will be thrown down, and will be found no more; and the sound of harpists and minstrels and of flutists and trumpeters will be heard in you no more; and an artisan of any trade will be found in you no more; and the sound of the millstone will be heard in you no more; and the light of a lamp will shine in you no more; and the voice of bridegroom and bride will be heard in you no more; for your merchants were the magnates of the earth, and all nations were deceived by your sorcery.

24 And in you was found the blood of prophets and of saints, a Jer 51:45; Mt 24.16. 5: High as heaven, Jer 51.9. 6: Jer 50.29; cf. Isa 40.2. 9–20: Lamentation of those who have been enriched through their dealings with the corrupt city: kings (vv. 9–10), merchants (vv. 11–16), and mariners (vv. 17–20; cf. Ezek 27.29–36). 13: Slaves—and human lives, through the practice of slavery, the Roman imperial economy reduced human beings to mere commodities that could be bought and sold like any other merchandise 20: Rejoice over her, Jer 51.48. 21–24: Symbolic action representing the total destruction of the city (Jer 51.63–64). 22: Sound of harpists, Jer 25.10; Ezek 26.13. 24: Blood of prophets, Mt 23.34–35; Lk 11.49–51; 13.33–34.

and of all who have been slaughtered on earth.”

After this I heard what seemed to be the loud voice of a great multitude in heaven, saying, “Hallelujah! Salvation and glory and power to our God, for his judgments are true and just; he has judged the great whore who corrupted the earth with her fornication, and he has avenged on her the blood of his servants.”

Once more they said, “Hallelujah! The smoke goes up from her forever and ever.”

And the twenty-four elders and the four living creatures fell down and worshiped God who is seated on the throne, saying, “Amen. Hallelujah!”

And from the throne came a voice saying, “Praise our God, all you his servants, and all who fear him, small and great.”

Then I heard what seemed to be the voice of a great multitude, like the sound of many waters and like the sound of mighty thunder-peals, crying out, “Hallelujah! For the Lord our God the Almighty reigns.

Let us rejoice and exult and give him the glory, for the marriage of the Lamb has come, and his bride has made herself ready; for the fine linen is the righteous deeds of the saints.

And the angel said to me, “Write this: Blessed are those who are invited to the marriage supper of the Lamb.” And he said to me, “These are true words of God.”

Then I fell down at his feet to worship him, but he said to me, “You must not do that! I am a fellow servant with you and your comrades who hold the testimony of Jesus. Worship God! For the testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy.”

Then I saw heaven opened, and there was a white horse! Its rider is called Faithful and True, and in righteousness he judges and makes war. His eyes are like a flame of fire, and on his head are many diadems; and he has a name inscribed that no one knows but himself. He is clothed in a robe dipped in blood, and his name is called The Word of God.

And the armies of heaven, wearing fine linen, white and pure, were following him on white horses.

From his mouth comes a sharp sword with which to strike down the nations, and he will rule them with a rod of iron; he will tread the wine press of the fury of the wrath of God the Almighty.

On his robe and on his thigh he has a name inscribed, “King of kings and Lord of lords.”

Then I saw an angel standing in the sun, and with a loud voice he called to all the birds that fly in midheaven, “Come, gather for the great supper of God, to eat...
Then I saw an angel coming down from heaven, holding in his hand the key to the bottomless pit and a great chain. 2 He seized the dragon, that ancient serpent, who is the Devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years, and threw him into the lake of fire that burns with sulfur. 3 And the rest were killed by the sword of the rider on the horse, the sword that came from his mouth; and all the birds were gorged with their flesh.

4 Then I saw thrones, and those seated on them were given authority to judge. I also saw the souls of those who had been beheaded for their testimony to Jesus and for the word of God. They had not worshiped the beast or its image and had not received its mark on their foreheads or their hands. They came to life and reigned with Christ a thousand years. 5 (The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were ended.) This is the first resurrection. 6 Blessed and holy are those who share in the first resurrection. Over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ, and they will reign with him a thousand years.

7 When the thousand years are ended, Satan will be released from his prison and will come out to deceive the nations at the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, in order to gather them for battle; they are as numerous as the sands of the sea. 8 They marched up over the breadth of the earth and surrounded the camp of the saints and the beloved city. And fire came down from heaven and consumed them. 9 And the then saw an angel coming down from heaven, holding in his hand the key to the bottomless pit and a great chain. He seized the dragon, that ancient serpent, who is the Devil and Satan, and bound him for a thousand years, and threw him into the lake of fire that burns with sulfur. And the rest were killed by the sword of the rider on the horse, the sword that came from his mouth; and all the birds were gorged with their flesh.

Fine linen

4 Then I saw thrones, and those seated on them were given authority to judge. I also saw the souls of those who had been beheaded for their testimony to Jesus and for the word of God. They had not worshiped the beast or its image and had not received its mark on their foreheads or their hands. They came to life and reigned with Christ a thousand years. (The rest of the dead did not come to life until the thousand years were ended.) This is the first resurrection. Blessed and holy are those who share in the first resurrection. Over these the second death has no power, but they will be priests of God and of Christ, and they will reign with him a thousand years.

7 When the thousand years are ended, Satan will be released from his prison and will come out to deceive the nations at the four corners of the earth, Gog and Magog, in order to gather them for battle; they are as numerous as the sands of the sea. They marched up over the breadth of the earth and surrounded the camp of the saints and the beloved city. And fire came down from heaven and consumed them. And the a Or for the testimony of Jesus

b Other ancient authorities read from God, out of heaven, or out of heaven from God

20.1–10: The defeat of Satan.
20.1–6: The temporary imprisonment of Satan and the reign of Christ and the martyrs. 1: Chain, 2 Pet 2.4; Jude 6. 2–3: The period of a thousand years is symbolic both here and in vv. 4–7, suggesting a temporary time of righteousness and tranquility before the final eschatological consummation. Cf. Ps 90.4; as the eternal time of blessing in Jb. 4.29–30; 23.27–30; a time far greater than the ten days during which the saints endured trials (2.10). 2: The dragon . . . serpent . . . Devil . . . Satan, 12.9n. 3: Satan is locked into the pit to prevent him from carrying out his demonic work as “the deceiver of the whole world” (12.9). After the thousand years, though, he must be let out for a little while, but even this limited period is under God’s control (Dan 7.25). 4: Thrones of judgment (Dan 7.9,22,27; Mt 19.28; Lk 22.30). Those . . . beheaded for their testimony, martyrs (in 6.9–10 the souls of the martyrs, under the altar, cry for vengeance). Its mark, 13.16–17; 14.9. Reigned with Christ a thousand years, this passage, which gave rise to Christian millennialism, suggests an interim messianic kingdom. 6: Blessed, see 1.3n. Priests, 1.6; 5.10; Ex 19.6. Second death, see 2.11n.; 20.14; 21.8.

20.7–10: The release of Satan and the final conflict. Gog and Magog, gathering with the nations for war against Israel in Ezek 38–39 (a prophecy mentioned in 16.14–16 and 19.17–21). 9: The beloved city, Jerusalem (Sir
Then I saw a great white throne and the one who sat on it; the earth and the heaven fled from his presence, and no place was found for them. And I saw the dead, great and small, standing before the throne, and books were opened. Also another book was opened, the book of life. And the dead were judged according to their works, as recorded in the books. And the sea gave up the dead that were in it, Death and Hades gave up the dead that were in them, and all were judged according to what they had done. Then Death and Hades were thrown into the lake of fire. This is the second death, the lake of fire; and anyone whose name was not found written in the book of life was thrown into the lake of fire.

21 Then I saw a new heaven and a new earth; for the first heaven and the first earth had passed away, and the sea was no more. And I saw the holy city, the new Jerusalem, coming down out of heaven from God, prepared as a bride adorned for her husband. And I heard a loud voice from the throne saying, “See, the home of God is among mortals. He will dwell with them; they will be his peoples, and God himself will be with them; he will wipe every tear from their eyes. Death will be no more; mourning and crying and pain will be no more, for the first things have passed away.”

And the one who was seated on the throne said, “See, I am making all things new.” Also he said, “Write this, for these words are trustworthy and true.” Then he said to me, “It is done! I am the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end. To the thirsty I will give water as a gift from the spring of the water of life. Those who conquer will inherit these things, and I will be their God and they will be my children. But as for the cowardly, the faithless, the polluted, the murderers, the fornicators, the sorcerers, the idolaters, and all liars, their place will be in the lake that burns with fire and sulfur, which is the second death.”

Then one of the seven angels who had the seven bowls full of the seven last plagues came and said to me, “Come, I will show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb.” And in a Or Gk the tabernacle b Gk will tabernacle c Other ancient authorities read people d Other ancient authorities add and be their God e Or the unbelieving 21.1–22.5: Vision of the new Jerusalem. 22.1–8: The renewal of creation. 22.9–27: The measuring of the city. Cf. Ezek 40–42. Both the city and its measurements (which are multiples of 12) are symbolic.

the spirit\textsuperscript{a} he carried me away to a great, high mountain and showed me the holy city Jerusalem coming down out of heaven from God. \textsuperscript{9} It has the glory of God and a radiance like a very rare jewel, like jasper, clear as crystal. \textsuperscript{10} It has a great, high wall with twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and on the gates are inscribed the names of the twelve tribes of the Israelites; \textsuperscript{11} on the east three gates, on the north three gates, on the south three gates, and on the west three gates. \textsuperscript{12} And the wall of the city has twelve foundations, and on them are the twelve names of the twelve apostles of the Lamb.\textsuperscript{13} The angel\textsuperscript{b} who talked to me had a measuring rod of gold to measure the city and its gates and walls.\textsuperscript{14} The city lies foursquare, its length the same as its width; and he measured the city with his rod, fifteen hundred miles;\textsuperscript{c} its length and width and height are equal.\textsuperscript{15} He also measured its wall, one hundred forty-four cubits\textsuperscript{d} by human measurement, which the angel was using.\textsuperscript{16} The wall is built of jasper, while the city is pure gold, clear as glass.\textsuperscript{17} The foundations of the wall of the city are adorned with every jewel; the first was jasper, the second sapphire, the third agate, the fourth emerald,\textsuperscript{18} the fifth onyx, the sixth carnelian, the seventh chrysolite, the eighth beryl, the ninth topaz, the tenth chrysoprase, the eleventh jacinth, the twelfth amethyst.\textsuperscript{19} And the twelve gates are twelve pearls, each of the gates is a single pearl, and the street of the city is pure gold, transparent as glass.

\textsuperscript{20} I saw no temple in the city, for its temple is the Lord God the Almighty and the Lamb.\textsuperscript{21} And the city has no need of sun or moon to shine on it, for the glory of God is its light, and its lamp is the Lamb.\textsuperscript{22} The nations will walk by its light, and the kings of the earth will bring their glory into it.\textsuperscript{23} Its gates will never be shut by day—and there will be no night there.\textsuperscript{24} People will bring into it the glory and the honor of the nations.\textsuperscript{25} But nothing unclean will enter it, nor anyone who practices abomination or falsehood, but only those who are written in the Lamb’s book of life.

\textsuperscript{26} Then the angel\textsuperscript{e} showed me the river of the water of life, bright as crystal, flowing from the throne of God and of the Lamb through the middle of the street of the city. On either side of the river is the tree of life\textsuperscript{f} with its twelve kinds of fruit, producing its fruit each month; and the leaves of the tree are for the healing of the nations.\textsuperscript{27} Nothing accursed will be found there any more. But the throne of God and of the Lamb will be in it, and his servants\textsuperscript{g} will worship him;\textsuperscript{4} they will see his face, and his name

\textsuperscript{a} Or in the Spirit \textsuperscript{b} Gk He \textsuperscript{c} Gk twelve thousand stadia
\textsuperscript{d} That is, almost seventy-five yards \textsuperscript{e} Gk he \textsuperscript{f} Or the Lamb. \textsuperscript{g} In the middle of the street of the city, and on either side of the river, is the tree of life
\textsuperscript{g} Gk slaves

trayed as the bride of God in Isa 54.5; Hos 2.19–20; the antithesis of Babylon in 17.1–3.\textsuperscript{10} In the spirit, see 1.10n. High mountain, Ezek 40.2. Jerusalem . . . out of heaven, v. 2n.\textsuperscript{11} Jasper, 4.3; glory of God (Ezek 43.2–5).\textsuperscript{12} Ezek 48.30–34. 14: See Eph 2.20. Twelve apostles added to the twelve tribes of Israel creates the symbolic number twenty-four (4.3–4).\textsuperscript{15–18} The city that lies foursquare, i.e., with streets that intersect at right angles, unlike the irregular walls of Palestinian cities (Ezek 42.20). The cube is a perfect, symmetrical shape (for the ideal Temple as a square, see Ezek 40.5; 45.1–5). This description of a city with a river running through it resembles ancient accounts of Babylon (Herodotus, Hist. 1.178–79). The precious stones, with the names of the twelve tribes, adorned the high priest’s breastplate (Ex 28.17–20).\textsuperscript{19} Isa 54.11–12. 21: The street of the city is pure gold, even more impressive than stone-paved Roman roads 22–23: Unlike the cities of the Roman province of Asia, where monumental temples to the deified emperor reminded the population of the pervasive power of the distant imperial capital, in the new Jerusalem no temple . . . no . . . sun are needed because the presence and glory of God pervade the entire community (Isa 24.23; 60.1,19; 2 Esd 7.39–42). Its lamp is the Lamb, Ps 132.17. 25: City gates would be closed at night and at the approach of enemies; perpetually open gates symbolize complete safety and security; see Isa 60.11; Zech 14.7; 1QM 12.13–15. 27: Book of life, see 3.5n.

22.1–5: The river and the tree of life. 1: The river, cf. Gen 2.10; Ps 46.4; Ezek 47.1; Zech 14.8. 2: The tree, a collective reference to many trees on either side of the river (Ezek 47.12; see 2.7n.). 3: The throne of God and of the Lamb will be on their foreheads. 5 And there will be no more night; they need no light of lamp or sun, for the Lord God will be their light, and they will reign forever and ever.

6 And he said to me, “These words are trustworthy and true, for the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, has sent his angel to show his servants what must soon take place.”

7 “See, I am coming soon! Blessed is the one who keeps the words of the prophecy of this book.”

8 I, John, am the one who heard and saw these things. And when I heard and saw them, I fell down to worship at the feet of the angel who showed them to me; 9 but he said to me, “You must not do that! I am a fellow servant with you and your comrades the prophets, and with those who keep the words of this book. Worship God!”

10 And he said to me, “Do not seal up the words of the prophecy of this book, for the time is near. 11 Let the evildoer still do evil, and the filthy still be filthy, and the righteous still do right, and the holy still be holy.”

12 “See, I am coming soon; my reward is with me, to repay according to everyone’s work. 13 I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last, the beginning and the end.”

14 Blessed are those who wash their robes, 4 so that they will have the right to the tree of life and may enter the city by the gates. 15 Outside are the dogs and sorcerers and fornicators and murderers and idolaters, and everyone who loves and practices falsehood. 16 “It is I, Jesus, who sent my angel to you with this testimony for the churches. I am the root and the descendant of David, the bright morning star.”

17 The Spirit and the bride say, “Come.” And let everyone who hears say, “Come.” And let everyone who is thirsty come. Let anyone who wishes take the water of life as a gift.

18 I warn everyone who hears the words of the prophecy of this book: if anyone adds to them, God will add to that person the plagues described in this book; 19 if anyone takes away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God will take away that person’s share in the tree of life and in the holy city, which are described in this book.

20 The one who testifies to these things says, “Surely I am coming soon.” Amen. Come, Lord Jesus!

21 The grace of the Lord Jesus be with all the saints. Amen.

---

a Gk slaves
b Gk slave
c Gk brothers
d Other ancient authorities read do his commandments
e Other ancient authorities lack all; others lack the saints; others lack Amen
This page intentionally left blank
This page intentionally left blank
The contents of the Bible differ depending on the particular community using it. The major difference is between Christian Bibles, which include the New Testament, and the Jewish Bible, which does not. But there are also differences between the Hebrew Bible in Judaism and the Old Testament in Christianity, and there are differences among Christians about the contents of the Old Testament (see chart p. 2187). The discussion below will explain, within the limits of what scholars now know, how these differences came about.

DEFINITIONS

“Canon,” a Greek word meaning “reed,” came to refer to any straight stick that could be used for measuring. This basic meaning was extended to refer to any rule or standard by which things could be compared or judged. The Alexandrian grammarians, classical Greek writers who were not simply grammarians but also what we would call literary critics, used “canon” as their term for the list of standard or classic authors who were worthy of attention and imitation. This was not a closed category, and there were disputes about adding or removing works from the list. Furthermore, inclusion on the list merely recognized a work’s quality; it did not confer any new status. Nevertheless, a canon of writings came to denote those texts that were of central importance to a given group. When used in reference to the Bible, canon has an even stronger significance: Not only is a given set of texts included, but all other texts—no matter how worthy otherwise—are excluded. This sense is expressed in a rabbinic comment on Eccl 12.12. The biblical text reads:

> Of anything beyond these [Heb mehemah], my child, beware. Of making many books there is no end.

The rabbinic comment states:

> Those who bring more than twenty-four books [the standard number in the Hebrew Bible; see below] into their house introduce confusion [Heb mehumah] into their house (Qoh. Rab. 12.12).

This suggests not only that the works in the canon are important, but that they, along with their authoritative interpretation, are sufficient in and of themselves.

THE HEBREW BIBLE

It is extremely difficult to trace how this conception of canon developed, and how it is connected to related notions, such as the eventual stabilization of the biblical text. Until the mid-twentieth century, many scholars thought that the canon of the Hebrew Bible was established at Jabneh (Jamnia), a city near the Mediterranean coast, west of Jerusalem, which was a center of Jewish learning after the destruction of the Second Temple (70 ce). According to this theory, a group of rabbis met there in about 90 ce and voted on whether certain books were canonical; at the end of this meeting, the official contents of the Hebrew Bible were supposedly established. It is now acknowledged that this overly neat reconstruction is incorrect and was based on a misunderstanding of rabbinic texts. Unfortunately, evidence is not available to offer a clear picture of how the canon of the Hebrew Bible was formed. Much of the material from early Jewish sources (for instance, the Dead Sea Scrolls, rabbinic texts, and the first-century ce historian Josephus) and Christian sources is ambiguous. Furthermore, many of the sources were written several centuries after the canon was definitively established, and are more interested in fostering a particular viewpoint than in presenting the facts objectively; they must, therefore, be used with great caution.

This much is clear: The canon of the Hebrew Bible did not develop at a single moment in time but rather in stages. There is general agreement that the Torah or Pentateuch was the first section of the Hebrew Bible to be canonized, that is, to be recognized as central by the community. Exactly when this happened is uncertain. Many scholars had associated this development with Ezra, and they saw the “law of your God” (Ezra 7.14), with which Ezra was entrusted in the fifth century bce, as the Pentateuch. We now recognize, however, that this assertion goes beyond the evidence of the text. Though the Jewish community had recognized the Torah as central to its identity by the Persian period (sixth to fourth centuries), a conclusion suggested by citations of Torah material as authoritative in biblical books from this period (e.g., Chronicles, Ezra-Nehemiah), it is unclear exactly how this happened, or whether this development should be associated primarily with a single individual such as Ezra, or should be seen as part of a larger, more complicated process.

According to rabbinic tradition, the Torah is the first part of a tripartite (three-part) canon, followed by Nevi’im (prophets) and Ketuvim (writings), forming a work that much later was known by the acronym Tanakh(h), Torah, Nevi’im, Ketuvim. Nevi’im is composed... of Joshua, Judges, Samuel (seen as one book), Kings (seen as one book)—historical works known as “the former prophets”—and “the latter prophets,” consisting of Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and the twelve minor prophets (Hosea through Malachi, seen as one book). The order of these eight books has been relatively stable. Ketuvim is comprised of the following eleven books, which, by contrast, appear in a wide variety of orders in various book lists and biblical manuscripts: Psalms, Proverbs, Job; the “five scrolls,” whose order has been especially variable, Ruth, Song of Solomon, Ecclesiastes, Lamentations, and Esther; Daniel, Ezra-Nehemiah (seen as one book), and Chronicles (seen as one book). The number of canonical books according to traditional Jewish sources is thus twenty-four (five in the Torah, eight in Nevi'im, eleven in Ketuvim).

The origin of the tripartite canon has been a topic of recent dispute, with several scholars suggesting that a two-part canon, the Torah and other works, was the original form, and that only later was it divided into three parts. It is more likely, however, that the tripartite canon is primary, and evidence for it appears in such sources as Lk 24.44, which refers to “the law of Moses, the prophets, and the psalms,” and in parallel expressions in the Dead Sea Scrolls. The tripartite canon likely reflects the gradual nature of the canonization process, with Nevi'im canonized before Ketuvim. This would explain why the Ketuvim contain the book of Daniel (dating from the second century BCE), and several late historical books, such as Ezra-Nehemiah and Chronicles, which would seem more appropriately to belong with similar works such as Joshua and Kings. The tripartite canon most likely suggests, therefore, that Torah was canonized in the Persian period, followed by the canonization of Nevi'im in the late Persian or early Greek period, while the Ketuvim were canonized last, around the time of the destruction of the Second Temple (70 CE).

The tripartite order is not the only order known in antiquity, nor is the number of twenty-four books the only number mentioned in ancient Jewish sources. Josephus, the Jewish historian of the first century CE, refers to twenty-two biblical books (Ag. Ap. 1.42). It is not clear if he simply had a smaller canon or if, instead, his canon had the texts in a different order, combined in different ways. Some traditions put Ruth after Judges and Lamentations after Jeremiah, treating these smaller books as appendices to the ones they follow, rather than as independent works. Such an arrangement would yield twenty-two books, a number that conveniently corresponds to the number of letters in the Hebrew alphabet; some early Christian sources also cite this as the number of books in the Bible. The arrangement of Ruth and Lamentations mentioned above is that of the Septuagint (LXX), the Greek translation of the Bible begun in Alexandria, Egypt, in the second century BCE (see “The Greek Bible” below). According to this tradition, mentioned by some early church fathers and reflected in the arrangement of the earliest comprehensive Septuagint manuscripts (fourth century CE), the Hebrew Bible is divided into four parts: Torah, Histories, Poetical and Wisdom books, and Prophets (see the Introduction to the Poetical and Wisdom Books, p. 721). This order continues to be used by Christians in their organization of the Hebrew Bible (Old Testament) materials. Older scholarship spoke of this four-part, twenty-two-book arrangement as the Alexandrian canon, in contrast to the tripartite, twenty-four-book Palestinian canon, but scholars now recognize that such a clear dichotomy never existed and therefore avoid the use of those terms.

Scholars also now recognize that even when canonization took place, the contents of the Bible did not absolutely freeze. This is true, first of all, about books whose status as scripture continued to be debated. The Bible had begun to stabilize significantly by the fourth century CE, with the development of explicit lists in the Christian community of books considered canonical (see the chart CANONS OF THE HEBREW BIBLE). Other groups, too, had their ideas about the canon; it is unlikely, for instance, that the Qumran community, most of whose texts date from the century or so immediately before and immediately after the Common Era, viewed Esther as canonical, since no clear biblical manuscript of that book has survived among the thousands of fragments discovered. In contrast, many manuscripts of Jubilees, a set of comments on Genesis and Exodus, have survived, and given this work’s affinities with the practices of the Dead Sea community, it was probably a canonical text for them. Within rabbinic literature, the Wisdom of Jesus ben Sirach (Sirach or Ecclesiasticus) is sometimes cited with the same formula used for biblical texts and was thus, in some sense, canonical for some rabbis. Therefore, although we may speak of the canon as forming in the first century CE, there was flexibility and variation around the fringes.

This flexibility may also be seen in the extensive divergence with respect to the wording of the biblical text as shown in manuscripts from Qumran, in translations of the Hebrew Bible in the Septuagint and elsewhere, and to a lesser extent in early rabbinic citations. These differences are not just small, such as a variant spelling here or there, but are often major and affect the meaning of the text. There are cases where the text is found in two or more different recensions—identifiably different versions, revisions, or critical texts, not merely two different
Canons of the Hebrew Bible

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Jewish Canon</th>
<th>Protestant Canon</th>
<th>Roman Catholic/Orthodox Canon</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Torah (Law)</td>
<td>PENTATEUCH</td>
<td>PENTATEUCH</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Genesis</td>
<td>Genesis</td>
<td>Genesis</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Exodus</td>
<td>Exodus</td>
<td>Exodus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Leviticus</td>
<td>Leviticus</td>
<td>Leviticus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Numbers</td>
<td>Numbers</td>
<td>Numbers</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deuteronomy</td>
<td>Deuteronomy</td>
<td>Deuteronomy</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nevi'im (Prophets)</td>
<td>HISTORIES</td>
<td>HISTORIES</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Joshua</td>
<td>Joshua</td>
<td>Joshua</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Judges</td>
<td>Judges</td>
<td>Judges</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Samuel (1 &amp; 2)</td>
<td>1 &amp; 2 Samuel</td>
<td>1 &amp; 2 Samuel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Kings (1 &amp; 2)</td>
<td>1 &amp; 2 Kings</td>
<td>1 &amp; 2 Kings</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Latter Prophets</td>
<td>1 &amp; 2 Chronicles</td>
<td>1 &amp; 2 Chronicles</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Isaiah</td>
<td>Ezra</td>
<td>Ezra</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jeremiah</td>
<td>Nehemiah</td>
<td>Nehemiah</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ezekiel</td>
<td>Esther</td>
<td>Esther</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>The Twelve</td>
<td>POETICAL/WISDOM BOOKS</td>
<td>Esther</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hosea</td>
<td>Job</td>
<td>1 &amp; 2 Maccabees</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Joel</td>
<td>Psalms</td>
<td>Psalms</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Amos</td>
<td>Proverbs</td>
<td>Proverbs</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Obadiah</td>
<td>Ecclesiastes</td>
<td>Ecclesiastes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jonah</td>
<td>Song of Solomon</td>
<td>Song of Solomon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Micah</td>
<td>Prophets</td>
<td>Isaiah</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nahum</td>
<td>Jeremiah</td>
<td>Jeremiah</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Habakkuk</td>
<td>Lamentations</td>
<td>Wisdom of Solomon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zephaniah</td>
<td>Ezekiel</td>
<td>Sirach</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Haggai</td>
<td>Daniel</td>
<td>Daniel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zechariah</td>
<td>Hosea</td>
<td>Isaiah</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Malachi</td>
<td>Joel</td>
<td>Jeremiah</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ketubim (Writings)</td>
<td>Job</td>
<td>Lamentations</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Psalms</td>
<td>Amos</td>
<td>Baruch</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Proverbs</td>
<td>Obadiah</td>
<td>Ezekiel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Job</td>
<td>Jonah</td>
<td>Daniel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>(Five Scrolls):</td>
<td>Micah</td>
<td>Hosea</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Song of Solomon</td>
<td>Nahum</td>
<td>Joel</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ruth</td>
<td>Habakkuk</td>
<td>Amos</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Lamentations</td>
<td>Zephaniah</td>
<td>Obadiah</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ecclesiastes</td>
<td>Haggai</td>
<td>Jonah</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Esther</td>
<td>Zechariah</td>
<td>Micah</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Daniel</td>
<td>Malachi</td>
<td>Nahum</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ezra-Nehemiah</td>
<td>The Apocrypha</td>
<td>Habakkuk</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chronicles (1 &amp; 2)</td>
<td>1 &amp; 2 Esdras</td>
<td>Zephaniah</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>There is no Apocrypha in the Hebrew Bible</td>
<td>Tobit</td>
<td>Haggai</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Esther (with additions)</td>
<td>Zechariah</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Wisdom of Solomon</td>
<td>Malachi</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ecclesiasticus (Sirach)</td>
<td>Orthodox Canons generally include</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Baruch</td>
<td>1 &amp; 2 Esdras</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Letter of Jeremiah (Baruch ch 6)</td>
<td>Prayer of Manasseh</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Prayer of Azariah and Song of Three</td>
<td>Psalm 151</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Daniel and Susanna</td>
<td>3 Maccabees</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Daniel, Bel, &amp; Snake</td>
<td>4 Maccabees (as an Appendix)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Prayer of Manasseh</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 &amp; 2 Maccabees</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
copies of the same original with minor variants—which may simply vary the order of materials or may exhibit fundamentally different text-types (for example, short types versus expansive types, as with the text of Jeremiah; see the Introduction to Jeremiah, p. 1057). Early in the first millennium, however, these variations subsided as canonization and types of rabbinic exposition that paid a great deal of attention to the exact spelling of the individual word developed. This eventually brought about textual stability, though here too this was a gradual process, and the means by which it was accomplished are largely unknown.

The most basic question is why particular texts were canonized while others were not. Canonized texts within Jewish tradition were considered part of “the holy scriptures” or “that which is read” (to use rabbinic designations). Excluded texts in some cases had been translated in the Septuagint and were therefore canonized in the Christian community (see “The Greek Bible,” below); others were lost, or survived as pseudepigrapha (writings falsely attributed to major biblical figures), or were preserved only in fragmentary form in the Dead Sea Scrolls. Some of these excluded texts date from after the Persian period (later than 333 BCE) and thus were seen as too recent to be eligible.

In various ways, canonical status for a book or group of books has to do with the community’s views on their centrality, authority, sacredness, and inspiration. Over time these characteristics have become connected, in separably so in some traditions; yet they are not identical, and though they overlap, they must still be viewed distinctly. The Song of Solomon, for instance, was originally an erotic love poem; by the early rabbinic period, it came to be interpreted allegorically as a love poem between God and Israel. It was also seen as the inspired composition of Solomon himself. Was it canonized before it was seen as a holy, allegorical text? In that case, its canonization might reflect a central role that it held in culture or ritual. Or was it canonized only after it was viewed as allegorical and as a composition of Solomon? In that case its significance, whether of authorship or of ideas, could have played a more important part. There is no way to judge between these two paths to canonization, and the resulting difficulty is characteristic of the problems in dealing with issues of canonization in general.

Despite such major uncertainties in our understanding of the process of canonization, however, several points seem fairly certain. First, it is likely that the final stages of canonization were a reaction to the destruction of the Second Temple in 70 CE. This crisis intensified a development, which had begun over half a millennium earlier with the destruction of the First Temple (586 BCE). Through this development Israel gradually became the people of the Book. Second, it is unlikely that canonization represents a purely top-down process, through which a small group of leaders (rabbis) determined the canon; instead, the designation of works as canonical was more like the official recognition of the works that a large segment of the community had already held to be central, holy, or authoritative. Finally, the act of canonization was remarkably inclusive, creating a body of works richly textured by a wide variety of genres, ideologies, and theologies. This is, fundamentally, a typical ancient Near Eastern process: Instead of creating a small, highly consistent text, as we perhaps would now do, those responsible for the process made efforts to include many of the viewpoints in ancient Israel, incorporating differing and even contradictory traditions into this single, and singular, book.

THE GREEK BIBLE

When Christian writings began to circulate, during the second half of the first century CE, the Bible that the early Christians used for reading and quotation was the Septuagint, the Greek translation and expansion of the Hebrew Bible that had been produced in Alexandria and other Diaspora communities for the use of Greek-speaking Jews. Probably as a result of the as yet unsettled matter of which works were canonical for the Jewish community, the Septuagint included further works: historical books (1 and 2 Maccabees, 1 Esdras); wisdom writings (The Wisdom of Solomon, The Wisdom of Jesus Ben Sirach); short works of fiction, or novellas (Tobit, Judith); an apocalypse (2 Esdras); historical legend (3 Maccabees); philosophical diatribe (4 Maccabees); an addendum to Jeremiah (Baruch and the Letter of Jeremiah); and expansions to Esther, Daniel (the Prayer of Azariah and the Song of the Three Jews, Susanna, Bel and the Dragon), and Psalms (Prayer of Manasseh and Psalm 151). (For further details see the Introduction to the Apocryphal/ Deuterocanonical Books, p. 1361, and the introductions to the individual books.)

Greek-speaking Jews in the Diaspora granted this Greek Bible an authority equivalent to that of the Hebrew texts. The legend that God had directly inspired its seventy translators was familiar to Alexandrian Jews (Philo, Life of Moses, 2.40). Manuscripts discovered at Qumran include Greek texts as well as a Hebrew text closer to the Septuagint than to the Masoretic text (4QSam; 4Q121 Num 3.30-4.14; see “Hebrew Bible: Texts and Versions,” p. 2194, for information about the Masoretic Text). Toward the end of the first century CE, some books of the Septuagint were revised in Palestine to bring them closer to the known Hebrew text. Some New Testament citations whose wordings are between the Greek and Hebrew texts that we have today may also reflect local revisions.

Evidently the various Jewish communities in the Greek-speaking Diaspora knew their Greek Bible in versions that differed from each other. Jewish revisions in the second century CE sought to bring the Greek text closer to the Hebrew and in some cases to replace terms that Christians had seized upon in disputes with Jews, such as “virgin” in Is 7.14. The Theodotion version of the second century CE forms the text of most surviving manuscripts. Citations in Christian writers of the fourth century CE, as well as the Old Latin versions, suggest that there were Christian recensions of the Greek Bible during this period as well. The Septuagint, therefore, is really an anthology of translations and revisions.

Although some early Christians were aware that the Greek Bible they used was more extensive than the Hebrew Bible, its authority remained intact. Origen (185–254) recommended Judith, Tobit, and Wisdom to beginning Bible readers before the Gospels and Epistles. Athanasius (296–374) may also have shared this view: He includes Wisdom, as well as the Didache and the Shepherd of Hermas (two noncanonical early Christian writings) in his list of works to be used in the instruction of catechumens. Jerome (ca. 345–420) continued to cite the Greek Bible, though arguing for the superiority of the Hebrew text and canon. It was Jerome who first separated these additional works in the Greek Bible from those for which he had Hebrew originals, placing them at the end of the Old Testament.

The result of this history was that the Christian church ended up with a set of writings for its Old Testament that differed from those that for Jews formed the Hebrew Bible. Without definitive specification, Christians in the Western (Latin, later Roman) and Eastern (Greek, later Orthodox) churches used not only the works regarded as canonical by the Jewish community but also those additional works, or a selection of them, included in the Septuagint. Most Christians naturally were unaware of the differences among the biblical books; most were illiterate, and of the literate, very few could read Hebrew, the language of the original texts. The Christian churches therefore entered the second millennium with an expanded Old Testament, in an order different from the Hebrew Bible.

The Protestant Reformation coincided with a greatly increased interest in the study of ancient languages in which the Bible had been written, since the Bible alone, and not the Bible plus its traditional interpretation, was being given much more importance in Reformation thought. This effort reopened the issue of the status of those Old Testament books that were not accepted by the Jews and did not have original Hebrew texts. The result was a sharp demarcation between those texts in the Hebrew Bible and all the others, with the reformers granting clear privilege to the Hebrew texts—though retaining the order of the Septuagint for them. In Martin Luther’s translation, the additional works were kept in their separate section, as Jerome had originally intended, between the Hebrew Bible (Old Testament) and the New Testament. Luther wanted these texts to be available for reading and meditation, but he did not regard them as scripture. Among the Calvinist reformers the position was even more definitive: None of these additional works were acceptable, and therefore they were excluded from the Bible entirely. The Anglican church, while retaining most of them (and using some in lectionary readings and services of prayer and worship), also held that though these additional books were valuable for reading and study, they could not be used to establish doctrine.

In response to this critique of their canonical status, the Roman Catholic Counter-Reformation position was to declare these works definitively a part of the Bible. The Catholic church to this day maintains the canonical status of Tobit, Judith, the longer version of Esther, 1 and 2 Maccabees, the Wisdom of Solomon, Sirach, Baruch (including the Letter of Jeremiah), and the Additions to Daniel. The Orthodox churches also maintained the canonical status of these works, and in addition regarded some or all of the following books as canonical: 1 Esdras, the Prayer of Manasseh, Psalm 151, 3 Maccabees, 2 Esdras, and (in an appendix) 4 Maccabees. The NRSV includes headings within the Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical Books calling attention to the varying canonical status of these works.

THE NEW TESTAMENT

As noted above, the early Christian community soon began to produce writings dealing with its own history, beliefs, and traditions. By the end of the first century CE and the beginning of the second, various gospels, narratives, letters, didactic discourses, and apocalyptic writings circulated among regional Christian communities. The practice of reading from these works, along with selections from the Greek version of the Jewish Scriptures, soon arose in Christian worship. Use in this public setting implicitly began the process of attributing to these Christian writings an authority analogous to that of the...
Jewish Scriptures. When disputes broke out, as they inevitably would, about beliefs or traditions, the canonical or noncanonical status of the various Christian writings became important.

The authority of smaller collections, the four Gospels and a ten-letter compilation of Pauline letters, was accepted by the second century ce. Other writings, Acts, Hebrews, Revelation, and the catholic epistles (2 and 3 John; Jude; 2 Peter) were not as widely attested in the early period. Still other Christian writings also appear as authorities in the second and third centuries, since official lists only appear in the fourth century ce as a consequence of theological polemics (see Athanasius, Festal Letter 39; Eusebius, Hist. eccl. 3.3.5; 3.25.3–4). Christian canon lists remained fluid through the sixth century with such inclusions as the Shepherd of Hermas or the spurious Epistle to the Laodiceans among the Pauline letters. The Muratorian canon, whose date and provenance are disputed (second-century Rome to fourth-century East), includes Wisdom of Solomon in the New Testament. Other collections omit Hebrews. (See the chart for a comparison of three New Testament canon lists.)

Arguments over apostolic authorship emerge as a consequence of second-century ce challenges to general Christian practice. Valentine and other Gnostics—who taught an esoteric form of Christianity—asserted that the Jewish God was ignorant of the highest divine realms, and that therefore both the Jewish scriptures and Christian writings, which accept them, would mislead naïve believers. They claimed to possess the esoteric teaching that Jesus had given to a few favored followers including Peter, Thomas, James the brother of Jesus, and Mary Magdalene. In the second and third centuries, Gnostics produced a number of revelations said to contain that secret apostolic teaching. Marcion established a church that excluded the Old Testament because its God was not the father of Jesus. He proposed a “New Testament” comprised of a version of the Gospel of Luke and ten Pauline epistles that opened with Galatians, evidence for the difference between the Law and the gospel. Marcion’s texts of the gospel and epistles were edited to erase passages contrary to his theological perspective. Some scholars credit him with the idea of a canon as a fixed, closed group of texts. Against both Gnostics and Marcionites, Irenaeus argued that the Spirit poured out fixed, closed group of texts. Against both Gnostics and Marcionites, Irenaeus argued that the Spirit poured out

Besides these disputes, in which different contents of authoritative writings clearly reflected underlying theological differences, the physical character of Christian texts contributed to the emergence of canon. From the beginning Christians used the codex (pl. codices) format—a bound volume of pages, similar to a present-day book—rather than the more traditional scroll for their writings. While a codex permits easier access than a scroll, codices were the medium of early drafts, assembled notes, and the like. Finished literary works and sacred texts like the Torah were copied onto scrolls. Scholars disagree over whether early Christian use of codices resulted from the moderate socioeconomic status of most Christians, or whether the choice of this format made a conscious statement about their contents. Perhaps the first- and second-century Christians thought that their writings differed from the ancient authority of the Torah and the prophets. Use of the codex made possible the smaller collections that would be combined in the larger canon of twenty-seven writings at the end of the fourth century ce. Early collections of Paul’s letters would have been seen as relatively informal writings directed to different local churches. Gospel collections were seen as representative of the oral teaching of the apostles, not formal literary works. The codex would have been an appropriate form for such writings. Use of readings from the Gospels along with prophs in Christian worship indicates that the Gospels had come to enjoy equal authority with the Torah and the prophets by the mid-second century (see Justin Martyr, 1 Apology 67.3–5).

Scrolls were made of papyrus or leather pieces glued or sewn together, and lengthy ones became inconvenient to handle: The average length is about 20–26 feet (6 to 8 m), though longer scrolls are known. The codex can accommodate a much longer text, so that collections of books could be bound into one volume. Codices containing the Old Testament and later the entire Christian scripture were produced from the fourth century ce on. There was not a uniform collection of books or a uniform order of presentation in the earliest codices, however. Individual Christian congregations may not have possessed copies of all writings included in canon lists. It would have been difficult to distinguish these texts from other early Christian writings also found in codices. Some Christians turned over apocryphal writings to imperial officials during the Diocletian persecution (303 ce). Confusion over unofficial and authorized writings in Christian worship persisted into the mid-fourth century ce. Canon 59 of the Synod of Laodicea (360 ce) decreed, “Private psalms should not be read in church, neither uncanonized books, but only the canonical ones of the new and old covenant."

Origen’s advice to those reading scripture privately presumes that the educated, Christian elite had copies of deuterocanonical writings, Gospels, epistles, psalms, and the Torah. He proposes an order of reading designed to overcome the difficulties in approaching biblical literature. First, he suggests, Esther, Judith, Tobit, or Wisdom. Then, the Gospels, epistles, and Psalms. Finally, the reader can tackle books that are difficult or seemingly without reward, such as Leviticus or Numbers (Homilies on Numbers 27:1). The biblical codices of the fourth and fifth centuries CE include different selections of Jewish apocrypha. In Codex Sinaiticus one finds Tobit, Judith, Wisdom, Sirach, 1 and 4 Maccabees; in Codex Vaticanus, Baruch, Letter of Jeremiah, Wisdom, Sirach, Judith, Tobit; in Codex Alexandrinus, Psalms of Solomon, 3 and 4 Maccabees. Athanasius’s Festal Letter 39 omits the deuterocanonical writings from the Old Testament but accepts them for private reading. Though Athanasius includes all twenty-seven New Testament writings, the issue was not settled everywhere. Gregory of Nazianzus (d. 389) omits Revelation from his catalogue as do the lectionaries of the Eastern church. Didymus of Alexandria omits 2 and 3 John but cites the apostolic fathers as authoritative. Such evidence indicates that despite consensus on the four Gospels and Pauline epistles, regional variations over the rest persisted.

By the end of the fourth century, however, there was widespread agreement about which books had scriptural status. Among the large number of early Christian writings in a diversity of genres, including gospels, letters, acts, apocalypses, and didactic treatises, a smaller number had come to be widely accepted. The criteria that were implicitly, and sometimes explicitly, operative were apostolic authority—that a work was written by or attributed to one of the first generation of Christian leaders, especially Paul and the twelve apostles—and consistency with their teaching, especially as determined by ecclesiastical authorities in major centers like Rome, Alexandria, Ephesus, and Byzantium. As a result, some of the writings that had come to be considered noncanonical were lost and only rediscovered in the late nineteenth and twentieth centuries.
TEXTUAL CRITICISM

THE NEED FOR TEXTUAL CRITICISM

No original manuscript of any biblical book has survived. This situation, which may seem unusual to us, is actually quite normal for ancient writings, and even for those from only a few centuries ago. For instance, none of Shakespeare’s plays is available in the original manuscript from Shakespeare’s hand, and for most of them there are two or more early printed versions with many differences between them. For the biblical books, numerous copies or partial copies, varying greatly in age and quality, have been preserved in various parts of the world. Occasionally, as with the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls (the Qumran documents) in the mid-twentieth century, new copies turn up. Nevertheless, for the entire text of the Bible, scholars are faced with a situation in which they have multiple manuscripts that have been copied by hand so that each is a unique product, unlike a modern printed book, and therefore the copies differ among themselves in many places, some differences being trivial and some important. Given this situation, scholars have had to develop a methodology for deciding which wording should be followed in cases where the copies disagree. This methodology is called textual criticism because it is a way of assessing a text through critical comparison of its different copies.

Textual criticism is not used only on religious writings. Any important text where there is not a definitive, printed edition backed up with an author’s manuscript or corrected by the author may need to undergo textual criticism. Typographical errors, omitted words, even graphic elements like incorrect indentations of poetic lines, can all mean that a text does not reflect the original author’s intentions completely. The methods may have to be adapted to differing circumstances, but the principles have been developed over centuries and have been checked when manuscripts have been found that can confirm or refute reconstructions of a text. Most important, there is widespread agreement among textual scholars on the methods and procedures that should be used, even when the results remain in dispute.

DEFINITIONS

Establishing a critical edition of the biblical text involves the collection of all the differences between manuscript copies of any text, and the publication of all significant ones. The manuscripts are in the form of collections of biblical books, usually bound leaves, called codices (the plural of codex); scrolls, or long strips of papyrus or parchment rolled up, of individual books, such as those found at Qumran near the Dead Sea; lectionaries, or passages excerpted from texts in order to be read in worship services; and citations, or quotations in ancient writers, such as the Dead Sea Scrolls, the rabbis, and early church theologians. These sources, taken all together, are called witnesses or authorities, and the differences among them are called variant readings or simply variants. Also important are ancient translations, or versions, of the Bible, which provide indirect evidence for the original text. More details on these different forms of the texts are given under the specific discussion of the texts for the Hebrew Bible, the Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical Books, and the New Testament.

REASONS FOR VARIANTS

Variants can be of several kinds. The copyst may have misseen or misheard a word, producing a simple spelling error, or perhaps a different word. For example, in Eph 4.32 (cf. 5.2), the variants alternate between the pronouns “us” and “you.” In Greek these two words are quite close (hemin and humin), differing by only one letter, and when pronounced aloud they are almost indistinguishable. In other places, the copyst’s eye may inadvertently have skipped a phrase or sentence, thereby leaving out a sequence of words. In Sir 30.11–12, for example, some manuscripts omit two lines ending “... in his youth,” possibly because the immediately preceding line also ends “... in his youth” and the copyst picked up after the second occurrence, omitting what came in between. Conversely, the copyst may inadvertently have gone over a phrase twice, producing a repetition. Although it may be difficult to determine when these errors took place in particular instances, there is nothing complex about them, and many variants are of this kind.

Sometimes, however, copysts seem to have tried to improve the text they were reproducing. They might have done this in several ways. They may have tried to “correct” a word or phrase that was unacceptable for one reason or another by substituting a more acceptable word or phrase. At 1 Tim 5.16, for example, the text reads “believing woman,” and the translators’ note says that some manuscripts have “believing man or woman,” others “believing man.” Here the translators have chosen the variant that is the most unusual, assuming that a copyst would more likely expand the phrase, or substitute “man” for “woman,” rather than the reverse, in a cultural context that tended to treat women as less im-important than men. Copyists might also have been aware of a similar passage in another biblical book, and tried to make the passage they were copying conform to that. For example, Lk 11.2, the beginning of the Lord’s Prayer, has variant readings that are probably an effort to make it conform to Mt 6.9. Copyists might also have tried to make the text support a particular theological view or belief. For instance, at Deut 32.8, some manuscripts read “according to the number of the sons of God” (NRSV “the gods,” a paraphrase), while others read “according to the number of the sons of Israel” (NRSV “Israelites”). There is general agreement that the second variant was introduced by a scribe trying to avoid a polytheistic wording. Copying a manuscript was not necessarily just a mechanical process, but could involve deliberate changes for a number of reasons.

ANCIENT TRANSLATIONS

These methods of trying to determine the correct reading do not always provide enough evidence, or it may be that none of the existing manuscripts seems to have preserved the exact wording of the original author. Another source of information that scholars turn to is very early translations of the Bible. These early translations are often called versions, and they were in use among Jews or Christians whose primary languages were other than the ones used in the original writings. They include translations of the Hebrew Bible into Greek (for instance, the Septuagint), Aramaic (translations and paraphrases called Targums), Syriac (the Peshitta), and Latin (the Vulgate), and translations of part or all of the Christian scriptures into Syriac, Coptic, and Latin.

These versions are useful to translators because the early stage at which they were made provides insight into forms of the biblical text that may be closer to the original writings. They can therefore be consulted for help in determining what is more likely to be an original reading, or when the best manuscripts of the original language texts have gaps or obvious errors. In many translations, including the NRSV, these ancient versions are cited in the footnotes of the Hebrew Bible to explain where and why the translators have chosen an alternative reading or translated something other than the Hebrew text that has come down to us. For readers unfamiliar with the nomenclature of these ancient documents, however, such notes may not convey very much information. The versions are discussed in more detail in the section on “The Hebrew Bible: Texts and Versions.”

THE PROCESS OF TEXTUAL CRITICISM

In order to establish the best possible text, scholars must first collect all of the significant variants and information about the manuscripts in which they occur. As a practical matter, a critical text—one with a version of the Greek or Hebrew on the page and an apparatus, usually footnotes giving variants and their source manuscripts—is published. Scholars must then determine whether they will accept the readings in the text or adopt instead one of the alternatives.

They may first rely on external evidence. This would include matters such as the age of the manuscript in which the variant occurs, since older manuscripts are generally closer to the original than later ones; or whether the variant occurs in manuscripts from one region only or in those from widely different regions. They will also use internal evidence: In general, shorter readings are preferable to longer ones, since scribes are more likely to add to a text than to delete materials (though, in the case of offensive or theologically challenging texts, deletion must be considered); difficult readings, including awkward phrases, coarse words, and poor grammar, are preferable to smoother ones, since scribes might try to “correct” such difficulties; and stylistic considerations can help judgments about how a particular author would have written.

The task would be difficult enough if scholars could be sure that the original wording in any place with a variant reading was preserved in at least one manuscript; but even that is not necessarily the case. There are instances where no existing manuscript is likely to preserve the original wording: where none of the variants seem to be right, or where the original text does not make sense as far as current scholarship can determine. In such cases scholars must assume that the original wording of the text has been lost or distorted in the course of the copying process. They then have several options open to them. One (called conjectural emendation) is to conjecture, based on the text as it now stands, what the original wording might have been. This can often be based on a scholar’s general knowledge of the ancient languages, just as an English speaker can notice, and mentally correct, a typographical error in a modern book without having access to the author’s manuscript. Another possibility is to consult the ancient versions. Finally, scholars may have to admit defeat and acknowledge that, given the current state of our knowledge, it is impossible to determine what the original wording might have been. For instance, at 1 Sam 13.1, the translation shows, by the use of ellipsis, that a word (the age of Saul when he began to reign) is missing. The translators’ note points out that this number is not in the Hebrew text, and that the obvious second place to look for it, the ancient Greek translation known as the Septuagint, does not include any part of the verse. It is therefore impossible to recover the original wording unless some other ancient manuscript source is discovered.

The translators’ notes in the NRSV call attention to all of these matters and many others as well. These notes, printed in italic type and keyed to the text by superscript letters, can be found at the bottom of the right-hand column of the translation on each page. The abbreviations used in these notes are given in the discussion below, and are listed on p. xxii.

THE HEBREW BIBLE: TEXTS AND VERSIONS
The Masoretic Text

The basic text for the Hebrew Bible today is called the Masoretic Text (MT), an edition of the Hebrew that was standardized in the fifth to tenth centuries ce by rabbinic scholars (called masoretes, from massorah, probably “what is handed down,” that is, “tradition”). The Masoretic Text accomplished two things: It settled upon a consonantal text, that is, it established specific choices for the letters of the Hebrew words in the text; and it pointed those letters with a system of markings that indicated which vowels should be read with the Hebrew letters. This two-part decision was necessary because classical Hebrew writing was in effect a system of consonants, with only a few ways of indicating vowel sounds. Words with the same consonants but different vowels would look the same, as would the English words “untrained” and “interned” if they were both spelled “ntrnd.” In the notes to the Hebrew Bible of the NRSV, “Heb” may refer to the consonantal (unpointed) Hebrew text, and MT to the same text with the vowel pointings included. The distinction is an important one, because the consonants are more likely to represent the original text than are the vowel sounds, which were added later, though based on older traditions. If the same consonants will make more sense with different vowels, the NRSV (and most other modern translations) will assume that those different vowels yield a word that is closer to the original text.

When ancient scholars had gotten the Masoretic Text into its final form, it became the standard text-form and alternative text-traditions were lost. It was therefore the case that all copies of the Hebrew Bible that were known were based upon this Masoretic Text, and although there were variants among the different copies, there was no way to check independently on the textual basis of most of the Hebrew Bible. With a few exceptions, this remained the case until the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls (the documents of the Qumran community) in 1947. Among the scrolls were manuscripts of most books of the Hebrew Bible that were more than a thousand years older than the oldest manuscripts available up to that point. These more ancient copies of the Hebrew text have shed light on some passages in the traditional form of the biblical text. For example, at 1 Sam 10.27–11.1 in the traditional text there is no indication of the background to the conflict between King Nahash of Ammon and the men of Jabesh-gilead. But in a Qumran manuscript of 2 Samuel there is a continuation of 10.27 and an opening phrase for 11.1 that explains the context, and the NRSV includes them.

Ancient Versions of the Hebrew Bible

In cases where no form of the Hebrew text gives a reading that is satisfactory, scholars can turn to the ancient versions. The assistance these ancient versions give to textual critics and translators is partly due to the situation with regard to the text of the Hebrew Bible explained above. These early translations were made from Greek or Hebrew texts that, for the most part, are earlier than those copies of the Masoretic Text that have survived to the present. They therefore can give guidance to scholars about the state of the text, and even choices of wording, that are not represented in existing manuscripts. They can also confirm readings as being more likely. Of course, these ancient translations are themselves preserved only in copies, so that all of the considerations that apply to the original language texts of the Bible also apply to them: It is necessary to establish a critical text for them by comparing variant readings. They must therefore be used with caution, and they cannot be relied upon absolutely. This is, of course, a standard of comparison at one remove from the text itself: Scholars must look at the Greek, for instance, in the Septuagint, and conjecture or assume what the Hebrew would have been in order to result in a particular rendition into Greek. Nevertheless, it is a valuable source of clues.

For example, at 1 Sam 10.1, the text of the Septuagint is longer than that of the Hebrew Bible. In examining the difference, scholars have theorized that a copyist of the Hebrew text inadvertently omitted part of the verse because the same phrase occurs twice in it, and the copyist went directly from one to the other, omitting what was in between.

Names and Character of the Ancient Versions

The ancient versions of the Bible are referred to in a variety of ways by scholars. Following is a list, by language, of the chief versions.

Greek: The most prominent Greek version, and the oldest surviving translation of the Hebrew Bible, is the Septuagint, which was translated beginning in the third century bce for use of Jews who were living in the Diaspora in Alexandria, Egypt, and other places around the Mediterranean after the conquests of Alexander the Great, and who therefore spoke Greek. The Septuagint, from a word meaning “seventy” because of a legend that seventy or seventy-two scholars worked on it, is abbreviated LXX (the Roman numerals for seventy) and, in the notes to the NRSV of the Hebrew text, is referred to as “Gk.” Three later Greek versions—by Aquila, Symmachus, and Theodotion—were produced for the use of Jews after Christians had taken over the Septuagint and the increasing conflict between Jews and Christians about the interpretation of the Jewish scriptures had led Jews to stop using the Septuagint. These versions are also sometimes used by translators, but none of them has survived in its entirety.

Aramaic: Aramaic was the official language of the Persian Empire, and the Jewish people who lived under Persian domination spoke Aramaic, which eventually supplanted Hebrew as the ordinary language of Jews. Aramaic is a Semitic language, like Hebrew, and shares some vocabulary with it, but Aramaic speakers cannot easily understand Hebrew. It was therefore necessary to provide translations of the Hebrew Bible for Aramaic speakers. Read aloud in liturgical contexts, after the Hebrew had been read (see Neh 8.7 for an early example), these translations, called Targums, are often more paraphrases than literal translations. Most date to the early centuries of the Common Era. They nevertheless provide useful information about earlier forms of the Hebrew text. In the NRSV notes they are abbreviated “Tg.”

Syriac: The Syriac language is a form of Aramaic and was spoken by Jews in northern Syria who translated their Bible into it. The Peshitta (which means “simple,” that is, a plain translation without textual comments) was prepared for the use of Jews and later taken over by Syriac-speaking Christians, who added a Syriac version of the New Testament to it. In the NRSV notes it is abbreviated “Syr.” There is also a Syriac translation of the Septuagint that was part of a hexapla or “sixfold” Bible; in the NRSV notes this is abbreviated “Syr H.”

Latin: Two Latin translations are used by scholars. The first, the “Old Latin” version, was actually a Latin translation of the Septuagint and of the New Testament dating from before the fourth century ce. More useful is the Vulgate, the translation prepared in the fourth century by the great Christian biblical scholar Jerome. Jerome, in translating his Old Testament, worked directly from the Hebrew text of the time, and his version therefore can be helpful in determining original readings in that text. In the NRSV notes the Old Latin version is abbreviated “OL,” and the Vulgate is abbreviated “Vg.”

THE APOCRYPHAL/DEUTEROCANONICAL BOOKS: TEXTS AND VERSIONS
For most of the Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical Books, the translational basis is the Septuagint text. Various manuscripts of the Septuagint have survived, and the complete text is available in a critical edition prepared by Alfred Rahlf and published in 1935. A newer critical text is in process of publication—the Gottingen Septuagint project—but it is not yet complete. The NRSV has used the newer text when it is available, for example in Esther and Sirach. The translators used Theodotion’s version for the Additions to Daniel. For the Wisdom of Jesus ben Sira (Sirach or Ecclesiasticus), Hebrew manuscripts of large parts of the text have been discovered, and the NRSV has therefore used the Hebrew text instead of the Greek when it seems to offer a better alternative; in addition, there are Syriac and Latin versions of this book that also shed light on the text. For 2 Esdras, scholars agree that the best text is the Latin; they also consult versions in Syriac, Ethiopic, Arabic, Armenian, and Georgian.

THE NEW TESTAMENT: TEXTS AND VERSIONS
New Testament Manuscripts
Text critics must evaluate the evidence of thousands of manuscripts in order to establish the wording of the Greek New Testament. (See “The Process of Textual Criticism,” p. 2193) This is a very large number of surviving copies for a collection of ancient documents; many classical texts survive in only a few copies. The overwhelming majority of these New Testament manuscripts (ca. 2,400) contain full or partial Gospel texts, followed by texts containing all or portions of the Pauline epistles (ca. 800). Revelation survives in only 287 copies. The manuscripts consist of papyrus fragments (some of only a few pages, some even shorter, preserving only a few verses); uncial s, very early manuscripts written in letters unconnected to each other and similar to upper-case letters; and minuscules, later manuscripts written in a script that connects the letters and in which lower-case letters predominate. In addition to manuscript evidence, citations in Christian writers, lectionaries (excerpted passages for liturgical reading), and translations into other languages may shed light on the earliest wording of the text. With such a wealth of evidence, there is no phrase in the New Testament for which there is not some variant. Most involve issues of grammar, style, or copyists’ corrections. Textual variants that affect the theological meaning of the text are fewer.

With such a wealth of information about the New Testament text, scholars have had to develop ways of classifying not only individual manuscripts but groups of copies so that they can more readily deal with all of the variants. If they can determine, for example, that a group of copies all descended from a common ancestor, they can assess the variants for that group together and compare them with other groups that descend from dif-
TEXTUAL CRITICISM

Different early copies. Variants that occur in two or more of these “families” have a much higher probability of being original than variants that may have arisen within only one group, for instance.

Most of the known variants to the text of the New Testament originated in the first two centuries of its existence. As Christianity spread throughout the Mediterranean, different groups had their own copies of the various New Testament documents, in some cases excluding books that are now included, or including books that are now excluded. (See the essay on “The Canons of the Bible.”) In addition, the Greek copies began to diverge, and they also began to translate the texts into other languages: Latin, Syriac, and Coptic. The Latin text, because of the dominance of the Latin language in the western Roman Empire, became the most prevalent, and the Greek text was used consistently only in the east, in the area around Constantinople (modern Istanbul). This Greek text, preserved and copied in the Orthodox churches of the east, became known as the Byzantine text, and for many centuries it was the only or main version of the Greek text available. Beginning in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, however, scholars began to discover other early texts. Early in the twentieth century, text-critics proposed families or text-types linked to the major regions of Christianity: Alexandria in Egypt, to the south; the east represented by Caesarea, on the eastern coast of the Mediterranean; and the west represented by Italy/Gaul and Africa. At first scholars assumed that the Byzantine text resulted from combinations of these types, but such a genealogy of the various text-types could not explain the mixture of readings found in the papyri and the oldest surviving codices. The so-called Alexandrian tradition, texts from the area of Egypt that included many of the most ancient papyrus copies (preserved in the very dry climate of that area), became in the nineteenth century a favored basis for establishing original readings. But the complexity of variants has increasingly made this approach, too, untenable.

Since the papyri evidence from the earliest centuries represents copies of particular books of the New Testament, it is likely that the scribes who set out to produce codices containing the entire Bible in the fourth century would have had a variety of different text-types for the individual books. No codex, therefore, is of uniform reliability. Codex Alexandrinus (early fifth century CE) is, as it turns out, a poor witness for the Gospels, but many critics consider it the best text of Revelation, even superior to a third-century papyrus copy. The age of a manuscript, therefore, does not necessarily determine the value of its readings, although it is one factor among many that scholars need to take into account. Writings such as Revelation and the shorter catholic epistles (2 and 3 John; Jude; 2 Peter), which were not widely used as scripture until the fourth century, have a different textual tradition than the Gospels and the Pauline epistles.

Consequently, most text critics do not begin with a particular manuscript tradition and correct it to establish the text. Instead, the wealth and diversity of manuscript evidence have enabled critics to produce a Greek text based on eclectic principles: choosing the best readings from a variety of manuscript sources. This range of choice has also meant that New Testament scholars do not need to make conjectural emendations of the text, a practice common in the editing of other ancient texts, including the Hebrew Bible, where few early manuscripts are available. The best text for a particular passage requires detailed study of all preserved variants. Internal principles of textual criticism include consideration of readings that are more likely to be scribal corrections or errors, that fit the theological biases of an author or later editors, or that could have given rise to the other known variants.

The NRSV translation is based on a modern eclectic edition of the Greek text, Nestle-Aland 26th edition (or the equivalent United Bible Societies Greek New Testament 3rd edition, but incorporating information from the 4th edition as well). Textual variants in wording, both stylistic and theologically significant, are indicated in the translators’ notes as “other ancient authorities.” In order to understand the basis for these alternative translations, readers should consult the text-critical notes in the Greek text or a commentary on the Greek text.

Versions of the New Testament

The early Christian orientation toward the written word led to translation of the Bible into other languages for converts who did not speak Greek. Evidence from Old Latin, Syriac, and Coptic translations from the late second and third centuries CE figures in text-criticism. Ethiopic (mid-fourth century), Armenian (early fifth century), and Old Slavonic (late ninth century) translations form key moments in the cultural life of the people. Many of the apocryphal writings are preserved in Syriac, Coptic, and Armenian, thus providing a wider literature associated with the Bible.

Often manuscript evidence for the earliest translations is scanty or only derived from quotations. Tertullian’s quotations appear to be his own translation into Latin, so the first evidence for the text appears in Cyprian (250 CE). Augustine and Jerome both complain about the large number of poor translations in circulation. Jerome was commissioned by Pope Damascus to produce a Latin Bible (ca. 383). His revised Gospels and translation of the Hebrew Bible were combined with other translations for the remaining books of the Old and New Testaments to produce a Latin version known as the Vulgate. The Vulgate enjoyed wide circulation from the seventh century CE and was officially promulgated as the text of the Roman Catholic Church by Pope Sixtus V (1590). A neo-Vulgate with alterations in the text, style, and corrections to bring the translation closer to the Greek text was promulgated by John Paul II (1979).

The earliest evidence for the Syriac New Testament comes from a harmony of the Gospels, The Diatessaron, composed by Tatian in the second century CE. It is the source of citations in the commentary by Ephraem (310–373 CE). Texts from Antioch contributed to revisions of the Syriac New Testament, the Peshitta or common version (earliest manuscripts from the mid-fifth century CE), and a translation by Philoxenus (507/508 CE). The oldest versions of the New Testament translated into the Sahidic dialect of Coptic emerge in the third century CE. In the fourth century the whole Bible was translated into the Bohairic dialect, which became the official language of Coptic Christianity. A number of manuscripts found in the twentieth century remain to be assembled, catalogued, and incorporated into editions of the Coptic text.

TRANSLATION OF THE BIBLE INTO ENGLISH

PRINCIPLES OF TRANSLATION

Bible translation, though in principle the same as any other translation, is distinguished from it by two considerations: First, the reverence in which adherents of Judaism and Christianity hold the text, leading to concerns whenever a new translation is published that the text be treated with the respect it deserves; and second, the great popularity of the Bible, which has led to the proliferation of translations to meet every conceivable need and audience. In order to find one’s way among the great variety of Bible translations available today, it is important to understand the principles underlying all efforts at translation.

In any translation from one language to another—the “source” language, or the original, and the “target” language, or the translation—two basic approaches define the limits at either end of a continuum of methods. The technical names for these “pure” translation approaches are formal equivalence and dynamic equivalence. Formal equivalence is usually explained as “word-for-word” translation, and dynamic equivalence as “sense-for-sense” or “meaning-for-meaning.” In general, formal equivalence places more importance on the qualities of the source language, and dynamic equivalence is more concerned with the resulting readability in the target language.

Except where the source and the target languages are closely related, however, a purely word-for-word approach would be almost unreadable. Such is the case with translations of the Bible: ancient Greek, Hebrew, Aramaic, and Latin (the languages of the original texts) are very different from modern English. Here, for example, is Mt 6.9–10 in a word-for-word rendering of the original Greek:

Father of us who in the heavens, be holy the name of you;
come the kingdom of you;
become the will of you as in heaven and upon earth.

While it would be possible to puzzle out some meaning from this, it is clear that it is not English, and that an entire Bible translated along these lines would never be read. Most translations, therefore, move in the direction of dynamic equivalence, at least far enough to make sure that their representation of the original text makes sense in English. Some are more strict, for example always trying to use the same English word to translate a given Greek or Hebrew word (a characteristic known as “consistency”); some are freer, trying to achieve a more colloquial English style and using what seems to be the best English word for a Greek or Hebrew word in each separate context, regardless of how the same Greek or Hebrew word might be translated elsewhere. The result is a great range of translation choices for the Bible in English, from those suited to close study to those designed for readability, and readers can usually find a translation that will make sense to them and fit their needs.

In the case of ancient documents, and especially those of religious significance like the Bible, there are further complicating factors. Translations must find ways to deal with cultural differences between the worlds of the ancient writers and modern readers; they often try to accommodate traditional phrasing or translations, especially in key passages; and they must take into account the actual uses to which the translation will be put, including uses on formal and significant occasions.
TRANSLATION OF THE BIBLE INTO ENGLISH

Cultural differences come into consideration when a passage to be translated presents, not a puzzle about the dictionary definition of a word, but one about the way the word was used in its original cultural environment. An example occurs in the following passages: “the two kidneys with the fat that is on them” (Lev 3.4); “He slashes open my kidneys” (Job 16:13); and “In the night also my heart instructs me” (Ps 16:7). The word translated “heart” in the Psalm and “kidneys” in Leviticus and Job is the same Hebrew word, kelayot (or hilyotay, “my kidneys”). Literally it means the bodily organs, and in the passage from Leviticus that is clearly its meaning: The passage is discussing which parts of an animal will be burnt as a sacrifice. As a metaphor, however, it means the inner life of the human person, and that meaning is represented in the Psalm. The verse from Job falls somewhere in between. In its context, it is part of a catalogue of images of physical torture, intended to express spiritual or psychological suffering, many of which cannot be taken literally. There is a question whether it should be translated literally here. An ancient Israelite listening to these passages would have differentiated among this range of meanings, just as we would differentiate among “stomach trouble” and “I have no stomach for that job,” or “heart surgery,” “My heart stood still,” and “Have a heart.” In the case of the Hebrew word, the translation has to make that distinction for us, since the literal rendering “kidneys” in the passage from Psalms would make no sense, or the wrong sense, to a modern reader.

A related problem sometimes arises when translators have to consider whether to add a word to the text to make something clear to a modern reader that the ancient audience would have understood without explanation. For example, in 2 Pet 2.14, the literal translation “children of a curse” is rendered in the NRSV as “Accursed children!” This conveys the correct meaning in idiomatic English, but it does not convey to the modern reader what ancient hearers would assume, that the curse is from God. The New English Bible translation does this effectively by adding a word to make this implicit meaning explicit: “God’s curse is on them.”

An example of a translation trying to accommodate traditional understanding occurs in Jn 1.18, where the NRSV translates a Greek phrase as “God the only Son,” and a footnote calls attention to two other possibilities. The Greek in actuality has three variants: monogenes theos, “only God”; ho monogenes theos, “the only God”; and ho monogenes huios, “the only Son.” The translators first must decide how to render the Greek adjective mono-

Genes. Older versions translate it as “only-begotten,” but it really means something like “only one of its kind,” i.e., “unique.” Then they must determine which noun—“God” or “Son”—this adjective is supposed to modify. The manuscript evidence tends to support “God,” since that variant appears in two papyri from the early third century CE, and also in manuscripts and citations from the fourth century. The variant “Son” only appears in the fifth century, in Codex Alexandrinus, and in later manuscripts. Since “only God” is present earlier, closer to the original time of writing, and since it is awkward, whereas “only Son” could be an effort to smooth out the text, it would seem that “only God” is the original reading. The NRSV effort to combine the two phrases is probably not correct.

Variety of use affects Bible translation particularly because many translations are intended for audiences that are far beyond the classroom or the scholar’s study. In particular, Bible translations are intended to be read aloud in worship services, and bearing this in mind, many translators will try to use an English style that is more formal or elevated than that in the underlying text. Passages from the Bible are used in ceremonies marking significant life events, like marriage; on important national occasions, like the inauguration of a president; and to help express and channel great communal emotions, as in the funeral of a national leader. A translation that is too colloquial could seem jarring in such contexts.

Translations, thus, rather than being static, fixed creations that plug in one word in English for one word in the original language, are dynamic mediations between different and sometimes opposing tendencies. Insofar as they take the original language seriously as a controlling factor, they will tend to be word-for-word renderings; insofar as they take English seriously, they will tend more toward a meaning-for-meaning approach. They will try to represent not just the language, but the thought and cultural background, of the original writers and audiences; but they must also be sensitive to, and aware of, the great variety of needs among contemporary readers.

ENGLISH VERSIONS OF THE BIBLE

Prior to the sixteenth century, translations of the Bible into English were made from the Latin Vulgate instead of from Hebrew or Greek, and existed only in manuscript copies. The first English versions of the entire Bible were the two associated with John Wycliffe, translated from the Vulgate between 1380 and 1397. Part of the work on the first version was done by Wycliffe himself, and the rest, including all of the second, by scholars who were his immediate associates. Nicholas Hereford was largely responsible for the first version, which was completed before Wycliffe’s death. John Purvey, Wycliffe’s secretary, was responsible for the second version, which was completed by 1397. In the “General Prologue” to the second version Purvey states that it is best “to translate after the sentence and not only after the words, so that the sentence be as open, or opener, in English as Latin”—that is, so that the meaning be as clear, or clearer.

The sixteenth century brought the Bible in English to the common people as a printed book. The first English version directly translated from the Hebrew and Greek was the work of William Tyndale: The New Testament was published in 1526, the Pentateuch in 1530, and Jonah in 1531. In 1534 and 1535 he published revised versions of the New Testament, which were the basis of all later revisions and the main source of the authorized versions of the New Testament in English. Tyndale was finally betrayed into the hands of his enemies and in October 1536 was strangled and burned at the stake.

Miles Coverdale’s translation appeared in 1535, the first complete Bible in English. It was not a direct translation from the original languages, but was based on two Latin versions and the translations by Tyndale into English, and by the European reformers Luther and Zwingli into German. In 1537 Matthew’s Bible was published. “Thomas Matthew” was a pseudonym of John Rogers, a friend of Tyndale, who took Tyndale’s manuscript translations of the books of the Old Testament from Joshua to 2 Chronicles, together with Tyndale’s printed translations of the Pentateuch and the New Testament, and published them in this one volume, which he completed by adding Coverdale’s version of the rest of the Old Testament and the Apocrypha. In 1539 Richard Taverner, a layman and a lawyer, published a revision of Matthew’s Bible, one edition of which was issued in parts so that people who could not afford to purchase the whole Bible might buy one or more parts. Taverner was a good Greek scholar and made some changes in the translation of the New Testament that have been kept in later versions. Meanwhile at Paris, in early 1538, Miles Coverdale had begun a new revision of Matthew’s Bible, which had been commissioned by Sir Thomas Cromwell, Secretary to King Henry VIII and Vicar General. The Great Bible, as this was called, was published at London in 1539. It was the first authorized English version, and a copy was ordered to be placed in every church. Until very recently, the Psalms in the Book of Common Prayer were from this translation. A revision of the Great Bible under the auspices of the Anglican bishops, the Bishops’ Bible, was published in 1568 and revised in 1572. This revised edition was to become the basis of the King James Version.

Under the Roman Catholic Queen Mary the printing of the English Bible ceased, and its use in the churches was forbidden. Many English Protestants sought refuge on the Continent, and a group of these at Geneva undertook the revision of the English Bible. The Geneva version appeared in 1560. It was a convenient size instead of an unwieldy folio and was the first English version to use numbered verses, each set off as a separate paragraph. The Geneva Bible was never authorized, but it became the household Bible of the English-speaking nations for three-quarters of a century. It was the Bible of Shakespeare, John Bunyan, and the Puritans.

In 1582 an English translation of the New Testament was published at Rheims in France, made from the Latin by Roman Catholic scholars who had been forced to leave England led by Gregory Martin, who had been trained at Oxford University. A similar translation of the Old Testament was published at Douay in France in 1609.

On February 10, 1604, after a conference “for hearing and for the determining things pretended to be amiss in the church,” King James I ordained: “That a translation be made of the whole Bible, as consonant as can be to the original Hebrew and Greek; and this to be set out and printed without any marginal notes, and only to be used in all churches of England in time of divine service.” He appointed fifty-four translators, forty-eight of whom are named in the records that have come down. They worked in six companies, to each of which was assigned a section of the Bible. Two companies met at Oxford, two at Cambridge, and two at Westminster. Each company would consider the work of the other companies, and differences would be resolved by correspondence if possible, and if not, be referred to the general meeting at the end. This was a meeting at London of a committee of six, made up of two representatives from the companies at each of the three centers, which devoted nine months to final editing. Dr. Myles Smith, of Oxford University, wrote an informative preface, “The Translators to the Reader.” This Bible, with a dedication to King James, was published in 1611.

An outstanding merit of the King James Version is the music of its cadences, the result of a sure instinct for what would sound well when read aloud. For example, here are the successive translations of Prov 3.17, in praise of wisdom, where Coverdale, the Great Bible, and the Bishops’ Bible agree in reading: “Her wayes are pleasant wayes and all her paths are peaceable.” The Geneva Bible has: “Her wayes are wayes of pleasure and all her pathes prosperitie.” The King James Version gives to the verse a perfect melody: “Her wayes are wayes of pleasantnesse, and all her pathes are peace.”

The English Bible owes more to William Tyndale than to anyone else because the basic structure of his translation has endured. It has been estimated that about 60 percent of the text of the English Bible achieved its final literary form before the King James Version appeared, and that in the King James Version at least one-third of the New Testament is worded exactly as in Tyndale’s New Testament, while the sentences of the remaining two-thirds follow Tyndale’s general pattern.

For two and a half centuries the King James Version maintained its place as the Authorized Version of the English-speaking peoples, without any serious consideration of its revision, but in 1870 the Convocation of the Province of Canterbury appointed a committee to undertake a revision. The Revised Version of the New Testament was published in 1881, the Old Testament in 1885, and the Apocrypha in 1895. The American Standard Version, containing the renderings preferred by the American scholars who had cooperated in the work of revision, was published in 1901. In 1928 the copyright of the American Standard Version was acquired by the International Council of Religious Education, and thus passed into the ownership of the churches of the United States and Canada that were associated in this Council through their boards of education and publication. The Council appointed a committee of Protestant scholars to have charge of the text of the American Standard Version and to undertake inquiry as to whether further revision was necessary. After more than two years of study and experimental work, this committee decided that there was need for a thorough revision of the version of 1901, which would stay as close to the King James tradition as it could in the light of present knowledge of the Hebrew and Greek texts and their meaning on the one hand, and present usage of English on the other. In 1937 the revision was authorized by the Council. The Revised Standard Version of the New Testament was published in 1946, the Old Testament in 1952, and the Apocrypha in 1957. The Revised Standard Version took full account of the new knowledge of the history, geography, religions, and cultures of Bible lands, and of rich new resources for understanding the vocabulary, grammar, and idioms of the ancient languages. It also returned to the basic structure and more natural cadence of the Tyndale–King James tradition.

The second half of the twentieth century saw the publication of many translations and revisions of the English Bible. In fact, between 1952 and 1990, when the New Revised Standard Version was published, no fewer than twenty-six different renderings of the complete English Bible were issued, with twenty-five additional translations and revisions of the New Testament. Among these the following Jewish, Protestant, and Catholic translations are of special note.

In 1955 the Jewish Publication Society, whose first translation of the Hebrew Scriptures had appeared in 1917, initiated a new translation. The Torah, Five Books of Moses, was published in 1962, The Prophets (Nevi'im) in 1978, and The Writings (Kethuvim) in 1982. These three volumes, with revisions, were brought together in 1985 under the title Tanakh, A New Translation of the Holy Scriptures According to the Traditional Hebrew Text. The Tanakh has useful footnotes of three kinds—textual, translational, and explanatory—and is notable for its perceptive handling of Hebrew vocabulary and syntax in contemporary English.

A newer rendering of the Hebrew Bible, still in process, is that of Everett Fox, which tries to preserve as much as possible of Hebrew idiom in its English style. Portions that have so far appeared are Genesis (In the Beginning), 1983; Exodus (Now These are the Names), 1986; Torah (The Five Books of Moses), 1995; 1–2 Samuel (Give Us a King! Samuel, Saul, and David), 1999.

In the year that the RSV New Testament was published (1946), British Protestant churches embarked on a totally new translation of the scriptures, The New English Bible; the New Testament appeared in 1961, and a revised New Testament, along with the Old Testament and Apocrypha, in 1970. At that time, C. H. Dodd, director of the enterprise and chairman of the New Testament translation panel, stated that this was “not another revision of an old version, but a genuinely new translation of the original, which should be frankly contemporary in vocabulary, idiom, style and rhythm—not to supersede the Authorized Version, but as a second version alongside it.” The rendering is free and vigorous, tending at places to be periphrastic. Here and there the translators have rearranged the sequence of verses and sections of the text. A revision, under the chairmanship of W. D. McHardy, was published as the Revised English Bible in 1989.

The first English Bible made from the original Hebrew and Greek languages that received Roman Catholic approval was The Revised Standard Version Catholic Edition, of which the New Testament was published in 1965 and the complete Bible in 1966. In it the Deuterocanonical Books were placed among the Old Testament books in accord with the Catholic canon. It was prepared by the Catholic Biblical Association of Great Britain with the consent of the Revised Standard Version Bible Committee and the Division of Christian Education of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. There are no changes in the Old Testament text; the sixty-seven changes in the New Testament, made for liturgical and theological reasons, are carefully noted in an appendix. A significant further advance toward a Common Bible was achieved with the publication of the RSV without any changes whatever in the Oxford Annotated Bible with the Apocrypha (1966), to which Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston granted the imprimatur.

The first English translation of the Bible made from the original languages by Catholic scholars was The Je-
The Hebrew Bible’s Interpretation of Itself

Since the different books that make up the Bible were written and became authoritative at various times, later books refer in various ways to earlier ones. From the beginning of this process, whenever the Bible or any section that eventually became part of the Bible was read or recited, it was interpreted. This is a natural process; no text can be read purely in the abstract, since we all bring our lives and experiences to the text and often attempt to bring the text closer to our lives. It is thus not surprising that according to Neh 8.8, when sections of the biblical text were read to the postexilic community in the fifth century, “They read from the book, from the law... of God, with interpretation. They gave the sense, so that the people understood the reading." Like any book, the Bible required interpretation. Since it was to them an authoritative book, the people needed to hear not only the text itself but also its correct interpretation because, like any literary work, the Bible is at some points ambiguous.

Since the covenant-making ceremony mentioned above occurred in the fall, it was likely that one reading from the Torah would have been Lev 23.33–43, which outlines the commemoration of the fall harvest festival of booths (Sukkot), beginning on the fifteenth day of the seventh month (counting from Nisan, in the spring, not Tishri, in the fall). According to v. 40, proper commemoration of the festival includes the following: “On the first day you shall take the fruit of majestic trees, branches of palm trees, boughs of leafy trees, and willows of the brook; and you shall rejoice before the Lord your God for seven days.” This passage is ambiguous on at least two points: What should the worshipers do after they “take” these various greens? What is meant by “the fruit of majestic trees” and “boughs of leafy trees,” which are interspersed with very specific tree names (“palm,” “willow”)?

The treatment of Lev 23.33–43 in the later passage in Neh. 8.14–15 shows how this postexilic community interpreted the text of Leviticus, resolving these ambiguities: “And they found it written in the law [Heb torah], which the Lord had commanded by Moses, that the people of Israel should live in booths during the festival of the seventh month, and that they should publish and proclaim in all their towns and in Jerusalem as follows, ‘Go out to the hills and bring branches of olive, wild olive, myrtle, palm, and other leafy trees to make booths, as it is written.’” Thus, the term “take” from Lev 23.40 is interpreted in the context of the immediately following legislation (v. 42)—“You shall live in booths for seven days”—to mean “take” for the construction of “booths.” Furthermore, the ambiguous trees are specified as olive trees and myrtles. The way in which this later text clarifies how the earlier text should be understood is not at all remarkable: The types of branches to be used are clarified and, naturally enough, the broader context of the fall festival laws of Lev 23 is used to explicate the purpose for which these branches are taken.

The process of inner-biblical interpretation, where we can see a later biblical text interpreting an earlier one, began early in the history of the development of the Bible. But it was certainly accelerated by the canonization of the Torah (see the essay “The Canons of the Bible” on p. 2185 and the Introduction to the Pentateuch, p. 3). It is especially obvious in Deuteronomy, which in both its legal and its narrative sections reuses and interprets earlier biblical traditions. One example from each genre will illustrate the pervasive interpretive nature of Deuteronomy.

The law of a Hebrew slave is found in Ex 21.2–11, the Covenant Collection, and in Deut 15.12–18 as part of the Deuteronomistic Law Collection. A quick glance indicates that these two texts are closely related and interdependent. Moreover, biblical scholars agree that the Deuteronomistic Law Collection (D) is later than the Covenant Code (C). It is thus significant that the words “without debt” from Ex 21.2 are missing in D’s retelling of this law. Instead we find the following, which, based on its placement and context, is most likely D’s interpretation of C’s “without debt”: “And when you send a male slave out from you a free person, you shall not send him out empty-handed. Provide liberally out of your flock, your threshing floor, and your wine press, thus giving to him some of the bounty with which the Lord your God has blessed you” (Deut 15.13–14). The Deuteronomist has naturally subsumed the text of C into his own intellectual-theological framework, which includes the idea that the underprivileged must be looked after carefully. For the Deuteronomist, “without debt” could not be interpreted literally and narrowly; instead it suggested that the slave must be released with resources to enable him to be self-sufficient so that he will not immediately find himself in debt again; thus the slave must be provided for. While this is not an obvious interpretation of Exodus and is certainly not what the author of Exodus intended by the phrase, it offers a good example of how a word may be reinterpreted by a later writer to fit a later ideology.

In fact, this particular reinterpretation is mild when compared with other, more radical reworkings of the earlier law in Deuteronomy. Take, for example, the insistence that the same law applies to both male and female slaves, in contrast to Ex 21.2–6,7–11. Note that the ear-piercing ceremony, which transpires if the slave opts to stay with the master, must take place at the owner’s house (Deut 15.17), while Exodus suggests that it happens “before God,” namely at the local shrine (Ex 21.6). According to Deuteronomy, the local shrines were illegitimate, and worship was permitted only at the Jerusalem Temple. This suggests that later writers, facing differing circumstances, did not always feel bound by the letter of earlier laws and could “interpret” them into new laws which the earlier legislators would hardly have recognized.

These same tendencies can be seen in Deuteronomy’s reinterpretation of earlier narratives. Both Ex 18 and Deut 1.9–18 narrate the establishment of a judicial system in ancient Israel so that Moses would not be responsible for all legal cases. The theme and vocabulary of the two stories are so similar that it is clear that Deuteronomy has created its story by “interpreting” Exodus. Some of
We are not the first to appreciate this problem; it was already felt, for example, in the postexilic book of Chronicles, for which the Torah (more or less in the form that we know it) was authoritative. The Chronicler depicts the Passover celebration under King Josiah (2 Chr 35.13): "They boiled the passover lamb with fire according to the ordinance" [a literal translation; NRSV is harmonistic and incorrect]. The Chronicler has thus reconciled the two traditions by choosing elements from both: The offering is "boiled," following Deut 16.7, but "with fire" reflects the "roasted over the fire" of Ex 12.8–9. Through the brilliant (but problematic) expression "boiled . . . with fire," the two variant authoritative traditions are retained, and in some sense reconciled.

The manner in which various problematic prophecies are already interpreted within the Bible, so that they become true, is quite remarkable. The clearest example of this is from one of the latest texts of the Hebrew Bible, Dan 9. The background of this text is the prophecy in Jer 25.11, which suggests that Babylon will be given dominion over the world for seventy years; Jer 29.10 builds upon this prophecy, suggesting that after these seventy years are completed, Israel will be restored. This presented a serious problem for the author of Dan 9, living during the reign of the (Seleucid) Greek king, Antiochus IV Epiphanes, who persecuted the Jews and forbade them to follow the most fundamental laws (see Introduction to Daniel, p. 1233). In this period, between 167 and 164 BCE, it seemed that Jeremiah's word, which claimed that a complete restoration would transpire, was false. But also by that time it is likely that Jeremiah was already considered a true prophet, whose book was canonical. How could this true prophet utter an oracle that was so patently and painfully false?

This explains why Daniel "intensively consulted [NRSV "perceived in" is incorrect] the books concerning the number of years that, according to the word of the Lord to the prophet Jeremiah, must be fulfilled for the devastation of Jerusalem, namely, seventy years" (9.2). Because Jeremiah's prophecy seemed not to be true, intensive consultation was needed, so that the real meaning, the proper interpretation of the seemingly unambiguous "seventy years" [Heb shib'îm shanah] could be deciphered. The angel Gabriel (v. 21) finally offers Daniel the correct interpretation (v. 24): "Seventy weeks [Heb shabu'îm shib'îm] are decreed for your people and your holy city: to finish the transgression, to put an end to sin, and to atone for iniquity, to bring in everlasting righteousness, to seal both vision and prophet, and to anoint a most holy place." The consonants of Jeremiah's shib'îm ("seventy"), are read twice, first as shabu'îm, ("weeks"), then, as expected, as shib'îm ("seventy"). (In the period when Daniel was written, Hebrew used consonants only, so the same word could be pronounced, and understood as, two different words with different vowels.) The result of this intensive consultation is that Jeremiah’s “seventy” means “seventy weeks of years”: seventy times seven or four hundred and ninety years. Thus, Daniel updated the prophecy and gave Jeremiah a four-hundred-twenty-year extension so that his prophecy could still be true.

The author has here engaged in what one scholar has called (in reference to similar rabbinic texts) “creative philology,” reading and interpreting words in a highly creative fashion. Here, as in later rabbinic texts, this is not frivolous but is done out of necessity, in order to maintain the status of Jeremiah and his prophecies. Closely related to “creative philology” is “creative historiography,” where an interpreter rearranges or adds to earlier texts, thereby creating a fundamentally new historical tradition. This may be seen very often in Chronicles, which frequently and ingeniously rearranges or adds to its sources, typically the books of Samuel and Kings. A classic example of this type of interpretation through “creative historiography” may be seen in 2 Chr 8.2, which claims that “Solomon rebuilt the cities that Huram [a variant spelling of Hiram] had given to him, and settled the people of Israel in them.” This is an imaginative revision of 1 Kings 9.11–12, which tells of cities that Solomon gave to Hiram! The Chronicler read his source within his own interpretive framework and theology, which included the notion that the righteous Solomon could not possibly give away cities from the holy land of Israel; 2 Chr 8.2 is an interpretive attempt to deal with this theological problem.

These examples illustrate how later biblical passages interpret earlier passages. Many other examples from almost every biblical book could be offered, including more subtle cases where the interpretation is accomplished through textual juxtaposition, or the interpretive tradition is not found in a separate text (like Chronicles), but has entered as a type of gloss in the original text that it is interpreting. The examples cited above are meant to illustrate the range of inner-biblical interpretations; some are rather straightforward, clarifying ambiguities, while others are remarkably radical, transforming legal or narrative traditions in a quite extreme fashion. Finally, when seen in combination with the following essay on the premodern Jewish interpretation of the Bible (p. 2208), these illustrations highlight the continuity between inner-biblical interpretation and early rabbinic interpretation. This continuity should not be surprising; not only are the two historically contiguous, but both work within a canonical framework. As a result, both are beset by all the problems, as well as the opportunities, that the canonization of the Hebrew Bible presented.

THE INTERPRETATION OF THE BIBLE
THE NEW TESTAMENT INTERPRETS THE JEWISH SCRIPTURES

SCRIPTURE IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

The second-century ce satirist Lucian of Samosata, in Asia Minor, attacked the early Christian movement in the person of a charlatan prophet, Peregrinus. Peregrinus feigned conversion, rose to the position of local bishop, and gained considerable prestige among his naïve coreligionists when he was imprisoned for the faith, before assuming another career. How did Peregrinus achieve his exalted position? According to Lucian, “He interpreted and explained some of their books and even composed many and they revered him as a god, made use of him as a lawgiver” (On the Death of Peregrinus 11). By the mid-second century ce, then, Christians could be mocked for their preoccupation with interpreting sacred texts as well as for composing their own writings. At least in part, such interpretation was understood to involve the promulgation of laws. Whether “a lawgiver” pronounced legal rulings on community discipline or codified ethical norms is not clear. From the point of view of the educated elite, Christians who followed such unlearned bishops could be duped because they, as well as their leaders, lacked the advanced rhetorical training required for the interpretation of texts.

Similar objections are given voice within the New Testament. In the Gospel of John, local Pharisees scorn the blind man’s confession that Jesus is from God, not a sinner, on the grounds that he has no standing to interpret the Torah (Jn 9.24–34). Matthew has the scribe trained for the kingdom of heaven able to bring from his storehouse both new things and old ones (Mt 13.52). He defends Jesus’ understanding of the Torah and the prophets as attending to the substantive matters—justice, mercy, and faithfulness—rather than making burdens of details about tithing as the Pharisees do (Mt 23.23–24). Paul insists that the true meaning of the law remains veiled, like Moses’ face, from his fellow Israelites. They can only understand its meaning by turning to Christ (2 Cor 3.7–18).

Thus, most biblical interpretation in the New Testament serves a polemical or apologetic purpose: to defend Christian claims about Jesus. Neither the assertions themselves nor the presuppositions employed to derive them from scripture would be acceptable to those who did not share Christian beliefs. Nevertheless, the interpretative methods used, especially by Matthew and Paul, have much in common with those used by other Jews in the same period.

Though mid-second century Christians had begun to consider their own writings as sacred texts, that was not yet true when the New Testament was being written. Only the latest of the New Testament texts, 2 Peter, suggests that a collection of Paul’s letters was regarded as authoritative (2 Pet 3.15–16). Thus, whenever a New Testament writer refers to or quotes scripture, he is interpreting texts so regarded by the Jewish community. The scriptures were not known to these writers in their original Hebrew, but in Greek translation, the Septuagint (see “Hebrew Bible: Texts and Versions,” p. 2194 and “The Greek Bible,” p. 2188). Since various text forms of the Septuagint were known in Judea itself, it was clearly used by Jews and not only by Gentile converts to Christianity. In many cases, the text that a New Testament author quotes or interprets differs from that found in a modern translation of the Hebrew Bible. We cannot tell if the author is quoting from memory, misquoting, or altering the text unless we have compared it with the Septuagint and not only with the Hebrew.

The writings that counted as scripture for the New Testament writers are those they held in common with Diaspora Jews: the Torah, prophets, Psalms, and assorted texts from the Writings. In frequency of quotation and allusion in the New Testament, Psalms and Isaiah predominate, followed by Deuteronomy and other passages from the Torah. Some are introduced with a formula such as “it is written” (Mt 2.5; Lk 20.17; Acts 15.15–18) or “it was said” (Mt 5.21). In other cases, the expression “that is” is combined with application of the text to reading the community’s experience as part of God’s eschatological plan resembles the interpretation of prophetic passages in the interpretive commentaries (“pesharim”) among the Dead Sea Scrolls from Qumran (Mt 3.3; 11.10; Jn 6.31,50; Acts 2.16; 4.11; Rom 9.7–9; 10.6–8; Heb 7.5; 1 Pet 1.24–25; see 1 QpHab 12.6; CD 7.14–15; 4Q174 1.11–14). Use of an adversative expression to correct a prior tradition of interpretation, as in Matthew’s “you have heard . . . but I say” (Mt 5.21–22,27–28,31–32,33–34,38–39 43–44) resembles a rabbinic formula (Midr. Pss. 119.26). Matthew does not continue in the rabbinic mode, however, which would require that Jesus establish his interpretation by appealing to other texts from scripture.

CHRISTOLOGICAL READING OF SCRIPTURE

The primary focus of New Testament biblical interpretation is the belief that Jesus is God’s messiah, the agent of God’s eschatological salvation. Some texts are repeatedly interpreted with a strong messianic meaning: Ps 2; 8; 110; Deut 18.15,18–19; and 2 Sam 7.14. Prophecies from Joel 2–3 (Acts 2.16–21), Zech 9–14 (Mark 11.1–2; Heb 10.19), Dan 7 (Mk 13.26), and Dan 12 (Jn 5.29) play a major role in understanding the risen and exalted Jesus as the one who has inaugurated the end-time. Daniel 7.13–14 lies behind the Christological confession of Jesus as the Son of Man who will come in judgment (see Mk 14.62). In many cases, the reference to Daniel is not explicitly marked. Readers who do not recognize the allusion—or are not aided by the notes found in a modern edition—may miss the use of allusions or partial quotations to support a claim about Jesus.

Even when the text being employed is evident, one cannot always determine whether the author is using the passage as an isolated prooftext or intends readers to incorporate elements from its larger biblical context into the interpretation. Among the Qumran texts, testimony collections gather biblical passages on a particular topic. Some combine references to a future prophet (4Q175: Deut 5.28–29; 18.18–19; 33.8–11; Num 24.15–17; 4Q174: 2 Sam 7.10–14; Ps 1.1; 2.1–2). If early Christians used similar collections of texts on a theme, the larger context of any quotation (which would not have been given in the collection) is irrelevant. When the same texts are quoted in the same combination by different authors, such a source may well be behind all of them. Christ as the stumbling stone based on Isa 8.14; 28.16; and Ps 118.22 appears in several places (Mt 21.42; Acts 4.11; Eph 2.20; 1 Pet 2.6). Matthew’s set of fulfillment quotations, which assert that events in the life of Jesus were foretold by the prophets (1.23 [Isa 7.14; 8.8]; 2.6 [Mic 5.2], 18 [Jer 31.15], 23 [source uncertain; see Judg 13.5,7; Isa 11.1; 53.2]; 4.14 [ Isa 9.1–2]; 8.17 [ Isa 53.4]; 12.17–21 [ Isa 42.1–4]; 21.4–5 [Zech 9.9]) may have been taken from a collection of prooftexts. They exhibit the particular significance of Isaiah in early Christian understanding of the suffering and death of Jesus.

Christians, using the Septuagint translation, were able to read Isaiah’s original reference to a young woman who will soon bear a child as a reference to the miraculous birth of God’s messiah from a virgin (Isa 7:14). When Matthew embedded this text into the story of Jesus’ birth, he fixed its Christian interpretation in the imagination. Similar reinterpretations arose in dealing with the end of Jesus’ life: The necessity of explaining how Jesus’ death fits into God’s plan drew Christian attention to passages describing God’s suffering righteous one. Early interpretation matched details in the story of Jesus’ passion to passages in Isaiah (for example, abuse of the prisoner from Isa 50.6 and 53.5; see Mt 27.67–68). Some scholars think that Jesus himself may have begun this process by applying texts concerning the suffering righteous one and the coming “son of man” (Dan 7.13–14) to his ministry.

Isaiah’s prophecies about the salvation that is coming to Zion also play an important role in the Gospel narratives. The announcement of salvation to the suffering ones in Isa 61:1–3 has been embedded in an inaugural speech of Jesus (Lk 4.17–19). The same passage is reflected in Matthew’s Beatitudes (Mt 5.3–12). Images of the day of salvation from Isaiah dominate the Christian liturgical celebrations of Advent, Christmas, Lent, and Easter. So firmly are these passages fixed within a Christological interpretive tradition that many Christians find it impossible to imagine that they could refer to anything other than the coming of salvation in Jesus.

As Christians came to articulate claims about Jesus’ identity as the unique Son of God, they used biblical texts to support this view in a more polemical way. Jesus is shown to prove his own superiority to the human descendants of David with a clever twist on Ps 110.1 (Mk 12.35–37): David himself (the presumed author of the Psalm) uses the title “Lord” of the messiah. Hebrews 1.5–14 attaches a number of other Psalm texts to Ps 2.7 as evidence that Jesus is God’s Son and as such exalted above the angels. John 10.31–39 has Jesus cite Ps 82.6 in self-defense when he is accused of blasphemy for claiming to be the unique representative of God. In all of these examples, interpreting the Bible is not pursued for its own sake. Rather, Christian beliefs about Jesus are prior to the biblical passages produced to support them. The result, however, is that many passages from the prophets and Psalms have become so embedded in the gospel narrative that for the Christian imagination they are the story of Jesus.

SCRIPTURE AND CHRISTIAN PRACTICE

Matthew 5.17–20 defends the teaching of Jesus against the charge of dissolving the Torah and the prophets. The Torah is identified with the exact words of the written Hebrew, and Matthew affirms its divine authority in every particular. The Christian understanding represents the fulfillment of the Torah and prophets by establishing a righteousness superior to that taught by scribes and Pharisees. What principle underlies the adversative readings that follow in Mt 5.21–28? A common explanation attributes to Jesus the authority of a messianic interpreter of the law. He can determine its intent with an authority greater than that of those Jewish interpreters who appeal to the oral tradition that was presumed to have been given by Moses. Disputed points are to be resolved once and for all based on the “prophet like Moses” of Deut 18.15–18 (see Jn 4.19, 25). In what follows, Jesus and his followers are to do more, not less, than the Torah requires. The debate over divorce in Mt 19.3–13 employs a related argument. Though the Torah contains provisions for granting a divorce (Deut 21.1), Jesus claims that Moses introduced such stipulations as a concession. They do not reflect the will of God as revealed in Gen 1.27. The Genesis text also figures in a critique of social laxity about divorce in the Dead Sea Scrolls (see CD 4.19–21). Thus it was used to indicate God’s intention concerning marriage prior to the time of the Qumran community (second century BCE through first century CE). The Qumran tradition, however, does not use it, as the New Testament does, to negate the legal standing of another text of the Torah. This passage from Matthew implies that the point of “messianic” interpretation is to restore the intention of the original lawmaker, namely God. Matthew 5.48 concludes on a similar note: Righteousness implies assimilation to God’s own perfection.

New Testament authors do not interpret the details of legal traditions found in the Jewish scriptures. Rather a series of “summary principles” serves to demonstrate that the intention of the Torah has been realized in the Christian community. Matthew 7.12 uses the “golden rule” as such a summary, for instance. The most common Christian summary focuses on the injunction to love God and the neighbor, the love command (see Mk 12.28–34; Jn 13.34–35; Rom 13.8–10; Gal 5.14; Eph 5.1–2; 1 Thess 4.9–10; Heb 13.1; Jas 2.8). Matthew 23.23–24 employs the distinction between attention to observance of detailed precepts concerning tithing and the “weightier matters”—justice, mercy, and faithfulness. This passage has, apparently, been reformulated from Matthew’s Jewish Christian perspective, since it presupposes the development of the law on tithing (Deut 14.22–29, later taken to include dill and cumin). The parallel in Lk 11.42 fits the more common New Testament pattern. Those condemned fail in justice and love of God, that is, the obligation to love God and neighbor. Though the text is not quoted exactly, Matthew’s formula probably reflects Mic 6.8.
Christians presume that the stories concerning Israel provide instructional examples for their community. Tales of unfaithfulness or grumbling in the wilderness were particularly popular (see 1 Cor 10.1–13; Heb 3.7–4.13). Abraham serves as an example of the works (such as hospitality) appropriate to faith (Jas 2.21–26 includes Rahab as an example). The heading “faith” introduces a catalogue of biblical models in Heb 11.1–40, which serves as a summary of the biblical story from Abel through the prophets. Though “by faith” has been inserted into each example, the particular story that follows does not always represent faith, at least not in the same way. The Christological exegesis by which Hebrews argued that Jesus as exalted Son of God was foreseen by the Psalms and prophets and that the sacrificial death of Jesus ended the need for Jewish sacrificial rituals (Heb 7.1–10.18) shapes this catalogue as well. Each of the heroes in the catalogue merits a promised reward for fidelity to God, which has been deferred until the establishment of a heavenly people of God through Jesus (11.13–16).

SCRIPTURE IN CHRISTIAN POLEMIC

The Christian conviction that scripture spoke to and about their community even when it was made up largely of Gentiles (as in 1 Pet 1.10–23) resulted in polemical use of the biblical text against its literal meaning. The strategies employed in several of the more striking re-readings became fixed principles in early Christian exegesis: typology, allegory, and the distinction between the “spirit” and the “letter” of the text. Typology is a method of reading a text that sees characters, incidents, or themes within it as representing “types,” or impressions, of a central form, the “antitype.” When a coin or medallion was struck, the copies produced were called types, and the name therefore came to signify all of the related images based on one master design. Typological readings already occurred in the Hebrew Bible; the prophet known as Second Isaiah, for instance, interpreted the return from exile typologically as a second Exodus (Isa 48.20–21, alluding to Ex 17.1–7). In the New Testament, interpreting a biblical text typologically presumes that persons or events in the narrative provide a pattern of Christian experience; for instance, Israel’s passage through the Red Sea and eating manna foreshadow Christian baptism and eucharist (1 Cor 10.1–4). In other cases, the relationship of the Christian person, idea, or event may be antithetical to the person, idea, or event found in scripture; for instance, Paul contrasts Adam and Christ (Rom 5.12–21), part of Paul’s argument for faith rather than observance of the law as the principle of salvation.

Paul’s use of the Abraham story to defend the thesis moves into terrain foreign to the obvious meaning of the story. Genesis 15.6 is taken to mean that Abraham’s righteousness depends only on faith (Rom 4.1–25). Some scholars call this type of argument “midrash,” a traditional Jewish form of interpretation, in which one text is supplemented by others to extract a further meaning. Psalm 32.1–2 plays this role in Rom 4.7–8. John 6.30–51 contains a lengthy dispute in which the incarnate Christ is said to be the meaning of Exodus. Biblical references in the Fourth Gospel are notoriously indefinite. John 6.31 reflects some combination of Ex 16.4,15; Ps 78.24; and Wis 16.28. Such typologies do not deny that scripture refers to persons and events that belong to Israel’s past. Their significance in God’s plan of salvation, however, requires that they be recognized as prefiguring the Christian reality.

Paul’s treatment of the Abraham story in Gal 4.21–31 moves beyond simple typology to a method of interpretation that becomes more prevalent in later Christian writers: allegory. Allegory in its pure sense is an extended comparison between two different levels, usually a narrative level and a psychological or spiritual level, in which the writer, speaking directly about the narrative incidents and characters, intends and is understood to mean to speak about the symbolic level. This kind of reading had already been adapted from Greek interpretative practice by the Jewish writer Philo of Alexandria (ca. 15 BCE–50 CE). In Galatians, the son born of a slave woman is rather shockingly associated with the Sinai covenant and all those who seek to be bound by it. Descendants of Isaac are not physical descendants of Abraham but children of a promise. Paul concludes that since Gen 21.10 permits the slave woman and her son to be cast out, his audience should do the same to any Christians who insist upon belonging to Israel “according to the flesh.” Even in what appears a blatant misreading of the Abraham story, Paul presumes that the text has a literal sense as well. Abraham, Isaac, Sarah, and Hagar are not merely symbolic figures representative of the two parties to the conflict in Galatia.

Later theories of allegorical meaning found support in Paul’s distinction between “the letter that kills” and the life-giving “Spirit” in 2 Cor 3.6. The polemical context of this passage sets Paul and his preaching over against what appear to have been Jewish Christian missionaries. Again Paul’s version of Ex 34.28–35 in the argument which follows inverts the Jewish traditions of the Targums. The standard Jewish explanations of this passage assume that the splendor on Moses’ face either remained permanently or increased. For Paul’s Jewish contemporaries the glory on Moses’ face and the eternity of the Sinai covenant are closely associated (see Pseudo-Philo, Biblical Antiquities 11.5; 19.10–16; 32.7; 1Q34 2.5–8). Israel’s sin makes it impossible for the people to look upon the glory reflected in the face of Moses. Paul instead assumes that the veiling of Moses’ face was a means of hiding the evidence of a fading glory, that is, an impermanent covenant. He asserts that he is the servant of a new, eternal covenant established through the Spirit (Jer 31.18,33; Ezek 36.26), not the letters carved on the tablets of stone.

With the Latin rendering of Greek gramma (“letter”) as littera, its identification with the carved tablets of Torah gave way to “letter” as meaning the entire written text. Paul’s antithesis of Spirit and letter was taken to be a hermeneutical principle rather than a polemical attack on the eternity of the law (also see Rom 2.27–29; 7.6). From this perspective, a literal reading of the text fails to convey its deepest truth. Only the spiritual interpretation that associates scripture with the revelation of God in Christ conveys life. Israel may then stand for any persons who are trapped by the literal sense of the text and who therefore fail to interpret all of the scriptures in light of Christ.

JEWISH INTERPRETATION IN THE PREMODERN ERA

There is a strong continuity of approaches between the inner-biblical interpretation of the Hebrew Bible (see above, p. 2201) and its interpretation in later Jewish tradition. The later interpreters faced the same issues as those from the end of the biblical period: the ambiguity of many words, the desire to bring the text closer to Jewish life, and the fact that they now had to deal with these texts as canonical, that is, both authoritative and closed to further additions. Not surprisingly, they adopted and adapted many of the same solutions, especially the use of creative philology and creative historiography, in order to give the static text greater elasticity. Some interpretive innovations appeared at particular periods, either as creative breakthroughs within the Jewish tradition or as a response to outside influences; among the latter were the use of the Old Testament in the Christian community for Christological purposes and the study of Muslim interpreters of the Koran. By and large, however, continuity rather than discontinuity characterized the premodern interpretation of the Bible. The connection between early postbiblical interpretation and the preceding late inner-biblical interpretation was also uniform.

There is, however, major discontinuity in the genres through which the interpretations are expressed. Postbiblical interpretation recognizes the Bible as a canonical text, and it thus introduces the genre of commentary, in which a biblical passage is quoted with an introductory phrase separating the canonical text from its gloss or interpretation. This separation of text from commentary highlights the significance of the biblical text. It is fundamentally different from inner-biblical interpretation, in which the interpretive addition is often inserted into the text itself without differentiating text and commentary, or in which scripture is rewritten; for example, Deuteronomy rewrite sections of Exodus, or Chronicles rewritten Samuel-Kings (see above, pp. 2202–2203). Although the practice of interpreting the text by rewriting it continued for a short period after the canonization of the Hebrew Bible, it was largely replaced by commentaries of various sorts. For clear theological reasons, these commentaries were interested in differentiating between the canonical biblical text and its interpretation.

TRANSLATION AS INTERPRETATION

The earliest postbiblical interpretive traditions, however, are found in another new genre, Bible translation. In the postexilic period, after the return from the Babylonian exile where the common language was Aramaic, many Jews were no longer fluent in Hebrew, and the Bible was for the first time translated into Aramaic. Though these earliest translations are no longer extant, we do have later translations of sections of the Bible that predate the destruction of the Second Temple (70 ce) from the Dead Sea community of Qumran, as well as a set of Aramaic translations, called Targums, that crystallized at a later date in both Babylon and Israel. In addition, the Bible was translated into Greek in Alexandria, Egypt, beginning in the third century ace. This translation, called the Septuagint (the translation of the seventy), is of great value and is supplemented by a variety of other Greek translations, some of which were found at Qumran. (See “Hebrew Bible: Texts and Versions,” p. 2194.)

These translations illustrate the truism that all translations are interpretations. More particularly, they demonstrate the range of translation approaches, from literal interpretation to free paraphrase. (See the essay on “Translation of the Bible into English,” p. 2194, for a discussion of translation approaches.) For example, the Septuagint and the Aramaic translation called Targum Onqelos are typically word-for-word, literal versions, as far as that is possible. Yet even these “literal” translations show nonliteral tendencies at points. For example, Onqelos was aware of the fact that the biblical verse, “You shall not boil a kid in its mother’s milk” (Ex 23:19; 34.26; Deut 14.21), was generalized in early Jewish tradition and served as the basis for the prohibition of eating dairy products and meat together. For this reason, Onqelos translates the biblical text according to the rabbinic tradition, rendering it, “Do not eat meat with milk.” The interpretive nature of the Septuagint is especially obvious in Psalms. Following an interpretive tendency that already existed in the Hebrew Bible, whereby several psalms were given historical superscriptions that contextualized them in the life of David (e.g., Ps 51, “To the leader. A Psalm of David, when the prophet Nathan came to him, after he had gone in to Bathsheba”), superscriptions were added to several additional psalms (e.g., Ps 27, introduced in the Septuagint with “A Psalm of David, before he was anointed”). Thus, a biblical model was followed, and new introductions, which provided new interpretive “Davidic” frameworks for these psalms, were composed.

In other cases, nonliteral translations were offered because the theology of the author and his community disagreed with what the text explicitly said; this is the philosophical equivalent of the translation by Onqelos of “You shall not boil a kid in its mother’s milk” as “Do not eat meat with milk.” For example, Num 12.8 says of Moses, “he beholds the form of the Lord,” a notion that was very disturbing to the translator of the Septuagint, for whom the predominant image of Deuteronomy, that God has no form (see esp. Deut 4.12,15), was normative. The translator thus assimilated what the text explicitly says into his theology (and into the Priestly theology, which emphasizes the manifestation of God through his “glory”), and rendered this section of the verse as “and he saw the glory of the Lord.” This was the same sort of change discussed above (p. 2202) when both Deuteronomy and Chronicles rewrote (rather than translated) earlier texts, changing them so that they conform to the later theology.

These cases of nonliteral, exegetical translations are rather tame when compared to some of the highly expansionistic translations seen in the Targums, especially those originating in Palestine. Most remarkable is the case where the Targums “translate” the Akedah or the binding of Isaac (Gen 22). In the biblical account, Isaac has a relatively minor role and is a character who is acted upon rather than one who acts. The Targums, however, interpret the story in such a way that Isaac now plays a major role. For example, Targum Pseudo-Jonathan glosses v. 10 as follows: “Abraham put forth his hand and took the knife to slaughter his son. Isaac spoke up and said to his father: ‘Tie me well lest I struggle because of the anguish of my soul, with the result that a blemish will be found in your offering, and I will be thrust into the pit of destruction.’ The eyes of Abraham were looking at the eyes of Isaac, and the eyes of Isaac were looking at the angels on high. Isaac saw them but Abraham did not see them. The angels on high exclaimed: ‘Come, see two unique ones who are in the world; one is slaughtering, and one is being slaughtered; the one who slaughters does not hesitate, and the one who is being slaughtered stretches forth his neck’” (Targum Pseudo-Jonathan: Genesis, trans. Michael Maher. Collegeville, Minn: Liturgical, 1992, p. 79). (The translation in Targum Neofiti is similar.)

The Targum to Song of Solomon is even more remarkable in the way in which it assimilates the text to its general understanding that the book should be interpreted as a historical allegory. Thus, its “translation” of 1.2, “Let him kiss me with the kisses of his mouth! For your love is better than wine,” reads as follows: “Solomon the prophet said: ‘Blessed be the name of God who gave us the law via Moses the scribe, a law inscribed on two tablets of stone, and six orders of the Mishnah and the Talmud by oral tradition, and spoke to us face to face as a man kisses his companion, from the abundance of the love with which he loved us, more than the seventy nations’” (Marvin Pope, Song of Songs [Anchor Bible], New York: Doubleday, 1977, p. 299). A similar, very expansionistic translation of Genesis may also be seen in the much earlier Aramaic Genesis Apocryphon, found among the Dead Sea Scrolls.

PESHARIM

Though rabbinic interpretation is seen as the normative or mainstream type of premodern Jewish interpretation, that mode of interpretation is really not new, but shows much continuity with the postbiblical interpretation seen in the Dead Sea Scrolls and in Greek Jewish writing as well. The genre of Qumran literature called Pesher literature, in which a biblical text is first quoted, and then its interpretation is added, is structurally similar to rabbinic Midrash (see below) and medieval commentary. Pesharim literature is distinct, however, from rabbinic literature (though not from the type of Jewish interpretation evidenced in much of the New Testament) in that it typically applies (mostly prophetic) texts to the author’s current situation with the assumption that the biblical text, though written long ago, refers to the later author’s time period. For example, Pesher Habakkuk quotes (in a slightly different form) the words of the seventh-century prophet Habakkuk (2.15), “Alas for you who make your neighbors drink, pouring out your wrath until they are drunk, in order to gaze on their nakedness,” and then continues: “Its interpretation concerns the Wicked Priest who pursued the Teacher of Righteousness [the leader of the Qumran community] to consume him with the ferocity of his anger in the place of his banishment, in festival time, during the day of Atonement. He paraded in front of them, to consume them and make them fall on the day of fasting, the sabbath of their rest (trans. Florentino García Martínez and Elbert J. C. Tigchelaar, The Dead Sea Scrolls Study Edition, Leiden: Brill, 1977, vol. 1, pp. 19,21).

An example of (proto)rabbinc interpretation of legal material already found in this prerabbinic community is illustrated by the following interpretation from the Damascus Covenant, another key text of the Qumran community: “No one should do work on the sixth day, from the moment when the sun’s disc is at a distance of its diameter from the gate [= the horizon], for this is what it says [Deut 5.12], ‘Observe the sabbath day and keep it holy’” (CD X.15) (Dead Sea Scrolls Study Edition, ibid., pp. 567,569). This legal text is quoting the Decalogue from the Qumran community] to consume him with the ferocity of his anger in the place of his banishment, in festival time, during the day of Atonement. He paraded in front of them, to consume them and make them fall on the day of fasting, the sabbath of their rest (trans. Florentino García Martínez and Elbert J. C. Tigchelaar, The Dead Sea Scrolls Study Edition, Leiden: Brill, 1977, vol. 1, pp. 19,21).

An example of (proto)rabbinc interpretation of legal material already found in this prerabbinic community is illustrated by the following interpretation from the Damascus Covenant, another key text of the Qumran community: “No one should do work on the sixth day, from the moment when the sun’s disc is at a distance of its diameter from the gate [= the horizon], for this is what it says [Deut 5.12], ‘Observe the sabbath day and keep it holy’” (CD X.15) (Dead Sea Scrolls Study Edition, ibid., pp. 567,569). This legal text is quoting the Decalogue from the Qumran community] to consume him with the ferocity of his anger in the place of his banishment, in festival time, during the day of Atonement. He paraded in front of them, to consume them and make them fall on the day of fasting, the sabbath of their rest (trans. Florentino García Martínez and Elbert J. C. Tigchelaar, The Dead Sea Scrolls Study Edition, Leiden: Brill, 1977, vol. 1, pp. 19,21).

An example of (proto)rabbinc interpretation of legal material already found in this prerabbinic community is illustrated by the following interpretation from the Damascus Covenant, another key text of the Qumran community: “No one should do work on the sixth day, from the moment when the sun’s disc is at a distance of its diameter from the gate [= the horizon], for this is what it says [Deut 5.12], ‘Observe the sabbath day and keep it holy’” (CD X.15) (Dead Sea Scrolls Study Edition, ibid., pp. 567,569). This legal text is quoting the Decalogue from the Qumran community] to consume him with the ferocity of his anger in the place of his banishment, in festival time, during the day of Atonement. He paraded in front of them, to consume them and make them fall on the day of fasting, the sabbath of their rest (trans. Florentino García Martínez and Elbert J. C. Tigchelaar, The Dead Sea Scrolls Study Edition, Leiden: Brill, 1977, vol. 1, pp. 19,21).

Successful interpretation, Prophetic books (also of the Israelite bent) suffer from an inherent in the text as it is currently ordered are resolved. For example, Gen 10 contains a genealogical description of the nations of the world that recounts their dispersion. Yet this is followed by the Tower of Babel story, which begins with the geographical unity of humanity. Josephus brilliantly solves this problem by reversing the order of these chapters, putting the genealogies after the story of the Tower of Babel. This is an example of what would later become a fundamental principle of Jewish interpretation, that the narrative order of the biblical text.”

Josephus notes in the introduction to Antiquities: “This shows, incidentally, that the emphasis on “law” was not a rabbinic or Pharisaic innovation. In addition, because the Torah was canonical for the author of Jubilees, the two different creation stories, which critical scholars see as separate (Gen 1.1–2.4a; 2.4b–3.24), are read canonically as a single story by one divine author. As a result, the second (Yahwistic) story is used to fill in the details of the more laconic first (Priestly) story. There is nothing remarkable about this development: Once the Bible is read canonically and the existence of sources forgotten, it becomes natural to interpret the stories in this fashion.

Josephus, the Jewish historian of the first century CE, also offers many examples of creative historiography in his Jewish Antiquities. He often remodels biblical characters so that they better fit the ideals of his Greco-Roman audience. He also restructures biblical texts, so that problems inherent in the text as it is currently ordered are resolved. For example, Gen 10 contains a genealogical description of the nations of the world that recounts their dispersion. Yet this is followed by the Tower of Babel story, which begins with the geographical unity of humanity. Josephus brilliantly solves this problem by reversing the order of these chapters, putting the genealogies after the story of the Tower of Babel. This is an example of what would later become a fundamental principle of Jewish interpretation, that the narrative order of the biblical text does not necessarily represent the chronological order of the events it is depicting.

Jubilees and Josephus are also important because they offer explicit justifications for their radical rewriting of earlier traditions. Jubilees presents itself as revealed to Moses on Sinai with the help of a mediating angel. Josephus notes in the introduction to Antiquities: “The precise details of our scripture will, then, be set forth, each in its place, as my narrative proceeds, that being the procedure that I have promised to follow throughout this work, neither adding nor omitting anything” (Josephus, Jewish Antiquities, Books I–IV, trans. Henry St. John Thackray [Loeb Classical Library], Cambridge, Mass: Harvard University Press, 1967, p. 9). If these two ideas may be combined, we have much of the basis for the rabbinic interpretation of the Bible, which understood itself as (1) the legitimate (oral) law revealed to Moses on Sinai, which was passed down from generation to generation; and (2) the authoritative law, which might differ in word from the phraseology of the biblical text, but is, in reality, “neither adding nor omitting anything.”

RABBINIC INTERPRETATION

There is a final, crucial assumption of the classical rabbinic world, which is best represented by the Mishnah (codified ca. 200 CE), the Babylonian Talmud (ca. 500), and the slightly earlier Talmud of the Land of Israel, as well as the various Midrashim (commentary or homily collections) from these periods: The Bible is divine speech, and as such should not be limited to the normal rules of human speech. The interpretation of Jer 25.11 in Dan 9 (see p. 2203) indicates that this idea, which would encourage extensively creative philology, did not first develop with the rabbis. Indeed, it was greatly fostered already by the creation from various sources of a “unified” Torah. How else but through the assumption that God-talk is fundamentally different from human-talk can we explain, for example, why the two versions of the Decalogue (Ex 20, Deut 5) are different? God, and only God, can speak two things simultaneously! How else can we explain the fact that there “seems” to be a contradiction between various texts concerning slavery, about whether a Hebrew slave may remain a slave forever, or must be released at the jubilee (see below)? Obviously, this apparent contradiction must be reconciled by creative reinterpretation, based on the assumption that God does not use words in the same way we do.

The rabbis, in expressing this assumption, typically insisted that there is a superconcentration of meaning in the Bible as divine word. This meant for them that it cannot be interpreted as a “normal” text, which might have a stable meaning; rather, it has seventy (an indeterminate, but large, number of) faces or meanings. Interpretation for the rabbis is like striking a rock with a hammer: Many different types of pieces, each of which is a legitimate part of the whole, are broken off. Also, as divine speech superendowed with meaning, there are no extra words in the text; nor, for some, are there even extra letters—all is significant as the word of God.

Not all rabbis subscribed to these views to the same degree, and it might even be possible to isolate a group that saw the Bible as composed in more normal language. As a result, a tension developed between the desire to take the text at its face value and the desire to see it as overendowed with meaning. This tension continued throughout later Jewish interpretation. Yet all agreed that as a divine text, the Bible may not be interpreted just like any other text. This is true whether the rabbinic comments are found in a Midrash (plural: Midrashim), where they are organized around a particular text, or whether they are found in the Talmud and thus are organized (more or less) according to legal topics.

A particular interest of classical rabbinic interpretation was reconciling divergent legal traditions found in the Torah, and “expanding” the Torah through creative interpretation. This “expansion” allowed ambiguities to be clarified and the text to be contemporized despite its antiquated nature. For example, a Midrash to Ex 21.6, which states that the Hebrew slave under some circumstances shall stay with his master “for life,” is glossed “until the jubilee year.” “Life” ordinarily means “forever,” or at least until death; the Midrash, however, is “forced” into this reading, using creative philology, because Lev 25.40 says: “They shall serve with you until the year of the jubilee.” The Torah, as the unified word of God, cannot contain different ideas of when a slave is released, so it is “obvious” that the “forever” of Ex 21.6 must “really mean” until the jubilee. Again, though this interpretation might seem forced to us, it is almost natural within the framework of a society that reads the Torah as a unified, divine work.

As noted earlier, the rabbis also often extend and clarify biblical laws. Thus, the biblical text states that “work” is prohibited on the sabbath day, and anyone who works has committed a capital offense (e.g., Ex 31.14–15). But what is work? The problem is the same as that discussed above in reference to the festival of booths, where Lev 23.40 says that you must “take” branches of various trees but does not explicitly say what is to be done with them (see p. 2202). In the case of the branches, the context was used to provide the answer, and thus Neh 8.15 suggested that the branches should be taken to build booths, most likely based on the fact that the booth legislation (Lev 23.42) immediately follows the branch legislation. Similarly, Ex 31.12–17, which concerns the general sabbath prohibition, is found immediately after the instruction to construct the tabernacle; the classical rabbis adduced from this juxtaposition that “work” is any type of labor involved with the construction of the tabernacle. This is a reasonable, though not fully compelling, interpretation, which takes the text in its final form very seriously. Not only is every letter significant, but even the juxtaposition of adjacent units yields meaning.

The vast literature of the classical rabbinic period is replete with examples of creative historiography, many of which are based on overly careful readings, what we might consider overreading the biblical text; but of course a divine text cannot be read too carefully. For example, the binding of Isaac opens with the phrase, “After these things God tested Abraham” (Gen 22.1). Modern, critical commentators might see the phrase “After these things” as a type of filler, or paragraph marker, but this was an unlikely choice within the rabbinic mindset. This created a problem, since Gen 22 is not obviously causally related to the previous chapter. Thus, “these things” must be discovered through creative historiography. As is typical, there is no single rabbinic answer to what “these things” were. Various Midrashim, preserved both in Midrashic texts like Genesis Rabbah and in the Babylonian Talmud, create a dialogue between Isaac and Ish-mæl in which Ishmael boasts that he endured the pain of circumcision at the age of thirteen (Gen 17.25), while Isaac was circumcised at eight days; Isaac counters by saying that Ishmael just gave an organ to God, whereas he, Isaac, is willing to give all of his organs to God. It is, according to this view, “after these things,” namely after Isaac expressed his willingness to be sacrificed, that God tested Abraham. Another view creates a dialogue between God and Satan, in which God says that Abraham would even be willing to sacrifice his son. This brings Genesis closer to the dialogue between God and the Satan (adversary) in Job 1–2; indeed, it is common for the rabbis to use one canonical story to fully explore the meaning of another. Finally, it is noteworthy that these two expansions are not merely silly, nor do they simply “fill in” the details lacking in the original story. They both help to explain the major problem of the text: How could a good God make such a request of Abraham?

Although the Midrashic inclination was deeply attuned to the text, its meaning as the Bible, and its connection to the life of community, it accomplished these goals with some violence to the context of the text. Thus, many rabbinic interpretations concentrate on the meaning of the individual word and the significance of the single letter (for example, the comments in the Midrash Genesis Rabbah, which explain why the Bible opened with a bet, the second letter of the Hebrew alphabet), so that the broader contextual story is often lost. The eleventh century saw a reaction against this type of interpretation in the development of the peshat school of interpretation.

MEDIEVAL COMMENTATORS

Peshat is a notoriously difficult term to define, and it seems to change meaning depending on the commentator involved. For Rabbi Solomon (Heb Shelomoh) son of Isaac, or Rashi, who lived in France from 1040 to 1105, peshat meant “contextual meaning.” Rashi’s commentary, covering almost the entire Hebrew Bible, is a type of medieval Reader’s Digest of classical rabbinic interpretation. Very little in Rashi is original; his brilliance, and extreme popularity (Rashi on the Torah was the first Hebrew book printed, before the Torah itself!) lay in his ability to select and rework rabbinic traditions, largely ignoring the many rabbinic traditions that overly strained the context of the text and those which used the text as a type of peg on which to hang various ideas that are not at all connected to the context. More than that, the traditional Midrashim were so atomistic and filled with diverse opinions that it is almost always impossible to answer a simple question of how the Midrash understood the text. Rashi, through his judicious selection process, chose Midrashim that were relatively close to the text and were mutually reinforcing. Thus, we have peshat where the broader text, as well as each letter or word, has a clear meaning. This accomplishment was so significant that the commentary of Rashi, especially on the Torah, is one of the most significant Jewish postbiblical texts; it profoundly influenced Jewish understanding of the Bible, especially in European communities, as well as that of medieval Christians, for whom Rashi epitomized Jewish exegesis.

The method of peshat was taken one step further by Rashi’s son-in-law, Rabbi Samuel (Heb Shmuel) son of Meir, or Rashbam (1080–1174), who understood peshat in a more radical sense as the simple meaning of the text. Rashbam, though a leading scholar of Jewish law, felt free to offer interpretations of the text in his commentary on the Torah that disagreed with rabbinic law. For example, in contrast to his father-in-law Rashi who, following the rabbinic tradition, interprets the words “for life” concerning the Hebrew slave in Ex 21.6 as until the jubilee year, Rashbam glosses “according to the peshat, all the days of his life.” It remains unclear how Rashbam would have reconciled this peshat with what he understood to be the requirements of rabbinic law. In any case, the type of very literal, non-Midrashic way of reading the text, which characterized Rashbam, found new followers.

Rashbam is also noteworthy for the way in which some of his comments are clearly the product of a reaction against the Christians, especially the persecution of Jews during the Crusades. Though anti-Christian polemics existed in Rashi as well, it was relatively mild; the Crusades, which marked a significant change in the status of the Jews in medieval Europe, would leave a deep impact on many commentators. Nevertheless, Jewish commentary should not be seen as predominantly reactive.

Much of the rest of medieval Jewish interpretation may be understood within the context provided above, as a continuum on which the classical atomistic Midrashim and the search for peshat existed as opposite poles. Several additional influences are noteworthy. Especially in countries where Arabic was spoken, a new serious study of the Hebrew language was begun, likely in an effort to counter the Muslim claim that the Arabic of the Koran is the most beautiful language. Arabic paradigms were applied to Hebrew by scholars in the Arab orbit (e.g., Sa’adía [882–942] in Babylon, Abraham ibn Ezra [1089–1164] in Spain and elsewhere), and commentaries that were more philological in nature, exploring the meaning of grammatical forms and lexical terms, developed. Spinoza offers a picture of Ibn Ezra as a medieval radical, doubting the Mosaic authorship of several verses from the Torah. In reality, despite some atypical positions that include the suggestion that Isa 40–66, what scholars now call Second and Third Isaiah, are not by the same author as chs 1–39, ibn Ezra was quite traditional in his outlook, and deeply philological in his perspective. Rabbi David Kimchi (Radak), who lived in Provence from 1160 to 1235, systematized many of these interpretations, and his understanding of biblical grammar continues to have a major influence on the scientific study of Hebrew. More than any other medieval exegete, Radak also showed a deep interest in what would later be called textual criticism, namely deciding what the correct text of the Bible was, and many of his views in this area are remarkably modern.

The world of premodern interpretation is, of course, much richer than indicated here. There was a very significant strain of mystical interpretation of the text, exemplified in the Zohar (late thirteenth century), and in the commentary of Nachmanides, Rabbi Moses son of Nachman (active in the thirteenth century). Philosophical interpretations also developed; most notable are those found in The Guide to the Perplexed by Ma-imones (1135–1204). With the Renaissance, Jewish scholars were influenced by the new science; this is especially seen in the extremely lengthy commentary by Don Isaac Abravanel (1437–1508), who also synthesizes and to an extent harmonizes the many commentators of all types and from various geographical locations who preceded him.

Postbiblical Jewish exegesis does not neatly divide into the schools through which medieval Christian interpretation is often defined. It is essentially different from much of the work of its Christian counterparts. Part of this is because they were studying different works: the Hebrew Bible studied alone, or in relation to rabbinic traditions, is fundamentally different from the Old Testament as part of the Bible, followed by the New Testament. The allegorical and especially the typological methods, which had a very significant role in Christian interpretation, played a much less weighty role in Jewish interpretation. Finally, direct access to the text in its original Hebrew typically distinguished Jewish biblical interpretation from that of the Christians. Despite these differences, which are very significant, most Jewish and Christian premodern interpretation shares a set of basic assumptions that make them fundamentally premodern. These include the idea that the Bible is an authoritative canonical work, which is revealed divine speech, and, as such, must be interpreted in a special way. Though set in history, it is in a sense timeless, speaking to every generation and to every individual. Although several medieval rabbis cast some small doubts on one aspect or another of these premises of interpretation, only in the seventeenth century would these shared assumptions begin to erode, and only then would we slowly move from pre-modern to modern biblical interpretation.

THE INTERPRETATION OF THE BIBLE
CHRISTIAN INTERPRETATION IN THE PREMODERN ERA

As the article on New Testament interpretation of the Jewish Scriptures (p. 2204) indicates, Christian interpretation of scripture begins in the New Testament. The New Testament writers developed two of the interpretive approaches that remained central to Christian biblical interpretation until the rise of modern historical criticism: (1) a christocentric focus, that is, a tendency to interpret Hebrew Bible texts, especially prophetic texts, as referring to Christ; and (2) typology, the recognition of a person or event in the Hebrew Bible as a type or figure of Christ or Christian salvation. A third approach, allegory, is also present in rudimentary form.

In order to understand the development of early Christian interpretation, it is important to consider the contexts within which and the purposes for which Christians interpreted the scriptures. First, teaching and pastoral care of Christian communities was one important focus, and much early interpretation occurs in the context of sermons and pastoral letters (e.g., the letters of Ignatius [ca. 35–ca.107 ce] and the homilies of Melito [d. ca. 190]). Second, missionary activity and Christian apologetics (the defense of Christianity before pagan detractors) provided a quite different context. In this situation the biblical writings had to be interpreted to an audience, which often found these texts crude and out of keeping with the intellectual tastes of Greek-speaking culture. Thus there was a strong impetus to interpret the scriptures in a way that would enhance their intellec tual respectability. For this purpose Christian apologists used the tradition of allegorical interpretation that had been developed within Greek philosophical circles as a means of interpreting Homer and the other early Greek poets. Even before the rise of Christianity, the Jewish philosopher Philo of Alexandria (ca. 20 BCE–42 CE) had undertaken a detailed allegorical interpretation of Jewish scriptures, and Philo's influence upon the Alexandrian school of Christian interpreters was profound. A third context for interpretation emerged from Christianity's attempts to define itself in comparison to Judaism. Since both religions laid claim to the same body of scripture (the Hebrew Bible for Jews, the Old Testament for Christians), Christian interpretation addressed itself to the competing interpretations made by Judaism and Christianity. The harshly polemical Epistle of Barnabas (early second century) rejects the claims of Judaism to the covenant and so does not even begin to struggle with the interpretive problem that engages other Christian writers of the early centuries, the problem of the nature of the relationship between the old and new covenants, and the scriptures that witness to them. Much richer and more reflective is Justin Martyr's (ca. 100–165) Dialogue with Trypho the Jew. The work takes the form of a long conversation between Justin and Trypho, a learned rabbi, each of whom tries to persuade the other of the superiority of his claims and the interpretation of the scriptures upon which they are based. Justin attempts to establish a unity for the Old and New Testaments by arguing that the eternal Logos, fully revealed as Christ in the New Testament, was already the revealer of God's will to the prophets. Though the old covenant was valid, Justin claims that the Jewish scriptures themselves foresee its being superseded by a new covenant. Justin's approach, which anticipates the classic Christian understanding of the Old Testament, exhibits a historical perspective absent from Barnabas, but it is equally christocentric.
CHRISTIAN INTERPRETATION IN THE PREMODERN ERA

The fourth context of early Christian interpretation was provided by disputes among Christians. For early Christian communities, two questions above all other exercises exegetical and theological thought: namely, (a) how does Jesus relate to God, and subsequently, (b) how does Jesus' relationship to God affect his status as a human being? Since many biblical texts seem to present quite different answers to these questions, interpreters pored over any hint at a theological solution. The debate surrounding the former question, termed the “Trinitarian controversy,” centered on analyzing and systematizing texts that mention God, Jesus, and the Holy Spirit at the same time, such as Jesus' baptism in Mark 1:9–11 and triadic formulations such as in 2 Corinthians 13:13 and Matthew 28:19. Justin Martyr argued that, according to biblical texts, Jesus was “another God and Lord,” thus sacrificing clear monotheism to preserve Jesus' divinity. By contrast, monarchians such as Sabellius (ca. 220) and Adoptionists such as Theodotus of Byzantium (ca. 190) emphasized biblical texts that supposedly revealed Jesus' humanity in order to protect monotheism.

For the most part, early Christian theologians worked with a clear assumption of a unified and coherent witness of the entire canon of scripture as well as an expectation that exegesis results in necessarily logical and systematic doctrine. These hermeneutical guidelines, inherited from in part from Jewish sources, directed early Christian exegetes to resolve in some manner the various discrepancies found in the disparate texts within and between both Old and New Testaments. For example, early Christians recognized that a coherent doctrine of God and a definitively unambiguous statement of Jesus' relationship to God are not found in the Bible. Thus, the Bible's various ways of presenting God, Jesus and the Holy Spirit, were reconciled by formulations hammered out by the imperially backed councils of Nicea (325 CE) and Chalcedon (381 CE). From its very beginnings, Christian biblical interpretation thus became the driving force of theological reflection throughout the history of Christianity.

Although Christian theological disputes often focused upon biblical interpretation, other arguments focused on the nature of scripture itself. One challenge was posed by Marcion of Pontus (mid-second century), who rejected the Hebrew Bible entirely, claiming it was the revelation of an alien God and accepted only the Gospel of Luke and ten Pauline epistles as the authentic “Gospel and apostle.” Even these texts, he insisted, were corrupted by interpolations. To argue his case, Marcion invoked the principles of text criticism developed for the study of Greek poets. He also argued for a literal rather than an allegorical interpretation of the Old Testament (especially Genesis) in his attempts to discredit it as a crude and offensive book. Even more than the debate with Judaism, Marcion's claims required the church to articulate clearly its understanding of the revelatory significance of the Old Testament and its relationship to the New. A further challenge was posed by various Gnostic Christians. Like Marcion they also tended to reject the Old Testament, but in contrast to him, they engaged in a highly developed form of allegorical interpretation, which appealed strongly to one type of Hellenistic intellectualism.

Some of the liveliest of early Christian writings are those composed to refute Marcion and the Gnostics. The most notable is Irenaeus's (ca. 130–ca. 200) Against All Heresies (Adv. Haer.). Irenaeus argued for the validity of the revelation of God in the Old Testament and its law but also claimed that in the New Testament God is revealed in a new way. He demonstrated the unity of the scriptures by means of typology, so that the Old Testament serves as a witness to the New. Irenaeus also attacked the interpretive methods of his Gnostic opponents, such as Valentinus (ca. 100–ca. 160), objecting that they ignored the context of passages, overlooking the clear and obvious in favor of the obscure, and reading into the text their fanciful theories. Significantly, Irenaeus not only argued on the basis of interpretive principles but also invoked what comes to be known as “the rule of faith.” As a defense against an anarchy of interpretation, there is a standard of correct interpretation, which Irenaeus claimed is that which had been preserved in those churches that stand in the apostolic succession. Interpretation, which differs from that of the apostolic churches, cannot be deemed true.

The argument for the authoritative interpretation of the church was definitively established by Tertullian (ca. 160–ca. 225) in the early third century in The Prescription against Heretics (De praescriptione haereticorum). In making orthodoxy the norm for the interpretation of scripture, Tertullian, the lawyer with no taste for philosophy, may have thought that he was establishing a narrow and simple standard. But even as the threat from heretical interpretation receded, more philosophically oriented Christian interpreters, such as Origen (ca. 185–ca. 254) and Augustine (354–430), developed more profound and supple understandings of the nature of interpretation and the relation of scripture to orthodox theology.

Questions also arose concerning the definitive and authoritative version of the biblical texts. In the second century, some theologians apparently worried about the conflicting accounts of the four canonical gospels; one popular solution was the creation of Gospel harmonies. For example, Tatian’s Diatesseron (ca. 150) was a second-century synthesis of the four canonical gospels so as to present one unified story. While Tatian’s harmony was very popular in the East until the fifth century, other early Christian exegetes such as Irenaeus urged Christians to hold all four canonical gospels in tension. Retaining the separate works requires exegetical energy, since the conflicts must be explained in some way, but the tradition of four separate gospels continues to this day.

Another conflict developed concerning the textual source from which one should translate the Bible. Until the last decades of the fourth century, most early Christian interpreters assumed the priority of the Greek Septuagint and its derivative translations. When Jerome moved to Palestine about 390 CE, he decided to retranslate his Latin version of the Old Testament from the Hebrew text instead of the Greek; he reasoned that the Hebrew text was closer to the original version, and thus was more authoritative. In response, Augustine confronted him with a series of letters imploring him to retain the Greek text as his source, since switching texts could cause great theological confusion, disrupt the seeming prophetic continuity of Old and New Testaments, and perhaps cause a schism between Greeks and Latins within the Church. Jerome retained his view that his translation gained access to the “Hebrew Truth,” and eventually his new version, known as the “Vulgate,” rose to prominence in the Latin West. Though Jerome often relied upon the Greek version of traditionally Christological texts in his new, and ostensibly Hebrew-based, translation (cf. Isa 7 and Job 19:25–27), the Vulgate required that at least nominal deference be paid to the Hebrew text as the “true” text of the Hebrew Bible.

In addition to looking at early Christian biblical interpretation in the light of various contexts for interpretation, one should also take account of the two rival schools of interpretation that flourished in Alexandria and Antioch during the early Common Era. As noted above, the sophisticated intellectual environment of Alexandria was already home to a lively tradition of allegorical exegesis before the emergence of Christianity. Thus it was inevitable that Christians would adapt this method of interpretation to their scriptures. Among the most eminent of the Alexandrian school were Clement (ca. 150–ca. 215) and Origen. Allegorical interpretation reads a text as if the narrative incidents, characters, and other elements of its literal meaning are all intended to convey to the reader, by means of an extended comparison, another level of meaning entirely, usually a moral or spiritual one. Although many rather different types of interpretation may be called allegorical, all share a conviction that the authoritative text being interpreted has a deeper meaning than what appears on the surface, the literal reading. Thus allegory assumes that a text has multiple meanings, though interpreters may differ as to their worth. (Origen, for example, distinguished among literal, moral, and spiritual meanings.) Typically, allegorical interpretation shows little interest in meanings that are historically specific, preferring those that disclose timeless truths. Allegory is often invoked as an interpretive method when an ancient text that is undeniably authoritative has come to seem alien to the cultural sensitivities and intellectual values of a later age. Since the revered text must contain truth (which is often unconsciously equated with the highest and best values of the interpreter’s own time), a method must be employed that will allow those truths to be found in the text. In this manner the Christian allegorists of the Alexandrian school interpreted those aspects of the scriptures that seemed morally offensive, obscure, or simply of little literal interest. Thus Origen could interpret the narrative of the Exodus...
As an allegory of the journey of the soul as it leaves the sensual world (Egypt) and journeys toward the promised land of blessedness (Canaan). Origen was the most sophisticated of the allegorists, and the one who first gave allegory its theoretical foundations. Moreover, he was the first Christian to compose what can properly be called a commentary on a biblical book, a mode of interpretation that flourished in the fourth and fifth centuries.

Despite the prestige that allegorical exegesis enjoyed in some circles, it was also the subject of strong criticism. In part it attracted suspicion because it was the method of interpretation favored by Gnostics. But allegory was also vulnerable to the charge that it was arbitrary and obscure. The strongest critique of the allegorical method favored by the Alexandrian school came from the rival tradition of biblical interpretation associated with the Syrian city of Antioch. Like Alexandria, Antioch was also heir to a long tradition of Hellenistic scholarship. But Antioch was influenced more by Aristotelian traditions and by Jewish rabbinic exegesis. Thus, even though the Antiochene interpreters sought a spiritual meaning in the text, understanding also required, in their view, a grasp of the historical context within which the texts were written, as well as an appreciation of the literal sense of the text. Diophorus of Tarsus (d. ca. 390), for example, sought to arrange the Psalms in historical sequence, using information found internally and in the titles. He understood the Song of Songs as love poetry written by Solomon for the Queen of Sheba.

The most radical and most creative interpreter of the school of Antioch was Bishop Theodore of Mopsuestia (ca. 350–428). Theodore challenged the inspired character of several books of the canon, including Job, Song of Songs, Chronicles, and Ezra-Nehemiah, claiming that they reflected only human wisdom and learning. In reaction, the Second Council of Constantinople, in 553, ordered his exegetical works to be burned. In general, the Antiochene school aroused suspicion because several church leaders judged heretical, most notably Nestorius (d. ca. 451), were associated with it. Despite opposition to the more radical interpreters, however, many of the insights and understandings of the Antiochene approach were popularized by the influential sermon collections of the moderate John Chrysostom (ca. 347–407) and by the manuals of biblical interpretation written by Adrian (425) and Junillus Africanus (550).

The stance of the allegorists and that of the more literal-historical interpreters were not necessarily mutually exclusive. Many interpreters employed both methods. Jerome (ca. 345–420), the translator of the Vulgate, began as an allegorist in the style of Origen but increasingly came under the influence of the Antiochene approach. Even so, he never entirely abandoned allegory in his writings. Similarly, Augustine was troubled by the Manichean use of a literal-historical approach to discredit the Jewish scriptures on the grounds that they contained immoralities. He was unable to embrace Christianity until he saw how the allegorical method could provide a spiritual interpretation for such troubling passages. Like Jerome, however, Augustine moved beyond allegory to a more nuanced position that recognized the place of allegory but required the interpreter to distinguish between passages that can be understood in a literal interpretation and those requiring a figurative one. Moreover, all interpretation must be guided by the rule of faith and the law of love: “If it seems to anyone that he has understood the divine scriptures, or any part of them, in such a way that by that understanding he does not build up that double love of God and neighbor, he has not yet understood” (On Christian Teaching, 1.35.39–36.40).

Examples of early Christian biblical interpretation are also evident well beyond the writings of professional theological exegetes. From the production of visual art, liturgy, and music to the realms of ethics, politics, and legal theory, biblical interpretation in some sense undergirded, was filtered through, and occurred within almost every cultural practice of the Christian movement from its inception until the early modern period. For example, early Christian production of visual art generally depicts biblical narratives, characters, and themes, and as such the artifacts reflect the basic typological and Christological patterns explored by biblical exegetes. While Christian images often reveal common interpretive motifs, at times fresh exegetical thought emerges from creative iconographic juxtapositions. It is clear that Christians employed images exegetically as early as the second century, when Clement of Alexandria (ca. 150–215) exhorted Christians to choose pagan iconographies carefully, presumably in order to attribute biblical themes to the generic motifs. In one classic example, the pagan iconography of the “Good Shepherd” provided an easily recognizable but also inconspicuous mode of presenting the Johannine theme of Christ as the Good Shepherd. Around the year 200 CE, Roman Christians developed the earliest known identifiably Christian art as they began to paint the walls of their newly acquired catacombs. Generally, they juxtaposed elements from a limited catalogue of pagan images, scenes from the Hebrew Bible, and imagery derived from the New Testament. A third-century mosaic in the necropolis underneath St. Peter’s Basilica in Rome depicts a beardless Christ with a cross-nimbus imaged as Helios, the sun god, driving a chariot surrounded by grape vines. Surrounding this figure are an image of a shepherd with a sheep around...
His neck, an image of Jonah emerging from the belly of the fish, an image of fish and fishing lures, and another image of Christ telling Peter to “fish for people” (Matt 4:19). Together, these images offer a complex network of biblical exegesis, systematic theology, and pastoral care.
The pagan theme of the sun-chariot’s daily ascent from the realm of darkness at daybreak recalls Christ’s resurrection and ascension, as does Jonah’s deliverance from the fish’s belly. The good shepherd, as noted above, invokes Christ’s mission to find and care for the lost, while the vines of Dionysius are implicitly reinterpreted as the vine of Christ (John 15). In the funerary context of the catacomb, this program of images offers hope for the deceased in the final Resurrection by depicting biblical themes, characters, and narrative scenes. While extant images from the first few centuries of the Christian era are rare, Christian art quickly became widespread after the imperial sponsorship of Christianity by Constantine the Great in the fourth century.

Similarly, early Christian liturgy relied upon biblical exegesis for the production and justification of its practices while offering interpretations of the Bible within its rites. By the second century, there were well-established manuals for church leadership and liturgy, such as the Syrian Didache; its baptismal liturgy, for example, is a pastiche of biblical texts designed to interpret, legitimize, and actualize the baptismal act. Like the ubiquitous Christian act of writing hymns, liturgy has also proven a fruitful space for reenacting and recontextualizing biblical text, thus offering new meanings for various communities.

THE MIDDLE AGES

During the early Middle Ages scholars of the Bible mainly preserved and transmitted the understandings developed in earlier centuries. In the west most interpreters were no longer able to read Greek, the Irish scholar John Scotus Erigena (ca. 810–ca. 877) being a noteworthy exception. Moreover, there was no significant interchange with Jewish interpreters, such as had been possible at Antioch. The works of Jerome, Augustine, and other patristic writers, however, were widely studied. As in earlier centuries, both literal and allegorical exegesis was practiced. Most commonly, four senses of scripture were recognized: the literal or historical, the allegorical, the anagogical (a mystical sense signifying heaven, the afterlife, or communion with God), and the moral or tropological. Thus “Jerusalem” could signify, literally, the historical city; allegorically, the church; anagogically, the heavenly city; and morally, the human soul. Though no author is consistent and rigorous in their application of all senses to all texts, Pope Gregory I’s Morals in Job (ca. 595) is the most thorough and famous example of the four senses in medieval exegesis. The influence of this four-level interpretive method extended beyond scriptural interpretation; most notably, Dante deliberately constructed his Divine Comedy in order to allow, as far as possible, all four levels of interpretation to be applied to it.

The primary institutional context for the study of the Bible in the early medieval period was the monastery. Among the early monastic scholars the most prominent was the Venerable Bede (ca. 673–725), who composed commentaries and biblical aids as well as his influential Ecclesiastical History. An important impetus to the study of the Bible came from the religious and educational reforms sponsored by the Carolingian monarchs. Charles-magne (ca. 742–814) and his grandson Charles the Bald (d. 877) attracted the best scholars of the day, including Alcuin (ca. 735–804) and John Scotus Erigena (ca. 810–ca. 877), to supervise education at the palace and cathedral schools. The growth of such schools created a demand for resources, and the scholars of the Carolingian renaissance produced an impressive number of biblical manuscripts, annotations and aids to study, commentaries, and historical work. These works were largely digests and compilations of glosses on the biblical text drawn from writings produced in late antiquity by the Latin fathers. The culmination of this type of scholarship was the production of the Glossa ordinaria, compiled by Anselm of Laon (d. 1117) in collaboration with other scholars.

The twelfth and thirteenth centuries saw the beginning of a more creative phase of medieval biblical scholarship, located first in the cathedral schools and subsequently in the universities. One important innovation was the division of the biblical books into chapters, first developed in England by Stephen Langton (d. 1228). (The numbering of the verses, or smaller units within the chapters, was developed in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries by both Jewish and Christian scholars.) This system was used in another innovation, the production of concordances to the Bible, the most influential of which was that prepared by the Dominicans of St. Jacques in Paris, under the supervision of Hugo of St. Cher (ca. 1195–1263). Perhaps the most important of the cathedral schools was that of the Abbey of St. Victor, also in Paris, where a series of influential scholars taught during the twelfth century. The school, which was known for the rigor of study under the direction of its founder, Hugo of St. Victor (d. 1142), fostered both literal and allegorical (or mystical) exegesis. Later teachers tended to emphasize one or the other, Richard of St. Victor (d. 1173) developing allegorical interpretation, and Andrew of St. Victor (d. 1175) emphasizing the careful investigation of the literal and historical sense. Significantly, Andrew knew...
CHRISTIAN INTERPRETATION IN THE PREMODERN ERA

Hebrew and was influenced by Jewish scholars and traditions of Jewish exegesis. During the following centuries an appreciation of the importance of such knowledge became more common among Christian exegeticians of the Bible. Although the presence of significant Jewish communities in the major medieval cities made the study of Hebrew and Jewish exegesis somewhat more accessible, such knowledge did not flourish among Christian biblical scholars until the Renaissance. Greek was still relatively little known at this time, although Robert Grosseteste (ca. 1175–1253) translated several works, including the Testaments of the Twelve Patriarchs, from Greek into Latin.

Along with the development of important schools in the twelfth century, there was also a shift in the form in which biblical study was presented. In contrast to the earlier compendia of glosses, which were organized as a running commentary on the text of the Bible itself, in the twelfth century a different form of commentary developed, one that was organized according to theological topics and issues. This change in literary form both signaled and facilitated a closer relationship between the study of scripture and the development of theological doctrine. The most significant of these works, the Sentences of Peter Lombard (ca. 1100–1160), eventually became the standard theological textbook during the Middle Ages.

The establishment of universities in the thirteenth century marks an important shift in the social location of biblical study. In this context biblical interpretation became more specialized and was drawn even more closely into dialogue with theology and philosophy. Although some scholars continued to engage in allegorical exegesis, both the prominence of Aristotelian thought in the universities and the emphasis on doctrinal theology pushed biblical interpretation more strongly in the direction of literal exegesis. Albertus Magnus (1193–1280) and especially Thomas Aquinas (ca. 1225–1274) were the most eminent of these Aristotelian-influenced scholastic theologians and biblical interpreters. The harvest of this form of literal biblical exegesis can best be appreciated in the Postilla literalis of Nicholas of Lyra (ca. 1270–1349), which covers the entire Bible. Lyra’s knowledge not only of biblical Hebrew, but also of the commentaries of Rashi (1040–1105) and other Jewish scholars (see “Jewish Interpretation in the Premodern Era”), gives his work a linguistic and exegetical precision lacking in many other medieval commentaries.

THE RENAISSANCE AND REFORMATION

The emphasis on original languages and a respect for the role of reason in interpretation, which had already become influential in late medieval scholarship, became the hallmarks of the new humanistic learning of the Renaissance. These values, however, which had previously been invoked in the service of scholastic theology in the Middle Ages, led in some rather different directions in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. The scholar Erasmus (ca. 1466–1536) is something of a transitional figure. Though he used his incomparable humanistic knowledge to produce a new critical edition of the Greek New Testament and drew on classical Roman rhetorical traditions in his interpretation of Ecclesiastes, he also defended allegorical interpretation of scripture and had a high regard for scholastic theology, that of Thomas Aquinas in particular. For the most part, the Christian humanist scholars did not set out to challenge the authority of the church. Yet sometimes the claims of reason brought them into conflict with church authority and traditions. In 1440 Lorenzo Valla (1407–1457) published his Declamation on the Donation of Constantine, in which he used reason to argue that the so-called donation of Constantine, which had underwritten papal authority in Rome, was in fact a forgery. Similarly, he demonstrated that a letter supposedly written by Jesus to Abgar, king of Edessa, which had been considered genuine at least since the fourth century, was in fact spurious. His approach to such ancient documents, and to the New Testament itself in his other writings, anticipated the critical study of the Bible that was to develop in later centuries. The audience for such critical works on the text of the New Testament text was facilitated by the publication of several Greek grammars between 1495 and 1520.

Fueling the explosive growth in Renaissance scholarship was the new availability of texts and critical works made possible by the development of the printing press. Following the publication of Johannes Gutenberg’s Latin Bible in 1454, a wide range of books became available, not only in Latin and vernacular languages but in Greek and Hebrew as well. During the early sixteenth century several polyglot Bibles were published, that is, Bibles in which Greek, Latin, Hebrew, and Aramaic texts of the Bible were printed side by side to facilitate critical comparison.

The characteristic Renaissance interest in ancient languages and texts led some scholars, such as Giovanni Pico della Mirandola (1463–1494), Johannes Reuchlin (1455–1522), and Guillaume Postel (ca. 1510–1581), to explore the esoteric traditions of Jewish kabbalistic mysticism. Postel even translated the Bahir and the Zohar into Latin. These Christian kabbalists drew together elements of Jewish mysticism, Neoplatonic philosophy, Christian theology, and the Renaissance interest in the occult into a spiritual synthesis, which, as one might expect, was condemned by church authorities. Reuchlin, however, can be called the father of Christian Renaissance study of Hebrew. He published an influential Hebrew grammar, based on the work of the medieval Jewish Rabbi David Kimchi (Radak) (see “Jewish Interpretation in the Premodern Era,” p. 2208), and other aids that facilitated the increasing interest in the study of Hebrew by Christians. Reuchlin also played an important role in resisting some attempts by the church to suppress Jewish writings, including the Talmud.

With the Reformation, biblical interpretation increasingly took place within an intense debate about the role of scripture in relation to Christian faith. To a large extent, however, both the early Protestant reformers and the scholars who remained within the Catholic tradition incorporated the new linguistic and philological training in their interpretation of the Bible. Though Martin Luther (1483–1546) was not the first to argue that the Bible is the ultimate authority in matters of doctrine, the Protestant movement is distinctive in insisting that the Bible is the sole foundation for faith, doctrine, and church practices. In their refutation of the Protestants, Catholic scholars also appealed to biblical exegesis in support of the authority of the church and the papacy. Thus in the sixteenth century biblical interpretation reflects both the rich legacy of Renaissance humanism’s linguistic and philological knowledge and a context of highly charged theological argument.

Although Protestant biblical interpreters in general rejected allegory in favor of the literal-historical sense, their interpretation of the Hebrew Bible was usually Christological and typological. Luther, for example, attended both to the literal-historical sense and to the literal-prophetic sense of scripture (i.e., the typological meaning foreshadowed in the text). Thus, since David was considered to be a prophet, the Psalms referred not only to David’s life and circumstances but also to Christ who was to come. Luther’s writings also reflect both continuity and discontinuity with the medieval tradition in his treatment of the tropological or moral meaning of scripture. Traditionally, this concern had been with the way in which the text addressed the nature and practice of the virtue of love. For Luther, the moral meaning is that aspect of the text that has to do with the nurture of faith, that is, trust in God’s promises. Other Protestants, however, such as Zwingli and Bucer, follow Erasmus in understanding the moral meaning of scripture as providing paradigms for human behavior.

The issue of the relation of the two testaments also provoked a variety of responses among Protestant interpreters. Given Luther’s theological distinction between law and gospel, his interpretation tends to posit a significant degree of tension between the testaments. In contrast, many other Protestant theologians saw an essential continuity between the testaments. Henrich Bullinger (1504–1575), for example, treated covenant as a hermeneutical principle, which unifies the scriptures. Before the advent of Christ the sign of the covenant is circumcision; after the advent, baptism. But the covenant is one and the same, the New Testament only presenting it with greater clarity. The nature and extent of the canon of the Old Testament also became an issue of controversy between Protestants and the Roman Catholic Church. Like Jerome before them, the Protestant reformers argued that the church’s Old Testament canon should be that of the Hebrew scriptures, that is, without the Apocrypha. At the Council of Trent (1546) the Roman Catholic church reaffirmed the inspired nature of some of these books, which were termed “deuterocanonical.” The term does not denote a difference in status from the “protaconical” books but signifies that their canonical status was clarified at a second stage. (See the essay “The Canons of the Bible,” p. 2185, and the introductions to individual books among the Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical Books for more details on the canonical status of particular books and the development of the differing canons of the Old Testament among the various Christian communities.)

Concern for historical context and for an understanding of biblical rhetoric was also prominent in early Protestant interpretation. The biblical interpretation of John Calvin (1509–1564), who had legal training, was influenced by Renaissance humanism’s approach to clarifying ancient law by means of an appeal to the original historical contexts and the intentions of the authors. As Calvin observes in the dedicatory preface to his commentary on Romans, “almost [the commentator’s] only task is to unfold the mind of the writer whom he has undertaken to expound.” Calvin’s interpretation thus tends to be contextual rather than atomistic and attends not only to history but also to the cultural institutions and background of biblical texts and to the rhetorical forms in which biblical language expresses itself. Indeed, disagreement over a proper understanding of biblical rhetoric lies at the heart of one of the most important doctrinal disputes within early Protestantism. Luther contended that the word “is” in the biblical phrase “this is my body” (Mt 26.26) is to be interpreted literally, whereas Zwingli (1484–1531) argued that its natural sense must be understood rhetorically as nonliteral, “this signifies my body.” Out of that interpretive dispute emerged two different theological understandings of the Eucharist.

Although Protestant theology’s emphasis on scripture as the sole foundation of belief provided the impetus for intense interpretive activity, Roman Catholic scholars also produced a large amount of biblical scholarship, some provoked by controversies with Protestants and some not. Cardinal Cajetan (Thomas de Vio, 1469–1534) shared several views with Protestants, such as the preference for the Hebrew text over the Vulgate, the advocacy of a shorter canon (excluding the Apocrypha), and a literal form of interpretation. But much of his exegetical work was devoted to demonstrating biblical support for papal authority and traditional church doctrine.

The spread of literacy, the increased availability of translations of the Bible into European languages, and the Protestant emphasis on the sufficiency of scripture alone contributed to the spread of biblical interpretation not only among those trained in theological institutions and having linguistic skills but also among laity with modest training or only a bare literacy. Thus in the sixteenth century and beyond one begins to see an increase in popular interpretations, often of a millenarian slant. Although Luther and the other reformers had believed that the Bible was so clear that all reasonable readers would agree as to its meaning, as matters actually developed the democratization of interpretation led to a bewildering array of readings of scripture, nowhere more so than in England in the late sixteenth century. From the plowmaker Matthew Hamond to the clerk John Hilton, those who claimed that the New Testament was “a mere fable” were seen as a threat to decency and social order. Later, during the English revolution and the period of the Commonwealth (1640–1660), biblical interpretation became a primary mode of political argument among partisans of all factions.

THE SEVENTEENTH AND EIGHTEENTH CENTURIES

At the same time that Protestant orthodoxy was developing a complex and minute exegesis of the Bible in support of various church doctrines, rationalists of diverse theological allegiances were developing ideas, which many saw as challenging traditional understandings of the Bible. Both the new scientific discoveries and those resulting from the exploration of previously unknown lands raised questions about how this new knowledge was to be understood in relation to the Bible. The conflict between the astronomer Galileo Galilei (1564–1642) and the Catholic Church over the heliocentric view of the universe is only the most famous example. The perplexing problem of how to account for the existence of nations and peoples not mentioned by the Bible prompted the French reformer Isaac de la Peyrère (ca. 1596–1676) to suggest that Adam was not in fact the first human but was only the ancestor of the Israelites (The Pre-Adamites . . . By which are prov’d that the first men were created before Adam). At about the same time, along with others the philosopher Thomas Hobbes in Leviathan (1651) questioned Moses’ authorship of the entire Pentateuch and in general emphasized the human mediation between God’s word and the scriptures as they are available to be read in the Bible. The French Catholic scholar Richard Simon (1638–1712), often called the father of modern biblical scholarship, wrote a Critical History of the Old Testament (1678), in which he discussed the various versions of the Bible with respect to their relationship and authority. Empirical in his approach, Simon also denied Moses’ authorship of the Pentateuch and suggested that national archives preserved by prophets and scribes provided the sources from which the biblical books were composed long after the date of the events described in them. A similar rationalist criticism of the Bible was developed by the Jewish philosopher Baruch (Benedict) Spinoza (1632–1677).

Moral criticism of the Bible, which had in part given rise to the allegorical method of interpretation in antiquity, was also practiced. Pierre Bayle (1647–1706), a French Protestant, published a highly influential historical and critical dictionary that contained an article on David widely perceived as scandalous, since it drew attention to the themes of adultery, murder, treachery, and injustice in the story of the “man after God’s own heart” (see 1 Sam 13.14). Both moral and rational criticism of the Bible, including a critique of the claims to miraculous events, is found to varying degrees in the Deists of the eighteenth century, some of the more radical of whom challenged even the resurrection of Christ. In France, Voltaire (1694–1778) popularized some of the more extreme notions concerning the Bible and its claims, and a similar radical stance was taken by the American Thomas Paine (1736–1809).

Although discussion and interpretation of the Bible was conducted by intellectuals of every stripe, as well as at a more popular level, the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries saw an enormous development of technical biblical scholarship, which was almost always related to theological and cultural debates. For instance, the controversy as to the date and origin of the vowel points in the traditional Hebrew text of the Bible was fueled largely by disputes concerning the inspiration of the Bible and the relative reliability of the Hebrew text versus the Septuagint and the Vulgate. The study of text criticism was significantly advanced by the publication of the London Polyglot (1655–1657), which included Hebrew, Greek, Vulgate, Syriac, Ethiopic, Arabic, and Persian versions, the Samaritan Pentateuch, and several Targums, along with a wealth of critical notes and aids. A large number of critical and historically oriented commentaries were published during the seventeenth century.
With the eighteenth century there developed what can be called modern criticism of the Bible. The theory of the composition of the Pentateuch from a number of still identifiable sources, an idea that has been central to modern criticism, was first advanced by French scholar Jean Astruc (1684–1766). Bishop and Oxford professor Robert Lowth (1710–1787) in England developed an analysis of the nature of Hebrew poetry, which is still widely accepted. But it was German scholarship that systematized and gave a distinctively modern character to historical-critical study of the Bible. Two landmarks of this emergent discipline were J. D. Michaelis’s (1717–1791) introduction to the New Testament and J. G. Eichhorn’s (1752–1827) introduction to the Old Testament.

THE INTERPRETATION OF THE BIBLE
FROM THE NINETEENTH TO THE MID-TWENTIETH CENTURIES

THE HISTORICAL-CRITICAL METHOD

The philosophical developments of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries had prompted an approach to the Bible that is often characterized as critical. It was critical not in a negative sense, although that would often seem to be the case, but in the sense that it was free of presuppositions, especially those derived from either theology or tradition. To fully understand the Bible, scholars increasingly adopted an inductive approach, interpreting the Bible in an almost secular way, setting aside received views of its authority and authorship. This critical approach, an outgrowth of attitudes fostered during the Enlightenment, was very much in the spirit of the times and, like other legacies of the Enlightenment, was influenced by larger intellectual currents, such as Romanticism and the theory of evolution.

The overriding goal was historical: to determine what had actually taken place, and to recover the actual persons and events of the Bible as they had been preserved in the various stages of biblical tradition. The nature and development of these stages were to be understood through critical scholarship. This was the aim of “higher criticism,” as distinguished from “lower,” or textual criticism, and this higher criticism was essentially the historical-critical method.

With its many subdisciplines, the historical-critical method dominated biblical interpretation through the mid-twentieth century, and it continues to be influential. The scholars whose work is surveyed in the following pages were immensely learned, often experts in a variety of fields, including philology, textual criticism, comparative literature, and the study of ancient cultures contemporaneous with the biblical traditions. Moreover, also in keeping with the intellectual mood of the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, they were optimistic, in retrospect even overconfident, operating on the assured conviction that with sufficient data and careful analysis of the data an objective, accurate, and complete understanding of the Bible was possible.

SOURCE CRITICISM

The critical study of the Bible had been begun in the seventeenth century by Hobbes, Spinoza, and Richard Simon, and it continued to gain momentum during the Enlightenment. In many respects the conclusions of scholars working on the Hebrew Bible were paralleled by those who worked on the New Testament, and the methods and preoccupations of both were similar to those of classical scholarship. In all three disciplines there was a growing concentration upon history. And scholars in all three disciplines recognized that historical reconstruction needed to begin with a careful analysis of sources.

This was true first of all of the analysis of the Pentateuch into several literary strands. Jean Astruc had proposed in 1753 that the different names used for God in different parts of the book of Genesis were due to different sources that antedated the final composition of the book. Astruc’s insight was elaborated and refined mainly by German scholars, especially W. M. L. de Wette and K. H. Graf, who extended the analysis of sources to the rest of the Pentateuch (and in some cases to the book of Joshua, leading to the term “Hexateuch”; see below).

The results of more than a century of this source criticism were brilliantly synthesized in 1878 by the German Old Testament scholar Julius Wellhausen in his book (Prolegomena to) The History of Israel. Wellhausen’s goal was to write a history of ancient Israel, especially its religion, and he followed an evolutionary model. The religion of Israel, Wellhausen argued, had developed in three stages: a primitive, spontaneous phase in the era before the monarchy; an ethical monotheism expressed especially by the preexilic prophets; and a sterile legalism characteristic of the Second Temple period. To support this reconstruction, he engaged in a careful analysis of the biblical traditions and, drawing especially on the earlier work of de Wette and Graf, gave the classic formulation to what is called the Documentary Hypothesis. According to the Documentary Hypothesis as elaborated by Wellhausen, the Pentateuch was an unreliable source for reconstructing the history of the time periods it narrated, but the traditions that comprised it, identified as J, E, D, and P, were datable and important evidence for the periods in which they were compiled. (See further “Introduction to the Pentateuch,” pp. 3–6.) These “documents” are hypothetical, that is, they do not actually exist, but they are the best explanation of the evidence—the parallels, repetitions, and inconsistencies in the final form of the Pentateuch.

Wellhausen’s historical reconstruction is clearly a product of its time, and it reflects the biases of the late nineteenth century. His view of early Israel as a fresh, undefiled religious spirit has a Romantic flavor, and his characterization of postexilic Judaism as a decline into dead legalism has an anti-Semitic cast. But his formulation of the Documentary Hypothesis became a classic statement, the theory that subsequent scholars up to the present have built upon, accepted, modified, or rejected. Despite initial and continuing conservative opposition, and, in the case of Roman Catholics especially, institutional interdict, it was widely adopted by liberal Protestant scholars and eventually by Roman Catholic and Jewish scholars as well, resulting in a large consensus that is still dominant.

Source criticism was not an end in itself but a method to be used in historical reconstruction. It recognized the inherent complexity of biblical traditions, and attempted to disentangle the prior stages of their development. Among the many significant results of source criticism was the recognition that the book of Isaiah is a composite work. The isolated insights of earlier scholars, including Rabbi Ibn Ezra in the twelfth century, and J. G. Eichhorn and others in the eighteenth, were expanded and elaborated in the commentary on Isaiah by Bernhard Duhm in 1892. The book of Isaiah, Duhm argued, was in effect an anthology spanning several centuries. First Isaiah (chs 1–39) was a product of the preexilic period and was itself a composite, including authentic oracles of the eighth-century BCE prophet Isaiah of Jerusalem, additions to those oracles and biographical materials added by his disciples, and historical narratives largely spliced in from 2 Kings. Chapters 40–55, Deutero-Isaiah or Second Isaiah, were a product of the mid-sixth century BCE, as the historical references in those chapters indicated. And the remainder of the book, chs 56–66, was to be dated a century or more later, despite similarities of language and themes to chs 40–55. In the Romantic spirit, Duhm was motivated to distinguish the genuine words of Isaiah himself, as well as those of the anonymous prophets responsible for the latter two divisions of the book, especially the author of the “Servant Songs” (Isa 42.1–4; 49.1–6; 50.4–9; 52.13–53.12).

Similar preoccupations and approaches characterized the study of the New Testament. Drawing on the work of earlier scholars, especially Simon (again!) and H. S. Reimarus, in 1835 David F. Strauss published his “life of Jesus critically examined,” soon to be translated from German to English by George Eliot, in which he attempted to strip the Gospels of the miraculous and mythical in order to recover the real Jesus. This inaugurated a “quest” for the historical Jesus that continued in the work of Ernst Renan in the mid-nineteenth century and Albert Schweitzer at the beginning of the twentieth, and that remains unfulfilled, as the lack of consensus at the beginning of the twenty-first century demonstrates.

This quest was accompanied by a source-critical analysis of the Synoptic Gospels. While debate about which Gospel was written first was never fully resolved, the literary priority of Mark was argued by a succession of scholars in the nineteenth century. According to this view, held by a majority of New Testament scholars but by no means all, Mark was used as a source by both Matthew and Luke (or, more properly, the authors of the Gospels to whom those names are traditionally given). Many passages in Matthew and Luke other than those based on Mark also share a verbatim correspondence, and another source was hypothesized for them. Known as Q, from the German word Quelle (“source”), it consists almost entirely of sayings of Jesus and, though hypothetical, is the earliest source for the life of Jesus. This “Two-Source Hypothesis” was given classic formulation in English by B. H. Streeter in 1924. (See further “Introduction to the Gospels,” p. 1743.)

Source criticism in the New Testament was also applied to the Gospel of John and the Acts of the Apostles. Careful analysis of the letters attributed to Paul led to the conclusion that some of them, especially the “Pastoral Epistles” (1 and 2 Timothy and Titus), and probably Ephesians and 2 Thessalonians as well, had not been written by Paul himself, and that others (such as 2 Corinthians) may be combinations of two or more originally distinct writings.

THE RECOVERY OF THE ANCIENT WORLD

The recovery of extensive written remains from the ancient Near East, and also to a lesser extent from the classical world, the latter especially in the form of papyri that document ordinary life, coincided with the development of the disciplines of anthropology, sociology, linguistics, and folklore. Both new data and new methods were applied to the biblical communities, resulting in works of extraordinary insight and, in retrospect, often of considerable naïveté. Biblical studies, however labeled, became a subject not just in denominational, seminary curriculums but a discipline recognized in larger university contexts as well, often as part of religious studies or Religionswissenschaft.

The process of recovery began with the decipherment of ancient Egyptian hieroglyphic writing in the early nineteenth century, which was made possible when a member of Napoleon's army discovered the Rosetta Stone in Egypt in 1799. This opened up the vast literature of Egypt, including valuable historical texts that provided synchronisms with biblical data relating especially to Egypt, including valuable historical texts that provided parallels to such biblical genres as love poetry and wisdom literature.

In the mid-nineteenth century, British and French explorers began to unearth hundreds of thousands of cuneiform texts in Mesopotamia, and these too were rapidly deciphered, giving access to the literature and written remains of ancient Babylon, Assyria, and Persia. Like the Egyptian texts, they could often be correlated with biblical history, but their impact on biblical studies was more profound. In 1872 George Smith, working in the British Museum, discovered on one of the tablets that had been sent to London a flood narrative remarkably similar to the account in Genesis. While some took this as a simple historical confirmation of the Flood, it soon became clear that the biblical account was a literary descendant of earlier Mesopotamian accounts.

Further discoveries provided many other parallels between Babylonian and Israelite literature, law, institutions, and beliefs, and in most cases Babylon again appeared to be the source. Sparked by a series of lectures by the German Assyriologist Friedrich Delitzsch in 1902–1904, a heated controversy developed, pitting "Babel" against the Bible. Ultimately many of the simplistic conclusions concerning the priority, and the superiority, of the traditions of "Babel" were rejected, and in retrospect they seem clearly anti-Semitic. But the controversy not only marks the emergence of Assyriology (the study of the cultures of ancient Mesopotamia) as an independent discipline but also established the importance of nonbiblical materials for the understanding of the Bible.

For the study of the New Testament, the most important discovery was that of the Oxyrhynchus Papyri, a large collection of documents dating to the early centuries of the Common Era. Among the thousands of mostly Greek texts excavated between 1897 and 1934 were fragments of very early manuscripts of parts of the New Testament, along with three collections of sayings of Jesus, some of which, though not found in the canonical Gospels, are apparently authentic. The latter were of considerable importance in the debate about the prehistory of the Gospels, that is, the reconstruction of the stages between Jesus himself and the earliest written traditions. The papyri also included hundreds of documents from ordinary life in Roman times, illuminating both the form of Greek used in the New Testament and the social world of its writers and audiences.

FORM CRITICISM

While source criticism became a dominant interpretive method, the influx of nonbiblical data prompted a more nuanced investigation of the prehistory of the written biblical traditions. The pioneer in this work was the German scholar Hermann Gunkel (1862–1932), perhaps the most influential biblical interpreter of the twentieth century. While accepting Wellhausen's analysis as valid, Gunkel incorporated evidence both from Babylonian literature and from comparative folklore to propose a shift in emphasis from history to the history of literature. Prior to the formation of the Pentateuchal "documents," there was discernible a long process of development and transmission of "forms," or genres, which had parallels in nonbiblical sources. They were also vehicles for preserving very ancient traditions. These forms have their own history and chronological and cross-cultural continuity.

Central to the study of these forms, known as "form criticism," was the identification of the Sitz im Leben ("setting in life"), the original and subsequent contexts in which the forms were developed and used. Gunkel first applied form criticism to the book of Genesis in his commentary published in 1901, in which he isolated such forms as saga, legend, taunt, curse, hymn, etiology, and proverb. His studies on the Psalms (1928–1933) were also groundbreaking, setting the terms of the discussion for the rest of the century by his classification of the various genres (hymn, individual and communal laments, individual and communal thanksgivings, royal psalms, wisdom psalms, etc.). Although there is a kind of idealism about the definition of the forms, parallels from outside the Bible confirmed their applicability and enhanced the understanding of the particulars of biblical traditions.

Gunkel had not hesitated to apply his insights to the New Testament, as in his important monograph on creation and chaos as central themes in prophetic and especially apocalyptic literature, including the book of Revelation. Two of his students, Martin Dibelius and Rudolf Bultmann, applied the principles of form criticism more systematically to the Gospels. They refined the definitions of forms such as parables and miracle stories, and Bultmann especially identified similar forms in other ancient sources. Although the question of the historical Jesus was still an issue, New Testament form criticism moved beyond what could be hypothesized about the original setting in the life of Jesus himself and focused more on the role that the forms played in various settings in earliest Christianity.

ARCHAEOLOGY

Serious exploration of the Levant began in the early nineteenth century, and notable advances were made in mapping the region and in identifying ancient sites. In the decades before World War I, extensive and, by the standards of the time, scientific excavations were undertaken by British, German, French, and American archaeologists. In Palestine attention was focused on the major cities of ancient Israel, as Jerusalem, Samaria, Megiddo, Shechem, Jericho, Taanach, and Gezer were all partially excavated. An overriding preoccupation of the excavators was historical, even apologetic: to verify, by independent data, the historicity of biblical traditions.

In the 1920s and 1930s many more projects were initiated, and excavation techniques were improved. Greater accuracy in dating excavated remains was made possible through the refinement of ceramic typology, especially as elaborated by the American scholar W. F. Albright in his excavations at Tell Beit Mirsim. But very little of the vast amount of material that was excavated and published could be related directly to the Bible, and debates often ensued about how to synthesize archaeological and biblical data.

When work resumed after World War II in the 1950s and 1960s, new projects were undertaken and many sites that had been earlier—and fortunately only partially—excavated were re-dug, especially by British, American, and Israeli archaeologists. In part because of the flood of material from periods long before and after biblical times or having little direct relevance to the Bible, archaeology began to develop as an independent discipline, as had already happened in the classical world. More attention was given to what archaeology actually produced, the material culture of the region in various periods, and in some circles there developed a theoretical tension between archaeology and biblical studies, as many earlier archaeologists were also biblical scholars. Now, more and more archaeologists were acquiring interest and expertise in periods and regions not directly relevant to biblical history. The result, by the late twentieth century, was that some archaeologists lacked sufficient expertise to connect what they excavated with the written sources, and many biblical scholars simply ignored the potential contributions of archaeology to the interpretation of the Bible. This was especially true in the case of the New Testament. Apart from continuing efforts since the late nineteenth century to identify sites associated with the life of Jesus, until the 1970s the study of the New Testament was largely restricted to texts, with little attention to the growing body of information about Palestine and the entire eastern Mediterranean world derived from archaeology.

ETHNOGRAPHY, SOCIOLOGY, AND ANTHROPOLOGY

As explorers and archaeologists began to make the ancient Near East known, they also observed those living there in the present. While many of the descriptions published were little more than naïve catalogues of perceived parallels between Arab customs and details of life in biblical times, there were serious works of scholarship, including W. Robertson Smith’s Lectures on the Religion of the Semites (1889) and Gustaf Dalman’s extensive survey of Palestinian social life and customs (Arbeit [work] und Sitte [customs] in Palästina, 1928–39). At the same time, the disciplines of sociology and anthropology were becoming more sophisticated. An early sociological interpretation of the Hebrew Bible was Max Weber’s Ancient Judaism (1917–19), and there were sporadic applications of sociological method to early Christianity as well. Not until the later twentieth century, however, would it become important in biblical interpretation.

Anthropological research had a more immediate impact. Typical of early efforts was the encyclopedic work of James G. Frazer. In The Golden Bough: A Study in Comparative Religion (1890; revised and abridged by Theodor Gaster in 1959) and subsequent works such as Folk-lore in the Old Testament (1919), Frazer organized a staggering amount of data in support of his understanding of the evolution of society from primitive beginnings to civilization. His principal focus was on myth and rituals, especially the essential role of the king in the welfare of the larger society, and he included both the Hebrew Bible and the New Testament in his analysis.

While Frazer’s work was subsequently criticized for its failure to pay sufficient attention to specific cultural contexts and for his cavalier treatment of the data to fit his theories, his influence was considerable. In particular, British and Scandinavian scholars developed and refined his approach, developing what has been characterized as a “myth and ritual” school. The work of Sigmund Mowinckel of Norway is representative. Using form criticism as a method (he had been Gunkel’s student) and the function of the king as an organizing principle, and drawing heavily on Babylonian sources, his study of the Psalms (1921–24) focused on their use in what he suggested was an annual enthronement festival of Yahweh, like the Babylonian New Year festival. He also identified the individual speaker in many of the psalms as the king himself, and found evidence for prophets giving oracular messages to the king or to the community as part of the New Year ceremony. In He That Cometh (1951), Mowinckel examined the reuse of these royal ritual traditions in postexilic Judaism and in the New Testament.

REDACTION CRITICISM

The impression left by source criticism was that the final forms of the Pentateuch and other biblical books or collections for which multiple sources were hypothesized were pedestrian compilations with little literary merit. Beginning in the 1930s, again mainly in Germany, attention began to be paid to the larger units as creative works in their own right. In several influential essays, and in his commentaries on Genesis and Deuteronomy, Gerhard von Rad argued that the Hexateuch (the Pentateuch plus Joshua) was itself a literary form. Its Sitz im Leben was the feast of weeks (see Deut 16.9; 26.1–2), where the key events of the nation’s “salvation history”—the Exodus, the conquest of the land, and the covenant—were recited and reenacted. The Hexateuch for von Rad is the final, literary product of a long development of such narrative creeds, earlier forms of which are found in such texts as Deut 26.5–9; Ps 136; Ex 15.

One reason that von Rad included the book of Joshua in his analysis was that the promise of the land, a central theme especially in J and P, was unfulfilled in the Pentateuch. Martin Noth took another approach. The original conclusion to the Pentateuch, he proposed, had been replaced by a “Deuteronomistic History.” With the book of Deuteronomy as a kind of theological preface, the books of Joshua through 2 Kings comprised a carefully written history of Israel in the promised land. Since 2 Kings ended with the destruction of Jerusalem and the end of Israel’s autonomy in the land, Noth argued that this history was an exilic composition, which explained the catastrophe as the inevitable result of Israel’s failure to live up to the obligations of its covenant with God as detailed in Deuteronomy. Subsequent scholars revised Noth’s views, suggesting that while the final form of the Deuteronomistic History was, as he had suggested, a product of the mid-sixth century BCE, it had its own literary history and had existed in one or more editions during the monarchy before the exile. But his essential insight concerning the underlying unity of the books of Deuteronomy through 2 Kings remained the foundation for subsequent interpretation of the historical books.

Attention to larger units developed in the study of the New Testament as well, beginning in the 1950s. In important commentaries on Matthew and Mark, Günther Bornkamm and Willi Marxsen understood those Gospels as creative literary works, with distinctive theologies and themes. In his study of the theology of Luke, Hans Conzelmann showed how the Gospel of Luke and the book of Acts together formed a carefully composed narrative, with thematic unity provided by an understanding of the life of Jesus as the center of history and Jerusalem as the geographical center of the story. Similar approaches were undertaken for the Gospel of John and the letters of Paul, and for both the Hebrew Bible and the New Testament, redaction criticism’s focus on larger units anticipates the methods of literary criticism and canonical criticism later in the twentieth century.

DISCOVERIES OF TEXTS BETWEEN THE WORLD WARS

The discovery and decipherment of cuneiform texts of ancient Assyria and Babylon during the second half of the nineteenth century had profoundly changed the understanding of the Hebrew Bible. On the historical level, the repeated references especially in Assyrian annals to kings of Israel and Judah and to events mentioned in the Bible enabled the construction of a detailed chronology. But for the most part, connections between the cuneiform texts and biblical traditions were indirect. This is not surprising, given the distance and often the time that separated those Mesopotamian cultures from ancient Israel. And apart from a scattering of inscriptions in Hebrew, Phoenician, Aramaic, and Moabite, there were no significant written remains from Israel itself or its most immediate neighbors. That changed in the 1920s and 1930s, as excavations uncovered more collections of ancient texts, and further decipherment shed light on such groups as the Sumerians, the Hittites, and the Hurrians. While there were seldom direct correlations with the Bible, the tablets from Nuzi in northern Iraq and Mari and Ugarit in northern Syria were especially important in expanding the knowledge of the larger world to which ancient Israel belonged.

In many respects the mythological texts from Ugarit are the most important because of their geographical proximity to ancient Israel and the direct light they shed on the Hebrew Bible. Written in a previously unknown Semitic language belonging to the same subfamily as Hebrew, they are composed in poetry that is often remarkably close in diction and in form to biblical poetry. The myths feature gods and goddesses such as El, Baal, and Asherah, all frequently mentioned in the Bible but hitherto incompletely known, largely because of the biblical writers’ antagonism toward gods other than Yahweh. Moreover, similar motifs—for example, the childless patriarch, the theophany of the storm god, the council of the gods, the sacred mountain—and innumerable smaller details illustrate the shared commonalities between the culture of Israel and those of its neighbors. Despite undeniable chronological and geographical discontinuities, the literary, religious, and institutional traditions of the Levant, including ancient Israel, are best understood as part of a cultural continuum that, allowing for local particularities, is remarkably consistent and pervasive.

THE DEAD SEA SCROLLS

Another discovery that sent scholarship in new directions was that of a cache of manuscripts in caves near Qumran at the northwest corner of the Dead Sea. Over the course of several years, beginning in 1947, the remains of hundreds of manuscripts were discovered, first by local Bedouin and subsequently by archaeologists. Some of the manuscripts were largely intact, including an almost complete scroll of the Hebrew text of the book of Isaiah, and others were preserved only in fragments. Written mostly in Hebrew and Aramaic, with a few in Greek, they are generally agreed to have been a library deposited in the caves for safekeeping during the First Jewish Revolt (66–73 ce) by the inhabitants of the nearby settlement. Most scholars identify these inhabitants as Essenes, one of the major groups within Judaism in the Roman period, according to the first-century ce Jewish historian Josephus. Among many important aspects of the scrolls, three may be highlighted here. First are the manuscripts of the Hebrew Bible, more than a thousand years older than any previously known, giving new impetus to text criticism (see p. 2192). Second is their contribution to the understanding of both Hebrew and Aramaic in the Roman period. And third is the glimpse they provide—especially in what have been termed “sectarian documents,” that is, various community regulations, hymns, eschatological texts, and biblical commentaries (pesharim; see p. 2209)—of one group within Judaism around the turn of the era. What had earlier been oversimplified as a kind of monolithic Judaism is now, on the basis of these texts and other sources reexamined in their light, understood rather as a complex spectrum of various “Judaisms,” one of which was earliest Christianity. And while there are no direct links between the Dead Sea Scrolls and the New Testament, they do reveal a rich and complicated background for the emergence of Christianity as well as for the development of rabbinic Judaism after 70 ce.

THE NAG HAMMADI TEXTS

In 1945 at Nag Hammadi, some 300 mi (500 km) south of Cairo, Egyptian peasants unearthed a large jar containing thirteen codices. Most of the texts contained within these volumes were Christian Gnostic texts, and although written in Coptic many had been translated from Greek. One of the most important was The Gospel of Thomas, a collection of the sayings of Jesus perhaps originally compiled before the end of the first century ce. Fragments of The Gospel of Thomas had earlier been found among the Oxyrhynchus Papyri (see above). Less than half of the sayings attributed to Jesus in this text are paralleled in the New Testament, and the Gospel of Thomas thus provides both an important independent source and an example of how earliest Christian tradition was collected and expanded by a particular writer within a specific community, a process more and more recognized in the study of the canonical Gospels.

CONCLUSION

With few exceptions, until after World War II historical-critical scholarship was engaged in by Protestant scholars. With the promulgation of the papal encyclical Divino Afflante Spiritu in 1943, Roman Catholic scholars began to become practitioners as well. Likewise, both in the United States and in Israel, with the development there of the Hebrew University and later other institutions of higher education, Jewish scholars also made significant contributions. Facilities at major denominational graduate centers increasingly recruited scholars without regard to their religious affiliations. By the mid-twentieth century it was possible to speak of a consensus of interpretation: a general agreement on methods and results that largely transcended national and confessional differences. That consensus was evidenced in important ecumenical endeavors, especially in the United States, including several ongoing translation and commentary projects. In the next several decades that consensus would begin to unravel.

2226 | ESSAYS
CONTEMPORARY METHODS IN BIBLICAL STUDY

In its development during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, biblical criticism was often in conversation with other disciplines, including linguistics, anthropology, the history of religion, sociology, philosophical hermeneutics, and literary aesthetics, as well as with theology. Yet as biblical studies became a discipline in its own right, it developed a set of classical methods and questions that set the parameters for research. These methods were largely concerned with the history of the text and of the cultures that produced the texts. The consensus that these were the relevant questions and the methods by which they should be pursued lasted until well after the middle of the twentieth century. Since the 1970s, however, many biblical scholars have questioned the adequacy of an almost exclusive orientation to questions with a historical focus. Also, in keeping with a trend characteristic of most of the humanities and social sciences, there has been a strong movement toward interdisciplinary conversation. Although it is difficult to give a simple overview of the proliferating approaches to biblical studies since the 1970s, they can be roughly grouped under the categories of literary, social-scientific, and cultural hermeneutical approaches.

LITERARY APPROACHES

A popular appreciation of the narrative art of the Bible has always existed. Its stories were represented in the sculpture and stained-glass windows of medieval churches, and Western literature has been profoundly influenced by its characters, themes, and symbols. In both Judaism and Christianity the reading and retelling of the stories in devotional and liturgical contexts made them deeply familiar. Yet even though biblical Hebrew poetry had been the subject of academic study since the eighteenth century (most notably in Bishop Robert Lowth’s Lectures on the Sacred Poetry of the Hebrews), little attention had been paid to the poetics of biblical narrative. One impetus to the interest in biblical narrative that developed in the 1970s can be traced to a development in American higher education: the creation of departments of religious studies in nondenominational colleges and public universities in the 1960s and 1970s. In such contexts the study of the Bible “as literature” was deemed especially appropriate to a secular curriculum. Such interest was not restricted to scholars in secular contexts, however. In 1968 James Muilenberg, who for much of his career had been a professor at Union Theological Seminary in New York, delivered a presidential address to the Society of Biblical Literature titled “Form Criticism and Beyond.” Here he called for a type of literary-theological approach to the poetry and prose of the Bible, which he referred to as “rhetorical criticism.” Giving further impetus to literary study of the Bible was the work of several scholars of English and comparative literature, who extended their expertise in the analysis of literature to biblical texts. Most prominent were Northrop Frye (The Great Code: The Bible and Literature), Robert Alter (The Art of Biblical Narrative and The Art of Biblical Poetry), and Frank Kermode (The Genesis of Secrecy, a study of the Gospel of Mark). Alter and Kermode later collaborated to edit The Literary Guide to the Bible.

This literary approach differed from historical study in significant ways. Whereas historical study tended to be concerned with the prehistory of the text (oral traditions and written source materials) and with its development through successive redactions, literary study focused on the final form of the text. Whereas historical study was interested in the world referred to by the text, literary study directed its attention to the world constructed in the text. Nevertheless, there were historical dimensions to this early work in biblical literature. Both Alter and Meir Sternberg attempted to isolate distinctive features of ancient Israelite narrative art (e.g., modes of characterization, the use of type-scenes, techniques of repetition, forms of plot development), which were not necessarily the same as the techniques used in modern Western narrative. Similarly, New Testament literary study has included a strong interest in the comparative analysis of Greco-Roman literary genres and techniques and those used in the Gospels, Acts, and early noncanonical Christian literature.

Much of the early literary study of the Bible was influenced by the “New Criticism,” an approach that had dominated Anglo-American literary scholarship from the 1930s through the 1950s. In New Criticism the literary text was considered an autonomous work of art, to be studied independently of its author’s intentions and of the sociopolitical currents of the time in which it was produced. New Criticism was a reaction both to a methodology arising out of the history of literature, in which new literary movements are seen as developing from those of previous eras, and to biographical criticism, which reads literary texts as expressions of the life experiences of the writers. The focus in New Criticism... is rather on the way in which the text itself is structured so as to produce the observed or expected effects and understandings. Thus, the plot, characters, setting, point of view, and other aspects of the story’s rhetoric are analyzed. As the literary study of the Bible was gaining ground, however, rapid changes were taking place in the larger field of literary study, changes that were quickly reflected in biblical studies.

Structuralism was the first of these new movements to make an impact. The origins of structuralism are in the work of the early twentieth-century linguist Ferdinand de Saussure, who attempted to analyze the system of relationships within a language that make acts of speech possible. In particular, he stressed that meanings are produced not so much by simple definition as by a network of contrasts (e.g., a tree is a woody plant that is not a bush or a shrub). The anthropologist Claude Lévi-Strauss argued that symbolic structures within human societies, including their kinship systems and their mythologies, could be analyzed in the same way, as systems of differences structured according to binary oppositions (e.g., life/death; male/female; hunting/farming; outside/inside). In a parallel development A. J. Greimas attempted to use Saussure’s insights to develop a “grammar” of narrative in much the same way as Saussure attempted to develop a grammar of sentences. Biblical scholars, anthropologists, and literary theorists were quick to apply these approaches to the Bible. The mythic narratives and genealogical accounts of Genesis, the symbolic geography of the Gospel narratives, and even the theological vocabulary of Paul offered opportunities for analyzing the patterns of binary opposition that structuralists argued were the key to the meaning of texts.

Even as structuralism was being adapted for the study of biblical literature, its assumptions and claims were being challenged in the wider world of philosophical and literary studies. Structuralism claimed that the binary oppositions that structure human thought are essentially universal and unaffected by culture or history. Though the surface features of texts might vary with different societies and over time, the underlying structures did not. Such claims proved difficult to sustain. Just as structuralism dispensed with history, so it also had no place for the reader in the production of meaning. Structuralism understood itself as a kind of scientific method. Yet different readers regularly reached different understandings of the same text. Finally, although structuralism seemed to lend itself well to myths, folktales, and highly formulaic narratives, it seemed unable to deal with more complex narratives.

Against the focus on a supposedly objective and stable text in narrative criticism and against structuralism’s focus on impersonal and universal codes, reader-response criticism argued for the essential role of the reader in the process of making meaning. Structuralism tended to display its results in terms of charts, an implicitly spatial understanding of the text. But reader-response theory insisted that reading is essentially a temporal affair. In reading, one only gradually gathers information that is progressively organized and reorganized by the reader to produce meaning. Moreover, the text often contains “gaps” that the reader, consciously or unconsciously, fills in (e.g., details concerning characters, aspects of motivation or causality, connections between events). As the reader becomes actively involved in the process of reading, what the reader engages is not simply the issues of plot and character but also matters of norms and values, which the reader may embrace or resist. Reader-response criticism thus accounts for the different understandings of and reactions to the “same” text by different readers by claiming a necessary place for the subjective element in reading. Subjectivity is limited, however, by what the reader’s community considers to be a plausible or implausible inference. Thus it is not so much individual readers as “interpretive communities” who set the parameters according to which interpretation takes place.

Although important reader-response studies of Hebrew Bible texts have been produced, the method found its most enthusiastic reception in the study of the New Testament Gospels. Yet it has been one of the most controversial of methods, challenged by historical critics for neglect of the intentions of the author and the horizon of the original audience, and by postmodern critics for its failure to break decisively with such historical assumptions as the understanding of the text as a stable “object” opposed to the readerly “subject.” One of the consequences of reader-response criticism’s focus on the role of interpretive communities, however, has been a renewed appreciation for the forms of interpretation practiced by Jewish and Christian communities before the rise of modern biblical studies during the Enlightenment. Instead of seeing such traditional readings as naive or simply wrong, interpreters now ask about the assumptions and values that govern the reading practices of Christian typological and allegorical exegesis and of Rabbinic midrash. Midrash in particular has engaged contemporary literary scholars, because some of its interpretive practices bear an intriguing resemblance to forms of postmodern interpretation (for example, the acceptance of multiple, even contradictory, interpretations of the same text, and the interpretation of one text by another without regard to historical influence).

If reader-response criticism represented one reaction to the limitations of traditional narratology and to structuralism, a more pervasive criticism emerged under the rubric of poststructuralism, or deconstruction. This movement, associated with the French philosopher Jacques Derrida, is above all a critique of the metaphysical assumptions of Western philosophy, and only secondarily an analysis of the nature of texts and the interpretive process. Derrida noted the attempt of philosophy to posit a central term (God, reason, the human being) in relation to which all of reality can be organized. This organization characteristically takes place by means of binary oppositions (e.g., rational/irrational, oral/written, presence/absence), in which the first term is accepted as superior to the second. Deconstruction attempts to dismantle such structures in order to show their artificiality and the inevitable ways in which any such structure of thought implicitly “decenters” its central term and undermines itself through internal inconsistency and contradiction. When applied to texts, deconstruction begins with the perception that language is inevitably incomplete and surprisingly fluid. It then analyzes how even a text’s ostensible argument is rendered problematic, if not outright self-contradictory, by extraneous details or slippages in meaning that at first appear peripheral and unimportant. For deconstruction the point of reading is not to restate the meaning intended by the author but to engage the text in creative thought, often by means of punning play with the text. Deconstruction’s very style serves to undermine the binary opposition serious/frivulous, for its aim is in part to uncover the ways in which various forms of thought attempt to inscribe power and privilege.

The perspectives of deconstruction have been combined with other intellectual currents (most notably Freudianism and Marxism) to produce a variety of related approaches that are often referred to comprehensively by the term “postmodernism.” Along with Derrida’s deconstruction, Michel Foucault’s study of the complex nature of power and truth and Fredric Jameson’s neo-Marxist analysis of ideology have been deeply influential on postmodernism in biblical studies. For an overview of these trends as well as other forms of postmodernism, see The Postmodern Bible by The Bible and Culture Collective.

Since one of the features of postmodernism is its tendency to dissolve boundaries, it is scarcely surprising that its characteristic approaches have combined with a wide variety of other impulses within biblical studies, most notably feminist criticism, but also various forms of ideological criticism (see below under CULTURAL HERMENEUTICS). Similarly, postmodern analysis is not restricted to narrative but employed in relation to all sorts of texts. Indeed, the self-conscious study of the literary artistry of the Bible, such a controversial novelty in 1970, has been all but put aside in the rapidly shifting mix of methods and approaches that have been developed alongside the classical forms of biblical interpretation.

SOCIAL-SCIENTIFIC CRITICISM

Social-scientific criticism, another form of biblical criticism that has arisen in more recent years, applies insights and methods from the fields of sociology, anthropology, and ethnography to describe aspects of ancient social life manifested in the biblical texts and to reconstruct the social worlds behind the text. To some extent historical criticism has always had a social dimension, since the objects of its interest included nations, states, social groupings, and religious movements. Yet self-conscious social-scientific investigation, though not unknown in earlier stages of biblical studies, has come into its own since the 1960s.

As early as the Renaissance, students of the Bible sought to make cross-cultural comparisons between ancient Israel and the nations of the ancient Near East. With the development of critical biblical study in the nineteenth century, this interest in cross-cultural study focused particularly on the comparison between Israel and the pre-Islamic Bedouin Arabs, as well as with contemporary Bedouin society, especially in the work of Julius Wellhausen and William Robertson Smith. Similarly, Martin Noth compared Israel’s premonarchical tribal confederacy with ancient Greek tribal leagues. In retrospect, these early attempts at social-scientific analysis were hampered by a lack of rigorous method, by erroneous assumptions about the economic and social organization of ancient Israel, and by an overly static model of ancient culture. More sophisticated was the work of the sociologist Max Weber, whose Ancient Judaism (compiled from lectures given in 1917–19) attempted to incorporate the dimensions of historical and institutional change in his account of the social organization of ancient Israel. Sociological investigation was not as prominent in New Testament studies, although the Chicago school of social analysis (leaders of which were Shailer Mathews and Shirley Jackson Case) did investigate the social location of early Christians and attempted to account for the success of Christianity among Gentiles but not among Jews.

These early attempts at social-scientific criticism were largely displaced by interest in other questions and methods, and for almost forty years little was published in this field. By the 1960s and 1970s, however, interest in it revived. Since the issues posed by Hebrew Bible and New Testament materials are significantly different, each literature will be discussed separately. In studies concentrating on the Hebrew Bible, several areas have proven fruitful.
for analysis. The first issue to be examined, and one still sharply debated, is that of the socioeconomic and political nature of the formation of the Israelite tribal confederation. Social historians rejected the conquest model of Israel's entry into Canaan as it is described in the biblical narrative. Both George Mendenhall and Norman Gottwald argued that Israel's origins were to be sought instead in a peasant revolt against urban Canaanite overlords. The peasant movement was a revolt against the hierarchical socioeconomic structure and developed as a retribalization along egalitarian lines in the central highlands. What differentiated Mendenhall and Gottwald, however, was Gottwald's explicit use of Marxist social theory. Although both of their proposals have been sharply criticized for reliance more on presupposed models than on textual or material evidence, they served to open the question of Israel's origins for fresh investigation. Since the 1970s archaeology has also generated increasing information about social organization, population patterns, domestic architecture, agricultural practices, and trade patterns for the period preceding the monarchy. This information, together with a wider array of possible comparative models for the development of noncentralized peasant societies, has begun to generate new ways of understanding early Israel, though none has yet achieved consensus.

Similarly, attempts to understand the movement from a loose tribal confederation to the eventual formation of royal states has been aided by comparative social analysis. Social anthropologists have documented the development of chieftainships as an intermediate stage between these two forms of social organization. A chiefdom is a hierarchically organized society that lacks the strong central governmental apparatus characteristic of a true state. Though some aspects of the process are still debated, it is now widely thought that Saul's "kingship" and at least the early stages of David's rule should be thought of as chieftainships.

Prophecy is another area of Israel's religious and social life that has proven fruitful for social-scientific analysis. Apart from texts of prophetic oracles recovered from neighboring nations, archaeology does not contribute to this question. Rather, the biblical texts are analyzed in light of sociological models and comparative ethnographic evidence. Though the limited evidence makes many conclusions elusive, it has been possible to clarify the social location of the prophets and their relationship or nonrelationship to established religious institutions and to the monarchy. How a prophet secures legitimation, the role of ecstasy and other phenomena of abnormally heightened consciousness, and the relation of oral and written communication have all been examined in social-scientific perspective. The later development of apocalypticism and the question of its social location—whether it was, for example, an outgrowth of prophecy, a scribal phenomenon, or a movement of the social margins or of the priestly elite—has been debated as the biblical texts are reread in light of apocalyptic and millenarian movements in the medieval and modern periods.

The biblical text also contains significant information about purity laws and kinship and family patterns, topics that lend themselves to comparative social analysis. In the 1960s the anthropologist Mary Douglas pioneered such studies with her analysis of the food laws in Leviticus, interpreting them as a symbolic system for organizing the world and correlating purity laws in general with the social concern for boundaries. More recently the genealogies and ancestral narratives in Genesis, the family laws in Deuteronomy, and the reports on the postexilic community in Ezra–Nehemiah have been investigated in an attempt to discern the basic structures of family organization, as well as changes over time in the patterns of family life. As modern interest in gender constructs and roles has grown, so has the investigation of such issues in ancient Israel. Although the resources are mainly the texts of the Hebrew Bible, attempts have been made to use the findings of archaeology to determine the patterns of life and activity characteristic of males and females in biblical times (see C. Meyers, Discovering Eve: Ancient Israelite Women in Context).

In the field of New Testament, insights from sociology were first used in the 1970s to analyze the nature of the early Christian movement. The anthropological study of millenarian movements and sociological typologies of sects were employed to clarify the dynamics of the Christian communities that emerged in the first two centuries of the era. One of the watersheds in the use of sociological and anthropological perspectives in New Testament studies was the publication of The First Urban Christians by Wayne Meeks, which was a comprehensive attempt to describe the social context and organization of the early Pauline communities. Also significant was the application to biblical texts of cultural anthropological studies of the roles of honor and shame in Mediterranean societies, and the functioning of patron-client forms of social relations. These studies not only illuminated structural aspects of early Christian society and its context but also showed how aspects of discourse and categories of thought were organized in characteristic patterns that reflected these social values and assumptions. In such cases social-scientific and traditional theological investigation of the New Testament may converge, as the latter recognizes the need to understand the meaning and context of key terms by means of social-scientific analysis.

The rich comparative material available from the classical world has facilitated many types of sociologi-
Analysis that was objective, disinterested, and even "scientific." Though biblical theology might make normative claims, even those claims were based on a preliminary act of interpretation that was grounded in objective scholarship. In recent years the claim of classic biblical scholarship to be a quasi-scientific enterprise has been questioned by those who insist that the enterprise of historical criticism of the Bible is unconsciously shaped and informed by cultural assumptions specific to the time and place in which that method was developed. Pure objectivity is an illusion. In the interpretation of texts and cultures there is no "view from nowhere." All interpreters, whether or not they are aware of it, frame their questions and perceive the data from some perspective, which helps to shape their understanding of the text or culture in question. Rather than seeing the influence of the interpreter's social and cultural location as a problem, some have claimed it as a positive value. Thus the term "cultural hermeneutics" serves as an umbrella term for a variety of approaches to biblical interpretation (e.g., liberationist, feminist, postcolonial) in which the social location of the interpreter is not only made explicit but serves as a normative principle in interpretation. The primary categories that have figured in such interpretation are those of class, ethnicity, and gender.

The earliest and most methodologically self-conscious of these approaches is that of Latin American liberation theology, which emerged in the 1960s and 1970s. This approach did not begin as an academic perspective but rather emerged out of the concrete experience of the poor and of those pastors and other religious professionals who lived and worked with them. They insisted that the starting point for reading and interpreting the Bible must not be a stance of "objectivity" but rather the experience of the crushing poverty and oppression of the lowest social classes. Interpreted from the perspective of material poverty, the Bible discloses itself as a text of liberation and serves to further a revolutionary process of emancipation.

Much of the work of liberation hermeneutics took place in the Bible studies of Christian base communities, in which groups of the poor were encouraged to read and interpret the Bible for themselves, with the assistance of a priest or teacher. Although this oral interpretation was seldom recorded, Ernesto Cardenal's The Gospel in Solentiname provides an example. The interpretation developed in the base communities was paralleled by the work of theologians and biblical scholars, who articulated the principles of liberation hermeneutics in a series of important studies (see, especially, L. Boff and C. Boff, Introducing Liberation Theology; and J. Severino Croatto, Biblical Hermeneutics: Toward a Theory of Reading in the Production of Meaning). Liberation theology has tended to place special emphasis on such specific portions of the Bible as the story of the Exodus, the social criticism of the prophets, the figure of Mary (as singer of the Magnificat, with its imagery of social transformation; Lk 1), Jesus’ preaching of the kingdom of God in the Gospels, the depiction of the liberating Christian community in Acts, and the struggle against evil in its imperialist and cosmic guise in the book of Revelation.
CONTEMPORARY METHODS IN BIBLICAL STUDY

In the wake of Latin American liberation hermeneutics, religious communities and academics in the various countries of Africa and Asia have developed analogous forms of biblical interpretation that work from the particular experiences of those nations. A related movement, which is indebted to liberation hermeneutics but which also draws on other sources, is postcolonial hermeneutics (see R. S. Sugirtharajah, ed., Voices from the Margin: Interpreting the Bible in the Third World). As European countries colonized various parts of the globe from the sixteenth to the nineteenth centuries, the Bible was an important aspect of the sometimes forced assimilation of indigenous peoples to European cultural values. The desire of European churches to spread Christianity meant that the Bible, as interpreted by Europeans, accompanied the colonizers. Where conversion took place, the Bible displaced indigenous traditions, even as it buttressed European dominance. In recent years biblical scholars in the Third World (and increasingly in Europe and North America) have examined this complex history and heritage. They have attempted to analyze the roles that the Bible and its interpretation have played in these colonized countries. Not only have the colonizers’ interpretations been examined and critiqued (e.g., the use of the Exodus/Conquest story in North America and South Africa to justify the displacement of the indigenous peoples), but increasingly, attempts have been made to recover the forms of interpretation developed by the newly Christianized indigenous peoples themselves. Elements of “hybrid interpretation,” that is, the mixing of indigenous traditions with Christian biblical narratives, are not only identified but often encouraged as a continuing creative practice. Thus, part of the resistance to the effects of the colonization experience is to read the Bible along with rather than above other religious and cultural traditions.

Within North America several ethnic communities, including Hispanics, Asian Americans, and Native Americans, have also developed self-conscious traditions of biblical interpretation. The earliest and most developed of these is African American biblical hermeneutics. The Bible has played a particularly significant role in the African American community, and popular forms of African American biblical interpretation have been embedded in the songs and sermons of the community for centuries. In the 1960s and 1970s, as the Black Theology movement developed, African American biblical scholars began to turn their attention both to the recovery and analysis of this traditional interpretation and to the development of a critical, academic form of African American biblical interpretation (see C. H. Felder, ed., Stony the Road We Trod: African-American Biblical Interpretation). Afrocentric interpretation has drawn attention to the historical role played by African countries (especially Egypt and Ethiopia) and by Africans in the biblical text. But African American biblical hermeneutics has also attended to texts and issues that have been important to the lives of the African American community: for instance, the Exodus narratives, the place of slavery in Israelite and early Christian reflection, and the preaching of Jesus. African American biblical studies has also been marked by a deep reflection on the nature of interpretation itself, especially the ways in which an oppressed community appropriates for its own liberation a text that also serves as the authorizing document of the society within which its members have been oppressed.

Whereas the various perspectives discussed so far under the rubric of cultural hermeneutics are distinctively Christian, the same cannot be said for feminist biblical hermeneutics. Here, although Christian feminist biblical interpretation emerged slightly earlier, Jewish and Christian feminist interpretation has largely developed in tandem, and the critical conversation between Jewish and Christian feminists has been one of the distinctive features of this movement. In the 1950s and 1960s Protestant seminaries began to admit women in significantly larger numbers than before, followed soon after by an increase in the number of Catholic and Jewish women pursing theological education. The emergence of the women’s movement in the 1960s and its criticism of the role of the Bible in the oppression of women posed a challenge to those who identified themselves as both Christian or Jewish and feminist. One early position, which still continues to be important in the Christian evangelical community, is to affirm that the Bible, when correctly interpreted, affirms women’s full humanity. Other feminists, more critical of the Bible itself, have attempted to expose and analyze the patriarchal elements in the biblical text in order to show how the patriarchal values can be separated from the essentially liberating values that form its primary message. More radical feminists, however, have attempted to show that the biblical traditions are thoroughly and irredeemably antifeminist.

Feminist interpretation of the Bible has embraced a variety of methodologies. The include the approaches of historical-critical and sociological biblical scholarship, since it attempts to recover and reconstruct the historical reality of women’s lives in ancient Israel and in the Greco-Roman world of early Christianity and early Judaism. Some Christian feminists, in an attempt to make a case for the liberating nature of early Christianity, did so in ways that played off the egalitarian message of Jesus against his Jewish background. Jewish feminists challenged the accuracy of the representation of Judaism, and as a result considerably more nuanced pictures of gender relations in both early Christianity and Judaism have been developed.

Not all feminist interpretation has been concerned with historical reconstruction, however. A significant strand of feminism has used literary methods, exploring the ways in which biblical texts construct and represent an image of women that may function in the service of particular ideologies. In many instances this literary approach has involved reading against the grain of the text. For instance, a character whom the text treats as a subsidiary character may become for feminist analysis the central character of the text (e.g., Jephthah’s daughter in Judg 11 or the Levite’s concubine in Judg 19). Of particular concern to feminists has been the issue of women and violence, for many of the biblical texts do represent violence against women, and a smaller but significant number represent engaged women in violence. While much of this literary work has also had a historical focus, in that it has been concerned with how the ancient texts have represented women, increasingly attention has been drawn to what is called cultural studies, i.e., how Western traditions in art and, more recently, film have themselves depicted the biblical representations of women.

Since feminism made women aware of their own particular perspective as women in the process of interpretation, it is not surprising that feminism has also become aware that particular women occupy very different positions in society, depending on their social and economic class and their ethnicity. Consequently, it has become more problematic to refer to a single “feminist” movement, for women of color and Third World women have insisted that gender, class, and ethnicity must all be considered in their complex interrelationships. African American women, for instance, have complicated the Anglo-European interpretation of the Abraham/Sarah narratives by focusing on the character of Hagar—the ethnic outsider, the slave, the surrogate mother—and her role in creating the narrative’s moral complexity. Similarly, Latina, African, and Asian women have taken up the challenge of understanding the ways in which the practices of reading and interpreting the Bible serve to constrain or to emancipate women in their particular social and cultural contexts.

Finally, two different types of theological interpretation of the Bible can also be classified as forms of cultural hermeneutics, since they foreground the community context of the formation and interpretation of the Bible. The first of these is canonical criticism. Though the forms of canonical criticism developed by its two major proponents, Brevard Childs and James Sanders, differ, one can identify common elements. Specifically, canonical criticism is concerned with how scripture’s final form was created within a believing community and how the meanings created by that final form continue to guide the reading practices of the community. The canonical shaping of the Jewish Bible, for instance—which places the Writings in the final position and concludes with the call of 2 Chronicles for the exiles to go up to Jerusalem to rebuild the Temple—tells a different story from that produced by the shaping of the Christian Old Testament, which places the prophets last and concludes with Malachi’s reference to the return of the prophet Elijah to announce the coming Day of the Lord.

In one sense canonical criticism is an extension of historical criticism’s interest in the development of traditions. But in contrast to historical criticism’s tendency to investigate the earliest stages of development, canonical criticism explicitly privileges the latest stage, the canon in its final form. This concern with reading the text of scripture in its final form gives canonical criticism some similarity to the literary approaches of the “New Criticism.” Thus, where historical criticism, reading the book of Isaiah, tries to distinguish which materials come from the eight-century prophet, the sixth-century prophet, and the fifth-century prophet, literary and canonical critics focus on how the final form of the book has created the context within which all of its materials are now to be read, as a movement from judgment to salvation. While canonical criticism’s self-conscious attention to what it means to read scripture as a member of a religious tradition links it with cultural hermeneutics, it also differs from some of the other forms of cultural hermeneutics discussed earlier. Just as those forms of interpretation make repeated reference to the specific experience of the reader as a guide to interpretation, canonical hermeneutics finds the clues to a proper reading in the ways in which the text of scripture was shaped by the believing community at the time its canon was fixed.

Perhaps closer to other forms of cultural hermeneutics is the type of theological interpretation often called “postcritical.” Like canonical criticism, it is a reaction against historical criticism’s inability to articulate the meaning of scripture for a believing community. In contrast to canonical criticism, which focuses on the final stages of the composition of the biblical text and the meaning of the biblical books in that context, postcritical interpretation orients itself to the early interpretive practices of Rabbinic Judaism and patristic Christianity. Thus Rabbinic midrash and Christian allegorical and typological exegesis are reclaimed as valid ways of understanding the biblical texts as scripture. These traditional interpretive practices are also used as patterns for the development of new postcritical ways of reading and interpreting scripture, as one can see in Peter Ochs’s The Return to Scripture in Judaism and Christianity.

In the Christian tradition postcritical interpretation is also deeply influenced by Hans Frei’s The Eclipse of Biblical Narrative and George Lindbeck’s The Nature of Doctrine. Both authors claim that before the rise of historical criticism the normative way of reading scripture in Christianity was as a grand narrative from Genesis to Revelation, with the Old Testament related to the New not only by plot but also by forms of typological interpretation that linked figures and events. Thus scripture does not simply tell a story but is rather a master narrative, that is, a narrative within which persons can live and by means of which they understand reality. The forms of postcritical interpretation that attempt to recover this way of reading scripture are not only self-consciously literary in orientation but also draw on ethnographic models. Lindbeck characterizes his approach as “cultural-linguistic.” That is to say, one learns to enter the world of scripture as one learns to speak a language or to live in another culture. What makes this approach to scripture postcritical and postmodern is that the symbolic worlds of classical Judaism and Christianity are no longer the native worlds even for most believers. Modernity, with its different forms of critical understanding, has displaced them. The retrieval and reappropriation that is the goal of postcritical interpretation occur self-consciously in the shadow of modernity. Moreover, as Lindbeck’s cultural-linguistic analogy suggests, postcritical interpretation is not simply about interpretation but also about participation in the practices of a living religious community shaped by the symbolic world of scripture.

If anything ties together the various strands of newly developing approaches to biblical interpretation, it is a concern for the relationship of language, meaning, and power. More historically oriented literary and social methods increasingly examine the ways in which issues of conflict and access to power can be traced in the texts of the Hebrew Bible and the New Testament. Cultural hermeneutics, though not uninterested in historical reconstruction, also focuses on the ways in which access to the power to interpret the text and construe its meaning serves to empower those who have traditionally been marginalized. And postmodernism has attempted to underscore the ironies of all such interpretive strategies, since in its view a stable and definitive meaning always eludes the interpreter. Yet its very skepticism about any final and objective understanding is what opens up space for a reappropriation of traditional forms of interpretation that attempt to challenge the interpretive power of modernity itself.

THE GEOGRAPHY OF THE BIBLE

The geographical territory encompassed by the Bible (if one includes all identifiable places that are mentioned in it) includes most countries that border the Mediterranean Sea as well as those to its east. The majority of the narratives of the Hebrew Bible and the Apocrypha, as well as the Gospels in the New Testament, are set in that subregion of the Middle East known as the Levant and now governed by Lebanon, Syria, Jordan, Israel, and the Palestinian Authority. Egypt to the southwest, Asia Minor (modern Turkey) to the north, and Mesopotamia (largely modern Iraq) and Persia (Iran) to the northeast are also part of the biblical landscape.

In Mesopotamia—the Greek term for the region between the Euphrates and Tigris Rivers (see color Maps 6 and 14 at the end of this volume)—as in Egypt, urban civilization developed by the fourth millennium BCE in the river valleys that provided the essential water for a region where rainfall was at best seasonal and at worst, especially in the case of Egypt, insufficient for agriculture. But the regular summer flooding of the Nile Valley enabled the early and continuous existence of a remarkably long-lasting culture in Egypt, which because of its proximity to the Middle East was an important player in that region’s history and the locale for several episodes in biblical narrative, most notably the Exodus. In Mesopotamia the inhabitants had harnessed the two rivers to provide, by means of an elaborate irrigation system, sufficient water for agriculture as well as for consumption. The successive imperial powers that originated in Mesopotamia were able to use this productive region as a base for expansion, especially to the west, over which they exercised control throughout most of the first millennium BCE, until the Hellenistic period.
Although surrounded by vast deserts, there is a narrow stretch of land where agriculture can flourish, which extends from the Nile Valley around to the Persian Gulf. The western part of this “fertile crescent,” the Levant, has the same environment as much of the rest of the region adjacent to the Mediterranean, which today as for the last several millennia is characterized by almost ideal growing conditions for grapes and olives and for raising sheep and goats; grains and legumes and other fruits can also be grown in much of the region. Its climate is moderate, without excessively high or low temperatures for the most part, and with abundant rainfall that occurs mainly during the winter months. Jerusalem, for example, receives on average about 22 in (550 mm) of rain annually, most of it falling between November and February, with January being the rainiest month. Higher elevations to the north receive still more rainfall, and the southern and easternmost regions considerably less.

Within the Levant itself, the primary focus of biblical narratives, there is a wide variety of environments, the result of the geological substructure of the region, which presents dramatic changes in a relatively small area. Moving from west to east, the Mediterranean coast is occupied by a coastal plain that is about 15 mi (25 km) wide in the south but narrows as one moves north. It is interrupted by Mount Carmel, which juts into it, and virtually disappears in northern Israel and Lebanon. The coast itself has several excellent harbors in the north, from which the Canaanites and their successors the Phoenicians conducted a flourishing maritime trade. Farther south the coast is relatively even, and there are few natural harbors. Phoenician influence eventually extended to such port cities as Acco, Dor, Joppa, and Ashkelon, and in the late first century Herod the Great constructed an impressive artificial harbor at Caesarea. Along the coastal plain, which lies 210 m (700 ft) below sea level, with a semitropical climate that produces lush vegetation, even though because of its low elevation it itself is about 12 mi (20 km) wide and is entirely below sea level, the region was a center of resistance against the Romans during the First Jewish Revolt of 66–73 CE.

To the north of the Jezreel Valley lies Galilee. Because of its abundant springs, Galilee was dotted by settlements from prehistoric times, but it plays little role in biblical narratives until the end of the first millennium BCE, when it is the setting both for some of the campaigns of the Maccabees and, in the early first century CE, of the ministry of Jesus in the Gospels.

Just east of this central mountainous region is the Rift Valley. This major depression in the earth’s crust extends from southern Turkey into East Africa; in Israel and Jordan it is almost entirely below sea level. Included in it are the Huleh Basin in northern Galilee, 230 ft (70 m) above sea level, where the site of Hazor was a major fortified city from early in the second millennium BCE until its destruction by the Assyrians in 732 BCE. Some 12 mi (20 km) south of Lake Huleh is the Sea of Chinnereth, or the Sea of Galilee (also called the Sea of Tiberias), a large freshwater lake about 12 mi (20 km) long that fills the valley. It lies 210 m (700 ft) below sea level, and is fed by the Jordan River, which flows into it from the north. It is habitat to nearly two dozen species of fish, and the fishing industry has been an important part of the local economy since prehistoric times. Many of the events narrated in the Gospels are set in the many towns and cities near the lake; the region was a center of resistance against the Romans during the First Jewish Revolt of 66–73 CE.

The Jordan River continues its flow south from the Sea of Galilee 65 mi (105 km) to the Dead Sea. The valley itself is about 12 mi (20 km) wide and is entirely below sea level, with a semitropical climate that produces lush vegetation, even though because of its low elevation it receives relatively little rain. Important cities in the valley include Beth-shan (later Scythopolis) in the north and Jericho in the south. The valley was another important north-south route, especially during the Roman period, when Jews often avoided the district controlled by the Samaritans between Galilee and Judea.
The Dead Sea, lying 1,300 ft (400 m) below sea level, is the lowest point on the land mass of the earth. Because of evaporation due to high temperatures (a record 124°F [51°C] was measured here), the composition of the water is about 25 percent salt and other minerals, making organic life impossible and giving this lake its ancient name, “the salt sea” (Num 34.3,12; NRSV “Dead Sea”). The desolate region that surrounds it is the narrative setting for the legendary cities of Sodom and Gomorrah. On its western shore are Qumran, where the Dead Sea Scrolls were found, and Masada, a palace constructed by Herod that was the last Jewish outpost to be captured in the First Jewish Revolt.

East of the Rift Valley there is a rapid rise to the relatively level Transjordanian plateau to the east, with the elevation of modern Amman (ancient Rabbah, later Philadelphia) at ca. 2,700 ft (820 m) about average. This region also receives sufficient rainfall to sustain agriculture and, moreover, is watered by two tributaries of the Jordan, the Yarmuk and the Jabbok, and by the Arnon, which flows into the Dead Sea. The northern part of the plateau, biblical Bashan, was famous for its cattle and for its oak forests, and in the Hellenistic and Roman periods was the location of several of the cities of the Decapolis. Traversing the Transjordanian plateau from south to north is another major route, called in the Bible the “King’s Highway” (Num 20.17), used throughout antiquity as a conduit for the incense and spice trade from Arabia to Damascus. East of the plateau is a vast desert region, a continuation of the Arabian desert that extends northward to the Euphrates Valley, and thus limits the Fertile Crescent on both east and west. Apart from a few oases, especially Tadmor (later Palmyra) northeast of Damascus, this desert was mostly uninhabited in historic times.

South of the hill country of Judah lies the Negeb, a region of limited rainfall and hence marginal agriculture. The city of Beer-sheba is located in the extreme northern Negeb, just south of the Judean hill country. The Negeb merges into the Sinai peninsula, which is formed by the two northern arms of the Red Sea, separating the Sinai from the North African desert to its west and the Arabian desert to its east.

The small size of this region is out of proportion to its importance in ancient times and to the importance of the biblical texts which are set in it. West of the Jordan, the traditional limits of ancient Israel were Dan in the north and Beer-sheba in the south, separated by a distance of about 150 mi (240 km). Between these two cities, and between the Mediterranean and the Rift Valley, is a region with an area approximately the same as that of the state of Vermont. From another perspective, Jerusalem is about 35 mi (55 km) east of the Mediterranean and 16 mi (25 km) west of the Dead Sea. In the right conditions, both bodies of water are visible from Jerusalem’s hills.

CULTURAL CONTEXTS
THE ANCIENT NEAR EAST AND ANCIENT ISRAEL TO THE MID-FIRST MILLENNIUM BCE

BEGINNINGS
By the time Israel appeared on the stage of the ancient Near East, civilization and the patterns of empires and of the larger shared culture of the Levant were already well established. Before the end of the fourth millennium BCE, full urbanization had developed in the great river valleys of Egypt and Mesopotamia. The development of sophisticated technology to exploit the flooding of the Nile and to channel the waters of the Euphrates and Tigris enabled the production of regular food supplies and led to regional hegemonies. In Egypt, centered in the Nile Valley and oriented according to the south-to-north direction of the Nile’s flow, this culminated in the unification of Upper (southern) and Lower (northern) Egypt at the beginning of the Early Dynastic Period toward the end of the fourth millennium. In southern Mesopotamia the kings of Sumer ruled that region from a succession of dominant city-states beginning at about the same time.

The stages that preceded urbanization are prehistoric in the sense that they antedate the development of writing. Archaeologists have been able to trace the slow, and often independent, progress from hunter-gatherer economies throughout the Near East to stable cultures that relied on domesticated crops and animals for their sustenance. Dependable supplies of food led to increases of population and eventually to competition for resources. These factors combined to necessitate specialization of tasks, centralized control, and record-keeping. For these purposes, writing was invented, again toward the end of the fourth millennium and, once introduced, was widely adopted (although using different systems) in Egypt and Mesopotamia. By 3000 BCE, then, written history may be said to have begun.

One result of more than two centuries of discovery, excavation, and decipherment of ancient texts is that a detailed chronology of the ancient Near East has been established. While there are occasional gaps in the sequence of rulers for Egypt and for the various Mesopotamian city-states, those sequences are relatively complete. For regions peripheral to the centers of power the historical record is more spotty, but still substantial. Allowing for minor scholarly disagreements, the chronology is secure and provides a framework for the history of the entire ancient Near East, including Israel. Although there remain some small groups of undeciphered texts, including a few in what is apparently the Philistine language, and although much of cuneiform literature is still underground, it is unlikely that new discoveries will require substantial revision of our current understanding of the essential chronology of the ancient Near East.

Nor is the knowledge of the historical record restricted to kings and princes. Hundreds of thousands of nonelite texts have been found. These are not great myths and royal inscriptions but mundane business and commercial records, which shed valuable light on the lives of ordinary men and women and have begun to make possible a reconstruction of the social world of the ancient Near East.

Ancient cultures were as intrigued as we are by beginnings, and they constructed elaborate myths to explain their own prehistory. The establishment of the natural and social orders is typically presented in these myths as the work of a deity, usually the principal god or goddess of the political entity in which they were written. Both Egyptian and Mesopotamian literatures have many such creation myths, features of which have parallels in biblical traditions. Like their more powerful neighbors to the southwest and northeast, the ancient Israelites had their own accounts of origins, some of which were ultimately collected and edited in the book of Genesis. The early chapters of Genesis deal with prehistory and are largely mythical. In these Israelite expressions of the origins of the world, of society, and of civilization, the principal agent is the god of Israel. And although intended as the prologue to a larger historical narrative, they are not historical in any modern sense; that is, they do not accurately represent what the archaeological record shows to have taken place, whether in terms of chronology, or the origin of species, or a universal flood.

Egypt and Mesopotamia have their own complex histories during the third millennium, now relatively well known thanks to textual and archaeological data. In the Levant this is the period known as the Early Bronze Age, when northern Syria was largely in the orbit of Mesopotamia, and Egypt exercised direct control over southern Canaan. For complex reasons not fully understood, toward the end of the third millennium Egypt experienced some internal disruption, reflected in the decline of city-states in southern Canaan but not in Syria farther to the north. By 2000 BCE, however, centralized control had been reestablished, and the textual and artificial evidence is abundant. Trade flourished, as is indicated by both the archaeological record and commercial and diplomatic correspondence among larger urban centers, and between them and Mesopotamia and Egypt. The Levant was spanned by a cultural continuum, with Syria and northern Canaan being more closely linked with Mesopotamia, and southern Canaan with Egypt. Canaan itself had a relatively homogeneous culture, and its inhabitants, especially in rural and village settings, went about their lives with relatively few changes despite the struggles of the urban centers with each other. From as far back as the end of the fourth millennium, and into the first, there appears to have been continuity of population, whose patterns of material culture develop rather than being replaced by successive waves of invaders, as earlier historical reconstructions suggested.

It is in this larger context that Israel placed its own beginnings, centered on the lives of four generations of ancestors, the families of Abraham and Sarah, of Isaac and Rebekah, and of Jacob and Leah, Rachel, Bilhah, and Zilpah, and their offspring.

THE HISTORICITY OF THE ANCESTRAL NARRATIVES IN GENESIS

In the biblical account of the origins of Israel, narratives concerning Israel’s ancestors in Gen 12–50 follow the mythic material in chs 1–11. The chronology of the narratives themselves is set by the biblical writers in the early second millennium BCE, but there are no direct connections between the biblical traditions and nonbiblical sources. No person or event known from Egyptian, Mesopotamian, or other sources is even mentioned in the biblical narrative. At the relatively few points where the Bible does name rulers (as in Gen 14; 20.2; 26.8), none of them are found in any nonbiblical sources. Moreover, at many points in the narrative the Bible is tantalizingly vague. If the biblical writers had just named, for example, the pharaoh who took Sarah into his house (Gen 12.15), or the pharaoh in whose court Joseph rose to power (Gen 41), we would know when the biblical writers thought those events took place, and could correlate them with Egyptian chronology.

The biblical narratives themselves are the result of a lengthy and complicated process of formation, transmission, and editing (see “Introduction to the Pentateuch,” p. 3). Although the reconstruction of that process is hypothetical, there is no doubt that the process itself has caused the inclusion of many anachronisms. These reflect the times when the transmission and editing took place rather than the times in which the narratives are presumably set.

As a result of these factors, not surprisingly, scholars are divided on the question of historicity, with proposed dates for the ancestors of Israel, if in fact they even existed, spanning the entire second millennium BCE. A cautious positive assessment would be at best a convergence of possibilities. Allowing for anachronisms, the data are not inconsistent with the Middle to Late Bronze Ages (ca. 2000–1200), with some clues pointing to earlier rather than later in that time span. These clues are admittedly indirect, and include the forms of personal names used and the identification of the god of the ancestors as El (see Ex 6.3), also known in texts from Ugarit in northwest Syria as the head of the Canaanite pantheon from Ugarit. The account of Joseph’s elevation to a position of prominence in the Egyptian court is not incompatible with the rise to power of the Hyksos, the Fifteenth Dynasty rulers of Semitic origin who controlled much of Lower Egypt at the end of the Middle Bronze Age (ca. 1650–1550).

Yet most of the details of the lives of the ancestors of Israel, both as pastoral seminomads and as periodically migrating to Egypt, fit not only the mid-second millennium but other times as well. Biblical writings probably do preserve some authentic historical memories, but these have been so refracted by the processes of transmission and the idealization of the ancestors that it is impossible to designate any of the individuals mentioned in Genesis as historical or to establish anything resembling a precise chronology.

THE HISTORICITY OF THE EXODUS FROM EGYPT

As with the ancestral narratives in Genesis, there is no direct connection between biblical traditions and other ancient sources. Egyptian records contain no mention of the major individuals and events of the narrative in Ex 1–15: Moses, Aaron, the plagues, and the defeat of the Egyptian army at the sea are completely absent from the extensive documentation we have for ancient Egypt. Again, the biblical sources are frustratingly unspecific. Neither the pharaoh “who did not know Joseph” (Ex 1.8) nor the pharaoh of the Exodus itself (Ex 5–15) is named. The only precise detail in the narrative is the store cities named in Ex 11.11, but their precise location and the dates when they were founded and occupied are uncertain, and their inclusion could also be anachronistic. In addition, biblical chronology is both vague and inconsistent. Moreover, as with the ancestral narratives in Gen 12–50, the narrative has been shaped by centuries of transmission and redaction. Finally, although the importance of the Exodus is evident from the amount of space devoted to the generation of the Exodus (the books of Exodus through Deuteronomy), the narrative framework was supplemented by the attachment of large chunks of legal and ritual material from subsequent periods. Once again, then, it is hardly surprising that scholars have divergent views about the date and even the historicity of the Exodus and of its principal characters. And, again, we do best to speak of a convergence of probabilities based on indirect evidence.

The first fixed datum, one of great importance, is a victory stele of Pharaoh Merneptah (1213–1203). In it he claims to have defeated various enemies in Canaan, including the identifiable cities of Gezer, Yanoam, and Ashkelon, and in the same geographical region, a group identified as Israel. Whether the victory celebrated on the stele is as complete as claimed, it is clear that by the end of the thirteenth century BCE the Egyptians knew of the existence of a geopolitical entity called Israel in the land of Canaan. Thus, the Exodus, or some movement of Hebrews out of Egypt, and their entry into Canaan, where they formed at least part of the group that called itself Israel, must have occurred before that date.

The biblical narrative is composite, and when critically analyzed suggests that what the Bible presents as a single episode may in fact have been several, and that more than one group of “Hebrews” eventually moved from Egypt to Canaan, probably entering it at several different places. Most of the details of the account of the forced labor of the Hebrews and of the glimpses of the Egyptian court that we get in the narratives would fit almost any period in ancient Egyptian history.

A majority of modern scholars, but by no means all, date the central episode, associated with Moses, to the thirteenth century, during the reign of Rameses II (1279–1213). An earlier date, toward the beginning of the Late Bronze Age, would link the Exodus with the expulsion of the Hyksos Dynasties from Egypt in the mid-sixteenth century and better fits the chronology in the biblical text, which dates the Exodus to 480 years prior to the construction of the Solomonic Temple in the mid-tenth century (1 Kings 6:1). This correlation was first proposed by the first-century CE Jewish historian Josephus, and has many modern adherents. Among the arguments against it is the absence of any mention of Israel in the land of Canaan before the Merneptah inscription. This is especially true in the case of the Amarna Letters, which are diplomatic correspondence from the fourteenth century between the Egyptian court and the rulers of city-states in Canaan. Furthermore, the biblical accounts of the period after the entry into the land found in the books of Joshua and Judges (see further below) contain no hint of Egyptian presence in the land, although both archaeological and written sources indicate that it was significant throughout the Late Bronze Age. It thus seems more probable to most current scholars that the Exodus took place during the thirteenth century.

That some Exodus took place is a responsible inference, given the persistence of the Exodus tradition in the Bible and its presence in the earliest biblical poetry (notably Ex 15), and some smaller details, such as the Egyptian names of Moses, Aaron, and Phinehas. The event must have involved fewer people than the exaggerated biblical numbers (see Ex 12.37) indicate, and may have constituted little more than the escape of a relatively small group of Hebrews from forced labor in the eastern Nile delta, most likely in the thirteenth century BCE. Given the lack of historical data it is impossible to say more.

That group, whatever its size, interpreted its escape as the direct intervention of the deity Yahweh on its behalf, to be celebrated in hymns and magnified in importance as it was told and retold. When the group eventually entered Canaan, at a time when there was no centralized power to oppose it, it joined with others and eventually became the twelve-tribe confederation of Israel.

THE EARLY HISTORY OF ISRAEL IN THE LAND OF CANAAN

Perhaps no period in the history of Israel is more controversial than the first two centuries of the Iron Age. The beginning and end of this era are framed by two synchronisms: the mention of Israel in the Merneptah Stele in the late thirteenth century (see above), and the campaign of Pharaoh Shishak in the southern Levant in 925 (see below), an event documented both in Egyptian sources and in the Bible. During the intervening three centuries, according to the chronology accepted by the majority of scholars, Israel developed from a loose confederation of tribes into a relatively stable dynastic monarchy. But of the principal events and individuals that figure in biblical narratives, none occur in other sources. Once more, a historical reconstruction must be inferential.

One reconstruction of the beginning of this period that was dominant from the early to the mid-twentieth century is that of conquest. The book of Joshua describes how the large group of Israelites crossed the Jordan under the leadership of Joshua and, in a series of swift and relentless campaigns, defeated the kings of the major Canaanite cities and annihilated most of the indigenous population. This view seemed to be confirmed by the presence of destruction layers at key sites, all dated to the very end of the Late Bronze Age.

Reexcavation of many of those sites and more refined ceramic chronology, however, made it clear that some of the sites had not in fact been occupied at that time, and that the destructions were not all contemporaneous. Moreover, the opening chapters of the book of Judges presents a very different picture. While some Israelite tribes were apparently successful in defeating their Canaanite neighbors, many others coexisted alongside them. This is apparently confirmed even in the book of Joshua, where such Canaanite groups as the family of Rahab (Josh 6.25) and the Gibeonites (Josh 9) were incorporated into Israel. Thus the conquest model has largely been abandoned by scholars, but no other reconstruction has gained general acceptance.

One plausible scenario is to combine elements of various models to suggest that Israel as we know it emerged in the land of Canaan and was made up of diverse groups. One of these was the Exodus group, whose allegiance to the god who had brought them out of Egypt, Yahweh, would become the central religious tenet of the confederation. They were joined by others, some who were apparently their kin who had never gone down to Egypt, and some who may have been Canaanites disaffected from the centers of power. These disparate elements united in a confederation or league, whose primary principles of sole worship of Yahweh and mutual support were expressed in a social compact or covenant. The elements are called tribes, and they are associated with specific sub-regions in the land. While the number of twelve tribes is constant, both the names of the tribes and the territories with which they were associated shifted in response to historical vicissitudes. The religious symbol of the confederation was a movable shrine, the ark of the covenant, which seems to have been based at different tribal centers at different times. The confederation was decentralized, with no overarching authority, and the tribes were relatively independent. In time of crisis, however, tribes were expected to come to the assistance of a beleaguered member, as in the very ancient poem in Judg 5, or to punish one of their own for breach of the compact, as in the account of the Benjaminite war in Judg 19–21. In situations like these a volunteer militia was mustered.

This reconstruction takes into account a variety of biblical data that are embedded in a later historical work, the Deuteronomistic History (see “Introduction to the Historical Books,” p. 313). It also incorporates recent archaeological evidence, including both significant elements of cultural continuity between the Late Bronze Age and the Iron Age, and the proliferation of small rural settlements in the hill country both west and east of the Jordan. Not all of these settlements would have been Israelite, nor would tribal territory necessarily entail complete control. Several important urban centers remained outside the confederation, and Israel did not achieve total control of the promised land until the end of the eleventh century at the earliest.

At the beginning of the Iron Age (ca. 1200 BCE), shortly after the likely date for the Exodus, another group had arrived in Canaan. These were the Philistines, one component of the “Sea Peoples” well documented in Egyptian sources and in the archaeological record. Of Aegean origin, they had repeatedly failed in their attempts to invade Egypt, and one or more of these Sea Peoples, including the Philistines, settled in Canaan. According to the biblical account, they formed a pentapolis in the five cities of Gaza, Ashkelon, Ashdod, Gath, and Ekron, and the four of these cities that have been securely identified (Gath is the exception) show a remarkably homogenous material culture at this time.

The broad outline of the biblical account, in Judg 13–16 (the Samson stories) and in 1 and 2 Samuel (the stories of Samuel, Saul, and David), and the archaeological record are in considerable agreement. The Philistines had a superior technology, especially in metallurgy (see 1 Sam 13.20) and military hardware, and a professional standing army. By the mid-eleventh century they had considerably expanded their territory to the north and east, and their presence is evident at important centers beyond it, including Beth-shan in the Jordan Valley, and at military outposts in the heart of Judah, the dominant southern tribe, and in the north as well. The Philistines and the Israelites were thus on a collision course, both vying for control of the same region, and Israel’s survival was at stake.

THE UNITED MONARCHY (CA. 1020—928 BCE)

The emergence of Israel as a nation-state is part of a larger pattern of the development of regional geopolitical and ethnic entities throughout the region, such as those of the Edomites, Moabites, and Ammonites in Transjordan, the Arameans in Damascus and other centers in central and northern Syria, and the Phoenicians in Tyre. For this development there is both archaeological and scattered written evidence. In the case of Israel, the major source is the Bible itself, especially the narrative of the Deuteronomistic Historians in 1 and 2 Samuel and 1 Kings 1–11. Judging from these sources, at least in part because of the Philistine threat, toward the end of the eleventh century Israel profoundly changed its form of government from a loose confederation of tribes to a monarchy, according to the terminology of the biblical writers. The first ruler, Saul, seems to have been more a military chief than a full-fledged king. And despite initial successes, he was unable to check the Philistine advance and died in a battle with them deep in Israel’s territory in the Jezreel Valley. He was succeeded by a former commander in his army, David, who moved swiftly to contain the Philistines within their original territory and to unite Israel around himself and a newly chosen capital, Jerusalem.

Biblical historians describe additional military successes, which enabled David, and his son and successor Solomon, to subject kingdoms adjacent to Israel to vassal status, including the Edomites, the Moabites, and the Ammonites in Transjordan and the Arameans in Damascus. Whether the extent of the territory controlled by David and Solomon is as large as biblical sources suggest is questionable. Clearly the biblical historians have magnified the period of the United Monarchy, the reigns of David and Solomon, viewing them in many respects as an ideal age, made possible by divine grant. Underlying the sometimes hyperbolic biblical grant, however, is authentic historical memory of increasing centralized control and concomitant administrative complexity, a picture indirectly confirmed by the archaeological record. When textual and archaeological data are added to the synchronisms between the Israelite monarchy and those of its neighbors, beginning in the tenth century, there is little doubt that the outlines of the biblical narrative are essentially correct.

The most important of these synchronisms comes just after the death of Solomon. The Egyptian pharaoh Shishak (Sheshonq I) undertook a campaign in Western Asia in 925, a date based on established Egyptian chronology. Mentioned in 1 Kings 14.25–26 (cf. 2 Chr 12.2–9), this campaign is further documented in Egyptian sources and is confirmed by destruction layers at key cities in Israel. This synchronism is the basis for the chronology of the first three kings of Israel, Saul (ca. 1025–1005), David (1005–965), and Solomon (968–928, allowing for a coregency with David at the beginning of his reign).

To be sure, the biblical account of the reigns of these three kings, found in 1 and 2 Samuel and 1 Kings 1–11, is shaped by theological concerns and also displays a pervading interest in the characters of the narrative—the tragically inadequate Saul, the heroic David, the ambitious but flawed Solomon—and in the intrigues of the royal court. But it is also significantly different from narratives about earlier periods in Israel’s history. Divine intervention is minimal, with most events taking place largely on the human plane. Moreover, a careful reading of the biblical text discloses archival and other details that can be correlated with the archaeological record and are consistent with the framework of events presupposed by the narrative. Thus, the skepticism of some modern historians, who argue that the biblical accounts of the United Monarchy are fictional retrospections from a later time, seems unwarranted.

David also seems to have initiated the transformation of the monarchy into a dynastic kingship, which, consistent with other Near Eastern models, was promulgated as the result of divine choice. With the establishment of the monarchy came social and religious innovation. The older structures of the decentralized premonarchic confederation were now coopted by royal institutions. The ark of the covenant was enshrined in the Temple in Jerusalem built by Solomon, providing in effect divine sanction for the monarchy. Priests became royal appointees, and there was a growing movement toward centralization of worship in the capital. Yet this centralized administration formed a kind of overlay, a veneer, on the social systems of the nation as a whole. Individuals still identified themselves as members of a family, clan, and tribe, and disputes between them were usually settled at the local level. Apart from the requirement of paying taxes and providing personnel for royal projects and for the army, life in the villages probably proceeded much as it had for centuries.

The establishment of the monarchy, however, had entailed the formation of an elite, wealthy class. Life in the capital of Jerusalem and, after the split of the kingdom into two, in the northern capital of Samaria as well, was characterized by conspicuous consumption. This is evident in the accounts of Solomon’s court (1 Kings 4.22–28; 10.14–22), and in the description of the Temple and royal palace complex he constructed (1 Kings 6–7). That the extravagances documented in these accounts are not entirely an exaggeration is evident from archaeological data at Samaria and at royal cities such as Megiddo, Hazor, Gezer, and Dan. With the concentration of political power in the hands of a ruling aristocracy came abuse. One of the constants of the biblical traditions is that the older premonarchic tradition of covenant was still binding, a tradition that commanded not only exclusive worship of Yahweh but also fair treatment of every Israelite.

THE DIVIDED MONARCHIES (CA. 928 TO THE LATE SEVENTH CENTURY BCE)

The union of north and south had been fragile, even during the United Monarchy, and it disintegrated at Solomon’s death. The reason implied in 1 Kings 12 is the northerners’ anger at the cost of the extravagances of the capital, and this must have been part of the motivation. Solomon’s son and successor Rehoboam was unable to gain the allegiance of the ten northern tribes, who seceded and formed a separate kingdom. This inaugurates the period of the Divided Monarchy, the two kingdoms of Israel in the north and Judah in the south. The dynasty that David had established remained in power in Judah for nearly four centuries, while Israel was ruled by a succession of royal families, many of whose rulers came to power in military coups. The parts were less than their sum had been, and the two kingdoms had mixed relations, sometimes friendly, sometimes hostile. Neither was able to control effectively the regions that bordered them, and the Davidic empire, such as it was, ceased to exist.

Changes on the larger international scene would increasingly affect these two kingdoms. Pressure from a revived Egypt is already evident in the above-mentioned campaign of Shishak to the north in 925. Meanwhile, in northern Mesopotamia, the kingdom of Assyria had consolidated its control over Babylon in the south and adjacent regions to the north and east, and by the ninth century was poised to expand into the Levant. At this point the fairly complete Assyrian annals enable the construction of a relatively exact chronology and provide numerous synchronisms with biblical texts. Beginning with Ahab, king of Israel in the mid-ninth century, many of the rulers of both Israel and Judah are mentioned in Assyrian sources, an indication of the growing Assyrian interest in the region and a coincidence of ominous significance.

The Assyrians were establishing an empire, a process that reached its zenith with the Assyrian king Esarhaddon’s subjugation of Egypt in 671. They accomplished this by virtue of a technologically sophisticated army, which in relatively rapid advance overwhelmed the smaller kingdoms to their west, usually incorporating their territories into the empire as provinces and deporting the elite of their populations to other regions. By the late eighth century this subjugation was virtually complete. The Syrian kingdoms had been taken, including that of the Arameans in Damascus in 732. In 722 Samaria fell, its ruling class was exiled to Assyria, and the Northern Kingdom of Israel became an Assyrian province. Judah’s territory was curtailed and, in part because of the remote location of Jerusalem, was allowed to exist in vassal status. Toward the end of the eighth century King Hezekiah attempted to reassert Judean independence, but this was ruthlessly quashed by the Assyrian king Sennacherib in a campaign (701) which is well documented in both biblical and Assyrian sources. Jerusalem avoided destruction only by payment of a heavy tribute, and the Davidic dynasty survived.

Beginning with Amos and Hosea in the mid-eighth century, the prophets, and the later authors of the Deuteronomistic History (Joshua–2 Kings) interpreted these events as a deserved punishment inflicted by God on his rebellious people. For them, the repeated experiences of attack, siege, and exile were ultimately caused not by the inexorable progress of the Assyrian armies but by divine agency, imposing the fulfillment of the curses attached to the covenant made by God with Israel on Mount Sinai.

THE END OF THE KINGDOM OF JUDAH (LATE SEVENTH TO EARLY SIXTH CENTURIES BCE)

By the late seventh century the Assyrian Empire was overextended and thus unable to prevent first independence and eventually overthrow by a resurgent Babylonia to its south. The Babylonians captured the Assyrian capital of Nineveh in 612, and in effect took over the Assyrian Empire. In the initial years, Egypt and Judah attempted to take advantage of the transfer of power by reasserting their independence. This was the time of the reign of the Judean king Josiah (640–609), whom biblical sources compare to David and whose accomplishments are magnified like those of his illustrious predecessor. While it seems likely that Judah was able to reestablish control over some of the territory to the north and west that had been under direct Assyrian rule, its autonomy, such as it was, was short-lived. After Josiah’s death in battle at Megiddo in 609, in a failed attempt to prevent the Egyptians from moving north to reinforce the tottering Assyrians, Judah was again reduced to the status of a vassal, first to Egypt, and then, by the end of the seventh century, to Babylon. Caught between two greater powers, the Judean kings Jehoiakim and Zedekiah successively allied themselves with Egypt, which proved to be the weaker partner. Under Nebuchadrezzar (also called Nebuchadnezzar) II, the Babylonians laid siege to Jerusalem in 597 and 586, in the second instance destroying the city, burning down the Temple, and ending the Davidic dynasty.

Despite the extravagant propaganda of the royal establishment, neither the Davidic dynasty nor its capital city were impregnable. Jerusalem was destroyed, its dynastic Temple burned, and its population decimated by death and exile. Autonomous control of the promised land became only a memory. And despite partial restoration later in the sixth century, exile in Babylon forever transformed the religion of Judah-Judaism. From this point on, a significant proportion of Jews would be living outside the promised land, without king, Temple, or priesthood.

THE PERSIAN AND HELLENISTIC PERIODS

CULTURAL CONTEXTS

THE PERSIAN AND HELLENISTIC PERIODS

THE PERSIAN PERIOD (539–333 BCE)

The Babylonian exile and the period of Persian domination that followed was a time of great transformation for Judean institutions, religious practices, and culture, but it was equally a time in which the fundamental continuity with preexilic traditions was reaffirmed and secured. When Nebuchadrezzar put down the rebellion of Judah in 586 BCE, he exiled to Babylonia a portion of the population, including the ruling class and the skilled artisans. Some, however, remained in Judah, where a subsistence economy was soon reestablished. Although the system of regular sacrifices at the Temple was disrupted, the ruined Temple remained a focus for religious observances. The book of Lamentations may preserve liturgical poems used on days commemorating the destruction of Jerusalem and its Temple. Little is known about the circumstances of those who went into exile, although it appears that the exiles were settled in many local communities in Babylonia, where they were able to oversee their own internal and cultural affairs under the leadership of Jewish elders and prophets (see Ezek; Isa 40–55).
The conquest of Babylon by the Persian king Cyrus the Great in 539 BCE brought significant changes. In keeping with his policy of respecting the various deities worshiped throughout the empire, a decree by Cyrus in 538 (see Ezra 1.1–4; 6.1–5) authorized the rebuilding of the Temple in Jerusalem and the return of the Temple vessels captured by Nebuchadnezzar. In addition, Cyrus allowed any of the exiles who wished to return to Judah to do so. Within the exilic community in Babylon the anonymous prophet known as “Second Isaiah” (Isa 40–55) strongly supported Cyrus and urged the exiles to return to Judah. Although the historical sources are few and not always easy to interpret, it appears that only a small minority of the exiles and their descendants returned to Judah, most choosing to remain in Babylonia. This latter group became the nucleus of a large and highly significant Jewish Diaspora community (Jews of “the dispersion,” that is, living outside the promised land), which strongly influenced the development of Judaism and Jewish culture during the following centuries.

Despite the decree of Cyrus, the Temple in Jerusalem was not rebuilt until 520–515 BCE. The reasons for the delay were various. Persian control over the western territories may actually have been tentative until after the Persians conquered Egypt in 525. The economy of Yehud (the name by which the Persian province of Judah was known) was weak, and there appears to have been friction between the population that had remained in the land and the small but powerful group who returned from exile with the authorization and financial backing of the Persian king. Conflicts with the neighboring territories of Samaria and Geshur and Ammon in Transjordan also complicated the situation. Within the Bible the prophetic books of Haggai and Zechariah and portions of Ezra 1–6 refer to this period, but these sources have to be read and interpreted critically, for they are neither consistent with one another nor easy to understand on their own terms. At least during the early part of Persian rule the governors of Judah appear to have been prominent Jews from the Diaspora community, one of whom, Zerubbabel, was actually a member of the Davidic royal family. The province of Yehud itself was very small, consisting of Jerusalem and the territory surrounding it within a radius of about 15–20 mi (24–32 km).

Once the Temple was rebuilt, it became the nucleus of the restored community, and consequently a focus of conflict (Isa 56–66; Mal). The high priestly family, which had also returned from the Diaspora, became very powerful, and at least on occasion was in conflict with the governor appointed by the Persian king. Although the details are often not clear, there appears to have been continuing conflict during the fifth century between those Jews whose ancestors had been in exile and those whose ancestors had remained in the land. Those who returned from the Diaspora styled themselves the “children of the exile” and referred rather contemptuously to the rest as “people of the land,” as though their very status as Jews was in question. In fact, the question of the limits of the community was one of the most contentious issues of the period, reflected both in the controversy over mixed marriages between Jewish men and ethnically foreign women (Ezra 10; Neh 13) and also in conflicts within the Jewish community over who had the right to claim the traditional identity as descendants of “Abraham” and “Israel” (see Isa 63.16 and more generally “Third Isaiah,” Isa 56–66). Although the conflicts between various contending groups in early Persian period Yehud are largely cast in religious terms, there is no question that they were also in part socioeconomic (see Neh 5). All of these conflicts and efforts toward redefinition of the community, however, took place within the reality of Persian imperial control. Thus it is not by accident that the two most prominent figures involved in various reforms of mid-fifth century Yehud, Ezra and Nehemiah, were Diaspora Jews of high standing, carrying out tasks that had been specifically authorized by the Persian kings.

Because this was a period of self-conscious reconstruction, it was also a time of immense literary activity, as traditional materials were collected, revised, and edited, and new works composed. Although much of the Pentateuch may have existed in various forms during the time of the monarchy, it was probably reworked during the Persian period into something close to its final form. Indeed, some scholars have suggested that this revision may have been undertaken under the sponsorship of the Persian government, reflecting Persia’s interest in achieving stability throughout its empire by means of religious and legal reforms in the provinces. Although a history of Israel and Judah known as the Deuteronomic History (Deut through 2 Kings) had been composed during the latter years of the monarchy and updated during the exile, a new version of that history, 1–2 Chronicles, was prepared during the Persian period (ca. 350 BCE). It clearly reflects the concerns of the postexilic community, focusing almost exclusively on the history of Judah and giving particular emphasis to the institution of the Temple. The books of Ezra and Nehemiah interpret events from the decree of Cyrus in 538 until the late fifth century.

In addition to the prophetic books composed at this time (Isa 56–66, Hag, Zech, Mal, and perhaps Joel), there is evidence that the texts of older prophets were also edited and reinterpreted. Psalmody had been an important element of worship at the First Temple but appears to have taken on an even more significant role in the Second Temple. Although the expansion and revision of the book of Psalms may have continued until well into the Hellenistic or even Roman period, an important shaping of the psalter, perhaps including its division into five “books,” was part of Persian period activity. Wisdom writing, too, flourished during this time. The book of Job, parts of the book of Proverbs, and perhaps Ecclesiastes were likely composed then.

THE HELLENISTIC PERIOD (333–363 BCE)

The westward expansion of the Persian Empire into the area of Asia Minor had brought it into conflict with Greece, since many of the cities of Asia Minor that came under Persian control had been founded and populated by Greeks. Twice the Persians had even invaded the Greek mainland but were defeated on both occasions. Eventually, Philip of Macedon developed a plan to free the Greek cities of Asia Minor from Persian domination. Although he died before he could undertake the campaign, it was taken up by his son Alexander the Great in 334 BCE. Alexander, however, did not stop with the accomplishment of that initial goal. In 333 he continued down the Phoenician coast, subduing any city that resisted, conquered Egypt, then turned to the Persian heartland, defeating Darius III, the last Persian emperor, in 331. Alexander continued his conquest into the eastern reaches of the Persian Empire before returning in 324 to Babylon, which he apparently intended to establish as the capital of the empire he now controlled. He died in 323 before he could successfully organize his enormous territory. After Alexander’s death, his generals fought for control of portions of the empire. By 301 an agreement gave Egypt to Ptolemy and Mesopotamia and Syria–Palestine to Seleucus. Ptolemy, however, occupied Palestine and southern Syria. Through a series of five wars extending over more than a hundred years, the Ptolemaic kings managed to hold onto their Palestinian territory, finally losing it to the Seleucids in 198 BCE.

Jerusalem had surrendered to Alexander in 333 and was relatively undisturbed by the events of his conquest. Samaria, too, surrendered but rebelled in 332 and was severely punished, its inhabitants killed or sold into slavery, and the city refounded as a Macedonian military colony. Documents belonging to a group of Samaritans who fled and were later tracked down and killed by Alexander’s troops have been excavated from the Wadi Daliyeh in the Jordan Valley. In contrast to the relatively settled conditions following Alexander’s conquest, however, the dispute between the Ptolemies and the Seleucids over control of Palestine had serious consequences for Jerusalem and Judea. Not only did the wars sometimes affect Judean territory, but the nation’s leaders had to make difficult choices concerning which power to support. The conflict between pro-Ptolemaic and pro-Seleucid factions within the Judean community was a significant factor in internal politics during the third century BCE.

Although the high priest was the primary representative of the Judeans, the Ptolemaic system of government and taxation had significant effects on the power structure of the country. The Ptolemies considered their territories primarily as a source of revenue. Rather than collecting funds directly, they employed “tax farmers,” often local persons who bought the right to collect taxes for a specified area. Their profit was the difference between the amount they raised and the amount they had pledged to the government. Some of these positions were quite lucrative. Moreover, the Ptolemies also engaged prominent landowners to keep the peace as the heads of locally organized military villages. The Jewish historian Josephus preserves a long account of the Tobia family, which served the Ptolemaic government in both capacities. From his lively narrative one has a sense not only of the power and wealth such positions could afford but also of the dangers and conflict they often entailed.

Culturally, the most significant effect of Ptolemaic rule was the establishment of a large Jewish Diaspora community in Egypt, centered in the new city of Alexandria, founded by Alexander the Great. Jews had often migrated to Egypt during times of economic or political trouble (see Jer 42–44). In the fifth century a Jewish military colony in the service of the Persian army was established at Elephantine (near modern Aswan). They had their own temple, though they remained in correspondence with Jerusalem concerning various religious matters, including the proper celebration of Passover and assistance in securing Persian permission for the rebuilding of the Elephantine temple after it was destroyed by local Egyptians. The various Aramaic documents found there (letters, contracts, marriage documents, records of legal disputes, etc.) provide an important glimpse into the daily life of this Jewish community in Egypt. Among the papyri was a copy of the book of Ahikar, a legendary story about an official in the Assyrian court at the time of Sennacherib and Esarhaddon (late eighth to early seventh century). Although the story was not Jewish in origin, it became popular among the Jews. The book of Tobit in the Apocrypha makes reference to Ahikar, even calling him Tobit’s nephew (Tob 1.21–22).

The Hellenistic-era Egyptian Diaspora, however, was much larger and more influential than the previous small communities of Jews living in Egypt. Its origins are not clear, but during the initial Ptolemaic conquest of Palestine, Ptolemy I apparently captured Jerusalem and took many prisoners back to Egypt, where they settled. Later many other Jews migrated there, presumably for economic reasons. The community continued to grow, both in numbers and in prosperity, until in the Roman period the Jewish population numbered in the hundreds of thousands, including many wealthy and prominent families.

By the middle of the third century BCE the largely Greek-speaking Jewish community in Egypt had translated the books of the Torah (Genesis–Deuteronomy) into Greek, and over the next century or so, the other books of the Hebrew Bible were also translated. A legendary account of this project is contained in the Letter of Aristeas. According to that narrative, the impetus for the project came from the king himself, Ptolemy II Philadelphus (285–246 BCE), who wished to have a copy for the library of Alexandria. Seventy-two Jewish translators were brought to Egypt from Jerusalem for the task; hence the translation came to be known as the Septuagint, from the Greek word for “seventy.” Scholars largely reject this account as unhistorical and maintain that the translation was undertaken for the religious needs of a Jewish community that no longer understood Hebrew. (See the essays “The Canons of the Bible” and “Hebrew Bible: Texts and Versions” for more information about the Septuagint.)

In addition to the translation of the scriptures, the Jewish Diaspora in Egypt produced a rich and varied literature in Greek. One should not assume, however, that every Jewish writing in Greek originated in Alexandria, for during the Hellenistic period Greek became the most important international language. Educated Jews in Palestine and in the eastern Diaspora were nearly as likely to speak Greek as their counterparts in Egypt. Nevertheless, Alexandria remained unparalleled in the richness of its intellectual culture.

Throughout the Hellenistic world the increasing contact between different ethnic groups led to a new self-consciousness within communities about their own historical traditions and how these traditions related to those of other peoples. Thus historiographical writing, from the scholarly to the popular, became an important type of literary activity. In the late third century BCE an Alexandrian Jew named Demetrius investigated the chronologies of the biblical tradition, attempting to explain apparent contradictions and logical inconsistencies. A more entertaining work is Eupolemus’s Concerning the Kings in Judea. A friend of Judas Maccabeus (see below), Eupolemus retold the biblical narrative with many embellishments and legendary details in an attempt to glorify Israel’s traditions and accomplishments. In Eupolemus’s history Moses appears as a culture-bringer, the inventor of the alphabet, which the Phoenicians and the Greeks later borrowed. Eupolemus particularly emphasizes the power and influence of the Israelite kingdom under David and Solomon, as well as the splendor of the Solomonic Temple. Not only was the Temple decorated with gifts from the kings of Tyre and Egypt, but Solomon reciprocated, sending a golden pillar to the temple of Zeus in Tyre.

The tendency to make connections between one’s own traditions and those of other ethnic groups and to claim priority in the arts of civilization is reflected in the highly legendary history written in the second century BCE by an anonymous Samaritan. He identifies Enoch with Greek Atlas and claims that Abraham was the inventor of astrology, which he taught to the Egyptians when he sojourned there. A similar tendency is evident in the work of Artapanus. In his history Moses becomes the inventor of the technologies basic to civilization. Moreover, this Moses serves as a general in the Egyptian army, organizes Egyptian religion, and comes to be treated virtually as a god by the Egyptians, who identify him with Hermes (the Greek equivalent of the Egyptian god Thoth). The interest of Egyptian Jews in the biblical figure of Joseph is reflected in the romance, Joseph and Asenath, which tells the story of Joseph’s marriage to the Egyptian noblewoman Asenath. She is depicted as a model convert to Judaism, and the story depicts some of the complications that attended Jewish-Gentile relations in Hellenistic Egypt.

Jewish poetic works composed in Greek also reflect a blending of cultural traditions. The Hellenistic genre of poetry praising cities and countries is represented in the work of Theodotus and Philo the Epic Poet, who wrote poems about Shechem and Jerusalem, respectively. Even more ambitious was the work of Ezekiel the Tragedian, whose play The Exodus retold the account of Ex 1–15 in a style influenced by the Greek dramatists Aeschylus and Euripides.

Greek philosophy, too, left its imprint on Hellenistic Jewish culture. Already in the second century BCE an Alexandrian Jew named Aristobulus produced a philosophical commentary on the Torah in which he claimed that the law of Moses anticipated many of the fundamental tenets of Greek philosophy and that the Greek philosophers Pythagoras, Socrates, and Plato derived their ideas from the Jewish law. Written toward the end of the Hellenistic period, the Wisdom of Solomon continues the biblical tradition of wisdom books like Proverbs but incorporates many elements of Greek rhetoric, philosophy, and literary style.

Less is known about the Jews of the eastern Diaspora who remained under Seleucid control than about the Jews of Egypt and Palestine, but it appears that peoples of various ethnic groups had access to economic and political advancement within the Seleucid Empire.
THE PERSIAN AND HELLENISTIC PERIODS

Several writings from this time—Tobit, Dan 1–6, and Esther—suggest something of the outlook of Jews in the eastern Diaspora. Written originally in Hebrew or Aramaic and later enlarged when they were translated into Greek, these books are works of fiction, edifying entertainments that tell the stories of Jews who achieved high status in foreign courts, were threatened by jealous rivals, and yet succeeded in securing personal power and the good will of the king. Though the stories are all set in the pre-Hellenistic period (Tobit in the Assyrian Empire, Daniel in the Babylonian exile, and Esther in the Persian court), they were probably written during the Seleucid period. While they acknowledge that faithful Jews may be vulnerable because of their religion, on the whole these are optimistic stories with a positive view of the Gentile kings.

The eastern Diaspora was also the conduit for important religious developments that arose from the contact between Judaism and the religions of Babylon and Persia. This influence is most clearly seen in the development of apocalyptic literature. Parts of the book of 1 Enoch composed in the third century BCE reflect astronomical lore and traditions about antediluvian sages that derive from Babylonian sources. Although it is more difficult to trace the path of influence in its earliest stages, the dualistic religious beliefs of Persian Zoroastrianism almost certainly contributed to the development of Jewish apocalyptic thought and to some of the ideas of the sectarians at Qumran.

The eventual triumph of the Seleucid kingdom over the Ptolemies in the fifth Syrian war (198 BCE) obviously had a greater significance for the Jews of Judea than for those of Egypt. The Seleucid ruler Antiochus III treated the Judeans generously in appreciation for the support he received from the pro-Seleucid faction, granting an allowance for the Temple and various tax concessions, as well as confirming the Judeans’ right to live “according to the laws of their country.” Although relations began well, the way the Seleucid Empire governed its territories set the stage for a terrible conflict. Unlike the Ptolemaic system of centralized government administered with the cooperation of local leaders, the Seleucid regime was more decentralized. It derived some unity, however, from a network of Greek cities established throughout the empire. These were not necessarily ethnically Greek but were cities that had received a charter to organize as a polis, the Greek form of city government. Cultural prestige and economic advantages often led the leadership of Near Eastern cities to request such a charter.

The events leading up to the conflict between Judea and the Seleucid king Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–164 BCE) are complex and not fully understood. In part they involved a struggle for succession to the high priesthood and the attempts of various contenders to secure the support of the king by paying him large sums of money. The first of the contenders, Jason, also paid to have Jerusalem established as a Greek polis, Antioch at Jerusalem. Neither of these acts in itself seems to have aroused much opposition in Jerusalem. The conflict was not a cultural conflict between Judaism and Hellenism, for Palestinian Jews had already incorporated significant elements of Hellenistic culture, which they considered quite compatible with their religious identity.

The crisis was sparked by the attempt by another contender, Menelaus, to buy the office of high priest. When he promised the king more than he could pay, he attempted to raise the money by taking golden vessels from the Temple. At this, a riot broke out in Jerusalem. Subsequent fighting between the forces of Jason and Menelaus convinced Antiochus that Judea was in revolt, and he retook the city and plundered the Temple, either in 169 or 168. Sometime later there were further disturbances, and Antiochus sent Syrian troops, which remained garrisoned in Jerusalem. Whether the status of Jerusalem at this point was a polis or a military colony is uncertain, but in either case in 167 the Temple was reorganized to accommodate the religious needs of the Syrian troops. The Temple was dedicated to Zeus Olympius, the Greek name for the Syrian god Baal Shamem, and an altar established for sacrifice to him. Though Menelaus continued to preside as high priest, most Jews considered these actions to have profaned the Temple. In addition, the traditional practice of Judaism was suppressed by Antiochus, perhaps with the cooperation of Menelaus. Since religious persecution was virtually unknown in antiquity, it is difficult to know how Antiochus understood this repression and what he hoped to accomplish by it. Its actual result was to ignite the resistance known as the Maccabean revolt.

The Hasmoneans, Mattathias and his sons Judas Maccabeus, Jonathan, Simon, John, and Eleazar, were the leaders of the revolt. Although Judas managed to retake control of the Temple in 164 (its rededication being the occasion for the institution of the festival of Hanukkah), it was not until 142 that the last of the Seleucid army was expelled and actual independence was secured by Simon. From then until the Roman conquest of Judea in 63 BCE the small kingdom was ruled by the Hasmonean family, which in addition to being kings also assumed the office of high priest. Religious and cultural life in Judea during the Seleucid and Hasmonean periods was rich and varied, with a remarkable quantity of literature produced in Hebrew, Aramaic, and to some extent in Greek. Sirach (Ecclesiasticus), Jesus Ben Sirach’s book of wisdom teachings, was probably composed in Hebrew about 180 BCE. Though largely traditional, it embodies several innovations: Ben Sira’s identification of wisdom with the law of Moses, his praise of the contemporary high priest Simon II, and his own explicit claim to authorship. Ben Sira disapproved of apocalyptic speculation, but the crisis under Antiochus IV produced an upsurge in apocalyptic writings, not only Dan 7–12, but also 1 Enoch 83–90 and The Testament of Moses. After the establishment of the Hasmonean monarchy, a supporter of the dynasty composed an account of the war in Hebrew (1 Maccabees), modeling it after the earlier books of Kings and Chronicles. An Egyptian Jewish writer, Jason of Cyrene, also wrote a history of the war in Greek (2 Maccabees), which was strongly influenced by forms of Hellenistic history writing.

Our knowledge of the literature of this time has been greatly increased by the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls at Qumran. Although this library was the property of a sectarian religious group related to the Essenes, it contained many Hebrew and Aramaic texts that were not sectarian compositions. Several of these scrolls contain non-canonical psalms, blessings, and other liturgical material. There are also many examples of what is called “the rewritten Bible,” fairly free retellings of parts of the biblical story, embellished with new narrative episodes, prayers, and other elements (e.g., Jubilees, The Genesis Apocryphon, The Apocryphon of Joshua). Some texts elaborate on the apocalyptic elements of the books of Ezekiel and Daniel or place apocalyptic pronouncements in the mouths of other biblical figures, such as Levi, Qahat, and Amram. Several texts, often having to do with matters of religious law, purport to be discourses of Moses. Perhaps the most remarkable document is the Temple Scroll, which apparently takes the form of an address by God to Moses. Although it incorporates material from the books of Exodus through Deuteronomy, it also contains much new material, including detailed instructions for building the Temple.

These documents and others pertaining to the Qumran sect itself help to clarify issues of religious controversy that shaped the period of Hasmonean rule. The Temple and the Torah were central institutions for Judaism, which made them focal points for conflict. The Qumran scrolls show that conflict over the proper calendar (i.e., a solar or lunar calendar) for the conduct of Temple sacrifices was a major issue dividing the Qumran Essenes from their rivals, the Pharisees. Though the Hasmoneans were not always on good terms with the Pharisees, they adopted the lunar calendar favored by them. Many other writings from Qumran also elaborate their understanding of disputed issues such as purity, marriage, and sabbath observance, concerning which they were at odds with the Pharisees. Although the Qumran community did not compose apocalypses (i.e., reports of revelatory visions), they were strongly influenced by apocalyptic ideas and considered themselves to be living in the last times, just before God would intervene to restore proper order to the world. They supported their ideas in part by writing commentaries (pesharim) on biblical texts, which they read as referring to themselves and their opponents.

In general, the Hellenistic period presents a picture of Judaism that is much more diverse than is often imagined. Not only did Jews live in a vast range of lands from Egypt to Parthia, they also creatively adapted many elements from the varied Hellenistic cultures of these lands. Nevertheless, important symbols and institutions, including the Temple in Jerusalem, the scriptures, and common religious practices based in the Torah, provided a sense of unity and common identity.

CULTURAL CONTEXTS

THE ROMAN PERIOD

The Roman conquest of Judea in 63 BCE was part of a centuries-long expansion of the power of Rome. The destruction of Carthage in North Africa in 146 BCE concluded the Punic Wars and secured the western Mediterranean, and the destruction of Corinth in the same year demonstrated Rome’s control of Greece. In the next century, a series of conflicts with the successors of Alexander the Great in Asia and Egypt brought Roman rule to the entire eastern Mediterranean. The events that led to the replacement of the Roman republic by autocratic rule culminated with the installation of Julius Caesar’s nephew Octavian (later Augustus) as the first emperor in 27 BCE, and included the conquest of Egypt. The Mediterranean was now, as it has aptly been called, “a Roman lake.”

Within the Roman Empire, especially in the east, client states were allowed considerable autonomy as long as their rulers maintained order and paid tribute to Rome. In Judea, Herod the Great, king of Judea from 37 to 4 BCE, succeeded on both counts, and with Roman sanction his control eventually extended to all of the region west of... the Jordan and over much of Transjordan. His successors were not so adept, and direct Roman rule of Judea itself began in 6 ce. Thus began an uneasy détente between a series of Roman governors and the leaders of the Jewish community, based in the Temple in Jerusalem. This broke down during the First Jewish Revolt (66–73 ce), prompting the Roman destruction of Jerusalem in 70 ce. A brief resurgence of Jewish nationalism in the Second Jewish Revolt (132–135 ce) was easily crushed, and Jerusalem became Aelia Capitolina, a fully Hellenized city from which Jews were banned.

This is the historical setting for the life of Jesus and the development of earliest Christianity, one of several “Judaisms” that coexisted in Palestine before 70. For most of them the Temple was the primary place of worship and the locus of authority in religious and intracommunity issues. The priesthood in the Temple was hereditary, but from the time of Herod on the high priest was appointed by a ruler or governor. The high priest was head of a council, called the Sanhedrin, which had jurisdiction in religious and, to a limited extent, in civic matters. Other groups that comprised Judaism, with boundaries not always sharply drawn, included the Sadducees, members of the priesthood whose social status was aristocratic and whose views were conservative. The Pharisees were a lay movement concerned with observance of the Torah and hence with its interpretation, often through local houses of assembly; these “synagogues,” however, did not supplant the Temple as the place of sacrifice and pilgrimage. The Pharisees were forerunners of the Rabbinic Judaism that developed after the Temple’s destruction in 70. Outside of these groups, but still part of the broad spectrum of Judaism, were the Essenes, who had seceded from the Temple-based priesthood during the early Hasmonean period (mid-first century ace), and the Samaritans, whose rejection of the Jerusalem Temple as the proper place for sacrificial worship had crystallized by the same time.

WITHIN THE ROMAN EMPIRE

Readers encounter two different cultural spaces within the New Testament: the village economy of agriculture and fishing in the Galilee, and the mobile economy of merchants and tradesmen in the urban centers of the empire. The first, the village economy, forms the context of Jesus’ ministry and of the itinerant disciples who formulated the collections of sayings, stories, and miracles that underlie the Gospels. The second, the merchant economy, constitutes the world of Paul’s missions as well as that of countless unknown disciples like those responsible for bringing the gospel message to Rome around 41 ce. This larger, urban world is that of the epistles and the book of Acts. It is also evident in the expansions and reformulations of Mark and “Q” that are found in Matthew and Luke. Both the village agriculturists and the traveling merchants view from below a third cultural space: that of the wealthy, educated elite who are responsible for most of the architectural, artistic, literary, legal, philosophical, and religious remains that represent the Roman world and its influence within Western history and culture.

The predominance of this third, elite world in its cultural influence creates a problem for historians. We must be cautious in using the productions of an elite minority to describe the religious or social world of ordinary people in ancient societies. Anthropologists, for instance, make a distinction between the high tradition of sacred texts, temple rites, and the learned commentary upon them that centers upon the great urban cultural milieu, and the humbler, smaller traditions of religious belief, story, and practice that villagers hand on to one another. The story of the young Jesus remaining in the Temple to debate the teachers (Lk 2.41–52) exemplifies this distinction. For the Galilean peasants, religious devotion is focused on, and expressed in, the act of pilgrimage to Jerusalem for Passover. For the religious elite, it rather consists of learned interpretation of the sacred texts.

The thousands of papyri that have been found in the dry climate of Egypt have yielded new insights into the lives of ordinary people in ancient times. Scholars also study texts for nonelite forms of storytelling, popular belief, and everyday life; these aspects of experience are reflected in novels, in expansions of the biblical text in the Targums (Aramaic paraphrases of the Hebrew Bible), in Jewish and Christian apocryphal writings, and within the New Testament itself, as well as in the remains of material culture recovered by archaeologists.

Roman rule constituted the overarching political reality for both the village agricultural society in the Gospels and the urban context of Acts and the epistles. Its most immediate impact within Palestine was the accession of the Idumean Herod as king. Rome, not the Jewish populace, established the terms of Herodian rule. Herod’s massive building projects—including the city of Caesarea, his own mausoleum at Herodion, and the Temple complex in Jerusalem—followed Greek and Roman models. Further consequences of Herod’s rule included the severing of ties between tenant farmers and landholders who were no longer local patrons (see Mk 12.1–9). The pressure on the tax system to meet Roman demands and to finance Herod’s building projects must have been considerable; this, and the possibilities for corruption and extortion inherent in the system itself, resulted in the cultural disdain reflected in the phrase “tax collector and sinner” (Lk 15.1–2; Mt 18.17 uses the alternative, equally... dismissive, “tax collector and Gentile”). The presence of Roman soldiers might mean that goods and services were extorted at random from the local populace (Mt 5.41), but retired centurions might also be valuable local patrons (Lk 7.1–10). Physicians who were attached to the army units could also serve the populace on the side (Mk 5.26).

Most of Galilee seems to have been a prosperous region of small landholders and grazing herds of sheep and goats. Families in the villages where Jesus preached were largely self-sufficient. Craftsmen, such as Jesus himself, may have worked in the cities that were being built in the region, like Tiberias and Sepphoris. Even the rebellion against Rome, which zealots in Judea ignited in 66 ce, had a short life in Galilee. Within a year its populace had given up and returned to everyday life. Further evidence for the general prosperity of the region emerges when one turns to the occupation of Jesus’ core disciples, Peter, James, and John (Mk 1.16–20). The fishing industry around the Sea of Galilee was a flourishing one, as the archaeologically remains of extensive harbor installations indicate. Fishing involved families or partners who owned the boats working with hired hands. Fish was salted, dried, smoked, or pickled, and packed in jars for export. Thus Jesus and his disciples were neither naïve isolated pastoralists nor poor peasants, but were engaged in economic enterprises crucial to Galilee’s place in the larger world.

For Jerusalem, a city whose chief economic asset was its Temple, the crowds of pilgrims at major feasts and the massive new complex of buildings were both an economic boon and a source of civic pride. The major cities in the eastern Mediterranean, such as Antioch, Ephesus, Philippi, Corinth, and Thessalonica, also enjoyed increased prosperity as a consequence of Roman rule and the growing numbers of travelers on land and sea. Without the possibility of such routine travel, the Christian mission could not have taken place. It was also furthered by the existence of Jewish communities in those cities, which provided an initial network (e.g., see Acts 13.5; 14.1). Many of the peoples incorporated into the Roman Empire, Jew and non-Jew alike, would have shared positive sentiments toward its authority (see Rom 13.1–7; 1 Pet 2.13–17).

On the other hand, civic discord, rioting, and full-scale rebellion against Roman rule remained real possibilities. Alexandria in Egypt had a large Jewish population that included highly educated, cultured, and wealthy individuals like the philosopher and exegete Philo of Alexandria (d. ca. 50 ce). Yet non-Jewish residents rioted in 41 ce when the Jewish elite sought the same citizenship rights as the citizen descendants of the Greek founders. Despite the appeals of a delegation of prominent Jewish Alexandrians, the emperor Claudius refused to grant their request, and threatened severe punishment if further civil discord occurred. Claudius also expelled members of Rome’s Jewish community for “rioting at the name of Chrestus,” presumably local discord occasioned by Christian missionaries (see Acts 18.1–2). Nero, in 65, executed some members of the new sect of undesirables, the Christians—including, according to tradition, Peter and Paul—as scapegoats for a fire that destroyed blocks of wooden tenements in Rome. He became the focus of anti-Roman sentiment, the demonic persecutor of faithful Christians in later generations (see Rev 13.1–18).

Despite the counsel of moderate voices and the opposition of Herod Agrippa, the Roman-appointed ruler of Galilee and northern Transjordan, and zealous leaders led Palestinian Jews to revolt against Rome in 66; by August of 70, Titus led Roman troops in burning and destroying the Temple. Christians living in Jerusalem appear to have fled the city prior to its fall. Jews living in the Diaspora did not support the rebellion; this did not keep the Romans from penalizing all Jews after the defeat. The Romans forced Jews who once paid a tax to support the Temple (see Mt 17.24–27) to pay instead an increased tax to the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus in Rome.

THE TYPICAL ROMAN CITY

A brief tour of Caesarea Maritima, the residence of the Roman governor of Judea (Acts 8.40; 9.30; 10.1,24; 11.11; 12.19–23; 18.22; 21.8; 23.23; 25.1–13), reveals the outline of an ancient city from the perspective of the rich. It was originally a small military settlement dating from the mid-third century BCE; Augustus gave it to Herod, who built a magnificent city of some 8,000 acres and a harbor to rival that of Alexandria. Two breakwaters created a sheltered harbor of 40 acres. An area with a temple, on a raised mound, dedicated to Rome and Augustus, faced the harbor at the south end of the forum that runs along the harborside. To the south of the city, a theater faced the sea, although the structure that has been unearthed is a later, rebuilt one. Among the discoveries there is a stone with an inscription referring to Pontius Pilate as prefect. There was also a large amphitheater similar to the Colosseum and a large racecourse (hippodrome).

An aqueduct supplied the city with water from springs on Mount Carmel, and an elaborate sewer system under the city drained away waste. Walkways were decorated with mosaics, and promenades were lined with columns. Herod spared no expense on his showcase; builders used imported marbles from Italy and Egypt, and pink granite from Aswan. There were warehouses facing the harbor to store the goods that passed through the city from extensive maritime trade, which reached as far as south Asia.
The residents of Palestine did not have to journey to Alexandria, Corinth, or Rome to see the world’s riches on display for a wealthy elite. Capernaum on the northern shore of the Sea of Galilee was the base for Jesus’ preaching activities around Galilee. It lay on the road that connected Caesarea and Ptolemais (Acco) on the coast with Damascus in Syria. Even if they never visited the new city of Caesarea, the traffic along the highway between the coast and Damascus would have alerted Jesus and his contemporaries to the cultural realities of Greco-Roman cities. Two other city foundations within Galilee itself, Sepphoris and Tiberias, contributed to the growth of urbanization. Herod Antipas, tetrarch of Galilee and Perea from 4 BCE to 39 CE, resided at Sepphoris, a mere 4 mi (4 mi7 km) from Nazareth, until he moved to the newly built Tiberias on the lake in 19–20 CE. The term “tekton” used for Joseph and his sons (Mt 6.3; Mt 13.55) is usually translated “carpenter,” but there is no reason to assume that Jesus and his family were restricted to the carpenter’s shop of a village. They are just as likely to have been employed in the building that occurred in Sepphoris and Tiberias. Jesus’ view of the rich could have been shaped by such experiences, and his followers probably included some connected to the Herodian court (see Lk 8.3).

Status and Social Class in the City

The artisans, manual laborers, and merchants who lived in a typical Roman city had little time for the pleasures of the city’s main streets. Long days in cramped and often dark shops would have been more typical of Paul’s life as a tentmaker, for instance (Acts 18.3; 2 Cor 6.5; 11.27). This trade involved creating the awnings, made of a rough, thick fabric like sailcloth, which provided cover from the sun in theaters and the forum, and in front of the booths from which goods were sold. When crowds thronged the city for a festival, such as the biennial Isthmian games outside Corinth in honor of Poseidon (see Dio Chrysostom, Discourses 8.9), there would be no shortage of work for tentmakers.

The members of the wealthy elite and the educated scribes, Pharisees, or philosophers who were attached to them despised such lowly occupations, as well as those who collected the taxes. The tensions between rich and poor that were evident in Corinth (1 Cor 11.17–34) show how difficult it could be to cross social divisions of class and status. Those in whose homes the community assembled would have thought it their right to provide a feast for the others who were from their own group; as for the rest—artisans who had to work from dawn to dusk, as well as slave members of the community—they should be glad for the meager rations provided for them. Similarly, the letter of James (2.1–13) exorcates Christians for showing deference to a rich man, giving him a comfortable seat and asking the poor to squat on the floor in the assembly. Although Paul’s letters lack the sharp attacks on wealth found in the teaching of Jesus or in the letter of James, Paul does attack the privileges of social superiority to one’s fellows when they surface in the Christian community.

Although most Christians did not belong to the local civic elite (1 Cor 1.26–30), a few individuals associated with the Corinthian church could claim such status. Acts 18.8 refers to Crispus (1 Cor 1.14) as archisynagogos, “head of the synagogue,” a title that he may have been accorded as a benefactor, perhaps by contributing funds for a synagogue building. Women can appear as patronesses and archisynagogoi as well. Paul recommends Phoebe, a deaconess from the Corinthian port city Cenchrea (Rom 16.1–2). Such recommendations were a common letter form in the ancient world, in which patronage relationships were essential to success. Gaius (1 Cor 1.14) was wealthy enough to host all the Christians in Corinth at once (Rom 16.23).

Paul also conveys greetings from a certain Erastus, who is oikonomos (“city treasurer”) of Corinth (Rom 16.23), the only convert who is known to have held a civic office. A pavement in Corinth from the area between the north market and the theater bears an inscription stating that Erastus paid the area at his own expense in return for the office of aedile (one of the four magistrates who governed the city, and particularly the public officers in charge of the streets). Since the name is an unusual one (no other instances are known), scholars think it possible that it was the same person mentioned by Paul. The term that Paul uses is not the Greek equivalent for aedile, so it may represent a lesser position in the municipal government that was an intermediate step on the way to becoming a magistrate.

Since Corinth had been refounded as a Roman colony under Julius Caesar less than a century before, and therefore would have had no long-entrenched ruling class, the opportunities offered for civic advancement may have encouraged competition. In other cities, the ranks of citizens—those enrolled who could hold various public offices—were strictly limited to a particular group of aristocratic families. Other residents, no matter how wealthy or influential, were excluded. Jews who sought to be included on the citizen rolls of Alexandria were rebuffed. Since Roman citizens and the Greek citizens of Alexandria were exempt from poll taxes levied by the Roman state, this status carried some economic advantage. Most Jews, who were laborers and artisans, would not have been eligible for enrollment in any case.
Whether Jewish families succeeded in joining the citizen elite elsewhere in the Diaspora is less clear. Luke has Paul claim to be a citizen of Tarsus (Acts 21:39), but this may be mistaken or imprecise.

LITERACY AND EDUCATION

Scholars remain divided over how to assess the extent of literacy in the Greco-Roman period. Portraits showing girls holding the stylus and wax tablet of the student suggest that among the elite some level of education extended to women, but on the evidence of documentary papyri, far fewer women than men were able to sign their names, and women who were able to write often pointed out that fact explicitly. The cities and larger villages of Egypt had teachers who drilled children in the rudiments of reading and writing Greek as well as the study of classic texts. Further education would require sending each young person, accompanied by a family slave, off to Alexandria in search of a suitable tutor.

Even among those who could read, the difficulty of deciphering texts in which all the letters were run together (the standard way in which ancient texts are written) often made it preferable to listen to a slave who was trained to read such texts aloud. We can deduce which texts were most in demand by studying the literary papyri. Texts of Homer are by far the most frequently found, with considerable numbers of texts by Demosthenes, Euripides, and Hesiod as well. Technical manuals on such subjects as medicine and astrology also show up in papyri fragments. Among the papyri that have been discovered are some that were orders to and from a book dealer in Oxyrhynchus: Outgoing orders seek dialogues of Plato and works of Homer, Menander, Euripides, and Aristophanes. The dealer acknowledges receipt of treatises on such edifying subjects as “On Training,” “On Marriage,” “On Freedom from Pain,” “On the Uses of Parents,” “On the Uses of Domestic Slaves,” and Book 3 of a work by Poseidonius, “On Persuasion” (see P. Oxy. 1153; 2192). Apparently this dealer’s clientele read for self-improvement and practical purposes as much as for entertainment and philosophical enlightenment.

The requirements of reading Torah may have made basic schooling even more necessary for Jewish boys, for whom the Bible would replace Homer as the primary text. Assimilated Jews in cities like Tarsus and Alexandria, however, saw to it that their sons received instruction in the classics as well. Philo defends the practice of sending Jewish students on to the more advanced instruction in arithmetic, geometry, music, and philosophy at the equivalent of a secondary school, the gymnasium (Special Laws 2.229–30). Educational centers like Alexandria and Tarsus had numerous schools of rhetoric to further a young man’s ability to take his place in public affairs by training him to speak fluently and write persuasively. Although Paul insists that eloquence (“wisdom”) is not needed to communicate the truth of the gospel (1 Cor 1.17) and disclaims any use of such methods (1 Cor 2.4; 2 Cor 11.6), both his opponents (2 Cor 10.10) and contemporary scholars notice a high degree of rhetorical art in his letters. Even his refusal to engage in the sort of rhetorical discourse that would please his audience exhibits familiarity with such arts (see the “fool’s speech,” 2 Cor 11.1–12.13).

It is more difficult to assess the kind of education received by boys growing up in the Galilean towns and villages. In an oral society, persons can be highly skilled and even have extensive cultural knowledge, such as Jesus’ knowledge of scripture, without being able to read or write. Luke 4.16 presumes that Jesus was literate, though Luke may be speaking from the perspective of an urban class that assumes literate habits as a normal part of education. The Jewish historian Josephus writing in the 90s ce makes no such assumption. Weekly Torah study can be accomplished orally: “He [Moses] appointed the Law to be most excellent and a necessary form of instructions, ordaining that it be heard not once or twice or several times, but that every week men should quit their other occupations and assemble to listen to the Law and obtain a thorough and accurate knowledge of it” (Ag. Ap. 2.175).

The first-century ce synagogue building at Gamla in the Golan lacks the elaborate religious features of later synagogues like that at Capernaum. It consists of a central nave created by two rows of columns and four levels of stone benches set in steps along the walls. Without the ritual bath attached to the complex, there would be nothing to distinguish it from an ordinary assembly hall. There is no evidence of a Torah shrine built into the walls, of a fixed elevated podium from which Torah was read, or of a seat of honor near the center; presumably Torah reading and instruction took place in the central area. The architectural space of the synagogue could serve a variety of community functions, from teaching and worship to legal proceedings and social gathering.

Another form of education required by Jesus and his disciples involves skills specific to their individual trades. Measuring, counting, and recording skills necessary to building or running a fishing business could have been taught on an apprentice basis. Tax collectors had to keep records of persons and amounts. Officials in the local Jewish community also had to collect the annual half-shekel paid to the Temple by all Jewish males (Ex 30.11–16; Mt 17.24–27). Such practical skills must have been taught, but little evidence of the process survives. Though not considered “education” by the literate, rhe-
THE ROMAN PERIOD

The construction of shrines and festivals in the Greco-Roman cities or by the literate scribes learned in Jewish Torah, such skills would have distinguished Jesus and his disciples from others in their villages.

RELIGION, ASTROLOGY, AND MAGIC

When Herod the Great built Caesarea Maritima, he placed the temple to Rome and Augustus in a prominent place. The city was dedicated to the emperor; its civic life would include festive sacrifices in the ruler’s honor. Herod’s renovations to the Jerusalem Temple and his expansions of its surroundings were planned to enhance the prestige of the city. Other cities also had famous shrines and festivals that drew visitors from abroad. Acts 19.21–40 tells a story of a riot at Ephesus that occurred when those who sold silver models of its famous temple to the goddess Artemis (Diana) claimed that the effectiveness of Paul’s preaching had cut into their business.

Christianity did not deliver the death blow to the established civic worship that Luke seems to suggest. Most of his readers lived in cities, and they could easily witness the ongoing enthusiasm for sacrifices and festivals. What individual residents actually believed about the gods was not an issue; their participation, not their internal assent, was the key, and that participation (or lack of it) was observed by the authorities. To join in sacrifices honoring the Roman emperor, for example, demonstrated that the city and its populace were loyal subjects of the empire. Jews refused to participate in these events, and this refusal often brought on them accusations of “hatred of humanity.” At Alexandria some argued that Jews could never be admitted to the citizen rolls because they did not worship the city’s gods. Nevertheless, through long-tolerated practice, Jews were not often persecuted for this failure to participate in civic rituals. When Christians who were not of Jewish origin began to withdraw from such public activities, however, it caused comment, suspicion, and even persecution. A story like that of Paul’s deeds in Ephesus, leading some to abandon the worship of Artemis, would have highlighted the superiority of Christ to one of Asia Minor’s most famous religious shrines and might increase Christian resolve to remain separate. Not all Christians would choose persecution, however. Some clearly followed the lead of educated pagans, who often did not believe in the real existence of the gods, or in their myths. They would join public religious activities as required by their social status or civic office, as a social bond rather than as a religious profession. When faced with Christians who obstinately refused to participate, magistrates had no qualms about sentencing them to exile or death.

Astrologers, diviners, and magicians could be visited in the marketplace. Though such activities were frowned upon by those higher in the social scale, the large number of horoscopes, amulets, and magic spells recovered shows that these methods of making decisions, predicting the future, and bringing good luck (or guarding against bad) continued to be popular. Astrologers to the upper classes justified their practices with a philosophical veneer based on Stoic physical doctrines explaining the relations between earthly and heavenly bodies by means of an all-pervading “rational spirit.” Christian insistence that the glorified and exalted Christ is above all the demonic powers and planetary forces (see Col 2.8–23; Eph 1.15–2.2; 6.12) did little to curb popular enthusiasm for these beliefs and practices. Biblical texts show up in Christian magical amulets. Jesus’ exorcisms led to accusations that his powers were a consequence of an alliance with the leader of the demonic world (Mk 3.22–30), and Acts describes conflicts between Christian missionaries and local magicians (8.4–25; 13.4–12).

PHILOSOPHY AS HEALING THE SOUL

Unlike the monotheistic faith of Jews and Christians, which placed a high premium on hearing, interpreting, and acting on divine revelation preserved in sacred texts, Greco-Roman religions did not produce texts, legal and ethical codes, or theological doctrines. Those who sought teaching about the divine and its relationship to the observable cosmos, or moral guidance and advice about how to live a good life, turned to philosophy. Formal study of the philosophical systems that emerged from the schools of classical and Hellenistic Athens—especially Platonism, Stoicism, and Epicureanism—could only be pursued by the elite, who had the leisure time to devote to them. Luke’s tale of Paul’s visit to Athens (Acts 17.16–31) shows its first-century reputation as a destination for intellectuals, not the powerful center of commerce and art that it had been.

More ordinary citizens learned what they knew of philosophy from anthologies of moralistic tales, treatises on how to cope with various problems in life, public discourses offered by itinerant philosophical preachers, and the like. The philosopher-teacher saw himself as a physician for the soul. Under his guidance, people might be converted from the mindless, destructive pursuit of the passions, from fears about a future they could not control, even from superstitious belief in the gods. Some treatises, like Plutarch’s “Advice on Marriage” (Mor. 12.138–46) even recommend that the young husband share his knowledge with his wife. Such knowledge will protect her against the passion for luxuries, foolish behavior, and talk common among women. If she knows something of Plato, Xenophon, and astronomy, she... will not be taken in by the common practices of magic or witchcraft. Such treatises also presume that in the properly ordered household the husband governs the life of his wife, his children, and his slaves in accordance with a reason that has been schooled by philosophical instruction. Similar kinds of assumptions appear in sections of the New Testament often referred to as “household codes” (Col 3:18–4:1; Eph 5:21–6:9; 1 Pet 2:18–3:7). They also inform the descriptions of requirements for leadership (1 Tim 3:1–11), including those that exclude women from teaching or supervising men (1 Tim 2:9–15; 1 Cor 14:34–36).

Scholars have become particularly interested in a movement of rough-spoken, anti-establishment street preachers called Cynics, from the Greek word for dog, originally a derogatory name that referred to their unrefined public behavior. Claiming as their inspiration Socrates, the impoverished stone mason who went about Athens challenging all its citizens, representatives of this movement could be found in the public marketplaces. They rejected the comforts that could be offered by wealthy patrons and lived on as little as possible. They were known for sharp sayings intended to wound an opponent, not persuasive speeches to soothe one into agreement. If the harsh medicine worked, the hearer might convert to a philosophical way of life. If not, he might become angry, even murderously so, as had Socrates’s opponents. Some scholars think that this movement provides the best ancient analogy for the itinerant mission of Jesus and his disciples, as depicted in the Gospels. Others have proposed that Paul’s description of himself as the solicitous nurse or the father to his fledgling converts (1 Thess 2:1–12) is analogous to the Cynics’ relationship to their own followers. Although these cultural models may not have dictated the content of early Christian preaching, they provide a context for understanding what missionaries like Paul were doing in the cities that they visited, and how they would have appeared to their first hearers.
TIMELINE

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Date</th>
<th>Period</th>
<th>Egypt</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Ca. 3300–2000 BCE</td>
<td>EARLY BRONZE AGE</td>
<td>Early Bronze I</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3300–3100 BCE</td>
<td></td>
<td>Earliest forms of writing</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>3100–2700</td>
<td>Early Bronze II</td>
<td>Political unification; Early Dynastic period</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2700–2300 BCE</td>
<td>Early Bronze III</td>
<td>Old Kingdom; Dynasties 3–5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2300–2000 BCE</td>
<td>Early Bronze IV</td>
<td>First Intermediate Period</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ca. 2000–1550 BCE</td>
<td>MIDDLE BRONZE AGE</td>
<td>Middle Kingdom; Dynasties 11–12</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2000–1650 BCE</td>
<td>Middle Bronze I–II</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1650–1550 BCE</td>
<td>Middle Bronze III</td>
<td>Second Intermediate/ Hyksos Period</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ca. 1550–1200 BCE</td>
<td>LATE BRONZE AGE</td>
<td>New Kingdom; Dynasties 18–19:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Thutmose III (1479–1425), Akenhaten (1352–1336),</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Seti I (1294–1279), Rameses II (1279–1213),</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Merneptah (1213–1203); Sea Peoples (groups including Philistines)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>invasions begin</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ca. 1200–586 BCE</td>
<td>IRON AGE</td>
<td>Rameses III (1184–1153)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ca. 1200–1025</td>
<td>Iron I</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ca. 1025–586</td>
<td>Iron II</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ca. 1025–928</td>
<td>Iron IIA</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ca. 928–722</td>
<td>Iron IIB</td>
<td>Shishak I invades Palestine (925)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

1. For a more complete list of rulers, see “Chronological Table of Rulers,” pp. 2258–61.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SYRIA-PALESTINE</th>
<th>MESOPOTAMIA, ASIA MINOR</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Earliest forms of writing; Full urbanization; Sumerian culture develops</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>In Egyptian sphere</td>
<td>High point of Sumerian culture</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Flourishing city-states</td>
<td>Sargon of Akkad; Naram-Sin of Akkad; Gudea of Lagash</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Decline/abandonment of city-states</td>
<td>Third Dynasty of Ur</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Revival of urbanism; Invention of alphabet</td>
<td>Amorite kingdoms: Shamshi-Adad of Assyria (ca. 1813–1781); Hammurapi of Babylon (ca. 1792–1750); Rise of Hittites</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>In Egyptian sphere; Rise of Mitanni in north; Ugarit flourishes;</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Exodus of the Hebrews from Egypt;</td>
<td>Hittites challenge Egypt for control of Syria;</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Collapse of city-states</td>
<td>Hittite empire collapses; Trojan War</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Israel emerges in Canaan; Philistines settle on SW coast; Small city-states develop in Phoenicia, Syria, Transjordan</td>
<td>Resurgence of Assyria:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>United Monarchy in Israel: Saul (1025–1005); David (1005–965); Solomon (968–928)</td>
<td>Tiglath-pileser I (1114–1076)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Divided Monarchy:</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>JUDAH:</td>
<td>ISRAEL:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rehoboam (928–911)</td>
<td>Jeroboam I (928–907)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jeroboam II (788–747)</td>
<td>Rise of Neo-Assyrian Empire</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Omri (882–871); Capital at Samaria</td>
<td>Shalmaneser III (858–824); Battle of Qarqar (853)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ahab (873–852)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jehoshaphat (867–846)</td>
<td>Prophet Elijah (mid-ninth century)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prophet Elisha (mid- to late ninth century)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Athaliah (842–836)</td>
<td>Jehu (842–814)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jehoash (836–798)</td>
<td>Jehoash (800–788)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jehoash (800–788)</td>
<td>Adad-nirari III (811–783)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jeroboam II (788–747)</td>
<td>Prophet Amos (mid-eighth century)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prophet Hosea (mid-eighth century)</td>
<td>Tiglath-pileser III (745–727); Assyrian conquest of the Levant</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ahaz (743/735–727/715)</td>
<td>Shalmaneser V (727–722)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hoshea (732–722)</td>
<td>Samaria captured (722)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>DATE</td>
<td>PERIOD</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>------------</td>
<td>--------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ca. 722–586</td>
<td>Iron IIC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ca. 586–539</td>
<td>NEO-BABYLONIAN</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>539–333</td>
<td>PERSIAN</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>333–63</td>
<td>HELLENISTIC</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>63 BCE–330 CE</td>
<td>ROMAN</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SYRIA–PALESTINE</td>
<td>MESOPOTAMIA</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>----------------</td>
<td>-------------</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>JUDAH:</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prophet Isaiah (late eighth to early seventh centuries)</td>
<td>Sargon II (722–705)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prophet Micah (late eighth century)</td>
<td>Sennacherib (705–681); Attack on Judah and siege of Jerusalem (701)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hezekiah (727/715–698/687)</td>
<td>Esar-haddon (681–669)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Manasseh (698/687–642)</td>
<td>Ashurbanipal (669–627)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Josiah (639–609)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prophet Zephaniah (late seventh century)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prophet Jeremiah (late seventh to early sixth centuries)</td>
<td>Rise of Babylon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hezekiah (609)</td>
<td>Assyrian capital of Nineveh captured (612)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jehoahaz (608–598)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jehoiakim (608–598)</td>
<td>Nebuchadrezzar II (604–562) of Babylon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jehoiachin (597)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prophet Ezekiel (early sixth century)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zedekiah (597–586); Capture of Jerusalem (586)</td>
<td>Nabolitius (556–539)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>EASTERN AND MEDITERRANEAN</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Some exiles return from Babylon (538)</td>
<td>Cyrus II (the Great) (559–530); Capture of Babylon</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Second Temple built (520–515)</td>
<td>Camys (530–522); Capture of Egypt (525)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Prophet Haggai (520); Prophet Zechariah (520–518)</td>
<td>Darius I (522–486)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nehemiah governor of Judah (ca. 445–430)</td>
<td>Xerxes I (486–465)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mission of Ezra the scribe (mid-fifth [or early fourth] century)</td>
<td>Artaxerxes I (465–424)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Seleucus I (312/311–281) controls Syria and Mesopotamia
Ptolemy I (323–282) controls Egypt, Palestine, Phoenicia
Antiochus III (223–187) gains control of southern Syria, Phoenicia, and Judea from Ptolemy IV (202–198)
Ben Sira (Sirach) (early second century)
Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–164)
Revolts of the Maccabees (167–164)

HASMONEAN RULE OF JUDEA (165–37):
John Hyrcanus I (135–104); Alexander Janneus (103–76); Salome Alexandra (76–67)

Pompey conquers the Levant (66–62); Enters Jerusalem (63)
Herod the Great king of Judea (37–4); Rebuilds Second Temple
(Herod) Antipas (4 BCE–39 CE)
Life of Jesus of Nazareth (ca. 4 BCE–30 CE)
Pontius Pilate governor of Judea (26–36)
(Herod) Agrippa I (39–44)
Missionary activity of Paul (mid-first century)
(Herod) Agrippa II (53–93)
First Jewish Revolt in Judea against Rome (66–73); Jerusalem is captured (70)

Jewish revolts in Egypt, Libya, Cyprus (115–118)
Second Jewish Revolt in Judea against Rome (132–135)
CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE OF RULERS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>DATE</th>
<th>EGYPT</th>
<th>ASSYRIA</th>
<th>BABYLONIA</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1300 BCE</td>
<td>DYNASTY 19 (1295–1186):&lt;br&gt;Seti I (1294–1279)&lt;br&gt;Rameses II (1279–1213)&lt;br&gt;Merneptah (1213–1203)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1200</td>
<td>DYNASTY 20 (1186–1069):&lt;br&gt;Tiglath-pileser I (1114–1076)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1000</td>
<td>DYNASTIES 22–24 (945–715):&lt;br&gt;Shoshenq I (Shishak) (945–924)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>800</td>
<td>DYNASTY 25 (780–656):&lt;br&gt;Adad-nirari III (811–783)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>700</td>
<td>Taharqa (Tirhakah) (690–664)</td>
<td>Sennacherib (705–681)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Esar-hadden (681–669)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ashurbanipal (669–627)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ashur-etil-ilani</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>DYNASTY 26 (664–525):&lt;br&gt;Sin-shum-lishir (627–612)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Sin-shar-ishkun</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Psammetichus I (664–610)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Nabo-polassar (625–605)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Nebuchadrezzar II</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>(Nebuchadnezzar) (605–562)</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ashurbanipal (669–627)</td>
<td>Neriglissar (560–556)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ashur-etil-ilani</td>
<td>Labashi-Marduk (556)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Nabo-polassar (625–605)</td>
<td>Nabonidus (556–539)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Nebuchadrezzar II</td>
<td>Belshazzar (coregent 553–543)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>400</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>325 BCE</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Chronological Table of Rulers

Persia

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Ruler</th>
<th>Reigns</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Cyrus II</td>
<td>559–530</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cambyses</td>
<td>530–522</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Darius I</td>
<td>522–486</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Xerxes I (Ahasuerus)</td>
<td>486–465</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Artaxerxes I</td>
<td>465–424</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Darius II</td>
<td>423–405</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Israel

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Ruler</th>
<th>Reigns</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Solomon (Yedidiah)</td>
<td>968–928</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Saul</td>
<td>1025–1005</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>David</td>
<td>1005–965</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Rehoboam</td>
<td>928–911</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Abijam (Abijah)</td>
<td>911–908</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Asa</td>
<td>908–867</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jehoshaphat</td>
<td>870–846</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jehoram (Joram)</td>
<td>851–843</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ahaziah (Jehoahaz)</td>
<td>843–842</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Athaliah</td>
<td>842–836</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jehoash (Joash)</td>
<td>836–798</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Azariah (Uzziah)</td>
<td>785–733</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jotham</td>
<td>759–743</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ahaz</td>
<td>743/735–727/715</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hezekiah</td>
<td>727/715–698/687</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

United Monarchy:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Ruler</th>
<th>Reigns</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Saul</td>
<td>1025–1005</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Solomon (Yedidiah)</td>
<td>968–928</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>David</td>
<td>1005–965</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Divided Monarchy:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Ruler</th>
<th>Reigns</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Jeroboam I</td>
<td>928–907</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Nadab</td>
<td>907–906</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Baasha</td>
<td>906–883</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Elah</td>
<td>883–882</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zimri</td>
<td>882–871</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ahab</td>
<td>873–852</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jeroboam II</td>
<td>788–747</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zechariah</td>
<td>747</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Shallum</td>
<td>747</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Menahem</td>
<td>747–737</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pekahiah</td>
<td>737–735</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pekah</td>
<td>735–732</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Hoshea</td>
<td>732–722</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Ruler</th>
<th>Reigns</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Manasseh</td>
<td>698/687–642</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Amon</td>
<td>641–640</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Josiah</td>
<td>640–609</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jehoahaz (Shallum)</td>
<td>609</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jehoiakim (Eliakim)</td>
<td>608–598</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jehoiachin (Jeconiah, etc.)</td>
<td>597</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zedekiah (Mattaniah)</td>
<td>597–586</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Note: Names in boldface occur in the Bible. Overlapping dates indicate coregencies. Date ranges are reigns, not life spans.

1. The data are inconsistent for the dates of the reigns of Ahaz, Hezekiah, and Manasseh.

---

Cyrus II (559–530)

Cambyses (530–522)

Darius I (522–486)

Xerxes I (Ahasuerus) (486–465)

Artaxerxes I (465–424)

Darius II (423–405)

Artaxerxes II (405–359)

Artaxerxes III (359–338)

Artaxerxes IV (338–336)

Darius III (336–330)
CHRONOLOGICAL TABLE OF RULERS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>DATE</th>
<th>EGYPT</th>
<th>SYRIA</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>HELLENISTIC PERIOD</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Alexander (the Great) (336–323)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>300 BCE</td>
<td>Ptolemy I Soter (305–282)</td>
<td>Seleucus I Nicator (305–281)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy III Euergetes (246–221)</td>
<td>Antiochus II Theos (261–246)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy IV Philopator (221–204)</td>
<td>Seleucus II Callinicus (246–225)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy V Epiphanes (204–180); Cleopatra I (180–176)</td>
<td>Seleucus III Soter Ceraunos (225–223)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy VI Philometor (180–145); Cleopatra II (175–116)</td>
<td>Antiochus III (the Great) (223–187)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy VII Neos Philopator (145)</td>
<td>Seleucus IV Philopator (187–175)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy VIII Euergetes II Physcon (170–116)</td>
<td>Antiochus IV Epiphanes (175–164)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cleopatra III (116–101)</td>
<td>Ptolemy VI Neos Philopator (145)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>100 BCE</td>
<td>Cleopatra Berenice (101–88)</td>
<td>Demetrius I Soter (162–150)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy X Alexander I (107–88)</td>
<td>Alexander Epiphanes (Balas) (150–145)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cleopatra XI Philopator (80)</td>
<td>Demetrius II Nicator (145–141 and 129–125)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XII Auletes (80–59 and 55–51)</td>
<td>Antiochus VI Epiphanes (145–142)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>50 BCE</td>
<td>Cleopatra VII (51–30)</td>
<td>Trypho (142–138)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XIII (51–47)</td>
<td>Antiochus VII Sidetes (138–129)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XIV (47–44)</td>
<td>Cleopatra Thea (126–121)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cleopatra Thea (126–121)</td>
<td>Antiochus VIII Grypus (125–121 and 121–96)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XII Auletes (80–59 and 55–51)</td>
<td>Seleucus V (125)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>25 CE</td>
<td>Cleopatra VII (51–30)</td>
<td>Antiochus IX Cyzicenus (115–95)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XIII (51–47)</td>
<td>Seleucus VI (95)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XIV (47–44)</td>
<td>Antiochus X Eusebes (95–83)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Seleucus V (95)</td>
<td>Antiochus XI Philadelphus (95)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cleopatra Berenice (101–88)</td>
<td>Demetrius III Eukairos (95–88)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy X Alexander I (107–88)</td>
<td>Philip I Epiphanes Philadelphus (95–84)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cleopatra XI Philopator (80)</td>
<td>Antiochus XII Dionysus Epiphanes (87–84)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XII Auletes (80–59 and 55–51)</td>
<td>Philip II (67–66)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cleopatra VII (51–30)</td>
<td>Antiochus XIII Asiaticus (69–68 and 65–64)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>50 CE</td>
<td>Cleopatra VII (51–30)</td>
<td>Seleucus V (95)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XIII (51–47)</td>
<td>Antiochus X Eusebes (95–83)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XIV (47–44)</td>
<td>Antiochus XI Philadelphus (95)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cleopatra Berenice (101–88)</td>
<td>Demetrius III Eukairos (95–88)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy X Alexander I (107–88)</td>
<td>Philip I Epiphanes Philadelphus (95–84)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cleopatra XI Philopator (80)</td>
<td>Antiochus XII Dionysus Epiphanes (87–84)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XII Auletes (80–59 and 55–51)</td>
<td>Philip II (67–66)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>100 CE</td>
<td>Cleopatra VII (51–30)</td>
<td>Antiochus XIII Asiaticus (69–68 and 65–64)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XIII (51–47)</td>
<td>Seleucus V (95)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XIV (47–44)</td>
<td>Antiochus X Eusebes (95–83)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cleopatra Berenice (101–88)</td>
<td>Antiochus XI Philadelphus (95)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy X Alexander I (107–88)</td>
<td>Demetrius III Eukairos (95–88)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cleopatra XI Philopator (80)</td>
<td>Philip I Epiphanes Philadelphus (95–84)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XII Auletes (80–59 and 55–51)</td>
<td>Antiochus XII Dionysus Epiphanes (87–84)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cleopatra VII (51–30)</td>
<td>Philip II (67–66)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XIII (51–47)</td>
<td>Antiochus XIII Asiaticus (69–68 and 65–64)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XIV (47–44)</td>
<td>Seleucus V (95)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cleopatra Berenice (101–88)</td>
<td>Antiochus X Eusebes (95–83)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy X Alexander I (107–88)</td>
<td>Antiochus XI Philadelphus (95)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cleopatra XI Philopator (80)</td>
<td>Demetrius III Eukairos (95–88)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XII Auletes (80–59 and 55–51)</td>
<td>Philip I Epiphanes Philadelphus (95–84)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Cleopatra VII (51–30)</td>
<td>Antiochus XII Dionysus Epiphanes (87–84)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XIII (51–47)</td>
<td>Philip II (67–66)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>Ptolemy XIV (47–44)</td>
<td>Antiochus XIII Asiaticus (69–68 and 65–64)</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

ROME

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>DATE</th>
<th>EMPERORS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>ROMAN EMPIRE:</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>27 BCE–14 CE</td>
<td>Octavian (Augustus)</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>14–37</td>
<td>Tiberius</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>37–41</td>
<td>Gaius Caligula</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>41–54</td>
<td>Claudius</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>54–68</td>
<td>Nero</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>68–69; Otho (69); Vitellius (69)</td>
<td>Galba</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>69–79</td>
<td>Vespasian</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>79–81</td>
<td>Titus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>81–96</td>
<td>Domitian</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>96–98</td>
<td>Nerva</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>98–117</td>
<td>Trajan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>117–138</td>
<td>Hadrian</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PALESTINE</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>---</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Hasmonean Rulers

[Mattathias d. 166]
- Judas Maccabeus, son of Mattathias (165–160)
- Jonathan, son of Mattathias (160–142)
- Simon, son of Mattathias (142–135)
- John Hyrcanus I, son of Simon (135–104)

Judah Aristobulus I, son of John Hyrcanus (104–103)

Alexander Janneus, son of John Hyrcanus (103–76)

Salome Alexandra, wife of Alexander Jannaeus (76–67)

Aristobulus II, son of Alexander Jannaeus and Salome Alexandra (67–63)

Hyrcanus II, son of Alexander Jannaeus and Salome Alexandra (63–40)

Mattathias Antigonus, son of Aristobulus II (40–37)

Herodian Dynasty

- Herod the Great, king of the Jews (37–4)
- Herod Archelaus, son of Herod the Great, ethnarch of Judea, Samaria, Idumea (4 BCE–6 CE)
- Herod Antipas, son of Herod the Great, tetrarch of Galilee and Perea (4 BCE–39 CE)
- Herod Philip, son of Herod the Great, tetrarch of Batanea, Trachonitis, Auranitis (4 BCE–34 CE)

Herod Agrippa I, grandson of Herod the Great, king of Batanea, Trachonitis, Auranitis (37–44) and of Judea, Galilee, and Perea (41–44)

Herod Agrippa II, son of Herod Agrippa I, king of Chalcis (50–53), king of Batanea, Trachonitis, Auranitis, Galilee, Perea (53–ca. 93)

Roman Governors of Judea

- Coponius (6–8 CE)
- M. Ambivius (9–12)
- Annius Rufus (12–15)
- Valerius Gratus (15–26)
- Pontius Pilate (26–36)
- Marcellus (36–37)
- Marullus (37–41)
- Cuspius Fadus (44–46)
- Tiberius Julius Alexander (46–48)
- Ventidius Cumanus (48–52)
- M. Antonius Felix (52–60?)
- Porcius Festus (60?–62)
- Clodius Albinus (62–64)
- Gessius Florus (64–66)

---

2. In 41 Judea was made part of the kingdom of Herod Agrippa I, grandson of Herod the Great (see Herodian Dynasty, above). At his death in 44 it became a province again.
WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

The modern equivalents for biblical measures and weights are presented in the following tables.

HEBREW WEIGHTS

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>HEBREW</th>
<th>NRSV</th>
<th>EQUIVALENCE</th>
<th>U.S. AVOIRDUPOIS</th>
<th>METRIC UNITS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>kikkar</td>
<td>talent</td>
<td>60 minas</td>
<td>75.558 pounds</td>
<td>34.3 kilograms</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>maneh</td>
<td>mina</td>
<td>50 shekels</td>
<td>20.148 ounces</td>
<td>571.2 grams</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>sheqel</td>
<td>shekel</td>
<td>2 bekas</td>
<td>176.29 grains</td>
<td>11.42 grams</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>pim (or payim)</td>
<td>pim</td>
<td>.667 shekel</td>
<td>117.52 grains</td>
<td>7.61 grams</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>beqa'</td>
<td>beka, half a shekel</td>
<td>10 gerahs</td>
<td>88.14 grains</td>
<td>5.71 grams</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>gerah</td>
<td>gerah</td>
<td></td>
<td>8.81 grains</td>
<td>.57 gram</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The practice of weighing unmarked ingots of metal used in commercial transactions prior to the invention of money explains that the names of the units of weight were used later as indications of value, and as names for monetary standards. There is, however, no direct relation between the shekel-weight and the weight of a shekel piece.

WEIGHTS IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>GREEK</th>
<th>NRSV</th>
<th>EQUIVALENCE</th>
<th>U.S. AVOIRDUPOIS</th>
<th>METRIC UNITS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>talenton</td>
<td>talent</td>
<td>(Hebrew) talent</td>
<td>75.558 pounds</td>
<td>34.3 kilograms</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>mna</td>
<td>pound</td>
<td>(Hebrew) mina</td>
<td>20.148 ounces</td>
<td>571.2 grams</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>litera</td>
<td>pound</td>
<td>(Latin) libra</td>
<td>0.719 pound</td>
<td>326.4 grams</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

HEBREW MEASURES OF LENGTH

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>HEBREW</th>
<th>NRSV</th>
<th>EQUIVALENCE</th>
<th>U.S. MEASURES</th>
<th>METRIC UNITS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>'amma'h</td>
<td>cubit</td>
<td>2 spans</td>
<td>17.49 inches</td>
<td>.443 meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>zeret</td>
<td>span</td>
<td>3 handbreadths</td>
<td>8.745 inches</td>
<td>.221 meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>topa'h, tepa'h</td>
<td>handbreadth</td>
<td>4 fingers</td>
<td>2.915 inches</td>
<td>.074 meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>'etsba'</td>
<td>finger</td>
<td>0.728 inch</td>
<td>.019 meter</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

The cubit described in Ezekiel 40.5; 43.13 is equal to seven (not six) handbreadths, namely 20.405 inches.

MEASURES OF LENGTH IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>GREEK</th>
<th>NRSV</th>
<th>U.S. MEASURES</th>
<th>METRIC UNITS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>pechus</td>
<td>cubit</td>
<td>about 1.5 feet</td>
<td>.456 meter</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>orguia</td>
<td>fathom</td>
<td>about 72.44 inches</td>
<td>1.839 meters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>stadiun</td>
<td>stadia, or the equivalent in miles</td>
<td>about 606 feet</td>
<td>184.7 meters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>milion</td>
<td>mile</td>
<td>about 4,854 feet</td>
<td>1.482 kilometers</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

HEBREW MEASURES OF CAPACITY: LIQUID MEASURES

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>HEBREW</th>
<th>NRSV</th>
<th>EQUIVALENCE</th>
<th>U.S. MEASURES</th>
<th>METRIC UNITS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>kor</td>
<td>measure, cor</td>
<td>10 baths</td>
<td>60.738 gallons</td>
<td>230 liters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>bat</td>
<td>bath</td>
<td>6 hins</td>
<td>6.073 gallons</td>
<td>23 liters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>hin</td>
<td>hin</td>
<td>3 kabs</td>
<td>1.012 gallons</td>
<td>3.829 liters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>qab</td>
<td>kab</td>
<td>4 logs</td>
<td>1.4349 quarts</td>
<td>1.276 liters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>log</td>
<td>log</td>
<td></td>
<td>0.674 pint</td>
<td>.32 liter</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
HEBREW MEASURES OF CAPACITY: DRY MEASURES

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>HEBREW</th>
<th>NRSV</th>
<th>EQUIVALENCE</th>
<th>U.S. MEASURES</th>
<th>METRIC UNITS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>homer</td>
<td>homer</td>
<td>2 lethechs</td>
<td>6.524 bushels</td>
<td>229.7 liters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>kor</td>
<td>measure, cor</td>
<td>2 lethechs</td>
<td>6.524 bushels</td>
<td>229.7 liters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>letek</td>
<td>lethech, measure</td>
<td>5 ephahs</td>
<td>3.262 bushels</td>
<td>114.8 liters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>'epah</td>
<td>ephah, measure</td>
<td>3 seahs</td>
<td>20.878 quarts</td>
<td>22.9 liters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>se'ah</td>
<td>measure</td>
<td>3.33 omers</td>
<td>6.959 quarts</td>
<td>7.7 liters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>'omer</td>
<td>omer</td>
<td>1.8 kabs</td>
<td>2.087 quarts</td>
<td>2.3 liters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>'issaron</td>
<td>tenth part (of ephah)</td>
<td>1.159 quarts</td>
<td>1.3 liters</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>gab</td>
<td>kab</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

MEASURES OF CAPACITY IN THE NEW TESTAMENT

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>GREEK</th>
<th>NRSV</th>
<th>EQUIVALENCE</th>
<th>U.S. MEASURES</th>
<th>METRIC UNITS</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>batos</td>
<td>measure</td>
<td>(Hebrew) bat</td>
<td>6.073 gallons</td>
<td>23 liters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>koros</td>
<td>measure</td>
<td>(Hebrew) kor</td>
<td>60.738 gallons or 6.524 bushels</td>
<td>230 liters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>saton</td>
<td>measure</td>
<td>(Hebrew) se'ah</td>
<td>6.959 dry quarts</td>
<td>7.71 liters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>metretes</td>
<td>measure</td>
<td>10.3 gallons</td>
<td>39 liters</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>choinix</td>
<td>quart</td>
<td>0.98 dry quart</td>
<td>1.079 liters</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>modios</td>
<td>bushel</td>
<td>(Latin) modius</td>
<td>7.68 dry quarts</td>
<td>8.458 liters</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>xestes</td>
<td>pot</td>
<td>(Latin) sextarius</td>
<td>0.96 dry pint, or 1.12 fluid pints</td>
<td>.53 liter</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

CALENDAR

The year was composed of twelve lunar months (beginning on the day of the new moon), with an intercalary month added periodically (see perhaps 1 Kings 12.33). In some traditions, and perhaps originally, the year began in the fall, at the autumnal equinox (see Ex 23.16; 34.22). In others, following Babylonian practice, the new year was celebrated in the spring. The fall new year became standard in postbiblical Judaism.

Months in the Bible are usually identified by ordinal numbers, beginning with the spring new year. Some months (in boldface in the following list) are also designated with names derived either from a Canaanite calendar or, in postexilic texts, from a Babylonian one; the names of months not found in the Bible are known from other ancient sources.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CANAANITE NAME</th>
<th>BABYLONIAN NAME</th>
<th>MODERN EQUIVALENT</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>First</td>
<td>Abib</td>
<td>Nisan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Second</td>
<td>Ziv</td>
<td>Iyyar</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Third</td>
<td>Ethanim</td>
<td>Sivan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fourth</td>
<td>Bul</td>
<td>Tammuz</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fifth</td>
<td></td>
<td>Ab</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sixth</td>
<td></td>
<td>Elul</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Seventh</td>
<td></td>
<td>Tishri</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eighth</td>
<td></td>
<td>Marheshvan</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ninth</td>
<td></td>
<td>Chislev</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tenth</td>
<td></td>
<td>Tebeth</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Eleventh</td>
<td></td>
<td>Shebat</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Twelfth</td>
<td></td>
<td>Adar</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>March–April</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>April–May</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>May–June</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>June–July</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>July–August</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>August–September</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>September–October</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>October–November</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>November–December</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>December–January</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>January–February</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>February–March</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
PARALLEL TEXTS

Alongside the widespread evidence of alternative traditions in the Bible, in which two or more authors or traditions deal with the same general subjects (e.g., the two accounts of creation in Gen 1–3; the Gospel of John as compared with the first three Gospels), throughout the Bible there are also literary relationships between one book or part of a book and another. Sometimes the authors or editors of one book simply reproduced their sources verbatim; sometimes they were retouched. Often called “synoptic passages,” because when viewed together their common elements can be seen, these texts are important in understanding the specific purposes and themes of a writer by analyzing what was included, added, omitted, revised, and rearranged. There follows a listing of the larger synoptic passages throughout the Bible. These texts have a demonstrable literary relationship with each other, either direct, where a source can be identified, or indirect, where a source that no longer survives but must be presumed is quoted at length and verbatim, or with only minor modifications in one or more places.

HEBREW BIBLE

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>HEBREW BIBLE</th>
<th>EXODUS</th>
<th>JOSHUA</th>
<th>2 SAMUEL</th>
<th>1 CHRONICLES</th>
<th>SYNOPSIS PASSAGES</th>
<th>SUBJECT MATTER</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>EXODUS</td>
<td>Ex 20.2–17</td>
<td>Deut 5.6–21</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Ten Commandments</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>JOSHUA</td>
<td>Josh 21.1–39</td>
<td>1 Chr 6.54–81</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Levitical cities</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 SAMUEL</td>
<td>2 Sam 22</td>
<td>Ps 18</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Thanksgiving hymn</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 CHRONICLES</td>
<td>1 Chr 1.4</td>
<td>Gen 5</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Descendants of Adam</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 Chr 1.5–23</td>
<td>Gen 10.1–32</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Descendants of Noah</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 Chr 1.24–27</td>
<td>Gen 11.10–32</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Descendants of Shem</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 Chr 1.28–33</td>
<td>Gen 25.1–6,12–18</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Descendants of Ishmael and Keturah</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 Chr 1.34–54</td>
<td>Gen 36.1–43</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Descendants of Esau</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 Chr 3.1–9</td>
<td>Josh 21.1–39</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Sons of David</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 Chr 6.54–81</td>
<td>1 Sam 31</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Levitical cities</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 Chr 1.4</td>
<td>Gen 25.1–6,12–18</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Death of Saul</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 Chr 11.1–9</td>
<td>2 Sam 3.2–5; 5.5,13–16</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Sons of David</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 Chr 11.10–47</td>
<td>2 Sam 7.7; 8; 10; 11; 12; 26,30–31; 21.18–22; 24</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Solomon’s reign</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 Chr 13.5–14</td>
<td>2 Sam 6.1–11</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Solomon’s reign</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 Chr 14.1–17</td>
<td>2 Sam 5.11–25</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Solomon’s reign</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 Chr 15.25–16.3</td>
<td>2 Sam 5.11–25</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Solomon’s reign</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 Chr 16.8–36</td>
<td>Ps 105.1–15; 96.1–13;</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Solomon’s reign</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>1 Chr 17–21</td>
<td>2 Sam 7.7; 8; 10; 11; 12; 26,30–31; 21.18–22; 24</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Solomon’s reign</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 CHRONICLES</td>
<td>2 Chr 1.3–13</td>
<td>1 Kings 3.4–15</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Solomon’s prayer for wisdom</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 Chr 1.4–17</td>
<td>1 Kings 10.26–29</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Solomon’s wealth</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 Chr 2.1–18</td>
<td>1 Kings 5.1–18</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Preparations for building Temple</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 Chr 3.1–4</td>
<td>1 Kings 6.1–3</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Temple dimensions</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 Chr 4.1–5.1</td>
<td>1 Kings 7.23–26.39–51</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Temple metalwork</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 Chr 5.2–7.10</td>
<td>1 Kings 8</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Dedication of the Temple</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 Chr 7.11–9.29</td>
<td>1 Kings 9–10</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Solomon’s reign</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 Chr 9.29–31</td>
<td>1 Kings 11.41–42</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Solomon’s death</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 Chr 10.1–11.4</td>
<td>1 Kings 12.1–24</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Rehoboam’s accession</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 Chr 12.2–16</td>
<td>1 Kings 14.25–31</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Shishak’s invasion</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 Chr 15.16–17.1</td>
<td>1 Kings 15.17–24</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Asia’s reign</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 Chr 18.2–34; 20.31–21.1</td>
<td>1 Kings 22</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Jehoshaphat’s reign</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 CHRONICLES</td>
<td>2 Chr 21.2–10</td>
<td>2 Kings 8.16–22</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Jehoram’s reign</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 Chr 22.2–6</td>
<td>2 Kings 8.25–29</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Ahaziah’s reign</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>2 Chr 22.10–23.21</td>
<td>2 Kings 11</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td>Athaliah’s reign</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SYNOPtic PASSAGES</td>
<td>SUBJECT MATTER</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>-------------------</td>
<td>----------------</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Chr 24.1–14</td>
<td>2 Kings 12.1–14</td>
<td>Jehoash’s reign</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Chr 25.1–4,17–28; 26.1–2</td>
<td>2 Kings 14.1–22</td>
<td>Amaziah’s reign</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Chr 26.3–4,21–23</td>
<td>2 Kings 15.1–7</td>
<td>Uzziah’s reign</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Chr 27.1–9</td>
<td>2 Kings 15.32–38</td>
<td>Jotham’s reign</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Chr 28.1–4,26–27</td>
<td>2 Kings 16.1–4,19–20</td>
<td>Ahaz’s reign</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Chr 29.1–2; 32.1, 9–12,15</td>
<td>2 Kings 18.1–3,13,17–22, 29–30</td>
<td>Hezekiah’s reign</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Chr 33.1–9,18–20</td>
<td>2 Kings 21.1–9,17–18</td>
<td>Manasseh’s reign</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Chr 33.21–25</td>
<td>2 Kings 21.19–26</td>
<td>Amon’s reign</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Chr 34.1–2,8–31; 35.20</td>
<td>2 Kings 22.1–23,3,29</td>
<td>Josiah’s reign</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Chr 36.1–4</td>
<td>2 Kings 23.30–34</td>
<td>Jehoahaz’s reign</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Chr 36.5,6,8</td>
<td>2 Kings 23.36–37; 24.1,5</td>
<td>Jehoiakim’s reign</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Chr 36.9</td>
<td>2 Kings 24.8</td>
<td>Jehoiakin’s reign</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Chr 36.11–12</td>
<td>2 Kings 24.18–19</td>
<td>Zedekiah’s reign</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2 Chr 36.22–23</td>
<td>Ezra 1.1–2</td>
<td>Decree of Cyrus</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ezra 1.1–2</td>
<td>2 Chr 36.22–23</td>
<td>Decree of Cyrus</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ezra 2.1–70</td>
<td>Neh 7.7–69</td>
<td>List of returning exiles</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ps 14</td>
<td>Ps 53</td>
<td>Lament</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ps 18</td>
<td>2 Sam 22</td>
<td>Thanksgiving hymn</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Isa 2.2–4</td>
<td>Mic 4.1–3</td>
<td>Oracle of future age</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Isa 15–16</td>
<td>Jer 48.29–38</td>
<td>Oracle against Moab</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Isa 36–39</td>
<td>2 Kings 18.13–20.19</td>
<td>Events in Hezekiah’s reign</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jer 39.1–10</td>
<td>2 Kings 25.1–12</td>
<td>The fall of Jerusalem</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jer 48.29–38</td>
<td>Isa 16.6–10; 15.2–7; 16.11–12</td>
<td>Oracle against Moab</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jer 49.9–10,14–16</td>
<td>Ob 5–6,1–4</td>
<td>Oracle against Edom</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jer 52</td>
<td>2 Kings 24.18–25.30</td>
<td>The fall of Jerusalem</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ob 1–6</td>
<td>Jer 49.14–16,9–10</td>
<td>Oracle against Edom</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mic 4.1–3</td>
<td>Isa 2.2–4</td>
<td>Oracle of future age</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

APOCRYPHA

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SYNOPtic PASSAGES</th>
<th>SUBJECT MATTER</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1 Esdras 1.1–55</td>
<td>2 Chr 35.1–36.21</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 Esdras 2.1–15</td>
<td>Ezra 1.1–11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 Esdras 2.16–30</td>
<td>Ezra 4.7–24</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 Esdras 5.7–46</td>
<td>Ezra 2.1–70; Neh 7.7–69</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 Esdras 5.47–73</td>
<td>Ezra 3.1–4.5</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 Esdras 6.1–7.15</td>
<td>Ezra 4.24–6.22</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>1 Esdras 8.1–9.55</td>
<td>Ezra 7.1–10.44; Neh 7.73–8.12</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
A majority of scholars think that the Gospel of Mark was independently used as a source by Matthew and Luke.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SYNOPTIC PASSAGES</th>
<th>SUBJECT MATTER</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>John the Baptist</td>
<td>Call of disciples</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Baptism of Jesus</td>
<td>Teaching and healing by Jesus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Temptation of Jesus</td>
<td>Events in Jesus’ ministry</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

A majority of scholars think that Matthew and Luke used a source that has not survived (known as “Q”).

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>SYNOPTIC PASSAGES</th>
<th>SUBJECT MATTER</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>John the Baptist’s preaching</td>
<td>Beatitudes</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Temptation of Jesus</td>
<td>Sayings of Jesus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sayings of Jesus</td>
<td>Lord’s Prayer</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sayings of Jesus</td>
<td>Sayings of Jesus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sayings of Jesus</td>
<td>Sayings of Jesus</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Sayings of Jesus about the end</td>
<td>On John the Baptist</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

---

Parallel Texts

New Testament

A majority of scholars think that the Gospel of Mark was independently used as a source by Matthew and Luke.
TRANSLATIONS OF ANCIENT TEXTS

INTRODUCTORY

ANCIENT NEAR EASTERN

Lewis, Theodore I., ed. Writings from the Ancient World. A series produced by the Society of Biblical Literature (Atlanta, Ga.), with each volume devoted to a particular genre and language.

EARLY JEWISH
General

Septuagint

Dead Sea Scrolls

Apocrypha and Pseudepigrapha

Josephus

Loeb Classical Library

Philo of Alexandria

Loeb Classical Library

| Mt 11.20–27 | Lk 10.13–15, 21–22 | Sayings of Jesus |
| Mt 12.38–45 | Lk 11.29–32; 11.24–26 | Sayings of Jesus |
| Mt 13.16–17 | Lk 10.23–24 | Sayings of Jesus |
| Mt 13.33 | Lk 13.20–21 | Sayings of Jesus |
| Mt 18.10–14 | Lk 15.3–7 | Sayings of Jesus |
| Mt 22.1–4 | Lk 14.16–22 | Parable of the marriage feast |
| Mt 23.37–39 | Lk 13.34–35 | Lament over Jerusalem |
| Mt 24.37–51 | Lk 17.26–35; 12.39–46 | Sayings of Jesus about the end |
| Mt 25.14–30 | Lk 19.12–27 | Parable of the talents |
TRANSLATIONS OF ANCIENT TEXTS

Mishnah

Talmud

EARLY CHRISTIAN

General

Nag Hammadi

ANCIENT TRANSLATIONS OF THE BIBLE

Greek

Aramaic

CLASSICAL SOURCES
Translations of the writings of most Greek and Roman authors are available in the Loeb Classical Library.
GLOSSARY

A

Aaron the first high priest, brother of Moses and Levite (Ex 4:14); he is inaugurated in Ex chs 28–29. Although it is unclear how, or whether, Aaron was supposed to be the progenitor of later priests, he is regarded as the prototype. See Levite, Zadokite

Abaddon (Heb “place of destruction”), the realm of the dead (Job 26:6; Prov 15:11; Ps 88.10–12; Rev 9.11)

Abba (Aram. “father”), the word Jesus (Mk 14:36) and the early church (Rom 8:15) used to address God accession the act of taking one’s place as a ruler acropolis (Gk “height of the city”) the fortified upper area of a Greek city; “the Acropolis” refers to this area in Athens

acrostic a literary device in which the first letter of each line of poetry occurs according to a predetermined pattern. In the poetry of the Hebrew Bible all acrostics are alphabetical: the individual lines of a poem (or occasionally small groups of lines) begin with the twenty–two letters of the Hebrew alphabet in order. (This would be equivalent to the first line of an English poem beginning with A, the second with B, etc.) The acrostic form, besides giving the aesthetic pleasure of a pattern, may have been intended to make memorization easier. It may also have been intended as a way of expressing completeness: in Lamentations, for instance, the acrostic form of the individual chs might have been used to express the completeness of the outpouring of grief. The following poems in the Bible are acrostics: Pss. 9–10, 25, 34, 37, 111, 112, 119, 145; Prov. 31.10–31; Lam 1, 2, 3, 4 (ch 5 is not an acrostic, but preserves part of the form by having 22 lines, the number of letters in the Hebrew alphabet); Nah 1.2–8 (or 9) (incomplete). In the Hebrew text of Sirach, 51.13–30 is acrostic.

Adar the twelfth month (February–March) in the Jewish year. In order to bring the lunar calendar into alignment with the solar year, a leap year, in which there are two months of Adar, occurs seven times during each nineteen-year cycle of years (see Calendar)

Adonai (Heb “my Lord”) a divine title and the word generally substituted for YHWH when the Bible is read aloud

Ahikar an ancient Near Eastern story of a prime minister to the king of Assyria, who is betrayed by an ungrateful nephew but ultimately vindicated. It is alluded to in Tob 1.21–22.

Akedah (Heb “binding”) the story of the binding of Isaac (Gen 22)

Akkadian the language of Assyria and Babylonia. Akkadian is a Semitic language related to Hebrew, and is written in cuneiform, wedge-shaped writing.

alien see resident alien allegory an extended comparison, which directly describes one reality while indirectly describing something entirely different. An allegory as a narrative uses action, setting, and characters to point symbolically to something else.

alleluia a Greek and Latin form of a Hebrew phrase that means “Praise the Lord.” See hallelujah.

Amarna Letters diplomatic correspondence from the reigns of the Egyptian pharaohs Amenophis III and Akhenaten, written in Akkadian cuneiform, that provide information about Canaan in the fourteenth century BCE

Ammon, Ammonites, the territory and its inhabitants east of the Jordan River

Amorites according to the Bible, one of the native nations of Canaan. Amorites are attested in other ancient Near Eastern documents from the third millennium BCE and onward as residents of Syria who migrated to Mesopotamia and other areas. Their language was related to Hebrew.

amphictyony a social organization in ancient Greece in which groups were united around a central sanctuary and serviced this sanctuary on a rotating basis. Some scholars think that a similar system existed in Israel in premonarchic times.

anachronism an element in a story that is out of place because it did not exist at the time in which the story is set. Anachronisms can be valuable clues to when a narrative was written.

Anat a Canaanite goddess often depicted as a warrior anathema (Gk “devoted [to evil],” “accursed”) a solemn pronouncement by a recognized religious authority banning or condemning a person, thing, or idea as false or evil

aniconic (Gk “not representational”) worship without the use of statues or images; also a symbolic or suggestive presentation of a divine being, rather than a literal or realistic rendition anoint touch or rub with oil. Anointing was a sign that a person or thing was dedicated to God. See also messiah.

anthropomorphic (Gk “in human form”) the description or representation of a divine being in the form of a human person ANTICHRIST—BCE

antichrist the apocalyptic figure presented as opposing God, battling the heavenly angels serving God, or fighting against God’s anointed ruler antithesis the contrast of ideas through closely contrasted words antithetic parallelism two parallel lines related to one another by opposition or contrast aphorism a short, memorable saying apocalypse (Gr. apokalypsis, “removal of the veil, revelation”) a literary genre in which an angel or other heavenly being communicates to a human being the divine plan for history, especially the end of time apocalyptic having the character of an apocalypse

Apocrypha (Gk “hidden things”) a group of about twenty mostly Jewish works, many of which were included in the Septuagint, but which are not included in the Jewish or Protestant canons of the Bible. Most of these works are canonical for Roman Catholics; a few more are canonical for Orthodox Christians. See deuterocanon.

apodictic law law stated absolutely, as in the Decalogue’s “you shall not,” rather than casuistically, “if a person . . . .” See casuistic law.

apologia (Gk “explanation”) a defense of one’s actions or beliefs, usually in a formal speech or written document apostasy abandoning a set of beliefs, or the position of having abandoned them apostle (Gk “one who is sent”), a delegate or representative. In the New Testament, an apostle was one who had known Jesus and could witness to the resurrection (Acts 1.21–2), or a preacher of the gospel who had been called by God (1 Cor 12.28; Rom 16.7).

apostrophe (Gk “turn from”) a direct address to someone or something not present apotropaic (Gk “turn away from”) an action intended to ward off evil

Aramaic a Semitic language used widely in the Near East during the Persian period, though it developed earlier. It became the ordinary language of Jews, and was used by Jesus. An Aramaic translation of the Hebrew Bible is called a Targum.

Aramaism the use in another language of a word or grammatical form derived from Aramaic.

Arameans a Semitic people living in Syria from the second millennium BCE onward. Damascus was a principal city of the Arameans.

aretalogy (Gk “words about virtue”) praise of virtues, either of a hero or of oneself ark of the covenant the chest in the tabernacle or Temple that contained the text or tablets of the covenant, and that served as part of the throne of the Lord

Armageddon the traditional site of the final battle between good and evil (Rev 16.6), possibly derived from Megiddo, a strategically located site where many battles occurred ascension going up, particularly to a divine realm but also literally climbing a hill (as to Jerusalem) asceticism (Gk “training”) deliberate self-denial or self-punishment for religious purpose

Asherah (pl. Asherim) Canaanite goddess, wife or consort of El; her sacred symbol, a pole or tree, was the object of prophetic condemnation.

Assyria a Mesopotamian world power in the second and first millennia BCE. Its capital cities included Ashur and Nineveh. The Assyrian empire conquered the Northern Kingdom of Israel in 722 BCE and exiled its people. The Assyrians were well-known for their massive building projects, and for their cruelty in war.

Astarte the Canaanite goddess of love and fertility atbash a form of code in Hebrew in which the last letter of the alphabet is substituted for the first, the next-to-last for the second, and so on: aleph becomes taw, bet becomes shin, gimmel becomes resh, etc. (In English, A would become Z, B would become Y, etc.) In Jer 25.26; 51.41, Babylon (b-b-l) is written Sheshach (sh-sh-k).

atonement expiation for sin, or reparation for an injury committed against another

Atrahasis hero of the Mesopotamian epic named for him, who survives the god Enil’s efforts to destroy humankind by a flood. See also Gilgamesh.

B

Baal (“master,” “lord,” “husband”) the chief god of Canaanite religion, a storm god

Babylonia a Mesopotamian world power. It often competed against Assyria, which it conquered in 612 BCE. Its major city was Babylon (Akkadian “gate of the gods”). Its main god became Marduk. Babylonia destroyed Jerusalem in 586, and was conquered by the Persian king Cyrus the Great in 539.

Babylonian exile the forced relocation of some of the population of Judah, especially the elite, after the conquest by Babylonia in the early sixth century BCE. The exile ended with the permitted return to the land under Cyrus in 538 BCE.

Babylonian Talmud see Talmud

ban (Heb herem) the dedication or sacrifice of war booty (including people) to the deity baptism ritual purification by immersion in water, used by Christians as an initiation into the community

BCE Before the Common Era, equivalent to BC
Beelzebul (also Baalzebul, Baalzephon, Beelzebub) the ruler of the demons (Mt 12.24–27). It is based on the Hebrew Baalzebul, “Baal the exalted,” a title of the Phoenician god at Ekron (2 Kings 1.2–18), changed probably as a derogatory name into Baalzebul, “lord of flies.”

Behemoth a mythical beast in Job 40.15–24 who represents violent forces in the world

Bel (Akkadian “master,” cognate to Baal) title of Marduk belomancy a method of divination by choosing or tossing down arrows on which names of potential victims are inscribed berît (Heb “treaty, contract, covenant”) a term that may be used of a legal agreement between two individuals, groups, or nations, or between God and Israel (see covenant)

biclon unit of Hebrew poetry composed of two cola, or lines (sometimes called a disch)

Binding (of Isaac) see Akedah

Book of the Covenant see Covenant Collection

booths, festival of (Heb Sukkot) the autumn harvest festival, also called the festival of ingathering), so named because the harvesters lived in the fields in makeshift tents or booths, also called tabernacles bulla a clay seal with the impression of a signet ring or other symbol of authority

C

Cairo Geniza the storeroom (see geniza) of a synagogue in Old Cairo in which were discovered many thousands of fragments of texts, including a portion of the book of Sirach (Ecclesiasticus) in Hebrew

Cambyses son of Cyrus and king of Persia 529–522 B.C.E. He conquered Egypt in 525

Canaan in Mesopotamian and Egyptian documents and in some biblical texts, a name for the region in the southern Levant part of which became biblical Israel, whose inhabitants are called Canaanites. Also a grandson of Noah.

canon (Gk “measuring rod”) the rule by which something is determined to belong or not to a category. Christian tradition uses the word for the official list of the books that make up the Bible.

canonical criticism the interpretation of a biblical text based upon its final form, rather than viewing it as an assemblage of preexisting units casuistic law (also called “case law”) the form of law dealing with the treatment of specific cases. It is frequently in the form of “if/when . . . then” formulae. Most ancient Near Eastern law collections are formulated this way.

catchword, catchphrase a representative or repeated word or group of words that stands for an argument or point of view; that word or phrase picked up and used in a subsequent or related text

Catholic Epistles (also “Epistles General”) the New Testament letters, from James to 3 John, identified not by their recipients but by their authors and therefore presumed to be addressed to the universal (“catholic” means “entire”) church

CE Common Era, equivalent to AD

centurion in the Roman army, an officer commanding a century, a maximum of a hundred soldiers; there were sixty centuries in a legion ceramic typology dating different levels of an archaeologically site by classifying the pieces of pottery found in them according to the approximate eras in which they were made

Chaldean(s) a collective name for the tribes that were dominant in Babylon from the late sixth century B.C.E; Chaldea is frequently associated with the area of southern Mesopotamia chaos complete lack of order. In ancient Near Eastern mythology, chaos was sometimes personified as divine beings who had to be conquered by other gods in order to establish an orderly, habitable universe.

charismatic (Gr. “gifted, graced”) characterized by the ability to influence or lead others; personally magnetic; talented chattel possessions or persons owned by someone else and therefore at that person's complete disposal

Chemosh the chief god of Moab cherubim (sing. “cherub”) mythical, composite creatures with body parts from various animals; they often had wings and human heads. They were commonly guardians of temples and palaces in the ancient Near East.

chiasm, chiasmus (from Gr. chi, the letter that resembles an X) inverting the second pair of terms in a parallel structure, so that the corresponding terms, if laid out in a square, would form an X. The resultant pattern is abba, abba, abbcba, etc.

Christ (Gk “anointed”), the translation of Heb mashiah, “messiah.” In the New Testament and in general usage, Christ always refers to Jesus of Nazareth.

christology the theological doctrines concerning the nature of Christ chronicle an account of events in the order in which they occurred

Chronicle the name for the unknown author of the books of Chronicles; sometimes also applied to the author of Ezra and Nehemiah church (see also house church) the community of believers in a particular area; the later use of “church” to mean a building where people worship does not occur in the New Testament church fathers see patristic writers circumcision the removal of the foreskin of the penis Cisjordan Latin for “this side of Jordan,” that is, the region west of the Jordan river citadel a stronghold or fortress, whether standing alone or serving as the inner fortification of a city clan a social unit, composed of several families considered to be descended from a common ancestor; several clans constituted a tribe climax (Gk “ladder”), a series of clauses in which each succeeding clause repeats the important term from the previous clause, each clause in turn making a more important point codex a manuscript of separate pages, bound along one edge. Modern books are a development of the codex.

colon (pl. cola) a single line of poetry (also known as a stich) colophon (Gk “summit,” by extension “finishing touch”) a notice, usually found at the end of an ancient text, giving information about details such as authorship concordance a word index to a given text, listing each occurrence of a given word along with its context concubine a woman who is the sexual partner of a man, and is legally recognized as such, but who does not have the full status of a wife corvée forced labor for the state cosmology an account of the origins of the cosmos cosmopolis (Gk “world city”) a major metropolis, usually the main city of an empire, to which peoples from different countries or ethnic groups came or in which they resided cosmos (Gk “order, regularity”) the created world of order, stability, relative permanence; the opposite of chaos Council of Trent the twenty-ninth ecumenical council of the Roman Catholic Church (1545–1563), held after the Protestant Reformation had begun. Among other decisions, it defined the books that are included in the Catholic canon of Scripture.
covenant (Heb berit) a contract or treaty. Some covenants have specific conditions or treaty stipulations, while others are covenants of grant; often used of the relationship between God and Israel Covenant Code another term for Covenant Collection Covenant Collection an ancient set of laws (Ex 20.19–23.33), which details the terms of the covenant between God and Israel cult prostitute one available for sexual intercourse with worshipers at the temple of a god cult rituals and religious practices at a place of worship. The cult of the Jerusalem Temple means the religious practices carried out there, with no judgment about their value.
Cynics (Gk “dogs, doglike ones”) a nickname for a Greek philosophical movement of the fourth century BCE aimed at achieving happiness by lessening desires, and therefore needing less; it also taught contempt (or at least disregard) for social conventions and consequent lack of shame about meeting one’s physical needs (hence the nickname, since dogs were popularly supposed to have no shame)
Cyrus Cylinder an Akkadian inscription describing the conquest of Babylon by Cyrus Cyrus king of Persia (559–530 BCE). He defeated Media in 550 and conquered most of the ancient Near East, including Babylonia, allowing the Jewish exiles in Babylonia to return to Judah in 538
D
D according to the Documentary Hypothesis, the Deuteronomistic source, which covers almost the entire book of Deuteronomy
Davidic dynasty the direct descendants of King David, who ruled in Jerusalem from the tenth to the early sixth centuries BCE
Davidic having to do with the monarchic dynasty founded by David that ruled over Israel and, after the division of the kingdom, the southern part (Judah) until the Babylonian conquest and exile of the sixth century BCE; also the movement to restore that monarchy or to reproduce the self-rule that it represented
Day of Atonement, Heb Yom Kippur, the tenth day of the seventh month in the fall, a day of fasting and repentance
Day of the Lord the time mentioned in many prophetic books when God will appear as a warrior, sometimes fighting against Israel, sometimes against Israel’s enemies Dead Sea Scrolls a group of manuscripts found beginning in 1947 in caves near the Dead Sea, at Wadi Qumran. The scrolls were probably the library of an Essene settlement that flourished at the site from the second century BCE until it was destroyed by the Romans in 68 CE. The library included Hebrew manuscripts of biblical books older than those previously known, and other scrolls regulating the life of the community that shed light on the variety of Jewish belief and practice in the Roman period.
Decalogue (Gk “ten words”) a traditional name for the list of ten commandments in Ex 20.1–17, Deut 5.6–21 defective spelling the form of a word in the Hebrew text that is missing one or more optional vowel letters defilement a state of ritual impurity caused by contact with a corpse or other impure object. Priestly literature in the Torah is especially concerned with defilement and removing defilement.

demon, demonic (Gk “spirit”) a being of the spiritual realm, or a quality of that realm, particularly one opposed or hostile to human beings.

defterocanonical (Gk “second canon”), those books or portions of books not included in the Jewish or Protestant canons but accepted as canonical by some Christian churches (Roman Catholic and Orthodox) because they were included in the Septuagint. The NRSV places notices within the Apocryphal/ Deuterocanonical Books explaining which ones are accepted by which groups.

Deuter-Isaiah see Second Isaiah

Deuteronomistic History the account in the books of Deuteronomy, Joshua, Judges, Samuel, and Kings that presents the history of Israel in the promised land, interpreting it a partial failure to keep the covenant faithfully, and the consequences of that failure. These books show significant theological and linguistic similarities, suggesting that they have a common editor or editors.

Deuteronomistic pertaining to the editor(s) of the history comprised in the books of Joshua, Judges, Samuel, and Kings, as preaced by the book of Deuteronomy. The term is also applied to the style of these books, reflecting concern for such matters as obedience to the laws given in Deuteronomy, centralized worship in Jerusalem, and support for the Davidic dynasty.

Deutero-Pauline (Gk “Secondary [letters] of Paul”) the writings (Ephesians, Colossians, 1 and 2 Timothy, Titus, and sometimes Hebrews) traditionally attributed to Paul but which many modern scholars now classify as written by others, perhaps some of them disciples of Paul.

devil a spiritual being opposed to God or to the angels of God.

diaspora (Gk “dispersal”) the scattering of Jews from the promised land Israel, and hence any Jews living outside Israel. Also dispersion.

diatribe an argument against a position, or one critical of a person or group. Diatribe often includes an imagined dialogue between opposing viewpoints.

Didache (Gk “teaching”) an early Christian writing, dating from around 150 CE but including earlier materials. It consists of moral exhortation, a manual of church order, and guidance for community life. It is valuable for providing insight into the concerns of early Christian communities, and contains material similar to that in the Pastoral Epistles.

dietary laws see kosher disciple a follower, an adherent of a particular teaching divination the effort to learn about the present or the future, by consulting mediums, interpreting omens, and the like.

divine warrior God in the role of leader of the heavenly armies, usually seen as fighting for Israel. See also holy war.

Documentary Hypothesis a theory about the formation of the first five books of the Bible, Genesis through Deuteronomy. The hypothesis holds that there are four traditions underlying these books, naming them after a chief characteristic of each: “J” or the “Yahwist” (“J”) from the German spelling “Jahveh”) uses the divine name “YHWH” (the Lord) consistently and contains much of the oldest material; “E” or the “Elohist” uses the divine name “Elohim” (God) fairly consistently and contains traditions from the Northern Kingdom of Israel; “P” or the “Priestly” writer is concerned largely with legal codes and matters of religious practice; and “D” or the “Deuteronomist” represents the traditions gathered mostly in Deuteronomy.

doxology (Gk “word of glory”) a prayer of praise to God, or one glorifying God.

dualism the religious or philosophical view that reality consists of two basic elements, often seen as “good” and “evil.”

dynasty a ruling family; when a leader dies, the next leader is always chosen from among the family members.

E

E according to the Documentary Hypothesis, the Elohist source, which in Genesis refers to God as elohim. It is general though to have originated in the Northern Kingdom of Israel.

Edom, Edomites the territory and people to the southeast and south of Judah, first attested in late second-millennium BCE texts. Edom is identified in Genesis 36 with Esau, Jacob’s brother. The enmity between these brothers and between Judah and Edom mirror each other. Edom was later called Idumea.

El a Canaanite deity popular in the second millennium BCE. In the texts from Ugarit, he is a significant deity, but is often depicted as old and is largely supplanted by Baal.

elect, election those whom God has chosen (Matt 24.22,24; Rom 8.33) or the process of God’s having chosen a group (Rom 9.11); these terms do not imply the later (Calvinist) teaching of predestination.
ELEPHANTINE PAPYRI—EXILE

Elephantine Papyri Aramaic documents, mostly from the fifth century BCE, found on the island of Elephantine, near Syene (modern Aswan) in Egypt. The papyri show that among those who inhabited the colony on Elephantine were Jews who kept up religious observances, such as Passover, and had their own temple.

elohîm the Hebrew word usually translated “God,” though its plural form is sometimes also translated “gods.” It is originally a common noun (a god), though it is often used as a proper noun for the God of Israel, even though it is a plural form.

Elohist the presumed author of the E source according to the Documentary Hypothesis encomium a formal speech praising someone, as in a funeral oration

Enuma Elish a Babylonian text in which the god Marduk becomes king of the gods after creating the cosmos from the body of the goddess of the deep, Tiamat, whom Marduk defeated ephod (1) the linen apron worn by priests in the Temple; (2) a device used to divine the will of God. The second kind of ephod was carried in priestly garments, which may explain why the same word can be used for both.

Ephraim son of Joseph, for whom the most important tribe of the Northern Kingdom is named

Epicureans a Greek philosophical school, founded by Epicurus (341–270 BCE), who taught that human beings naturally seek pleasure, and that the best way to achieve this pursuit was in moderation, since moderation permits the longest possible life of pleasure-seeking Epiphanes a title, “[God] made manifest,” adopted by Antiochus IV, the ruler of the part of the Greek empire that included Judea during the second century BCE. He was the king who forced pagan worship to occur in the Jerusalem Temple, thus provoking the revolt of the Maccabees.

epiphany (Gk “appearing”) the manifestation or visual presence of a divine being epiphany (Gk “manifestation, appearance”) usually the appearance of a god or divine being in a form that can be seen by human beings episcopacy, episcopate (Gk “overseer”) a form of church governance in which one authority is responsible for the Christians in a particular geographical area epistle a letter, sometimes intended for public reading and therefore written according to a particular literary form

Epistles General see Catholic Epistles epistolary prescript a standard salutation or opening phrase at the beginning of a letter epithet a word or phrase that characterizes a person or thing, and that can often be used by itself to refer to the person eponymous (Gk “regarding the name”) person for whom something is named; Judas Maccabeus is the eponymous main character of the books of 1 and 2 Maccabees eschatological, eschatology (Gr. eschata, “last things”) a concern with the end time, or the end of the world as we know it, whether that involves a new historical era radically discontinuous from this one, or an entirely new cosmos after the destruction of the current one eschaton (Gk “final thing”) the end of a period or era; the final stage of history

Essenes a communal society in Judaism from the second century BCE to the first century CE whose members lived apart in communities that were similar in some respects to later monastic groups. It is generally agreed that the Dead Sea Scrolls were collected and preserved by an Essene community.

ethics, ethical (Gk “custom”) rules of behavior or moral standards expected in a particular place or among a particular group; behavior conforming to those rules or standards etiology (Gk. aition, “cause”) an explanation for a name, an event, a custom or ritual, or a natural phenomenon. An etiological story is one that posits a particular cause (not necessarily correctly) for something.

etymology (Gk “study of origins”) the study of the derivation of words from their root meanings

Eucharist a ritual or service of thanksgiving, centering on the sharing of bread and wine, based on the final meal Jesus shared with his followers before his trial and crucifixion; also called Communion, the Lord’s Supper, and the Mass.

eunuch a castrated male, sometimes a guard for a ruler’s concubines and sometimes an official in a court or government euphemism the substitution of an inoffensive word for one that is too explicit or impolite evangelist (from Gk euangelion, “good news”) the author of a gospel exegesis (Gk “lead into”) the explanation or interpretation of the meaning of a written text exhortation urging a particular course of action or behavior by argument or advice exile the forced removal of a people from its land, and the community in which they lived in the foreign land. The Israelites of the Northern Kingdom were exiled by the Assyrians in the late eighth century BCE, and the Judeans were exiled by the Babylonians in the early sixth century. Specifically, “the Exile” is the period from 586 to 538 BCE, when much of the population of Judah was deported from Judah to Babylon. See Babylonian Exile.

F

fable an illustrative story in which animals or plants have speaking parts.

Fertile Crescent the agriculturally fertile areas of the Near East and Mesopotamia, forming an arc through the modern countries of Israel, Palestine, Jordan, Lebanon, Syria, and Iraq.

festival scrolls the five short books that are read on five holy days in the Jewish calendar: Song of Songs on Passover, Ruth on the festival of weeks, Lamentations on 9 Ab (the date of the Temple’s destruction), Ecclesiastes on the festival of booths, and Esther on Purim.

First Temple the Temple in Jerusalem built by King Solomon in the tenth century BCE and destroyed by the Babylonians in 586 BCE.

form criticism the interpretation of a text with particular attention to its genre and structure and to the original setting (Sitz im Leben) out of which it arose.

Former Prophets the name in the Hebrew Bible for the first part of the longer section called “the Prophets.” The Former Prophets are the books of Joshua, Judges, Samuel, and Kings.

forty in biblical usage, a conventional number for a lengthy or completed time period: forty years of wandering in the wilderness (Num 14.33–34), forty years of kingship for David (1 Kings 2.11), and Solomon (1 Kings 11.42), forty days of fasting for Moses (Ex 34.28) or Jesus (Mt 4.2 and parallels).

G

galilee the northernmost geographical area of Israel.

genealogy a list or history of the ancestors of an individual or group.

geniza a storeroom in a synagogue used for keeping old books and objects, especially those too sacred to be discarded. See also Cairo Geniza.

genre a form of literature with particular characteristics.

gentile a non-Jew.

Gilead the Mesopotamian epic, whose hero, Gilgamesh, travels the world in search of immortality. Among the characters he encounters is Utnapishtim, whose tale of the flood has parallels with the biblical account of Noah.

glean to gather or collect, usually by hand, grain that is left behind by reapers.

glossolalia the phenomenon of ecstatic speech, or “speaking in tongues” that characterized some early Christian worship (1 Cor 12.10, 28, 30); it occurs in some Pentecostal Christian worship in the present day. The report of the speeches on the Feast of Weeks (Pentecost) in Acts 2.4–11 maintains that the languages spoken were human languages that could be understood by those in attendance; the reports in the letters reflect not a known, spoken language but a transitory occurrence during worship when one or more worshipers would break into speech (perhaps regarded as the speech of heavenly beings) that neither they nor their hearers could understand.

Gnosticism (from Gk gnosis, “knowledge”) a philosophy that regards spirit and matter as opposites. According to Gnostic teaching, human beings are spirits trapped or imprisoned in matter; the material world is an illusion or the work of an inferior, even demonic, divine being; and the purpose of life is to learn how to free oneself from material things (including the body) and attain eternal life in the spiritual realm. This is accomplished by learning specialized or secret knowledge about the nature of reality; it is from this emphasis on knowledge that gnosticism gets its name.

Greek Bible a general term for the variety of ancient translations of the Hebrew Bible into Greek in antiquity, including the Septuagint and the translations of Aquila, Symmachus, and Theodotion.

H

H see Holiness Collection.

Hades the Greek name for the underworld, to which the disembodied souls of the dead went; it was similar to Sheol (see).

hallelujah a Hebrew acclamation, “Praise Yah!” It is frequent in the Psalms.

Hammurabi (or Hammurapi) king of Babylon in the eighteenth century BCE, responsible for the formulation of a legal collection (the Code [or Laws] of Hammurabi) that is one of the earliest collections of case law.

Hanukkah see Hasmonean revolt.
HARUSPEX—HOUSEHOLD RULES

haruspex a practitioner of divination who examines inner organs of chickens for guidance

Hasmonean Revolt the uprising led by the family of Mattathias Heshmon against the Seleucid ruler Antiochus IV Epiphanes beginning in 166 ce, particularly by Mattathias’s son Judah (or Jadas) Maccabeus ("the hammer"), which succeeded in liberating Jerusalem and the surrounding territory from Seleucid rule in 164. When the Temple, which had been desecrated by Antiochus, was retaken by the Jews it was re-dedicated, an event commemorated in the festival of Hanukkah ("dedication").

Hasmonean the dynasty descended from the Maccabee brothers. It ruled Judea from 135 to 36 ce; the last Hasmonean was overthrown by Herod the Great Hebrew Bible a term used to refer to what Christians call the (Protestant) Old Testament. Though the two terms refer to the same body of writings, the order of books in the Hebrew Bible (that is, the Jewish Bible) differs from that found in the Old Testament.

Hellenism the spread of Greek culture, politics, and language around the Mediterranean in the period after the conquests of Alexander the Great (d. 323 ce)

Hellenistic Greek-speaking or influenced by Greek culture after the time of Alexander

Hellenize bring under the influence of Greek language and culture hepatoscopy the practice of divination by examining animal livers for guidance herem see ban

hermeneutics (Gk “interpretation”) the theory and practice of interpretation

Herodian followers and members of the court of Herod the Great and his sons (late first century bce to late first century ce)

Hexapla the compendium of six Bible versions (in columns: 1. Hebrew, 2. Hebrew transliterated into Greek, 3. Greek [Aquila], 4. Greek [Symmachus], 5. Septuagint, 6. Greek [Theodotion]) compiled by the early Christian scholar Origen (d. 254). The original was lost, but quotations from and translations of it have survived.

Hexateuch (Gr. “six scrolls”) a scholarly grouping of the first six books in the Bible, Genesis through Joshua. See Pentateuch, Tetrateuch high places shrines, usually on a hill or a raised platform, where worship, especially sacrifices, took place higher criticism the effort to distinguish among the sources of biblical documents, and to trace them back to their origins; distinguished from “lower criticism” or textual criticism, which is concerned with establishing the most accurate text in its final form. See Documentary Hypothesis; synoptic problem.

historical-critical method interpreting a text by trying to understand its original setting and audience, and what it would have meant when it was originally written or spoken. This method uses the tools of historical research to understand the conditions of the past, and critical tools to understand the traditions and developments that lie behind the surface of the text. It is also a general term that includes such methods as form criticism and redaction criticism.

Holiness Code, Collection, School, Source the ritual and ethical laws in Lev 17–26, named from the repeated exhortation to the Israelites to be holy, or the purported authors or collectors of the material in those chapters. “Collection” is preferred in the annotations herein. “Code” implies a definitive, legal corpus, whereas “Collection” acknowledges the coherence of the chapters without implying a particular purpose in bringing the materials together. “Source” posits a particular document that is reproduced in the chapters, a document produced by a “School” that aimed at inculcating holiness among the people. The authors of this group of laws (sometimes called the Holiness School) were affiliated with the Priestly school and also wrote small sections dispersed throughout the first four books of the Bible; the entire work is often abbreviated H.

holocaust a sacrifice entirely consumed by fire, a whole burnt offering holy war battles conducted under divine guidance in which the Lord fought for Israel in the role of divine warrior

homily a sermon

Horeb possibly another name for Sinai (see), primarily though not exclusively in Deuteronomy (e.g., Deut 1.2; Ex 3.1)

hortatory characteristic of writing or speech that aims at changing the behavior of the hearers or inspiring them to a particular course of action hosanna a Hebrew word, meaning “Save!” that was used as a cry of acclamation house church a descriptive term (not used in the NT itself) for a worship gathering of early Christians in a home rather than a separate building such as a synagogue household rules the codes of behavior and hierarchy that governed domestic relations in the Roman world, particularly a patriarchal authority system, the subordination of women, children, and slaves, and the rights and responsibilities of various parties in a familial relationship; see Eph 6.1–9; Titus 2.1–10 Hyksos rulers in Egypt of Semitic origin in the mid-second millennium BCE hyperbole exaggeration for effect hypostatization speaking of an abstract quality as if it were an object or a living being. See also personification.

hyssop a shrub related to mint. It was used as a medicine and, because of its leafy branches, for ritual sprinkling of water or blood.

idolatry the worship of anything other than what the worshiper defines as the true God
Idumea later name for Edom, a kingdom located south of Judah, between the Dead Sea and the Mediterranean Ignatius, Letters of early Christian writings of instruction. The author, Ignatius, bishop of Antioch in the late first century CE, wrote them (seven are known to have survived) on his way to martyrdom in Rome. They are largely concerned with overcoming divisions in local churches, combating false teaching, and conducting one’s life properly.
imprecation a curse or other prayer for harm to another; the opposite of blessing impurity a ritual state which prevented an individual from participating in religious rituals (see defilement) incarnation (Latin, “enfleshment”) the belief that a divine being has become human in some form inclusio the use of the same word or phrase at the end of a passage as appeared at the beginning, thus rounding off or completing it. Also called inclusion, frame, and envelope structure.
incubation the practice of sleeping in a particular place, or in contact with particular things (animal skins, the ground) in order to induce dreams that might provide divine guidance inspiration the belief that the words uttered by a human being are really the words of a divine being. In the ancient world, prophets and oracles were thought to be inspired. In Christian tradition, the notion of inspiration was eventually applied to the whole Bible.
intercalation adding a day or month to a calendar to compensate for the inexact fit between the solar year and the daily or lunar cycle. In the Jewish calendar, an extra month (a repetition of Adar) is intercalated in seven years of the nineteen-year cycle.
interpolation an insertion of material into a previously existent text irony (adj., ironic) a characteristic of literature in which the reader or listener knows more than the characters about the situation in the story. By extension, an ironic aspect of a story, situation, or fact is one that from the outside looks very different than it does from the inside. Irony thus becomes a rhetorical technique in which the author’s literal meaning differs from the author’s intended meaning.
Ishtar Mesopotamian goddess of fertility and war
Isis Egyptian goddess, wife of Osiris, the god of vegetation and hence of regeneration
Israel the name for both the union of twelve tribal groups, of which David and Solomon were kings, and for the northern section of this kingdom, which split off after the death of Solomon and began a separate political existence under Jeroboam (1 Kings 12). See Northern Kingdom, Southern Kingdom.

J
J (from Jahvist, German for Yahwist) according to the Documentary Hypothesis, the document or source that uses the divine name (see YHWH). J is usually understood to be the earliest source, and to have been written in Judah. It frequently depicts God in very anthropomorphic terms.
Jerome (ca. 345–420) Christian theologian and translator. He translated the Bible into Latin, in the case of the Old Testament directly from the Hebrew. His version became known as the Vulgate (“common”) because it was commonly used in Western Christianity. With the Protestant Reformation, its authority was questioned, but was reaffirmed by the Roman Catholic Church at the Council of Trent.
Johannine characteristic of, or having to do with, the NT literature associated with the Gospel of John and 1, 2, 3 John; sometimes (though not in more recent scholarship) also applied to the book of Revelation
Joseph and Aseneth (also spelled Asenath) a Jewish novel written in Greek in the first century BCE or the first century CE about Joseph’s life in Egypt; his marriage to Asenath, the daughter of an Egyptian priest (see Gen 41.45); her conversion to faith in Joseph’s God; and their triumph over a plot to kill them.
Josephus a Jewish historian who lived from ca. 37 CE to ca. 100 CE. Four of his works, all written in Greek, have survived: The Jewish War, an account of the rebellion against Rome in 66–70 CE, with background information starting at ca. 200 BCE; The Antiquities of the Jews, a complete history from the creation up to the point where The Jewish War begins; Against Apion, a defense of Judaism; and an autobiography, the Life.
jubilee (Heb yovel, perhaps “ram” from the sounding of the ram’s horn to mark the beginning of the observance) the year of release for slaves and return of ancestral lands to their original owners (or descendants of the owners), to occur every fifty years (after seven sabbaths of years). It is a cornerstone of Priestly ideology, but it is uncertain if it was ever practiced.

Jubilees, book of a retelling, attributed to Moses, of much of Genesis and Exodus and representing itself as a hidden revelation from the Angel of the Presence. It was most likely written in the second century ace in Judea. The book gets its name from its concern with cycles of time. Jubilees was apparently considered authoritative by the Qumran community.

Judah, Yehud, Judea, Judean when the kingdom of Israel was divided, after the death of Solomon (1 Kings 12.1–20), the southern portion (Southern Kingdom) took the name of its major tribe, Judah (Heb Yehudah). That proper noun became “Yehud” during the Persian period (536–333 BCE), “loudaia” during Greek rule (333–67), and “Judaea” or Judea under the Romans. The geographical territory had also been diminished, until by the time of the Romans it consisted of the area around Jerusalem, south of Samaria, west of Perea and the Dead Sea, and north of Idumea (though administratively “Judea and Samaria” could also be referred to as “Judea” simply).
The inhabitants of the territory were Judeans (just as the inhabitants of the northern area west of the Sea of Galilee were Galileans). The terms “Judaism” and “Jew” are derived from this name.

jussive a verb form in the third person expressing a command

justification translation of the underlying Gk term “making righteous,” expressing the restoration of one’s proper relationship to the moral realm or to God (see Rom 5.1–21)

K

ekere see qere.

ketib ("what is written"; also k'tiv) the biblical text in its written form, in contrast, in certain cases, to the way it is to be read aloud (qere)

Ketubim (also Kethubim, Ketuvim) The Writings, the third division of the Hebrew Bible kosher (Heb “fit” or “proper”) a general term used in postbiblical texts for dietary laws; usually applied to food, but also to other ritual objects and practices.

L

lament a poem of grief or mourning (see also qinah)

Last Supper the name for the meal that Jesus shared with his closest followers on the night before his crucifixion (Mt 26.20–29 and parallels)

Latter Prophets the canonical division of Nevi’im that includes the books of Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and the Twelve Minor Prophets law the usual English translation of Hebrew torah, which more generally means “teaching, instruction.”

Torah is also the name for the first five books of the Hebrew Bible, Genesis through Deuteronomy.

laying on hands a gesture of healing, blessing, or setting something or someone apart for religious purposes lectionary a list of readings of scripture passages for sabbaths and holy days (in Judaism) or Sundays and holy days (in Christianity). Christian lectionaries also sometimes include readings for weekdays.

Lectionaries are partly designed to read certain portions of the Bible—for instance, the Torah, in Jewish lectionaries, or the first three Gospels, in many Christian lectionaries—completely through, in order, over a lectionary cycle of a year or several years. In addition, in Christian lectionaries important seasons (for instance, Christmas or Easter) have their own specific readings outside the continuous readings. In the synagogue, the Torah reading is followed by what is called a Haftarah reading (haphtarah is Hebrew for “conclusion, completion”) from one of the prophets; in addition, the festival scrolls are read on five holy days.

legate an official representative legend a popular story, sometimes exaggerated or romanticized, about a holy or important person or place.

Levant (Lat “rising”) the east as the direction of the rising sun; more usually, the lands at the eastern end of the Mediterranean

Leviathan a monster of the sea in Canaanite mythology, who is defeated by Baal. It is sometimes identified with the crocodile (Job 41.1) and represents the forces of watery chaos which must be overcome at creation (Ps 74.1–17) and that will be finally defeated at the end of time (Isa 27.1). In the book of Revelation, the dragon, the enemy of God, is identified with the sea (17.1,3), and in the new creation there is no more sea (21.1).

levirate marriage (from Latin levir, “husband’s brother”) the provision that if a man died without an heir to carry on his name, his brother would marry the widow and the first son she bore would be regarded as the dead brother’s heir

Levites the priests of Israel were deemed to be descendants of Levi, therefore members of the tribe of Levi, or Levites (sometimes levites). There is little evidence for this tribe, but the religious authorities in early Israel claimed descent from Aaron (see), the first high priest. Perhaps during the reform of Josiah, however, the levites were demoted to Temple assistants, probably when their local shrines were suppressed, and the Jerusalem priesthood, claiming descent from Zadok (see Zadokites) gained greater power and wealth.

lex talionis (Latin “law [of retribution] in kind”) punishment fitting the crime; see talion lingua franca a common tongue or shared language that enables people with different native languages to converse, carry on commercial relationships, etc. In the Persian period Aramaic replaced Akkadian as a lingua franca around the Near East; during the Hellenistic period Greek did the same for the lands surrounding the eastern Mediterranean.

litany (Gk “entreaty”) a prayer form consisting of a series of petitions or supplications, often following each with a repeated congregational response

littoral a region along the shore of a large body of water liturgical characteristic of an order for worship, either directions for action (rituals) or texts for speaking (rites)

liturgy the form or ritual for communal, public worship

Lord’s Supper a term (used in the NT only at 1 Cor 11.20) for the commemoration or re-enactment of Jesus’ last meal with his followers (see Last Supper)

lot(s) any method of choosing something by random chance, as by tossing a marked stone (similar to flipping a coin) or choosing an arrow or a stick from a group of similar objects. “Casting lots” was used to select candidates for a position (Acts 1.15–26), to determine who had transgressed a vow or law (1 Sam 14.41–42), or in other ways to determine the divine will, since it was assumed that an event that was random from the human perspective could be determined by divine direction.

lower criticism or textual criticism, as distinguished from higher criticism

LXX the roman numeral 70, the standard abbreviation for the Septuagint

M

Maat Egyptian goddess of reason and order; her name literally means “truth”

Major Prophets a convenient title for the three longest prophetic books, Isaiah, Jeremiah, and Ezekiel (in Christian Bibles, also Daniel); in contrast to Minor Prophets (see) makarism (Gk “happy, blessed”) a statement of blessing or an attribution of happiness to one who follows the exhortation of the speaker; the Beatitudes (Mt 5.3–11) are makarisms, perhaps following the form of many Psalms such as Ps 1.1, “Happy are those who do not follow the advice of the wicked . . . .”

malediction curse; opposite of benediction, “blessing” manumission release from servitude

Marduk chief god of Babylon; according to Enuma Elish, he formed the cosmos from the corpse of Tiamat, goddess of the deep martyr (Gk “witness”) a person who demonstrates loyalty by remaining faithful to his or her religion even when being threatened with death or being killed

martyrology (Gk “list of witnesses [to their faith]”) an account of the martyrdoms of various individuals, or an official list of those accounted as martyrs, that is, who were killed because of their religious beliefs

Masorah (Heb “tradition”) the system of markings (vowel signs, marginal notes, cantillation and accent marks, etc.) that were added to the consonantal Hebrew text by scribal scholars (Masoretes) in the early Middle Ages

Masorete a scholar of the scribal schools that in the early Middle Ages established the basic Hebrew text for the Bible, fixed its accepted pronunciation, and ensured its accurate copying and transmission by a system of markings (Masorah)

Masoretic Text the text of the Hebrew Bible, established by Jewish scholars (Masoretes). The text consists of the Hebrew consonants, vowel signs, accent markings, and other notes. Texts derived from this effort date from circa 900 to 1000 CE. The Masoretic Text is the only complete form of the Hebrew Bible that has survived, though individual manuscripts of books are among the Dead Sea Scrolls.

matrilineal tracing descent through female ancestors; see patrilineal matzah unleavened bread, associated with Passover, but also used with certain sacrifices.

Megillot Heb “scrolls,” in Jewish tradition the five festival scrolls, the books of Song of Solomon (read at Passover), Ruth (on Shavuot [Weeks/Pentecost]), Lamentations (on Tisha B’Ab, commemorating the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 BCE and 70 CE), Ecclesiastes (on Sukkot [Tabernacles]), and Esther (on Purim)

merism a figure of speech in which opposing terms, e.g., “good and bad,” are combined to convey the idea of including both terms and everything in between Merneptah Stele an Egyptian inscribed stone that includes the first mention of Israel outside the Bible. It celebrates victories of Pharaoh Merneptah (ca. 1200 BCE) in Canaan.

Merodach a Hebrew version of Marduk, chief god of Babylon Mesha Stele (also called the Moabite Stone) a monument dating from about 830 BCE with engraved text celebrating the reign of King Mesha of Moab (2 Kings 3.4–5). Besides an account of the dealings of Mesha with the descendants of Omri, king of the Northern Kingdom of Israel, the text mentions the god of Moab, Chemosh, and the favor that Chemosh has shown to Mesha in contrast to his predecessors in allowing Mesha to reclaim territory from Israel. It also contains a reference to the herem or ban.

Mesopotamia (Gk “between the rivers”) the area between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers messiah (Heb mashiah, “anointed [one]”) a title for a king or other servant or agent of God (priest, prophet, or even the non-Israelite Cyrus in Isa. 45.1). In the Hebrew Bible, mashiah never refers to the future ideal king. Later the term came to be used of the expected savior of the Jewish people, and was taken over by Christians to refer to Jesus, whom they believed to be the messiah (Gk christos, “anointed”). See also Christ.

messianic having to do with the messiah or with the era that the messiah was inaugurating

Messianic Secret conventional term for Jesus’ commands, primarily in Mark (1.44; 3.12; 8.30 and elsewhere), not to proclaim his status or deeds publicly metaphor a direct comparison between two things

metonymy a figure of speech in which a word is used in place of another word to which it is closely related: “The coastlands have seen and are afraid” (Isa 41.5) means “the inhabitants of the coasts, foreigners.”

mezuzah (Heb “doorpost”) a parchment on which are written the paragraphs of the Shema midrash, midrashic (Heb derash “inquire”) interpretation that finds meanings in a text that are other than, or go beyond, the “plain sense” (see peshat)

Milcom the principal god of the Ammonites; also called Molech

Minor Prophets the twelve shorter prophetic books from Hosea to Malachi, seen as a collection; also known as the Book of the Twelve

Mishnah (Heb “oral instruction,” from shanah “repeat”) the compilation of oral law and rabbinic commentary, edited ca. 200 CE, that is the basis of the Talmud

Moab, Moabites the territory and its inhabitants east of the Dead Sea

Moabite Stone see Mesha Stele

Molech a Canaanite god whose worship according to the biblical writers included child sacrifice

Mosaic having to do with Moses or with the teaching that Moses is purported to have proclaimed in the Torah (Pentateuch)

Mot the Canaanite god of death motif an image or character type that recurs throughout a literary work mystery in the New Testament, a divine truth that is kept hidden or secret by God until the right moment for it to be revealed mystery religion any one of various religious groups in the Greek and Roman empires which practiced secret rites of initiation. Mystery religions taught that the real meaning of life could not be learned without divine guidance and that such guidance was available in their secret teachings and practices. These secret rites were themselves known as “mysteries,” and had the sense of a revelation from the divine realm that is similar to some of the New Testament uses of “mystery.”

mysticism the effort to be in direct contact with a divine realm, as opposed to the view that the divine must always be mediated—by subordinate beings such as angels or by a human being, a sacred text, or some other bridge narrative a connected, orderly account of an incident, or a longer account including many incidents. Narratives can be historical, fictional, legendary, mythical, or a combination of types.

N

Nebi’im see Nevi’im

necromancy (Gk “divination [by means of] the dead”) the effort to determine the unknown or the future by consulting those who are dead, as in Saul’s questioning of the dead Samuel through the medium of Endor (1 Sam 28.3–25). If teraphim (see) are images of ancestors, then divination by their means would be a form of necromancy.

Negeb, Negev the region south of the central hill country of Israel

Nevi’im (also Nebi’im) the Prophets, the second division of the Hebrew Bible, subdivided into the Former Prophets and the Latter Prophets new moon the beginning of any month in the Jewish calendar

Northern Kingdom the political assembly of tribal groups that split off from the kingdom of Israel after Solomon’s death. This newly formed kingdom was itself called Israel, and in some texts also Ephraim, after its largest tribe.

novel a fictional work in prose. Ancient novels were often romances.

O

obelisk a four-sided stone shaft, usually tapered and topped with a pyramid, characteristic of ancient Egypt Old Latin the Latin translation of the Bible based on the Greek text, the Septuagint. The Old Latin version was replaced by the Vulgate, the Latin translation by Jerome.

oracle (usually translates Heb masa’, literally “burden”) a statement uttered by a prophet or other sacred person, purporting to be the words of a deity

oracular having the qualities of an oracle or sacred speech

Oral Torah a synonym for the Mishnah and Talmud. According to traditional rabbinic belief, the Oral Law was given to Moses on Mount Sinai along with the written law, the Torah. It was committed to writing by the rabbis in the first millennium CE.

ordination a formal ceremony and process by which certain members of the community are set apart for religious service, for instance as priests oxymoron (Gk “clever-foolish”) combining two terms that appear contradictory.

P

P according to the Documentary Hypothesis, the Priestly source in the Pentateuch, comprised of both narratives and laws. It is concerned, among other things, with laws and regulations, ritual practices, the proper conduct of the Temple worship, holiness and purity, and genealogies.

Palestine a name first used by the fifth-century BCE historian Herodotus and adopted by the Romans in the designation Provincia Syria Palaestina (“Syro-Palestinian Province”), which replaced Provincia Judaea (“Judean Province”) after 135 CE. The word is derived from the term translated “Philistine,” and the Latin spelling of “Philistine,” and the Roman designation was probably intended as a derogation of Jewish claims to the territory.

pantheon (Gk “all gods”) the complete community of divine beings worshiped or honored in a particular culture papyrus (pl. papyri) the paper made from reeds that grow along the Nile and other rivers in the Near East; the reeds were split, soaked, laid side-by-side in one layer with another layer, also side-by-side, at right angles, and then pounded together until the matted fibers had meshed into a flat, somewhat flexible sheet. Papyrus were one of the writing surfaces (others being clay and animal skins) in use in antiquity. Early Gk manuscripts of the NT are on papyri, and many significant texts—such as P46, an important textual source of Paul’s letters that also includes the Letter to the Hebrews—are in this form.

parable a statement or story that uses figurative or imaginative language to evoke a reality that lies beyond the literal level of the story of statement. A parable makes its point by analogy, or the comparison of a known fact, situation, or experience with one that is less familiar.

parallelism a characteristic feature of biblical Hebrew poetry in which the second line of a unit in some way echoes the meaning or grammatical structure of the first line. This can take the form of a repetition of the meaning, or of a statement of opposites, or of a further statement that serves to extend or modify the first line in some way.

parenesis moral exhortation parousia (Gk “coming”) the second coming of Christ; the expected return of the messiah at the end of the age or the end of the world

Passover pertaining to the Passover (ultimately from Gk pascha, derived from Heb pesah)

Passover (Heb pesah) the festival that commemorates the Exodus of the Israelites from Egypt

Pastoral Epistles or Pastoral Letters a term used for three letters attributed to Paul, 1 and 2 Timothy and Titus patriarchs the ancestors of Israel: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob patriarchy the social and cultural arrangements and conventions in which the father of a family, older males, or males generally, exercise authority over females, children, slaves, and those younger; characteristic of Israelite and Roman social practice patrilineal tracing one’s descent through male ancestors; see also matrilineal patristic writers theologians of the early Christian centuries, including Clement, Irenaeus, Origen, and Jerome

patronym, patronymic (Gk “father’s name”) the designation of a person or group by the name of their father or ancestor

Pauline characteristic of the thought or writings of Paul; those letters generally accepted to be by Paul: Romans, 1 and 2 Corinthians, Galatians, Philippians, 1 and 2 Thessalonians, and Philemon penitential psalms Psalms 6, 32, 38, 51, 102, 130, and 143, used in Christian services of repentance from the earliest times

Pentapolis the five cities of the Philistines: Ashdod, Ashkelon, Ekron, Gath, Gaza

Pentateuch (Gk “five scrolls”) the first five books of the Bible, Genesis through Deuteronomy; the Torah

Pentecost see weeks, festival of periphrasis, periphrastic the use of more words than necessary to express a thought Persian period—the era from 539 to 333 BCE, from Cyrus until Alexander personification representing an idea, a value, or other abstract thought as a person.

Pesah (Heb “simple”) the “plain sense” or “contextual sense” of a text, often contrasted with derash, the homiletical meaning

pesher (pl. pesharim; “interpretation”) a type of commentary on the Bible in the Dead Sea Scrolls in which the biblical text is understood to be fulfilled in the interpreter’s time

Peshitta (Syriac, “simple”) the name of the Syriac translation of the Bible (called “simple” because it was a plain translation from Hebrew, not a translation with textual apparatus like the Syrohexapla). The Peshitta contains books of the Bible translated by Jews for Jewish worshipers who spoke Syriac, but it was taken over and completed (including a New Testament) by Syriac-speaking Christians.

Pharisees a Jewish sect in the first century CE, according to Josephus and the New Testament. The Pharisees were concerned to extend Jewish practice into all areas of life, and followed the tradition of interpretation (Oral Torah) associated with the schools of Hillel and Shammai. They were opponents of the more conservative Sadducees, who did not accept their traditions of oral law.

Philistines a group of the Sea Peoples, who invaded and settled in on the southeastern coast of the Mediterranean in the late second millennium BCE, having been repulsed in an invasion of Egypt (ca. 1190 BCE). The five major Philistine cities (the Pentapolis) were Ashkelon, Ashdod, Ekron, Gath, and Gaza.

Philo a Hellenistic Jewish philosopher and interpreter of scripture, who lived in Alexandria, Egypt, from about 20 BCE to 50 CE. He wrote works in philosophy, scriptural interpretation, and history. In Philo’s view, the best insights of Greek philosophy could be found in the Bible by means of allegorical interpretation. He influenced Jewish writers like the author of the Wisdom of Solomon and Christian theologians such as Clement, Origen, and Ambrose.

Phoenicia(n) (Gk “red-purple”) the territory occupied by a Semitic group along the eastern Mediterranean coast, in an area roughly where modern Lebanon now is. The Phoenicians were seagoing and engaged in trade across a wide area; their main cities in biblical times, Tyre and Sidon, are prominent on the coast. They manufactured cloth dyed purple using a mollusk that grew along the shore (these “Tyrian purple” robes were worn by kings). The Phoenicians were also responsible for the spread westward across the Mediterranean of a form of alphabetical writing, from which all later alphabets, including Hebrew and Greek, were derived.

Phylacteries (Gk phulakterion, “amulet,” from phulax, “guard”) small black leather boxes containing biblical passages (Ex 13.1–10, 13.11–16; Deut 6.4–9, 11.13–21), worn during prayer on the head and on the left arm. Also called “tefillin.”

Platonism a philosophy derived from the teaching of Plato, saying that there is a profound difference, even an opposition, between the realm of matter and the realm of spirit, and that the world of sense experience is essentially an illusion, deriving what reality it has from a correspondence with a true, ultimately real world of Forms

Pogrom an officially encouraged, organized massacre of a minority group polemic, polemical (Gk polemos, “war”) an argument or debate in the form of an attack on one’s opponent or on the opposing position. Polemical speech is characterized by verbal attacks, exaggerated language, and sometimes violent imagery

Polycarp, Letter of an early second-century CE Christian letter of instruction, written by Polycarp, bishop of Smyrna, and addressed to the church of Philippi potsherds a broken piece of pottery. Examination of such pieces allows archaeologists to date the different levels of a site according to the type of pottery represented at a given level.

Prescript (epistolary) see epistolary prescript priest, high priest in the Hebrew Bible, the priest (Heb kohen) was the official set apart to preside at the worship in the Temple, particularly to offer sacrifices of various kinds. In the NT the term “priest” (primarily hieres) is applied only to the Jewish priesthood of the Temple (archiereus, “high priest,” “chief priest,” e.g. Mt 2.4); a pagan priest (Acts 14.13); Melchizedek (e.g., Heb 7.1); Jesus Christ (Heb 10.21); or the whole of the Christian people (“priesthood,” 1 Pet 2.5; “priests,” Rev 1.6). The Gk term presbyteros, from which the English word “priest” is derived, means “elder” and is so translated in the NRSV (e.g., Jas 5.14; 2 John 1.1).

Primogeniture the social tradition by which the eldest son inherits a father’s title or the bulk of the father’s property

Proem a short introduction or preface to a literary text

Promised Land a conventional term for the Land of Israel, as it was promised to Abraham and to the descendants of Abraham (“this land that I have promised,” Ex 32.13) prophecy, prophesy the name for a prophetic utterance is "prophecy" (pronounced prah-feh-see, rhyming with "fee"); the activity of a prophet is to "prophesy" (pronounced prah-feh-sye, rhyming with "high") prophet (Gk prophetes, "speak out" or "speak forth") the Septuagint translation of nabi ("one who is called"), the standard Heb term for prophet. Synonyms include "seer," "man of God," and "visionary."

prophetic lawsuit (Heb rib) a literary form in the prophets and elsewhere in which the people are accused of breaking their covenant with God

Prophets, The, Heb Nevi'im, the second division of the Hebrew Bible

proselyte (Gk "come toward") one who has adopted a religion or belief system, often after leaving a previous religion; a convert protreptic (Gk "turn toward, turn forward to") speech promoting a particular view; exhortation, persuasion pseudepigrapha (Gk "writings with false attributions of authorship") a diverse group of Jewish or Christian religious writings attributed to notable biblical persons that are not included in the books of the Hebrew Bible, the New Testament, or the Apocrypha. These writings date from about 250 BCE to 200 CE, and some of them are quoted from or alluded to in the Bible.

pseudonymous written or published under a false name. Pseudonymous writing in antiquity is often attributed to someone much better known than the actual writer, in order to give the text the benefit of the presumed authority of the famous person.

Ptolemies the rulers of Egypt and its surrounding areas after the breakup of the Greek empire of Alexander the Great, following his death in 323

Purim the festival that commemorates the delivery of the Jews in Persia from destruction, as recounted in the book of Esther

Q

Q see synoptic problem

qeri ("what is read") in the Masoretic text, a word as it should be pronounced, in contrast to what is written (ketib) in the main text qinah meter a metrical pattern consisting of a line with three stresses followed by a line with two stresses; it is primarily used in psalms of lament or complaint, and in the book of Lamentations.

Qumran community the settlement near Wadi Qumran at the Dead Sea, most likely composed of Essenes. The Qumran group was a sectarian Jewish community that kept its own practices in opposition to the established community in Jerusalem and Judea; the library of this group was discovered beginning in 1947 and is known as the Dead Sea Scrolls.

R

rabbis (Aram. "teacher") a Jewish religious leader who studies the Torah and its associated commentaries, particularly the Talmud, and offers his own teaching based on that study rapture the doctrine, based on an interpretation of 1 Thess 4.13–18, that when Jesus Christ returns in the parousia (see) those Christians who have not yet died will be “caught up” along with Christ and those who, having died, are raised from the dead. In its context, the passage is intended not as a literal description of events at the return of Christ, but as a reassurance that both those still living and those already dead would be reunited with Christ.

reader-response criticism analyzing a text by looking at the relationship between the text and its reader, including the clues within the text that guide the reader in drawing meaning from it redaction criticism the study of how already existing textual units—narratives of incidents, laws, proverbs, or other isolatable pieces that can be disentangled by source criticism—were combined into larger texts by the activities of editors, called "redactors" redactor an editor who works with already existing units to combine them into larger wholes resident alien a foreigner with legal rights living in Israel or an Israelite residing in the territory of another tribe revelation (Latin “remove the veil,” translating Greek apokalypsis) belief or insight granted to a human being by a deity or heavenly being rhetoric (Gk rhetor, “speaker, orator”) the art or study of persuasive speech or writing

Rift Valley a major cleft or depression that extends from southeastern Turkey to East Africa, and at the point of the Dead Sea is the lowest place on the land mass of Earth

Ritual Decalogue a term for the commandments in Ex 34.10–28, in some cases paralleling those of the Decalogue (Ex 20.1–17) but mostly dealing with matters of worship or other religious observance, such as the offering of firstborn livestock or the observance of festivals

Roman Period the period of Roman rule in Judea, beginning in 63 BCE romance a popular storytelling technique in the ancient Mediterranean world that recounted the situation of young lovers and how they overcome obstacles to their marriage. In early Christianity the form was modified to tell the stories of early converts and martyrs and the obstacles to their faith.

Rule of the Community one of the Dead Sea scrolls (1Q2) that sets out the arrangements under which the community functioned and those that they held up as an ideal: holding property in common; eating, blessing, and advising one another in unity; preparing for the end time; and training new members of the community in their responsibilities.

Sackcloth rough cloth, often made from animal hair. A garment made of sackcloth is uncomfortable and is worn to indicate penitence or grief.

Sadducees a Jewish sect in the first century ce, according to Josephus and the New Testament. They held to a strict application of Torah and to maintaining Temple worship according to its mandate. They were opposed to the Pharisees in not accepting the traditions of oral law, and they were also opposed to the political activists who wished to rebel against Roman rule, fearing that any rebellion would bring an end to the limited autonomy under which they could maintain Temple worship.

saga popular narrative account of prehistory or events of the distant past. Sagas often involve stories of the ancestors of a group or the founders of a country.

saint(s) (Lat “holy one[s]”) in the NT, the term for all Christians (2 Cor 1.1), or for what all Christians are called to be (Rom 1.7, 1 Cor 1.2)

Samaritan Pentateuch a Hebrew text of the first five books of the Bible used by the Samaritans. This text differs from the Masoretic Text at many points. Some of these disagreements reflect Samaritan beliefs, but others are supported by the Dead Sea Scrolls and reflect an alternate textual tradition.

Samaritans the descendants of the population of Samaria (the capital of the Northern Kingdom of Israel) after the Assyrian invasion of that kingdom and the deportation of its inhabitants in 722 BCE. The Samaritans regard themselves as descended from the Jewish remnant after the deportation, but the returning exiles from the Southern Kingdom of Judah (after the Babylonian exile in the early sixth century) did not regard them as Jews, seeing them rather as descendants of foreigners who had been settled there after the Jewish population had been removed. Therefore, beginning with Ezra and Nehemiah, the leadership forbade intermarriage between Samaritans and Jews. The Samaritans maintained worship (with a temple on Mount Gerizim) and the Pentateuch (but not the rest of the Bible), although their calendar is not the same as the Jewish calendar.

Sanhedrin (ultimately from Gk synedria from syn- and hedra, “with seat,” i.e., “council”) the religious court, whose membership was drawn from the Jewish ruling classes, that held ruling authority over the territory of Palestine under the Roman empire. The Sanhedrin was responsible for census-taking and taxation as well as for acting as a court that would decide cases on its own and also, after preliminary determination, send cases on to the Roman governors. “Sanhedrin” is also the title of a tractate of the Mishnah dealing with law courts in general.

Satan (Heb “adversary, accuser”) the Satan (a title, not a name) in Job 1.6–12, 2.1–7 is a member of the divine council who serves as a prosecutor or tester of God’s faithful (see also Zech 3.1). In the Gospels Satan serves as the chief tempter and head of the demonic realm (Mt 4.1–11; 12.26); in the book of Revelation Satan is identified with the serpent, the dragon, and the devil (12.9; 20.2).

school of prophets term for the followers of a prophet who preserved the prophet’s words and, it is presumed, applied them to new situations as they arose.

scribe in general, one who could write, especially official documents, and take down dictation for letters, legal proceedings, etc. In the New Testament, a scribe was a lawyer, one who was expert in the requirements and meaning of Jewish law, especially the Torah.

scroll a long strip of parchment (treated leather) or papyrus (reeds split, moistened, and pressed together), on which a text was written in columns. The scroll was read by unrolling one side while rolling up the other, to expose successive columns of text. Besides the literal meaning, scrolls stand for the message or teaching of God that a prophet has internalized and will then deliver to the intended hearers. Jeremiah (15.16) eats the words of God, and following him Ezekiel (3.3) eats a scroll. The message of God in the book of Revelation (5.1ff.) is expressed in stages as the seals on a scroll are broken open.

Sea Peoples remnants of the Mycenean or Aegean civilizations, which collapsed toward the end of the second millennium BCE. Some of these people sailed eastward on the Mediterranean and attacked those living along the coast; they were repulsed from Egypt and settled in southwest Canaan. The biblical Philistines are among the Sea Peoples.

Second Coming the return of a glorified Christ to Earth in judgment and redemption. See _parousia_.

Second Isaiah, also Deutero-Isaiah, the general term for chs 40–55 of the book of Isaiah. These chs are primarily concerned with the events leading up to the decree of the Persian king Cyrus in 538 BCE. permitting the exiles to return to Judah from Babylon and rebuild Jerusalem and the Temple. See also Third Isaiah.

Second Temple the Temple constructed beginning ca. 515 BCE by the returning exiles, and continued and expanded over the course of time, until its destruction by the Romans in 70 CE.

sect a religious grouping that emphasizes strict adherence to particular teachings and excludes those who do not conform seder (Heb “order”) the ritual meal and recitation of Passover. Also, the major divisions of the Mishnah (pl. sederim).

Seleucids the rulers of Syria and its surrounding areas after the breakup of the Greek empire of Alexander the Great, following his death, The Seleucid ruler Antiochus IV “Epiphanes” desecrated the Temple in 167 BCE, leading to the Maccabean revolt and the rededication of the Temple in 164 BCE, an event commemorated in the festival of Hanukkah.

Septuagint the ancient Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures. The Septuagint was translated over a lengthy period beginning probably in the third century BCE. Traditionally there were 72 translators, a number that was rounded off to 70 and, in Roman numerals, used as the abbreviation for this translation (LXX). The Septuagint was prepared for the use of Jews who lived in the Diaspora whose main language was Greek. It is important for several reasons: it translated a version of the Hebrew text that is older than the Masoretic text; it contains additional works, grouped in NRSV as the Apocryphal/Deuterocanonical Books, most of which were originally written in Greek; and it was the Old Testament of early Christians.

Shavuot see festival of weeks

Shema the first word, used as a title, of the exhortation “Hear, O Israel, the Lord is our God, the Lord alone” (Deut. 6:4), also the name of perhaps the most important and best-known prayer in Judaism, comprised of Deut. 6:4–9; 11:13–21; and Num. 15:37–41.

Sheol the underworld or abode of the dead

Shephelah the foothills leading to the central hill country of the land of Israel

shofar, also shophar the ram’s horn for ceremonial use. In ancient Israel it was sounded to announce the anointing of a king or as a summons to war or to sound an alarm; today, in the synagogue, it is sounded on the High Holy Days.

signet ring a ring bearing a personal seal, used to make an indentation in clay as a sign of authenticity of authorship simile a comparison, using “like” or “as” rather than, as in metaphor, linking two things directly

Sinai properly, the name of a peninsula bounded on the north by the Mediterranean Sea, on the east by the Gulf of Aqaba, and on the west by the Gulf of Suez. Traditionally the mountain of Sinai, purportedly the location where Moses received the Decalogue, is on this peninsula, but no mountain has been definitively identified as the biblical Sinai. See also Horeb.

Sitz im Leben (German, “setting in life”) in form criticism, the original context in which a specific genre or form was used sorites a philosophical argument in the form of linked propositions. The second part of each proposition forms the first part of the next, and the series therefore becomes an extended chain of reasoning source criticism the effort to discover the sources or documents behind a text and to explore how the sources were combined into larger units. See Documentary Hypothesis.

Southern Kingdom see Judah, Yehud, etc.

step parallelism a form of poetic parallelism (see) in which successive lines do not repeat or reverse the structure of the preceding line, but build on it like a set of steps: “O send out your light and your truth; / let them lead me; / let them bring me to your holy hill/and to your dwelling. / Then I will go to the altar of God, / to God my exceeding joy; / and I will praise you with the harp, / O God, my God.” (Ps 43:3–4)

Stoics Greek philosophers in the Hellenistic and Roman periods, who taught that emotions should be strictly controlled by reason

Sukkot see booths, festival of Sumer a civilization that ruled southern Mesopotamia from the late fourth millennium to the early second millennium BCE. The Sumerians developed cuneiform writing, which involved using a wedge-shaped reed to press marks into wet clay; the clay was then baked.

superscription a heading or descriptive title before the actual beginning of a text; many of the Psalms have a superscription giving a purported setting for the Psalm (e.g. Ps 3) or instructions on how it is to be performed (Ps 4).

suzerain the lord or ruler to whom loyalty is due in a covenant relationship

Symmachus a second-century CE translator of the Bible into Greek, whose translation was included in Origen’s Hexapla (a compendium of six Bible versions) synagogue (Gk “coming together with”) an assembly; a congregation. For Jews who were too distant from the Temple to worship at it, and for all Jews after the final destruction of the Temple by the Romans in 70 ce, the synagogue became the only form of worship. Services consisted of prayer, song, and study of the sacred text.

SYNCRETISM—TESTAMENT

syncretism the incorporation into one religion of practices and teachings derived from another, or the effort to combine two different religious traditions into a third, composite religion synedrion (Gk “understand with”) a figure of speech using a part of something to stand for the whole: in “Do not keep needy eyes waiting” (Sir 4.1) “needy eyes” stands for the whole needy person synonymous parallelism a type of parallelism where the second line or colon of a bicolon echoes the meaning of the first in different terms.
Synoptic Gospels Matthew, Mark, and Luke. “Synoptic” means “view together,” and is applied to these writings because they, unlike John, can be readily compared.
synoptic problem the observation that in many passages Matthew and Luke repeat with only minor changes what Mark says, yet in other passages they do not follow Mark, or include stories or sayings that Mark does not have, yet match each other very closely. According to the most widely held theory, Matthew and Luke relied on Mark and on another document (now lost) that contained mostly sayings of Jesus; this second document is referred to as “Q” (from the German word “Quelle,” meaning “source”). In addition, Matthew and Luke each had their own sources.
Syriac an eastern form of Aramaic that was the language of some Jews and of some eastern Christian communities in the early centuries of the Common Era. It is the language of the Peshitta.
Syrohexapla (or Syriac hexapla) a Syriac translation of the Septuagint text that provides textual evidence about the nature of the Septuagint. Although the Hexapla was translated in the seventh century ce, it is based upon a Septuagint text dating from as early as the third century ce.

T
tabernacle the portable sanctuary used by the Israelites during their wanderings in the wilderness tabernacles, feast of see booths, festival of tablet a slab, typically of clay, with a smoothed surface that can be inscribed with a text talion (Latin talio, “in kind” from talis, “like,” “such like”) a punishment that is of the same kind as the crime: exacting an equivalent penalty, such as an equal economic loss for theft, or death for murder, or “an eye for an eye.” Talion is well attested in Mesopotamian law, and in some biblical legal collections.
Talmud (Heb “teaching”) the title of the two great collections of rabbinic teaching, the Jerusalem Talmud (also called the Palestinian Talmud or the Talmud of the Land of Israel) and the Babylonian Talmud. The Talmuds were compiled beginning after 200 ce. They consist of comments on, and extensions of, the Mishnah in order to apply Jewish teaching to everyday life, but they also include information on a wide range of topics. The two centers of rabbinic study (the land of Israel and Babylonia) were in contact with each other and the commentary therefore reflected a common effort; later, especially with the completion of the Talmud in Israel (ca. 400 ce), the Babylonian effort continued to refine and extend the applications, and it was the Talmud developed in Babylonia (completion after 500 ce) that was distributed worldwide, under the auspices of the academies that continued to work in Babylon until the beginning of the second millennium ce.
Tanakh an acronym formed from the beginning letters of the three divisions of the Hebrew Bible: Torah, Nevi'im, Ketubim Targum translation of the Hebrew Bible into Aramaic.
The Targums are important for textual criticism of the Hebrew text, since they provide evidence about it at a stage earlier than that of the Masoretic text.
tel (Heb), tell (Arabic) a mound formed by repeated construction, occupation, and destruction of buildings on a particular site Temple the central place of worship for Israelite religion in Jerusalem, referring either to the First Temple or the Second Temple teraphim a term (generally translated “household gods”) for certain cultic objects in early Israel; their nature and function is unclear, and their size seems to be varied (in Gen 31.34 Rachel can conceal Laban’s household gods by sitting on them; in 1 Sam 19.13, the “idol” is large enough to look like someone is in a bed). They may have been images of one’s ancestors. One use to which they were put may have been divination (Ezek 21.21), but how this was done is not explained.
testament (Lat “testamentum,” for Gk diatheke) a final disposition of one’s personal property, but used in LXX to translate Heb berith, “covenant,” and therefore applied to the “new covenant” or “new testament” as inaugurated by Jesus (recalling Jeremiah’s promise of a “new covenant” in 31.31–34); testament therefore came to mean the collection of writings (the Hebrew Scriptures or the Christian Scriptures) that presented the covenant of God with the people of God

Tetragrammaton (Gk “four letters”) the divine name, YHWH

Tetrateuch the first four books of the Bible, Genesis through Numbers, regarded by some scholars as an edited collection to which Deuteronomy was then attached. See Pentateuch textual criticism the effort to establish, by scholarly assessment of manuscript copies and other sources, an accurate version of a text; also called “lower criticism”

theodicy the theological effort to justify the goodness of God in the face of suffering

Theodotion (ca. second century ce) a translator of the Hebrew Bible into Greek and reviser of the Septuagint

theophany (Gk “appearance of god”) the temporary appearance or manifestation of a divine being in a form that can be apprehended by the human senses

Third Isaiah, also Trito-Isaiah, the scholarly term for chs 56–66 of the book of Isaiah, which are primarily concerned with the life of the returned exiles in the province of Yehud (the Persian name for Judah) after 538 BCE. Some scholars doubt the separate existence of Third Isaiah; others maintain that it is not the product of one author, but a collection of diverse oracles by different members of a “school of Isaiah” collected during the Persian period. See also Second Isaiah.

Thomas, Gospel of an early collection of sayings attributed to Jesus. It contains no miracle stories and no account of Jesus’ deeds, his birth, his death, or the resurrection. Some of the sayings resemble those in the canonical Gospels, but others reflect Gnosticism.

tresh to beat gathered stalks of grain in order to separate the grain from the stems and husks. A threshing floor, a flat area used for threshing grain, was often built on a hilltop to catch the breeze necessary for winnowing.

threshing floor see thresh

Tiamat goddess of the deep and mother of the Babylonian pantheon; she is sometimes portrayed as a dragon.

tithe the conventional religious due (traditionally 10 percent) of certain material goods, such as herbs (Deut 14.22; Mt 23.23); other produce, like fruit or livestock, required the donation of “first fruits” or the young that opened the womb (the firstborn kid or calf) to God (Ex 13.12)

Torah (Heb “teaching, instruction”) the first division of the Hebrew Bible, consisting of Genesis through Deuteronomy. The word (and hence the title) is sometimes translated “law,” but this translation is misleading since the five books contain much more than law codes and regulations.

tradition criticism the investigation of the development of a text from its earliest stages (oral or original source documents) to the latest (canonical) stage

Transfiguration, the conventional title for narrative (Mk 9.2–8; Mt 17.1–8; Lk 9.28–36) in which Jesus, accompanied by Peter, James, and John, ascends a mountain and appears to the disciples in dazzling white, like a vindicated martyr, in the company of Moses and Elijah (founder and renewer of Israel)

Transjordan (“across Jordan”) the region east of the Jordan River transmission history an account, usually inferred, of how a text came down to the present from its originator. Steps in transmission history can include oral transmission, redaction, manuscript copying, and scribal emendation.

Trito-Isaiah see Third Isaiah trope (Gk “turn [away]”) use of a word or phrase in a sense differing from its usual or literal meaning, as in a figure of speech; “a stitch in time” is not about sewing, but about the advantages of timely or early action

Twelve, Book of the the Minor Prophets

Twelve, the conventional designation for Jesus’ closest followers (Mk 3.14–16 and parallels; Mk 10.32) typology (Gk tupos, the raised design on a seal for imprinting in wax, then by extension a pattern or model) understanding persons or events, especially in the New Testament, by referring them to earlier biblical precursors

U

Ugarit city on the Mediterranean coast (Ras-Shamra in present-day Syria), source of an important collection of Canaanite myths and other texts from the second half of the second millennium BCE in a language called Ugaritic, which was related to Hebrew

Ugaritic an ancient Semitic language closely related to Hebrew, which was used at the city of Ugarit on the coast of the Mediterranean in Syria in the second millennium BCE. Many Ugaritic texts have connections in style and content with the Bible.

unleavened bread (Heb matzah, pl. matzot) bread made without yeast; also the festival of unleavened bread associated with passover.

Urim and Thummim a method of divination used to discover God’s response to “yes” or “no” questions
v

vassal the underlord in a covenant relationship, who is granted power and control over people in a particular area in return for loyalty to the suzerain

Vassal Treaty of Esarhaddon an Assyrian treaty document from the reign of the Assyrian king Esarhaddon (681–669 BCE), with parallels to parts of Deuteronomy

Vulgate see Jerome

w

wadi (Arabic) a stream bed or valley that is dry for part of the year; an arroyo or gulch weeks, festival of (Heb Shavuot; “Pentecost,” Gk for “fiftieth” [day]) the spring harvest, occurring according to Priestly texts fifty days (seven full weeks) after Passover winnnow to separate grain from its husks (called chaff) after it has been threshed. The threshed grain is placed in a wide, flat basket and tossed repeatedly into the air, allowing a breeze to blow away the lighter chaff while the grain drops back down into the basket.

wisdom literature Job, Proverbs, and Ecclesiastes in the Hebrew Bible, Sirach and Wisdom in the Apocrypha, and some Psalms. Wisdom literature is concerned with insight, instruction, meditation of the meaning of life, and moral exhortation. It does not generally concern itself with key events in Israel’s history, such as the Exodus; central teachings, such as the covenant; or focal institutions, such as the Davidic monarchy, prophecy, or the Temple.

Writings the third division of the Hebrew Bible

Y

Yahweh see YHWH

Yahwistic characteristic of the religion of the worship of YHWH or of the teachings, Temple practices, etc., in the Pentateuch

Yehud designation of the province of Judah during Persian times; see Judah

YHWH (sometimes also YHVH) the name of God, which in Jewish tradition is conventionally unpronounced; modern scholars use the conventional pronunciation “Yahweh.” The name is represented in the Masoretic text by the Hebrew letters yod-he-vav-he and the vowels for the title Adonai, “my Lord.” In most English translations, following an ancient substitution, YHWH is represented by the word Lord written in capital and small capital letters. The original vocalization and meaning of the name YHWH is uncertain, though it is connected to the verb h-y-h, “be” or “become,” most likely in a causative sense, “he who causes to be.”

Yom Kippur see Day of Atonement

Z

Zadokites priests purportedly descended from Zadok, one of David’s chief priests and the only chief priest under Solomon, who anointed Solomon king (1 Kings 1). Zadok was descended from Aaron (1 Chr 6). Ezekiel’s vision of the restored Temple explicitly maintains that Zadokites will be the priests, differentiated from Levites (Ezek 48.11). The Qumran community wanted to restore the Zadokite priesthood; Zadok may also be the source of the name Sadducees, those who supported the religio-political elite centered on the Jerusalem Temple under the Roman occupation. See also Aaron.

Zealot a member of a Jewish revolutionary movement during the Roman occupation of Palestine in the first century CE ziggurat a temple-tower in ancient Mesopotamia. Ziggurats are presumed to represent a mount, on the top of which the earthly and divine realms merged.

Zion the name of the fortified hill within Jerusalem and thus, by extension, an alternative name for Jerusalem itself, especially in biblical poetry

Zion theology a name for the view that God’s ultimate plan for Israel is restoration of the monarchy under a Davidic king who rules from Jerusalem
INDEX TO THE STUDY MATERIALS

The index is to the introductions, annotations, and essays, not to the biblical text. It therefore refers not to biblical citations but to page numbers.

A
Aaron; see also priesthood appointment of, hb:91 complaint of, hb:206–8 genealogy of, hb:91
and golden calf, hb:129–30 priesthood of, hb:215
Simon the High Priest and,
ap:1518
sprouting rod of, hb:215 Abraham
as ancestor of Jesus, nt:1748 and ancestral history in Genesis, hb:9; hb:26 blessing of, hb:46; hb:66
burial plot of, hb:42
call of, hb:27
circumcision and, ap:1517; hb:10; nt:1982 covenant with, hb:31; hb:91 death of, hb:45
faith of, nt:1981–82 and Lot, hb:29–30
meaning of name, hb:34
as model for Christian faith,
nt:2046
as model for returnees, hb:1006 obedience of, hb:41
promise to, hb:9; hb:27; hb:31;
hb:32; hb:81; hb:91; nt:2055;
nt:2109
as prophet, hb:38
testing of, hb:40–41
Absalom defeat of, hb:471–73 return of, hb:464–66 revolt of, hb:466–67 acroastics
in Ecclesiasticus, ap:1527
in Lamentations, hb:1147
in Proverbs, hb:933–34
in Psalms, hb:780; hb:800;
hb:802; hb:867; hb:871; hb:890
authorship of, nt:1919
date of, nt:1919–20
and Gospel of Luke, nt:1919;
nt:1921
title of, nt:1919
“we” passages in, nt:1919; nt:1950;
nt:1951; nt:1958; nt:1959;
’adam (human being), hb:13; hb:14;
hb:17
Adam and Christ, nt:1983–84
Additions to Daniel, ap:1542
Additions to the Book of Esther,
ap:1411–12; hb:707
adultery, ap:1549; hb:193; hb:260–61;
see also sexual offenses
as capital offense, hb:286 divorce and, nt:1810
as metaphor for idolatry, nt:2159 ordeal and, hb:193 penalty for, hb:286 perils of, hb:903–4 stoning and, hb:65
woman caught in, nt:1895–96 age, of human beings, hb:17; hb:18 agriculture, hb:22
Hosea and, hb:1260–62
seasons of, hb:21
Alcimus (high priest), ap:1574;
ap:1579; ap:1628–30
Alexander the Great, ap:1364;
ap:1555; hb:1249–50
aliens attitude toward, hb:170 and Levites, hb:292
resident, hb:244; hb:268; hb:277;
hb:447
and widows, hb:292
almsgiving, ap:1386–87; ap:1463–64;
ap:1496
altar(s), hb:121; hb:190 of burnt offerings, hb:1223;
hb:1243
of incense, hb:126; hb:137 rebuilding of, hb:671–72 sacrificial, hb:137
Amos
meaning of name, hb:1284
visions of, hb:1293–94
Amos, Book of, hb:1282–97 and classical prophecy, hb:1284
date of, hb:1284
anachronisms, ap:1564; hb:243;
hb:416; hb:427
ancestors, hb:259
of Israel, ap:1516
ancestral deities, hb:54 Ancient One, hb:1248 angel of God, divine presence and, not:103; see also angel of the Lord; divine presence angel of the Lord, hb:33; hb:39;
hb:376; hb:564; hb:801; see also angel of God; divine presence angels, hb:35; hb:36; hb:130
in Mattean infancy narrative,
nt:1748–49
and stairway of Jacob, hb:50 superiority of Son to, nt:2104–5 anger, divine, hb:1037–38; hb:1342; see also wrath
animals, unclean, hb:101
Anointed, the, hb:963; hb:1341; see also Messiah the Lord’s, nt:1028 anointing of David, hb:423–24
of Jesus, nt:1818; nt:1843–44;
nt:1902–3
of kings in ancient Israel, not:489 antichrist, nt:2140–41
and false teaching, nt:2146
Antiochus IV Epiphanes, ap:1364;
ap:1457; ap:1543; ap:1544;
ap:1556; ap:1557–62; ap:1563;
ANTIOCHUS V EUPATOR—BEELZEBUL

in 2 Maccabees, Ap:1599–1600
and abomination, HB:1256 coins of, HB:1249
and religious law, Ap:1556 in vision of Daniel, HB:1247

accession of, Ap:1571–72 Apocalypse. See Revelation to John apocalyptic imagery, NT:2078
in 2 Peter, NT:2132–33
in 2 Thessalonians, NT:2078
darkness vs. light as, NT:2058; NT:2069
in Ephesians, NT:2058
in eschatological discourse of Jesus, NT:1781–82; NT:1816–17 Gog of Magog as, HB:1214–17; HB:1235 in Zechariah, HB:1337
apocalypticism, and postexilic prophecy, HB:964

Apocrypha
in Christianity, AP:1362–63 historical background of, AP:1364–66 influence of, AP:1366–67
in Judaism, AP:1452 types of literature in, AP:1365–66 meaning of word, AP:1361 order of, AP:1361

apostle(s) arrest of, NT:1927–28; NT:1929–30 false, NT:2037
last mention of, NT:1950
meaning of term, NT:1840
Paul as, NT:1946; NT:2011–12
the twelve as, NT:1840
apostolic council, NT:1920; NT:1921
apostolic decree, NT:1921; NT:1948
Aramaic language, HB:1015
Book of Ezra and, HB:673; HB:677–78 archaeology and design of Temple, HB:620 and historical books, HB:316–17 ark, of Noah, HB:19

ark narrative, in 1 Samuel, HB:399; HB:405 ark of the covenant, HB:107; HB:118–19; HB:137; HB:190; HB:324; NT:2111 brought to Temple, HB:502; HB:622–23 capture of, HB:405–7
in Chronicles, HB:596–98
dimensions of, HB:119
Jeremiah and, HB:1064
as made by Moses, HB:267
in most holy place, HB:498–99 and the Philistines, HB:405–7 purpose of, HB:119
as throne of the Lord, HB:454 use of, in military activities, HB:201; HB:210
Ascent, Songs of, HB:773
Asherah, HB:132; HB:263; HB:359; HB:654
Asherim (sacred poles), HB:132; HB:263; HB:278; HB:367; HB:654 assembly of the Lord, HB:287
Assyrians, AP:1393
Isaiah and, HB:965–66; HB:975
judgment on, HB:989
Nahum and, HB:1316
Atonement, Egyptian sun-disk, HB:858 as appeasement of deity, HB:228 golden calf and, HB:130 for unsolved murder, HB:283–84 Atrakhasis epic, HB:9
avenger, HB:244
Azariah, Prayer of, AP:1366; AP:1543–47; HB:1240

B Baal, HB:448; HB:518–22; HB:1076
shrines of, HB:132
Baal-zebub, HB:533; see also Beelzebul Babel
name, HB:26
tower of, HB:7; HB:9; HB:25–26
Babylon, HB:116
end of, HB:1031–32
Jeremiah's letters to, HB:1105–6
judgment on, HB:995
oracle concerning, HB:986–89;
HB:1138–44
Rome as, NT:2154; NT:2173–75
yoke of, HB:1103–5
Book of Baruch and, AP:1529–30
Daniel and, HB:1234
Deuteronomy and, HB:248;
HB:256; HB:310–11; HB:314–15
Ezekiel and, HB:1159–60
Isaiah and, HB:966–67
Jeremiah and, HB:1057
and Letter of Jeremiah, AP:1537 and redaction of Pentateuch, HB:6 return from, AP:1637; AP:1638;
AP:1642–44; AP:1648–49;
HB:667–68; HB:1033–39
Zechariah and, HB:1339
Babylonian influence on creation story, HB:11 on flood story, HB:19
Balaam, story of, HB:222–24
ban, HB:263; see also dedication(s); Herem, holy war banquet, eschatological, Isaiah and, HB:1000–1001 baptism, NT:2108
into Christ, NT:2047
as dying with Christ, NT:1984 of Jesus, NT:1751; NT:1793; NT:1835 of John the Baptist, NT:1923 of repentance, NT:1792; NT:1834 barrenness, AP:1431–32; HB:266; HB:400 of Sarah, HB:26; HB:27
Baruch
God's word to, HB:1129
and Jeremiah, AP:1529; AP:1530;
AP:1531–32
Baruch, Book of, AP:1529–36
date of, AP:1529
Bathebsha, HB:64; HB:604 and David, HB:459–60 beasts, in Revelation, NT:2169
beatitudes, NT:1753; NT:1840
Beelzebul, HB:1764; see also Baalzebul controversy about, NT:1852
Beer-sheba
Jacob and, HB:74
meaning of name, HB:40; HB:46

Behemoth ("animal"), HB:768–69
Bel and the Dragon, AP:1365;
AP:1552–54
as court tale, AP:1365
date of, AP:1552
as midrash on Jeremiah, HB:51
Ben Sira, as scribe, AP:1457; see also Ecclesiasticus, book of Benedictus, NT:1831–32
Benjamin birth of, HB:60
meaning of name, HB:60
Benjamin, tribe of civil war with, HB:387–89
oaths concerning, HB:390
Bible, threefold division of, AP:1459; see also Apocrypha; entries at law; interpretation, biblical bishops, qualifications for, NT:2087–88 black, as color, NT:2162 blessing(s), HB:180–82
as consequence of obedience,
HB:294–95
deathbed, HB:48
priestly, HB:195
blindness
as metaphor for religious insensitivity, HB:1006 of Tobit, AP:1371–72 blood, HB:170
crying out, HB:63
as first plague in Egypt, HB:93 menstruation, HB:54; HB:1149 and ordination of priests, HB:125 Passover and, HB:98 ritual impurity of, HB:973; HB:1149 sacredness of, HB:16
significance of, HB:116; HB:271 and vengeance, HB:477
bloodguilt, HB:281; HB:285; HB:438
NT:2025; NT:2026–27;
NT:2030–31; NT:2032; NT:2034;
NT:2035–36; NT:2037; NT:2050
boils, as sixth plague in Egypt, HB:95 book of consolation, HB:1107–11
Book of Jashar, HB:334; HB:447
Book of the Acts of Solomon, HB:486;
HB:509
Book of the Annals of the Kings of Israel, HB:486
Book of the Consolation of Israel. See Second Isaiah
Book of the Covenant. See Covenant Collection book of the law, HB:566; HB:660 book of the Twelve, HB:962; HB:1259;
HB:1351; NT:1933
Book of the Wars of the Lord, HB:221 booths, festival of, AP:1369; AP:1600;
AP:1601; AP:1620; HB:83; HB:177;
HB:672; HB:696–97; HB:1350;
NT:1893–94; see also ingathering, festival of; Succoth
Bow, Song of the, HB:447 branch (Davidic heir), HB:973;
HB:1340; HB:1342
bread breaking of, NT:1926; NT:1958;
NT:1969
of life (Jesus), NT:1892–93
of the presence, AP:1558; HB:119;
HB:502; HB:622; HB:1763;
NT:2111
burnt offerings, HB:27; HB:124–25;
HB:126; HB:143–49; HB:201;
HB:211; HB:270; HB:410; HB:608;
HB:625; HB:1073; HB:1219;
HB:1240; see also offerings of the Old Testament, AP:1361–62 capital offenses, adultery as, HB:286 capital punishment, HB:172; HB:212;
HB:273
captives, female, legal obligations toward, HB:284 census, HB:126; HB:137; HB:183 of aliens, HB:619
first Israelite, HB:185–88
first Levitical, HB:188–90 of repopulated Jerusalem, HB:701–2 second Levitical, HB:193
centurion, NT:1757–58; NT:1842;
NT:1938
chaos
cosmic, HB:729; HB:735 creation and, HB:11 flood and, HB:20
cherubim, HB:16; HB:20; HB:119–20;
HB:406; HB:454; HB:499;
HB:620–21; HB:786; HB:1162–63;
HB:1172
children, AP:1431; AP:1485–86 of Abraham, NT:1839 adopted, of God, NT:2047–48;
NT:2054
Jesus and, NT:1865
in the kingdom of God, NT:1810 of the promise, NT:1989 raising of, AP:1497 Christ; see also Jesus and Adam, NT:1983–84
as advocate, NT:2139
and heavenly armies, NT:2176–77
as high priest, NT:2103; NT:2106;
NT:2107–8
sacrifice of, NT:2112
self-emptying of, NT:2063
supremacy of, NT:2069
Christian community, life in, NT:1926;
see also church
Chronicler, retribution theology of,
HB:311; HB:315
Chronicler's History, HB:575 assemblies in, HB:612 importance of Judah in, HB:578 Chronicles, Books of, HB:577–665 similarities of, to Ezra-Nehemiah,
HB:311; HB:315; HB:575
title of, HB:575 church
in Acts, NT:1919–21
life in, NT:2087–88; NT:2089
as mother, AP:1679–80
as new Israel, NT:2120
prayer for, in Ephesians, NT:2057 relationships in, NT:1772–74 circumcision, HB:320; HB:326
as covenant, AP:1517; HB:110 and early Christian community, NT:1940; NT:1947; NT:2096 of heart, HB:182; HB:268; HB:301; HB:1065
of Jesus, NT:1833
Jews as the, NT:2055; NT:2097
law of, HB:3; NT:2008–9; NT:2070; NT:2072 Paul’s view of, NT:2049; NT:2064 rejection of, AP:1678 rule of, HB:34
spiritual, NT:2070
and Timothy, NT:1950; NT:2091
cleansing, ritual, HB:127 cloud, HB:140; HB:165; HB:206–7; HB:215; HB:502; HB:973; HB:1172–73; see also pillar of cloud colors black, NT:2162
pale green, NT:2162
red, NT:2162
white, NT:2158; NT:2162; NT:2164
Colossians, Letter of Paul to,
NT:2067–73
authorship of, NT:2067
hymn in, NT:2067
problems addressed in, NT:2067
commandments, HB:111 social and religious, HB:114
Ten; See Ten Commandments communal confession, HB:697; HB:1251 companions
choice of, AP:1473
warnings about, AP:1470; AP:1474–75 conquest central campaign of, HB:327–32
commission of, HB:321
of land of Canaan, in Joshua, HB:3 northern campaign of, HB:336–37 preparation for, HB:321 southern campaign of, HB:332–33 war of, in Deuteronomy, HB:263–64
Corban, NT:1805
Corinth conflicts in, NT:2001–2 Paul’s mission to, NT:1999
as urban center, NT:1999
Corinthians, First Letter of Paul to,
NT:1999–2023
Corinthians, Second Letter of Paul to, NT:2025–39 themes of, NT:2025; NT:2026; NT:2039 Cornelius, conversion of, NT:1938–40 corpse contamination of, HB:194; HB:195; HB:217; HB:236 exposure of, HB:285 touching of, AP:1503
cosmology, in creation story, HB:11; see also creation Court History, HB:445
Court Narrative. See Succession Narrative covenant, HB:549; see also promise(s) with Abraham, HB:31; HB:34 breaking of, HB:128
circumcision as, HB:10; HB:33 of David and Jonathan, HB:430–31 everlasting, HB:34
Exodus and, HB:83
with Israel, HB:109–18; NT:1980 loyalty to, HB:268–70
in Malachi, HB:1353–54
meaning of, HB:22
new, NT:2016; NT:2028–29;
NT:2111
of Noah, HB:10; HB:22; HB:33 of peace, HB:228; HB:1041 in Pentateuch, HB:3
ratification ceremonies of,
HB:116–17; HB:298–300
renewal, HB:132; HB:266–68;
HB:841–42
of salt, HB:633
with Sheol, HB:1004
tabernacle of, HB:137
Covenant Collection, HB:112; HB:117;
HB:132; HB:261; HB:277; HB:294
covenant community, moral responsibilities of, HB:288 creation, HB:948
account of, in 2 Esdras, AP:1689–90 accounts of, in Genesis, HB:5; HB:9 cosmology of, HB:11 culminating in sabbath, HB:11 out of nothing, HB:11
P account of, HB:10 participation of the Son in, NT:2104 praise of, AP:1509–10; AP:1514–16
seven-day scheme of, HB:11 Wisdom and, AP:1479; NT:2104 cross; see also crucifixion; Jesus in 1 Corinthians, NT:2000 significance of, NT:2068; NT:2070 crucifixion, as Roman punishment, NT:1807–8; see also cross; Jesus cup of wrath, HB:1100; see also wrath curse(s), HB:180–82; HB:269; HB:294 of Canaan, HB:23; HB:25
as consequence of disobedience, HB:294–95
deathbed, HB:48
garden of Eden and, HB:15 of Noah, HB:30
Cyrus, AP:1387; AP:1530; AP:1552;
AP:1637; HB:664–65; HB:963;
HB:965–67; HB:1019; HB:1021;
HB:1023; HB:1025; HB:1245;
HB:1247
decree of, HB:575; HB:667–68;
HB:669; HB:1247; HB:1252;
HB:1333
oracle concerning, HB:1028–29

D
D (source of Pentateuch), HB:4–5
d and Deuteronomic law collection, HB:6 Dan, tribe of
meaning of name, HB:79
migration of, HB:384–85
Daniel
doxology of, HB:1237
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Topic</th>
<th>References</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Daniel, Book of</td>
<td>hb:1233</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>additions to</td>
<td>ap:1342; hb:1233</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>as apocalypse</td>
<td>hb:964; hb:1233</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>date of</td>
<td>hb:1233</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dead Sea Scrolls</td>
<td>ap:1366; ap:1543; hb:415</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>David</td>
<td>ap:1350</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ancestors of</td>
<td>hb:398</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>anointing of</td>
<td>hb:423−24</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and Bathsheba</td>
<td>hb:459−60</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>called son of Jesse</td>
<td>hb:431</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>census of</td>
<td>hb:482−83</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>as central character of Deuteronomistic</td>
<td>hb:399</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>History</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>covenant of, with Jonathan</td>
<td>hb:430−31</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>death</td>
<td>hb:614−15; hb:312−13; hb:316; hb:425−27; hb:604</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>links with story of Judah</td>
<td>hb:64−65; hb:439−40; hb:441−42</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and Philistines</td>
<td>hb:273−74</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>prayer of</td>
<td>hb:501−2; hb:600−601</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and Saul</td>
<td>hb:424−25; hb:427−30; hb:435−36; hb:438−39</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Davidic dynasty</td>
<td>hb:1017; hb:1095; hb:1210</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in Amos</td>
<td>hb:1296</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Day of Atonement</td>
<td>hb:165−67; hb:175; hb:232; hb:586; nt:2112</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>day of judgment</td>
<td>ap:1692; see also judgment</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Day of the Lord</td>
<td>nt:2136</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in Amos</td>
<td>hb:1283; hb:1291</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in Ezekiel</td>
<td>hb:1169; hb:1203; hb:1205</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in Gospel of Luke</td>
<td>nt:1771; nt:1829</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in Isaiah</td>
<td>hb:971; hb:987</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in Joel</td>
<td>hb:1277−78</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in Lamentations</td>
<td>hb:1149; hb:1152</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in Obadiah</td>
<td>hb:1299</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>suddenness of NT:2078</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in 2 Thessalonians</td>
<td>nt:2078</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in Zechariah</td>
<td>hb:1337; hb:1348</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Zephaniah and,</td>
<td>hb:1327−29</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>day of wrath</td>
<td>nt:1979; see also wrath</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>deacons</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>qualifications for NT:2087−88</td>
<td>seven, nt:1930−31</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dead, praying for</td>
<td>ap:1626</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Dead Sea Scrolls</td>
<td>ap:1366; ap:1543; hb:415</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>children of light and NT:2078</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>community of goods</td>
<td>nt:1926</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Daniel and</td>
<td>hb:1238</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dominion of sin and NT:1986</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Isaiah and</td>
<td>hb:967</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jeremiah and</td>
<td>hb:1058</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>lots and</td>
<td>ap:1426</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and Melchizedek</td>
<td>nt:2109</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Psalm 151 and</td>
<td>ap:1658</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>and the Way</td>
<td>nt:1936</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>death</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dominion of NT:1983</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>insatiability of HB:942</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mot as god of</td>
<td>hb:1273</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>universality of HB:938−39</td>
<td>hb:944−45</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deborah, Song of</td>
<td>hb:363−65</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>debt; see also ethics, financial interest</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>on loans; loans; poor; wealth</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Amos and</td>
<td>hb:1282</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Micah and</td>
<td>hb:1308</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>remission of</td>
<td>hb:274−75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Decalogue</td>
<td>ap:1517; hb:106; hb:132; hb:170; hb:256−57; hb:259−61; hb:267; hb:278; see also Ten Commandments</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Decapolis</td>
<td>nt:1752; nt:1801</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dedication(s)</td>
<td>hb:182−83</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>deep, the (Heb. tehom)</td>
<td>hb:11</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>herem, hb:183</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>of the Levites</td>
<td>hb:201</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Demetrius I Soter</td>
<td>ap:1574; ap:1580−82; ap:1628</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Demetrius II</td>
<td>ap:1581; ap:1583−86; ap:1592; ap:1594; ap:1595</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>demonic beings, forces, powers,</td>
<td>nt:2053; nt:2067; nt:2069</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>demons, nt:1799; nt:1837; nt:1897; see also devil; Satan</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>dependancy on others</td>
<td>ap:1496</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deuteronomical, meaning of term</td>
<td>ap:1361</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deuterononomist Historian</td>
<td>hb:279</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Deuteronomist History</td>
<td>hb:310; hb:314</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Diaspora, Jewish</td>
<td>ap:1370; hb:707−8; nt:1822; nt:1950; nt:2033; nt:2153</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Luke and</td>
<td>nt:1921</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Paul and</td>
<td>nt:1937−38</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Stephen and</td>
<td>nt:1931</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>diet</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>obligations concerning</td>
<td>hb:273−74</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>in postexilic period</td>
<td>hb:1235</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Tobit and</td>
<td>ap:1370</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>disciple(s)</td>
<td>nt:1753</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>discipleship</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>call of, nt:1793; nt:1839</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Jesus’ blessing of</td>
<td>nt:1850</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>misunderstanding of</td>
<td>nt:1806</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>nt:1809; nt:1811</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>persecution of</td>
<td>nt:1870</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>cost of</td>
<td>nt:1807−8; nt:1858−59</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>nature of</td>
<td>nt:1828</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>requirements for</td>
<td>nt:1847−48</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>true, nt:1872</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
DISCIPLINE–EXHORTATION TO HOLY LIVING discipline community, nt:2005–6 of God, nt:2116

disease
  of animals, as fifth plague in Egypt, hb:95 in wilderness wandering, hb:105 disobedience consequences of, hb:294–96

  Lot’s wife and, hb:37

divination casting lots as, hb:224
  Teraphim and, hb:383 divine intervention, hb:334 divine judge, ap:1480; hb:842 divine shepherd, hb:791; hb:840; see also shepherd

divine presence altar and, hb:117
  as angel of God, hb:103
  pillar of cloud and, hb:102; hb:103; hb:202 pillar of fire and, hb:102 smoke and, hb:975
  divine shepherd, hb:791; hb:840; see also shepherd

divine Sophia, in Wisdom of Solomon, ap:1428 divine warrior, hb:103; hb:255; hb:323 conquering promised land, hb:116 divorce, hb:289; see also marriage Jesus’ teaching on, nt:1774; nt:1810 remarriage after, hb:289

Documentary Hypothesis, hb:4

doxology, nt:2136; nt:2151; nt:2176
  in Amos, hb:1290
  in Psalms, hb:773; hb:848; hb:862; hb:891 in Wisdom of Solomon, ap:1455 dreams, hb:272; hb:941; see also divination critique of, ap:1502
  Daniel and, hb:964; hb:1235–36; hb:1242 divination and, hb:440 in Matthean infancy narrative, nt:1748–49

drunkenness, hb:18
  story of Lot and, hb:38
  dry bones, vision of, hb:1213–14; hb:1233–34

dualism, ap:1501

e
  E (source of Pentateuch), hb:4–5 Covenant Collection and, hb:6
dating of, hb:6
  origin of, hb:10
  Ecclesiastes, Book of, hb:721–22;
  Solomonic authorship of, hb:725
  Ecclesiasticus, Book of, ap:1457–1527 as didactic literature, ap:1365
    language of, ap:1457
    name of, ap:1457
    wisdom teaching in, ap:1458 economic hardship
    under Nehemiah, hb:691–92 Eden, garden of in Genesis, hb:10
    meaning of, hb:13
  Egypt
    Jeremiah in, hb:1126–29
    oracle against, hb:1129–32 prophecies against, hb:1201–7
    in the underworld, hb:1205 Egyptians, God’s dealings with, contrasted with Israelites, ap:1441–42; ap:1449–55
    ekklesia (assembly), nt:2001
    Eleazar, ap:1718; ap:1724–27 martyrdom of, ap:1612; ap:1724–26 meaning of name, ap:1725
    election, nt:1989
  Elijah; see also Elisha and Elisha cycles, hb:533–35 and Jezebel, hb:522
    and the Lord, hb:522–23
    and Naboth’s vineyard, hb:525–27 and prophets of Baal, hb:518–22 Elisha, ap:1522; hb:523; hb:534–44;
    see also Elijah
    miracles of, hb:537–39; hb:541–42 and Naaman, hb:539–41
    and the Shunammitite, hb:543–44
    Emmaus incident, nt:1876–77 end, the, prophecies of, in Ezekiel, hb:1169–70; see also end-time; eschaton end-time, nt:2092–94; see also end; eschaton in Daniel, hb:1257
    endogamy, as theme of Tobit, ap:1370; see also marriage
    Enuma Elish, hb:11

Ephesians, Letter of Paul to, nt:2052–60
  authorship of, nt:2052
  as circular letter, nt:2052 relation to Colossians, nt:2052 style of, nt:2052 vision of church in, nt:2052–53
  ephod, hb:383; hb:403
    as box, hb:419
    for divination, hb:442; hb:447
    as idol, hb:452
    as priestly garment, hb:118;
    hb:122; hb:433–34; hb:454–55
  Ephraim, hb:76–77
  Northern Kingdom as, hb:1259;
    hb:1263
  Esarhaddon, Vassal Treaty of, hb:248;
    hb:272; hb:294

Esau
  caricature of, hb:46 descendants of, hb:9; hb:60–61
  Jacob and, hb:46
  eschatology, prophetic, hb:948; see also apocalypticism eschaton, nt:2092

Esdras, First, ap:1365; ap:1367;
  ap:1633–55
  and 3 Esdras, ap:1633
  as history, ap:1365
  language of, ap:1633
  Esdras, Second, ap:1366; ap:1675–1716 and 5, 4, and 6 Ezra, ap:1675–76
  as apocalypse, ap:1366
  Essenes, ap:1366; nt:1926; nt:2056;
  see also Dead Sea Scrolls; John the Baptist

Esther, Book of, ap:1411–26;
  hb:709–19
  additions to, ap:1411–12
  authorship of, hb:707
  Greek version of, ap:1411
  as short story, hb:312; hb:315
  Esther, meaning of name, hb:710–11 ethics, financial, hb:288–89; see also debt; interest; loans; poor; wealth euangelion. See gospel eunuchs, hb:547; hb:1043
  evildoing, avoiding, ap:1467–68 exclusivism, religious, hb:132 exhortation to holy living, nt:1993–96 exile. See Babylonian exile

Exodus, Book of, HB:82–141
authorship of, HB:82 climax of, HB:140
date of, HB:82
geographic movement of, HB:83
sources of, HB:82
themes of, HB:82
Exodus, the, HB:33
historicity of, HB:82
journey of, HB:100–108

Exorcism, Jesus and, NT:1793–94; NT:1837; NT:1849

Ezekiel, ap:1523; HB:963

call of, HB:1162
commissioning of, HB:1164–65
speechlessness of, HB:1165; HB:1208 throne-chariot vision of, HB:1162–64
as Zadokite, HB:1160

Ezekiel, Book of, HB:1159–1231; NT:1837; NT:1849

Ezra
in 1 Esdras, AP:1633–34; AP:1648–55
memoirs of, AP:1653; HB:668; HB:678 prayer of, AP:1697; HB:681 and Torah, HB:667

Ezra, Book of, HB:669–84
and Nehemiah, HB:667–68 and Persian documents, HB:312; HB:316 Ezra-Nehemiah
date of, HB:667
mixed marriages and, HB:668
sources of, HB:668
structure of, HB:667–68

Ezra, Fourth, AP:1675–76; AP:1681
authorship and date of, AP:1675

Ezra, Fifth, AP:1675–76; AP:1676–80
authorship and date of, AP:1675

Ezra, Sixth, AP:1675
authorship and date of, AP:1675
as Christian composition, AP:1675

F faith, NT:1771–72; NT:1977

and acts of discrimination,
NT:2121
contending for, NT:2149 of Jesus Christ, NT:1981; NT:1983;
NT:2045; NT:2047
justification and, NT:1981–82
living by, NT:2114
power of, NT:2114–17 and works, NT:2122 faithfulness
in contrast to faithlessness,
NT:2086
required of Christians, NT:2106–7 faithlessness, faithfulness in contrast to, NT:2086 false teaching; see also antichrist; teachers; teaching antichrist and, NT:2146 victory over, NT:2140–41
famine, HB:394
fasting, HB:409; HB:679; HB:718;
NT:1755; NT:1796; NT:1839
genuine, HB:1045
to influence deity, HB:713 in mourning, HB:444
national, HB:640
as spiritual preparation, HB:697 fate of humanity, HB:940 fear of God, HB:740; HB:949
Isaac and, HB:55
of the Lord, AP:1460–62; AP:1471; feeding of five thousand, NT:1803–4;
NT:1847; NT:1891
of four thousand, NT:1806 miraculous, NT:1768; NT:1769–70 fertility
blessing of, HB:22; HB:264
consecration of firstborn and,
HB:101
festival scrolls (Megillot), HB:392;
HB:707; HB:1147
festivals
condemned, HB:1268; HB:1291
regulations for, HB:1226–27; HB:1247
Fifth Ezra. See Ezra, Fifth corresponding to, HB:521; HB:973
cloud of, in the wilderness,
HB:202; HB:244
as judgment, HB:975
meaning of, HB:87
theophany and, HB:1056
First Esdras. See Esdras, First
First Jewish Revolt, NT:2153
First Letter of Paul to the Corinthians. See Corinthians, First Letter of Paul to
First Letter of Paul to the Thessalonians. See Thessalonians, First Letter of Paul to
First Maccabees. See Maccabees, First (Book of) firstborn, HB:89; HB:701
consecration of, HB:101
death of, as tenth plague in Egypt, AP:1452–53; HB:97–100
Exodus and, HB:83
Jesus as, NT:1832; NT:1988;
NT:2069
redemption of, HB:132; HB:189 right of, HB:284
as temple servants, HB:189
flogging, HB:290
flood story, AP:1511; HB:5; HB:7; HB:9;
HB:10; HB:19–21
folly; see also fools destruction and, HB:940
sayings about, HB:927–28
foolishness, in 2 Corinthians, NT:2036–38 fools, AP:1485–86; see also folly footwashing, in John, NT:1904–5 forced labor, HB:283; HB:495 foreign nations
Amos against, HB:1284
oracles against, HB:1129–45
Zephaniah against, HB:1329–30 foreign women, HB:899; HB:902; see also marriage; strange woman foreigners, HB:180; HB:503; HB:1043 Book of Ruth and, HB:392 distinct from resident aliens,
HB:288
dread of, in postexilic period,
HB:671–72
former prophets, HB:961 Fourth Ezra. See Ezra, Fourth Fourth Gospel. See John, Gospel According to FOURTH MACCABEES—HEALING

Fourth Maccabees. See Maccabees, Fourth (Book of) frankincense, HB:127; HB:144; HB:149;

HB:954

freedom, Christian, NT:2049–50 friendship preserving, AP:1486 true and false, AP:1466; AP:1505–6 frogs as fourth plague in Egypt, HB:94 funeral dirges, HB:1185 future prediction of, AP:1683–85;

AP:1687–89; AP:1691–92;
AP:1693–94; AP:1699

G
Gabriel, NT:1830

Galatians, Letter of Paul to,
NT:2041–51
date of, NT:2041
opponents in, NT:2041;
NT:2042–43
garden of Eden, HB:14–16

Gehenna, NT:1809; NT:1854; see also Hades; Hell
gender boundaries, HB:285; see also common women
genealogy
Babylonian lists and, HB:17
in Chronicles, HB:575–76;
HB:577–83
from creation to flood, HB:17 in Genesis, HB:9; HB:10
of Jesus, NT:1748; NT:1835
in Nehemiah, HB:702–3
Priestly, HB:17–18
in Ruth, HB:392
of Shem, HB:26

Genesis, Book of, HB:9–81 composition of, HB:9–10 content of, HB:9
feminist rereadings of, HB:10 matriarch in, HB:10 meaning of word, HB:9

Gentiles
inclusion of, in Christian community, NT:1938–40; NT:1947
Peter’s defense of, NT:1940–41
giants (Nephilim), HB:18
Gilgamesh, epic of, HB:19; HB:20;
HB:21

glory, divine, HB:106; HB:118;
HB:130–31; HB:140; HB:206;
HB:214; HB:423; HB:796; see also divine presence; glory of the Lord; theophany glory of the Lord, HB:1165; HB:1171; see also divine presence; glory;

theophany
departure of, from Temple,
HB:1172–73
return of, HB:1222–23; HB:1243

gnats, as third plague in Egypt, HB:94

God
as Ancient One, HB:1248 angry, HB:36; HB:246
as divine ruler, HB:11 faithfulness of, HB:1352 as good shepherd, HB:1209–10 images of, HB:478
jealous, HB:111; HB:132; HB:228;
HB:262
loyalty to, HB:262; HB:272–73
names and epithets for, HB:33;
HB:40; HB:70; HB:87; HB:90;
HB:91; HB:132; HB:177–78;
HB:304; HB:400; HB:423;
HB:478; HB:480; HB:988
god, storm. See storm god
Gog of Magog, oracles, HB:1214–17;
HB:1235–37

HB:861
golden rule, AP:1375
Goliath, HB:312–13; HB:316; HB:425–27
Gomorrah. See Sodom and Gomorrah good or ideal wife, HB:896; HB:910;
see also wife
goods, sharing of, NT:1928–29; see also Dead Sea Scrolls gospel (euangelion)
and Jewish law, NT:2041 Paul’s defense of, NT:2042–43
in Romans, NT:1977
NT:1941–46
suffering for, NT:2091; NT:2092
Thessalonian’s response to,
NT:2075–76
Gospel of Thomas, NT:1744

Gospels
language of, NT:1744 literary genre of, NT:1743–44

meaning of term, NT:1743
Q and, NT:1744; NT:1746
sources of, NT:1744–45
Synoptic, NT:1744–45
grace of God, NT:2053
great commission, NT:1790

greed, warning against, NT:1854; see also wealth
green, pale, as color, NT:2162
grief, AP:1508

H
Habakkuk, Book of, HB:1321–26
date of, HB:1321
literary forms in, HB:1321
Habakkuk, hymn of, HB:1324
Hades, AP:1429–30; AP:1451; AP:1476;
AP:1480; AP:1533; AP:1547;
AP:1612; NT:2057; NT:2156
Haggai, HB:963
in 1 Esdras, AP:1644; AP:1646
rebuilding of Temple and, HB:674 Haggai, Book of, HB:1333–36
date of, HB:1333
hail, as seventh plague in Egypt,
HB:95
Hammurabi, Laws of, HB:193; see also Laws of Hammurabi
handwriting on the wall, in Daniel,
HB:1243–45
Hannah, Song of, HB:402–3
Hanukkah festival, AP:1555; AP:1599;
AP:1600; AP:1601; AP:1602;
AP:1603; AP:1620; NT:1900; see also Temple, Second happiness, AP:1497–98
hardness of heart, HB:89; HB:95;
HB:337; NT:1989
Pharaoh and, HB:92–98; HB:102–3 harvest festival, HB:115–16; see also Pentecost, Shavuot, Weeks
as pilgrimage festival, HB:276–77
Hasideans (the pious), AP:1562;
AP:1574; AP:1628–29
Hasmoneans, AP:1556; AP:1560; see also Maccabees

dynasty of, AP:1559; AP:1600 healing, NT:1769–70; NT:1794–95;
NT:1801–2; NT:1805–6;
NT:1807; NT:1808; NT:1812;
NT:1837; NT:1838; NT:1846;
NT:1848; NT:1857–58; NT:1865–
health—immortality

66; NT:1888–89; NT:1898; see also Jesus; sabbath health, AP:1497
heaven, kingdom of. See kingdom of heaven heavenly beings, HB:765; HB:796 heavenly court, HB:12; HB:16; HB:18; HB:639; HB:1312–13; see also holy ones; sons of God as divine council, HB:885; HB:1019–20; HB:1098 holy ones in, AP:1662–63; HB:1248 history, biblical notion of, HB:309–10; HB:313–14 History of David’s Rise, in 1 Samuel, HB:399 holiness
in the community, NT:2139 of God’s children, NT:2141 obligations of, HB:273–74
Holiness Code. See Holiness Collection
Holiness School, HB:141; HB:170; HB:184 holy gifts, HB:182–83
holy of holies (most holy place; inner sanctuary), HB:120; HB:121; HB:497; HB:498–99; HB:586; HB:620; HB:621; HB:1252 holy ones (saints), NT:1977; NT:2150; see also heavenly council holy place. See sanctuary Holy Spirit, NT:1915; NT:1920; NT:1921; NT:1943; NT:1983; NT:2141; NT:2142
as Advocate, NT:1907
aid from, NT:1854 blasphemy of, HB:1854 and Pentecost, NT:1923
holy war, HB:108; HB:246; HB:254–55; HB:263; HB:459; see also ban; dedication(s); herem rules for waging, HB:282–83 victory in, HB:266
honor sexual, violation of, HB:58; HB:59
true, AP:1471
hope, NT:1983; NT:2127 exhortation to, NT:2108–9
in God’s promise, NT:1987–88
Horeb, Mount. See Mount Sinai/Horeb
Hosea, HB:963
Hosea, Book of, HB:1259–74
hospitality
of Abraham, HB:35–36
of Lot, HB:35
sanctity of, HB:58 households authority in, AP:1468
Christian, NT:2067; NT:2068 codes, NT:2053; NT:2058; NT:2096 ethics, NT:2085 gods, HB:54
relationships in, NT:2058–59; NT:2072; NT:2129–30 human condition, AP:1510–11 human race after flood, HB:9
first, HB:9
humility, AP:1463
hymns Christological, NT:1831–33; NT:2104 psalms as; see Psalms ideal age, in Micah, HB:1310–11 idolatry, HB:272; HB:977; NT:1978; NT:2071; see also idols as cause of exile, HB:256 condemnation of, AP:1445; AP:1537; HB:1027–28 as fornication, AP:1447 repercussions of, AP:1447 vision of, in Ezekiel, HB:1170–71 ids, AP:1538–41; HB:1177; see also idolatry fabrication of, AP:1448 food offered to, NT:2010–11; NT:2013–14; NT:2158 uselessness of, AP:1538
worship of, AP:1537 immortality, AP:1458 of Eden and, HB:16
and knowledge of God, AP:1430

INDEX | 2297
IMPURITY RULES—JESHUA, LEADER OF THE RETURNEES of the soul, nt:2020; nt:2022 and true worship, ap:1448 wisdom and righteousness and,

ap:1428–29
impurity rules, hb:156–64; hb:195–96 and childbirth, hb:158 and diet, hb:156–57
priests and, hb:173–74 incense, ap:1489; hb:137; hb:194 recipe for, hb:127
incest, hb:22; hb:38
ingathering, festival of, hb:116; see also booths; Sukkoth
as pilgrimage festival, hb:276–77 inheritance of land by women, hb:3
inner sanctuary (holy of holies; most holy place), hb:120; hb:121; hb:497; hb:498–99; hb:586; hb:620; hb:621; hb:1252 interest on loans, ap:1495; hb:179; hb:289; see also debt; loans intermarriage.
interpretation, biblical allegorical, hb:950
of Jewish scriptures, nt:2103
Isaac, ap:1517
and Abraham, hb:46
blessing of, hb:48–49
descendants of, hb:45–46
as heir to promise, hb:9
and Ishmael, hb:39–40
meaning of name, hb:35; hb:39
as prefiguration of Christ, hb:41 sacrifice of, hb:40
Isaiah, ap:1523; hb:963 and Hezekiah, hb:562–64 oracles of, hb:961 Israel, Book of, hb:965–1056; see also Second Isaiah; Third Isaiah Ishmael, hb:9
descendants of, hb:45
and Isaac, hb:39–40
meaning of name, hb:40
Israel; see also Northern Kingdom apostasy of, hb:1060–63; hb:1191 borders of, hb:554; hb:604; hb:654 hardening of, nt:1992–93 idolatry of, hb:168–69 judgment against, ap:1677–78 and the land, hb:576 liberation of, hb:83
meaning of name, hb:56
pattern of rebellion of,
hb:1186–88
as people of the book, hb:667;
hb:695–96
primeval history of, hb:9
prophetic indictment of,
ap:1676–77
shepherds of, hb:1209–10 unfaithfulness of, hb:1263
united, hb:1214; hb:1234 as vine, hb:1270
as wayward child, hb:1271
as wife, hb:1259
J
J (source of Pentateuch), hb:4–5;
hb:10; hb:11
anthropomorphic God in, hb:5
Covenant Collection and, hb:5 creation story of, hb:12 dating of, hb:6; hb:10
origin of, hb:10
primeval history, hb:11
Jachin and Boaz (pillars), hb:500;
hb:549; hb:621; see also pillar(s) Jacob, ap:1517
blessing of, hb:47; hb:78
burial of, hb:76; hb:79; hb:80
descendants of, hb:74
and Esau, hb:46
as Israel, hb:56; hb:60; hb:62
meaning of name, hb:46 strength of, hb:51
twelve sons of, hb:9
James, as leader of Jerusalem church,
nt:1947; nt:2041–42; nt:2043;
nt:2045; nt:2119; nt:2149
James, Letter of, nt:2119
authorship of, nt:2119
date of, nt:2119
themes of, nt:2120
Jason of Cyrene, history of, and 2
Maccabees, ap:1599; ap:1603
Jeremiah, ap:1523; hb:963 and Baruch, hb:961
call of, hb:1059
complaints of, hb:1080–82;
hb:1086–87; hb:1089; hb:1091;
hb:1093
and fall of Jerusalem, hb:1122–23 and Lamentations, hb:1147
Letters of, to Babylon, hb:1105–6 life of, hb:1057
scroll of, hb:1117–18
Temple sermon of, hb:1102–3
at Topheth, hb:1091–93
Jeremiah, Book of, hb:961; hb:964;
hb:1057–1146
Jeremiah, Letter of, ap:1537–41 authorship of, ap:1537 location of, ap:1537
Jericho archaeology and, hb:327 conquest of, hb:320; hb:327–29
Jerusalem, hb:270; see also restoration of Jerusalem and Temple assault on, hb:1005–6
as city of David, hb:453 destruction of, in 70 ce, nt:1791;
nt:1816; nt:1870; nt:2154
eschatological description of,
hb:1349–50
fall of, hb:966; hb:1083; hb:1122–23;
hb:1163; hb:1344
God's lament over, hb:1081
Isaiah and, hb:969–70
Jesus' entry into, nt:1776
Jesus' lament over, nt:1857;
nt:1867
Lamentations and, hb:1147
as mother, hb:1040
name of, hb:31
new, hb:1041; hb:1231; hb:1252;
nt:2154; nt:2160; nt:2178–80
prophecies of doom against,
hb:1166–67
rebuilding of, under Nehemiah,
hb:685
restoration of, hb:1038; hb:1047–48;
hb:1252; hb:1339
rulers and institutions in,
nt:1812–16
as Salem, hb:31
vision of, ap:1702
Zophaniah and, hb:1331–32
Jerusalem church, James as leader of,
nt:1947; nt:2041–42; nt:2043;
nt:2045; nt:2119; nt:2149
Jerusalem council, nt:1942
Jeshua, leader of the returnees, Jesus

as Amen, NT:2160
annunciation of birth of, NT:1830 anointing of, NT:1818; NT:1843–44; NT:1902–3
as apostle, NT:2106 authority of, NT:1814; NT:1867
baptism of, NT:1751; NT:1793;
NT:1835
betrayal of, NT:1785–86; NT:1819–20; NT:1871; NT:1905 as bread of life, NT:1829–34
burial of, NT:1789; NT:1823;
NT:1875; NT:1914
charges against, NT:1787 childhood of, NT:1833 conception and birth of, NT:1748–49; NT:1832 and criticism of religious practice [scribes and Pharisees], NT:1780–81 crucifixion of, NT:1788–89; NT:1822–23; NT:1874–75; NT:1913; NT:2002
death and resurrection of,
NT:1775; NT:1818; NT:1875–76;
NT:2019–22
and the devil, NT:1751–52; NT:1836 domination of, over nature, NT:1768 empty tomb of, NT:1790;
NT:1823–24; NT:1876
entry of, into Jerusalem, NT:1776 eschatological discourse of,
NT:1781–83
family of, NT:1765; NT:1845
farewell discourse of, NT:1905–10 and healing, NT:1758; NT:1794–95;
NT:1795; NT:1796; NT:1801–2;
NT:1805–6; NT:1807; NT:1808;
NT:1812; NT:1837; NT:1838;
NT:1846; NT:1848; NT:1856–57;
NT:1857–58; NT:1865–66;
NT:1888–89; NT:1898
as high priest, NT:2105–11
as incarnate Word, NT:1880 and John the Baptist, NT:1762;
NT:1842–43
journey of, to Jerusalem, NT:1849 and the law, NT:1753–54
as light of life, NT:1896
Lukan genealogy of, NT:1835
as martyr-messiah, NT:1807;
NT:1818
Matthean genealogy of, NT:1748 meaning of name, NT:1748–49;
NT:1830
ministry of, NT:1752; NT:1836–37
as Moses, NT:1792; NT:2106 and the Pharisees, NT:1770 and prayer, NT:1835; NT:1872;
NT:1909–10
as prophet, NT:1791–92; NT:1807 rejection of, NT:1767; NT:1802;
NT:1849
relation of, to God, NT:1890;
NT:2104
and religious authorities,
NT:1893–95
resurrection appearances of,
NT:1790; NT:1824; NT:1877
and Sadducees, NT:1770
and Samaritans, NT:1887–89
as shepherd, NT:1899
teaching of, NT:1793–94
and Temple, NT:1776–78;
NT:1833–34; NT:1867; NT:1879;
NT:1885–86
temptation of, NT:1751–52; NT:1836 transfiguration of, NT:1771;
NT:1808
trial of, NT:1788; NT:1820–21;
NT:1873; NT:1911–13
Job, Book of, HB:727–71
authorship of, HB:725
structure of, HB:726
Joel, HB:964
Joel, Book of, HB:1275–81
John, Gospel According to,
NT:1745; NT:1879–1917
authorship of, NT:1879
prologue of, NT:1881–82
and “the Jews,” NT:1880; NT:1882;
NT:1894
John, First Letter of, NT:2137–44
authorship and date of, NT:2137
and fourth Gospel, NT:2137
John, Second Letter of, NT:2145–46
author of, as “the Elder,” NT:2145
John, Third Letter of, NT:2147–48
author of, as “the Elder,” NT:2147
hospitality in, NT:2147
John the Baptist, NT:1792; NT:1834–35;
NT:1922
annunciation of birth of,
NT:1829–30
baptism of, NT:1923
birth and naming of, NT:1831–32 death of, NT:1767; NT:1802–3 importance of, NT:1771
and Jesus, NT:1762
as precursor of Jesus, NT:1750
John Hymcanus I, AP:1597–98
Jonah, HB:554
call of, HB:1303
prayer of, HB:1303–4
resurrection of Jesus and, HB:1302 Jonah, Book of, HB:1301–5
date of, HB:1301
humor in, HB:1302
as a story, HB:1301; HB:1302 Jonathan
and covenant with David,
HB:430–31
son of Saul, HB:418
Jonathan (Maccabee), AP:1578–91
death of, AP:1590–91
as high priest, AP:1581
Jordan River
crossing of, in Joshua, HB:324–26
as symbol, HB:324
Joseph
dreams and, HB:62; HB:66–67 story of, HB:62–79
HB:129; HB:131
death and burial of, HB:354
as parallel to Moses, HB:319 transfer of leadership to, HB:231;
HB:310
Joshua, Book of, HB:321–54
authorship of, HB:318
and Deuteronomistic History,
HB:318
geographical plan of, HB:319
historicity of, HB:318
and Micah, HB:1307; HB:1310 and Pentateuch, HB:318 repetition in, HB:324; HB:334 and story of conquest, HB:317
structure of, HB:318
Josiah, AP:1633; AP:1634–35; HB:6;
HB:566–67; HB:659–63
death of, AP:1635
Habakkuk and, HB:1322
reform of, HB:247; HB:311; HB:314

INDEX | 2299
JUBILEE YEAR—LAW(S)

as second Moses, hb:566 jubilee year, hb:179–80; hb:183;
hb:244; see also sabbatical year Judah; see also Southern Kingdom
blessing of, hb:78
as name of Southern King,
hb:1313
as name of Southern Kingdom,
hb:341; hb:675; hb:1282; hb:1286;
hb:1307; hb:1317–18; hb:1346
prophecy of doom against,
hb:1166–67
Judah;
see also Southern Kingdom
blessing of, hb:78
as name of Southern King,
hb:1313
as name of Southern Kingdom,
hb:341; hb:675; hb:1282; hb:1286;
hb:1307; hb:1317–18; hb:1346
prophecy of doom against,
hb:1166–67
Judaism;
see also Diaspora, Jewish normative groups of, hb:670 outside of Israel, ap:1364 post-biblical, hb:83
rabbinic, hb:109
Judas Maccabeus, ap:1556; ap:1563–78;
ap:1599; ap:1611
death of, ap:1577–78
Jude, Letter of, nt:2149–51
date of, nt:2149
exhortations in, nt:2151 judges, ap:1520
inadequacy of, hb:391
Judges, Book of, hb:356–91
and Deuteronomistic History,
hb:355
judgment final, ap:1433–34; hb:1056; nt:2178
by fire, hb:1293
of God, ap:1442–43; hb:19; hb:36;
hb:1177–78; hb:1263
in Haggai, hb:1334
imminence of, hb:1354
inevitability of, ap:1713–14;
hb:1177–78
Jesus and, nt:1890
prophecy of, nt:2151
three seals of, nt:2162–64 universality of, nt:1980–81 judicial system, hb:282
Judith, ap:1365
character of, ap:1390
meaning of name, ap:1399
prayer of, ap:1401
thanksgiving psalm of, ap:1408–9 Judith, Book of, ap:1389–1409
date of, ap:1389
as historical fiction, ap:1365;
ap:1389
structure of, ap:1389–90
themes of, ap:1390
justice; see also righteousness at central sanctuary, hb:278
of God, nt:1981
local, hb:278
organization of, hb:277–78 justification in Christ, nt:1983; nt:2045–46
by faith, nt:1982–83; nt:2120
K
kerygma, nt:1998
King of the Jews, nt:1912 kingdom of Christ, nt:2067
kingdom of God, nt:1791–92;
nt:1793; nt:1794; nt:1798–99;
nt:1808; nt:1828–29; nt:1865;
nt:1922; nt:1956; see also kingdom of heaven
coming of, nt:1863
economic relations in, nt:1810–11 marriage and children in, nt:1810 as salvation, nt:1866 kingdom of heaven, nt:1750; see also kingdom of God in parables, nt:1765–67 treasure in, nt:1855; nt:1865 king(s), ap:1522; ap:1640 authority of, hb:279 law of, hb:279
requested by people, hb:410–12
Kings, Books of, hb:488–574 kingship, beginnings of, in Israel, hb:410–18; see also king(s)
knowledge of God, ap:1430
koinônia (sharing), nt:2062
kyrios (Lord), Jesus as, nt:1832
L Lamb
blood of, nt:2164
Jesus as, nt:1882; nt:1884;
nt:2006; nt:2128; nt:2170–71;
nt:2179–80
as shepherd, nt:2164
vision of, nt:2160–62
Lamentations, hb:1147–58
laments
in Amos, hb:1290
in Habakkuk, hb:1322
Jerusalem’s, hb:1149–50
in psalms, hb:774
lampstand, hb:190; hb:201 in tabernacle, hb:119–20; hb:137
land
Abraham’s journey to, hb:27;
hb:30
boundaries of, hb:32; hb:321 conquest of, in Joshua, hb:3
division of, in Joshua, hb:321;
hb:338–41
idealized distribution of,
hb:1225–26; hb:1246
inheritance of, hb:3
promise of, in Pentateuch, hb:3;
hb:30; hb:32; hb:81; hb:91
land ideology in Book of Joshua,
hb:320
language, tower of Babel and, hb:25
Last Supper, nt:1785–86; nt:1818–19;
nt:1871
laughter
of Abraham, hb:34
of Sarah, hb:34; hb:35; hb:37 law and the prophets, ap:1631; nt:1771 law codes, ancient Near Eastern,
hb:312
law courts, rhetoric of, hb:1021 law(s)
case, hb:112–14; hb:117 of Christ, nt:2050 of circumcision, hb:3
civil and family, hb:284 collections of, in Pentateuch, hb:3 concerning marriage, hb:58 defense of, nt:1985
as divine revelation, hb:871 faith in Christ and, nt:2045–49 freedom from, nt:2045 as genre, hb:3
of impurity, hb:141 of inheritance, hb:3
Jesus and, nt:1753–54; nt:1838–39 in Joshua, hb:320
justification and, nt:1979
meditation on, hb:871 Noachide, hb:22 obedience to, ap:1717
oral, hb:4
Paul and, nt:1979–80
public reading of, by Ezra,
ap:1654–55
purpose of, nt:2047
Leviticus, Book of, HB:141–83
contents of, HB:141–42
date of, HB:141
meaning of name, HB:141
lex talionis (law of retaliation), HB:113;
HB:282
liberation
firstborn and, HB:101
of Israel, HB:83; HB:84 life enjoyment of, AP:1497–98
eternal, NT:1774–75; NT:1865;
NT:1893
light of (Jesus), NT:1896 in the Spirit, NT:1986–87 life eternal, NT:1900 light children of, NT:2078
and creation, HB:858
as God, NT:2137; NT:2139
of life (Jesus), NT:1896
of the world (Jesus), NT:1896
lion, mixed metaphor of, HB:1065 lion’s den, in Daniel, HB:1246 liturgy, in Deuteronomy, HB:291–92 loans, AP:1495–96; see also debt; interest on loans locusts
in Amos, HB:1293
day of, HB:1278
as eighth plague in Egypt, HB:96 in Joel, HB:1275
plague of, NT:2165
logos. SeeWord
Lord (kyrios), Jesus as, NT:1832
Lord's Prayer, NT:1755; NT:1813;
NT:1851–52
Lord's Supper, NT:1926 divisions at, NT:2015–16
lots, HB:440; HB:916; see also divitation; Purim, feast of; Urim and Thummim
casting of, HB:224; NT:1923 to choose Saul, HB:415 and courses of Levites, HB:610
Jonah and, HB:1303
"pur," AP:1417
Purim and, AP:1426
love
as basis of salvation, NT:2142–43
commandment, NT:2139–40;
NT:2146
as confidence before God,
NT:2142
of enemies, NT:1841
and the law, NT:1994
of neighbor, NT:1754; NT:1815–16
Lucifer, fall of, HB:988
Luke, as physician, NT:1827
Luke, Gospel According to,
NT:1827–77
and Acts, NT:1827–28
authorship of, NT:1827
date of, NT:1827
language of, NT:1827–28

M
Maccabean revolt, AP:1457; AP:1556;
AP:1616–20
in 2 Maccabees, AP:1599–1632
Maccabees, AP:1365; AP:1555
Maccabees, First (Book of),
AP:1555–98
as compared to 2 Maccabees,
AP:1599–1600
date of, AP:1555
as history, AP:1365; AP:1555 Maccabees, Second (Book of),
AP:1599–1632
authorship and date of, AP:1599
as history, AP:1365
letters in, AP:1599–1600; AP:1600–
1602; AP:1623–24
and Temple, AP:1599–1600
Maccabees, Third (Book of), AP:1365;
AP:1659–73
as fictional story, AP:1659
language of, AP:1659
Maccabees, Fourth (Book of),
AP:1717–38
Jewish martyrs in, AP:1717–18
as philosophical treatise, AP:1365 magicians in Egypt, HB:92–93
Magnificat, NT:1831
Malachi, HB:964
meaning of name, HB:1351
Malachi, Book of, HB:1351–56
date of, HB:1351
Manasseh, HB:76–77; HB:311; HB:315;
HB:658–59
sins of, HB:664
as worst of Judean kings, HB:565 Manasseh, Prayer of. See Prayer of Manasseh
MANNA—NAHUM, BOOK OF

manna, ap:1450; hb:105–6; hb:202
postbiblical tradition about, hb:203 Mark, Gospel According to, nt:1791–1825
authorship of, nt:1791 ending of, nt:1791; nt:1824–25 messianic secret, nt:1823 story of, nt:1791–92 marriage; see also wife after divorce, hb:289 in ancient Near East, hb:286 with Canaanites, hb:42 choices in, ap:1505
exogamous, ap:1364; ap:1370;
ap:1652–54; hb:49; hb:60;
hb:392; hb:492; hb:507–8;
hb:679; hb:683–84; hb:705–6
Ezra–Nehemiah and exogamous,
hb:668
Hosea and, hb:1260
in kingdom of God, nt:1810 law, violations of, hb:286
levirate, hb:64; hb:169–70
Paul’s teaching on, nt:2007–10
prohibitions against exogamous,
hb:263
symbolism of, hb:1050
as treaty, hb:453
martyrdom, ap:1599–1600 of Eleazar, ap:1612
of Jews under Antiochus IV
Epiphanes, ap:1612–16
in Maccabees, Fourth (Book of),
ap:1717–18
of mother and seven sons,
ap:1613–16; ap:1727–38
Mary Magdalene, nt:1844 resurrection appearances to,
nt:1790
Mattathias, revolt of, ap:1560–62
Matthew, Gospel According to,
nt:1746–90
date of, nt:1746
fulfillment citations in, nt:1749
meal, sacred, and covenant ratification,
hb:117
Megillot (festival scrolls), hb:392;
hb:707; hb:1147
Melchizedek
Dead Sea Scrolls and, hb:31 order of, nt:2108–9 priesthood of, nt:2109
typology of, hb:31
menstruation, hb:54; hb:1149; see also blood mercy seat, hb:119
Mesopotamian literature, hb:9
Messiah (Anointed), ap:1706; hb:403;
hb:480; hb:776; hb:1028;
nt:1770
Jesus as, nt:1748; nt:1762;
nt:1807; nt:1812; nt:1820;
nt:1832; nt:1847; nt:1884
as Son of David, nt:1816; nt:1925 messianic poem, in Micah, hb:1311
Micah, hb:963
Micah, Book of, hb:1306–15
date of, hb:1306
position of, hb:1306
Middle Assyrian laws, hb:286;
hb:290; hb:291
Midian, priest of, hb:108
midrash (story), ap:1695–96; hb:634 military camp, rules for, hb:288 military, organization of, under David, hb:611
milk and honey, hb:173; hb:205 minor prophets, ap:1523; hb:1259
Miriam complaint of, hb:206–8
as prophet, hb:105
as sister of Moses, hb:85
song of, hb:103–5
misogyny, in Ecclesiasticus, ap:1458 mission
in Gospel of Matthew, nt:1760
of Jesus, nt:1855–56
of the seventy, nt:1849–50
Moabite Mesha Stele, hb:316
Moabite Stone, hb:282; hb:536 moderation, hb:943
Molech/Moloch (Canaanite deity),
hb:376
associated with child sacrifice,
hb:170; hb:172; hb:272; nt:1933
monarchy, hb:399 divided, hb:485–86
Judaite, hb:575–76
negative portrayal of, hb:446 united, hb:575–76
Moses, ap:1517
blessing of, hb:307–10
call of, hb:86–87; hb:91
as central character of Pentateuch,
hb:3
as covenant mediator, hb:111;
nt:117; hb:131; hb:132
death of, hb:4; hb:302–12; hb:321
as Deuteronomy’s speaker,
hb:243; hb:247; hb:259
early life of, hb:85–86
genealogy of, hb:91
as intercessor, hb:1085 on Mount Sinai, hb:4
obedience of, hb:83
and Pharaoh, hb:90 priesthood descended from,
hb:385
as prophet, hb:261; hb:267; hb:280 return of, to Egypt, hb:89
Song of, hb:304–7
theophanies to, hb:83–84; hb:86 most holy place (holy of holies; inner sanctuary), hb:120; hb:121;
hb:497; hb:498–99; hb:586;
hb:620; hb:621; hb:1252
Mount Sinai/Horeb, hb:118; hb:243 appearance of God at, hb:109 as God’s abode, hb:105
location of, hb:82
Moses on, hb:4
revelation at, hb:259 mourning, ap:1508
signs of, hb:406–7 murder atonement for, hb:283–84 bloodguilt of, hb:244 commandment against, hb:111;
hb:112–13; hb:260
as a religious crime, hb:244
music, Elisha and, hb:537 musical instruments, hb:598
myrrh, hb:905; hb:952; hb:954;
hb:955
mystery, nt:2054; nt:2056; nt:2059;
nt:2069–70; nt:2072
in Revelation, nt:2156
N
Nabonidus, Prayer of (4QprNab),
hb:1234; hb:1243
Naboth’s vineyard, hb:525–27
Nahum, hb:963
Nahum, Book of, hb:1316–20
date of, hb:1316
nakedness, HB:22; HB:1149
  euphemism for genitals, HB:431 in garden of Eden, HB:14–15 seeing, HB:22
  and sexual prohibitions, HB:169–70
story of Lot and, HB:38
uncovering, HB:169
Name, the, as circumlocution for Yahweh, HB:178 name(s) significance of, HB:34
  theophoric, HB:1235 naming of animals, HB:14 of place, HB:41 nations conversion of, HB:1088
  table of, HB:23
tower of Babel and, HB:25 nazirite vow, HB:194–95; HB:401; HB:1287; NT:1955
nazirites, AP:1565–66
Nebuchadnezzar, AP:1389–90; AP:1391–92; HB:571
  in Daniel, HB:1235
doxology of, HB:1241
dream of, HB:1237
vision of, HB:1241–42
necromancy, HB:280; HB:980
Nehemiah commission of, HB:687
  journey of, HB:687
  memoirs of, AP:1603; HB:671; HB:685
  prayer of, HB:685–87
  as rebuilder of Jerusalem’s walls, HB:667–68; HB:688–93
Nehemiah, Book of, HB:312; HB:316; HB:685–706 neighbor, moral duties toward, HB:285; see also love Nephilim (giants), HB:18
new moon, HB:430
Nicodemus and Jesus, NT:1886–87
Nineveh
  Jonah and, HB:1302–3; HB:1304
  Nahum and, HB:1316; HB:1317–19
Noah, HB:9 covenant of, HB:10
  curse of, HB:30
Northern Kingdom, HB:10; HB:248; HB:342; HB:513–15; HB:669;
  HB:983; HB:1063–64; HB:1191;
  see also Israel; Samaria
  Amos and, HB:1282; HB:1284 in Chronicles, HB:631; HB:654 exile of, HB:531; HB:558–60;
  HB:584; HB:836; HB:839
  fall of, HB:486; HB:840; HB:966; HB:982
  Hosea and, HB:1259; HB:1263
  Micah and, HB:1307
  oracles against, HB:1003
  Penel/Peniel as capital, HB:57 and prophetic books, HB:961 prophetic condemnation of, HB:981–82
  Tirzah capital of, HB:956
  Zechariah and, HB:1346
novella, historical, Esther and, HB:708 Numbers, Book of, HB:185–245
  contents of, HB:185
  name of, HB:185
  numbers, significance of forty, NT:1751 four, NT:2163
  fourteen, NT:1748 large, HB:633
  sayings with, AP:1490–91
  seven, HB:263; HB:327–28;
  NT:1806; NT:2154; NT:2155;
  NT:2160; NT:2161–62; NT:2164;
  NT:2167–68
  six, NT:2162
  ten, HB:92
  twelve, HB:961; NT:1760; NT:1806;
  NT:1923; NT:2160; NT:2168
Nunc Dimittis, NT:1833
O oath taking, HB:42
  oath(s), AP:1487
  violations of, AP:1631 Obadiah, Book of, HB:1298–1300
  date of, HB:1298
Obadiah, meaning of name, HB:1298 obedience, NT:1984–85
  as better than sacrifice, HB:806 to book of law, HB:321
  consequences of, HB:294–95
  and Israel’s possession of land, HB:625–27 prosperity and, HB:267–68 offerings, AP:1395
  elevation, HB:125; HB:151–52;
  HB:176; HB:195; HB:216
  freewill, HB:133; HB:142; HB:150;
  HB:1227; HB:1248; HB:1289
  grain, HB:444–45; HB:150; HB:194;
  HB:211
  guilt, HB:448–49; HB:151; HB:192;
  HB:408; HB:1219; HB:1240
  sin (purification), HB:124–25;
  HB:146–48; HB:151; HB:202;
  HB:217; HB:232; HB:700;
  HB:1219; HB:1240
  thanksgiving, HB:151
  types of, HB:112–17 voluntary, HB:119
  vow, HB:151
  well-being, HB:145–46; HB:151–52;
  HB:195; HB:211
oil, HB:144 for anointing, HB:194; HB:244 for light, HB:194
omens, as legitimation of prophets, HB:272 oppression of Israel, HB:83; HB:84 oracles
  on Babylon, HB:986–89;
  HB:1138–44
  Book of Numbers and, HB:224–27
  on Cyrus, HB:1028–29 against Egypt, HB:1129–32 against false prophecy, HB:1176 against foreign nations, HB:1129–45
  Gog of Magog, HB:1214–17;
  HB:1235–37
  of Isaiah, HB:961 against the nations, HB:1195–1207 against Northern Kingdom, HB:1003 against Philistines, HB:1132;
  HB:1196
  prophets, concerning, HB:1097–99
  on restoration of Jerusalem and Temple, HB:1296; HB:1336;
  HB:1338
  of salvation, HB:1331–32; HB:1336
  Sibylline Oracles, HB:1238 against sorceresses, HB:1176 oral folklore and ancestral history of Israel, HB:9 oral tradition and Gospels, NT:1791 in prophetic books, HB:961 ordeal, adultery and, HB:193 original sin, HB:14

p

P (source of Pentateuch), HB:4–5;
HB:9–10
account of creation in, HB:11
dating of, HB:6
flood story and, HB:19–20 Holiness Collection and, HB:6 and Leviticus, HB:141
in primeval history, HB:11 use of divine name in, HB:17 parables, NT:1775; NT:1778–79;

NT:1783–84; NT:1814; NT:1839;
NT:1844; NT:1856; NT:1857;
NT:1858; NT:1859–60; NT:1861;
NT:1864–65; NT:1866
teaching in, NT:1765–67;
NT:1798–99

detective (ethical instruction),
NT:2085
parents, honoring, AP:1462;
HB:284–85

parousia, NT:2077; see also Second Coming of Christ

passion of Jesus; see also crucifixion;
Jesus
first prediction of, NT:1807; NT:1847 second prediction of, NT:1772;
NT:1809; NT:1848–49
third prediction of, NT:1811;
NT:1865

Passover, festival of, HB:232; HB:277;
HB:320; HB:326; HB:1226;
HB:1247; NT:1882
first, HB:202
Hezekiah and, HB:653–54
Josiah and, AP:1633; AP:1634–35;
HB:570; HB:662–63
linked to death of Jesus, NT:1785;
NT:1819; NT:1912; NT:1913;
NT:1914
meaning of word, HB:98
as night of vigil, HB:100
origins of, HB:98
in postexilic period, AP:1648; HB:677
preparations for, NT:1871
Pastoral Epistles, NT:1973; NT:2084
authorship of, NT:2084
patrilineal society, HB:85
Paul
before Agrippa II, NT:1965–67
as apostle, NT:2026; NT:2042–43
as apostle to the Gentiles,
NT:2041; NT:2042–43
apostolic authority of, NT:2035–39 arrest of, NT:1960–61
in Athens, NT:1952–53
conformity of, to Judaism, NT:1960 confrontation of, with Peter,
NT:2045
conversion of, NT:1921; NT:1936–37; NT:2043
in Corinth, NT:1953–55
defense of, NT:2029; NT:2031
in Ephesus, NT:1956–57
before Felix, NT:1964–65
as independent missionary,
NT:1948; NT:1949
journey of, to Jerusalem,
NT:1959–60
journey of, to Rome, NT:1970 meeting of, with Jerusalem leaders,
NT:2043–45; NT:2096
ministry of, NT:2028–31 mission of, NT:2069–70
preaching of, in Damascus,
NT:1937–38
in prison, NT:2061; NT:2062;
NT:2067; NT:2069; NT:2072;
NT:2091; NT:2092; NT:2094;
NT:2100
recapitulation of life of,
NT:2042–45
reflections of, on impending death, NT:2094
before Sanhedrin, NT:1962–63
as Saul, NT:1935
in second half of Acts, NT:1943–71 third missionary journey of,
NT:1955–59
Pentateuch
anachronisms in, HB:243
authorship of, HB:4
coherence of, HB:3
compilation and redaction of,
HB:6–7; HB:248–49
composite nature of, HB:3
contradictions in, HB:4–5 covenant in, HB:3
dating of, HB:6
as divine word, HB:4
Documentary Hypothesis and,
HB:4–5
genre of, HB:3
legal collections in, HB:3
meaning of term, HB:3
modern source theories of, HB:4–6
Moses as central character of,
HB:3
promise of the land in, HB:3
in rabbinic sources, HB:4 strands of tradition of, HB:6
as torah, HB:3
unifying theme of, HB:3
Pentecost, HB:115; NT:1923; see also harvest festival; Shavuot;
Weeks, festival of
people of the land, HB:549–50;
HB:554; HB:673; HB:1335
people of the Lord, HB:215; HB:644 unfaithfulness of, HB:1353–54
persecution
in 1 Thessalonians, NT:2075
of Christians by Herod Agrippa I,
NT:1941–42
Persian Empire, HB:664–65
Ecclesiastes and, HB:935
Joel and, HB:1275
prophetic books and, HB:963 Persian period
Chronicles and, HB:575
Zechariah and, HB:1345
Peter
arrest of, NT:1927; NT:1941–42
denial of Jesus, NT:1820–21;
NT:1872
as fisherman, NT:1916 healing miracle of, NT:1926 misunderstanding of, NT:1807
as shepherd, NT:1916
status with Jesus, NT:1917
Peter, First Letter of, NT:2126–31
authorship and date of, NT:2126
eschatological exhortation in,
NT:2130–31
Peter, Second Letter of, NT:2132–36 apocalyptic vision of, NT:2132–33
themes of, NT:2133
Pharaoh
dirge over, HB:1205–6
prophecies against, HB:1201–2
Pharisees, NT:1886–87; NT:1898;
NT:1962; see also scribe(s)
in Acts, NT:1947
in Gospel of John, NT:1880
in Gospel of Luke, NT:1838
in Gospel of Matthew, NT:1747
and Jesus, NT:1814–15
and sabbath restrictions, NT:1796
and Sadducees, NT:1750–51
sayings against, NT:1853–54
yeast of, NT:1854
Philemon, Letter of Paul to, NT:2100–2102
written from prison, NT:2100
Philippians, Letter of Paul to, NT:2061–66
date of, NT:2061
hymn in, NT:2061
themes of, NT:2061
written from prison, NT:2061
Philistines, HB:102; HB:406; HB:577; see also Sea Peoples
Amos against, HB:1285
and the ark of the covenant, HB:406–9
in Chronicles, HB:597
cities of, HB:357
and David, HB:439–40; HB:441–42
defeat of, HB:456–57
oracles against, HB:1196
Samson and, HB:379–83
and war with Saul, HB:418 physicians, AP:1507 pilgrimage festivals, AP:1369;
HB:276–77; HB:1264
pillar of cloud, AP:1489; HB:102;
HB:131; HB:303
pillar of fire, AP:1451; HB:102
pillar(s), HB:132; HB:263; HB:654;
HB:1270
Jachin and Boaz as, HB:500;
HB:549; HB:621
twelve, HB:117
Pit, the, AP:1692; HB:743; HB:760;
HB:785; HB:795; HB:796; HB:846;
HB:897; HB:988; HB:1019;
HB:1205; see also Sheol plagues, HB:130
as divine warning, HB:1289 against Egypt, AP:1441–42;
AP:1449–55; HB:91–101
in Egypt, AP:1517
in Psalms, HB:860
ten, in Exodus, HB:92–98
plan of God, in Ephesians, NT:2056 poetical and wisdom books, HB:721–22 poetry
acrostics, HB:780; HB:800; HB:802;
HB:871; HB:890; HB:933–34;
HB:1147
characteristics of, HB:722–24
Lamentations and, HB:1147
last words of David as, HB:480 meter in, HB:723
parallelism in, HB:723–24 song of Hannah as, HB:402–3 song of Moses as, HB:103–5 Song of Solomon as, HB:950–51
song of the Bow, HB:447
poles, sacred (Asherim), HB:132;
HB:263; HB:278; HB:367; HB:654
Pontius Pilate, AP:1661; HB:1787–88;
NT:1821; NT:1834; NT:1873;
NT:1912–13; NT:2090
poor, AP:1475
care for, AP:1463–64 and divine justice, AP:1504 exploitation of, HB:972;
HB:1286–87
obligations to, AP:1468
possessions, NT:1755–56; see also property postexilic community, Torah and,
HB:667–68
postexilic period, Tobit and, AP:1368 potter, metaphor of, HB:1029;
HB:1090–91
power of God, HB:1316 limits of, HB:944–45
prayer, NT:1755
of Christian community, NT:1928 communal, HB:698
for the dead, AP:1626 instruction on, NT:2086–87 in Jeremiah, HB:1079
Jesus and, NT:1835
of Susanna, AP:1550
Prayer of Azariah, AP:1366; AP:1543–47;
HB:1240
Prayer of Manasseh, AP:1656–57
as hymnic lament, AP:1366;
AP:1656
language of, AP:1656
Prayer of Nabonidus (4QprNab), HB:1234;
HB:1243
preference, divine, HB:16 pride, AP:1471
as cause of Egypt’s fall, HB:1204 temptation to, HB:265
priesthood; see also high priesthood Aaronic, HB:576; HB:586; HB:669–71;
HB:869
duties and dues of, HB:216–17
Levitical, HB:279–80; NT:2109–10
in Malachi, HB:1352
and Solomonic Temple, HB:607–8 priestly consecration ceremony in Leviticus, HB:141
priestly restrictions, HB:173–74
Priestly Torah, HB:141; HB:169; HB:185 priests, AP:1546–47
consecration of, HB:152–55
courses of, HB:607–8; HB:654
Levitical, HB:279–80; HB:1114
obligations to, AP:1468
office of, HB:122
ordination of, HB:124–25 organization of, by David, HB:61
in postexilic period, HB:669–71
unfaithfulness of, HB:1352
vestments of, HB:122–24; HB:137;
HB:153
primeval history, HB:11
layers of, HB:30
sources of, HB:11
primogeniture, HB:284 promised land, HB:132 conquest of, HB:263–64
risks of entering, HB:263 promise(s), AP:1544; see also covenant to Abraham, HB:27; HB:50; HB:74;
HB:81
to ancestors, HB:244; HB:247
to David, of dynasty, HB:455–56;
HB:480; HB:600–601; HB:606;
HB:866
of God, after flood, HB:21 of land, HB:3
of offspring, HB:32; HB:34 to patriarchs, HB:318 to Solomon, HB:618
INDEX | 2305
PROPERTY, BOOK OF RUTH AND—RED SEA

to sons of Jacob/Israel, hb:9 property, Book of Ruth and, hb:397–98 prophecy, hb:931 and apocalypticism, hb:964 apostolic, nt:2151
in Deuteronomy, hb:272
disputations about, hb:1175–76 end of, ap:1366; ap:1578
epochs of, hb:962 false, hb:1176 fulfillment of, hb:665
history of, hb:962–64
of judgment, hb:962
music and song of, hb:609 phenomenon, hb:962–64
as spiritual gift, nt:2018–19 true and false, hb:280–81 prophetic books autobiography and biography in, hb:961 canonical placement of, hb:961 dates of, hb:962–63
introduction to, hb:961–64
Northern Kingdom and, hb:961 oral tradition and, hb:961 prophet(s), ap:1522–23; nt:1753; Abraham as, hb:38
in Assyrian period, hb:963 in Babylonian period, hb:963 Christian, nt:2056
in early church, nt:1941
end of, ap:1366; ap:1578
female, hb:693
local, hb:962
man of God as, hb:105
under monarchy, hb:962–63
Mosaic, hb:280
oracles concerning, hb:1097–99 second division of Hebrew Bible, nt:1753 proselytes, nt:1924 prosperity; see also wealth obedience and, hb:267–68 peril of, hb:265 prostitutes, hb:904; nt:1778 temple, hb:514–15; hb:1264 prostitution, ap:1538; hb:171; hb:172 as idolatry, hb:172 restrictions on, hb:288 sacred, hb:64; hb:288
Proverbs, Book of, hb:721; hb:897–934
authorship of, hb:895
male-centered perspective of, hb:896
purpose of, hb:895
sayings in, hb:907–22
Solomonic authorship of, hb:725
proverbs, Solomon and, hb:496 providence, divine, ap:1443–44;
hb:70–71
Psalm 151, ap:1658
psalms of ascent, hb:876–82
communal, hb:788; hb:809–10;
hb:822; hb:833–34; hb:839–40;
hb:842–43; hb:844; hb:851–52;
hb:877; hb:878–79; hb:880
communal laments, hb:848–49;
hb:1051–53
enthronement, hb:851; hb:854 entrance liturgy, hb:784 genres of, hb:774
hymns, hb:779; hb:786; hb:788;
hb:792; hb:796; hb:799;
hb:805; hb:845; hb:852;
hb:853–54; hb:855; hb:857;
hb:859–60; hb:867–68;
hb:882–83; hb:883–84;
hb:890–91; hb:891–94
individual laments, hb:836;
hb:1154–55
penitential, hb:778; hb:798;
hb:804; hb:815–16; hb:855–57
pilgrimage hymns, hb:876 postexilic, hb:884–85; hb:891–92 prayer for deliverance, hb:818;
hb:828–30; hb:876
prayer for national unity, hb:882 royal, hb:774; hb:789; hb:810–11;
hb:831–32; hb:855; hb:866;
hb:881–82; hb:889–90
Temple liturgy and, hb:721; hb:774 thanksgiving, ap:1526–27; hb:796;
hb:798; hb:806–7; hb:825–26;
hb:850–51; hb:863–64;
hb:870–71
of trust, hb:784; hb:794; hb:823;
hb:849–50; hb:876–77; hb:881
wisdom, hb:813; hb:832
Zion hymns, hb:811; hb:835;
hb:877; hb:878
Psalms, Book of, hb:775–894 and Chronicles, hb:599–600
Davidic authority of, hb:724–25
Davidic monarchy and, hb:776
history of, hb:773
Korahite collection, hb:808;
hb:812; hb:814; hb:844; hb:845
meaning of, hb:773
pseudepigraphy, hb:248; nt:2084
Ptolemies, ap:1555; ap:1557; hb:1255
Ptolemy IV Philopator and 3 Maccabees, ap:1659; ap:1660–65;
ap:1667–68; ap:1672
public officials, laws of, hb:277 punishment of the guilty, hb:1171–72 purification, hb:217 after recovery, hb:161–62 covenant ceremony, hb:110 Purim, feast of Esther and, hb:707; hb:712 inauguration of, ap:1425–26
origins of, hb:717–19
Q
Q (Quelle), nt:1744; nt:1746;
nt:1827
Qohelet. See Ecclesiastes, Book of quails, manna and, hb:105–6
R Rachel
death of, hb:60
descendants of, hb:187
tomb of, hb:60
rape, hb:286–87
attempted, of Susanna,
ap:1549–50
of concubine, hb:385–87 of Dinah, hb:57–58 guests, hb:36
of Tamar, hb:462–64
Raphael and Tobit, ap:1374; ap:1376–
78; ap:1384–85
rationalism, hb:4
rebellion in wilderness, hb:203–4;
hb:213
red, as color, nt:2162
red cow, hb:217–19
Red Sea, hb:104; see also Sea of Reeds gulf of Elat/Aqabah, hb:116
location of, hb:102
wilderness wandering and,
hb:219–20
Redeemer, God as, HB:745
Reformation of Josiah, NT:2123
Deuteronomy and, HB:247
historical background of, HB:248 relationships, with God and community, NT:2123 relationships, damaged, AP:1493–94 religion and social justice, AP:1503 religious practices, warning against, NT:2070–71 repentance
call to, AP:1480; HB:1042; HB:1338; HB:1354–55; NT:1751; NT:1834
Chronicles and, HB:576
plea for, in Amos, HB:1290 possibility of, HB:1063–65 as theme of Jonah, HB:1302 responsibility communal, HB:268
human, AP:1477–78
individual, HB:268
restoration of Jerusalem and Temple;
see also Babylonian exile; Jerusalem; Temple, Second God’s honor as cause of, HB:1212–13; HB:1232–33 oracle of, HB:1296; HB:1336; HB:1338 poem of, AP:1534–36 prayer for, AP:1504–5
prophecies of, HB:1207–17
visions of, HB:1339
resurrection; see also Jesus appearances, NT:1790; NT:1824; NT:1877 belief in, NT:1964
of the dead, NT:2019–22
final, NT:1890
of Jesus, NT:1914–15
Psalm 110 and, HB:866
questions about, NT:1868–69
Sadducees and, NT:1751; NT:1779–80 retribution, HB:943 return from exile, HB:667–68
three stages of, HB:669–95
returnees, list of, HB:669–71; HB:694–95 Revelation to John, NT:2153–80
as apocalyptic writing, NT:2155
authorship and date of, NT:2153
interpretation of, NT:2154
revisionism, historical, HB:311–12; HB:315–16 reward and punishment, Proverbs and, HB:895–96 righteous, the; see also righteousness contrasted with the wicked, AP:1428
death of, HB:1044
reward of, AP:1431 righteousness, HB:970; NT:2032; NT:2060; NT:2114; NT:2121
of Abraham, HB:35
elusiveness of, HB:943–44
faith and, NT:2064
in Matthew, NT:1751
meaning of, HB:31
as theme of Romans, NT:1976 and true worship, AP:1448 works of, NT:2098
Romans, Letter to Paul to, NT:1975–98 anti-Judaism and, NT:1975
date of, NT:1975
themes of, NT:1976
Rome, treaty with, AP:1576
Ruth, Book of
authorship of, HB:392
position of, in Bible, HB:392
as short story, HB:311; HB:315
as story, HB:392–93
sabbaath, HB:175; HB:180; HB:260–61; HB:850 bread of the presence and, HB:119 commandment of, HB:111; HB:115; HB:128; HB:133 of complete rest, HB:176; HB:179 and creation, HB:11; HB:12 creation of, HB:3
healing on, NT:1763; NT:1796; NT:1839–40; NT:1856–57; NT:1857–58; NT:1889 laws, NT:1763; NT:1898
manna and, HB:106–7
observance of, AP:1636; HB:1043; HB:1089–90; HB:1186 violation of, HB:213; HB:705 work on, HB:213; NT:1796 sabbatical year, HB:179–80; HB:303; see also jubilee year sacred meal, and covenant ratification, HB:117 sacrifice, AP:1503; HB:247; HB:413; HB:625 animals for, HB:271; HB:276; HB:1352 of children, HB:169; HB:172
HB:272; HB:280; HB:557; HB:862; HB:1044; HB:1073; HB:1187 of firstborn, HB:40 human, HB:183
of Isaac, HB:40
in Leviticus, HB:141 meat from, NT:1756
moral action and, HB:969
Noah’s ark and, HB:19–20 and obedience, HB:806 old and new, NT:2112–13
in postexilic period, HB:671
prescriptions for, HB:143–49
Priestly tradition of flood and, HB:21 resumption of, AP:1644–45
Sadducees, NT:1779 dispute of Jesus with, NT:1815
Salem, Jerusalem as, HB:31
salt, covenant of, HB:633 salvation, NT:2137; NT:2138
forgiveness and, NT:1983
oracles of, HB:1331–32; HB:1336 Samaria; see also Northern Kingdom capital of Northern Kingdom, HB:513
capture of, HB:558
sieve of, HB:523; HB:542–43
and worship of Baal, HB:548 Samaritans, NT:1760; NT:1851; NT:1887–89 and rejection of Jesus, NT:1849 Samuel birth and consecration of, HB:400–401
SAMUEL, BOOKS OF—SIMON MACCABEE

call of, HB:405
death of, HB:436
as judge, HB:399; HB:409–10
as prophet, HB:399
Samuel, Books of, HB:310; HB:314;
HB:400–483
division of, HB:310 sanctuary (holy place), HB:121 and camp, HB:192
consecration of, HB:152–53
dedication offerings in,
HB:197–98
furnishings of, HB:201
most holy place (holy of holies;
inner sanctuary), HB:120;
HB:121; HB:497; HB:498–99;
HB:586; HB:620; HB:621;
HB:1252
slaughter at, HB:167–68
transporting of, HB:193–94 Sarai (Sarah), HB:26
as Abraham's sister, HB:38
meaning of name, HB:34
Satan, HB:604; NT:2082; NT:2150; see also Baal-zebub; Beelzebul; devil; Lucifer; snake
as accuser, NT:2028
as Adversary, HB:727; HB:1340;
NT:1793; NT:1797; NT:1798;
NT:2140–41; NT:2168
as Beelzebul, NT:1761; NT:1797 as deceiver, NT:2076
defeat of, NT:2177–78
Judas and, NT:1871
Saul
anointing of, HB:412–15
and David, HB:427–30; HB:435–36;
HB:438–39
death of, HB:443–44; HB:591–93
kingship of, HB:415–16
meaning of name, HB:401; HB:410;
HB:412
sin of, HB:418–19
and war with Philistines, HB:418–22 Savior, Jesus as, NT:1832–33; see also Jesus scribe(s), AP:1508–9; HB:677;
HB:1074–75; NT:1755; NT:1793;
NT:1839; see also Pharisees and apocalyptic writing, HB:964 controversies of Jesus with,
NT:1795; NT:1797
and letter writing, NT:1974 and prayer, AP:1509 warning against, NT:1816; NT:1869
scripture. See Bible scrolls, festival (Megillot), HB:392;
HB:707; HB:1147
Sea of Reeds (yam suf), HB:102;
HB:535; see also Red Sea
Sea Peoples, HB:102; see also Philistines
Second Coming of Christ, NT:2092;
NT:2094; see also parousia
Second Esdras. See Esdras, Second Second Isaiah, HB:963; HB:1019–42;
see also Isaiah
Second Maccabees. See Maccabees, Second (Book of)
Second Temple. See Temple, Second
Selah (in Psalms), HB:776; HB:789;
HB:792; HB:805–6; HB:811;
HB:816; HB:818; HB:821; HB:825;
HB:827; HB:835; HB:841; HB:846;
HB:886
Seleucids, AP:1555; AP:1557; HB:1255
self-control, prayer for, AP:1487 Sennacherib, HB:313; HB:560–64;
HB:656–57; HB:968
Septuagint, AP:1361; HB:27; HB:485;
HB:1058; see also Bible; Greek Bible
seraphs, HB:976
Sermon on the Mount, NT:1746
Sermon on the Plain, NT:1840–41 servant
Israel as, HB:1023
the Lord's, HB:1033–34
Servant Songs, HB:1023; HB:1033–34;
HB:1036; HB:1039–40
servanthood, in Isaiah, HB:1022 sexual abstinence, NT:2007–8 sexual intercourse euphemisms for, HB:22–23
marital, HB:14
Paul on sexual relations,
NT:2007–8
in Song of Solomon, HB:951
sexual metaphors, HB:132; HB:172;
HB:182
sexual offenses, AP:1488; NT:2150; see also idolatry
in Corinth, NT:2007
in Ephesus, NT:2057–58
as metaphor for illicit dealings,
NT:2173
as metaphor for religious infidelity, NT:2158
sexual prohibitions, HB:169–72
shame, true and false, AP:1513
Shavuot, HB:115; HB:392; see also harvest festival; Pentecost; Weeks, festival of Shechem, HB:77 ceremonies at, in Deuteronomy,
HB:293–94
covenant renewal at, HB:331–32 national assembly at, HB:630
as personal name, HB:57
Sheol, AP:1476; AP:1480; AP:1484–85;
HB:63; HB:69; HB:214–15; HB:478;
HB:733; HB:740; HB:743; HB:747;
HB:778; HB:781; HB:786; HB:813;
HB:818; HB:819; HB:845–46;
HB:848; HB:870; HB:886;
HB:888; HB:897; HB:902; HB:914;
HB:923; HB:928–29; HB:932;
HB:940; HB:975; HB:978; HB:988;
HB:1004; HB:1018–19; HB:1044;
HB:1155; HB:1205; HB:1273;
HB:1295; HB:1304; see also Pit shepherd; see also divine shepherd
Jesus as, NT:1899
as metaphor for ruler, HB:1028 stricken, HB:1349
worthless, HB:1347–48
Sheshbazzar, as leader of returnees,
HB:667
shibboleth, meaning of word, HB:377
Shiloh, assembly of, HB:344 shrine, HB:117; HB:413; see also high places Sibyline Oracles, HB:1238 sign circumcision as, HB:33
of the end-time, NT:1869; NT:2078
God's promise and, HB:87 of Jonah, NT:1852–53
Moses and, HB:87; HB:88 seeking, NT:1764; NT:1806 signs and wonders, NT:1996
in early Christian community,
NT:1929
silence, AP:1483
Simon Maccabee, AP:1580;
AP:1590–97
death of, AP:1597–98
as high priest, AP:1593–95
sin
as cause of death, AP:1626 confession of, AP:1531–33; AP:1544 deceitfulness of, NT:2106
first mention of, HB:16 and forgiveness in community, NT:2143–44 forgiveness of, AP:1494; NT:1795; NT:1838–39; NT:1945 punishment for, AP:1478 responsibility for, AP:1477–78 warnings against, AP:1484–85
in wilderness, HB:202
Sinai, Mount.
See Mount Sinai/Horeb
Sirach, Wisdom of Jesus Son of.
See Ben Sira; Ecclesiasticus
Sixth Ezra.
See Ezra, Sixth
slander, NT:2150
slavery; see also slavery laws concerning, in Pentateuch, HB:5
in postexilic period, HB:691 slaves, AP:1501–2; HB:179–80; HB:260–61; see also slavery escaped, HB:288
manumission of, HB:275 rights of, HB:112
snake characterization of, HB:14 punishment of, HB:15 society, conduct in, NT:2129–30
Sodom and Gomorrah, HB:29;
HB:1012; HB:1093; HB:1098;
HB:1140; NT:1761
Abraham's intercession for, HB:35 destruction of, HB:36; HB:38 in prophets, HB:969
Solomon, AP:1521; NT:1756 becoming king, HB:489; HB:614–15
blessing of, HB:623–25
in Chronicles, HB:606
idealized presentation of,
as maker of proverbs, HB:496 and the nations, HB:496 palace of, HB:499–500
prayer of, for wisdom, AP:1439–40
Proverbs and, HB:895
in Song of Solomon, HB:953–54; see also Song of Solomon Son of David
Jesus as, NT:1812
as Messiah, NT:1816
Son of God, NT:1937; NT:2108; NT:2110
Son of Man (Jesus), NT:1770; NT:1787;
NT:1795; NT:1796; NT:1807;
NT:1809; NT:1817; NT:1820–21;
NT:1863–64; NT:1884; NT:1891;
NT:1892; NT:1899
coming of, NT:1870
meaning of, NT:1758
as self-identification of Jesus,
NT:1758; NT:1761; NT:1762;
NT:1839; NT:2156
Song of Deborah, HB:363–65
Song of Hannah, HB:402–3
Song of Moses, HB:304–7
Song of Solomon, HB:950–59
as love poetry, HB:721
Solomonic authorship of, HB:725
song of thanksgiving, AP:1545
Song of the Bow, HB:447
Song of the Three Jews, AP:1366;
AP:1542; AP:1543–47; AP:1548
location of, AP:1543
Songs of Ascent, HB:773 sons of God, HB:18; see also heavenly beings; heavenly court Sophia, divine, in Wisdom of Solomon, AP:1428 sorites, AP:1435
soul; see also immortality Platonic view of, AP:1439
transmigration of, AP:1439
Southern Kingdom; see also Judah
end of, HB:570–74
Hezekiah and, HB:560–65
Isaiah and, HB:965–66
Josiah and, HB:566–67
rulers of, HB:512–18; HB:527–29;
HB:544–53; HB:556–57
Spartans, AP:1587–88
speech, AP:1483–84
and character, AP:1493–94 destructive, AP:1494–95 sinful, AP:1487–88
Spirit
freedom in, NT:2049
of Trinity, HB:11
of truth, NT:1906
spirit of God/the Lord, HB:416; HB:424 spirits, elemental, NT:2048; NT:2071
spiritual gifts, NT:2016–17 steadfastness, in ministry, NT:2094
Stoic philosophers, NT:1952
stoning, as punishment for adultery,
HB:65
storm god, battles of, against Sea,
HB:104
strange woman, HB:896; HB:899 dangers of, HB:902; HB:904–5
Succession Narrative, HB:445 Succoth, meaning of term, HB:57; see also booths, festival of suffering, NT:1987–88
Book of Job and, HB:726 in joy and hope, NT:2131 responsible, NT:2130
suicide, HB:591
Susanna, AP:1365; AP:1542; AP:1548–51 sword of Nebuchadrezzar, HB:1189–90
prophecies of, HB:1188–90
song of, HB:1188–89
syncretism, religious, HB:248
Syro-Ephraimite War, Isaiah and,
HB:965; HB:976–77; HB:991–92
T
tabernacle, HB:83; HB:120–21;
HB:135–36; HB:138; HB:190; see also sanctuary construction of, HB:3
court of, HB:121–22
furnishings of, HB:118; HB:121–22;
HB:139
tent over, HB:120
"Tale of Two Brothers," HB:65
Tamar, Judah and, HB:64 taunts, in Habakkuk, HB:1323–24 tax on agricultural yield and personal property, NT:1779 imperial Roman, NT:1772;
NT:1814–15; NT:1868
TAX COLLECTORS—TRICKSTERS

in Persian period, HB:691 poll, of Romans, AP:1663; AP:1666 for sanctuary, HB:126
Temple, NT:1772
tax collectors, NT:1754; NT:1760;
NT:1778; NT:1864–65
teachers, false, NT:2093
warnings against, NT:2134–35 teaching, true and false, NT:2085;
NT:2086–87; NT:2090
temperance, AP:1499; AP:1507 temple imagery, HB:16
Temple of Solomon building of, HB:496–99; HB:618–23
dedication of, HB:623–26
description of, HB:621–22
new, in Ezekiel, HB:1217–22;
HB:1238–43
ordinances concerning, HB:1224–25;
HB:1244–46
as a place of refuge, HB:794
plan of, HB:613
rebuilding of, under Cyrus,
AP:1637–38; AP:1644–48;
HB:667–68; HB:671–77; HB:963
rededication of, by Hezekiah,
HB:653–54
restoration plan of, HB:1238–52
system of worship at, HB:607–8
Temple, Second, NT:1900
construction of, HB:671–77
dedication of, HB:676
desecration of, by Antiochus
IV Epiphanes, AP:1559;
AP:1609–10
destruction of, HB:1147; NT:1816;
NT:1869
and Jesus, NT:1813; NT:1823;
NT:1833–34; NT:1867; NT:1879
and 3 Maccabees, AP:1660–61
new, in Ezekiel, HB:1217–22;
HB:1238–43
rebuilt by Herod the Great,
NT:1813; NT:1885–86
rededication of, AP:1567–68;
AP:1620
Temple sermon, HB:1102–3
Temple visions, in Ezekiel, HB:1170–74
Ten Commandments, HB:3; HB:110–11;
HB:117; HB:132; HB:137; see also Decalogue
form of, HB:110
tent of meeting, HB:127; HB:131;
HB:138; HB:143; HB:303; HB:622
Teraphim, HB:383; HB:429; HB:1263 testing of Israel in the wilderness,
HB:105–7
tetragrammaton, NT:1832
Tetrateuch, HB:32
thanksgiving, song of, AP:1545
Theodotion, AP:1542; AP:1548
theophany
and conversion of Saul/Paul,
NT:1936
and covenant ratification, HB:116 with Moses, HB:117; HB:131 to Samson’s mother, HB:378
as storm and earthquake, HB:110
Thessalonians, First Letter of Paul to,
NT:2074–79
Thessalonians, Second Letter of Paul to,
NT:2080–83
Third Isaiah, HB:1042–56;
see also Isaiah
Third Maccabees. See Maccabees, Third (Book of)
Three Jews, Song of the. See Song of the Three Jews throne-chariot vision, HB:1162–64
Thummim. See Urim and Thummim
Tigrath-pileser III, HB:651; HB:963
Thwaites, Edward J., HB:651–54
restoration plan of, HB:1238–52
system of worship at, HB:607–8
Tiglath-pileser III, HB:651; HB:963;
HB:977–78
Hosea and, HB:1259
and invasion of Israel, HB:555;
HB:583–84
Timothy, NT:1998; NT:2005; NT:2026;
NT:2027–28; NT:2063–64;
NT:2068; NT:2074; NT:2075;
NT:2076–77; NT:2091
and Paul, NT:1949–50
Timothy, First Letter of Paul to,
NT:2085–90
opponents in, NT:2085
Timothy, Second Letter of Paul to,
NT:2091–95
as testament, NT:2091
theme of, NT:2091
tithe, AP:1369–70; HB:274; HB:1289;
HB:1354–55; NT:1853
rules of, HB:274–75
Titus, Letter of Paul to, NT:2096–99
Tobit, Book of, AP:1365; AP:1368–88 daily life and, AP:1368–69
endogamy in, AP:1370 fictional nature of, AP:1369 genealogy in, AP:1369 humor in, AP:1368
hymn of, AP:1385–86
language of, AP:1368
and popular wisdom, AP:1375 as postexilic, AP:1368
prayer of, AP:1372–73
testament of, AP:1386–87 toledot (descendants), HB:9; see also genealogy
tongues, as spiritual gift, NT:2016–17 torah (Torah), HB:3; see also Bible;
law; law and the prophets;
Pentateuch applied to Pentateuch, HB:3–4 implementing of, in postexilic period,
HB:696–97
as law, HB:3
of Moses, HB:3–4
reading of, in postexilic period,
HB:696
as teaching, HB:3
Tower of Babel. See Babel tradition and authority, NT:1768 of elders, NT:1804–5 and Proverbs, HB:895
transfiguration, NT:1771; NT:1808; NT:1835; NT:1848; NT:1973; see also Jesus; theophany Transjordan
distribution of land in, HB:237–39;
HB:253–56
tribal allotment of, HB:339 treaties of Apamea, AP:1576 Esarhaddon, Vassal Treaty of,
HB:248; HB:272; HB:294
marriage as, HB:453 with Rome, AP:1576
of suzerainty, HB:272 tree(s) sacred, HB:27
symbolism of, HB:13
tribes in Book of Joshua, HB:320;
HB:340–48
list of, in Deuteronomy, HB:294 in folklore, HB:9; HB:47–48
Jacob as, HB:51

2310 | INDEX
Jacob's sons as, HB:58
Rachel as, HB:54
Tamar as, HB:64
trumpet(s), HB:110; HB:233 signal, HB:203
truth, praise of, AP:1641 twelve, HB:962; see also numbers, significance of twelve, the, NT:1760; NT:1797; NT:1931 commissioning of, NT:1802; NT:1846–47 restoration of, NT:1923 selection of, NT:1840
twelve tribes; see also tribes census and, HB:185–88

U uncircumcised, the, as derogatory term, HB:420; HB:429; HB:444; HB:447; HB:591 uncircumcision, NT:2008–9; NT:2055; NT:2070 unity appeal for, in Ephesians, NT:2057
appeal for, in Philippians, NT:2063 of Jews and Gentiles in church, NT:2055–56
Paul's argument for, NT:2000 as pilgrimage festival, HB:276–77 in postexilic period, HB:677

V
Valley of Hinnom, HB:1073; HB:1091–92; see also sacrifice, of children worship of Molech and, HB:172 vanity
Abel and, HB:16
of dreams and omens, AP:1502 in Ecclesiastes, HB:937; HB:942; HB:947; HB:948 vegetarianism, HB:22
vices, catalogues of, NT:2050; NT:2085 vineyard
Israel as, HB:1002–3
parables about, NT:1775; NT:1778; NT:1814; NT:1868
song about, HB:974
vincture, HB:18
vigniculture, HB:18
vinegrowers, HB:18
vineyards
Israel as, HB:1002–3
parables about, NT:1775; NT:1778; NT:1814; NT:1868
song about, HB:974
victory, HB:17
flood and, HB:19; HB:22

W water, HB:1026
Elisha and, HB:536–37
libations, HB:593
and purification ritual, HB:409 turned to blood in Egypt, HB:93
Way, the, NT:1936; NT:1956; see also Dead Sea Scrolls wealth, AP:1498; HB:941–42; NT:1810–11; NT:1860 and Christians, NT:2120
condemned by prophets, HB:972; HB:1288
and conscience, AP:1475 false reliance on, AP:1465 lure of, NT:1798
and the miser, AP:1476
salvation and, NT:1865
transience of, HB:813–14; HB:908
true, AP:1472
Weeks, festival of, AP:1369; AP:1371; HB:83; HB:232; NT:1923
in rabbinic Judaism, HB:109 weights and measures, HB:1226; HB:1247 well, as meeting place, HB:50–51 whirlwind, theophany and, HB:765 white, significance of, NT:2158; NT:2162; NT:2164; see also colors wickedness, indictment of, NT:1978 widows, NT:2089
wife; see also marriage allegory of unfaithful, HB:1178–81 bad, AP:1491–92
good, AP:1491–92
Israel as, HB:1259
legal protection of, HB:284
legal status of, HB:260–61 wilderness camp

plan of, HB:187
sanctuary of, HB:187 wilderness wandering, HB:83; HB:105; HB:234; HB:1060
Book of Numbers and, HB:185
complaining during, HB:105
Israel's rebellion and, HB:836 pride in, HB:265
wind, HB:11
wine, AP:1639
associated with lovemaking, HB:951 and action, AP:1506–7 Babylonian scribes and, HB:694 benefits of, AP:1464 contrasted with cleverness, AP:1482–83 discipline of, AP:1466–67
divine, AP:1460
Ecclesiastes and, AP:1458; HB:935–36
elusiveness of, HB:943–44
and fear of the Lord, AP:1461–62 as fear of the Lord, AP:1482–83
Hosea and, HB:1274
and humility, AP:1463
in Isaiah, HB:972
in Lamentations, HB:1154
popular, AP:1375
power of, AP:1440
praise of, AP:1488–89; HB:900
in Psalms, HB:775
as a royal prerogative, HB:256 search for, AP:1476–77; AP:1527 and social relations, AP:1468–69; AP:1473–75 and Solomon, AP:1436; HB:492–95; HB:618 and success, HB:895–96
WISDOM LITERATURE—ZION

and Torah, AP:1461
and trials, NT:2120
wisdom literature, HB:721–22
Wisdom of Jesus Son of Sirach. See Ben Sira; Ecclesiasticus Wisdom of Solomon, AP:1427–55
as didactic literature, AP:1365–66
and Hellenistic culture, AP:1427 wise men (magoi), NT:1749
wise, the, contrasted with fools, AP:1485 witchcraft, HB:171
witnesses, HB:244
laws concerning, HB:282 number of, HB:282 woes
in Amos, HB:1291
against Assyria, HB:1291
in Isaiah, HB:974–75
in Luke, NT:1841; NT:1850 woman of worth, HB:933–34 women; see also foreign women; marriage; strange woman; wife at the burial of Jesus, NT:1875–76 caricature of, NT:2089; NT:2094 conflict between, HB:52
at the cross, NT:1913 desirable and undesirable, AP:1491–92 in genealogy of Jesus, NT:1748 inheritance of land by, HB:3
as legally responsible individual, HB:278 Midianite, HB:227–28
ministering to Jesus, NT:1844 Moabite, HB:227–28
pilgrimage and, HB:116
praise of, AP:1640
proper demeanor of, NT:2087
resisting Pharaoh, HB:105
Ten Commandments and,
 HB:111
vows of, HB:234
warnings about, AP:1470
Word, the (logos), NT:2139
Jesus as, NT:1880
spoken through Son, NT:2104 work, prohibition of, HB:176 world in fourth Gospel, NT:1881; NT:1886 light of the (Jesus), NT:1896 worship
centralization of, HB:270–72;
 HB:276–77
false, AP:1444
of nature, AP:1444–45
regulations for, HB:112; HB:117
true, AP:1448
wrath, HB:1100; NT:1983
of God, NT:1978; NT:2071;
 NT:2076; NT:2172–73
writing prophets, HB:1259
Y
Yahweh (Yhwh), HB:4; HB:17; HB:87; HB:91; HB:131; HB:132; see also tetragrammaton
yam suf (Sea of Reeds), HB:102;
 HB:535; see also Red Sea
Yavneh Yam inscription, HB:289
Yehud. See Judah
Z
Zealots, NT:1840
Zechariah, HB:963
in 1 Esdras, AP:1644; AP:1646
meaning of name, HB:1338
and rebuilding of Temple, HB:674
visions of, HB:1338–42
Zechariah, Book of, HB:1337–50 apocalyptic and, HB:1337
structure of, HB:1337
Zephaniah, Book of, HB:1327–32
date of, HB:1327
Zerubbabel
as leader of returnees, AP:1638–42; HB:667; HB:670
prayer of, AP:1642
reward of, AP:1641
ziggurat, Babylonian, HB:1223;
 HB:1243
Zion
Ezekiel and, HB:1160; HB:1162
lamentation over, HB:1077–78;
 HB:1148–49
personified as woman, HB:1035;
 HB:1078–79
restoration of, HB:1047–51
This page intentionally left blank
This page intentionally left blank
ABIMELECH—ADD

ABIMELECH
1. King of Gerar who took Abraham’s wife Sarah, believing her to be his sister (Ge 20). Convenanted with Abraham (Ge 21:22-33).
2. King of Gerar who took Isaac’s wife Rebekah, believing her to be his sister (Ge 26:11-15). Convenanted with Isaac (Ge 26:12-31).
3. Son of Gideon (Jdg 8:3). Attempted to become king (Jdg 9).

ABIRAM
Sided with Dathan in rebellion against Moses and Aaron (Nu 16:26; 26:9; Dt 1:11b; Sir 45:18).

ABISHAI
Son of Zeruiah, David’s sister (Sa 26:6; 1Ch 2:16). One of David’s chief warriors (1Ch 11:15-27); against Edom (2Sa 8:18); against Ammon (2Sa 10); against the Philistines (1Sa 17). Absalom (Sa 18), Sheba (Sa 20). Wanted to kill Saul (1Sa 26), killed Abner (Sa 21:28-27; 32:29).

ABLE = ABILITY
Ex 18:25 Moses chose a man from all Israel Jos 1:5 No one shall be a tostand against Da 3:17 God whom we serve is a to deliver Mt 9:28 “Do you believe that I am a to do this?
Ro 12:1 the Lord is a to make them stand. 1Co 9:8 God is a to provide you with every Eph 6:11 a to stand against the wiles of the devil. 2Ti 1:12 he is a to guard until that day.
Heb 6:18 a to help those who are being tested. Rev 5:3 a to open the scroll or to look into it. Jdt 11:18 of them will be a to withstand you.

ABNER
Cousin of Saul and commander of his army (Sá 14:50; 17:55-57: 26). Made Ish-Bohef king after Saul (Sa 25:1-28), but later defected to David (Sá 26:2-31). Killed Asahel (Sa 25:18-32), for which he was killed by Joab and Abishai (Sa 32:32-39).

ABODE = ABIDE
Ps 68:16 mount that God desired for his a, Pr 3:33 but he blesses the a of the righteous.

ABOLISH = ABOLISHED
Da 11:31 shall a the regular burnt offering Mt 5:17 I have come not a to but to fulfill.

ABOLISHED = ABOLISH
Eph 2:15 a a law with its commandments 2Ti 1:15 who a death and brought life

ABOMINABLE = ABOMINATIONS
2Ch 28:3 the a practices of the nations Eze 7:20 they destroy a images, 1Mc 1:48 to make themselves by a everything

ABOMINATION = ABOMINABLE, ABOMINATIONS
Pr 6:16 seven a of a to him: Da 9:27 shall a be a that desolates, Rev 21:72 anyone a practices a or falsehood Sir 1:35 but godliness is a to a sinner, 1Mc 6:7 that they had torn down the a that

ABOMINATIONS = ABOMINATION
Lev 18:27 committed all these a, 1Ki 14:24 all the a of the nations that the Lord Eze 44:7 broken my covenant with all your a, Rev 17:5 mother of whores and of earth’s a.

ABOUND = ABOUNDED, ABOUNGING
Dt 28:11 Loxo will make you a in prosperity, Ro 6:1 in sin in order that grace may a.

ABOUNDED = ABOUND
Ro 5:20 sin increased, grace a all the more, ABOUNDING = ABOUND
Ex 34:6 a a steadfast love and faithfulness, Ps 8:6-5 a in steadfast love to all who call on Joel 2:13 to anger, and a in steadfast love, Jh 4:2 to anger, and a in steadfast love, ABOUND Abraham, son of Terah (Ge 11:26-27), husband of Sarah (Ge 11:26).
Covenant relation with the Loxo (Ge 12:1-3; 13:14- 15; 17:22-18:12; Ex 2:24; Ne 9:8; Ps 105; Mic 7:20; Lk 1:68-70; Ro 4:6-13). Called from Ut, via Haran, to Canaan (Ge 12:1; Ac 7:1-2; Heb 11:8-10). Moved to Egypt, nearly lost Sarah to Pharaoh (Ge 12:10-20). Divided the land with Loxo; settled in Hebron (Ge 13). Saved Loxo from four kings (Ge 14:1-16); blessed by Melchizedek. (Ge 14:17-20; Heb 7:1-10). Declared righteously by faith (Ge 16:5; Ro 4:3; Gal 3:6-9; Mic 3:52). Fathered Ishmael by Hagar (Ge 16). Name changed from Abram (Ge 17; Ne 9:3).
Circumcised (Ge 17, Ro 4:9-12). Entertained three visitors (Ge 18); promised a son by Sarah (Ge 18:15-17). Questioned destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah (Ge 18:16-35). Moved to Gerar; nearly lost Sarah to Abimelech (20). Fathered Isaac by Sarah (Ge 21:7-17; Ac 7:8; Heb 11:12-17); sent away Hagar and Ishmael (Ge 21:8-21; Gal 4:29-30). Covenant with Abimelech (Ge 21:22-32). Tested by offering Isaac (Ge 22; Jer 17:11-19; Jas 2:25). Sarah died; bought field of Ephron for burial (Ge 23). Secured wife for Isaac (Ge 24). Fathered Keturah (Ge 25:1-6); Ish 2:1-58. Death (Ge 25:7-17). Called servant of God (Ge 26:24), friend of God (2Ch 20:7; Isa 41:8; Jas 2:23), prophet (20:7), father of Israel (Ex 3:15; Isa 51:1; Mt 3:9; Jn 8:39-58). Praised (Sir 44:19-45).

ABSONAM
Son of David by Maacah (Sa 3:3; 1Ch 2:2). Killed Amnon for rape of his sister Tamar; banished by David (Sa 13). Returned to Jerusalem; received by David (Sa 14). Rebelled against David (Sa 15:17). Killed (Sa 18).

ABSENT
1Co 5:3 a in body, I am present in spirit; Col 2:5 For though I am in body, ABUNDANCE = ABUNDANTLY
Lk 6:45 a of the heart that the mouth speaks. 22:15 one’s life does not consist in the a 2Co 9:8 provide you with every blessing in a.

ABUNDANTLY = ABUNDANCE
Jn 10:10 that they may have life, and have it a Eph 3:20 to accomplish a far more than all ABYSS
Lk 8:31 to order them to go back into the a, Ro 10:7 “Who will descend into the a?”

ACCEPT = ACCEPTABLE, ACCEPTED
Pr 19:20 listen to advice and a instruction, Jer 32:33 would not listen and a correction, Mt 19:11 “Not everyone can a this teaching, Jn 11:11 his own people did not a him.

ACCEPTABLE = ACCEPT
Ps 19:14 add of my heart be a you, 51:17 sacrifice a God is a broken spirit; Ro 12:1 a living sacrifice, holy and a God.

ACCEPTED = ACCEPT
Ge 4:7 If you do well, will you not be a? Lk 24:24 no prophet is a in the prophet’s hometown.

ACCOUNT
Mt 12:36 judgment you will have to a a, Heb 4:13 a to whom we must render a.

ACCOUNTABLE = ACCOUNT
Ro 14:12 each of us will be a to God.

ACCURED = CURSE
Ro 9:3 I could wish that I myself were a Rev 22:3 Nothing will be found a there.

ACCUSATION = ACCUSE
Ps 30:13 He will not always a, Zec 3:1 Satan standing at his right hand a Mt 12:10 so that they might a him.

ACCUSER = ACCUSE
Jn 5:45 your a is Moses, Rev 12:10 the a of our comrades has been thrown.

ACHAN
Sinned at Jericho; stoned (Jos 7; 22:20; 1Co 2:9).

ACHISH

ACCOMPLISH = ACCOMPLISHED
Isa 55:11 but it shall a that which I purpose, Eze 17:24 I the Loxo have spoken; I will a it.

ACCOMPLISHED = ACCOMPLISH
Mt 5:18 will pass from the law until all is a.

ACCORDING
Ps 28:4 Repay them a to their work, Mt 11:9 By guarding it a to your word.

ADDADED = ADDED
Dt 4:2 You must neither a anything, Pr 30:6 Do not a to his words, or else Lk 12:25 by worrying a single hour to your Dt 24: 17 You shall not deprive a resident a Lev 19: 34 you shall love the a as a yourself, a Ex 6: 3 Isaac, and Jacob as God a Mk 2: 7 Who can forgive sins but God a
Rev 1: 8 who was and who is to come, the a Ps 91: 1 who abide in the shadow of the a Ex 17: 8 Then A came and fought with Israel a ALMAKL Ex 17: 8 Then A came and fought with Israel a MAKEL Ex 17: 8 Then A came and fought with Israel a MKEP Mt 4: 17 and a go into all a MKEP 4: 4 Rejoice in the Lord a again I will AAMELAK Ex 17: 8 Then A came and fought with Israel a ALPHA Rev 1: 8 who was and who is to come, the a AMAZED Mt 28: 20 And remember, I am with you a AMAZING Mt 28: 20 And remember, I am with you a ANALGES Ge 2: 18 not good that the man should be a
ANGEL Rev 1: 8 who was and who is to come, the a ANGELS Ge 21: 11 the a of the Lord appeared to him a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 The four a stand before the throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANCHOR Heb 6: 19 a sure and steadfast a of the soul, a ANCIENT Ps 24: 7 and be lifted up, O a doors a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 The four a stand before the throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANGELS Rev 5: 2 One took his throne a
ANIMAL—ARCHANGEL'S

ANIMALS—ANIMALS
Ge 2:19 God formed every a of the field and every walk of the forest is mine.

ANIMALS—ANIMAL
Ge 3:14 cursed are you among all a Lev 26:6 remove dangerous a from the land
Ps 36:6 save humans and a, O Lord.

ANNA
1. Prophetess; spoke of the child Jesus (Lk 2:36-38).
2. Wife of Tobit (Tob 1:20, 21, 11).

ANNAS*
High priest c.e. 6-15 (Lk 3:2; Jn 18:13, 24; Ac 4:6).

ANNOUNCED  ANNOUNCING
Isa 48:5 before they came to pass I announced /arrow.right announcing a. Isa 52:7 feet of the messenger who announced /arrow.right anointed, anointing a.

ANNULLED
Jn 10:35 and the scripture cannot be a—

ANOTHER
Ex 30:10 it shall be a holy oil.
Jos 18:10 Joshua gave the land of the Ammonites, the Amalekites, the Canaanites, the Sidonians, the Hivites, the Jebusites.

ANT
Pr 6:6 Go to the a, you lazybones;

ANTICHRIST*
Jn 1:28 As you have heard that a is coming,
2:22 a, the one who denies the Father 43: and this is the spirit of the a.

ANTIOCH
Ac 11:26 in A that the disciples were first called "Christians."
13:3 the church at A were there prophets Gal 1:11 But when Cephas came to A,

ANTIOCHUS
Antiochus IV Epiphanes, king of the Syrian Greeks b.c.e. 175-164 (1Mc 1:10-19). Plundered the temple in Jerusalem (1Mc 1:20-28). Attempted to force the Hellenization of the Jewish people (1Mc 1:21-51), including defiling the altar and holy place (1Mc 1:54-64). His policies sparked the Maccabean revolt.

ANXIETIES  ANXIETY
Ecc 1:10 Baskish a from your mind,
1Pe 5:7 Cast all a on him, because he will give you

ANXIOUS
Ro 1:9 serve with my spirit by vindication, mighty to save."

ANNAS*
High priest c.e. 6-15 (Lk 3:2; Jn 18:13, 24; Ac 4:6).

APPARENCE  APPEAR
Jn 7:74 not judge by a, but judge with right

APPARENCE  APPEAR
Jn 21:14 that Jesus a to the disciples after he 1Co 15:5 a to Cephas, then to the twelve.
Heb 9:26 a once for all at the end of the age

APPEARING  APPEAR
Ac 2:3 a to them during forty days and 2Ti 4:8 to all who have longed for his a.

APPETITES
Rv 16:18 our Lord Christ, but their own a,
Sir 18:30 base desires, but restrain your a.

APPLE
Dt 32:10 guarded himself as the a of his eye.
Zec 2:8 touches you touches the a of my eye

APPOINT  APPOINTED
1Sa 8:5 a for us, then, a king to govern us,
Isa 60:17 will a Peace as your overseer

APPOINTED  APPOINT
Lk 23:22 the a festivals of the Loo
Ecc 3:17 for he has a time for every a, Hab 2:3 there is still a vision for the a; Mt 3:16 So he a the twelve; Simon (to whom Ac 3:20 that he may send the Messiah a for Heb 1:2 whose a is a sea of all things, 9:27 just as it is a for mortals to die once,

APPOINTMENT  PORTION
Dt 32:8 When the Most High a the nations,
Jos 18:10 Joshua a the land to the Israelites,

APPROACH
Heb 4:16 a the throne of grace with boldness, 11:6 whoever a him must believe Sir 1:28 do not a him with a divided mind.

APPROVAL  APPROVED
Gal 1:10 I now seeking a mere, a of God's a Heb 11:2 by faith our ancestors received a. 1Pe 2:20 and suffer for it, you have God's a.

APPROVED  APPROVAL
1Th 2:4 but just as we have been a God a 2Ti 2:15 to present yourself to God as one a

AQUILA*
Husband of Priscilla; co-worker with Paul, instructor of Apollos (Ac 18; Ro 16:3; 1Co 16:19; 2Ti 4:19).

ARAB
Ne 4:7 and the a and the Ammonites 1Mc 5:39 also have hired a to help them,

ARAM  ARAMAIC  ARAMEAN
1Ki 18:26 to your servants in the A language,
2Ki 18:17 the letter was written in a and Da 2:4 Chaldeans said to the king (in A),

ARAMEAN  ARAM
Dt 26:5 "A wandering A was my ancestor;

ARAMAIC  ARAM
2Ki 18:26 to your servants in the A language,
Ez 4:7 the letter was written in a and Da 2:4 Chaldeans said to the king (in A),

ARCHEGEL  ANGEL
Jude 1:9 a Michael contended with the devil 2Es 4:36 the a of the angel answered, and

ARCHANGEL'S*  ANGEL
1Th 4:16 a call and with the sound of God's REPENT, AND BE
ONE SPIRIT WE WERE ALL
BAPTIZED
Mt 3:11 "I know you with water for repentance, Lk 3:16 He will baptize you with the Holy Ro 6:3:12 into Christ Jesus were born into his 1Co 12:13 one Spirit we were all
BAPTIZED
Mt 3:13 10 to John the jordan, to be b Ac 15 john b with water, but you will be with the Holy
2:38 "Repent, and be b every one of you Ps 113:9 He gives the 1Sa 25:31 you are a woman b in appearance;
2. Son-in-law of 1. (Ezr 2:61; Ne 7:63).
BARABBAS*
Prisoner released by Pilate instead of Jesus (Mt 27:16-26; Mk 15:15; Lk 23:18-19; Jn 18:40).
BARAK*
Judge who fought with Deborah against Canaanites (Jdg 4:5; 1Sa 12:11; Heb 11:32).
BARABARIAN
Col 3:11 circumcised and uncircumcised, b
BARBARIANS* → BARBARIAN
Ro 1:14 a debitor both to Greeks and to b, BARB* Nu 33:55 let remain shall be as b in your eyes BARE → BARED
Ps 18:15 were laid b at your rebuke,
Heb 4:33 all are naked and laid b to the eyes
BARED* → BARE
Isa 52:10 The Loxa has b his holy arm
BARN → BARNS
Lk 12:24 they have neither storehouse nor b, BARNABAS* → JOSEPH
BARNS* → BARN
Dt 28:8 the blessing upon you in your b,
Psa 144:13 May our b be filled, with produce Lk 12:18 pull down my b and build larger BARENESS
Ge 11:30 Now Sarai was b; she had no child.
Ex 23:26 No one shall miscarry be b in 1Sa 2:5 The b has borne seven, but she who Ps 113:9 he gives the b woman a home,
Isa 54:1 Sing, O b one who did not bear;
Lk 1:17 because Elizabeth was b,
Heb 11:11 too old—and Sarah herself was b—
BARENESS* → BARENNESS
Dt 7:14 neither sterility nor b among you
Ro 4:19 considered the b of Sarah’s womb.
BARTHOLOMEW? = NATHANIEL? Apostle (Mt 10:3; Mk 3:18; Lk 6:14; Ac 1:13). Possibly also called Nathaniel (Jn 1:49-50; 2:12).
BARUCH*
Jeremiah’s secretary (Jer 32:12-16; 36; 43:1-6; 45:1-2). Deuteronomical book ascribed to (Bar 1:1, 3, 8).
BARZILLAI
2. Son-in-law of Jael (Ezr 2:61; Ne 7:63).
BASIS
Ro 9:31 righteousness that is b on the law,
Php 3:9 righteousness from God b on faith.
BASHER
Nu 21:33 King Og of b came out against Ps 22:12 strong bulls of b surround me;
Mic 7:14 let them feed in b and Gilead as in BASIN
Ex 30:18 You shall make a bronze b with a Jn 1:35 b and began to wash the disciples’
BATHING
Lk 23:44 “I find no b for an accusation
Phm 1:9 rather appeal to you on the b of love
BASKET
Ex 2:3 she got a papyrus b for him,
Mt 5:15 a lamp puts it under the bushel b,
Ac 9:25 in the wall, lowering him in a.
BATING
2Sa 11:2 he saw from the roof a woman
1Sa 25:1 he heard the shepherd b
Rev 16:14 them for
Ecc 9:11 nor the b to the strong, nor bread to Ps 24:8 and mighty, the Lord, mighty in 1Sa 25:3 The woman was clever and Rev 11:7 and 12:4 woman who was about to Heb 9:28 offer once to
Ac 12:1 rather appeal to you on the b of love
Rev 11:3 for the author of b created them.
1Co 13:7 It
2Jn 1:6 as you have heard it from the BATTLE
Lsa 17:47 the b is the Lord’s and he will give 2Ch 20:15 for the b is not yours but God’s.
Ps 48:2 and mighty, the Lord, mighty in b, Ecc 9:11 nor the b to the strong, nor bread to
Rev 16:14 them for b on the great day of God 1Mc 3:9 the army that victory in Jn 15:2 he prunes to make it
Lk 6:23 do not desire her b in your heart,
Heb 13:21 see, and our holy place, b,
BETEAN → BEAT
2Co 11:25 Three times I was b with rods.
1Pe 2:20 if you endure when you are b for BEATING → BEAT
Ex 2:11 He saw an Egyptian b a Hebrew,
Lcs 9:26 nor do I box as though b the air;
BEAUTY → BEAUTIFUL
Ge 12:11 you are a woman b in appearance;
1Sa 25:3 The woman was clever and b, Est 2:7 the girl was fair and b,
Job 42:15 no woman so b as Job’s daughters;
Ps 48:2 b in elevation, is the joy of all SS 1:5 I am black and b, O daughters of Isa 4:2 the branch of the Loxa shall b 52:7 How b upon the mountains are the Hab 2:2 the temple called the b Gate so that Ro 10:15 b are the feet of those who bring Tob 6:12 girl is sensible, brave, and very b,
Jdt 8:7 She was b in appearance,
Wis 7:29 She is more b than the sun,
Sir 25:1 and they are b in the sight of God
Sus 1:2 very b woman and one who feared
BEAUTY* → BEAUTIFUL
2Sa 14:25 so much for his b as Absalom;
Ps 27:4 to behold the b of the Loxa,
Pr 6:25 Do not desire her b in your heart,
Hab 3:18 Charm is deceitful, and b, vain,
Jdt 3:4 with the lasting b of a gentle
Wis 13:3 his b captivated his mind,
Sir 9:8 not gaze at b belonging to another;
Sus 1:56 b has beguiled you and lust has 1Mc 2:12 and see, our holy place, b, BEED → BEDS
Ge 47:31 bowed himself on the head of his b, Psa 139:3 if I make my b, how do the Lk 5:19 let him down with his b through the Heb 3:14 let the marriage b kept unfeild;
BEDS* → BED
Ps 118:24 nor bread to the b of strong
Mic 2:1 and evil deeds on their b!
BEES* → BEES
Isa 7:18 the b that is in the land of Assyria,
Sir 11:3 The b is small among flying
BEER-SHEBA
Ge 23:1 Therefore that place was called b;
1Sa 3:20 And all Israel from Dan to b knew
BEES* → BEES
Jdg 14:8 a swarm of b in the body of the lion,
BEFORE
Ex 20:3 you shall have no other gods b me, 33:2 I will send an angel b you,
Isa 43:10 b no god was formed,
Lk 22:61 b the cock crowes today,
Heb 12:2 sake of the joy that was set
BEGINNING
Ge 1:1 In the b when God created the Psa 110:10 fear of the Loxa is the b of wisdom;
Pr 1:7 The fear of the Loxa is the b
Gen 8:22 The Loxa created me at the b of Ecc 7:8 Better is the end of a thing than its b
Isa 40:21 Has it not been told you from the b?
Mt 24:8 this is but the b of the birth pangs.
1Jn 11:1 in the b was the Word,
1Jn 1:1 declares to you the b of this, b
1Jn 1:6 as you have heard it from the b—
Rev 21:6 and the Omega, the b and the end.
Wis 6:17 The b of wisdom is the most sincere Sir 1:14 To fear the Lord is the b of wisdom;

BEGOTTEN
Ps 2:7 You are my son; today I have b you.
Ac 13:33 am your Son; today I have b you.
Heb 1:5 am your Son; today I have b you?
2Es 6:58 have called your firstborn, only b,

BEGS → BEC
Lk 6:30 Give to everyone who b from you;

BEHEADED → HEAD
Lk 9:9 Herod said, “John I b;
Rev 20:4 the souls of those who had been b

BEHEMOTH
Job 40:15 “Look at B, which I made just as I 2Es 6:49 the one you called B and the name

BEHIND
Isa 38:17 have cast all my sins b your back.
Mt 16:23 said to Peter, “Get b me, Satan!
Php 3:3 forget what lies b and straining

BEING
Ge 2:27 and the man became a living b.
Nu 23:19 God is not a human b, Da 7:13 one like a human along with the
In 13: All things came into b through him, 1Co 15:45 Adam, became a living b;
Heb 1:3 the exact imprint of God's very b,

BEL*
Babylonian deity (Isa 46:1; Jer 50:2; 51:44; LtJ

BELIEVER → BELIEVE
1Co 6:6 but a b goes to court against a b—2Co 6:15 Or what does a b share with an

BELIEVERS → BELIEVE
1Co 14:22 a sign not for b but for unbelievers, 2Th 3:6 keep away from b who are living in 1Pe 2:17 Love the family of a b,

BELIEVES → BELIEVE
Jn 3:15 whoever b in him may have eternal 11:26 everyone who lives and b in me
Ro 9:33 whoever b in him will not be put to 10:10 b with the heart and so is justified,
1Co 13:7 It bears all things, all b things,

BELIEVING → BELIEVE
Jn 20:31 through b you may have life in his Gal 3:5 or by your b what you heard?

BELLY
Ge 3:14 upon your b you shall go,
Lev 11:42 whatever moves on its b, Dt 29:29 the secret things b to the Lord our Ps 82:8 for all the nations b to you!
Gal 9:9 To the Lord our God b and mercy
Jn 10:16 sheep that do not b to me,

BELOVED → LOVE
Ss 2:18 My b is mine and I am his;
Mt 3:7 ‘heaven said, ‘This is my Son, the Mt 12:18 my b, with whom my soul is Col 2:12 As God’s chosen ones, holy and b,
Rev 20:20 the names of the saints and the b city.

BELSHAZZAR*
King of Babylon (Da 5; Bar 1:11–12).

BELT
1Sa 18:4 his sword and his bow and his b
1Sa 11:5 Righteousness shall be the b around Mk 1:6 with a leather b around his waist,
Eph 6:14 the b of truth around your waist,

BELTEHSAZZAR → SEE DANIEL

BEN-HAADAD*
1. King of Syria in time of Asa (1Ki 15:18-20; 2Ch 16:2-4);
2. King of Syria in time of Ahab (1Ki 20; 2Ki 6:24;
3. King of Syria in time of Jehoahaz (2Ki 13:3, 24–

BENIAH
A commander of David’s army (2Sa 8:18; 20:23;

BEND → BENT
Php 2:10 name of Jesus every knee should b,
Man 1:11 And now b the knee of my heart,

BENEFICIAL → BENEFIT
1Co 6:12 but not all things b are,
10:23 lawful,” but not all things b are.

BENEFIT → BENEFICIAL, BENEFITS
Gal 5:2 Christ will be of no b to you.
Heb 4:2 message they heard did not b them,

BENEFITS → BENEFIT
Ps 10:3 and do not forget all his b—
1Co 9:11 if we reap your material b?

BENJAMIN → BENJAMINITE
Twelfth son of Jacob by Rachel (Ge 35:16–24; 46:19–21; 1Ch 2:2). Jacob refused to send him to Egypt, but relentened (Ge 45:3–5). Tribe of blessed (Ge 47:27; 36:22, numbered (Nu 1:27; 26:41), allotted land (Jos 18:11–28; Eze 48:23), failed to fully possess (Jdg 1:21), nearly obliterated (Jdg 20–21), sided with Israel (Jos 24:1, 23), but turned to David (1Ch 12:3; 29, 12,000 from (Rev 7:8).

BENJAMINITE → BENJAMIN
Jdg 3:15 the b, a left-handed man.
1Sa 9:21 Saul answered, “I am only a b,

BENT → BEND
Hos 11:4 I b down to them and fed them.
Jn 8:6 (Jesus b down and wrote with his) 20:5 He b down to look in and saw

BEREAVE → BEREAVES
Lev 26:22 they shall b you of your children
Eze 36:12 No longer shall you b them of

BEREAVES* → BEREAVE
La 1:20 In the street the sword b;

BESIDES
Dt 32:39 there is no god b me.
Ps 18:31 And who is a rock b our God?—
Isa 45:21 There is no other god b me,
Wis 12:13 For neither is there any god you b, Bel 1:41 there is no other b you!”

BEST → GOOD
Dt 33:21 he b the b for himself,
Mt 12:39 the b seats in the synagogues and 2Ti 2:20 your b to present yourself to God

BETHANY
Mt 26:6 Jesus was at b in the house of Jn 11:1 a certain man was ill, Lazarus of b,

BETHEL
Ge 12:8 the east of b, and pitched his tent,
28:19 He called that place b;
1Sa 7:16 a circuit year by year to b, Gilead,

BETHLEHEM
Ru 4:11 and bestow a name in b;
1Sa 17:12 David was the son of an Ephrathite of b
Mic 5:2 But you, O b of Ephrathah,
Mt 2:1 after Jesus was born in b of Judea, Lk 2:15 “Let us go now to b and see this

BETRAY → BETRAYED
Mt 10:21 Brother who b brother to death,
Mk 14:11 to look for an opportunity to b him.
Jn 11:11 For he knew who was b him;

BETRAYED → BETRAY
Lk 21:16 You will b even by parents and 1Co 11:23 Jesus on the night when he was b

CONCORDANCE | 2323
BREAK—CAIN

25:30 set the bow of the Presence on the table
Dt 8:3 that one does not live by b alone, 11:15 Send out your b upon the waters, Mt 6:6 Give us this day our daily b. Lk 4:4 “One does not live by b alone.” Jn 6:35 Jesus said to them, “I am the b of life.” Ac 2:43 to the breaking of b and the prayers, 1Co 11:26 For as often as you eat this b and Wis 16:20 from heaven with b ready to eat, 15:33 will feed him with the b of learning.

BREAK = BREAKING, BROKEN, BROKENHEARTED Ps 2:9 You shall b them with a rod of iron, Mt 16:5 where thieves b in and steal, Jn 19:33 they did not b his legs.

BREASTPIECE = BREATPLATE Ex 28:15 You shall make a b of judgment, Isa 59:17 He put on righteousness like a b, Epp 6:14 and put on the b of righteousness. Wis 5:18 he will put on righteousness as a b.

BREATHE Ge 2:7 into his nostrils the b of life; 6:17 all flesh in which is the b of life; Job 7:7 “Remember that my life is a b; Ecc 12:7 the b of life is in my hand.

BREATHTHEART Ps 51:16 if I were to give a b offering, 90:3 I will sing to the b of my mouth, 150:1 I will sing to the b of my heart.

BRIEFE Dt 16:19 for a b blinds the eyes of the wise Pr 6:35 and refuses a b no matter how great.

BRIEDE = BIREDEGROOM Isa 62:6 the bregidgroom rejoices over the b, Rev 21:9 he, the b, the wife of the Lamb.

BIREDEGROOM = BRIDEGE Mt 9:39 who has the bride is the b of the Lamb.

BRIDEL Ps 32:9 must be buried with b and, Jas 3:2 the whole body in check with a b.

BRIGHT = BRIGHTNESS Da 12:3 wise shall shine like the b of the sky Am 5:30 not light, and gloom with no b in it?

BRIGHTNESS = BRIGHTNESS Da 12:3 wise shall shine like the b of the sky Am 5:30 not light, and gloom with no b in it?

BRING = BRINGS, BROUGHT Ge 6:19 b two of every kind into the ark, Ecc 12:14 will b every deed into judgment, Jer 24:6 and I will b them back to this land. Mt 10:34 not come to b peace, but a sword. Ro 10:15 the feet of those who b good news!

BRINGS = BRING 1Sa 2:6 the Lolo kills and b to life; Jas 5:20 that whoever b back a sinner

BROKE = BREAK Ex 32:19 tablets from his hands and b them 2Ch 36:19 b down the wall of Jerusalem, Jer 31:12 a covenant that they b, Mt 14:19 and blessed and b the loaves, 1Co 11:24 he b it and said, “This is my b body 1Mc 3:5 and pursued those who b the law;

BROKEN = BREAK Ne 1:3 the wall of Jerusalem is b down, Ps 157:17 acceptable to God is b spirit; Mt 15:37 they took the b pieces left over, Lk 20:18 who falls on that stone will b be, Ro 11:20 were b off because of their unbelief,

BROKENHEARTED = BREAK, HEART Ps 147:3 He heals the b, and binds up their

ISA 6:11 the oppressed, to bind up the b, BRONZE Nu 21:9 look at the serpent of b and live. Dt 28:13 The sky over your head shall be b, Da 10:5 legs like the gleam of burnished b, Rev 11:15 his feet were like burnished b.

BROOK Mt 3:7 he said to them, “You b of vipers! Lk 13:34 a hen gathers her b under her wings, BROTHER = BROTHER’S, BROTHER-IN-LAW, BROTHERS Ge 4:8 Cain rose up against his b, Abel, Mt 5:24 first be reconciled to your b or 10:21 b will betray b to death, BROTHER’S = BROTHER Mt 25:7 has no desire to marry his b, widow, Mk 6:18 lawful for you to have your b wife.

BROTHERRING = BROTHER Mt 10:38 and perform the duty of a b to her, BROTHERS = BROTHER Mt 5:33 “Who are my mother and my b?” Lk 22:32 turned back, strengthen your b.

BROUGHT = BRING Ge 15:7 b you from Ur of the Chaldeans, Jdg 2:1 “I b you up from Egypt, and b you into 2Co 11:18 all these b to Babylon. Ezr 6:5 b back to the temple in Jerusalem, Ro 6:13 who have been b from death to life, 1Ti 6:7 for we b nothing into the world, BUI = BUILDER, BUILDERS, BUILDING, BUILDS, BUILT, REBUILT Ge 11:4 “Come, let us b ourselves a city, Dt 6:10 fine, large cities that you did not b, Ps 127:1 those who b it labor in vain. Isa 5:14 said, “b up, prepare the way, Mt 16:18 and on this rock I will b my church, 27:40 destroy the temple and b it in three 1Co 3:10 must choose with care how to b 10:23 are lawful,” but not all things b up.

BUILDER = BUILD 1Co 3:9 you are God’s field, God’s b. 2Co 5:1 we have a b from God, Eph 4:12 b up the body of Christ, BUILDS = BUILD Ps 137:1 Unless the Lolo b the house, Pr 14:1 the wise woman b her house, 1Co 3:1 Knowledge puffs up, but love b up.

BUILT = BUILD 1Ki 6:14 Solomon b the house, and finished Ne 7:1 the wall had been b and I had set up Ps 9:1 Wisdom has b her house, Da 9:25 sixty-two weeks shall it b again Eph 2:20 b upon the foundation of the Tob 13:16 176:1 in Jerusalem b will be as his house for 1Mc 4:47 b a new altar like the former one.

BULL = BULLS Ps 509 will not accept a b from your house, Ps 22:12 b encircle me, strong b of Bashan, Isa 1:11 I do not delight in the blood of b, Heb 10:4 it is impossible for the blood of b

BURDEN = BURDENS, BURDENSOME Ps 55:22 Cast your b on the Lolo, Mt 11:28 my yoke is easy, and my b is light.” 2Co 5:4 in this tent, we groan under our b, BURDENS = BURDEN Ex 6:6 free you from the b of the Egyptians Lk 11:46 you load people with b hard to bear, Gal 6:2 Bear another’s b, and BURDENSOME = BURDEN 1P 5:3 And his commandments are not b, BURIED = BURY Ro 6:4 have been b with him by baptism 1Co 15:4 he was b, and that he was raised on BURY = BURNED, BURNING, BURNT Ex 21:25 b for, b for wound, Ps 79:5 will your jealous wrath b like fire? Jer 7:31 to b their sons and their daughters Mal 4:1 the day that comes shall b them up, Lk 3:17 but the chaff he b with BURNED = BURN Ex 33:1 and see why the bush is not b up.” Jn 15:6 thrown into the fire, and, 1Co 3:15 if the work b is up, the builder will BURNING = BURN Lk 24:23 “Were not our hearts b within us BURNT = BURN Ex 40:6 You shall set the altar of b offering Lev 13:1 if the offering is a b offering from Isa 15:22 Loze as great delight in b offerings Ps 51:16 if I were to give a b offering, Da 8:11 it took the regular b offering away Hos 6:6 the knowledge of God rather than b Mic 6:6 Shall I come before him with b Mk 12:33 more important than all whole b 1Mc 1:45 to forbid b offerings and sacrifices 4:56 and joyfully offered b offerings;

BURY = BURIED Lk 9:60 “Let the dead b their own dead; BUSH Ex 3:2 he looked, and the b was blazing, Jnh 4:6 The Lolo God appointed a b, BUY = BOUGHT, BUYS Pr 23:23 b truth, and do not sell it; Isa 55:1 b wine and milk without money Rev 3:18 to b from me gold refined by fire so BUYS = BUY Pr 31:16 She considers a field and b it; Mt 13:44 sells all that he has and b that field.

BYWORD = WORD Dt 28:37 and a b among all the peoples where Job 176 He has made me a b of the peoples, Ps 44:14 made us a b among the nations, C

CAESAREA Mt 16:13 came into the district of C Philippi, Ac 10:1 C there was a man named Cornelius 25:4 that Paul was being kept at C, CAIAPHAS* High priest at trial of Jesus (Mt 26:6-3, 57:lk 3:2; Jn 11:49; 18:13-28); at trial of disciples (Ac 4:6).

CAIN* Firstborn of Adam (Ge 4:1), murdered brother Abel (Ge 4:1-25; Heb 11:4; Jn 3:12; Jude 1; 1Mc 18:11).
CALAMITIES = CALAMITY
1Sa 10:19 who saves you from all your c and 2Co 6:4 in afflictions, hardships, 12:10 and for the sake of Christ;

CALAMITY = CALAMITIES
Pr 1:26 I also will laugh at your c; Da 9:13 all this c has come upon us.

Hab 3:16 wait quietly for the day of c to come

CALEB
Judahite who spied out Canaan (Nu 13:6); allowed to enter land (Nu 13:30-14:38; Dt 1:36; Sir 46:7-9; 1Mc 2:56). Given Hebron (Jos 14:6-15:19).

CALT = CALVES
Ex 32:4 and cast an image of a c; Lk 15:23 and get the fat c and kill it,

CALL = CALLED, CALLING
Dt 4:26 I have heaven and earth to witness 1Sa 13:5 But he said, "I did not c lie down 1Ki 8:24 you c on the name of your god and I will c on the name of the Lo; 1Ch 16:8 thanks to the Lo, c on his name, Ps 61:2 From the end of the earth c to you, Pr 8:1 Does not wisdom c, and does Isa 65:24 Before they c will answer, Mt 11:3 to c not the righteous but sinners.
Lk 6:6 Why do you c me Lord, Lord,
Jn 15:15 I do not c you servants any longer, Ro 10:12 and is generous to all who c on him.
Php 3:14 goal for the prize of the heavenly c

CALLED = CALL
2Sa 22:7 In my distress I c ed for you, Ps 40:11 c them in his bosom, Lk 14:26 to give an account for every c word

CARE = CAREFUL, CARELESS, CARES, CARING
Ps 8:4 mortals that you c for them? Heb 2:9 or mortals, that c you for them?
 Jas 1:17 to c for orphans and widows in 1Pe 5:7 Be c then how you live,

CARELESS* = CARE
Pr 14:16 the fool throws off restraint and c is.
Mt 12:26: to account for every c word

CARES = CARE
Lk 8:14 they are choked by the c and riches 1Pe 5:7 on him, because he c for you.

CARMEL
1Ki 18:20 assembled the prophets at Mount C.
PENTRIPER'S* = MRT
1:35:5 Is not this the c son?

CAST
Ps 28:9 their sheep, and c them forever.
Isa 40:11 and c them in his bosom,
Lk 14:27 does c the cross and follow me

CASE
Job 1:3 and I desire to argue with c god.
Isa 4:12 Set forth your c, says the Lo; Lk 12:54 make an effort to settle the c Jn 18:18 "I find no c against him.

CAST
Ex 34:17 You shall not make c idols.
Est 9:24 Jews to destroy them, and had c Pur
Ps 22:18 and for my clothing they c lots.
Lk 55:22 C your burden on the Lo; Pr 16:33 The lot c into the lap, Mk 3:21 "How can Satan c out Satan? Jn 19:24 and for my clothing they c lots.
1Pe 5:7 C all your anxiety on him,

CATTLE
Ge 1:25 and the c of every kind,
Ps 50:10 the c on a thousand hills.

CAUGHT
2Co 12:2 was c up to the third heaven—
1Th 4:17 be c up in the clouds together with

CAUSE
Job 5:8 and to God I would commit my c.
Ps 94:4 For you have maintained my c just; 140:12 Lo c the c of the needy, Jn 15:25 "They hated me without a c."

CAVE
Ge 23:9 he may give me the c of Machpelah, 1Sa 27:21 and escaped to the c of Adullam;
1Ki 18:4 hid them fairly to a c.

CEASE
Ge 8:22 winter, day and night, shall not c; Jer 31:36 if this fixed order were ever to c 1Co 13:8 as for tongues, they c will;

CEDAR
2Sa 7:2 See now, I am living in a house of c, Ps 92:12 and grow like a c in Lebanon.

CELEBRATE
Lev 23:37 shall c as times of holy convocation, 1Co 5:8 Therefore, let us c the festival,

CENSOR
Lev 10:1 Nadab and Abihu, each took his c,
Eze 8:11 Each had his c in his hand,
Rev 8:3 Another angel with a golden c came

CENSUS
Nu 1:2 Take a c of the whole congregation
2Sa 24:2 and take a c of the people,

CENTURION
Mt 8:5 he entered Capernaum, a c came to Lk 23:47 the c saw what had taken place.
Ac 10:1 a man named Cornelius, a c

CEPHAS* = PETER
Name given to the apostle Peter (Jn 1:42; 1Co 1:12;

CERTIFICATE
Dt 24:1 and so he writes her a c of divorce,
Mt 5:31 let him give her a c of divorce.
Mk 10:4 a man to write a c of dismissal

CHAFF
Ps 1:4 are like c that the wind drives away.
Lk 3:17 c he will burn with unquenchable

CHAINED* = CHAINS
2Ti 2:9 the point of being c a criminal. But the word of God is not c.

CHAINS = CHAINED
Eph 6:20 for which I am an ambassador in c.
Heb 13:3 and even c and imprisonment.
2Pe 2:4 them to c of deepest darkness

CHALDEANS
Ge 15:7 who brought you from Ur of the c, Da 1:4 the literature and language of the c.

CHANGE = CHANGED, CHANGERS
Ex 32:12 c your mind and do not bring Nu 23:9 a mortal, that he should c his mind.
1Sa 15:29 will not recant or c his mind;
Ps 46:2 not fear, though the earth c, Jer 18:8 I will c my mind about the disaster.
Jas 1:17 is no variation or shadow due to c.

CHANGED = CHANGE
1Co 15:51 will not all die, but we will all c, Heb 1:12 and like clothing they will be c.

CHANGERS = CHANGE
Mk 11:15 overturned the tables of the money c
Jn 2:15 poured out the coins of the money c

CHARACTER
Ro 5:4 endurance produces c, and c produces

CHARGE
Mt 25:21 I will put you in c of many things;
Mk 15:26 The inscription of the c against him
Ro 8:33 will bring any c against God's elect?
1Co 9:18 I may make the gospel free of c,

CHARITY = CHARIOTS
2Ki 21:2 a c of fire and horses of fire
Ps 104:3 you make the clouds your c,

CHARIOTS = CHARIOT
Ex 14:28 waters returned and covered the c Zec 6:1 and saw four c coming out from

CHARM
Pr 31:30 C is deceitful, and beauty is vain,
Sir 7:26 for her c is worth more than gold.
26:15 A modest wife adds c to c,

CHASTISEMENT = CHASTISES
La 4:6 the c of my people has been greater
Sir 16:12 Great as his mercy, so also is his c

CHASTISES* = CHASTISEMENT
Heb 12:6 and c every child whom he accepts.

CHEEK
Ps 3:37 you strike all my enemies on the c,
Mt 5:39 if anyone strikes you on the right c,
CHEERFUL—CLOUDS

CHEERFUL
Pr 15:13 A glad heart makes a c countenance, and a s heart is a good medicine, 2Co 9:7 for God loves a giver.
Jas 5:13 Are any of them who sing songs

CHEMOSH
1Ki 11:17 Solomon built a high place for C Ps 80:1 You who are enthroned upon the

CHERUB
Mt 22:14 For many are called, but few are chosen /arrow.right 1Co 12:7 but of the

CHERUBIM
Ge 3:24 the garden of Eden he placed the c
Ex 25:18 You shall make two c of gold;
Ps 80:1 You who are enthroned upon the c, Heb 9:5 the c of glory overshadowing the

CHIEF
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to CHILD

Dt 4:37 he who loves his son
Ro 9:18 he has mercy on whomever he chooses, chose, chosen

CHILD BEARING
Ge 17:17 c be born to a man who is a hundred

CHILDREN
Ex 12:26 And when your c childbearing, childish, children

CHILDREN
Ps 68:19 I will bring the c of the nations" (who is called

CHILDREN
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ex 12:26 And when your c ask you, Dt 6:7 Recite them to your c and talk about

CHILDHOOD
Ge 3:16 greatly increase your pangs in c. Exodus 12:26 And when your c childbearing, childish, children

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 a man, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDHOOD
Ps 68:19 I will bring the c of the nations. Romans 1:16 For many are called, but few are chosen c

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 a man, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 a man, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 a man, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 a man, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 a man, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 a man, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.

CHILDREN
Ps 118:22 has become the c cornerstone.
1Co 13:11 an adult, I put an end to c ways.
CLUSTER—CONDEMNED

CLUSTER

Nu 13:23 from there a branch with a single c

COALS

Ps 11:6 On the wicked he will rain c of fire
Pr 25:22 will heap c of fire on their heads,
Ro 12:20 will heap burning c on their heads.*

CODE*

Ro 2:23 condemn you that have the written c
7:6 slaves not under the old written c

COIN*

Mt 17:27 open your mouth, you will find a c; 22:19 Show me the c used for the tax.*
Lk 15:9 I have found the c that I had lost.*

COLD

Zec 1:6 that day there shall not be either c
Mt 24:12 the love of many will grow c,
Rev 3:16 lukewarm, and neither c nor hot,

COLLECTOR — COLLECTORS

Mt 10:3 Thomas and Mathew the tax c;
Lk 18:10 one a Pharisee and the other a tax c.

COLLECTORS — COLLECTOR

Mt 5:46 Do not even the tax c do the same?
11:19 a friend of tax c and sinners?*

CLOT

Ge 49:11 his donkey’s c to the choice vine,
Zec 9:9 and riding on a donkey, on a c,
Jn 12:15 coming, sitting on a donkey’s c?*

COME — COMES, COMING

Ps 144:5 your heavens, O Loco, and c down;
Isa 59:20 And he will c to Zion as Redeemer,
Zec 14:5 Then the Loco my God will c,
Mt 6:10 Your kingdom c. You will be done,
Lk 7:20 ?Are you the one who is to c,
Jn 6:37 the Father give me to c me,
1Co 16:22 Our Lord, c;
Rev 1:4 who is and was and who is to c,
22:20 Amen. C, Lord Jesus!

COMES — COME

Ps 118:26 one who c in the name of the Loco.
Lk 19:38 “Blessed is the king c in the Jn 14:6 No one c the Father except through

COMFORT — COMFORTED, COMFORTER, COMFORTERS, COMFORTS

Ps 23:4 your rod and your staff—they c me.
Isa 40:1 C, O my people, says your God.

COMFORTED — COMFORT

Ps 86:17 Loco, have helped me c me.
Isa 49:13 For the Loco has c his people,
Jer 31:15 she refuses to be c for her children,
Mt 5:4 those who mourn, for they will be c.

COMFORTER* — COMFORT

La 1:16 for c is far from me,

COMFORTERS — COMFORT

Job 16:2 miserable c are you all.
Ps 69:20 and c, but I found none.

COMFORTS — COMFORT

Isa 66:13 As a mother c her child, so I will

COMING — COME

Mal 3:2 But who can endure the day of his c,
Heb 10:37 is c will come and will not delay;
2Pe 3:4 “Where is the promise of his c?
Rev 22:20 “Surely I am c soon."

COMMAND — COMMANDED, COMMANDING, COMMANDMENT, COMMANDMENTS

Ex 34:11 Observe what c you today,
Dt 1:26 rebelled against the c of the Loco Jdg 2:2 But you have not obeyed my c.

COMMENDED — COMMAND

Ge 7:5 Noah did all that the Loco had c;
Ex 40:13 as the Loco had c Moses.
Jos 1:16 “All that you have c we will do,
Mt 28:20 to obey everything that I have c you.
Jn 14:13 but I do as the Father has c me,

COMMANDING — COMMAND

Dt 4:40 c you today for your own well-being 30:11 c you today is not too hard for you;

COMMANDMENTS — COMMAND

Ex 20:6 those who love me and keep my c.
Dt 4:13 to observe, that is, the ten c;
Ps 119:66 for I believe in your c.
Pr 10:8 The wise of heart will heed c,
Ecc 12:13 Fear God, and keep his c;
Mt 22:40 On these two c hang all the law and Jn 14:15 if you love me, you will keep my c.
1Co 7:19 obeying the c of God is everything.
1Jn 5:3 And his c are not burdensome
Rev 14:12 those who keep the c of God and Sir 1:26 If you desire wisdom, keep the c, 1Mc 2:19 and have chosen to obey his c,

COMMENDABLE* — COMMENDATION

Php 4:8 whatever is pleasing, whatever is c,

COMMENDATION* — COMMENDABLE, COMMENDED

1Co 4:5 each one will receive c from God.

COMMENDED — COMMUNICATION

2Co 6:4 but as servants of God we have c
Heb 11:39 though they were c for their faith,

COMMIT — COMMITS

Dt 5:18 Neither shall you c adultery.
2K 17:21 and made them c a great sin.
Ps 3:15 Into your hand c my spirit;
Pr 163: c your work to the Loco,
Mt 5:27 “You shall not c adultery.”

COMMENTS — COMMIT

Jn 8:34 who c is a slave to sin.
Jas 4:17 to do and fails to do, c sin.

COMMON

Lev 10:10 between the holy and the c,
Eze 22:26 between the holy and the c,
Ac 2:44 and had all things in c;
1Co 10:13 has overtaken you that is not c
12:7 of the Spirit for the c good.

CONSCIENCE*

2Co 13:11 the c of the Holy Spirit be with all

COMPANY

1Co 15:33 “Bad c ruins good morals.*

COMPARE — COMPARING

Pr 8:11 all that you may desire cannot c
Isa 40:18 or what likeness c with him?
Lk 7:31 c the people of this generation,

COMPARING* — COMPARE

Ro 8:18 of this present time are not worth c

COMPASSION — COMPASSIONATE

Dt 12:36 will vindicate his people, c
Ps 103:13 as a Father has c for his children,
Isa 5:8 with everlasting love I will have c
Jer 12:15 I will again have c on them,
Hos 11:8 my c grows warm and tender.
Mr 14:14 c for them and cured their sick.
Ro 9:15 I will have c on whom I have c."

CONCORDANCE | 2329

CLUSTER—CONDEMNED

Col 3:12 clothe yourselves with c, kindness,
Sir 18:13 the c of the Lord is for every living

COMPASSIONATE — COMPASSION

Ex 22:27 I will listen, for I am c.
Jas 5:11 how the Lord is c and merciful.
Sir 2:11 For the Lord is c and merciful;

COMPETE — COMPETING, COMPETITION

Jer 13:5 how will you c with horses?
1Co 9:24 that in a race the runners all c,

COMPETING* — COMPETE

Gal 5:26 c against one another, enticing one 2Ti 2:5 is crowned without c according to

COMPLAIN — COMPLAINING, COMPLAINT

Nu 14:27 shall this wicked congregation c
Jer 2:29 Why do you c against me?
1Co 10:10 And do not c as some of them did,

COMPLAINING — COMPLAIN

Ex 16:7 has heard your c against the Loco.
1Pe 4:9 hospitable to one without another c.

COMPLAINT — COMPLAIN

Job 10:1 I will give free utterance to my c;
Ps 142:2 I pour out my c before him;
Hab 1:2 he will answer concerning my c.
Col 3:13 if anyone has a c against another,

COMPLETE — COMPLETED, COMPLETION

Ge 15:16 iniquity of the Amorites is not c.
Lev 23:7 seventh day is a sabbath of c rest,
Jn 4:34 him who sent me and to his work.
Rev 6:11 until the number would be c

COMPLETED — COMPLETE

Jer 25:12 Then after seventy years are c.
Da 11:36 until the period of wrath is c,

COMPLETION — COMPLETE

Php 1:6 work among you will bring it to c
Jas 2:22 faith was brought to c by the works.

CONCEALED

Lk 9:45 its meaning was c from them,
Sir 11:4 his works are c from humankind.

CONCEIT — CONCEIVED

Ps 2:3 nothing from selfish ambition or c, 1Ti 6:6 he may be puffed up with c and fall
Sir 3:24 for their c has led many astray,

CONCEITED* — CONCEIT

Gal 5:26 Let us not become c, competing 1Ti 6:4 is c, understanding nothing,

CONCEIVE — CONCEIVED

Mt 1:23 the virgin shall c and bear a son,
Lk 1:31 you c in your womb and bear

CONCEIVED — CONCEIVE

Lc 2:29 ear heard, nor the human heart c,
Jas 1:15 desire has c, it gives birth to sin,

CONDEMN — CONDEMNATION, CONDEMNED

Job 10:2 I will say to God, Do not c me;
Ps 109:31 save them from those who c c
Lk 11:31 of this generation and c them,
Jn 3:17 not send the Son into the world to c
Ro 8:34 Who is to c?
1Jn 3:21 Beloved, if our hearts do not c us we will do,

CONDEMNATION — CONDEMN

Mk 12:40 They will receive the greater c.*
Ro 5:18 one man’s trespass led c all,
2Ti 1:6 he may be puffed up with c and fall
Sir 3:24 so that you may not fall under c,

CONDEMNED — CONDEMN

Mt 12:37 and by your words you will be c.
Lk 24:20 handed him over to be c to death
Jn 3:18 Those who believe in him are not c, CORRECTING* → CORRECT
2Ti 2:25 c opponents with gentleness.
CORRECTION → CORRECT
Jer 5:3 but they refused to take c.
2Ti 3:16 c; and for training in righteousness,
CORRUPTION → CORRUPT
Ge 6:11 Now the earth was c in God’s sight, Ac 2:40 yourselves from this c generation.”
Eph 4:22 your old self, c and deluded
CORRUPTION → CORRUPT
Ac 2:31 nor did his flesh experience c.
2Pe 1:4 you may escape from the c
COST
1Ch 21:24 burnt offerings that c me nothing.
Lk 14:28 do not first sit down and estimate the c
COUNCIL → COUNCILS
Jer 23:18 who has stood in the c of the Lord Mt 26:59 the whole c were looking for false
COUNCILS* → COUNCIL 1Mc 2:64 be
Da 10:19 Be strong and c
Pr 15:13 A glad heart makes a cheerful c
Ps 89:15 O Lord, in the light of your c
33:11 The c of the Lord stands forever, Isa 28:29 he is wonderful in c, and excellent COUNSEL → COUNSEL
Isa 9:6 and he is named Wonderful
2Pe 1:4 you may escape from the c
COUNSELOR → COUNSELORS
Job 38:2 that darkens c by words without Ps 2:2 and the rulers take c together, 33:11 The c of the Lord stands forever,
Lk 14:28 do not first sit down and estimate the c
COUNCERNED → CONCERNED
Ge 12:1 “Go from your c the dust of the earth,
1Ch 21:11 iscoured David to c people of Ps 90:12 So teach us to c our days
COUNTED → COUNT
Ecc 1:15 and what is lacking cannot be c.
Mt 10:30 even the hairs of your head are all c COUNTENANCE
Nu 6:26 the Lcovo lift up his c upon you,
Ps 89:15 O Lcovo, in the light of your c
Pr 15:13 A glad heart makes a cheerful c
COUNTRY
Ge 12:1 “Go from your c the dust of the earth,
1Ch 22:11 iscoured David to c people of Ps 90:12 So teach us to c our days
COURAGE → COURAGEOUS
1Ch 22:13 Be strong and of good c.
Jn 16:33 But take c I have conquered COURAGEOUS → COURAGE
Jos 1:6 Be strong and c; for you shall put Da 10:19 Be strong and c!”
1Co 16:13 stand firm in your faith, be c.
Jn 19:44 has no honor in the prophet’s own c.
Heb 11:16 they desire a better c, that is,
COURT → COURTS
Ex 23:7 shall make the c of the tabernacle.
Pr 25:8 do not hastily bring into c.
Da 7:10 c at judgment, and the books Mt 5:25 while you are on the way to c
1Co 6:6 believer goes to c against a believer COURTS → COURT
Ps 84:10 in your c is better than a thousand 96:8 an offering, and come into his c
COVENANT → COVENANTS
Ge 6:18 But I will establish my c with you;
Gen 9:9 I am establishing my c with you 15:18 the Lcovo made a c with Abram,
Ex 2:24 remembered his c with Abraham,
19:5 you obey my voice and keep my c,
24:7 Then he took the book of the c of c,
40:3 put it in the ar of the c,
Lev 26:42 will I remember my c with Jacob;
Jdg 2:1 ‘I will never break my c with you.
1Ki 8:23 keeping c and steadfast love
Ezr 10:3 now let us make a c with our God
Job 31:11 ‘I have made a c with my eyes;
Ps 105:8 He is mindful of his c forever,
 Isa 6:18 I will make an everlasting c with c.
Jer 31:31 when I will make a new c with c
Eze 16:60 establish with you an everlasting c.
Da 9:27 a strong c with many for one week,
Mal 3:1 The messenger of the c in whom Lk 22:20 is the new c in my blood.
1Co 11:25 This cup is the new c in my blood.
2Co 3:6 be ministers of a new c, not of letter Heb 7:22 become the guarantee of a better c.
12:24 the mediator of a new c,
Rev 19:19 the ark of his c was seen within his c.
Jdt 9:13 planned cruel things against your c,
Sir 28:7 remember the c of the Most High,
1Mc 1:15 and abandoned the holy c.
2Es 3:15 You made an everlasting c with c COVENANTS → COVENANT
Ro 9:4 the adoption, the glory, the c,
Gal 4:24 an allegory: these women are two c.
COVER
Ex 33:22 I will c you with my hand Ps 139:11 “Surely the darkness shall c me, Isa 11:9 as the waters c the sea.
Jas 5:20 and c a multitude of sins.
COVET
Ex 20:17 shall not c your neighbor’s house;
Ro 7:7 had not said, “You shall not c.”
Jas 4:3 c you something and cannot obtain CRAFTINESS → CRAFTY
Ro 1:29 of envy, murder, strife, deceit,
Las 30:8 But before they had satisfied their c, 1Co 15:18 the Lord made a c
19:5 you obey my voice and keep my c,
COVENANT → COVENANT
Ge 6:18 But I will establish my c with you;
Col 1:16 (you say) since I was c, 1Pe 2:20 for doing wrong, what c is that?
CREDIT → CREDITED
Lk 7:18 nor shall it be c to the one who c.
CREEPING
Ge 1:24 cattle and c things and wild animals Ps 148:10 c things and flying birds!
CRIED → CRY
Ex 2:23 under their slavery, and c out.
Nu 21:6 When we c to the Lcovo, he heard Jdg 3:9 the Israelites c to the Lcovo, Ps 22:5 To you they c, and were saved; Mt 27:46 Jesus c with a loud voice, CRIMINAL → CRIMINALS
Jn 18:30 “If this man were not a c, 2Ti 2:9 the point of being chained like a c.
1Pe 4:15 suffer as a murderer, a thief, a c,
CRIMINALS → CRIMINAL
Lk 23:32 Two others also, who were c, CRIMSON
Ex 25:4 purple, and c yarns and fine linen,
Lev 14:4 cedarwood and c yarn and hyssop Jos 2:21 she tied the c cord in the window.
CROOKED
Dt 32:5 a perverse and c generation.
Ps 18:26 the c you show yourself perverse.
Ecc 1:15 What is c cannot be made straight,
Lk 3:5 and the c shall be made straight,
Phl 2:15 in the midst of a c and perverse
CROSS → CROSSROADS
Dt 31:3 your God himself will c over before Mk 15:30 and come down from the c!”
Lk 14:27 the c and follow me cannot be my c.
1Co 1:18 the c is foolishness to those who are Gal 6:14 never boast of anything except the c Phl 2:8 of death—even death on a c.
Col 1:20 peace through the blood of his c.
Heb 12:2 was set before him endured the c,
CROSSROADS* → CROSS, ROAD
Pr 8:2 at the c she takes her stand;
Jer 6:16 Stand at the c, and look, and ask for c
CROW* Lk 22:34 the cock will not c this day.
CROWD → CROWDS
Mk 8:2 “I have compassion for the c, 14:43 c with swords and clubs,
CROWDS → CROWD
Mt 7:18 c were astounded at his teaching,
CROWN → CROWNED, CROWNS
Lev 8:9 the golden ornament, the holy c, Pr 4:9 will bestow on you a beautiful c.”
La 5:16 The c has fallen from our head;
Jn 19:2 soldiers c a w of thorns and put
CONCORDANCE | 2331
FAITH—FESTIVAL

FAITH
Ps 142:3 When my spirit is faint, you know my way; 40:3 I will walk and not faint.

FAITH = FAITHFUL, FAITHFULNESS, FAITHLESS
Ps 1:6-7 in them, who keeps f forever; 7:9 If you do not stand firm in f, Hab 2:4 but the righteous live by their f. Mt 17:20 have the f size of a mustard seed, Mk 2:25 When Jesus saw their f, he said to Lk 7:50, the woman, "Your f has saved you; 18:18 comes, will he find f on earth?" Ac 3:16 and the f that is through Jesus Ro 1:17 one who is righteous will live by f.

Families
Ac 3:25 all the f of the earth shall be blessed. Tit 1:11 are upsetting whole f by teaching

Family = Families
Pr 6:19 and one who sows discord in a f. Gal 1:10 especially for those of the f of faith. Eph 3:15 from whom every f in heaven and 1Pe 1:21 Love the f of believers.

Famine
Ge 12:10 Now there was a f in the land. 41:27 They are seven years of f. Ru 1:11 there was a f in the land, 12:7 in the days of f they have abundance 1Co 11:28 there would be a f over all, Ro 8:35 or distress, or persecution, or f.

Fast
Nu 16:3 "You have gone too f. 1Sa 7:12 "Thus f the L oke has helped us." 1Ch 15:2 for he who has promised is f. 1Pe 4:23 to f, Creator, 1Jn 1:9 and just f will forgive us our sins. Rev 1:5 f, the firstborn of the dead, Mt 4:3 and its rider is called f and True, Wis 3:9 f, he will abide with him in love, 4:16 if they remain f, they will inherit Faithfulness = abounding in steadfast f and love. Jas 4:14 and serve him in sincerity and in f. Ps 26:3 and I walk in f to you. 36:5 to the heavens, your f to the clouds. Pr 16:6 by f and integrity is atonement Isa 11:5 and f the belt around his loins. Jer 31:3 I have continued my f to you. Lk 2:33 every morning; great is your f. Hos 4:1 There is no f for loyalty, and no Ro 3:3 f, faithlessness nullify the f of God? Gal 5:22 patience, kindness, generosity, f.

Faithful = Faithless
Jer 3:4 Return, O children, says the L oke, Mt 17:17 "You f and perseverence generation, 2Ti 2:13 if we are f, he remains faithful— Rev 2:18 But as for the cowardly, the f.

Fall = Fallen, Falling, Fell
Ps 91:7 A thousand may f at your side, Pr 16:18 and a haughty spirit before a f. Lk 10:18 "I watched Satan f from heaven like Ro 9:33 a rock that will make them f. 1Co 10:12 watch out that you do not f. Heb 10:31 a fearful thing to f into the hands of Sir 28:23 those who forsake the Lord will f.

Fallen = Fall
2Sa 1:19 How might the f have f? Isa 55:13 like a man with no sight, O Day Star, 21:9 he responds, "f, is Babylon; Rev 9:1 I saw a star that had f from heaven 18:2 "f, is Babylon the great!

Falling = Fall
Lk 22:44 [like great drops of blood f down]

Jude 1:24 him who is able to keep you from f,

False
Dt 5:20 Neither shall you bear f witness; 2Ki 17:15 went after f idols and became f; Mt 7:15 "Beware of f prophets, who come to 12:22 F messiahs and f prophets will f. Heb 6:18 impossible that God would prove f, 2Pe 2:2e 1 There will be f teachers among you, Rev 16:13 and from the mouth of the f prophet. 20:10 where the beast and the f prophet. Ltt 6:8 they are f and cannot speak.

Jesus convicted them of bearing f witness; Sus 1:61 F families, F belivers.

Families = Family
Ac 3:25 all the f of the earth shall be blessed. Tit 1:11 are upsetting whole f by teaching

Father = Father's Faith = Father's
Ge 2:24 a man leaves his f and his mother 20:12 Honor your f and your mother, 21:15 Whether strikes f or mother shall 2Sa 7:14 I will be a f to him, and he shall be Ps 82:6 cry to me, "You are f, my God, Pr 28:24 Anyone who robs f for mother and Isa 8:4 child knows how to call "My f or Mighty God, Everlasting King, Prince Jer 31:9 I thought you would call me, My, Mal 1:6 if then I am f, where is the honor Mt 6:9 Our f in heaven, hallowed be your 28:19 the name of the f and of the Son and Lk 18:20 Honor your f and mother—“ Jn 1:14 but was also calling God his own f, 8:44 You are from your f the devil, 14:6 comes to the f except through me. Ro 8:15 When we cry, ‘Abba! F!’ Gal 4:6 into our hearts, crying, ‘Abba! F!’ Eph 6:2 "Honor your f mother”— Heb 1:5 be his f, and he will be my Son? Jn 12:29 to be subject to the f of spirits Jas 1:17 coming down from the f of lights, Rev 3:5 confess your name before your f Wis 2:16 and boasts that God is his f. Sir 3:3 who honor their f, you know my f, Luke 2:25 to make me a f of the house; 5:21 making my f house a marketplace!“ 10:29 can snatch it out of the f hand.

Festival = Festivals
Ac 2:24 to the apostles’ teaching and f. 2Co 6:14 Or what is f there between light and 1Jn 1:13 and truly our f with the Father and

Female
Ge 1:27 male and f created them. Mt 19:5 Go from heaven; f male and f.
Gal 3:28 there is no longer male and f.

Favors = Favor
Ro 1:9 “Why then does he still fnd f? Sth 11:7 Do not fnd f before you investigate;

Favorite = Favor
Isa 40:31 they shall walk and not f.

Fears = Fear
Ge 22:12 for now I know that you f God, Mt 6:13 The L oke your God you shall f; Ps 19:9 the f of the L oke is pure, enduring 23:4 the darkest valley, I f to evil; 27:1 and my salvation; whom shall I f? Pr 1:7 f of the L oke is the beginning of Ecc 12:13 f, God, and keep his commandments Mt 10:38 rather f him who can destroy both Mk 5:36 “Do not f, only believe.” Php 2:12 work out your own salvation with f Jn 14:1 Do not f what they f, 1Jn 4:8 but perfect love casts out f. Rev 14:7 “f God and give him glory, Sir 1:11 The f of the L oke is glory

Festival = Festivals
Ac 2:24 to the apostles’ teaching and f. 2Co 6:14 Or what is f there between light and 1Jn 1:13 and truly our f with the Father and

Feed = Fed
Dt 8:16 f you in the wilderness with manna Ps 80:5 have f them with the bread of tears, Eze 34:8 but the shepherds have f themselves, 23:29 Look at my hands and f, my f.

Feet = Foot
Ps 8:6 you have put all things under their f, 119:105 Your word is a lamp to my f, Da 2:33 its f partly of iron and partly of clay. Mt 22:44 I put your enemies under your f!?” Lk 24:39 look at my hands and f, my f.

Festivals
Ac 2:24 to the apostles’ teaching and f. 2Co 6:14 Or what is f there between light and 1Jn 1:13 and truly our f with the Father and

Festival = Festivals
Ac 2:24 to the apostles’ teaching and f. 2Co 6:14 Or what is f there between light and 1Jn 1:13 and truly our f with the Father and
FESTIVALS + FESTIVAL
Lev 23:2 are the appointed f of the Loxo
Ne 10:13 the new moons, the appointed f,
Col 2:16 of food and drink or of observing f,
FEVER
Dt 28:22 will afflict you with consumption, f, Mt 6:28 Consider the lilies of the f, how FLESH
Ps 105:12 When they were f in number, Lev 23:2 are the appointed f of God's FESTIVALS + FIELD
Pr 31:16 She considers a f and buys it;
Mt 6:28 Consider the lilies of the f, how FILTHY
Isa 12:1 though the word of the Lord remains f, Jer 23:24 Do I not know
FILLED + FILL
Ex 6:14 F are not gathered from thorns, FILLS + FILL
Jer 23:24 Do not f heaven and earth?
Gal 5:19 how f a world of the ungodly;
FIND + FINDS, FOUND
Nu 32:23 and be sure your sin will f you out.
FISH
Ge 1:26 have dominion over the f of the sea,
STANCES + FOLLOWED
Ex 3:2 in a f of fire out of a bush;
ISA 10:17 and his Holy One a f;
Rev 19:12 His eyes are like a f of fire,
Aza 1:26 droved the fiery f out of the furnace,
FLEED + FLEE
Ex 2:15 But Moses f from Pharaoh.
ISA 19:18 Now David f and escaped;
Mk 1:15 f to go to hell, to the unchangeable f,
Rev 12:6 the woman f into the wilderness,
FLEE + FLED
Ps 11:1 "If like a bird to the mountains;
Lk 13:7 where can I f from your presence?
ISA 30:17 A thousand shall f at the threat of 1CO 10:14 f from the works of idols.
FLOCKS
Ge 2:23 is bone of my bones and f of my f;
Jn 2:14 and they become one f.
JOB 19:26 then in my f shall I see God,
Eze 36:26 of stone and give you a heart of f, Mt 16:17 For f and blood has not revealed this 26:21 but the f is weak."
Jn 1:14 the Word became f and lived among his own,
2:7 What is born of the f is f,
RO 8:4 to the f and according to the Spirit.
1CO 2:7 a thorn was given me in the f,
Gal 5:19 now the f of the f is evident:
PE 4:12 All f is like grass and all its glory
1Jn 4:2 Jesus Christ has come in the f
FLOOD
Ge 7:17 the ark to escape the waters of the f,
Ps 104:10 The Lord has enthroned over the f,
PE 2:5 a f on a world of the ungodly;
SIR 40:10 and on their account the f came.
FLOW = FLOWING, FLOWS
Zec 14:8 waters shall f out from Jerusalem,
Jn 7:38 'Out of the believer's heart shall f
FLOWER
ISA 40:17 the green grass, the f, the f,
Ps 58:1 Baumgardt f on your f,
SIR 40:17 the green grass, and the f's, the f's, FLOWING + FLOW
Ex 3:8 a f land f milk and honey,
PS 104:10 The Lord has enthroned over the f,
REV 22:1 f from the throne of God and FOE
Ex 23:22 and a f to your foes.
PE 60:11 O grant us help against the f,
FOLLOW = FOLLOWED
Ex 16:4 whether will I f my instruction
DT 6:14 Do not f other gods, any of the gods
SK 18:21 If the Loxo is God, f him;
PS 104:10 mercy shall f all the days of my f,
LK 9:23 take up their cross daily and f me.
Jn 10:27 I know them, and they f me.
REV 14:4 these f the Lamb wherever he goes.
FOSTERED + FOSTERED
JDG 2:12 they f other gods, from among the
CONCORDANCE | 2341
FIRE + Fiery
Ex 3:2 appeared to him in a f of f,
Lev 2:1 on a pillar of f by night, to give
Rev 19:12 Does your f shine like a f of fire,
Aza 1:26 droved the fiery f out of the furnace,
FIRMLY + FIRM
Ps 119:89 your word is f fixed in heaven.
Ecc 12:11 like nails f fixed in heaven.
FIRMAMENT
Ps 19:1 and the f proclaims his handiwork.
150:1 praise him in his mighty f,
FLEE + FLED
Ps 11:1 "If like a bird to the mountains;
Jn 1:14 the Word became f and lived among his own,
2:7 What is born of the f is f,
RO 8:4 to the f and according to the Spirit.
1CO 2:7 a thorn was given me in the f,
Gal 5:19 now the f of the f is evident:
PE 4:12 All f is like grass and all its glory
1Jn 4:2 Jesus Christ has come in the f
FIRE + Fiery
Ex 3:2 appeared to him in a f of f,
Lev 2:1 on a pillar of f by night, to give
Rev 19:12 Does your f shine like a f of fire,
Aza 1:26 droved the fiery f out of the furnace,
FIRE + Fiery
Ex 3:2 appeared to him in a f of f,
Lev 2:1 on a pillar of f by night, to give
Rev 19:12 Does your f shine like a f of fire,
Aza 1:26 droved the fiery f out of the furnace,
Jer 9:14 have stubbornly f their own hearts
Mk 1:18 they left their nets and f him.
Rev 13:3 the whole earth f the beast.

FOLLY—FOOL
Pr 3:16 but the fool displays f.
26:4 no answer fools according to their f
Ec 2:13 that wisdom excels f as light excels Mk 7:22 envy, slander, pride, f.

FOOD—FOODS
Ge 1:30 I have given every green plant f for f.
9:3 thing that lives shall be f for you;
Ps 113:55 who gives f to all flesh,
Mt 6:25 is not life more than f,
Jn 6:55 for my flesh is true f and my blood
1Co 8:8 F will not bring us close to God.
1Mc 1:83 it to die rather than to be defiled by f

FOODS—FOOD
Mk 7:19 (Thus he declared all f clean.)
3Ti 4:3 and demand abstinenence from f,

FOOL—FOLLY, FOOLISHNESS, FOOLISHNESS
Pr 15:5 A despises a parent’s instruction, but every f is quick to quarrel.
Mt 5:22 ‘You’ f, you will be liable to the 1Co 11:21 I am speaking as a f—I also dare to

FOOLISHNESS—FOOLISHNESS 1Co 11:18 cross is f to those who are perishing, is wisdom of this world f is God.

FOOLS—FOOL
Ps 141 F say in their hearts, ‘There is no God.’
Pr 1:7 f despise wisdom and instruction.
10:21 but f to lack of sense.
Ec 5:4 for has no pleasure in f,
Ro 1:22 Claiming to be wise, they became f;
1Co 4:10 We are f for the sake of Christ,

FOOT—FEET, FOOTSTOOL
Ps 91:12 will not dash your f against a stone.
Mt 18:8 or your f causes you to stumble,
Lk 4:11 not dash your f against a stone.”

FOOTSTOOL—FOOT
Ps 110:1 until I make your enemies your f
Isa 66:1 is my throne and the earth is my f;
Heb 10:13 until his enemies would be made a f

FORCES
Mt 5:41 and if anyone f you to go one mile,
Eph 6:12 spiritual f of evil in the heavenly

FOREHEAD—FOREHEADS
Ex 13:9 and as a reminder on your f, 1Sa 17:49 and struck the Philistine on his f,
Rev 13:16 marked on the right hand f the

FOREHEAD—FOREHEAD
Eze 9:4 and put a mark on the f of those
Rev 7:3 of our God with a seal on their f
20:4 not received its mark on their f

FOREIGN—FOREIGNER, FOREIGNERS
Jos 24:23 ‘Then put away the gods that are Ps 81:9 you shall not bow down to a f god.

FOREIGNER—FOREIGN
Ex 12:43 no f shall eat of it,
1Co 14:11 and the speaker a f me.

FOREIGNERS—FOREIGN
1Co 14:21 by the lips of f will speak to this Heb 11:13 were strangers and f on the earth,
FORENEW*—KNOW
Ro 8:29 whom he f also predestined to 11:2 not rejected his people whom he f.
FORERUNNER*—RUN
Heb 6:20 a f on our behalf, has entered,

FORESEEING*—SEE
Ac 2:31 This f, David spoke of the Gal 3:8 f that God would justify the Gentiles

FORESKIN
Ge 17:14 circumcised in the flesh of his f
Dt 10:16 Circumcise, then, the f of your heart

FORETOLD—TELL
Isa 43:9 and f to us the former things?
Jr 3:18 this way God fulfilled what he had f

FOREVER
Ge 3:22 the tree of life, and eat, and live f
6:3 spirit shall not abide in mortals f.
Ex 3:15 This is my f name and this my title
2Sa 7:13 the throne of his kingdom f.
1Ch 16:15 Remember his covenant f.
Ps 19:10 fear of the Lord is pure, enduring f, 11:4 “You are a priest f according to this 117:2 faithfulness of the Lord endures f.
Ecc 3:14 that whatever God does endures f;
Isa 40:8 the word of our God will stand f
Jer 5:5 but my salvation will be f,
Jn 6:51 eats of this bread will live f;
14:16 another Advocate, to be with you f.
Heb 7:5 “You are a priest f, according to the 13:8 the same yesterday and today f.
1Pe 1:25 but the word of the Lord endures f.”
Rev 1:18 I am alive f and ever;
11:15 and he will reign f ever."
1Cor 2:5 and they will reign f and ever.
Wis 5:15 But the righteous live f,

FORFEIT
Mk 8:36 the whole world and f their life?

FORGAVE—FORGIVE
Ps 32:5 and f you f guilt of my sin.
85:2 You f the iniquity of your people;
Col 2:13 when he f us all our trespasses,

FORGET—FORGOT, FORGOTTEN
Dt 4:23 So be careful not f to f the covenant
6:12 take care that you do not f the Lord;
Ps 137:5 If I f you, O Jerusalem, let my right
Pr 4:5 Get wisdom; get insight: do not f
Isa 41:9 these f may yet, I will not f you.

FORGIVENESS—FORGIVENESS, FORGIVENESS, FORGIVING
Ge 18:26 f the whole place for their sake.”
Ex 32:23 But now, if only f will their sins
Nu 14:20 the Lord said, “I do f,
De 8:30 your dwelling place; heed and f.
Ne 9:17 but you are a God ready to f,
Ps 79:9 and f your sins, for your name’s sake.
Eze 16:31 when f all you that you have done,
Da 9:19 O Lord, hear; O Lord, f; Mt 6:12 and f us our debts, as we Lk 5:24 has authority on earth to f sins—
Sir 5:6 he will f the multitude of my sins,”
Man 1:13 f, O Lord, f me!

FORGIVEN—FORGIVE
Lev 12:40 for them, and they shall be f.
Ps 81:9 you shall not bow down to a f god.
Mt 11:22 as we also have f four debtors,
Lev 13:4 to the paralytic, “Your sins are f,”
Ac 23:8 so that your sins may be f;
Ro 4:7 are those whose iniquities are f,
Eph 4:32 as God in Christ has f you.

FORGIVENESS—FORGIVE
Mt 24:2 a baptism of repentance for the f 3:31 against the Holy Spirit can never f, for Col 1:14 we have redemption, the f of sins.
Heb 9:22 the shedding of blood there is no f

FORGOING—FORGIVE
Ex 34:7 fiquity and transgression and sin,
Ps 86:5 For you, O Lord, are good and f, Eph 4:32 One another, as God in Christ has

FORGET—FORGET
Dt 32:18 you f the God who gave you birth.
Jr 23:27 just as his ancestors f my name
Hos 2:13 and went after her lovers, and f, me,
Bar 4:8 You f the everlasting God,

FORGOTTEN—FORGET
Ps 77:9 Has God f to be gracious?
149:14 forskamen me, my Lord has f me.”
Heb 1:13 And you f the exhortation

FORMED—FORMED, FORMLESS
Ex 20:4 in the f of anything that is in heaven
Lk 3:22 descended upon him in bodily f

FORM—FORMED, FORMLESS
Ge 2:7 the Loco God f man from the dust
Ps 139:13 you who f my inward parts;
Gal 4:19 until Christ f is you,

FORMLESS—FORM
Ge 1:2 the earth was a void and darkness
Wis 11:17 created the world out of matter,

FORNICATION—FORNICATOR, FORNICATIONS
Mk 7:21 that evil intentions come: f.
1Co 6:13 meant not for f but for the Lord,
Gal 5:19 works of the flesh are obvious: f,
Rev 19:2 who corrupted the earth with her,

FORNICATOR*—FORNICATION
1Co 6:18 but the f sins against the body itself.
Eph 5:5 that no f nor impure person,
Sir 23:17 To a f all bread is sweet;

FORNICATIONS—FORNICATION
1Ti 1:10 f, sodomites, slave traders, liars,
Rev 22:15 and sorcerers and f murderers

FORSAKE—FORSAKEN
Dt 31:6 he will not f you or f you.”
Jos 1:5 I will not f you or f you.
Jer 17:13 All who f you shall be put to shame;
Heb 13:5 “I will never leave you or f you.

FORSAKEN—FORSAKE
Ps 9:10 O Lord, have not f who seek 22:1 my God, why have you f me?
Mt 27:46 my God, why have you f me?”
2Co 4:9 persecuted, but not f;

FORTRESS
2Sa 22:2 The Loco is my rock, my f, and my Ps 71:7 for you are my rock and my f.

FORTUNES
Dt 30:3 Loco your God will restore your f
Jer 32:44 I will restore their f, says the Loco.

FORTY
Ge 7:4 rain on the earth for f days and f
Nu 14:34 f days, for every day a year,
1Ki 19:8 f days and f Rights to Horeb
Jhn 1:3 And he cried out, “f days more,”
Mt 4:2 He fasted f days and f nights,
Heb 2:17 with whom was he angry f years?
2En 18:42 They sat fays; they wrote

FOUGHT—FIGHT
Jos 10:42 the Loco God of Israel f for Israel.
2Ti 2:7 I have the good fight,
Rev 12:7 and his angels f against the dragon.
FOUND → FIND
Isa 55:6 Seek the Lord while he may be found; for he does not always stay where he is found. Lk 15:24 He was lost and is found! Ro 10:11 For those who did not seek me. Rev 20:15 He who was not written in the book of life was found.

FOUNDATION → FOUNDATIONS
1Ki 6:37 The house of the Lord was laid, Ex 36:36 The temple of the Lord was not finished. 1Co 3:11 That is Jesus Christ. Eph 2:20 Built upon the foundation of the apostles and Christ.

FRIEND → FRIENDS
Job 2:11 When Job’s three friends heard of all the things that had happened to him. Jas 4:4 Know that with the world is enmity.

FRUIT → FRUITFUL, FRUITLESS, FRUITS
Ge 3:6 She took of its fruit; Ec 2:28 But wisdom is a tree of life to those who Jer 9:1 and my eyes a flaming fire. Joel 3:18 A shofar shall come forth from the house. Zec 13:1 A shofar shall be opened for the house of the Lord.

FRAGRANT → FRAGRANCE
Ex 30:34 Anointing oil and for the anointing oil. Ex 37:5 A setting apart and a sacrifice to God.

FRANKINCENSE → INCENSE
Isa 60:6 They shall bring gold, and silver; Mt 2:11 Gifts of gold, frankincense, and myrrh.

FREE → FREED, FREEDOM, FREELY
Ex 21:2 If in the seventh he shall go out a free man. Ps 146:7 The Lord sets the prisoners free. Jn 8:32 and the truth will set you free." Ro 6:23 but the gift of God is eternal life. 1Co 10:14 Each had four faces; Rev 4:6 And four living creatures, four living beings.

FREEWILL → FREE, WILL
Ac 2:24 Having faith in Christ, believing in Christ, the Lord, and His resurrection. Rev 1:5 From our sins by the blood of Christ.

FREEDOM → FREE
2Co 3:17 The Spirit of the Lord is, there is freedom. Gal 5:1 For Christ has set us free.

FREEWILL → FREE, WILL
Ex 35:29 As a free offering to the Lord. Ps 56:6 With a free offering I will sacrifice to God.

FRIEND → FRIENDS, FRIENDSHIP
Ex 33:11 as one speaks to a friend. Pr 17:17 As love at all times, 18:24 But a true friend is closer than one’s mother. Mt 11:19 A friend of tax collectors and sinners! Jas 2:23 and he was called the friend of God. Eph 4:24 A friend of the world becomes an enemy. Sir 7:18 Do not exchange a friend for money.

FRIENDS → FRIEND
Job 2:11 When Job’s three friends heard of all the things that had happened to him. Jas 6:15 Faithful friends are beyond price.

FRIENDSHIP → FRIEND
Ps 25:14 The Lord is for those who Jas 4:4 know that with the world is enmity.
2Th 2:1 Christ and our being g together
Rev 14:19 and g the vintage of the earth, GAVE — GIVE
Gen 28:4 land that g to Abraham.
Ex 31:18 he g him the two tablets of the Eph 4:23 God g Solom therefore very great, g
Num 9:15 you g them bread from heaven,
Ecc 12:7 the breath returns to God who g it.
Mt 23:35 for I was hungry and you g me food,
Jn 1:12 g power to become children of g.
Ro 3:16 God would justify the Gal 3:8 God would be a g as our name forever!
NE 7:64 among those enrolled in the
Sir 47:4 In his youth did he not kill a g
Mt 11:29 for I am g to earth.
Ex 20:6 steadfast love to the thousandth g.
Ne 9:15 you g them bread from heaven,
Jdg 8:36-40. The fleece (Jdg 8:36-40).
Ro 3:29 Is he not the God of Eph 4:11 The g of spiritual.
1Ch 20:4 was one of the descendants of the g.
Jr 16:7 He did not forgive the ancient g
GIBEON
Jos 10:12 "Sun, stand still at G, and Moon, in 1Ki 3:5 G the Lord appeared to g
GIBEON — JERICOBBA
Judge, also called Jereubbaal; freed Israel from Midr- amites (Jdg 6-8; Heb 11:32).
GIDON
Ner 1:7 each has a particular g from G,
Jas 1:17 when with every perfect g, is from above,
Rev 21:6 the thirsty I will give water as a g
GIFTS — GIFT
Nu 18:7 I give you a priesthood as a g;
Ecc 5:19 this is the g of God.
Mt 5:2 So when you are offering your g at Jn 14:10 If you knew the g of God,
Ac 6:6 the kings g were that there g
1Th 2:6 who g himself a random
CEDALIYAH
Governor of Judah (2Ki 25:22-26; Jer 39-41).
GENAZY
Servant of Elisha (2Ki 4:27-37; 8:4-5).
GENEALOGIES — GENEALOGY
1Ch 9:1 So all Israel was enrolled by g;
Ne 7:64 among those enrolled in the
GENEALOGIES — GENEALOGY
Mt 1:1 of the g of Jesus the Messiah, GENERATION — GENERATIONS
Gen 15:16 come back here in the fourth g;
Ex 20:6 steallove to the thousand g
Da 4:34 his kingdom endures from g to g.
Mt 12:39 evil and adulterous g asks for a sign,
Lk 21:32 this g will not pass away
GENERATIONS — GENERATION
Isa 51:8 and my salvation to all g,
Lk 1:48 now on g will call me blessed;
GENEROSITY — GENEROUS
Ro 12:8 the giver, in g;
Gal 5:22 joy, peace, patience, kindness, g,
PRO 10:10 and is g to all who call on him.
Jas 1:17 Every g act of giving,
GENTILE — GENTILES
Mt 18:17 as a g and a tax collector.
Gal 5:24, live like a g and not like a Jew, 1Mc 1:14 according to g custom,
GENTILES — GENTILE
Lk 21:24 until the times of the g are fulfilled.
Ac 15:19 those who g to God, and Ro 3:29 Is he not the God of g also?
Gal 3:8 God would justify the g by faith,
Eph 4:17 must no longer live as the g live,
1Ti 1:11 from eating the food of the g.
1Mc 1:11 and make a covenant with the g
1Es 4:33 Israel has been given over to the g
GENTILE — GENTLENESS
Pr 15:4 a g tongue is a tree of life,
Mt 11:29 for I am g and humble in heart,
3Pe 3:4 with the last beauty of a g
GENTLENESS — GENTLE
Gal 5:23 g, and self-control. There is no law
Phe 4:5 Let your g be known to everyone, 1Ti 6:11 godliness, faith, love, endurance, g.
GETHSEMANE
Mk 14:32 They went to a place called G;
GHOST
Mt 14:26 were terrified, saying, "It is a g!"
Lk 24:39 for a g does not have flesh and
GIANTS — GIANTS
Sir 47:4 In his youth did he not kill a g
GIANTS — GIANT
1Ch 20:4 one of the descendants of the g,
Jr 16:7 He did not forgive the ancient g
GLASS — GLASS
Rev 4:6 there is something like a sea of g, 21:18 the city is pure gold, clear as g
GLEAN
Dt 23:21 do not g what is left;
Ru 2:2 Let me go to the field and g among GLOOM
Isa 9:1 there will be no g for those who Joel 2:2 a day of darkness and g,
Heb 12:18 and darkness, and g, and a tempest,
GLORIFIED — GLORY
Lev 10:3 before all the people I will be g."
Jn 13:31 "Now the Son of Man has been g, 17:4 g you on earth by finishing the work
Ac 1:25 g the g of the Lord shall be revealed,
Ro 8:30 those whom he justified he g also.
GLORY — GLORIFY
Ps 86:12 and I will call you my forever name.
Jn 17:1 g your Son so that the Son may g you, 1Co 6:20 therefore g God in your body.
2Co 9:13 you g God by your obedience to Rev 15:2 who will not fear g or your name?
Sir 43:30 G the Lord and exalt him as much GLORIOUS — GLORY
Jas 2:1 in our Lord Jesus Christ?
Jdt 16:13 O Lord, you are great and g, Aza 1:3 and g is your name forever!
GLORY — GLORIFIED, GLORIOUS, GLORIOUS
Ex 24:16 The g of the Lord settled on Mount 31:18 Moses said, "Show me your g,
1Sa 4:21 "The g has departed from Israel."
1Ki 8:11 of the g of the Lord filled the house of the Ps 8:5 they g crowned them with g and honor.
19:11 heavens are telling of the g of God;
24:7 that the King of g may come in.
Isa 6:3 the whole earth is full of g."
Zep 4:7 the g of the Lord shall be revealed, Eze 11:23 of the g of the Lord ascended from the 44:4 of the g of the Lord filled the temple of Hos 4:7 they changed their g into shame.
Mt 25:31 the Son of Man comes in g,
Lk 2:14 *G to God in the highest heaven,
1Jn 1:14 and we have seen his g,
12:41 Isaiah said this because he saw his g
Ro 3:29 he is holy and iniquity in the g of God;
8:18 not worth comparing with the g
9:4 the g, the covenant, the giving of 1Co 10:31 do everything for the g of God.
2Co 4:17 for an eternal weight of g beyond
Heb 1:3 reflection of God’s g and the exact 2Pe 1:17 conveyed to him by the Majestic G,
Rev 4:11 to receive g and honor and power,
21:23 for the g of God is its light,
Sir 1:11 the fear of the Lord is g and Bar 5:4 "Righteous Peace, Godly G."
1Mc 1:10 how to give good,
GLUTTON
Pr 23:21 and the g will come to poverty,
Mt 12:19 they say, "Look, a g and a drunkard,
CASHING
Mt 8:12 will be weeping and g of teeth.
25:30 will be weeping and g of teeth.
GNAT* — GNAT
Mt 23:24 strain out a g but swallow a camel!;
GO — GOS
Ex 5:1 the God of Israel, "Let my people g, Jos 1:9 God is with you wherever you g"
Ru 1:16 Where you g, I will g;
Mt 28:19 G therefore and make disciples of G
Jn 14:13 if I g and prepare a place for you,
GOAT — GOS
Lev 16:9 Aaron shall present the g on which Goats—Grace

Da 8:21 The male goat is the king of Greece.

Goats + Goat
Ps 50:13 or drink the blood of g?
Mt 25:32 separates the sheep from the g, Heb 10:4 for the blood of bulls and g

*God + God’s, Goddess, Goddess, Godliness, Godly, Gods
Gen 1:1 In the beginning when G created 1:37 So G created mankind in his image, 3:5 be like G, knowing good and evil. Ps 6:2 sons of G saw that they were fair; 17:13 and said to him, “I am G Almighty; Ex 3:4 G called to him out of the bush, 15:2 this is My G, and I will praise him, 20:5 I the Lord your G a jealous G, 3:6 but a G merciful and slow to Nu 23:19 G is not a human being.

Dt 4:7 a g so near to it as the Lord our G, 6:5 love the Lord your G with all your Jos 23:14 between us that the Lord is G.

1Sa 2:2 there is no Rock like our G.

1Ki 8:27 will G indeed dwell on the earth? 18:24 the g who answers by fire is indeed G. 2Ki 17:17 dedicated against the Lord their G, 2Ch 2:5 for our G is greater than other gods.

Ezr 6:16 the dedication of this house of G Ne 8:18 read from the book of the law of G Ps 19:1 heavens are telling the glory of G; 21:22 G will wipe away the tears 61:1 The spirit of the Lord is G upon me,

God’s + God
Mt 27:43 for he said, “I am G Son.” 27:54 “Truly this man was G Son!”

Ro 2:4 that G Kindness is meant to lead you 1Co 1:9 you are G, building, 1:30 you are G, and G Spirit

Eph 1:3 reflection of G and the exact imprint of G 3:12 Beloved, we are G children now:

Goddess + Goddess
1Ki 1:15 Astarte the everlasting G of the Sidonians, 19:27 the temple of the great G

Godliness + God
Job 18:23 does not let the G oppress me, 19:1 for the G and sinful, 2Pe 3:7 judgment and destruction of the G.

God + G
Tit 2:11 For the G is good, 2Pe 1:2 support your faith with G, 3:12 and G treasure for yourself.

Goodness + Good
Ex 3:19 will make all my G pass before you, 3:22 but overcome evil with G.

Ps 119:127 love your commandments more than G, 119:128 do not let the G withhold

Gold + 1Co 8:9 is not a human being, 2Co 12:1 me is revealed in Christ Jesus for G works, 1Th 4:4 For everything created by G is

Good + Best, Better, Goodness
Ge 1:31 and indeed, it was very G, 2:29 tree of the knowledge of G and evil.

Gal 5:20 to me, God intended it for G

Dt 6:18 Do what is right and G in the sight

2Ch 7:3 “For he is G, for his steadfast love

Ps 14:1 there is no one who does G, 15:7 and G taste against the Lord our G is;

Pr 18:22 He who finds a wife finds a G thing, 19:12 every secret thing, whether G or evil.

Isa 52:7 who brings G news, who announces

Mt 5:45 his sun rise on the evil and on the G, 13:8 Others seek G on soul and Ps 119:122 do not let the G wither, 127:1 do not G anything for the Lord your G; 128:2 G make a G path for you.

Good News + Good News
Ac 15:11 “I am G the shepherd, 10:16 1Co 8:9 a G. 2Pe 1:15 support your faith with G, and G

Goshen
Ge 46:10 You shall settle in the land of G, Ex 12:22 for the day I will set apart the land of G,

Gospel
Mk 8:35 and for the sake of the G, 10:36 For I am not ashamed of the G:

Ro 1:16 to me if I do not proclaim the G 1Co 4:3 and even if our G is veiled,

Gal 1:6 and are turning to a different G Phb 1:27 life in a manner worthy of the G

Rev 14:6 an eternal G to proclaim to those

Gossip
Pr 11:13 A G goes about telling secrets,

2Co 12:20 selfishness, slander, G, conceit,

Grace + Gracious
Jn 1:14 father’s only son, full of G and truth.

1:16 we have all received, G upon G.

Ac 15:11 that we will be saved through the G of G.

Rom 2:24 are now justified by his G a gift, 6:1 sin in order that G may abound?

6:14 you are not under law but under G, otherwise G would no longer be G.

2Co 12:9 “My G is sufficient for you.

Gal 5:4 you have fallen away from G.

Eph 2:25 by G you have been saved—through G of comfort

Tit 2:11 For the G of God has appeared, 2:11 advance the throne of G with

Concordance | 2345
HEARING—HIGH

HEARING—HEAR
Pr 18:33 one gives answer before h, Am 8:11 but of the words of the Lord, h.
1Co 12:17 if the whole body were h,

HEARS—HEAR
Ps 69:33 For the Lo is h the needy, Pr 15:29 but h be the prayer of the righteous.
Mt 7:24 then who h these words of mine, Jn 5:34 I tell you, anyone who h my w, Jn 5:14 according to his will, he h us.
Rev 22:18 I warn everyone who h the words

HEART—BROKENHEARTED, HARD-HEARTED, HEART'S, HEARTLESS, HEARTS, TENDERHEARTED
Ge 6:6 and it grieved him to his h, Ex 4:21 but I will harden his h, Ps 57:19 I will exalt O, God, above the h.
Psa 119:10 I loved h the word of the Lord, Hb 12:5 in our mouth and in your h for you
Jos 22:5 all your h and all your soul.
1Sa 16:7 but the Lord looks on the h.
Ps 19:14 meditation of h be acceptable to 51:10 Create in me a clean h, O God, Pr 3:5 Trust in the Lord in all your h, Ps 73:17 write them on the tablet of your h, Jer 9:26 of Israel is uncircumcised in h.
Eze 16:26 A new h I will give you,
Mt 5:8 Blessed are the pure in h, for they 5:28 adultery with her in his h.
Mk 12:30 the Lord your God with all your h, Lk 12:34 treasure is, there will be your h also.
Ro 2:29 circumcision is a matter of the h—
10:19 I believe that h God raised
Heb 10:22 let us approach with a true h in full Sir 1:12 The fear of the Lord delights the h, Aza 1:16 Yet with a contrite h and a humble
Man 1:11 And now I bend the knee of my h,

HEART’S—HEART
Ps 20:4 May he grant you your h desire, Ro 10:1 my h desire and prayer to God for

HEARTLESSNESS—HEART
Ro 1:13 foolish, faithless, h, ruthless.

HEARTS—HEART
Ps 95:8 not harden your h as at Meribah,
Jer 31:33 and I will write it on their h; Mk 7:6 but their h are far from me;
Jn 14:1 “Do not let your h be troubled.
Ro 7:15 law requires is written on their h,
Eph 3:17 Christ may dwell in your h through
Col 3:15 the peace of Christ rule in your h,
Heb 3:8 do not harden your h in the h
10:26 I will put my laws in their h,
2Pe 1:19 and the morning star rises in your h
Jn 3:20 “for God is greater than our h, Rev 2:23 “one who searches minds and h,

HEAVEN—HEAVENLY, HEAVENS
Ge 14:19 by God Most High, maker of h and 28:12 the top of it reaching to h; Ex 16:4 “I am going to rain bread from h Dt 30:12 “Who will go up to h for us, 31:28 and call h and earth to witness 1Ki 8:37 h and the highest h cannot contain Job 16:19 now, in fact, my witness is in h, Ecc 3:1 “and for every matter under h:
Isa 14:12 you are fallen from h, O Day Star,
Jer 32:44 “Do not fill h and earth; Mt 3:2 “Repent, for the kingdom of h has 9:6 Father in h, hallowed be your name.
24:35 h and earth will pass away,
26:64 and coming on the clouds of the h,
Mk 10:21 and you will have treasure in h;
Lk 10:18 “I watched Satan fall from h like a 27:13 and carried up into h, Jn 3:13 No one has ascended into h except the one who descended from h,
Ac 1:11 same way as you saw him h into h,
Ro 10:6 “who will ascend into h?”
2Co 12:2 was caught up to the third h—
Php 3:20 But our citizenship is in h, 1Th 1:10 to wait for his Son from h,
Heb 9:24 be entered into h itself,
2Pe 1:18 heard this voice come from h,
Rev 4:1 and there in h a door stood open!
21:1 “I saw a new h and a new earth;

HEAVENLY—HEAVEN
Mt 5:48 as your h Father is perfect.
2Co 5:2 longing to be clothed with our h
Eph 1:3 spiritual blessing in the h places,
Heb 3:1 holy partners in a h calling,

HEAVENS—HEAVEN
Ge 1:1 when God created the h and 11:4 and a tower with its top in the h,
Dt 10:14 the heaven of heaven to the Lo,
Ps 8:7 Be exalted, O God, above the h.
115:16 The h are the Lord’s h,
Isa 65:17 to create new h and a new earth;
Jer 10:11 The gods who did not make the h
Eph 4:10 who ascended far above all the h,
Heb 4:14 priest who has passed through the h,
2Pe 3:10 the h will pass away with a loud

HEAVY
Mr 2:34 “They tie up burden, hard to bear,
Mt 14:40 for their eyes were very h;

HEBREW—HEBREWS
Jnn 1:9 “I am a h,” he replied.
Jn 19:20 and it was written in h, in Latin,
Php 3:5 of Benjamin, a h born of Hebrews;

HEBREWS—HEBREW
Ex 3:18 The Lo, the God of the h, has come to me? So I am. Jdt 10:12 “I am a daughter of the h,

HEBRON
Ge 13:18 the oaks of Mamre, which are at h;
2Sa 2:11 The time that David was king in h,

HEEL
Ge 3:15 your head, and you will strike his h.
25:26 with his hand gripping Esau’s h;
Ps 41:9 has lifted the h against me.
Jn 13:18 has lifted his h against me.

HEIGHT—HIGH
Ro 8:39 nor, h nor depth, nor anything else
Eph 3:18 and length and h and depth,

HEIGHTS—HIGH
Ps 148:1 the heavens; praise him in the h,
Heb 2:5 and makes me tread upon the h,

HEIRS—HEIR
Ge 15:4 “This man shall not be your h,
Gal 4:7 then also h, through God,
Heb 1:2 whom he appointed h of all things,

HEZEKIAH
King of Judah (Sr 48:17-25). Restored the temple and worship (2Ch 29-31). Sought the Lo for help against Assyria (2Ki 18-19; 2Ch 23:2-23); Isa 36-37.
Judged for showing Babylonians his treasures (2Ki 20:12-17; 2Ch 32:1-3); Isa 39).

HID—HIDE
Ge 3:8 and his wife h themselves from the Ex 2:2 a fine baby, she h him three months.
3:6 Moses is his face, for he was afraid
Joe 6:17 live because she h the messengers 1Ki 18:13 h a hundred of the Lo’s prophets.
 Isa 49:2 in the shadow of his hand h me;
5:48 laid it in a tomb that had been h

HIDDEN—HIDE
Ps 19:12 Clear me from h faults.
Pr 2:4 “and search for it as h treasures—
Isa 40:27 “My way is h from the Lo,
Mt 13:44 “is like treasure h in a field,
Mk 6:22 nothing h, except to be disclosed;
Col 3:3 your life is h in Christ in God.
Rev 2:17 the h manna, and I will give a white
Sir 42:20 and nothing is h from him.

HID—HIDE, HIDDEN
Dt 31:17 I will forsake them and h my face
Ex 15:13 “How long will you h your face
17:8 h me in the shadow of your wings,

HIGH—HEIGHT, HEIGHTS, HIGHEST, HIGHLY
Ge 14:18 he was priest of God Most h.
1Ki 3:2 were sacrificing at the h places,
Ps 91:1 live in the shelter of the Most H;
Mt 4:8 a very h mountain and showed him
and led them up a h mountain, Mk 5:7 Jesus, Son of the Most H God?
Eph 4:8 "When he ascended on he made Heb 2:17 a merciful and faithful h priest
7:17 that we should have such a h priest,
HIGHER = HIGH
Ps 61:2 Lead me to the rock that is h than i;
Isa 55:9 so are my ways h than your ways
HIGHEST = HIGH
1Ki 8:37 the h heaven cannot contain you,
Mt 21:19 Hosanna in the h heaven!
Lk 2:14 "Glory to God in the h heaven,
HIGHLY = HIGH
Ps 47:7 to God; he is exalted Ro 12:3 not to think of yourself more h than HILL = HILLS
Ps 15:1 Who may dwell on your holy h?
Isa 40:4 every mountain and h be made low;
Lk 2:15 and h mountain and h shall be made low,
HILLS = HILL
1Ki 20:23 "Their gods are gods of the h,
Ps 50:10 the cattle on a thousand h.
HINDER
Isa 1:46 nothing can h the Loaves from saving Isa 43:11 I work and who can h this;
HIPP
Ge 15:16 I am to be h and blameless
Ps 1:1 to h and accept the HITTE = HITITES
Ge 23:10 Ephron the h was put out of joint HITITES = HITTE
Dt 20:17 H and the Amorites, the Canaanites
Ezr 9:1 Canaanites, the h, the Perizzites, HOLD = HOLDS
Ps 73:23 you my h right hand.
Isa 44:15, I, the Loaves your h, your h right
Jer 20:17 Jesus said to her, "Do not on h
Col 1:17 and in him all things h together.
HOLDS = HOLD
Ps 37:24 for the h of the hand by the Rev 2:1 who the seven stars in his right
Wis 1:7 which h all things together
HOLES
Hag 1:6 to put them into a bag with h.
Mr 8:20 Jesus said to him, "Foxes have h, HOLINESS = HOLY
Ex 15:11 Who is like you, majestic in h, Dt 32:51 by failing to maintain my h among Ps 89:15 and for all I have sworn by my h;
Ro 1:4 according to the h of the h
2Co 6:6 kindness, h of spirit, genuine love,
1Ti 2:15 continue in faith and love and h, Heb 12:16 h without which no one will see the HOLOFERNES
Assyrian general (Jud 2:4). Beguiled and beheaded by judith (Jud 10-13).
HOLY = HOLINESS
Ex 3:5 which you are standing is h ground.
20:8 the sabbath day, and keep it h;
26:33 the h place from the most h.
HIS = HIS
Lev 11:44 and be h, for I am h.
Jos 5:15 for the place where you stand is h;
1Sa 2:2 "There is no h One like the h,
Ps 2:6 set my king on Zion, my h hill.
11:4 The h is in his h temple;
Isa 6:3 "H, h, is the h of hosts;
Dn 4:25 who is my equal? says the h One.
Da 9:24 to and anoint a most h place.
Mt 1:18 to be with child from the h Spirit.
3:11 baptize you with the h Spirit and 24:15 sacrificing standing in the h place,
Lk 3:4 and sacrifice for all I have sworn by my h,
Jn 1:42 But the h Spirit, the h, Ac 2:4 were filled with the h Spirit and 2:27 your h One experience corruption.
Ps 5:3 your heart to lie to the h Spirit
Ro 1:21 living sacrifice, h and acceptable to Eph 1:4 to be h and blameless
3:10 do not grieve the h of God,
Heb 6:4 and have shared in the h Spirit,
1Pe 1:16 "You shall be h, for I am h.
1Jn 2:20 have been anointed by the h One,
Jude 1:4 with thousands of his h ones,
Rev 4:8 h, h, the Lord God Almighty
11:12 I saw the h city, the new Jerusalem.
Ps 4:15 he watches over his h ones.
1Mc 1:15 and abandoned the h covenant
2Es 14:22 send the h Spirit into me,
HOOF = HOOKS
Lev 11:3 Any animal that has divided h
HOOKS = HOOK
Mt 17:27 go to the sea and cast a h;
HOSHEA = HOSEA
1Co 12:13; and now faith, h and love abide,
Col 1:27 Christ in you, the h of glory.
1Th 5:8 and for a h the h of salvation.
Heb 6:19 this h, a sure and steadfast anchor
1Pe 3:9 our h through the resurrection
1Jn 3:3 all who have this h in him purify
Ac 11:19 their h in him who saves them.
Sus 1:60 who saves those who h in h.
HOPED = HOPE
Hos 11:1 faith is the assurance of things h for, 1Pe 3:5 the h women who h in God
HOPES = HOPE
1Co 12:7 believes all things, all things.
HOREB = SINAI
Ex 3:1 came to h, the mountain of God.
Dt 5:2 God made a covenant with us at h.
1Ki 19:8 forty days and forty nights to h
HORN = HORNS
Ps 18:2 the h and my salvation,
Da 7:8 when another h appeared,
Ps 8:5 The goat had a h between its eyes.
HORNS = HORN
Ge 22:13 caught in a thicket by its h.
Ez 27:2 make h for it on its four corners;
Da 7:7 that preceded it, and it had ten h.
8:3 Both were long, but one
Zec 1:18 And I looked up and saw four h.
Rev 5:6 having seven h and seven eyes,
6:13 from the four h of the golden altar
17:3 and it had seven heads and ten h.
HORSE = HORSES
Ex 15:1 h and rider he has thrown into the Ps 33:17 The war h is a vain hope for victory.
Zec 1:8 I saw a man riding on a red h!
Rev 6:2 I looked and there was a white h
19:11 and there was a white h!
HORSES = HORSE
2Ki 2:11 a chariot of fire and h of fire
Ps 20:7 pride in chariots, and some in h, 14:5 which is in the Loaves their God.
Pr 23:18 and your h will not be cut off.
Isa 8:17 and I will h him.
Jer 14:8 O h of Israel, its savior in time of La 3:21 and therefore I have h;
Mt 12:21 in his name the Gentiles will h.
Ro 5:5 and h does not disappoint us,
12:12 Rejoice in h, be patient in suffering,
1Co 13:13 And now faith, h, and love abide,
Col 1:27 Christ in you, the h of glory.
1Th 5:8 and for a h the h of salvation.
Heb 6:19 this h, a sure and steadfast anchor
1Pe 3:9 our h through the resurrection
1Jn 3:3 all who have this h in him purify
Sir 15:19 their h in him who saves them.
Sus 1:60 who saves those who h in h.
HOSPITAL = HOSPITALITY HOSPITALITY
HOSANNA
Mr 11:10 H in the highest heaven!
Jn 12:13 went out to meet him, shouting, "H!
HOSEA
Prophet whose wife and family pictured the unfaithfulness of Israel (Hos 1-3).
HOSHEA
2. Last king of Israel (2Ki 15:30; 17:6-7).

CONCORDANCE | 2349
INTERPRETATIONS—JERICHO

1Co 12:10 to another the i, Ps 1:20 scripture is a matter of one's own i, ES 12:10 “This is the spirit of this vision

INTERPRETATIONS → INTERPRET

Ge 40:8 to them, “Do not i God? to Jericho

INVADE → INVADED

La 1:10 the nations I sanctuary, Na 1:15 never again shall the wicked i you;

INVITE → INVITED, INVITES

Lk 14:13 when you give a banquet, I the poor,

INVITED → INVITE

Rev 19:9 Blessed are those who are I to

INVITES → INVITE

1Co 10:27 If an unbeliever I to a meal
Sir 13:9 When an influential person I you,

INVOKED

Ex 23:13 Do not I the names of other gods;

ITCHING

2Ti 4:3 sound doctrine, but having I ears,

JACOB → ISRAEL

itching

2Ti 4:3 sound doctrine, but having i ears,

JARS → JAR

Jn 2:6 there were six stone water I for

JEALOUS

Ex 34:14 whose name is, I, a God.

JEREMIAH

JEROHAM

2. Son of Abah; king of Israel (2Ch 23:2-3); joined Jehoshaphat against Moab (2Ki 3:1). See Jerom, 2.

JEROSHALOM

JETHRO

2. Son of Abar; king of Israel (2Ch 23:2-3). Joining Jehoshaphat against Moab (2Ki 3). See Jerom, 2.

JUDE

1. Prophet against Baasha (2Ki 16:7-17).

JUDAH

2. Son of Ahaziah, king of Judah (2Ki 12).

JUDAS

Jn 6:6 he, the one who betrayed him.

JUDE

JUDEAN

Mt 10:4 of Judas I, the one who betrayed him.

JULIUS

2. Son of Abar; king of Israel (2Ch 23:2-3); joined Jehoshaphat against Moab (2Ki 3). See Jerom, 2.

JUDEAN

2. Son of Ahaziah, king of Judah (2Ki 12). See Jehoshaphat, 2.

JUDEAN

2. Son of Ahab; king of Israel (2Ch 23:2-3); joined Jehoshaphat against Moab (2Ki 3). See Jerom, 2.

JUDEAN

2. Son of Ahab; king of Israel (2Ch 23:2-3); joined Jehoshaphat against Moab (2Ki 3). See Jerom, 2.

JUDEAN

2. Son of Ahab; king of Israel (2Ch 23:2-3); joined Jehoshaphat against Moab (2Ki 3). See Jerom, 2.

JUDEAN

2. Son of Ahab; king of Israel (2Ch 23:2-3); joined Jehoshaphat against Moab (2Ki 3). See Jerom, 2.

JUDEAN

2. Son of Ahab; king of Israel (2Ch 23:2-3); joined Jehoshaphat against Moab (2Ki 3). See Jerom, 2.

JUDEAN

2. Son of Ahab; king of Israel (2Ch 23:2-3); joined Jehoshaphat against Moab (2Ki 3). See Jerom, 2.

JUDEAN

2. Son of Ahab; king of Israel (2Ch 23:2-3); joined Jehoshaphat against Moab (2Ki 3). See Jerom, 2.

JUDEAN

2. Son of Ahab; king of Israel (2Ch 23:2-3); joined Jehoshaphat against Moab (2Ki 3). See Jerom, 2.

JUDEAN

2. Son of Ahab; king of Israel (2Ch 23:2-3); joined Jehoshaphat against Moab (2Ki 3). See Jerom, 2.

JUDEAN

2. Son of Ahab; king of Israel (2Ch 23:2-3); joined Jehoshaphat against Moab (2Ki 3). See Jerom, 2.
JEROBOAM
1. Official of Solomon; rebelled to become first king of Israel (1Ki 11:26-40; 12:1-20; 2Ch 10). Idolatry (1Ki 12:23-33; Tob 1:5; Sir 47:23); judgment for (1Ki 13:14-13:21).
2. Son of Jehosh; king of Israel (1Ki 14:23-29).

JERUSALEM
2Sa 5:5 and at J, ark of God back to J.

Jezreel
1. See Jehoshaphat.
2. See Jehu: J.
3. Writer of Sirach (Sir Pr:1; 50:27; 51:1).

Jesse
Father of David (Ru 4:17-22; 1Sa 16; 1Ch 2:17-21).

Jesus
1. Jesus the Messiah.
2. See Jesus: J.
3. See Jesus: J.

Jesus: J.

Jethro
1. See Jetro.
2. Disciple, also called Justus (Col 4:11).

Jethro: J.

Jewish Exile
1. Offi cer of Solomon; rebelled to become fi rst and also to the Greek.

Jewish History
1. Of the Jews I became as a bond servant.
2. To the Jews I became as one inwardly, but outwardly as one of the Gentiles.

Jewish Piety
1. See Jewish: J.
2. See Jewish: J.

Jewel /arrow.right jewels
1. See Jewels: J.

Joab

Job
1. See Job: J.
2. See Job: J.
3. See Job: J.
4. See Job: J.

Job: J.
1. Son of Zerubbabel (1Ch 3:18). Called the high priest (1Ch 3:18). Wealthy man from Uz; feared God (Job 1:1-5). Integrity tested by disaster (Job 1:16-21), personal affliction (Job 2:1-23). Maintained innocence in debate with three friends (Job 3:31-42); Elihu (Job 32-37); Rebuked and restored to greater stature by the Lord (Job 42). Example of humility (Eze 14:14; 20:49).

Joel
1. First high priest in the temple (Ez 9:6-10).
2. Jewish leader who tried to save Gedaliah from assassination (Jer 40:13-14); took Jews, including Jeremiah, to Egypt (Jer 40:3).

John

John: J.
1. See John: J.
2. See John: J.
3. See John: J.

Joseph

Joseph: J.
1. Of the Lord I became as a bond servant.
2. See Joseph: J.
3. See Joseph: J.

Joshua

Josiah

Joseph: J.
1. Of the Lord I became as a bond servant.
2. See Joseph: J.
3. See Joseph: J.

Joshua: J.
1. Of the Lord I became as a bond servant.
2. See Joshua: J.
3. See Joshua: J.

Joshua: J.
2. Son of Ahab; king of Israel. Killed with Ahaiah
JORDAN—KADESH-BARNEA

JORDAN
Gen 13:10 the plain of the land west of Jordan.
Num 34:12 the boundary shall go down to the Jezreel Valley in the middle of the Jezreel Valley.
Mt 3:6 were baptized by him in the river J.

JOSEPH —MARRANAS, =BARSABBAS
1. Son of Jacob by Rachel (Ge 32:19; 33:2). Favorably regarded by Jacob, hated by brothers (Ge 37:3-4).

JERUSALEM —JERUSALEM
Mt 11:24 day of judgment.
Lk 14:10 will all stand before the seat of judgment.

JUDEAN —JUDAEAN
1. Judean.
2. Husband of Mary mother of Jesus (Mt 1:16-24; Lk 1:26-35).

JUDGES
2. Judges (Jos 11-12).

JUDGES —JUDGMENT
2. Judges (Jos 11-12).

JUDEA —JUDEAN
1. Jude (Mt 1:6; Lk 1:26).
2. Husband of Mary mother of Jesus (Mt 1:16-24).
3. Judeus. (Jude 1).

JUDEAN —JUDGMENT
1. Judges (Jos 11-12).
2. Judges (Jos 11-12).

JUDICIAL —JUDICIAL
2. Judges (Jos 11-12).

JUDEA —JUDGMENT
2. Judges (Jos 11-12).

JUDICIAL —JUDICIAL
1. Judges (Jos 11-12).
2. Judges (Jos 11-12).

JUDEAN —JUDGMENT
2. Judges (Jos 11-12).

JUDICIAL —JUDICIAL
1. Judges (Jos 11-12).
2. Judges (Jos 11-12).

JUDEA —JUDGMENT
2. Judges (Jos 11-12).

JUDICIAL —JUDICIAL
1. Judges (Jos 11-12).
2. Judges (Jos 11-12).

JUDEA —JUDGMENT
2. Judges (Jos 11-12).

JUDICIAL —JUDICIAL
1. Judges (Jos 11-12).
2. Judges (Jos 11-12).
KEEP → KEEPER, KEEPS, KEPT

Ge 17:9 for you, you shall keep my covenant, Ex 20:22 and you shall keep my commandments; Nu 6:24 The Lord bless you and keep you; Dt 5:10 love me and keep my commandments; Ne 1:3 know the Lord your God, and keep his commandments; Pr 7:2 and my commandments and live; Ecc 3:1 six time to work, and a time to throw away; 12:13 Fear God, and keep his commandments, Lk 17:33 those who lose their life will keep it; Jude 1:24 Now to him who is able to keep you;

Sir 1:26 wisdom, k, the commandments,

KEEPER → KEEP

Ge 4:9 am I my brother's k? Ps 121:5 The Lord is your k;

KEEPS → KEEP

Ps 121:13 he who k you will not slumber. Jas 2:10 whoever k the whole law but fails

KEPT → KEEP

Mt 19:20 said to him, “I have k all these; Jn 17:6 and they have k your word. TIT 4:7 finished the race, I have k the k of God;

KEY → KEYS

Isa 22:22 on his shoulder the k of the house Lk 11:52 taken away the k of knowledge; Rev 3:7 true one, who has k of David,

KEYS → KEYS

Mt 16:19 you the k of the kingdom of heaven, Rev 1:18 I have the k of Death and of Hades.

KIDNAPS* → EX

Ex 21:16 Whoever k a person, whether

KIDRON

2Sa 15:23 the king crossed the Wadi K; Jn 18:1 his disciples across the k valley

KILL → KILLED, KILLS

Ex 4:23 now k your firstborn son.” Ecc 3:3 a time to k, and a time to heal; Mt 10:28 not fear those who k the body but cannot k the soul; Mk 14:11 to arrest Jesus by stealth and k him;

KILLED → KILL

Mk 9:31 after being k, he will rise again.” Ac 3:15 and you k the Author of life, Ro 7:11 deceived me and through it k me. 2Co 6:9 as punished, and yet not k;

KILLS → KILL

1Sa 26:2 The Lko k and brings to life; 2Co 3:6 the letter k, but the Spirit gives life.

KIND → KINDNESS, KINDS

Ge 6:20 two of every k shall come in to you, Ps 145:17 and in all his doings, 1Co 13:4 Love is patient; love is k; Eph 4:32 and k to one another,

KINDNESS → KIND

Pr 31:26 teaching of k is on her tongue. Hos 11:4 I led them with cords of human k, Ro 2:4 k is meant to lead you to repentance Gal 5:22 joy, peace, patience, k, generosity, Cor 13:4 Love is patient; love is k;

KINDS → KIND

Lev 19:19 not sow your field with two k of 1Co 12:10 to another k of life, 1Ti 6:10 of money is a root of all evil,

KING → KINGDOM, KINGS

Ex 1:8 Now a new k arose over Egypt, Dt 17:14 and you say, “I will set a k over me, 1Sa 8:7 rejected me from being k over them. 2Sa 24:4 they anointed David k over Ps 2:6 set my k Zion, my holy hill.

10:16 The Lk is forever and ever;

 Isa 6:5 have seen the k, the Lk of hosts! Jer 10:10 living God and the everlasting k. Mt 2:2 who has been born k of the Jews? 27:37 “This is Jesus, the k of the Jews.” Lk 19:38 “Blessed is the k who comes in the Jn 1:29 You are the k of Israel” 1Ti 1:7 To the k of the ages, immortal, Rev 19:16 “K of kings and lords of Ord.” Tob 10:13 Lord of heaven and earth, k over all

KINGDOM → KING

Ex 19:6 you shall be for me a k priestly and 2Sa 2:4 anointed David k over Me 12:13 Fear God, and keep his commandments, Lk 17:33 those who lose their life will keep it; Jude 1:24 Now to him who is able to keep you;

Rev 2:26 wisdom, k, the commandments,

Ge 2:12 for now I k that you fear God, Ex 6:7 that I am the Lk who your God, 1Ki 8:39 only k you what is in every human Job 19:25 for I that my Redeemer lives, Ps 46:8 “Be still, and k that I am God!” Ecc 8:16 I applied my mind to k wisdom, Isa 1:3 Israel does not k, my people do not Jer 13:9 “I, the Lk,” for they shall all k Mt 6:3 left hand k what your right hand is 24:42 do not k on what day your Lord is Lk 11:13 k how to give good gifts to k his k, that you have not denied three times that you k me.” Jn 10:14 I my own and my own k, me, 13:35 will k that you are my disciples, 21:24 and we k that his testimony is true. Ac 2:40 “The k of the Lk,” for they shall all k

Ac 2:43 from one k, k good and evil; 18:4 Jesus, k, all that was to happen to k Christ Jesus, Heb 1:3 have entertained angels without k.

KNOWING → KNOW

Mt 16:16 k the Lord, for they shall all me, TIT 1:16 profess to k God, but they deny Heb 8:11 “K the Lord,’ for they shall all me, Jn 4:24 I say to you, k love by this, that he laid down his k, Rev 3:3 not k at what hour I will come to

KNOWLEDGE → KNOW

Ge 2:9 the tree of the k of good and evil. Job 21:22 Will any teach God, Pr 1:7 of the Lk is the beginning of k; 8:10 and k rather than choice gold; Ecc 1:18 who increase k increase sorrow. Isa 11:2 spirit of k and the fear of the Lk. Hos 4:6 people are destroyed for lack of k; Lk 11:57 you have taken away the key of k; Ro 11:33 riches and wisdom and k of God! 1Co 8:1 k puffs up, but love builds up. Eph 3:19 the love of Christ that surpasses k, Col 2:3 the treasures of wisdom and k. 1Ti 6:20 of what is falsely called k;

KNOWLEDGE → KNOW

Ps 139:1 you have searched me and k me. Lk 6:44 for each tree is by its k fruit. Jn 11:18 Father’s heart, who has made him Ro 7:7 I would not have k sin. 1Co 2:16 For who k the mind of the Lord Eph 1:9 made us to k the mystery of his will,

KNOWS → KNOW

Ps 9:14 the Lk our thoughts, 10:14 for he k how we were made; Mt 6:8 your Father k what you need before 24:36 about that day and hour no one k, Ro 8:27 k what is the mind of the Spirit. 2Ti 2:19 “The k Lord those are his,” 1Jn 4:7 loves is born of God and k God. Sir 42:18 Most high k all that may be known;

KORAH → KORAHITES

Levite; led rebels against Moses (Nú 16; Jude 11).

KORAHITES → KORAH

Psalms of Ps: 42; 44-49; 84; 85; 87; 88.

LABAN

Brother of Rebekah (Ge 24:29), father of Rachel and Leah (Ge 29-31). Provided daughters as wives for Jacob in exchange for Jacob’s service (Ge 29:1–30). Provided flocks for Jacob’s service (Ge 30:25–43). Pursued and covenanted with Jacob (Ge 31).

LABOR → LABORER

Ex 1:11 to oppress them with forced labor.
20:9 Six days you shall work, and do all your land.
Jn 4:38 reaps that for which you did not labor.

LABORER → LABORER

Lev 19:13 the wages of a slave until morning.
Lk 10:7 for the Gospel to be paid.
1Ti 5:18 and, “The one who desires wages...

LACKED → LACKING

Dt 2:27 with you; you have nothing.”

LACKING → LACKED

Ecc 1:15 and one thing I cannot be counted.
Lk 18:32 “There is still one thing I...
Col 1:24 completing what is in Christ’s

LADDER

Ge 28:12 that there was a ladder set up on the earth,

LAID → LAY

Isa 53:6 like a sheep led to the slaughter,

LAKE

Rev 19:20 were thrown alive into the lake fire

LAMBS → LAMB

Ge 22:8 “God himself will provide the lamb.

LAMBS, LAMPS, LAMPSTANDS, LAMPSTANDS

1K 11:36 servant David may always have a lamb
Ps 18:18 It is you who light my lamp.
119:95 Your Word is a lamp to my feet and a lamp to my lamp
Mt 5:35 enlighting a lamp puts it under the bushel
6:29 “The eye of the Lord is on the lampstand.
Rev 2:25 they need no light of fire or sun.

LAMPS → LAMP

Ex 25:37 You shall make the seven lamps for it;
Mt 25:1 Ten bridesmaids took their lamps

LAMPSTAND → LAMP

Ex 25:31 You shall make a lampstand
1M 13:40 and lit the lamps on the lampstand,

LAMPSTANDS → LAMP

Rev 1:20 the seven lampstands are the seven churches.
11:4 the two witnesses stand before the Lord

LAND

Ge 1:10 God called the dry land Earth,
12:7 your offspring I will give this land.
Ex 3:8 a flowing with milk and honey,
20:2 brought you out of the land of Egypt,
Nu 13:2 to spy out the land of Canaan,
Jos 11:13 So Joshua took the whole land,
Jdg 12:7 Canaanites continued to live in that land
2Ki 17:5 the king of Assyria invaded all the land
25:24 So Judah went into exile out of its land.
2Ch 7:14 will forgive their sin and heal their land.
Ps 37:11 But the meek shall inherit the land.
Jer 22:29 O L, I hear the word of the Lord;
Da 11:41 He shall come into the beautiful land.
Mal 4:6 come and strike the land with a curse.

LANGUAGE

Ge 11:9 L recall the land of all the earth;
Ac 2:26 speaking in the native land of each.

LAP

Jdg 7:5 who the Lord with their tongues,
Pr 16:13 The lot is cast into the lap,

LASHES

Dt 25:3 Forty may be given but not more;
26:12 11:24 From the jewels the forty minus one.

LAST → EVERLASTING

2Sa 3:31 now these are the words of David:
Isa 44:6 I am the first and I am the last;
Mt 19:30 first will be last, and I will be first.
 Mk 9:35 first must be last and servant of all.
1Co 15:26 I am the second death is destroyed.
15:52 twinkling of an eye, at the lamplight.
2Ti 3:1 in that the I days distressing times
Heb 12:1 days has spoken to us by a Son,
Jn 21:28 Children, is the hour!
Rev 1:17 I is the first and the last,

LAUGH → LAUGHINGSTOCK, STOCK

Ge 18:13 said to Abraham, “Why did Sarah laugh,
Ecc 3:4 a time to weep, and a time to laugh
Jn 6:45 that was slaughtered to my head.

LAW → LAWFUL, LAWLESSNESS

Dt 1:5 Moses undertook to expound this law
31:9 Then Moses wrote down this law
Jos 11:13 I am the first and I am the last;
Lk 6:21 you who weep now, for you will laugh.

LAUGHINGSTOCK → LAUGH

Ps 44:14 the nations, a people among the peoples.
La 3:14 have become the law of my people,

LAUGH → LAUGHTER

Ps 47:1 The nations, a great and a strong.
La 3:14 have become the law of my people,

LEAD → LEADERS, LEADERS, LEADS, LEAD

Ex 32:34 to the people of the place
Ps 61:2 me to the rock that is higher than Isa 11:6 and a little child shall they.
Mt 13:22 to astray, if possible, the elect.
Ro 2:4 meant to I you to repentance?

LEADER → LEAD

1Ch 28:4 for he chose Judah as I,
Ro 12:8 the I, in diligence;

LEADERS → LEAD

Isa 3:12 one people, your I isled you,
Lk 19:47 the I of all the people kept looking for Heb 13:7 Remember your I, those who spoke

LEADS → LEAD

Ps 21:28 he I me beside still waters;
Mt 13:5 “Beware that no one I you astray.
Ro 6:16 obedience, I to righteousness

LEAH

LEAPING

1Ch 15:29 and saw King David I and dancing;
Ac 3:8 walking I and praising God.

LEARN → LEARNED, LEARNING

Dt 4:10 that they I me to fear as long as Isa 1:17 I do good; seek justice, 1Ti 2:11 Let a woman I in silence with full

LEARNED → LEARN

Jn 6:45 I from the Father comes to me.
Php 4:11 I have I be content with whatever

LEARNING → LEARN

Jn 7:15 “How does this man have such I,
Ac 26:24 Too much I is driving you insane!

LEAST → LESS

Mt 2:6 are by no means I among the rulers
19:19 called in the kingdom of heaven;
Lk 9:48 I among all of you is the greatest.”

LEAVE → LEFT

Nu 11:20 “Why did we ever I Egypt?”
Mk 10:7 this reason a man shall I his father Jn 14:18 not I you orphaned; I am coming to Heb 13:5 said, “I will never I you or forsake

LEAVEN → LEAVES

Ex 12:15 on the first day you shall remove

LEAVES → LEAVEN

Gal 5:9 a little yeast I the whole batch of

LEAVES

Ge 3:7 and they sewed fig I together
Eze 47:12 and their I for healing.
Rev 22:1 I of the tree are for the healing of

LEBANON

Dt 11:24 from the wilderness to the land
Isa 40:16 I would not provide fuel enough,

LED → LEAD

Isa 53:7 like a lamb that I to the slaughter,
Jer 50:6 their shepherds have I astray,
Hos 11:4 I them with cords of human Mt 4:1 Then Jesus was I up by the Spirit
Lk 21:31 “Beware that you are not I astray;
Ro 8:14 For all who are I by the Spirit

Lazarus

1. Poor man in Jesus’ parable (Lk 16:19–31).
2. Brother of Mary and Martha whom Jesus raised from the dead (Lk 11:1–2)
LOVE \- BELOVED, LOVED, LOVER, LOVERS, LOVES
Ex 20:16 but showing steadfast love to the thousandth generation.
Lev 19:18 shall you regard your neighbour as yourself.
Nu 14:18 and abundantly in steadfast love I and in mercy I am slow to anger and great in kindness.
1Sa 7:15 not take my steadfast love from him, IKi 11:2 Solomon clung to these in maintaining the steadfast love of God.
1Ch 22:27 I will also give him the morning stars for his enemies and the sun for his enemies.
Ps 35:3 I will sing of steadfast love and justice and magnify thee.
Ps 80:18 I will show myself a helper as his partner.
Eph 4:14 the eye of the Spirit is, Eph 4:18 do not throw away your confidence, for the time of your reward is at hand.
1Jn 4:19 we love because he first loved us.

LOVE \- LOVE
Ps 99:4 Mighty King, I of justice, Ecc 5:10 I of money will not be satisfied with 1Ti 3:3 quarrelsomeness, and not 1 of money.

LOVES \- LOVE
Jer 3:1 have played the whore with many; La 1:2 all her I she has no one to comfort.

LOVES \- LOVE
Jer 3:1 I have found the one whom my soul loves.

LOVES \- LOVE
Ps 13:5 He righteousness and justice; Pr 3:2 for the L oves the reprobate one the h e.

LOVES \- LOVE
Ps 3:13 I have remembered you in my power of love, Ps 8:5 have them a little lower than God.

LOVES \- LOVE
Ps 3:15 He is steadfast in love, Ps 8:5 have them a little lower than God.

LOW \- LOWER, LOWLY
Pr 16:19 it is better to be of a spirit L o w, Ps 8:5 have them a little lower than God.

LOW \- LOWER, LOWLY
Ps 13:6 these who remembered us in our estate, L k 3:5 mountain and hill shall be made L o w.

LOWLY \- LOW
Pr 16:19 it is better to be of a spirit L o w, Ps 8:5 have them a little lower than God.

LOYAL \- LOYALTY
Lk 22:25 With the you show yourself I, Da 11:32 who are I to their God.

LOYALTY \- LOYAL
Dt 7:9 God who maintains covenant I, Ru 3:10 this last instance of your love.

LOYALTY \- LOYAL
Ps 101:1 I will sing of I and of justice; Hos 4:1 There is no faithfulness nor love.

LUKE* Associate of Paul (Col 4:14; 2Ti 4:1; Phm 24).

LUKAWARM* Rev 3:16 because you are I and neither cold nor hot.

LUST \- LUSTS
Mt 5:28 looks at a woman with I has already that is in the world because of it.

LUSTS \- LUST
Ro 1:24 gave them up in the I of their hearts.

LYDIA* Ac 16:14 named L, a worshipper of God,

LYING \- LIE
1Ki 22:33 I spirit in the mouth of all these Pr 6:17 I tongue, and hands that shed blood,

LYRE
1Sa 18:10 while David was playing the L, Ps 3:32 Praise the L ove with the L.

MAIDEN* Mt 27:56 Among them were Mary M, Magicians Ex 7:11 and they also, L egypt, Da 2:2 So the king commanded that the M.

MAIDVES*\| MAGNIFY
Ps 3:14 O me the Lord with me, Ac 2:26 that God has m him both Lord and King.

MADE \- MAKE
Ge 1:26 "Let us make mankind in our image,

MAKE \- MADE
Ge 1:26 "Let us make mankind in our image,

MAKERS*\| MAI
Ge 1:26 "Let us make mankind in our image,

MALACHI* Post-exilic prophet (Mal 1:1; 2Es 1:40).

MALACHI* Post-exilic prophet (Mal 1:1; 2Es 1:40).

MAY \- MILLION
Ps 109:18 you shall forgive me, if only.

MILLS*\| MILLER
Ps 109:18 you shall forgive me, if only.

MILLIONS*\| MILLION
Ps 109:18 you shall forgive me, if only.

MULHER*| MALE
Ge 1:27 m and female he created them.

MALE
Ge 1:27 m and female he created them.

MALACHI* Post-exilic prophet (Mal 1:1; 2Es 1:40).

MAKERS*\| MAI
Ge 1:26 "Let us make mankind in our image,

MADE \- MAKE
Ge 1:26 "Let us make mankind in our image,

MAKERS*\| MAI
Ge 1:26 "Let us make mankind in our image,

MADE \- MAKE
Ge 1:26 "Let us make mankind in our image,

MAKERS*\| MAI
Ge 1:26 "Let us make mankind in our image,

MADE \- MAKE
Ge 1:26 "Let us make mankind in our image,

MAKERS*\| MAI
Ge 1:26 "Let us make mankind in our image,

MADE \- MAKE
Ge 1:26 "Let us make mankind in our image,

MAKERS*\| MAI
Ge 1:26 "Let us make mankind in our image,

MADE \- MAKE
Ge 1:26 "Let us make mankind in our image,

MAKERS*\| MAI
Ge 1:26 "Let us make mankind in our image,
MORDECAI—NAILING

MORDECAI
Benjamin, who was raised above his brothers, is mentioned in the Bible. He is a character in the Book of Esther, where he is the key figure in the story of the Queen Esther and the Persian king Ahasuerus. Mordecai is a person of high moral integrity and loyalty to God, which is evident from his actions throughout the narrative. He is known for his wisdom and courage, and his faithfulness to God is a significant theme in the story. The character of Mordecai is a symbol of the power of faith and the importance of standing up against evil, even when it means risking one's life.

NAILING
Colossians 2:14: Nails the head of sinning. The metaphor of nailing to a nail signifies the victory of faith over sin. It is a powerful reminder of the ultimate sacrifice of Christ and the redemption he brings to humanity. Nailing is an act of surrendering to the will of God and allowing oneself to be held by the power of faith.
P

PAGANS
1Co 5:1 that is not found even among p;
12:2 You know that when you were p,

PAIN → PAINS
Ge 3:16 in p you shall bring forth children, 1Pe 2:19 endure p while suffering unjustly.
Rev 21:4 and crying p will be no more,

PAINS → PAIN
Ro 8:22 creation has been groaning in labor p
1Th 5:3 as labor p come upon a pregnant

PALM → PALMS
Jn 12:13 So they took branches of p tree
Rev 7:9 robed in white, with p branches in

PALMS → PALM
 Isa 49:16 I have inscribed you on the p of my

PANGS
Ge 3:16 increase your p in childbearing;
Mk 13:8 but the beginning of the birth p,
Rev 12:2 and was crying out in birth p,

PARABLE → PARABLES
Ps 119:126 I will open my mouth in a p;
Mt 13:18 "Hear then the p of the sower.

PARABLES → PARABLE; SEE ALSO JESUS: PARABLES
Mt 13:35 I will open my mouth to speak in p;
Sir 39:2 penetrates the subtleties of p;

PARADISE
Lk 23:43 today you will be with me in R 2Co 12:4 was caught up into p and heard
Rev 2:7 tree of life that is in the p of God.
2Es 8:52 for you that p is opened,

PARALYTIC → PARALYZED
Mt 9:2 saw their faith, he said to the p,

PARALYZED → PARALYTIC
Jn 5:3 many invalids—blind, lame, and p.
Ac 8:7 who were p or lame were cured.

PARCHMENTS* → 2Ti 4:13 also the books,

PAFAND
Ex 34:9 p our iniquity and our sin,

PARENT → PARENTS
Dt 8:5 that as a p disciplines a child
Eze 18:20 nor a p suffer for the iniquity of a

PARENTS → PARENT
Mal 4:6 turn the hearts of p to their children
Lk 11:2 show forth the p of his children,

PART → PARTAPART
1Co 13:9 for we know only in p, and we prophesy

PARTAKE → PARTICIPATE
1Co 10:17 for we all p of the one bread.

PARTIALITY
Dt 16:19 impartial justice; you must not show p;
Pr 24:23 p in judging is not good.
Ro 2:11 For God shows no p.
Jas 3:17 without a trace of p or hypocrisy.
Sir 35:15 and with him there is no p

PARTICIPANTS → PARTICIPATE
2Pe 1:4 may become p of the divine nature.

PARTICIPATE* → PARTICIPANTS
1Ti 5:22 and do not p in the sins of others;
2Jn 1:11 for to welcome is to p in the evil

PARTNER → PARTNERS, PARTNERSHIP
Pr 2:17 who forsakes the p of her youth 1Co 7:15 But if the unbelieving p separates,

PARTNERS → PARTNER
1Co 10:20 not want you to be p with demons.
Heb 3:1 holy p in a heavenly calling,

PARTNERSHIP → PARTNER
2Co 6:14 p is there between righteousness

PASHHUAR
Priest; opponent of Jeremiah (Jer 20:1-6).

PASS → PAssed, PASSing
Ex 12:12 when I see the blood, I will p over 33:22 with my hand until I have p by;
2Co 5:17 everything old has p away;
1Jn 3:1 that we have p from death to life
Rev 21:4 for the first things have p away.

PASSING → PASS
1Co 7:31 present form of this world is p away
1Jn 2:17 the world and its desire are p away,

PASSIONS
Gal 5:24 have crucified the flesh with its p
2Ti 2:22 Shun youthful p and pursue

PASSOVER
Ex 12:11 it is the p of the Lord.
Dt 16:1 the month of Abib by keeping the p
Mt 26:12 when the Lamb is sacrificed,

PASTORS*
Eph 4:11 evangelists, some p and teachers,

PASTURE → PASTURES
Ps 100:3 his people, and the sheep of his p.
Jr 50:7 the Lord, the true, the p,

PASTURES → PASTURE
Ps 23:2 he makes me lie down in p green;

PATH → PATHS
Ps 16:11 You show me the p of life.

PATHS → PATH
Ps 119:105 lamp to my feet and a light to my p.
Mt 13:4 he sowed, some seeds fell on the p,

PATIENCE → PATIENT
Mic 2:7 Is the Lord’s p exhausted?
Ro 2:4 his kindness and forbearance and p?
Gal 5:22 fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, p, 2Pe 3:15 regard the p of our Lord as salvation

PATIENT → PATIENCE
Lk 8:15 and bear fruit with its endurance.

PATRIARCHS
Ro 1:4 in p and will make straight your p.
Mt 3:3 of the Lord, make his p straight,”

PATTERN
Ex 25:40 make them according to the p for 5:8 make everything according to the p

PAUL = SAUL
Also called Saul (Ac 13:9). Pharisae from Tarsus (Ac 9:11; Php 3:6). Apostle (Gal 1:1). At stoning of Stephen (Ac 8:1). Persecuted Church (Ac 9:1-2; Gal
1:13). Vision of Jesus to road to Damascus (Ac 9:4-9; 26:12-18). In Arabia (Gal 1:17). Preached in Damascus; escaped death through the wall in a basket (Ac 9:19-25). In Jerusalem; back to Tarsus (Ac 9:26-30).
Brought to Antioch by Barnabas (Ac 11:12-26).
First missionary journey to Cyprus and Galatia (Ac 13-14). Stoned at Lystra (Ac 14:20-26). At Jerusalem council (Ac 15). Split with Barnabas over Mark (Ac 15:36-41).
Second missionary journey with Silas (Ac 16:20).
Called to Macedonia (Ac 16:6-10). Freed from prison Speech in Athens (Ac 17:16-33). In Corinth (Ac 18).
In Ephesus (Ac 19). Return to Jerusalem (Ac 20).
Farewell to Ephesian elders (Ac 20:17-38). Arrival Sent to Caesarea (Ac 23:12-35). Trial before Felix (Ac Arrival in Rome (Ac 28).

PAVEMENT
Ex 24:10 his feet there was something like a p
19:13 bench at a place called The Stone P.

OTHERS—Pavement

CONCORDANCE | 2365
SACRIFICE—SCRIPTURES

SACRIFICE • SACRIFICED, SACRIFICES
Ex 12:27 “It is the passover to the Lord, Lev 3:1 if the offering is a s of well-being, 1Sa 15:22 Surety, to obey is better than s, Ps 40:6 s and offering you do not desire, Pr 15:4 s of the wicked is an abomination Da 9:27 he shall make s and offering cease; Hos 6:6 For I desire steadfast love and not s, Mt 9:13 this means, ‘I desire mercy, not s.’ Ro 3:25 put forward as a s of atonement Php 4:1 a s acceptable and pleasing to God, Heb 13:15 let us continually offer a s of praise 1Jn 2:2 and he is the atoning for our sins,

SACRIFICED • SACRIFICE
1Co 5:7 our paschal lamb, Christ, has been s. 1Co 12:4 varieties of gift s, but the s Spirit; 1Pe 3:21 s and glory to our God, Bar 4:29 everlasting joy with your s.

SAFE • SAFETY
Mt 16:6 the feast of the Pharisees and s.” 1Co 12:18 s, who say there is no resurrection, 2Ki 17:6 the king of Assyria captured s.

SAFE TO • SAFE
Dt 12:10 around so that you live in, Eze 4:28 they shall live in, 1Co 12:4 you are the s of the earth; 2Co 12:7 to be a s to which God can call you.

SAINTS
Ps 31:13 Love the Lord, you all his s. Ro 8:37 the Spirit intercedes for the s 1Co 6:2 s that the s judge the world? Eph 4:12 equip the s for the work of ministry, Rev 5:9 by your blood you ransomed for God s

SALT
Ge 19:26 back, and she became a pillar of s. Mt 5:13 “You are the s of the earth; 1Pe 2:9 all s are melted like wax, and come to nothing.

SALVATION • SAVED
Ex 15:2 and he has become my s; Ps 27:1 The Lord is my light and my s; 51:12 Restore to me the joy of your s, Isa 12:3 draw water from the wells of s. Ps 57:2 brings good news, who announces s; Ps 74:2 save, now is the day of s! Phl 2:12 work out your own s with fear; Heb 2:3 escape if we neglect so great a s?

SANDALS
Ex 3:5 Remove the s from your feet, Mt 3:11 I am not worthy to carry his s,

SAMARIA • SAMARITAN
1Ki 16:24 and called the city that he built, 2Ki 17:6 the king of Assyria captured s. 1Ch 21:1 the s and glory to our God, Bar 4:29 everlasting joy with your s.

SAMARITAN
Lv 10:33 But a s while traveling came near 1Jn 4:7 A s woman came to draw water, SAME
Ro 10:12 the s Lord is God of all 1Co 12:4 varieties of gifts, but the s Spirit; Heb 13:8 Jesus Christ is the s yesterday and

SAMSON*

SALVATION • SAVED
Ps 54:1 s, me, O God, by your name, Isa 59:1 Loeb’s hand is not too short to s. Jer 15:20 for I am with you to s you 1Sm 1:21 he will give his people from their sins.”

SACRED • SACRIFICED
Ps 14:1 the fear of the Lord is s, Ps 15:4 the fear of the Lord is s, Ps 16:11 the fear of the Lord is s, Ps 19:1 the fear of the Lord is s, Ps 31:18 the fear of the Lord is a shield,

SAYER • SAYS
Ex 3:5 I am the God of your father, s to Moses 1Sa 13:14 this is the word of the Lord, s. Ps 99:2 in the time of Jacob, s.

SAUCED • SAUCED
Mt 1:18 “And Mary had conceived s, 2Ti 2:13 knowledge of our Lord and s Jesus

SAUCED • SAVED
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAW • SAW
Ge 49:10 The s shall not depart from Judah, Nu 24:17 and a s shall rise out of Israel; He 2:8 For by grace you have been s

SAW • SAW
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAW • SAW
Ge 49:10 The s shall not depart from Judah, Nu 24:17 and a s shall rise out of Israel; He 2:8 For by grace you have been s

SAW • SAW
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAW • SAW
Ge 49:10 The s shall not depart from Judah, Nu 24:17 and a s shall rise out of Israel; He 2:8 For by grace you have been s

SAW • SAW
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAW • SAW
Ge 49:10 The s shall not depart from Judah, Nu 24:17 and a s shall rise out of Israel; He 2:8 For by grace you have been s

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.

SAY • SAYS
Ps 106:21 They forgot God, their s, Isa 49:26 know that I am the Lord your s, Hos 13:4 and besides me there is no s.
SEEDS → SEED
Mt 13:8 Other s fell on good soil
Mr 4:31 the smallest of all the s on earth;

SEEK 1Ch 28:9 If you s him, he will be found by Ps 3:4 When those who the Lo hear no good 119:10 With my whole heart I s you;
Isa 55:4 The Lohe who may be found, 65:1 found by those who did not me.
Lk 19:10 came s out and to save
Nah 1:16 that he rewards those who s him.
Sir 2:16 who fear the Lord s to please him,

SEEMS
Pr 16:25 there is a way that s to be right, Hab 2:12 discipline always painful rather

SEE → SEE
Jn 1:18 No one has ever s God.
149 Whoever has s has s the Father.
2Pe 2:20 Blessed are those who have not s
1Pe 1:8 you have not s him; you love him;

SELF-CONTROL → SELF-CONTROL
1Co 7:5 tempt you because of your lack of s.
2Pe 1:6 with s, and s with endurance,

SELF-CONTROL → SELF-CONTROL
Tit 1:8 prudent, upright, devout, and s.
2Ti 2:15 good managers

SELFISH → SELFISHNESS
Ps 119:136 to your decrees, and not s gain.
Psl 1:17 proclaim Christ out of s ambition,
Jas 3:14 if you have bitter envy and s

SELFISHNESS → SELFISH
2Co 12:20 anger, s, slander, gossip, conceit, SELL
Pr 23:23 Buy truth, and do not s it;
Mt 10:21 s what you own, and give the money

SEND → SEND
Ex 3:32 I will s an angel before you,
Isa 6:8 And I said, "Here am I; s me!"
Jn 12:40 God did not s the Son into the world
14:26 whom the Father will s in my name,

Sennachuriah
Assyrian king; siege of Jerusalem was overthrown by the Lo following prayer of Hezekiah and Isaiah 1Ki 18:39; 2Ch 32:1; Isa 36:37.

SEND → SEND
Ex 3:14 "I am has s to you."";
Lk 10:16 refuses me rejects the one who s me.
Jn 17:18 as you s me into the world,
20:21 the Father has s me, so I send you.",
1Jn 4:10 and his Son to be the atoning

SEPARATE → SEPARATE
Mt 19:6 joined together, let no one s;
Ro 8:35 will s us from the love of Christ?
1Co 7:10 wife should not be from her husband

SEPARATED → SEPARATE
Lk 1:96 joined together, let no one s,
Rom 8:35 will s us from sinner's, and exalted above

SERPENT → SERPENTS
Ge 3:1 the s was more crafty than any other Nu 21:9 Moses made a s of bronze, 2Co 11:3 the s deceived Eve by her cunning,
Rev 20:2 He seized the dragon, that ancient s,

SERPENTS → SERPENT
Mt 10:16 wise as s and innocent as doves.

SERVAN'T → SERVANT
Ct 17:23 as he had foretold through all his s,
Jn 15:15 I do not call you s any longer,
1Pe 2:21 As of s, live as free people,
Rom 7:3 marked the s of our God with a seal

SERVE
Jos 24:15 my household, we will s the Lo.
Isa 12:20 but s the Lo with all your heart;
Mt 6:24 You cannot s God and wealth.
Mt 10:45 Son of Man came not to be served but to s, 1Pe 4:10 s one another with whatever gift

SETH
Ge 4:25 she bore a son and named him s,

SETTLE
Ge 26:2 s in the land that I shall show you.
Nu 33:53 possession of the land and s it,

SEVEN → SEVEN
Ge 7:2 with you s pairs of all clean animals,
Ex 25:37 You shall make the s lamps for it;
Jos 6:4 march around the city s times,
Da 9:25 prince, there shall be s weeks;
Mt 18:22 "Not s times, but, I tell you, seventy-
Rev 11:12 turning I saw a golden lampstands, 12:13 a great red dragon, with s heads and 15:1 s angels with s, and

SEVEN → SEVEN
Ge 2:2 on the s day God finished the work
Ex 20:10 the s day is a sabbath to the Lo, but the s year you shall let it rest
Heb 4:4 God rested on the s day from all his

SEVENTY → SEVENTY-SEVEN
Ge 46:27 who came into Egypt were s.
2Ch 36:21 it kept sabbath, to fulfill s years.
Jer 25:12 Then after s years are completed,
Da 9:24 s weeks are decreed for your people

SEVENTY-SEVEN → SEVENTY
Mt 18:22 "Not seven times, but, I tell you, s

SEXUAL
1Co 10:8 not indulge in s immorality as some

SHADOW
2Ki 20:11 brought the s back the ten intervals,
Ps 17:8 hide me in the s of your wings,
9:11 who abide in the s of the Almighty,
Col 2:17 are only a s of what is to come,

SHADRACH → HANANIAH
Hebrew exiled to Babylon; name changed from Hananiah (Da 1:7-9).
Refused defilement by food (Da 1:8-20).
Refused to worship idol (Da 3:1-18);
Saved from furnace (Da 3:19-30).

SHALLUHM
King of Israel (2Ki 15:10-16).

SHALMANESER
King of Assyria; conquered and deported Israel (2Ki 17:3; 4:12; Tob 12).

SHAME → ASHAMED, SHAMEFUL
Ps 69:6 who hope in you be put to s because Eze 39:26 They shall forget their s, and all Da 12:2 some to s and everlasting contempt.
1Co 1:27 foolish in the world to s the wise,
Heb 12:2 endured the cross, disregarding its shame, and ran the race set out for us.
Jn 2:28 be put to a test before him at his coming.

SHAMEFUL = SHAME
2Co 4:2 We have renounced the ș things things.
Eph 5:12 For it is even to mention

SHAMGAR* Judge; killed 600 Philistines (Jud 3:31; 5:6).

SHARE
Nu 18:20 I am your s and your possession
Lk 3:11 "Whoever has two coats must share
Ro 15:37 if for the Gentiles have come to s
Col 1:12 to s in the inheritance of the saints
Heb 12:10 in order that we may s his holiness.
Jude 1:13 to you about the salvation we s

SHARP = SHARPS, SHARPEN
Pr 5:4 s a two-edged sword.
Rev 19:15 a sword with which to strike down

SHARPENS = SHARPEN
Ps 27:17 Iron s, and one person s

SHARPEN = SHARPEN
Heb 4:21 s than any two-edged sword,

SHEBA
1. Benjamite; rebelled against David (2Sa 20).
2. Queen of Sheba (1Ki 10; 2Ch 9; Mt 12:42; Lk 11:31).

SHECHEM
1. Raped Jacob’s daughter Dinah; killed (Ge 34).
2. City where Joshua renewed the covenant (Jos 24).

SHEED = BLOODSHED, SHEDDING
Ge 9:4 shall that his blood be s;
Pr 15:16 and hands that a innocent blood,
Mt 23:35 may come all the righteous s
Rev 16:6 s of blood of saints and prophets,

SHEDDING = SHED
Heb 9:22 without the s of blood there is no
12:4 resisted to the point of your s.

SHEEP
1Ki 22:17 like s that have no shepherd;
Ps 100:3 people, and the s of his pasture.
Isa 53:5 All we like have gone astray;
Eze 34:15 myself will be the shepherd of my s;
Zec 13:7 shepherd, that the s may be scattered;
Mt 10:16 as a shepherd without a shepherd.
Lk 15:4 a hundred and losing one of them;
Jn 10:7 I am the gate for the s.
10:15 And I lay down my life for the s.
Heb 12:10 the great shepherd of the s,
1Pe 2:25 for you were going astray like s,

SHELTER
Ps 91:1 who live in the s of the Most High,
Rev 7:15 is seated on the throne will s them.

SHEM
Son of Noah (Ge 5:32; 6:10). Blessed (Ge 9:26).
Descendants (Ge 10:21-31; 11:10-32; Lk 3:36).

SHEOL
Nu 16:30 and they go down alive into s,
Job 26:6 S is naked before God,
Ps 139:8 if I make my bed in s, you are there.
Isa 28:15 and with s we have an agreement;
Hos 11:14 O, s is your destruction?

SHEPHERD = SHEPHERDS
2Sa 17:7 whom I commanded to s my people
Ps 23:1 The Loho is my s, I shall not want.
Ec 12:11 sayings that are given by one s.
Isa 40:11 He will feed his flock like a s, Mt 2:6 ruler who is to s my people Israel,"
Lk 10:11 I am the good s.

SHEET = SHEETS
Eze 34:2 prophesy against the s of Israel:
Lk 2:8 there were s living in the fields,

SHIELD
Ge 15:1 I am your s; your reward shall be Ps 7:10 God is my s, who saves the upright
Eph 6:16 With all of these, take the s of faith,

SHILOH
1Sa 1:14 to the house of the Loho at s.

SHIMEI
Curled David (2Sa 16:5-14); spared (2Sa 19:16-23). Killed by Solomon (1K 2:8-9; 26-46).

SHINES = SHINE, SHINING
Nu 6:25 The Loho makes his face to s upon you,
Isa 60:1 s; for your light has come,
Da 12:3 Those who are wise shall be like the Mt 5:16 let your light s before others,
Eph 5:14 the dead, and Christ will s on you.

SHOES
Ps 34:6 put on the s as a nursing child;
Heb 13:3 to you to help us on our,

SHOES = SHOE
Lk 20:40 were silent, the stones would s out.

SHUT = SHOW, SHOWN
Ge 12:1 to the land that I will s you.
Ex 3:18 Moses said, "S me your glory,
Ps 8:5 s as a two-edged sword.
Jn 10:18 and I will lay down my life for the s.
Heb 12:10 the great shepherd of the s,
1Pe 2:25 for you were going astray like s,

SICK = SICKNESS
Mt 18:6 and cured all who were s.
Jas 5:14 Are any among you s?

SICKNESS = SICK
Mt 18:6 and cured all who were s.
Rev 7:4 I will you what must take place

SIDE = ASIDE
Ps 91:7 A thousand may fall at your s,
Jn 13:44 soldiers pierced his s with a spear,

SHAMEFUL—SIN
SIFT
Isa 10:28 to s the nations with the sieve of Lk 22:31 Satan has demanded to s all of you.

SIGHT = SEE
Ge 6:11 the earth was corrupt in God’s s,
Ps 72:14 and precious is their blood in his s.
Mt 11:5 blind receive their s, the lame walk,
2Co 5:7 for we walk by faith, not by s.
1Pe 3:4 which is very precious in God’s s.

SIGN = SIGNS
Ge 9:12 the s of the covenant that I make 11:12 as a of the covenant between me
Isa 7:14 the Lord himself will give you a s.
Mt 24:3 the s of your coming and of the end
Lk 12:8 does this generation ask for a s?

SIGNS = SIGN
Ge 1:14 be for a and for seasons and for days
Ex 7:3 I will multiply my s and wonders in Da 6:27 he works s and wonders in heaven
Mt 16:3 cannot interpret the s of the times.
Jn 20:30 Jesus did many other s in 1Co 1:22 Jews demand s and Greeks desire
Rev 16:14 demonic spirits, performing s.

SILAS
Prophet (Ac 15:22-23); co-worker with Paul on second missionary journey (Ac 16:18-21; Co 1:7). Co-writer with Paul (1Th 1:1; 2Th 1:1; Peter 1:1).

SILENT
Isa 53:7 a sheep that before its shearers is s, Zep 1:7 Be s before the Lord God!
Mk 14:61 But he was s and did not answer.
1Co 14:34 women should be s in the churches.

SILVER
Ps 66:10 you have tried us as s is tried.
Ps 8:10 Take my instruction instead of s, Isa 48:10 I have refined you, but not like s.
Zec 13:9 refine them as one refines s,
Mt 26:15 They paid him thirty pieces of s.
Ac 3:6 But Peter said, “I have no s or gold, 1Co 3:12 on the foundation with gold, s,

SIMEON = SIMON
2. Godly Jew who blessed the infant Jesus (2Co 8:15-16).
3. See Peter (Ac 15:14; 2Pe 1:1).

SIMON = NPETER, SIMON
1. See Peter.
2. Apostle; the Zealot (Mt 10:44; Mk 3:18; Lk 6:15; Ac 1:13).

SIMPLE
Ps 19:7 are sure, making wise the s.
Pr 2:22 O s ones, will you love being s?
14:15 The s believe everything,

SIN = SINFUL, SINNER, SINNER, SINNS
Ge 4:7 not do well, is lurking at the door;
Ex 32:32 if you will only forgive their s—
Nu 32:23 and be sure your s will find you out.
1Ki 8:46 "If they s against you—
2Ch 7:14 forgive their s and heal their land.
Ps 119:11 so that I may not s against you.
Isa 5:12 he yet bore the s of many,
Mt 5:29 if your right eye causes you to s,
Jn 1:12 who takes away the s of the world?
Ro 6:23 For the wages of s is death,
2Co 5:21 made him to be s who knew no s,
Heb 4:15 tested as we are, yet s;
1Jn 1:7 Jesus his Son cleanses us from all s, Tob 12:10 but those who commit s.
3:16 loved the world that he gave his only Son, 4:21 lives in us, and we in him. This is true life, 5:27 you are in the light. 6:19 he will come to you; 7:20 the water of life flows from him. 8:31 I do it that you may know me, 9:20 you are my friends. 10:12 but the Father lives forever, 11:19 do not forget what I said to you, 12:15 you are those who follow me. 13:31 you will ask me; 14:17 for I have not said to you, 15:20 do not let your hearts be troubled. 16:11 I have said to you, 17:14 you are soldiers of Christ, 18:20 you are my friends, in whom I have 19:18 so I now declare to you. 20:21 he is the Vine, you are the branches; 21:12 he is coming again. 22:18 you were with me when I ate and drank, 23:19 for you will be sorry. 24:20 they will see people saying, 25:27 the kingdom of heaven has come. 26:24 this is what I mean. 27:30 the next day the crowd stands on the hill 28:16 to show the gospel to all nations. 31:6 have placed on you. 32:19 the Jews and the Gentiles, 33:20 as their lords and masters. 34:12 and his disciples, 35:30 the Lord's gift is in his hand. 36:12 he who has two coats, 37:10 I am with you, 38:8 you are not like that man. 39:17 and the Gentiles, 40:19 the story of the kingdom of God. 41:16 the Lord has shown me. 42:49 the young will rule. 43:1 I have come to send fire on the earth, 44:15 but he was of the breadth of the earth. 45:22 the Father, his Son, and the Holy Spirit, 46:11 at the command of the Son of man. 47:32 you will not be troubled. 48:18 has become a servant, 49:10 you are already doing to me. 50:14 I am the son of man, 51:8 be in me, and the Father will be in you. 52:30 I am the light of the world. 53:11 even the dead. 54:17 for the mustard seed is the smallest of 55:13 that you may know me, 56:3 have already done. 57:11 the heavens are on high. 58:17 have come to destroy the temple of God. 59:40 that your sons may eat. 60:18 he who is at hand. 61:16 have not lost their confidence, 62:22 you are all sons of God in Christ Jesus. 63:19 I will not reject him. 64:29 he had spoken with his disciples. 65:14 and I am with you, 66:24 the true vine. 67:32 I am with you and 69:7 I will not leave you. 70:25 you have the words of eternal life. 71:15 the servant. 72:14 as I asked you to do. 73:16 you have not even the least 74:11 having been brought together in the name 75:21 you must be born again. 76:13 on the day that I shall come to judge the world. 77:20 the power of God. 78:31 what I have said. 79:30 I am the Lord, and there is no other. 80:6 this is my commandment, 81:8 the Lord and his messenger. 82:49 I have loved you, as the Father loved me, 83:28 and your salvation will come, 84:25 you will rejoice. 85:23 I am he. 86:13 you have not come to me, 87:11 I have these words you are servants of 88:12 this is the will of the Father. 89:10 in the spirit of meekness. 90:8 and you will be my mother. 91:8 I have heard your prayer. 92:6 that your enemies may be your servants. 93:16 to the people of Israel. 94:14 a cloud of witnesses. 95:3 I will come again to receive you. 96:13 the word of God is living and 97:24 I will give them rest. 98:9 you will be my sons and daughters, 99:9 with your enemies. 100:20 and his hammer shall break it in pieces. 101:15 I am with you. 102:14 I will give them. 103:9 I have forgiven them. 104:17 the heavens, and the earth, and all their inhabitants, 105:10 the earth. 106:19 the Lord has been good to me. 107:14 I will lead them. 108:13 and who fear my name, 109:22 the Lord has done all this, 110:1 the Lord, 111:10 the earth and all its fullness, 112:14 the Lord is king. 113:17 the Lord has sworn, 114:15 the Lord is strong. 115:16 I will not again be the same. 116:18 I have set the Lord always before me 117:12 I love the Lord, because he first loved me. 118:15 the Lord has promised, 119:19 and to you the light of salvation. 120:1 for your good. 121:1 in our God. 122:1 to him. 123:1 for the help of his people. 124:1 to the Lord. 125:1 to the Lord. 126:6 to the Lord. 127:8 the Lord bless you and keep you. 128:3 in the land of milk and honey. 129:16 to the Lord, 130:4 the Lord, 131:5 you will find rest. 132:5 to the house of Jacob. 133:1 to Jerusalem. 134:1 to Jerusalem. 135:1 to Jerusalem. 136:24 to Jerusalem. 137:8 to Jerusalem. 138:3 to Jerusalem. 139:14 to Jerusalem. 140:7 to Jerusalem. 141:10 to Jerusalem. 142:2 to Jerusalem. 143:14 to Jerusalem. 144:5 to Jerusalem. 145:4 to Jerusalem. 146:4 to Jerusalem. 147:3 to Jerusalem. 148:10 to Jerusalem. 149:4 to Jerusalem. 150:4 to Jerusalem.
SYMPATHY—THINK

SYMPATHY + SYMPHIZE
Php 2:1 any compassion and s, 1Pe 3:8 all of you, have unity of spirit, s,

SYNAGOGUE + SYNAGOGUES
Lk 18:46 he went to the s on the sabbath day,
8:14 man named jairus, a leader of the s, Ac 18:26 he began to speak boldly in the s;

SYNAGOGUES + SYNAGOGUE
Mt 4:23 teaching in their s and proclaiming
Jn 18:20 always taught in s and in the temple,

T

TABERNACLE
Ex 25:9 concerning the pattern of the t
40:34 the glory of the LORD filled the t.
1Ch 6:48 for all of the service of the t of the house

TABI’THA” + SEE DORCAS

TABLE + TABLES
Ex 25:9 You shall make a t of acacia wood, Ps 3:5 t before me in the presence of my

TABLES + TABLE
Mk 11:15 overturned the t of the money changers

TABLET + TABLETS
Pr 3:3 write them on the t of your heart.

TABLETS + TABLET
Ex 31:18 made him a set of tablets, 2Co 3:3 not on

TAKE + TAKEN, TAKES
Dt 12:32 not to add to it t anything from Mt 11:29 my yoke upon you, and learn
 Mk 8:34 deny themselves and t up their cross

TAKEN + TAKE
Ecc 3:14 added to it, or anything t from it;
Heb 11:5 Enoch pleased the Lord and was t

TALES + TALE
Jn 1:25 and hid your t in the ground.

TAMAR
1. Wife of Judah’s sons Er and Onan (Ge 38:1-10).
Children by Judah (Ge 38:19-30; Mt 1:3).

TASTE + TASTED
Ps 36:8 O Lord see that the LORD is good;
Mt 16:17 not t death before they see the Son
Col 2:21 not handle, Do not t, Do not touch?

TASTED + TASTE
Heb 6:4 have t the heavenly gift,
1Pe 2:3 you have t that the Lord is good.

TAUGHT + TEACH
Isa 40:14 Who t knowledge,
Jn 6:45 ‘And they all be t by God.’

TAKE + TAXES
Mt 11:19 a friend of t collectors and sinners!
Lk 18:10 Pharisee and the other a t collector.

TAXES + TAX
Mt 22:17 is it lawful to pay t the emperor,
Ro 13:17 to whom t are due,

TEACH + TAUGHT, TEACHER, TEACHERS, TEACHING
Dt 6:1 to t you to observe in the land that

Ps 90:12 So t us to count our days that we Jr 31:14 No longer shall they t one another,
Col 3:16 t admonish one another in all 1Ti 2:12 I permit no woman to t
1Jn 2:27 so you do not need anyone to t you.

TEACHER + TEACH
Ecc 1:1 words of the t, the son of David,
Mt 10:24 “A disciple is not above the t,
Jn 1:18 “Rabbi” (which translated means T)
1Ti 3:2 respectable, hospitable, an apt t,

TEACHERS + TEACH
Ps 119:99 more understanding than all my t, 1Co 12:28 second prophets, third t;
Eph 4:11 evangelists, some pastors and t,
Jas 3:1 Not many of you should become t,

TEACHING + TEACH
Mt 11:27 t a new b— with authority!
Tit 1:11 t for sentinal gain what is it not right
2Jn 1:9 who does not abide in the t of Christ,

TEAR + TORN
Mk 2:21 from the old, and a worse t is made.
Rev 7:17 God will wipe away every t from

TEETH + TOOTH
Mt 8:12 will be weeping and gnashing of t.

TEKEL
Da 5:27 t, you have been weighed on the scales

TEMPERATE
1Ti 3:2 married only once, t, sensible,
Tit 2:2 Tell the older men to be t, serious,

TEMPLE
1Sa 3:3 Samuel was lying down in the t of 2Ch 2:12 who will build a t of stones
1Ch 16:8 give t to the alarm
1Co 3:16 you are God’s t and God’s Spirit
2Co 6:16 God is the house of the Lord, t, Rev 21:22 its the t of the Lord God the Almighty and 1Mc 4:48 sanctuary and the interior of the t,

TEMPATION * + TEMPTED, TEMPTER
Mt 13:51 Listen, I will t you a mystery!

TEMPORATE
1Ti 2:3 marries only once, t, sensible,
Tit 2:2 Tell the older men to be t, serious,

THANK + THANKS
2Ch 29:31 bring sacrifices and t offerings to Ps 119:1 no matter how many t you offer,
Sir 35:4 gives alms sacrifices a t offering.

THANKS + THANK
1Ch 16:8 give t to the Lord, call on his name,
Ps 107:1 O give t to the Lord, for he is good;
Ro 1:11 not honor him as God or give t to 1Co 10:17 and when he had given t,
2Co 9:15 T be to God for his indescribable Rev 4:9 give glory and honor and t to

THANKSGIVING + THANK
Lev 7:12 if you offer it t,
Ps 50:14 Offer to God a sacrifice of t,
Rev 7:12 glories and wisdom and t honor

THEFT + THEFT
Mt 15:19 fornication, t, false witness, slander.

THEFTS + THIEF
Rev 9:21 or their fornication or their t.

THIEVES + THIEF
Mt 6:19 and where t break in and steal;
Eph 4:28 T must give it up;

THINK + THINKING, THOUGHT, THOUGHTS
Ro 12:3 not to t yourself more highly than 1Co 10:12 So if you t are standing,
TREAD—UNDERSTANDING

TREAD → TREADING
Mic 7:19 he will make our iniquities under foot.
Rev 19:15 he will gather the wine press of his TREADING → TREAD
Dt 25:4 not muzzle an ox while it is at 1Co 9:9 not muzzle an ox while it is at TREASURE → TREASURES
Ps 119:11 I prize your word in my heart, Mt 6:31 where your heart is, there your 2Co 4:7 But we have this to in clay jars,
2Ti 1:11 Guard the good entrust to you,
TREASURES → TREASURE
Col 2:3 are hidden all the t of wisdom

TREE → TREES
Ge 3:24 to guard the way to the t of life.
Dt 21:23 hung on it under God’s curse.
Mk 12:33 for the t is known by its fruit.
Ac 5:30 had killing by hanging him on a t.
Ro 11:24 grafted back into their own olive t.
Rev 22:2 the t of life with its twelve kinds

TREMBLE → TREMBLED, TREMBLING
Ps 114:7 T, O earth, at the presence of the t
Hab 3:6 he looked and made the nations t.

TREMBLE → TREMBLE
Ex 20:18 they were afraid and t and stood at TREMBLING → TREMBLE
Ps 2:21 Serve the t with fear, with t
Php 2:12 your own salvation with fear and t;

TRESPASS → TRESPASSES
Ro 5:15 But the free gift is not like the t.
TRESPASSES → TRESPASS
Mt 6:14 For if you forgive others their t, they 1Co 5:19 not counting their against them, the

TRIAL → TRIALS
Lk 11:14 do not bring up to the time of t.
2Pe 2:9 knows how to rescue the godly from t,
Rev 3:10 I will keep you from the hour of t

TRIALS → TRIAL
Jas 1:2 whenever you face t of any kind, the 1Pe 1:6 you have had to suffer various t,

TRIBE → TRIBES
Nu 1:4 A man from each t shall be with you
Ps 78:68 but he chose the of Judah,
Rev 5:5 See, the Lion of the t of Judah,

TRIBES → TRIBE
Ge 49:28 All these are the twelve t of Israel,
Ex 24:4 to the twelve t of Israel.
Mt 19:28 judging the twelve t of Israel.
Rev 21:12 inscribed the names of the twelve t
Rev 19:15 he will t into t procession,

TRIUMPHAL → TRIUMPHAL, TRIUMPHS
Ps 112:8 they will look in on their foes.
Pr 28:12 the righteous t, there is great glory,

TRIUMPHAL→ TRIUMPH
2Co 2:14 Christ always us in it procession;

TRIUMPHS → TRIUMPH
Jas 2:33 mercy t over judgment.

TROUBLE → TROUBLED
Job 14:1 few of days and full of t,
Ps 9:9 a stronghold in times of t.

Pr 11:8 The righteous are delivered from t,
Isa 33:2 our salvation in the time of t.
Mt 6:34 Today it is enough for today.
Sir 5:110 do not forsake me in the days of t,

TROUBLED → TROUBLE
Jn 14:1 “Do not let your hearts t be,

TRUE → TRUTH
Ps 119:151 and all your commandments are t.
Jn 1:19 The light which enlightens
21:24 and we know that his testimony is t.
Ro 3:4 everyone is a liar, let God be proved t, 1Jn 5:20 He is the God and eternal life.
Rev 3:14 The Amen, the faithful and t witness,
19:11 its rider is called Faithful and T,
22:6 “These words are trustworthy and t,

TRUMPET → TRUMPETS
Ex 19:16 a blast of t to loud that all the Joel 1:15 Blow the t on Zion; sanctify a fast;
1Co 15:55 twinking of an eye, at the last t.
1Th 4:16 and with the sound of God’s t,

TRUMPETS → TRUMPET
Nu 10:2 Make two t, you shall make
Rev 8:2 and seven t were given to them.

TRUST → ENTRUST, ENTRUSTED, TRUSTED, TRUSTEES, TRUSTWORTHY
Ps 910 know your name put their t in you, 37:3 T in the Lord, and do good;
119:42 for T in your word.
Pr 3:5 T in the Lord with all your heart,
Isa 12:2 Surely God is my salvation; I will t,
Jer 17:7 Blessed are those who t in the Lord,
Heb 2:13 And again, “I will put my t in him.”
Sir 2:6 T in him, and he will help you;

TRUSTED → TRUST
Ps 22:4 they t, and you delivered them.
Da 3:28 delivered his servants who t in him.
Sus 1:35 for her heart t in the Lord.

TRUSTS → TRUST
Ps 86:2 save your servant who t in you.
Mt 27:43 He t in God; let God deliver him

TRUSTWORTHY → TRUST
Ps 111:7 and just; all his precepts are t.
Rev 22:6 “These words are true and t, 1Mc 14:41 until a prophet should arise,

TRUTH → TRUE
Ps 52:5 Lead me in your t, and teach me, 119:142 and your law is the t.
Pr 23:23 Buy t, and do not sell it;
Jn 1:17 grace and truth came through Jesus Christ.
2Co 1:23 worship the father in spirit and t,
8:32 and the t will make you free.”
1Co 1:5 “I am the way, and the t, and the life.
Eph 1:17 Then the Spirit of t,
Eph 4:15 But speaking the t in love,
2Ti 2:15 rightly explaining the word of t.
Tob 3:2 all your ways are mercy and t;

TUNIC
Lk 9:3 nor money—not even an extra t.
Jn 19:23 t was seamless, woven in one piece

TURN → TURNED
Ex 32:12 T from your fierce wrath;
Jos 1:7 do not t from it to the right hand or Isa 61:10 and t and be healed.”
45:22 T to me and be saved,
Mal 4:6 He will the hearts of parents to their Lk 1:17 the hearts of parents to their children

TURNED → TURN
Dt 23:5 your God t the curse into a blessing
Isa 5:17 we have silt to our own way.
Ro 3:12 all have t aside, together they have

TWELVE
Ge 49:28 All these are the t of tribes of Israel,
Ex 24:4 the mountain, and set up pillars, Jos 4:3 Take t stones from here out of the Mt 10:1 Jesus summoned his t disciples
Lk 9:17 t of broken pieces,
Rev 12:11 inscribed the names of the t tribes
22:2 tree of life with its kinds of fruit,

TWINKLING*
1Co 15:52 in the t of an eye, at the last trumpet

TWO → TWICE, TWO-EDGED
Ge 1:16 God made the t great lights—
6:19 bring t of every kind into the ark,
Ex 31:18 the t tablets of the covenant,
Dt 17:6 of t or three witnesses the death
Mt 6:24 “No one can serve t masters;
19:5 and the t shall become one flesh?

TWO-EDGED → TWO
Heb 4:12 sharper than any t sword,
Rev 1:16 his mouth came a sharp, t sword,

TYRE
Lk 5:1 King Hiram of T sent his servants to Eze 28:12 a lamentation over the king of T,
Mt 11:22 be more tolerable for T and Sidon

UNBELIEVE → UNBELIEVER, UNBELIEVERS
Mt 6:6 And he was amazed at their u,
9:24 cried out, “I believe, help my u!”
Ro 11:20 were broken off because of their u, 1Ti 1:13 because I had acted ignorantly in u,

UNBELIEVER → UNBELIEF
1Co 10:27 If an u invites you to a meal and 2Co 6:15 does a believer share with u?

UNBELIEVERS → UNBELIEF
2Co 6:14 Do not be mismatched with u.
2Es 15:4 For all shall die in their u.

UNCHASTITY*
Mt 5:32 except on the ground of u, 19:9 divorces his wife, except for u,

UNCIRCUMCISED → UNCIRCUMCISION
Ex 12:48 But no u person shall eat of it;
Ac 7:51 people, u in heart and ears,
Ro 4:11 he had by faith while he was still u.
Col 3:11 circumcised and u, barbarian,
1Mc 1:48 and to leave their u u.

UNCIRCUMCISION → UNCIRCUMCISED
1Co 7:19 Circumcision is nothing, and u is Gal 5:6 neither circumcision nor u counts

UNCLEAN → UNCLEANNESS
Lev 5:2 when any of you touch any u thing
Isa 52:11 Touch no u thing;
Mk 3:11 Whenever u spirits saw him,
Rev 21:27 But nothing u will enter it,

UNDER
Ps 8:6 you have put all things u their feet,
Ac 4:12 for there is no other name u heaven
Ro 6:14 since you are not a law but u grace.
Eph 2:22 And he has put all things u his feet

UNDERSTAND → UNDERSTANDING
Job 42:3 I have uttered what I did not u,
Pr 2:5 then you will u the fear of the u
Hos 14:9 Those who u is not wise these things;
Mt 13:15 they u with their heart and t,
Lk 24:45 opened their minds to u scriptures,
Ac 8:30 “Do u what you are reading?”
Eph 5:17 but u what the will of the Lord is.

UNDERSTANDING → UNDERSTAND
Ex 36:1 has given skill and u to know how Gal 5: 13 only do not 2Ti 2: 20 for special
1Jn 1: 9 and cleanse us from all Ro 3: 31 On the contrary, we uzziah /arrow.right =azariah Eph 4: 29 but only what is uriah
Ge 15: 7 Lord who brought you from Ps 7: 10 God is my shield, who saves the unrighteous /arrow.right unrighteous Mt 5: 45 rain on the righteous and on the Tit 3: 14 so that they may not be unproductive*
Ex 12: 17 shall observe the festival of unleavened unjust
Ps 133:1 when kindred live together in u
Eph 4: 23 to maintain the u of the Spirit in the UNJUST Ro 3: 5 That God is u to inflict wrath on us?
Heb 6: 10 For God is not u; he will UNLEAVENED Ex 12: 17 shall observe the festival of u bread, Mt 26: 17 first day of U Bread the disciples
UNPRODUCTIVE* 1Co 14:14 my spirit prays but my mind is u.
Tit 3: 14 so that they may not be u.
UNRIGHTEOUSNESS /arrow.right UNRIGHTEOUS Mt 5:45 rain on the righteous and on the u.
2Pe 2:9 u under punishment until the day
UNRIGHTEOUSNESS /arrow.right UNRIGHTEOUSNESS Ps 92:15 and there is no u in him.
1Jn 1:9 and cleanse us from all u.
UPHOLD Isa 42:1 my servant, whom I u, my chosen,
Ro 3:31 On the contrary, we u the law.
UPRIGHT Job 1:1 That man was blameless and u, Ps 7:10 God is my shield, who saves the u
Tit 1:8 a lover of goodness, prudent, u,
UR Ge 15:7 Loxo who brought you from U
URIAH Hittle husband of Bathsheba, killed (2Sa 11).
URIM Ex 28:30 of judgment you shall put the U
USE /arrow.right USEFUL Ex 20:7 not make wrongful u of the name of u, Gal 5:13 only do not u your freedom as an 2Ti 2:20 for special u, some for ordinary.
USEFUL /arrow.right USE Eph 4:29 but only what is u for building up, 2Ti 3:16 scripture is inspired by God and u UZZiah /arrow.right MAZARIAH Son of Amaziah; king of Judah also known as Azariah (2Ki 15:17; 1Ch 26:24; 2Ch 26). Struck with eproy because of pride (2Ch 26:16-23).
V
VAIN /arrow.right VANITY Lev 26:16 You shall sow your seed in v, Ps 2:1 and the peoples plot in v
Mt 15:9 in v do they worship me,
Php 2:15 that I did not run in v or labor in v.
VALLEY Ps 23:4 through the darkest v, I fear no evil;
 Isa 40:4 Every v shall be lifted up,
Joel 3:14 multitudes, in the v of decision!
Lk 3:5 Every v shall be lifted, and every VALUE Mt 13:46 on finding one pearl of great v,
Ro 3:1 Or what is the v of circumcision?
1Ti 4:8 while physical training is of some v,
VINCENT /arrow.right VAIN Ecc 1:2 v of vanities! All is v.
12:28 v of vanities, says the Teacher; all is v.
VASHHTI Persian queen replaced by Esther (Est 1-2; AdE 1-2).
VEIL Ex 34:33 he put a v on his face;
2Co 3:15 a v lies over their minds;
VENGEANCE /arrow.right AVENGGE, AVENGER, AVENGING Ps 94:1 O Loxo, you God of v, Isa 34:8 For the Loxo has a day of v on his adversaries VICTORY Pr 21:31 but the v belongs to the Loxo.
1Co 15:54 Death has been swallowed up in v."
1Jn 5:4 the v that conquers the world, our faith.
VINDICATED /arrow.right VINDICATED Ps 26:1 V me, O Loxo, for I have walked 135:14 For the Loxo will v his people,
VINDICATED /arrow.right VINDICATED JOB 13:18 I know that I shall be v.
Mt 11:19 Yet wisdom is v by her deeds."
1Ti 3:16 He was revealed in flesh, v in spirit,
VINE /arrow.right VINEYARD Ps 80:8 You brought a v out of Egypt;
Jer 2:21 Yet I planted you as a choice v, Jn 15:1 "I am the true v, and my Father is Rev 14:18 gather the clusters of the v of the VINEYARD /arrow.right VINE 1Ki 21:1 Naboth the jzezzrelite had a v in Isa 5:1 gave a v on a very fertile hill.
Mt 21:33 a landowner who planted a v.
VIOLENCE /arrow.right VIOLENT Ge 6:14 and the earth was filled with v.
 Isa 5:39 although he had done no v,
Hab 2:17 because of human bloodshed and v
VIOLENT /arrow.right VIOLENT 1Ti 3:3 not v but gentle, not quarrelsome, Tit 1:7 or addicted to wine or v or greedy
VIPERS Mt 23:33 You snakes, you brood of v!
Ro 3:13 venom of v is under their lips."
VIRGIN Jer 31:21 Return, O v Israel, return to these Mt 1:23 the v shall conceive and bear a son,
Lk 1:34 "How can this be, since I am a v?"
2Co 1:11 present you as a chaste v to Christ.
VISION /arrow.right VISIONS Isa 22:1 oracle concerning the valley of v.
Da 8:26 As for you, seal up the v
Ac 26:19 not disobedient to the heavenly v, VIONS /arrow.right VISION Nu 12:6 make myself known to them in v.
Eze 1:1 were opened, and I saw v of God.
 Da 1:17 Daniel also had insight into all v.
Joel 2:28 and your young men shall see v.
Ac 2:17 and your young men shall see v,
VOICE Isa 40:3 A v cries out: “In the wilderness
Jn 1:23 v of one crying out in the wilderness 10:3 and the sheep hear his v.
Heb 3:7 , "Today, if you hear his v,
Jn 18:20 Before making a v, prepare yourself
VOWS /arrow.right VOW Ps 22:25 my v I will pay before those who fear
W
WAGES Ro 6:23 For the w of sin is death,
WAIT /arrow.right WAITS Ps 27:14 w for the Loxo; be strong, La 3:26 should w quietly for the salvation of Hab 2:3 If it seems to tarry, w for it;
Ro 8:23 while we w for adoption,
1Th 1:10 to w for his Son from heaven,
Sir 2:7 fear the Loxo, w for his mercy;
WAITS /arrow.right WAIT Ps 130:6 my soul w for the Lord more than Ro 8:19 the creation w with eager longing WALKED /arrow.right WALK Ge 17:1 w before me, and be blameless.
Dt 10:12 to w in all his ways, to love him,
Ps 23:4 I w through the darkest valley, I fear no
Isa 2:5 let us w in the light of the Loxo!
40:31 they shall w and not faint.
Jer 6:16 w in it, and fi nd rest for your souls.
Jn 8:12 follows me w never in darkness
2Co 5:7 for we w by faith, not by sight.
Rev 2:14 The nations w by its light,
WALKED /arrow.right WALK Ge 5:24 Enoch w with God; then he was no
WALL Jos 6:20 shout, and the w fell down flat;
Ne 2:17 let us rebuild the w of Jerusalem,
Zec 2:5 I will be a w of fire all around it,
Eph 2:14 has broken down the dividing w,
WANT /arrow.right WANTING Ps 23:1 Loxo is my shepherd, I shall not w.
Php 3:10 I w to know Christ and the power WANTING /arrow.right WANT 2Pe 3:9 not w any to perish, but all to come to WAR /arrow.right WARRIORS, WARS Ecc 3:8 a time for w, and a time for peace.
Da 9:26 and to the end there shall be w.
Ro 7:23 in my members another law at w
Rev 10:11 righteousness he judges and makes w.
WARRIOR /arrow.right WAR Ex 15:3 Loxo is a w; the Loxo is his name.
WARS /arrow.right WAR Mt 24:6 you will hear of w and rumors of w; WASHED /arrow.right WASH Ps 51:7 w me, and I shall be whiter than snow.

CONCORDANCE | 2383
and began to w the disciples’ feet

WASHED → WASH

1Co 6: 61 you were w, you were sanctified,
2Pe 2: 22 sow is w only to wallow in the mud.

WATCH → WATCHES

Lk 2: 28 keeping w over their flock by night.
Heb 13: 17 they are keeping w over your souls.

WATER → WATERS

Ex 17: 1 no w for the people to drink.
Mal 3: 5 there was no w for the congregation;
Jer 2: 33 the fountain of living w.
Eze 36: 25 I will sprinkle clean w upon you,
Mt 6: 31 or ‘What will we w?

WEEPING → WEEP

Mt 5: 43 it is sown in w, it shall be w;
Ps 30: 5 W may linger for the night,
Da 9: 24 “Seventy w are decreed for your w.
Rev 21: 4 he will w with those who w.

WEST

Ps 103: 12 as far as the east is from the w, Isa 43: 5 and from the w of the sea,
Isa 40: 31 they shall run and not be w.
Mt 5: 36 cannot make one hair w;
Jer 2: 13 the fountain of living w.

WICKEDNESS → WICKED

Ge 6: 5 The Lord saw that the w of Ps 5: 17 wash me, and I shall be w than snow.
Isa 66: 23 they shall be w for ever;
Ps 8: 8 the Spirit helps us in our w;
Lk 22: 31 demanded to w all of you w,
Ps 30: 5 w who is righteous with the w;
Mt 12: 24 grain of w falls into the earth and dies,
Jn 12: 31 show you a still more excellent w;
Ex 19: 4 and how I bore you on eagles’ w.

WILDERNESS

Hos 14: 9 For the w of the Lord are right,
Ps 49: 6 those who trust in their w;
Ps 1: 6 Lord w over the way of the righteous,
Lk 2: 8 keeping w for the congregation;
Ex 3: 16 I am w in the midst of all these w;
Ecc 1: 13 to search out by w;

WISDOM → WISE

2Co 6: 7 the w of righteousness for the right
Wis 8: 12 wisdom is better than w of war,
Col 2: 3 whom are hidden all the treasures of w;
Pr 1: 20 w a good tree bears good w;
Rev 18: 7 I am no w over the way of the righteous;
Pr 18: 22 who finds a w finds a good thing,
Heb 4: 15 tested as we are, yet
Eph 2: 12 no hope and
Mt 9: 36 helpless, like sheep
3: 15 enmity between you and the Pr 19: 2 Desire
Ge 18: 14 Is anything too women /arrow.right woman womb
Ge 2: 22 he made into a woman /arrow.right women Isa 11: 6 The Mt 23: 13 “But woe
Pr 13: 7 Do not be
Ps 139: 13 knit me together in my mother's Lk 1: 44 the child in my Jdt 16: 5 foiled them by the hand of a Rev 12: 1 a

WITNESS ≠ WITHEDED, WITHERED
Pr 1: 13 and their leaves do not w.
Eze 47:12 Their leaves will not w nor their WITHERED ≠ WITHERED
Mt 13: 66 since they had no root, they w away.
2: 19 And the fig tree w at once.
WITHERS ≠ WITHER
Jn 15:6 it is thrown away like a branch and w;
1Pe 1: 24 The grass w, and the flower falls,
WITHOLD
Ps 84:11 No good thing does the Loo w from Ro 8: 32 He who did not
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
w
a...
WRONGED—ZOPHAR

WRONGED → WRONG
1Co 6: 7 Why not rather be w?

WRITED → WRITE
Ex 24:4 And Moses w down all the words 34:28 he w on the tablets the words of the Jn 5: 46 believe me, for he w about me.

Y

YEAR → YEARS
Ex 23: 14 Three times in the y you shall hold a Heb 10: 1 continually offered y after y.

YEARS → YEAR
Ge 1: 14 and for seasons and for days and y.
Ex 12: 40 in Egypt was four hundred thirty y.
Nu 14: 34 forty y, and you shall know my 2Ch 36: 21 it kept sabbath, to fulfill seventy y.
Ps 103: 15 For a thousand y your sight are Jer 25: 12 Then a/ft er seventy y are completed,
Da 9: 2 of Jerusalem, namely, seventy y.
Gal 4: 10 and months, and seasons, and y.
2Pe 3: 8 the Lord one day is like a thousand y,
Rev 20: 2 and bound him for a thousand y.

YEAST
Mt 16: 6 beware of the y of the Pharisees and Gal 5: 9 A little y leavens the whole batch of

YESTERDAY
Heb 13: 8 Jesus Christ is the same y and today

YODE
Mt 5: 3 my y is easy, and my burden is light.”
Gal 5: 1 not submit again to a y of slavery.

YOUNG → YOUTH
Ps 119: 9 can y people keep their way pure?
Joel 2: 28 and your y men shall see visions.
Ac 2: 17 and your y shall see visions,

YOUTH → YOUNG
Ps 7: 5 my trust, O Lora, from my y.
Ecc 12: 1 Remember your creator in the days of your y.

Z

ZACCHAEUS
Lk 19: 2 A man was there named Z;

ZEAL → ZEALOUS
Ps 69: 9 z for your house that has consumed me
Isa 37: 31 The z of the Lora of hosts will do this.
Jn 2: 17 “Z for your house will consume me.
Php 3: 6 as to z, a persecutor of the church;
1Mc 2: 26 Thus he burned with z for the law,

ZEALOUS → ZEAL
Nu 25: 13 because he was z for his God,
1Ki 19: 10 “I have been very z for the Lord,

ZEBULUN
Son of Jacob by Leah (Ge 30:20; 35:23; 1Ch 2:1). Tribe of blessed (Ge 49:13; Dt 33:18-19), numbered (Nu 1:31; 26:27), allotted land (Jos 19:10-16; Eze 48:26), failed to fully possess (Jdg 1:30), supported Deborah (Jdg 4:6-10; 5:14, 18), David (1Ch 12:33), 12,000 from (Rev 7:5).

ZECCHARIAH
1. Son of Jeroboam II; king of Israel (2Ki 15:8-12).
2. Post-exilic prophet who encouraged rebuilding of temple (Ezr 5:1; 6:14; Zec 1:1).

ZEDEKIAH =MATTANIAH
1. False prophet (1Ki 22:11-22; 2Ch 18:10-23).
2. Mattaniah, son of Josiah (1Ch 3:15), made king of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar (2Ki 24:17-25:7; 2Ch 36:10-14; Jer 37:19; 52:1-10).

ZEPHANIAH
Prophet; descendant of Hezekiah (Zep 1:1).

ZERUBBABEL Descendant of David (1Ch 3:19; Mt 1:13). Led return from exile (Ezr 2:2; Ne 7:7). Governor of Israel; helped rebuild temple (Ezr 3; Hag 1-2; Zec 4).

ZIMRI
King of Israel (1Ki 16:9-20).

ZION
Mt 5: 7 David took the stronghold of Z,
Ps 2: 6 I have set my king on Z, my holy hill.
48:2 is the joy of all the earth, Mount Z,
78:68 Mount Z, which he loves.
Isa 16: 16 I am laying in Z a foundation stone, Mic 4: 2 For out of Z shall go forth instruction,
Zec 9: 9 Rejoice greatly, O daughter Z!
Mt 21: 5 “Tell the daughter of Z,
Ro 11: 26 “Out of Z will come the Deliverer;
1Pe 2: 6 “See, I am laying in Z a stone,
Rev 14: 1 the Lamb, standing on Mount Z!

ZIPPORAH*
Daughter of Reuel; wife of Moses (Ex 2:21-22; 4:20-26; 18:1-6).

ZOPHAR*
One of J osh’s friends (Job 2:11; 11; 20: 42-9).